IN BRIEF

Officer in front of man stores as he allegedly cuts up cocaine

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — An Orlando man, who allegedly took off his car's sunroof for a base and used an earring to cut up cocaine while a policeman watched, remains jailed today on charges of possession of cocaine and drug paraphernalia.

Anthony Glenn Coulson, 21, was arrested at 10:41 p.m. Thursday by Altamonte Springs police in the parking lot of the Hilton Inn, North Lake Drive.

Police allege that an officer whose car was parked directly in front of Coulson's watched as Coulson allegedly took the sunroof from his car, put it in his lap and worked over it. Police confronted him and reported that Coulson allegedly wiped white powder from the roof and dropped a metal object.

Police searched his car and reported finding a leaf-shaped earring and a partially smoked marijuana cigarette on the floor. Cocaine also was reportedly found, and Coulson was charged.

Suspected cocaine smoker nabbed

SANFORD — Sanford police thought a man sitting in a car outside a convenience store might be smoking cocaine. That man today remains jailed on charges of possession of cocaine and drug paraphernalia as a result of police checking out his activity.

Police report that when an officer approached the car of James Dean Capps, 32, of 1481 Seminole Blvd., Casselberry, at the 7-Eleven on County Road 46-A at Airport Boulevard, he appeared to drop a bent beer can and was holding a lighter.

Police got permission to search his car and reported finding the can that apparently had been used as a cocaine smoker. More cocaine was reportedly found in Capps' pocket, and a second smoker was found in the car, police said.

He was arrested at 11:05 p.m. Friday and also was charged with driving with a suspended license. Bond was set at $2,000.

Man reportedly pistol-whipped

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Seminole County sheriff's deputies today are seeking a suspect who allegedly pistol-whipped a man on Teakwood Lane, rural Altamonte Springs.

When the attack on Willie Earl Alexander, 22, of 326 DePugh St., Altamonte Springs, began at about 9 p.m. Thursday, he told sheriff's deputies that the attacker allegedly said, "I'm tired of the drug dealing going on in the neighborhood."

The incident occurred in front of 317 Teakwood Lane, which is located in an area known for open street sales of cocaine and marijuana. Alexander reportedly told deputies he was getting a cigarette from a friend's car when he was attacked.

Meet set on alleged Stetson assault

By Fred H. Cooper
 Herald Staff Writer

DELAND — Stetson University officials have spent the past four days investigating an allegation of sexual abuse during a fraternity party Saturday night, but they said today that the only illegal acts established so far are violations of the school's policy banning alcohol on campus.

Dr. Garth Jenkins, dean of student affairs, said Thursday that a female student reported Monday she was sexually assaulted by more than one man during a party at the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity house on Saturday. Jenkins said she has declined to make a report to DeLand police or the state attorney's rape victim advocate office in Volusia County.

University president H. Douglas Lee, Jenkins, and other school administrators are meeting today to determine possible courses of action, and trying to distill fact from fiction, according to a source at the school.

Pat Haynes, executive director for the national fraternity headquartered at Memphis, Tenn., arrived at Stetson Thursday afternoon to aid in the probe. A written statement issued by chapter president

Todd Kennedy said the fraternity had conducted its own internal investigation and "found no evidence to support the rumors surrounding the incident." The fraternity pledged full cooperation with university officials.

A Stetson administrator said today that the fraternity was guilty of violations of the student code of conduct relating to the alcohol beverage policy, and definitive action against the fraternity would be taken. Details of the exact action are expected to be announced today.

An administrator in the student affairs office stated that interviews were being conducted with all members of the fraternity and other students who may have knowledge of the party, or alleged activities.

School policy concerning punishments for violations of the student code of conduct, according to Stetson's student handbook, ranges from reprimands to expulsion from school. Additional policies regarding conduct in on-campus fraternity and sorority houses provide for a $500 fine and social probation for violation of the alcohol ban.

Lease ends on Suggs' house

LAKE MARY — Chuck Suggs and his family have to move out of their rented house because of an expired lease, while the 15-year-old Chuck awaits a heart-lung transplant in London, according to Debbie Black, a Lake Mary resident helping to raise funds for Chuck.

Black said the family is trying to find a hotel to live in until the family can move into another house in May.

In the meantime, Burger King is helping to raise money for Chuck through two efforts, she said. During the month of April all Burger Kings in Seminole County will have containers available at the registers, in which customers may drop their spare change, she said.

Longwood Police Benevolent Fund by city consultant Jeff Etzberger. The fund was administered by Manning and Baker, and Hockenberry was bookkeeper. Terry was critical of the way the fund, which contained public money, was handled. However, he dropped allegations of employee conduct code violations, which he had originally cited, as well as misappropriation of public funds. Terry said, based on his investigation, he does not believe Manning, Baker or Hockenberry took actions for their personal benefit. "Undoubtedly," Terry told Manning, "you—in good faith—believed that the Longwood Police Benevolent Fund was being administered in the best interest of the department, its employees and the citizens of Longwood. Unfortunately, despite your positive intentions, the manner in which the LPB Fund was administered did not comply with proper management and accounting practices and procedures."

Motel guests $2,600 poorer

SANFORD — Police are continuing an investigation today into a robbery to the motel room of two Sanford visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. William Barron, of Wimberly, Tex., were staying at the Holiday Inn, 530 N. Palmetto, when they discovered their room had been entered and $2,600 worth of jewelry taken.

According to the police report, the Barrons believed the theft took place Wednesday evening when they left the room for a short time. The theft was discovered Thursday morning.

In other theft Sanford police are investigating:

• Gloria Easley, of 129 Yale Drive, reported the theft of a microwave oven and VCR, with a sum value of $600, from her residence between 5 p.m. and 9:45 p.m., Thursday. Entry was made through the south door entrance, police reported.

Meyers also received burns from the accident and has taken a "couple of days off" from his job as laboratory analyst for the Regional Crime Lab of the Florida Department of Law Enforcement in Orlando. "Nothing serious," said Meyers.

Does Meyers consider himself a hero? "No. You just react," he said. "The adrenaline starts to pump. We just happened to be close."

WEATHER

Five-Day Forecast For Central Florida

To see snow, go to Big Apple

By Fred H. Cooper
 Herald Staff Writer

'Tis Friday and thoughts by Semnolians go on fast forward towards the weekend. How, oh how, will the weather be? Naturally you expect to learn right here—and now. Alright, start taking notes.

The weekend weather should be real nice. Unless, of course, those two low pressure systems out west come along quicker than expected. Or, that cold weather front over the midwest zooms down upon us. If any of these happen, it won't really be noteworthy. Assume temperatures in the 80s both Saturday and Sunday. Also assume the possibility of late afternoon light showers on Saturday. Now, if either of those systems lurking out west comes upon us, the temperatures may drop 2 or 3 degrees. That's not even a brrr. It could, however, increase the possibility of rain from about 20 percent to about 40 percent. If the other front comes down, temperatures may plummet 4 or 5 degrees, increase the possibility of rain to 30 percent, but otherwise not be obnoxious. Considering all these provisos, you can expect an excellent weekend, weatherwise. How it is otherwise is up to you.

We've had it real nice for the past 24 hours. Nice, that is, if you like balmy weather with a slight nip caused by low humidity levels. We didn't quite get out of the 70s during the day, but came real close. That a fate we share with all areas within the peninsula of the state. The Panhandle was different: Just about every citizen of that northern tier enjoyed temperatures in the 80s. Kinda strange in one way but remember, during the summer it's always hotter up than here.

If you're keeping score, the highest high in the nation yesterday was a 95 degree reading at Laredo, Texas; lowest low was at Williston, N.D. with 15 degrees.

If you're heading north for the weekend you can expect pretty nice weather all the way up to D.C. Thence thitherward in a northerly direction you will encounter either rain or snow depending on where you go. Snow should fall in New York City, rain in Boston, then snow again in Maine. That's strange land up there.

Weird weather continues to plague the kooks in California. A spring storm system off the Pacific Coast brought mountain snow and heavy rain to Southern California, where a motorist whose car hydroplaned on a slick road was killed, while a blast of cold air chilled parts of the Midwest.

The National Weather Service said the "weather disturbance" dumped showers over California and Nevada today. Up to an inch was forecast for Southern California and up to 2 inches was expected in the mountains, forecaster Hugh Crowther said.

A winter storm warning was posted for higher elevations of the mountains, where 7 to 14 inches of snow was possible, Crowther said.

Rain that forced a rare postponement of a California Angels major league baseball game in Anaheim turned Los Angeles area roads treacherous Thursday, causing dozens of accidents.

(Reports by United Press International and data provided by the National Weather Service were used in compiling this report.)

new product on a wide spectrum.

The home affordability index of the National Association of Realtors indicates more people can afford homes now than at any time since mid-1986. "The primary reason is interest rates are lower and there is a feeling that they will be going back up. Nobody thinks that after the election that anything will be stabilized," he said.

"The gurus are saying 'buy now' and I think they are right especially for first time buyers," said Duffy. He predicts tremendous pressures in congress to reduce availability of low interest/low down payment loans under federal programs such as FHA and VA. He also expects a cutback in mortgage revenue bond programs that allow local and state governments to issue bonds for public projects and loans to the general public through federally guaranteed mortgages on housing.

"As an industry," Duffy said, "we are glad to see pressure for more low income housing. Home ownership is guaranteed under the Bill of Rights and the Fifth Amendment. Throughout the history of our nation, 40 percent of the wealth has accumulated from real estate investment.

Anything that happens legislatively or otherwise to diminish that will have a negative effect on our country."

Libyan link probed in explosion

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — Police today were investigating possible Libyan involvement in a car-bomb attack on a crowded USO club that killed five people, including an American servicewoman, exactly two years after the U.S. air raid on Libya.

At least 16 people, including four U.S. servicemen, were wounded in the Thursday night blast from a car parked directly in front of the American recreational club where 60 to 70 sailors were attending a party.

Police said the bomb, apparently set off by remote control, exploded at 8 p.m. and witnesses reported seeing an olive-skinned man about 40 years old in the area at the time.

Although no one claimed immediate responsibility for the bombing, police said they were investigating a possible Libyan connection because the attack came two years in the day after the U.S. air raid on Libya.

U.S. warplanes attacked the Libyan cities of Tripoli and Benghazi the night of April 14-15, 1985, in retaliation for the bombing earlier that month of a discotheque frequented by U.S. servicemen in West Berlin. One U.S. serviceman and a Turkish woman were killed in the disco bombing.

Police initially identified the five dead as Italians Thursday. But U.S. Navy spokeswoman Lt. Janet Mescus in Washington said further investigation showed that one of the dead was a U.S. Navy enlisted woman stationed at the naval communications station in Naples. Her name was withheld pending notification of her family.

Police said at least 16 people were wounded.

In Washington, a U.S. Navy spokesman said all sailors from the three U.S. warships in Naples on port call were accounted for after the blast and that four servicemen had been wounded. The Navy statement said three men from the Navy frigate Capodanno, based in Newport, R.I., were wounded: Craig Lee Trent, 22, electronics technician 3rd class, of Gaither, Md.; Charles Fifer Roberts, 38, senior fire controlman, of East St. Louis, Ill.; and Stanley Lawson Jr., 27, an electronics technician 3rd class from Maumee, Ohio.

