STEWART SAYS:
SENATOR BURTON
ENVISSIONS CAPITAL
AS TRAFFIC MODEL
 By CHARLES P. STEWART
 Central Press Columnist

SENATOR HAROLD H. BURTON of Ohio has started a crusade to make Washington, D. C. a municipal traffic model for the whole country. They say he received an awful automotive situation in Cleveland when he was mayor there, before he broke into congress, but if he can do the same thing for the nation's capital, it generally is agreed by the city's residents and visitors that he'll prove himself a wonder.

At present the district simply is a curiosity, from the standpoint both of drivers and pedestrians. In the first place, Mayor Pierre L'Enfant, who planned the town just after the Revolution, naturally hadn't the slightest notion that the streets he mapped out ever would be navigated by anything but horse-drawn carriages. He had the sense and decency not to collide with one another and run over human beings afoot, if they could help it.

It's true that most of our big cities date back as far as the major day or father, but as a rule, they weren't formally designed. Their thoroughfares, in the main, were permitted to criss-cross at right and left angles with no artificial complications.

Major L'Enfant, anxious to do a fancy job mapped avenues which intersect four at a time at innumerable junctions, making 'em spread out in eight different directions, usually with a little park in the midst of the jumble. It's obvious that a jam of vehicles at one of these hubs can't be something frightful.

MANY HAYS TO DRIVE
 It was bad enough before our current national emergency started and Washington's population grew so fast in a mere matter of weeks, that there isn't living room for everybody in the whole District of Columbia. Thousands and thousands of downtown workers have to have their domiciles out in the Maryland and Virginia suburbs of course, coming into and going out of the burg in flocks.

Maryland isn't so fierce. That trip's straightaway. But Virginia! to get there and back involves crossing the Potomac. Two are a couple of bridges, but nearly all the travelers patronize what's known as the Highway span. There's a pivot draw in the middle of it. Let that draw open during the evening homeward rush out of the capital and it'll block everything for miles, clear across the district. Cars will move at the rate of about six feet at a time, with 15-minute stops between progressions. And the beauty of it is that it stalls all interesting traffic.

Furthermore, no place in the country has so many out-of-town visitors, in for a look at the capital. These birds don't even understand local regulations which are darned complicated, owing to the fearful congestion.

Then along will come a procession of army and navy trucks—hundreds of 'em. Do they pay any attention to lights? Not so you could notice it.

Rules don't mean anything to diplomats' autos, either—speed or light or parking rules or anything. Ambassadors and ministers and consuls and all their assistants and members of their families are exempt from the slightest discipline and take full advantage of it.

Senators and representatives' cars likewise enjoy a privileged status.

Pedestrians on Spot
 In such surroundings, the moral is "Don't be a pedestrian." It's dangerous to be an autoist, but pedestrianism is bound to be fatal, sooner or later. Besides, it's punishable. Cross with stress against the light or between intersections, and if a cop sees you, you get a "ticket," and have a fine to pay. Nonobedience it's for your own protection, but really it's for obstructing traffic—you're delaying autoist mobility. Even if you don't delay 'em—if one of 'em hits you, it's a nuisance to that driver to have to furnish explanation, unless, of course, he scoots off too fast to be bothered about it. And what makes him waste gasoline.

Mayor La Guardia of New York says that the correct way to solve the auto problem is to plan cities with a view to existing traffic conditions.

It may be right as to NEW YORK, but Washington can't very well be razed and replanned and rebuilt to remedy matters. If Senator Burton has a more practical scheme, it'll be a blessing to Washington autoists. And it'll be blessed to Washington pedestrians.

Florida Public Service Hit By Material Lack

ORLANDO, Oct. 23.—(Special)—The Florida Public Service Co., has announced the stoppage of virtually all line construction work because of the shortage of materials. The tremendous use of aluminum, steel, copper and zinc by production for national defense has caused a shortage of wire for electrical conductors, of pole hardware, transformers and electrical switchgear.

The Public Service Co. has received an order from the office of Donald Nelson, director of priorities, which assures it of a supply of such materials only as are needed for maintenance of present service. This general order applies to all electric, gas and water utilities throughout the United States. Utilities have been given a priority rating of A-10 for materials needed for maintenance and repairs only.

It is felt, even though A-10 is far from A-1, that utilities will be able to get all materials needed for maintenance and repairs, but the order states that it does not provide materials for new line construction.

H. R. Cloud, vice president and general manager of the Florida Public Service Co., in a statement to the press, said, "Our material situation is really serious, but we know that our customers will help us in this period of national emergency. These are unusual times and we all have just one thought in mind. We must all join hands and do everything necessary and make sacrifices too where it can be accomplished. ### Automobiles Run In Southern Orient On Almost Nothing

BANGKOK, Oct. 23.—(AP)—One of the last pieces to look for gasoline in the fuel-starved Far East today is in the gas tank of an automobile.