A spokesman said two of the three Capodanno sailors had been hospitalized in "satisfactory" condition with unspecified injuries. The third was treated and released, but his identity was not given.

Borrow pit permit approved

By J. Mark Barfield
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners unanimously approved a two-year permit for a borrow pit in a 200-acre site east of County Road 13 and one-half mile north of Second Street in Chuluota.

The borrow pit was opposed by members of the Southeast Seminole County Voter's Association living near the site.

Les Gross, representing the group, said the group sought a clearer explanation of the route trucks would take and how they would enter and leave the property. They also sought 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. hours for the business and requiring the owner, Mike Hattaway, to provide the county with plans for any development on the site after the borrow pit operation has been completed.

Responding to residents, commissioners agreed to limit the hours of operation to hours between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Commissioners also limited loaded trucks to a 21-ton weight, because the bridge on State Road 419 over the Econlockhatchee River cannot carry heavier vehicles.

Although Gross had sought a one-year permit, instead of the five-year permit requested by Hattaway, commissioners granted the two-year permit, but with a commission review after one year to decide if they should revoke the permit.

Progressing into the past

Anyone who has shopped for a camera lately knows that high tech is in, mechanical simplicity out. The buzzword in photo gear these days is "auto"—auto focusing, auto exposure, auto winding, auto reversing, even auto film-speed setting.

Who knows? Auto composition may be next.

Anyway, it's refreshing to note the return to the market of the cheapest, simplest, most primitive and elementary snapshooters of them all: tiny, easily pocketable picture-takers that are scarcely more than a lens, shutter and viewfinder with a roll of fresh film attached.

You buy it, you use it, you turn it in for processing—you never see it again. Kids love them, travelers needn't worry about losing them, you can drop one into a knapsack or handbag without floating a loan or taking out a second mortgage on the house. Insurance? Forget about it!

Ordinarily, we're not too happy about adding yet another toss-away gewgaw to our already trash-ridden environment, but these light, colorful, eminently usable personal sketchpads truly represent economic—and cultural—democracy in action.

They're also a return to the principles that made the "Jolly Yellow Giant," the Eastman Kodak Co., great in the first place. After all, George Eastman sold his first cameras preloaded, asking that they be shipped back to the factory for lab work. A good idea, it seems, never dies. It simply needs time to develop.

Cloud remains

By the ethical standards of the Reagan administration, Attorney General Edwin Meese has been exonerated. A special prosecutor has said that he does not have enough evidence at this time to indict Mr. Meese. But the ethical standard for an attorney general ought to be higher than that he is not indictable. It should be that he is above reproach. That, Mr. Meese is not.

As long as he has been in Washington, he has been trying to explain away the intermingling of his private affairs with his public responsibilities. Mr. Meese uses his position to influence others on behalf of friends. He, in turn, has enjoyed favorable financial treatment from them. It may well be that he has never broken a law and, moreover, that he has been used by clever self-promoters like E. Robert Wallach. But if that is the case it means Mr. Meese lacks the ethical sensitivity and the legal acumen to be attorney general.

There can be no doubt that Mr. Meese has been an embarrassment to the Justice Department. Two of his top aides have resigned, as have four lesser figures in the department. Obviously, it is awkward for lawyers in the department to be initiating proceedings that challenge the integrity of individuals or corporations at a time their boss' integrity has been called into question.

The need to preserve—or in this case restore—the Justice Department's good name transcends all other considerations. Accordingly, notwithstanding the special prosecutor's left-handed exoneration, Mr. Meese ought to step down.

Gorbachev's need greater than ours

American conservatives have been treating Gorbachev's "restructuring" as if it were a ruse of some sort, a fraud of no consequence, whereas it seems to be a genuine and even historic effort to change the nature of the Soviet Union. The odds are that it will fail, and even prove to be catastrophic for the Russians, but it is clear that something had to be done with the failing Soviet system, and that Gorbachev is trying to do it. It is not so clear what the implications are for U.S.-Soviet relations.

By far the best treatment of Gorbachev's "perestroika" appeared in a very long article in the Mar. 28 New Yorker by Daniel Ford, otherwise unidentified.

The face is dawned upon economists outside Russia that the Soviet Union is an economic basket case to an extent previously undreamed of. Our own Central Intelligence Agency, with its row upon row of sophisticated analysts, certainly never dreamed of it. The CIA has been estimating Soviet Gross National Product at, per capita, around $7,000, about the same as Great Britain or Italy. Such estimates have affected in a profound way U.S. estimates of Soviet capabilities.

The real figure is $2,500 per capita. The CIA depended in part on official Soviet economic figures, which should be treated as fiction, and failed to factor in the actual functioning of the centrally planned Soviet Economy. In fact, the Soviets need about three times the Western input to achieve the same quantity produced in the West or in the free countries of Asia. When you use such simple standards as life expectancy, infant mortality and so forth, the Soviet Union is more like a Third World nation than a "superpower."

Official statistics on building construction, for example, count buildings started rather than completed. Some structures are incomplete after 20 years. A load of wood moving toward a furniture factory arrives half full: stolen for the black market, or spilled by a vodka sodden workman. Cement walls disintegrate and collapse: the necessary ingredients had been sold to the black market. There is no transportation to get agricultural products to the market.

This does not mean that the Soviets cannot produce the best atomic-powered submarine in the world or put a space station in place. But it does have ominous implications for the twenty-first century.

According to an American diplomat in Moscow, "Gorbachev concluded that the U.S.S.R. is in danger of becoming a third-rate—not a second-rate—power in the twenty-first century." He concluded that heroic measures are necessary to avoid this ignominious fate. Economically, Gorbachev saw, the U.S.S.R. is in the same league as Mexico, Malaysia or Portugal. On top of it all, the Soviet Union has no more than a handful of serious economists, and probably none who would qualify for a post in a first-rate Western university.

Gorbachev knows that he needs "incentives." That is, the despised profit motive, but here even he is ambivalent. All of Marxist theory posited a new individual who would care more for society than for self. Gorbachev himself despises "money-grubbing." But the concrete results of Marxist theory are spread out before him, as the U.S.S.R. sinks into the swamp of economic nothingness.

WILLIAM BURNER

Liberal — but unbiased?

"Is there a liberal 'media elite' in this country? Of course."

If it took 30 years to wrench that admission out of America's liberals and print it on page 20 of their literary flagship, The New York Times Book Review (April 10), how long will it take them to concede that this media elite's liberalism saturates its journalistic output?

Another 30, I guess, if David Shaw is representative. The quoted admission opens his review of my new book, "The Coming Battle for the Media: Curbing the Power of the Media Elite," which is being published this month by William Morrow & Co. But as I say in the book itself (page 64):

"The truth is that many of the media's defenders have thrown in the sponge on the issue of the personal liberalism of the overwhelming majority of the media elite. They are falling back to a previously prepared position which they intend to defend tenaciously: Sure, journalists have their private opinions, just like anybody else; and OK, those opinions are — for whatever reason — much more liberal than those of the American people as a whole. But journalists can, and do, put aside their personal preferences when they report, edit and present the news."

Much of the rest of the book is a demonstration (and quite an easy one, I might add) that they do no such thing.

Sure enough, though, Shaw, having led off with that quoted admission, executes, exactly as described, a stylish retreat to the aforesaid previously prepared position. On the basis of his own considerable experience (he is the able in-house press critic of the Los Angeles Times), he asserts that journalists, far from deliberately serving liberal purposes, are merely by temperament "malcontents; they complain about everything," especially corruption. "If the corruption is there, the reporter will expose it — gladly, gleefully, regardless of the ideology of the target."

JACK ANDERSON

Now, if you can't say anything nice...

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — Judging by all the shouting, we struck a nerve with two Reagan Cabinet members when we asked them to give us some insight into Vice President George Bush. We surveyed 33 past and present members of Reagan's Cabinet in February when Bush and Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., were slugging it out for the nomination. Education Secretary William Bennett and Transportation Secretary James H. Burnley scolded us for asking about Bush. Bennett complained widely in the media about our bad form.

We thought the gentlemen did protest too much. Knowledgeable sources at the White House, in the Cabinet and elsewhere tell us that Bennett and Burnley were closet Dole supporters and, at the time they got our survey, were considering coming out of the closet with public endorsements of Dole.

Bennett and Burnley sent us the most inflamed of the written responses from the Cabinet. We thought our request was an easy one: Give us "examples of policy decisions or actions in which the opinion or work of Mr. Bush made a difference over the past seven years."

Bennett wrote a scaring, five-paragraph letter that reminded us of a trip to the principal's office. His letter was released to the Associated Press and created a controversy

ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Influence scandal

WASHINGTON—The American people understand the high cost of elections in the age of television. Vast sums are spent on political advertisements in even lightly populated states such as Iowa and New Hampshire. However, the U.S. public is less well-informed as to political fund-raising.

Today, federal officeholders are heavily dependent on money from political action committees. While Congress is in session, there are innumerable fund-raising sessions attended by members of Congress and representatives of PACs. Someone has estimated that a U.S. senator needs to raise $10,000 a week for reelection purposes. The pressure on members of Congress to raise money is shocking. The fund-raising detracts from attention to the serious duties of a national legislator. Ironically, many PACs give to candidates on both sides of an issue, so that the donors will be protected no matter what happens.

Political fund-raising is a mess. Many liberal candidates benefit not only from PAC donations but from the so-called educational activities of labor unions and activist groups. This "soft money" is a great help to these candidates. Even foundations, which aren't supposed to engage in political activities, sometimes have a political coloration.

The most disturbing aspect of political fund-raising is the growing involvement by PACs controlled by foreign companies. It's been reliably stated that there are more than 100 PACs that represent foreign interests. That these are allowed to exist is outrageous. No foreign interest should be permitted to influence elections in this country, either directly or indirectly. The public should demand that the law be changed to forbid PACs that are instruments for advancing the policies of foreign organizations. These PACs represent gross interference in the American political process.

The way to deal with American lobbyists who serve foreign interests is to apply a strict ban on lobbying activity by former government officials. Limited efforts have been made to stop the revolving door used by former officials who leave U.S. service in order to enter the service of foreign interests. Service in government is a privilege, and should not be used—that is, misused—so as to qualify a former official for the huge fees paid by foreign governments and companies that want the contracts of former insiders.

That nothing significant has been done to date about foreign lobbies is evidence of the political savvy of the lobbyists. They often have more influence than the people whom the members of Congress are elected to represent. The first step in achieving reform is to bring the extent of foreign lobbying to the forefront of public consciousness.

Fruitfly croons a love tune

By Celia Hooper
UPI Science Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fruitflies sing love songs to put each other in the mood to mate, but the tunes crooned by Hawaiians of the species are far different from their mainland cousins', scientists have found.

The biologists said they had discovered Hawaiian fruitflies have completely different rhythms, frequencies, and even different ways of producing sounds in courting rituals than are found in mainland species that resemble the islanders' ancestors.

Ronald R. Hoy, a professor of neurobiology at Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y., who led the study reported recently in the journal Science, said he first got the idea to study the Hawaiian flies' songs during a television program that showed male insects beating their wings in an unusual way during courtship.

"I said, 'Boy, I bet that sounds neat,'" Hoy said in a telephone interview.

Most fruitflies' songs are only audible with ultra-sensitive microphones that pick up a special type of sound undetectable by ordinary equipment for recording human speech or music.

"These are intimate whispers," Hoy said, made by males that are only a fraction of an inch from female fruitflies.

The Hawaiian fruitflies have become classic subjects for other types of evolutionary studies, Hoy said, but until his research, no one had studied the Hawaiian fruitflies' unique love tunes.

Along with two co-workers, Hoy found that one group of Hawaiian fruitflies is able to make "clicky" noises at a frequency 10 times higher than any sound found in continental fruitflies — or any flies at all. Unrelated insects such as cicadas and katydids can make clicks, but the sound has never been heard in any fly the researchers said.

Hoy said in a telephone interview that the first time he heard the click-song he "was shocked, totally shocked."

request, with a caution that a dearth of examples about Bush's accomplishments could "send a negative message about Mr. Bush that may not be warranted."

Burnley continued: "I am writing to inform you that I have no intention of responding to your demand. Furthermore, if you attempt to 'interpret' my failure to help you write a column, such interpretation will be a complete fabrication on your part and without foundation in fact."

A more temperate private supporter of Dole was Energy Secretary John S. Herrington. He gave us a statement calling Bush "an excellent vice president ... in furthering the Reagan agenda." He called Bush, "easy to work with, and forceful when necessary."

But, along with 27 other present and past Cabinet members, he provided no examples of what Bush had done in the last seven years.

Labor Secretary Ann McLaughlin was also reported to be a quiet Dole backer. Her press aide, Chris Winston, wrote to us: "As a member of President Reagan's cabinet, it would be highly inappropriate for the secretary to comment on any candidate seeking the Republican nomination. This is particularly true in light of the fact that the president himself has remained steadfastly neutral."

"Inappropriate" must have been the word of the day over at the White House.

Secretary of Health and Human Services Otis R. Bowen: "It would be highly inappropriate for me to single out any of these well-qualified individuals by responding to your request. Any inclination on your part to read anything into this decision other than the principle of neutrality would be a serious mistake."

Secretary of the Interior Donald Hodel: "...I feel it is inappropriate for me to respond to the question in your letter at this time. The American people will have ample opportunity to approve the qualifications of the Republican nominee after the convention."

A few were more creative. U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter, a member of the Cabinet, said he would be pleased to assess Bush "after the Republican convention in August." (What Republican appointee wouldn't trumpet the Republican nominee after the competition was out of the way? That's why we asked before Super Tuesday.)

James C. Miller III, director of the Office of Management and Budget, said that "no matter how extensively I might describe my observations of the vice president's contributions ... such information might well be interpreted by some as implying that he had made no other contributions, and thus could be viewed as a criticism of the vice president."

Mid-August shuttle launch considered

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — NASA engineers are considering the possibility of a mid-August launch for the first post-Challenger shuttle flight, sources said Thursday, although Aug. 4 remains the official launch target.

At the Kennedy Space Center, engineers prepared to bolt two booster fuel segments together that will make up the lower half of the shuttle Discovery's left-side booster rocket.

Shuttle boosters are assembled from the bottom up and the "stacking" procedure is a key element in the launch schedule, one of the topics thought to be on the agenda at a monthly NASA management council meeting Thursday at the Johnson Space Center in Houston.

The all-day meeting, chaired by Rear Adm. Richard Truly, chief of the shuttle program, was attended by the agency's top shuttle managers along with Discovery's commander, Frederick Hauck, and his four crewmates.

Officials who requested anonymity said "around Aug. 13" is the current "best guess" launch date. Whether that target ultimately is recommended to Truly, or whether he opts to press for a more ambitious goal—Aug. 11 has been mentioned—remains to be seen.

But few NASA insiders take such launch targets seriously, saying a "real" date will be impossible to determine until Discovery's boosters are assembled and the shuttle is ready for its trip to the launch pad in early June.

In the meantime, for public consumption, the agency is expected to stick with its Aug. 4 launch target until a more realistic date can be nailed down, even though as one engineer said this week: "We all know Aug. 4 is gone."

Here are the major milestones in the latest unofficial version of NASA's launch processing plan, including dates for the final three full-scale booster test firings required before Discovery's blastoff. All dates are subject to change:

● April 20: QM-6, a full-scale shuttle booster, is test fired at Morton Thiokol Inc.'s Brigham City, Utah, rocket plant.

● June 9 (approximate): Discovery is hauled to launch pad 39B; a booster called QM-7 is test fired in Utah.

● July 1: Discovery's three liquid-fueled main engines are fired at the launch pad for about 20 seconds in a crucial test of the overall shuttle system.

● Mid-July: Final full-scale booster test firing is conducted in Utah.

● Aug. 13 (approximate): Launch of Discovery on the 26th shuttle mission.

Whether NASA can meet such a schedule will depend on progress "stacking" Discovery's boosters, which has been going slower than expected, and work to close out a wide range of technical issues involving the shuttle itself.

Many insiders believe Discovery will not be able to blast off until September, but NASA's management philosophy calls for a "success oriented" schedule, and if all goes extremely well, a mid- to late-August launch remains possible.

Announcing launch dates, always a major production for NASA in the shuttle era, has developed into a touchy issue for the space agency in the wake of the Challenger disaster.

Lauderdale wants to keep Lake Mary on an 'even keel'

By Wayne Mies
Herald Staff Writer
LAKE MARY — If only temporary, the city of Lake Mary has a new city manager.

Tuesday, Police Chief Charles Lauderdale began acting as "staff coordinator" during the recuperation period of City Manager Bob Norris, who will undergo a triple-bypass open-heart operation Wednesday morning. Norris is expected to be absent four to six weeks.

"I plan to hold the ship on a 45-degree tack," said Lauderdale of his new city hall duties. "We are just going to try and keep an even keel."

Lauderdale dislikes the terms "acting" or "interim" city manager. "To be honest, I don't think we need an acting city manager," said Lauderdale. "We just need someone to direct the staff."

Lauderdale said that he met with Norris on a "daily basis" for more than a week preparing him for the temporary change in position. "Bob had to sit down with me over the past week and voice his concerns. Mainly, he gave me the helm."

Lauderdale says his biggest concern is not to get off track. "We have some staff shortcomings right now. We don't have a city financial director and Bob is in the hospital. Plus, the budget is due in June," he said. "These are things we have to address soon."

"I will do it to the best of my ability," said Lauderdale. "We will be here (City Hall) all the time that is needed. Give me a job to do and I'll do it."

Police Captain Sam Belfiore will assume Lauderdale's duties as police chief. "Sam Belfiore is more than capable," said Lauderdale. "He knows my priorities."

Belfiore said that he has prior experience as interim police chief as foresees no difficulties taking over the duties.

"After all, we'll just be across the street from each other," said Lauderdale.

City employee regulations state that after 30 days in a higher grade the employee must be paid the higher grade of pay while in that position. Both Belfiore and Lauderdale will receive temporary raises after 30 days and until Norris' return.

Court: Road-building lets DOT preempt comprehensive plans

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Department of Transportation must and does have the authority to build a road through a city or county even if that road conflicts with the local government's own growth management plan, the Supreme Court says.

The high court said Thursday that law dictates local governments and the transportation department work together to plan state roads, but that DOT has the ultimate authority to decide where a state road will go.

The ruling came in a Palm Beach County case launched by Dr. and Mrs. Augusto Lopez-Torres and later joined by the Audubon Society of the Everglades and the community of Ocean Ridge. The Lopez-Torres' hoped to block the construction of a replacement state road bridge 700 feet north of an existing Boynton Beach span, arguing the bridge would violate the comprehensive plan of Ocean Ridge.

"If the DOT was bound to build the proposed bridge at the existing location in accordance with the comprehensive plan of Ocean Ridge, then the construction site of the bridge would be inconsistent with the comprehensive plan of Boynton Beach," the Supreme Court ruled. "Without this pre-emptive authority the DOT would have no way to resolve any conflict between the comprehensive plans of neighboring communities with respect to the location of state roads and bridges."

Farm outlook gloomy - expert

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — The Federal Land Bank foreclosed on more Florida farms last year than at any time since the Great Depression, but an agricultural expert points out the real farm situation is worse.

"You read in the media the farm crisis is over. It's not over by a long shot in my opinion," said University of Florida farm expert P.J. van Blodland. "In fact, I think this will be the year we'll see more farmers leaving agriculture voluntarily."

The Federal Land Bank foreclosed on 107 Florida farms last year. The bank serving the region is a member-owned banking co-operative known as Farm Credit Banks, based in Columbia, S.C., and serves the Carolinas, Georgia and Florida.

A recent report from the bank said Florida's problems were not as severe as those in other states. But Land Bank research analyst Richard S. Monson notes there could be more foreclosures this year.

U.S. ship hits mine; 10 injured

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — An explosion possibly caused by a mine damaged a Navy frigate and injured 10 sailors in the worst incident involving a U.S. warship in the Persian Gulf since an Iraqi missile attack on the USS Stark 11 months ago.

In Washington, Pentagon spokesman Dan Howard said the explosion hit the Samuel B. Roberts at 10:10 a.m. EDT Thursday as it cruised about 70 miles east of the island of Bahrain after escorting a re-flagged Kuwaiti tanker through the war-stricken waterway.

A Pentagon official said 10 sailors were injured, one more seriously than the others. None of the injuries were life threatening, the Pentagon said.

Of the nine less seriously injured, two had "slight" back injuries, six had "slight" burns and one had a hernia, the Pentagon said.

The sailor with more serious second-degree burns was flown by helicopter to the amphibious landing dock USS Trenton in the central gulf and was then taken to Bahrain.

Trading active, mixed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened mixed today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues as the market struggled to regain its composure after the previous session's full-scale retreat.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which plunged 101.46 Thursday, was up 2.16 to 2007.80 shortly after the market opened.

Declines, however, led advances 609-245 among the 1,261 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 11,190,000 shares.

Prices on the Tokyo Stock Exchange fell sharply in active trading Friday.

Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita's chief spokesman, Keizo Obuchi, called on traders to remain calm in the wake of Wall Street's setback Thursday.

Dollar continues slide; Gold, silver higher

By United Press International

The dollar, still reacting to disappointing trade figures, was lower today on most major foreign currency markets. Gold moved higher.

The dollar's new slump began Thursday with the release of U.S. trade figures for February showing the deficit had grown to $13.8 billion, the biggest since October's record $17.631 billion.

On the currency markets, earlier in Tokyo, the dollar closed sharply lower at 124.13 yen, down 2.02 from Thursday's close of 126.15 yen despite reported heavy intervention by the Bank of Japan.

Currency analysts in Japan blamed the decline on the U.S. trade deficit for February which pushed the dollar down almost 3 yen in New York when the figures were announced Thursday.

Dealers said the Bank of Japan stepped into the market immediately as the dollar came under heavy selling pressure.

The central bank bought between $500 million and $1 billion, purchasing dollars whenever the exchange rate approached 123.90 yen.

Finance Minister Kiichi Miyazawa attempted to slow the dollar's fall by promising in Washington before the Tokyo market opened that the Bank of Japan would intervene.

Miyazawa made his statement after the Group of Seven monetary powers reaffirmed their earlier agreement on policy coordination to stabilize foreign exchange markets.

But many dealers shrugged off the agreement as insignificant and paid more attention to the U.S. trade figures.

pany; and Gray, Harris & Robinson, attorneys. In addition, he received 10 $200 contributions, one $150 contribution, 47 $100 contributions and 81 contributions less than $100.