You may find almost anything else in the tank—alcohol, charcoal, potato peelings, or plain kerosene. But usually, not gasoline. Armies at war, or waiting for war, are getting practically all their governments can buy and import. The man with the private car gets whatever else he can to make the old tuggy run.

Any substance that gives off inflammable fumes is a substitute. Alcohol, distilled in large quantities from rice or maize, is the accepted ersatz in the Southern Orient. It does very well, as a fuel.

An insurance agent, working for a Shanghai firm, actually uses a Chinese rice wine for its high alcoholic content. He has been known to stop and drain a cup or so from the tank on a long run. "I figure," he explains, "that I need it more than the engine does."

In the past 11 years, Rollins College has failed to win or tie against only three opponents: Southeastern Louisiana, Mississippi and Florida U. The Louisianans won two games, while Mississippi eked out a 13-12 victory. Florida's Gators, in their only game with the Tars in recent years, clicked 13-12 a 13-2 victory in 1934.

Break-Through Into Crimea Is Told By Germans

As to the Moscow theater, however, information of yesterday strongly suggested that the Russians held the initiative generally, and there were three interesting related reports from neutral quarters in London.

That Red reserves from Siberia had gone into the line, giving the weary Germans a very hard time of it; that Russian artillery (of which the Germans have spoken at times slightly as against the vastly superior mobility of dive-bombers) appeared to have an effective superiority at the moment; that the expected freeze had not come, thus leaving the front a sticky mess under rain and light snowfalls.

Front-line dispatches to Pravda, the official Communist newspaper, claimed in fact that the Germans had failed to dig deep defense fortifications in some sectors of the Moscow front-trenches and tank traps—in an effort to consolidate advances which had now been generally halted.

The Germans themselves acknowledged that there had been violent Soviet counter-attacks—supported by "almost all the artillery they still possess"—on the Moscow front, but claimed that all had been thrown back and that several thousand Red prisoners were as a result in hand.

Business Picks Up In Army Maneuvers

CAMDEN, S. C., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Karl Truesdell's Red corps of some 37,000 men skirmished with the superior Blue forces of Maj. Gen. Lloyd R. Fredendall Tuesday night as the battle of the Pee Dee River gained momentum in the First Army maneuvers.

Reports from the mimic battlefront indicated the scene of action between General Truesdell's Sixth Corps, made up of the 1st and 26th Divisions, and General Fredendall's Second Corps of 63,000 men, was shifting westward from the river, which separated the opposing elements when the maneuver opened. The Second Corps includes the 28th, 29th and 44th Divisions.

A WILD-FLOWER POEM

(From The Christian Science Monitor)

Who named the flowers? Though I have walked On many winding paths, and talked With many men, I haven't met A name of the flowers, and yet The flowers are always named. Some get Not one but several names, or rich They are. But we must search the ditch, the forest, and the field To find what a name cannot yield. The living flower upon its stem, The crowds and waves and clouds of them, First there's Eyebright that we may see each blossom well: a day is all that any day can be, though all the flowers' eternity when it has blue, some as of these— say too many for the bees. And have the Balm, Cheeseweed, Meadow Rue as tall as you. There is the perfect Blue-Eyed Grass, There is the Poor Man's Weed, the Glass, the Blue, the Blue, That opens only in the sun. To close before the day is done, There is, for those who seek in June, The Indian's plant for dye, Puccoon, Or Bloodroot that when cut will bleed. There's Self-Heal, Speedwell, Tinker's Weed, And where you find a cool wet spot, There you may find Forget-Me-Not. There's Ragged Robin, Rattlebox, And Cordgrass, the rocks and stones, There's Squirrel Corn, or Dutchman's Breeches, And Jack-in-the-Pulpit who preaches. There is the viney Virginia's Beauty, The fleecy Flower-of-an-hour, There's Star-Grass, Sundew, Twisted Stalk, And Jewel-Weed where waters fall. There's Nightshade, then the Mountain Lover, Far above the fragrant Clover, There's Bedstraw, and the Farmer's Curse, The most cool Daisy, There's Shepherd's Purse, Empty vase for drops of honey That bees collect instead of money. There's Queen Anne's lace for small grandchildren, There are indeed a hundred others. Just as beautiful and wild; But should you love them not, we'll close you silent, with a rose. Leaving you silent, with a rose. —WADE VAN DORE

Hitler's Peace (?) Plan

Hitler's final peace plan, to be worked out with utmost realism and to be called the "Proclamation of Neupura" will take place either in Berlin or Switzerland in the near future, according to Pierre Van Paassan.

The plan, as discussed by the author of "Days of our Years," in the current Liberty Magazine, will be staged by Goebbels and will announce that German military operations have been successfully concluded, and that the Reich from now on will fight only a defensive war.

The Liberty article predicts that "representatives" of every European nation controlled or dominated by Hitler will answer the roll call; will officially pledge themselves to Hitler's New Order in Europe.