Oviedo real estate agent Dave Knickerbocker leads the contribution race for the District 1 Seminole County commission seat.

Knickerbocker, a Republican, has reported $12,660 to date, including $2,885 during the last reporting period ending Sunday. He began his campaign last year.

Knickerbocker's opponent, Republican Pat Warren of Altamonte Springs, reported $7,905 in contributions on her first campaign report this week.

Warren is legislative aide to current District 1 commissioner, Barbara Christensen, who is vacating the seat to run for county tax collector.

Knickerbocker received a $500 contribution from Del American Commercial, builders. He received a $300 contribution from Hal H. Kantor, lawyer. He received $250 contributions from Sunshine International, real property sales, and A. Sassafor, lawyer. He also received three $100 contributions and 46 contributions less than $100.

Warren received $1,000 contributions from: Lake Hayes Properties, real estate broker-developer; Hamp and Gladys Horn, contractor; and Courtland Executive Center, office management. She received $500 contributions from Roriek Builders, builders, and Hubert R. Early, developer.

Warren received $300 contributions from William C. and Barbara Kercher, planning consultant; Yannie Construction Co., contractor; and Sam Carr, engineer. She received one $250 contribution from Philip Hunt Jr., financial consultant. In addition, she received six $200 contributions, including a $200 contribution from Christensen.

Warren also received 15 $100 contributions and three contributions of less than $100 each, including $5 from herself to open her campaign account.

In the District 5 commission race, Jennifer Kelley, a Sanford high school teacher, leads her two opponents in campaign funds collected. Also running for the District 5 seat are Art Davis, a Sanford plumbing contractor, and Ned Johnson, instructional services dean of Seminole Community College. Kelley and Johnson are Republicans. Davis is a Democrat.

ment of Transportation to cooperate with local governments on roads and other infrastructure.

"We will ask our legislative delegation what chance these proposals have for survival and how we can support the good ones and work to defeat those that aren't," he said.

Duffy said a bill coming out of the House Health Care Committee would even require real estate brokers to inform buyers if the previous owner had AIDS.

He said his group opposes the proposed legislation. "We are required to disclose material facts concerning the property, but we don't consider whether or not the owner had AIDS a material fact," Duffy said. "It is not a simple issue. Should we violate the seller's right to privacy or the buyer's right to disclosure? Similar laws were tested in courts in California and New Jersey, where they were found to be unconstitutional, but in Texas the courts ruled in favor of the law."

A proposed bill of special interest locally is one concerning radon gas, a naturally occurring radioactive gas that if trapped in a building in sufficient quantity is believed to cause cancer. As the result of surveys, Seminole County is considered a medium risk county for presence of radon.

"Parts of the county apparently have some exposure to radon," Duffy said. "We need to have some uniform process for identifying it and we want the department of Health and Rehabilitative Services to identify what is the minimum accepted radon gas standard."

during the last reporting period, received an additional $8,235 to bring her total contributions to date to $13,300.

Kelley received $500 contributions from Cleo Dunn, retired; Ted & Pat Temeyer, commercial lessor; Sanford Interstate Properties, developers; Spaceport USA, developer; and Hickman Enterprises, developer.

Kelley received $250 contributions from Dainwood, Derryberry, Pavelelak, Architects, architectural firm; Florida International Consultants, Inc., consultants; and Tax Control, political action committee. She also received three $200 contributions, four $125 contributions, 17 $100 contributions and 56 contributions of less than $100.

Davis received a total of $1,450 in his first campaign report turned in this week. The amount includes one $500 contribution from Gerri McEwan, housewife; two $200 contributions; one $150 contribution; three $100 contributions and three contributions less than $100, including a $50 personal loan from himself.

Johnson reported $385 on his first list, including two $100 contributions from himself. He also received six contributions of less than $100 each.

Pending legislation would provide for certification of radon testers, call for mandatory disclosures of radon levels on all sale and lease contracts; and proposes a pre-emption of all local laws on radon so that there can be uniform enforcement statewide.

Also proposed is a radon trust fund that would be financed by a one-cent per square foot charge on all building permit fees. If passed, this is expected to generate $3.75 million for the purpose of researching radon resistant building codes.

"We endorse these proposals at this point," Duffy said. "The irony is we've gone to such lengths to lock up our houses to conserve energy and now may need similar programs to help people ventilate their homes to prevent a build up of radon gas."

LSU signs Martin, Florida inks Webster

SANFORD — Seminole High track standouts Shownda Martin and Dorchelle Webster have made their decision on where they will attend college. Martin has signed with Louisiana State University and Webster will attend the University of Florida. Both were heavily recruited by the nation's top track and field programs.

Martin is the state record holder in the 800 run and is looking to take that title again this season. She is also one of the state's leaders in the mile run.

Webster leads the state in the 330 hurdles where she has won the last two years and she is also one of the top performers in the 110 hurdles as well as the heptathlon. Webster will most likely concentrate on the 400 hurdles in college and she is currently only .08 of a second off the Olympic trials qualifying standard in that event.

8th grader Compton runs 2:24 in 800

CASSELBERRY — South Seminole 8th grader Monica Compton ran a superb time of 2:24.3 in the 800 run Thursday at a Middle School Track Meet at Lake Howell High School.

Compton's time would rank high among this year's high school runners. Seventh grader Jenny McDowell of Tusawilla also looked good as she won the long jump with a 13-5 and the high jump by clearing 3-10 and she also took the 100 meters at 13.5.

Bekah Boothe, an eighth grader at Greenwood Lakes, took first in the long jump in her grade with a 13-04 and she also won the 100 meters (13.6) and the 220 dash (30.7).

Natalie Newberry of Tusawilla won the 8th grade mile at 6:37 and Tusawilla's Sally Morris won the 8th grade high jump at 3-10. In the discus, Linda Montgomery of Greenwood Lakes was the top 7th grader at 51-1 and the 8th grader was Courtney Boltzner of Greenwood at 62-6. In the shot put, Greenwood's Alkimi Blue was first in 7th grade at 29-9 and Greenwood's Tricia Montgomery was first in the 8th grade at 28-1/2.

Tullis leads Brantley to Fresh-Soph crown

LONGWOOD — Lake Brantley rode three first places from Joyce Tullis to first place in the girls division of the Seminole Athletic Conference Freshman-Sophomore meet on a rain-soaked Tuesday night at Lyman High.

Tullis, freshman, won the mile (5:41), 800 (2:37.5) and the two mile (12:40). Brantley's mile relay team clinched the meet by finishing in third place. The Lady Patriots finished with 71 1/2 points compared to 69 for Seminole.

Jo Dee Lake had a good day for Brantley as she won the shot put (34-0) and took second in the discus (93-3).

Seminole was led by Yolanda Baker who won the 100 meters (12.9) and the 440 dash (63.7). Also taking first for Seminole was Michelle Toombs in the triple jump (31-11).

For Lake Howell, Jessica Cardarelli was first in the 110 hurdles (18.7). Lyman got a first from Tonya Jerry in the long jump (16-1/2) and Lake Mary got a first from Kwaja Floyd in the 220 (27.3).

Lady Patriots survive Oviedo, 2-1

By Chris Pister

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — After all the good things they did to put themselves in position to win, it was a shame that one mishap ended up costing Oviedo's Lady Lions the game.

Oviedo played its best game of the season Thursday night against league-leading Lake Brantley but the Lady Patriots scored two runs on one three-base error in the sixth inning and held on for a 2-1 victory in Seminole Athletic Conference play before 301 fans at Lady Patriot Stadium.

"That was the best game we've played all year, we just made that one error at the wrong time and that was the game," Oviedo coach Jackie Miller said. "I'm happy with the improvement we're starting to show and I hope we can start playing like this consistently."

Lake Brantley improved to 19-4 overall and 9-1 in the SAC with two games remaining. The Lady Patriots play Lake Mary on Tuesday and Seminole on Thursday. Oviedo now stands at 9-6 overall and 5-5 in the conference.

"Oviedo played a tremendous game tonight," Lake Brantley coach Renny Betris said. "Everyone in the conference is getting better. We need to be able to keep our concentration and bear down and do the job in the next two games."

It was Oviedo that did the job both offensively and defensively in the early going Thursday. Shortstop Jill Knutson and left fielder Corrie Lawson turned in superb play in the field for the Lady Lions and Jodie Switzer pitched a brilliant game.

Brantley did a nice job on defense to hold Oviedo to just one run. The Lady Lions scored sharp grounder toward left field but shortstop Tracy Brandenburg made a nice backhanded stop and fired to Tina Wilson at first for the out. Switzer tried to score on the play but was thrown out at the plate by Wilson to catcher Chris Calabrese.

Lake Brantley did not get a hit in the ballgame until the bottom of the third but the Lady Patriots did not score as Oviedo's defense rose to the occasion. Wilson led the inning off with a single but she was doubled off first when Anna Hollis caught Chris Rabaja's line drive. Michelle Weston then singled but Heather Meyer lined out to right to end the inning.

Lake Brantley used an unusual double play to get out of the top of the fourth. With one out, Hollis reached on a bloop single to left. Knutson then hit a popup behind third base that third baseman Michelle Karr got a glove on but the ball popped loose. Brandenburg, who was backing up the play, grabbed the ball before it hit the ground, though, and then fired to first to force Hollis for the inning-ending double play.

Brantley put runners on first and second with one out in the bottom of the fourth but Pam Wittig then flew out to center and Knutson made a spectacular leaping catch of Karr's soft liner to end the inning.

Oviedo came through with some more good defense in the fifth. With one out, Wilson hit a line shot to left field that Lawson made a diving catch of to save a base hit. It was a big play as Rabaja and Weston followed with singles. Third baseman Kristie Montione then knocked down Meyer's grounder and stepped on third for the force

Howell blasts Lyman

LONGWOOD — Lake Howell has a power-packed top of the batting order that rivals any in this area. But, when the bottom four spots in the Lady Hawks' lineup hits the way they did Thursday afternoon, watch out.

The players who occupied the bottom four spots in the order combined for nine hits, nine runs and nine runs batted in as Lake Howell rolled to a 18-0 rout of Lyman's Lady Greyhounds in Seminole Athletic Conference action before 101 fans.

Val Monico, hitting in the eighth slot, and Rixja Millwood, hitting 10th in the order, had the hot bats for the Lady Hawks Thursday. Monico, a junior third baseman, was 3 for 3 with three runs and three RBIs. Millwood, a senior first baseman, was 2 for 2 with three RBIs. No. 9 hitter Tanya Lewis was 2 for 4 with two runs and an RBI while Lisa Boatwright and Christy Dees were both 1 for 2 with an RBI while hitting in the seventh spot.

After a scoreless first inning, the bottom four hitters keyed a three-run rally in the second. Lee Ann Trimble led it off with a double and scored on a single by Boatwright. Monico then singled in Boatwright and Monico later scored on Millwood's base hit.

The Lady Hawks made it 8-0 in the fourth, again with those same hitters keying the rally. With one out, Monico singled and Lewis then singled up the middle with Monico scoring when the ball scooted past the centerfielder. Millwood then stepped up and roped a single to center to drive in Lewis. After Missy Martinez walked, Marie Peters singled and an error on the play allowed Millwood and Martinez to score. Peters then scored on Leslie Barton's sacrifice fly.

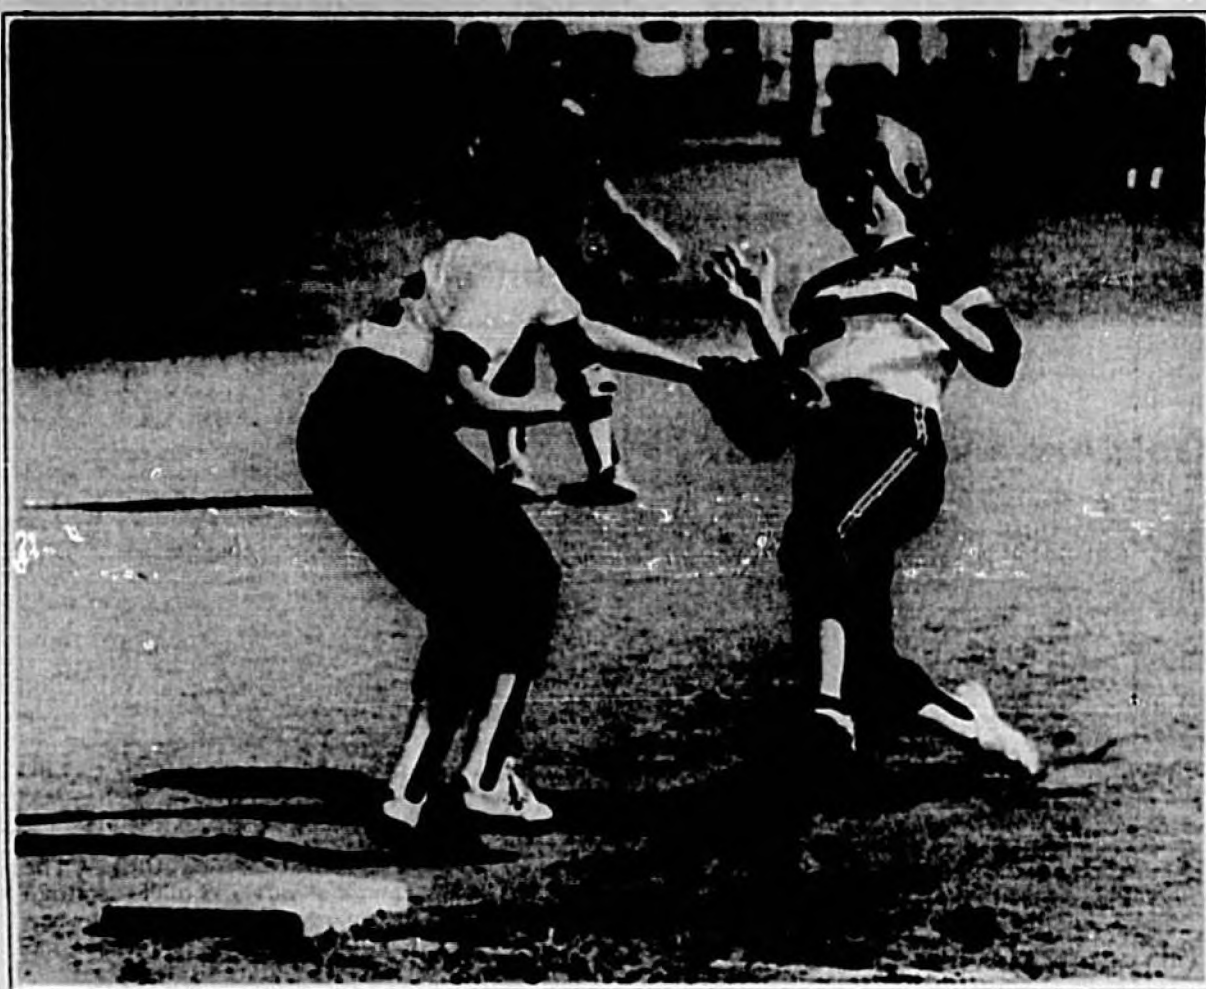

Lyman's best chance to score came in the bottom of the fourth when Tonya Eichberger singled and Tiffany Rose had a two-out single but Amy Weiser then flew out to center to end the inning.

The Lady Hawks then tacked on four runs in the fifth for a 12-0 lead. Trimble started it off with her second double of the game and scored on a one-out single by Dees. Monico followed with a walk and Lewis doubled to center to drive in Trimble. Millwood's sacrifice fly then scored Monico and Martinez singled up the middle to drive in Lewis.

The Lady Greyhounds threatened in the bottom of the fifth but again came up empty. Carol Colley led off with a single and Tamee Wright walked. With one out, Dana Garrett hit a ball that bounced off Wright. Wright was out, but Colley took third and Garrett first with two outs. Sabrina Jarrett then hit into a force play to end the inning.

Lake Howell then came up with four runs in the sixth to account for the 15-run slaughter rule. Leslie Barton reached on a three-base error to start the inning and scored on Julie Barton's single. With one out, Stormi Littrell singled and Dees reached on an error to score Julie Barton. Monico then smacked a single to left center to drive in Littrell and Dees.

Debbie McDonough was the winning pitcher for the Lady Hawks as she held Lyman to six hits.

Seminole third baseman Tami Holloway became unglued, or ungloved, on this play in Thursday's game vs. Lake Mary. Holloway (above) has the ball in her glove as Lake Mary's Amy Adams slides in. Next thing you know, Holloway's glove and the ball have both flown away and Adams went on to score. Lake Mary won the game, 18-1.

SANFORD — Lake Mary pounded out 28 hits en route to an 18-1 thrashing of Seminole in Seminole Athletic Conference action Thursday before 51 fans at Ft. Melon Park in Sanford.

The Lady Rams improved to 16-4 overall and 8-2 in the conference. The Lady Tribe dropped to 2-12 and 1-10 in the SAC. Lake Mary has two big games next week as it plays Lake Brantley on Tuesday and Lake Howell Thursday, both at home.

"We hit the ball well and continued to produce runs," Lake Mary coach Karen Nolen said. "We've been scoring a lot of runs in our past few games and we want to continue that next week."

Lake Mary took control of the game from the opening inning with four runs in the top of the frame. Amy Adams led off with a single, and after an out, Brooke Taylor singled to right to score Adams. Paula Songer then reached on an error to place runners on first and second. Heather Golden then launched a home run over the Seminole right center fielder to give the Lady Rams a 4-0 advantage.

The Lady Rams added a pair of runs in the top of the third with Golden leading things off, reaching on an error that moved her to second. Frey then hit a single to put runners on the corners. Val Smith then reached on an error to score Golden. Tonya Colvin then reached on another error that plated Frey.

Susanne Dubrioulet started off the top of the fourth for the Lady Rams with a single, Adams followed with a single and after an out Taylor reached on an error that scored Dubrioulet. Golden then hit into a fielders choice that scored Adams and opened the Lake Mary lead to 8-0.

Senate wants expansion timetable

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate task force is threatening one of major league baseball's most sacred possessions — its shield from federal antitrust laws — following a snub by Commissioner Peter Ueberroth.

The task force said it will back legislation to strip baseball of its protection from antitrust laws if Ueberroth fails to produce a timetable on expanding the major leagues by the July all-star break, when the club owners meet, Sen. Tim Wirth, D-Colo., said Thursday. The 26-team major leagues have not expanded in 12 years.

Ueberroth met with the Senate Task Force on the Expansion of Major League Baseball in November and Wirth said the commissioner promised to devise a timetable on expansion. But Ueberroth wrote the task force two weeks ago saying no timetable was forthcoming, although he said an "expansion program" would be completed "in the not-too-distant future."

"We don't like to be stifled that way," said Wirth, who also demanded another meeting with Ueberroth "right away."

Wirth's comments came after seven senators from the task force met for one hour with Major League Players Association Executive Director Donald Fehr.

A top baseball official denied that Ueberroth had snubbed the task force.

Baseball Executive Vice President Ed Durso said in a statement: "We are disappointed by the statements attributed to some of the task force members. Baseball has been thoroughly responsive to all of the task force inquiries and we've acted in good faith every step of the way."

Durso added that baseball is "giving expansion its clear attention" and reiterated that an expansion program is being developed by a joint National League/American League committee.

Congress granted major league baseball a special exemption from federal antitrust laws in the 1920s, in effect allowing the sport to act as a monopoly. No other sports league has such protection, although the National Football League was conferred limited immunity from antitrust laws in the 1960s.

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., said he would work with Wirth "to draft legislation that will bring baseball back under antitrust. I think that's really what it's going to take if we're not going to get some dates or some procedure if there's going to be some expansion process."

"It should be subject to antitrust laws and not totally exempt," added DeConcini, who is also the sponsor of legislation to give the NFL additional antitrust protection to facilitate expansion.

Sen. Bob Graham, D-Fla., said baseball is betraying the public interest in its refusal to expand and if no positive response comes from Ueberroth, "We can reasonably come to the conclusion that we have exhausted the possibility of dealing with this issue on an amiable basis and we will have to try to convince our colleagues that a change in law is necessary in order to get a change in an obstinate position."

"I don't consider the response that major league baseball has made to be in good faith," Graham added.

BASEBALL

FIVE POINTS. — Pants USA continued to roll, remaining undefeated with a 10-0 mark, with a pair of victories in Bronco Division action last week at Five Points field. Pants USA jumped out early and outlasted Central Florida, 8-2, and downed Midland Construction, 5-1.

Keith Sommer added a single and a triple with four RBIs and two runs. Patrick Reynolds added three doubles and a single good for two runs batted in while scoring four. Michael McClin connected for two doubles and a single with two RBIs and two runs.

In the second game Barry Sommer had a grand slam homer with four runs batted in as Topelski added a triple and Jonda three singles with a RBI and a run. All the nice hitting was in vain, though, as Korg USA handed Florida Carbonics its first loss of the season.

In Wrangler action Winter Springs III downed Carles Sub Shop, 15-1 and Action Trophy outlasted Chuck Dobbs Auto 20-15.

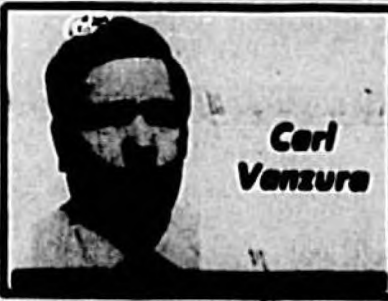

John Welsh and Keith Smith led Winter Springs with three hits apiece. Carl's was led by David Sparks and Carl Lee who each had two hits.

Dan McGatha pitched well for A&T and was relieved by Matt Diemer who HD rounded for 11 runs to put the game out of reach.

In Altamonte Springs Little League play the Tigers came up with a big second inning to down the Dodgers, 12-6, in Senior Division action.

Chris Barfield led the Tigers with three singles, a run batted in and a run scored. Shawn Bullock added a triple.

Smathers takes Sportsman feature

NEW SMYRNA — Lake Mary's Randy Smathers survived a wild free-for-all marked by crashes, blown motors and spins to win the Sportsman feature at New Smyrna Speedway. Smathers edged young Marc Kinley from Osteen to take the popular win. Another of the Osteen racers, Bobby Sears, won the extra competitive Mini Stock feature. Some more of this town's top drivers placing in the top five were Mike Oyer, Scott McDade, Mike Kubanek and Joey Warmack.

On his first time out since the new Late Model rules have been put in effect, David Rogers of Orlando led all the way to win the 25-lap feature at Orlando Speed World. Rogers, the winningest race driver in the country in 1985 and '86, was one of the strongest advocates of the new rules combining the Limited Late Models and the Super Late Models in one single division. Full fields of cars are now expected and with the fastest cars starting in the back the excitement of competition will rise.

Jacksonville's Dennis Bennett led flag to flag to take the Winston racing series Late Model win at Volusia County Speedway. Last week's winner Tuck Trentham finished a very strong second but was disqualified when his tires were checked and found to be too soft. The Tampa brother team of Keith and Ken Noabish took second and third.

Eddie Hill became the first driver in drag racing history to break the four second barrier when he turned a 4.99 at the IHRA Nationals on the all concrete track in Dallas, Texas. This might be the only four-second run this year as the NHRA organization imposed a 100-pound added weight to the Top Fuel class. Hill is just off of winning the Florida Gator-Nationals at Gainesville.

Lyman's Darren Holmquist hits first base but too late to avoid a double play as Lake Mary's Jeff Hagen holds onto the relay throw from second. Lyman, which has lost

Roberson meet runs tonight

By Mark Blythe
Herald Sports Writer

WINTER PARK — The Mike Roberson Invitational runs tonight at Showalter Field in Winter Park with many of Central Florida's top track athletes participating in the event.

The high quality meet will begin with prelims at 4, with field events beginning at 4:30 and the running finals starting at 7. Many of Seminole Counties top athletes will also be involved in the meet.

Lake Mary will be sending six boys to the meet in hopes of scoring a number of points. Lake Mary coach Mark McGee also hopes his athletes can come up with some nice performances as the season heads into its stretch run.

"We just want to have some good performances," McGee said. "Place isn't all that important as long as we're competitive."

McGee will hope Cecil King can continue to jump well and come up with a nice effort on the Showalter track. King currently has the state's second best effort in the triple jump at 48-2.

"I think Cecil can come up with a nice jump at Showalter," McGee said. "If he jumps the same way he did at Seminole he should go over 49 feet."

King will also be entered in the long jump along with teammate Leroy Jenkins. Both have gone 22 feet or better this season and both are capable of winning the event.

Jenkins will also be participating in the high jump an event in which he cleared 6-4 in earlier in the season. McGee will hope the competition in the event will get Jenkins back to that height tonight.

"I'm hoping he can get his form down and get back to where he was early in the season," McGee said. "He's been looking good in practice and we hope that will carry over into the meet."

McGee will also be running Eric Petersen who has become one of Central Florida's top middle distance runners. Petersen is still on the state honor roll in the half mile with a time of 1:57.7 and is just off the honor roll in the mile with a 4:22.7 clocking.

"Eric (Petersen) is probably the best double event around, in the distance events," McGee said. "He's run quality times in the mile and come back with some very tough times in the half mile."

Petersen will be running both the mile and the half mile this evening and will hope to find out just what event he'll be running in the final meets of the season.

Lake Mary will also run Matt Sutliff in the two mile top. Sutliff has become the Rams top sprinter in the event since Brad Smith went down with a stress fracture. Sutliff has filled in well and will hope to break 9:40 in tonight's race.

Richard Burkett and Erwin Edwards will be open 440 with Burkett also entered in the 220. Both have been running on the Rams mile relay squad and have not run the open 440 this season.

"I just wanted to get a time on them in the open 440 before districts," McGee said. "They're capable of getting down low in the 50's and possibly breaking it by the end of the year."

HOWELL MEET SATURDAY

The Lake Howell Silver Hawk Invitational will be held Saturday at Lake Howell High School. The meet begins at 12 noon with field events with running preliminaries at 1 p.m. and running finals beginning at 2:30.

play and the third out.

"We weren't aggressive enough at the plate tonight," Betris said. "And Switzer pitched a great game. She got the first strike in and then made us flash all night."

Meyer made a couple of nice running catches in left center to keep Oviedo off the basepaths in the top of the sixth and the Lady Patriots finally broke through in the bottom half. Penny Siqueros lined a single up the middle to lead off the inning and Brandenburg hit a hard shot to right center for a base hit and both Siqueros and Brandenburg scored when the ball skipped by the outfielder and Brantley had a 2-1 lead.

"Penny (Siqueros) and Tracy (Brandenburg) thrive on those kinds of situations," Betris said. "That's when they are at their best."

Oviedo got a two-out single in the top of the seventh from Switzer but pitcher Kim Robinson then made a nice stop of Lawson's line shot for the final out.

BRANTLEY JV 11-1

Lake Brantley's junior varsity improved to 11-1 for the season Thursday with a 6-0 victory over Oviedo.

Brantley had 10 hits in the game and winning pitcher Kelly Hartman held Oviedo to two. Jennifer Rose clubbed a two-run homer for Brantley while Sherry Adams had a solo homer among her two hits. Christine Risse had two hits and two RBIs and Renee Mathieu also had two hits.

On Tuesday, the JV Lady Patriots routed Lyman, 27-0. Mary Weston had a big game for Brantley as she was 4 for 5 with a home run and five RBIs. Mathieu and Hartman each had three hits and Rose and Adams had two hits each.

Lake Brantley's only loss this season came last Friday, a 2-1 decision at Winter Park.

Seminole came up with its only run in the bottom of the fifth inning. With one out Kim Allen started things off with a single up the middle and advanced on a throwing error. Bobbie Osborne then singled to right to score Allen and moved up on a single by Michele Stump. The Lady Tribe could not get a rally going and Lake Mary erupted for 10 runs in the final two innings.

Lake Mary upped its lead to 10-1 in the top of the sixth with a pair of runs before it exploded in the top of the seventh. Laurie Lelifer opened the final frame with a single, followed by a fielders choice Sherrie Alderson. Adams then hit her third single of the day followed by a Teri Peters single that loaded the bases.

Taylor then hit a long single that was misplayed as she rounded the bases to give Lake Mary four runs. Ginger Collins followed with a walk with Kristen Garrison following with a single. Frey then ripped a three run homer down the right field line.

Lake Mary's Brooke Taylor watches her fly ball sail into left field in Thursday's game vs. Seminole. Taylor and the Lady Rams roared to an 18-1 victory.

Hughes ties record, Wright wins 3

ORLANDO — Suzanne Hughes tied the Oviedo school record in the high jump and Karl Wright cruised to three first places Thursday at the Bishop Moore Invitational.

Hughes cleared 5-4 to take first place in the meet and tie her own record set last season. Coach Ken Kroog said Hughes also just missed an attempt at breaking the mark at 5-5.

"She (Hughes) is consistently around 5-2 all the time and I believe by the end of the year she will break the record," Kroog said.

Wright took first place in the 120 high hurdles at 14.3, then turned around and blazed to a 10.6 in the 100 meters. He also won the 320 hurdles at 39.5.

Oscuela used a first place in the mile relay to win the five-team meet with 92 points compared to 90 for Oviedo.

GARDENING

Daylilies add interest, color to landscape

Daylilies are one of the loveliest herbaceous perennials grown in Florida. Not only do they survive under minimum care but they are also available in a wide selection of colors from oranges and yellows to pinks and purples.

Daylilies can be classified into three groups according to their growth habit—deciduous, semi-evergreen and evergreen. The deciduous varieties have foliage that dies back to the ground in winter. The evergreen varieties, which have foliage which remains green during winter, generally do best in areas which have mild winters.

Daylilies may be propagated by seed or division. Selected varieties are reproduced by division because variations in seedlings are so great. Daylilies may be planted or transplanted any time, however, best results are obtained if they are transplanted after flowering. Plants should be spaced 12 to 18 inches apart and planted at the same depth they were growing.

Since daylilies are replanted only every 5 to 10 years it is important to prepare the planting bed properly. Lilies grow best in a well drained soil which has good aeration and water holding capacity. Sandy soils usually have good aeration but poor water holding capacity while clay soils generally have good water holding capacity and had aeration.

Two to four inches of peat moss or similar material incorporated to a depth of 6 to 8 inches in a sandy soil will increase the water holding capacity. One inch of perlite or similar material incorporated into clay soil will increase the aeration. One to two pounds of 6-6-6 fertilizer per 100 square feet or an equivalent amount of another fertilizer should be incorporated into the soil. One inch of water should be applied once or twice a week until the plants are well established.

Once daylilies are established they require minimal care. They should be fertilized twice a year at the rate of 1-2 lbs. 6-6-6 or equivalent fertilizer per 100 square feet. Fertilizer should be applied evenly, kept off the foliage and watered in. Daylilies can withstand dry conditions but will need to be watered during prolonged droughts. They grow well in sun or semi-shade.

When daylilies become so crowded that flower production is reduced, it is time to divide them. Dig up the clumps and with a sharp knife, sever the rhizome between the fans of leaves. Leaves should be cut back to within 4 to 6 inches of the crown. Replant the divisions as described above.

For the best display, plant 10 or more plants of the same color in informal groupings or plant daylilies in groups of 3 or more in bays of informal shrubbery. Daylilies, which range in size from 2 to 4 feet, have many other landscape uses and can add color and interest in many landscape situations.

Jilted bride shows true colors when it comes to returning gifts

DEAR ABBY: My son, "Steve", was to be married in June. He broke off the engagement last December when he realized that "Angle" was not the girl he wanted to spend the rest of his life with. Angle's parents refused to pay for anything having to do with the wedding, so I bought Angle's wedding gown. My mother made a beautiful bedspread for Steve and Angle, and gave it to Angle when they became engaged.

After the engagement was broken, I called Angle and asked if I could please pick up the wedding gown and bedspread. I explained that I wanted to save the wedding gown for my own daughter, and the bedspread would be considered a family heirloom since it had been handmade by my mother. She said she had no intentions of giving anything back. I was shocked and hurt, but I suppose I should be glad Angle's true colors came out before it was too late.

Was I wrong to ask for those things back? What else can I do? She reads your column faithfully, so maybe if she sees this she will realize how wrong she is.

HURT AND DISAPPOINTED

DEAR HURT: The wedding gown and bedspread were given to Angle in anticipation of a wedding that was canceled, so you were justified in asking her to return them.

You could sue her, but it might be costly (and messy) and not worth it in the long run. If I were you, I'd settle for learning Angle's true colors before it was too late.

DEAR ABBY: I am a student in a small Colorado high school. Recently, a girl in our school was killed instantly in a car accident, and the Monday after her death, we came to school to see the American flag flying at half-mast!

Abby, according to the rules of flag etiquette, the American flag can be flown at half-mast only with the consent of the president of the United States. I was appalled to find that the principal of our school did not know proper flag etiquette.

Am I overreacting, or are my feelings justified?

APPALLED

DEAR APPALLED: According to the World Book Encyclopedia:

Abigail Van Buren

"by tradition, the national flag flies at half-mast only when the entire country is in mourning. If local flags are flown at half-mast, the national flag must be flown at full mast with them."

But I do think you're overreacting. Even though your principal did not follow "flag etiquette" to the letter, he or she deserves high marks for showing compassion and respect for a student whose life ended so suddenly and tragically.

DEAR ABBY: Whenever I send a card to someone who's in a hospital or nursing home, instead of putting my own name and address in the upper left-hand corner of the envelope, I write the home address of the person I'm sending the card to. That way, if he has been discharged, the card will reach him at home instead of being returned to me.

CLAIR BROWN CICERO, ILL.

DEAR CLAIRE: Good thinking.

DEAR ABBY: Six years ago, "Gina," my wife (then girlfriend), became pregnant. I was 19 and she was 20. When I told my parents, they took it rather well. We talked about my options—abortion or adoption. I loved the girl, but when I mentioned our keeping the baby, they said it was out of the question, then moved to another subject.

Two months later, I told them at breakfast that Gina and I had decided to keep the baby. They let that pass without saying a word. When I came home from work that night, I found all my belongings on the lawn and the lock on the door had been changed. They left a note on the door saying, "You are no longer our son. You will receive no aid from us, and you are no longer welcome in our home."

Abby, I had never asked for money, all I wanted was their emotional support.

Today I received a letter from my dad saying his company had gone bankrupt, and could I send them $500 a month—"for awhile"!

I love them both, but they deserted me in my time of need, and now they need me (rather, my money). Do I send it to them? Or should I tell them to go jump in the lake?

MY TURN IN MINNESOTA

DEAR MY TURN: Since Minnesota is the land of 10,000 lakes, to tell them to go jump in one may be tempting. But meet with them instead to discuss how you can help them. Forgiveness is the fragrance of the violet on the heel of the shore that crushed it.

No one's symmetrical so sides seldom match

DEAR DR. GOTT: I went to a massage recently for muscle strain. She remarked that my rib cage on the right was considerably more pushed out than on the left. She recommended that I get a chest X-ray. What do you think?

DEAR READER: None of us is symmetrical. The dominant side of our bodies is prominent; that is, right-handed people have better development of the right side of the body, left-handed persons have a better-developed left side. Most women have one breast larger than the other. Our faces show asymmetry; also, one side of the rib cage is not a mirror image of the other.

In your case, the rib asymmetry may be normal; if you have not been ill or injured and if your breathing is normal, you can probably ignore the masseuse's observations. In the event that your rib cage deformity is truly noticeable or gives you symptoms, check with a doctor. I think that this approach is better than simply asking for a chest X-ray.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I read with interest the letter from the lady whose husband suffered, like mine, from alpha-1 antitrypsin deficiency. However, I think that you omitted a valuable resource. I'm an R.N. at the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md. We investigate diseases, offer information and support, and can often suggest treatments for exotic and rare conditions that may not be available elsewhere. Please let your readers know about NIH.

DEAR READER: The National Institutes of Health are, indeed, a valuable resource for patients with exotic and rare diseases. The institutes also carry out valuable epidemiological studies and perform research into common illnesses, such as hypertension and stroke. People who want to know more about NIH can write NIH, Public Inquiries, Bldg. 31, Room 2B-10, 9000 Rockville Pike, Bethesda, MD 20892.

In line with your suggestion, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report, HELP I: PHYSICAL ILLNESS. Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title. DEAR DR. GOTT: A woman wrote you about her grandson grinding his teeth in his sleep. Once I baby-sat for a child who did that. I checked, and he had worms. His mother got him medicine for the worms and there was no more grinding.

DEAR READER: Teeth-grinding at night can reflect physical disease as well as psychological discomfort. Although I am not aware of a relation to intestinal parasites, such a relation could theoretically exist. Teeth grinding is certainly seen with other diseases, such as those causing chronic pain, that interfere with a normal restful sleep. (C)1988, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby I hope Willy Nilly has better luck with his tax return than he did with the heart slam, which came up in a regional tournament in Portland in February. The slam is certainly no bargain, since any three-card heart holding with West gives the defenders two tricks. Still, when you get to an ambitious contract, you have to give yourself your best chance to make it. As usual, Willy Nilly knew how to botch it. Willy won the ace of clubs, played to his spade ace and ruffed a spade, played a heart back to his ace and ruffed another spade. Now he was ready to play a second heart, but first he had to get to his hand. So he played the king of clubs. East ruffed with the queen, and the slam was set. At another table, Careful Charlie could tell that with this hand, it was right to throw caution to the winds. If hearts split badly, he was down, and it wasn't going to matter if he ruffed his spade losers first. So he won the ace of clubs and immediately played ace and a heart. Making six. Is there a lesson? You bet. If you're in a contract that needs a good break, play for it. Don't dawdle around and go set because you were afraid to get lucky.

Dawley works freehand as he sears into the common cans patterns he and his partner have developed. The cans range in size from standard to jumbo used for restaurant food. They have been stripped of their paper labels and sit shining, awaiting the torch.

Dawley said his craft could be a risky business. "Anytime you work with fire or machines there is a potential for injury," he said. However, he takes precautions. He protects his eyes from the torch flame with welders goggles. An exhaust fan or a breeze blows the fumes from the heated metal away from him and he wears heavy metal gloves so he can handle the hot tin without getting burned.

The fumes stink, Dawley said, but he doesn't feel that they are harmful to him because he tries to control his exposure to the fumes.

He starts with cans gathered by youth and church groups. The big tins come from the Sarasota Meals-on-Wheels program.

Some have both ends cut out, others—those that will be used as lampshades and planters, remain sealed on one end.

Dawley is a bit of a showman as a crowd gathers to watch him torch a can. "I try to put on a good demonstration. In general most people like to watch other people work and few have seen anything like this before," he said.

To create a candleholder, Dawley first slices vertical slits around a can, using the torch as a tool. Once the series of slits are in place he puts his gloved hand inside the can and flares it out in the center.

The burning adds a burnished tone to areas of the silver-colored can and becomes a part of the overall design.

In the next step the piece is brushed down with a steel brush and dipped twice in a polyurethane varnish to prevent rust.

Dawley said each creation is original and varies from the next.

Bystanders he said, are "thoroughly fascinated by the turning of tin cans into art." Some are willing to pay up to $30 for a large, transformed tin can lampshade. Although the lampshade shape and size suggest use also as a wastebasket, Dawley said he doesn't think many would shell out $30 for a trash can made out of trashed cans.

Dawley said he learned the basics of his art quickly, but it took a while to develop expertise. The materials for his works are available free and in large quantities. And, he said, the appeal of his creations is such that there seems to be an never ending demand for the trashed tin that he transforms into forms of beauty and function.

New angle on the Anne Frank story

By Jean Hauser
UPI Feature Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — If Anne Frank had lived, she would be 60 years old next year.

The events of the World War II years in the Netherlands, that drove the Frank family into hiding and eventually killed all but Anne's father, Otto Frank, happened almost half a century ago but they are not forgotten — certainly not in Holland.

American audiences will be reminded April 17, 9-11 p.m. Eastern time, when CBS airs "The Attic," subtitled "The Hiding of Anne Frank."

"The Attic" tells the Anne Frank story from a different angle — it is based on the book, "Anne Frank Remembered" by Miep Gies, the Dutch woman who risked her life to help the Franks hide.

It's all there again — the Wehrmacht riding triumphantly through the streets of Amsterdam in 1940, the tightening of the Nazi noose around the Jewish community, the retreat of the Franks and their friends to an attic hiding place and their eventual betrayal — by whom, no one knows for sure.

It was Miep Gies who kept the Franks supplied — no small task with only her own and her husband's ration books and various forgeries in a city that slowly was being starved by its conquerors.

She tried to keep the Frank's morale up and, with her husband, was almost their only contact with the outside world.

After the Germans discovered the Franks and dispatched them to concentration camps, it was Gies who found the diary, ledgers and papers that made up "The Diary of Anne Frank."

"I'll keep them safe for Anne until she comes back," Gies said she thought at the time. She turned them over to Otto Frank after learning of Anne's death. But she said recently she refused to read the resulting book until after the second printing, and then only at the insistence of Frank. As she told it:

"Mr. Frank said to me: 'Miep, now you will read the book.' I said, 'Yes, I will read it — but only when I am alone where I can cry.' And I did."

Gies is played in "The Attic" by Academy Award-winning Mary Steenburgen, making her network television debut.

"For me it was a special experience," she said. "My heritage, many generations back, is Dutch and it was fun to go where nobody asked me how to pronounce my name.

"It also was a very humbling experience. The people there are still very passionate about this time in history — it's not dusty, fusty pages in a history book. Crowds would stand around watching us shoot and the older people had tears running down their faces. They would tell you the story of what happened to them.

"It added to our feeling of responsibility to tell the tale correctly. And I think we did."

"The Attic" was filmed in Amsterdam and Leeds, England. Steenburgen, Paul Scofield — who plays Otto Frank — and other members of the cast visited the building which once hid the Franks and now is the Anne Frank Museum.

"I defy anybody to go through that museum and not be moved by it," Steenburgen said. "What most people respond to — what I responded to — were the photographs she collected of movie stars that are still on the wall. Cary Grant, Robert Stack, all those people. It was really moving.

"All of it added to our performance. We relived those times as best as someone can now. We read books. We talked to people. We talked endlessly with each other. The day when Paul Scofield as Otto Frank must wear a yellow star that says 'Jude' sewn onto his shirt — something happens to you."

The story of Anne's courage and optimism, revealed in

Mary Steenburgen, left, Lisa Jacobs and Paul Scofield star in CBS's "The Attic: The Hiding of Anne Frank," a drama that tells the story of Miep Gies, the woman who helped her employer, Otto Frank, and his family hide from the Nazis. It airs Sunday on WCPX-Channel 6, at those diary entries, brought the cruelty of her death at Bergen-Belsen concentration camp into sharp focus.

Now the matching courage of Miep Gies also offers inspiration. Steenburgen looks nothing like the real Gies — for one thing she is about a foot taller — but she portrays her with matter-of-fact bravery that is all the more impressive because it is understated.

Gies's willingness to risk her life to save a group of Jews is even more impressive because her own position was shaky.

The Vienna-born Gies, who had been adopted by a Dutch family after World War I, was not a Dutch citizen and carried an Austrian passport.

When she refused to join a Nazi-organized German Girls Association of the Netherlands, she was accused of having a "disloyal attitude toward the Fatherland." Her hasty marriage to Henk Gies saved her from deportation.

There is a heartbreaking stoicism to Scofield's Otto Frank, an urbane, decent business and family man who tries to save his family. He survives Auschwitz, and although his wife is dead he has hopes for his daughters, Anne and her older sister, Margot. It is painful to watch that hope destroyed.

Lisa Jacobs as Anne looks remarkably like the photographs of Anne. She gives her character the zest for life that made the real Anne revealed in her diary so endearing.

Gies's book was published last year. She had been reluctant, she said, because it was only the fame of the Franks that made her stand out among the more than 20,000 Dutch people who hid Jews and others from the Nazis.

"So many people in Holland did the same work as we did," she said. "We never wanted to stand in first place."

'Tour of Duty' has true grit

Guy MacMillin

You've got to hand it to CBS. It took nerve to try to bring back the Vietnam War. Most Americans were awfully glad to see it go the first time around.

To be sure, several movie producers led the way. The success of "Platoon" may have persuaded CBS that there was a market out there for war nostalgia. And, according to the latest studies, young people don't have strong feelings about the Vietnam War, which they think was waged by Sergeant York during Franklin Roosevelt's administration.

"Tour of Duty" (Saturdays) turns out to be a surprise. It's not as cynical or chaotic as "Apocalypse Now." It's just an unusually fine television series: loud, frightening and honest.

This examination of the Vietnam War from the point of view of the American G.I. conveys the feel of war — the constant danger, the sudden death, the dashed idealism, the lack of direction. And the program's production values are superb, an important quality for a series that deals with something many of us watched on TV for a decade.

But it's a lot easier to recreate the Vietnam War that to make sense of it. Wisely, "Tour of Duty" doesn't even try. The series is a lot like the war itself. This happens, then that happens. You figure out what it means and how we can avoid repeating it.

The stories are mostly little vignettes. Is the company scout an enemy spy? Will the new lieutenant fit in? Is the lovely Vietnamese woman married to a South Vietnamese soldier or to a member of the Viet Cong? Yet these ordinary experiences are magnified into real drama by the context of the war.

Along the way, "Tour of Duty" examines the principal ironies of the Vietnam experience. There's the debilitating racism both among American soldiers and the Vietnamese, who are referred to (as they were then) as "gooks." There's the repeated need, as a real-life military spokesman once explained, to destroy Vietnamese villages in order to save them. There's the absence of support from the people the soldiers have been told they are defending.

Struggle finally pays off

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Jo-Ei Sonnier had his own 15-minute radio show in Crowley, La., when he was 6 years old in the early 1950s. It took him the next 35 years to make his mark in country music.

Sonnier, the son of Cajun sharecroppers, has a contract with RCA and a dynamic new album, "Come On Joe." The first single, "No More One More Time," is No. 30 on the charts and moving up.

The album could turn out to be the best by any new country artist in 1988. It reflects all the musical influences that Sonnier has encountered over the years: Cajun, country, rock, traditional, blues. But what dominates are his unique singing style and his wizardry on the French accordion.

As a toddler Sonnier said he was intrigued by the sound of Cajun music and particularly by the accordion.

"It was like a joyous sound to me. Eventually I got in touch with an accordion," he said. "My brother was learning to play and he went into the service. After he left I went under the bed and found it. There was a little mouse living there and it had a hole in it. I patched it up and started to play."

He said his mother usually told him to go outside and play because he was so "awful."

Naturally he improved and at age 6 had his radio show. Many days his dad would take him to Crowley after picking cotton, milking the cows and feeding the pigs.

He took his accordion to school and played at recess and for school productions. He played in the cotton fields, the cotton gins, in the car.

"The accordion became part of me," he said.

A couple years later he played his first Cajun club. He made his first recording at 13 and met a lot of Cajun legends such as Sidney Brown, Iry LeJeune, Shorty LeBlanc.

As a musician Sonnier worked for such country greats as Johnny Cash, Merle Haggard and Hank Williams Jr.

Reader's asks: Where is Richard Jaeckel?

Dear Dick: Why did Richard Jaeckel leave "Spencer For Hire"? I have always enjoyed his acting and miss him on the program. — M.M.G., Kalamazoo, Mich.

Dear M.M.G.: Simply, Richard Jaeckel was tired of living away from home for so long. He is a Californian — his home and family are here. But "Spencer" is shot in Boston. He may come back to the show from time to time as a guest. But he didn't want to do it regularly any more. He now appears as Master Chief Sam Rivers in the ABC-TV series "Supercarrier."

Dear Dick: We watched "Jeremiah Johnson" again recently, and Robert Redford is a superb actor. Since he chose to make his home (in Utah) in the beautiful mountains east of Orem, in the Provo Canyon-Sundance resort area, we are wondering where he was born and where he was raised. — T. and P.G., Orem, Utah.

Dear T. and P.G.: He was a Californian — born and raised in Santa Monica — until he went to college at the University of Colorado.

Dear Dick: I would like to know if Ted Knight, who used to be on "Too Close For Comfort," was a tap dancer. I am 81 years old. — Mrs. A.M., Wilmington, Mass.

Dear Mrs. A.M.: No matter how old you are or how young you feel, the late Ted Knight was an actor, not a tap dancer. It is possible he may have played a tap dancer in some play — but that was not his regular line of work.

Dear Dick: I was watching an episode of "Designing Women," and I noticed that the sounds of the women's voices were not in synchronization with their lip movements. Do they dub in those voices on the show, or what? — M.B., Saginaw, Mich.

Dear M.B.: No, unless there is some problem, the voices on that show are not dubbed. The only thing the producer can think of to explain the problem you noticed is that it was some glitch at your local station that caused the soundtrack to be off a touch.

Dear Dick: I have a question about Mark Linn-Baker (Larry on "Perfect Strangers"). Was he in "My Favorite Year"? — J., Houston.

Dear J.: Yes. Dear Dick: An actor named Sidney Clute is introduced each week as a cast member on "Cagney & Lacey," but I never see him in the show. What character does he play? — V.W., Gadsden, Ala.

Dear V.W.: He did play Detective LaGuardia, but he died. They keep his name in the introduction out of tribute to his memory.

Dear Dick: A few weeks ago, my husband and I watched a rerun of "Nembo" with Paul Newman and Richard Boone. He says Boone is still alive, but I say he died about 18 years ago or more. Who is right? — Mrs. J.A., Galena, Ohio.

Dear Mrs. J.A.: You are right, although your timing is off. Richard Boone died in 1961, only seven years ago.

Dear Dick: Can you tell me if the original Superman, George Reeves, and the new Superman, Christopher Reeve, are related? — S.C., Fort Mill, S.C.

Dear S.C.: I've answered this often, but one more time — no. George Reeves' real last name was Hessolo. And, anyhow, Christopher is a singular Reeve, not a plural Reeves.

Dear Dick: I have a bet with a friend. He says Peter DeLuise of "21 Jump Street" is in no way related to Don DeLuise. I say he is. They look a lot alike. — T.R., Dayton, Texas.

Dear T.R.: Very intimately related — Peter is Don's son.

Dear Dick: Could you please tell me how old Barbara Eden was when "I Dream of Jeannie" began? — A.J.F., Houston.

Dear A.J.F.: She was 31 when they started shooting that series, in 1965, and 38 when it ended in 1970.

Dear Dick: Does actor Ryan O'Neal have a son? — S.T., Pembroke Pines, Fla.

Dear S.T.: Yes, he has three. Griffin, the son of Ryan and Joanna Moore, is daughter Tatum's full brother. Patrick, his second, was born during his marriage to actress Leigh Taylor Young, who now appears on "Dallas." And three-year-old Redmond, is the son of Ryan and Farrah Fawcett.

A comic's life isn't always funny, really

By Michele DiCicciolo
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — In the life of a comic, there is one given — you are going to bomb.

More than once. You will feel awful, doubt your ability to make people laugh and agonize over the thought that maybe you are not funny.

Nevertheless, those dedicated to the big time will jump at the chance for another round of potential humiliation any time someone offers a microphone, an audience and a spotlight.

"You have got to really want it and you have got to be able to deal with rejection of the worst kind, because when you are up there all by yourself and there is nothing on you but a spotlight and you bomb, it's like you are naked," said Monica Piper, a stand-up comic from Los Angeles.

"It's horrible and it's humiliating," said Piper, who describes her age as "somewhere between Clearasil and Porcelana."

Piper and five other stand-up comics who were in Atlantic City recently to tape "Showtime's Comedy Club All-Stars," are all pretty much beyond the bombing stage, but have not forgotten what it feels like.

For them, the life of a comedian is one motel room after another, stressful on personal relationships and murder on the psyche.

In short, it's a life they would not trade for any other. They insist it isn't all grueling one-night stands in front of boorish audiences. They say it's fun.

"It's 10 times cooler than anything else," said Mike McDonald, 33, a Canadian comedian living in California. "It's 10 times more fun to entertain than to work."

"It's great," said Piper. "It's a rush. It's a high. It's why you do it. It's a great feeling, especially when you try a brand new joke for the very first time and it gets a big laugh. I can't tell you what that feels like."

The comedians all agree there is no such thing as the proverbial "overnight sensation." They say it takes seven to 10 years of trying to make people laugh in small-town comedy clubs to establish a solid career, let alone reaching the pinnacle of the stand-up comic's idol — Jay Leno.

Piper, who gave up teaching English to try her hand at comedy, sold bagels to sunbathers on Venice Beach in California early in her career to pay the bills.

"In the beginning, it is very hard because you are not good and the only way to get good is to work," Piper said. "The first couple of years you are not making enough money to live on and yet you can't really have a day job and go on the road at the same time."

But if you can make it through the early years, they said, you will survive. ven a

"I used to think it was harder until I got married," said comedian Larry Reeb of Chicago. "And then I realized my wife has a regular job, gets up at 6:30 in the morning and doesn't get home again until six at night. That's a lot harder."

"In fact, I even do a joke," Reeb said. "People ask me if it's hard. I go 'It's real hard. I work an hour a day, then I sleep and drink the rest of the time. If it's any harder, I'd be in a coma.'"

Although the comedians make light of their careers, they and others in the funny business acknowledge there is a downside.

"This is the simple part," said Harry Anderson, star of NBC-TV's "Night Court" and the host of the Showtime special. "The tough part is waking up at noon in a motel in a city you can't remember and realizing you still have makeup on. You need a thick skin. When it comes, the rejection can be pretty awesome."

"Being a comic is lonely," said Lou Viola, a New York booking agent for comedians. "Even a soloist has an instrument to hide behind or to interact with. A stand-up comedian is constantly absolutely naked doing the hardest thing possible, which is making people laugh."

"You are standing on a stage totally alone, without props, saying, 'Love me and laugh at me.' It's enormously risky."

Crucial to survival is a good support network of management, friends and family to bolster your ego after a bad night, the comedians said. Not to mention confidence in yourself.

"You will have a bad day and you think you are not funny," said McDonald. "Some guy will heckle you real bad and you'll walk off and sit in your hotel room thinking, 'I'm not funny.' I'll call somebody up — my manager, a friend — and they'll go 'You are grooooood.'"

"See, the thing is, the same guy that heckles me in the club, all of a sudden he turns around and I'm on Letterman and I'm doing really well," McDonald said. "He'll be the first guy to say, 'I saw this guy in a club, man, he's really good.'"

"A really key quality is not to let one or two people decide who you are, what your purpose is in life," McDonald said. "When a million people are laughing at you, it doesn't matter that one or two a night didn't like you."

One of the most difficult aspects of the life of a comedian, they said, is life on the road. The only way to get better at the art of stand-up is to get on stage as often as possible, wherever possible.

But being on the road means being away from spouses, friends and family life.

"I'm always the one on stage looking at couples out on dates on Saturday nights," Piper said. "I'm in wonderful little towns ... where people lead normal lives. They go to work. They watch football on Sunday. They love. They marry. They have kids."

"There are a lot of times I say, 'Really, just once I'd like to be one of those people watching someone else up on stage.'"

"I just got married nine months ago," Reeb said. "It makes it real hard. I don't travel as much as I used to. Hopefully, I'll hit it where I get bigger and work nice places and then I can take her more often."

Viola said audiences do not realize the time comedians spend working on their act. The delivery of a snappy one-liner may look spontaneous, but it's not.

"The juxtaposition of a word, the replacement of a word with one less syllable or one more syllable is the difference between a joke working or not," Viola said.

"If you listen to comedians, a lot of it is pacing and rhythm. It is the sound of words. There are funny words, there are funny numbers, and there are funny letters."