"Whether or not the Neupura peace move can be put across," Van Paassan writes, "depends on whether the nations under the Nazi yoke, the real Europe that is hungering for liberation, can be silenced completely."

"What underlies Hitler's frantic efforts is by no means a desire for permanent peace. German reserves of raw materials, primarily oil, are approaching exhaustion. German morale had not been geared for a long war. Hitler needs an armistice to give him a few years in which to prepare for a new war period of expansion, this time into colonial territories."

Short Bursts From The Carolinas

FIRST ARMY PUBLIC RELATIONS DIVISION, CAMDEN, S. C., Oct. 30.—(Special)—Lt. Col. J. Moore of the 30th Field Artillery, Fort Bragg, N. C. has been on maneuvers in the Carolina area for a month. He is a little bit tired of eating out of his lap, and of all the wonders of lavish nature. He is weary of "chiggers, red ants, and grasshoppers in his pants, and gnats, gnats, and fleas in his soup."

Last Sunday he slicked himself up, obtained a pass, and went to Charlotte to visit some "friends—relishing the vision of chairs, a table, and the clean white tablecloth which his hosts would have waiting for him. In lieu with insect-proof mosquito netting, his friends in Charlotte were very glad to see him. They had arranged a little party for him, and the guests were in congregation, waiting when he arrived. They celebrated by taking him to a picnic, twenty miles out in the country.

Lieut. Frederick W. Becker, 16th Field Artillery, is a realist when it comes to maneuvers. But so, he discovered, are machine runners. While inspecting outposts recently, he found a group of machinegunners asleep near their run—exhausted from continuous hours and days of "heavy fighting" in the maneuver area. Although the men were not expected to be fast at a time when the "front" was "All Quiet," Lieut. Becker thought he might catch them a little lesson in preparation. He quietly walked off with their gun, and hid it in a bush of brush. The next morning, an hour or so later, the Lieutenant again inspected the outposts. The men had awakened, found the gun, and gone back to sleep again. "One of them had the run led to his leg. And tied to the run was a sawtooth placard which read: "Tak, tak, Lieutenant!"

Lieutenant Frederick W. Symmer, Co. D, 240th Quartermaster Regiment, was checking his outposts one night recently when he came upon one of his colored sentries who was without a "soldier," the officer demanded, "if you're not armed, how would you expect to repel an intruder on your post?" "Ard knock 'im down with one of these, bub," replied the colored boy, revealing a large rock in each of his pockets. "You wouldn't really throw one of those at anybody, would you?" the amazed officer continued. "Yeah," the sentry asserted. "But Ah'd throw 'em away like, bub."

It was a dirty trick. But you know what Sherman said about it. Lt. J. H. Allison of the 31st Infantry Regiment captured two crooks, and when he discovered the cause he couldn't help chuckle with delight at the thought of what thirty officers of the 30th Division would have to say about it. He had captured their bedding, rolls.

1st Sgt. Matthew A. Matthews of Anderson, Tenn., Pvt. Paul Thompson of Fort Washington, Pa., and Sgt. Charles G. Gentry of East Northport, N. Y., and Sgt. Richard E. Fisher of South Johnston, N. Y., were captured and immediately taken to the 30th Division headquarters at Camp...

Our Ships Can "Take It"

Aside from its bearing on America's active participation in the present war, the torpedoing of the destroyer Kearny is chiefly significant because the ship remained afloat and was able to make port under its own power. According to reports this is the first instance in which a light naval craft received a direct torpedo hit amidships and "lived to tell the tale."

All of which speaks volumes for American naval architecture and construction at a time when some doubts have been expressed that vessels of war can't stand up under the terrific pounding of modern aerial bombardment and under-water torpedoes. The Kearny's ability to "take it" is reassuring news at a critical moment in our history when every fighting craft in the United States Navy may be called upon to reveal what kind of stuff it is made of.

It is interesting to recall that the Kearny is one of the same class of destroyers about which Washington Merry-Go-Round wrote several disparaging articles a few years ago. According to the syndicated column, always critical of any person, group, or thing having merit, our newest destroyers were badly designed, were top-heavy and so forth, and tried to convey the impression that our "navy brass hats" didn't know how to build a fighting ship.

The truth of the matter was that the destroyers, like all new ships, developed "bugs" just like any newly designed piece of machinery or mechanical instrument possesses until the bugs are "ironed out." That the "bugs" have been ironed out goes without saying, as witness the Kearny's amazing feat in staying afloat.

Naval architects and builders have found a method of protecting a destroyer so successfully against submarines, the same methods applied to our new battleships and cruisers should make them immune to the heretofore devastating force of torpedoes. It has been said that the "skin" of a destroyer is just thick enough to keep out fish and the salt water, but evidently the United States Navy has discovered a means of keeping out the torpedoes also.

POLITICAL BICKERING — Who stands in line when there is a political squabble? Not usually the office-holders but someone else. I shall not go into details, but recently, through political maneuvering and bickering which almost approached a scandal, a very sizeable political plum which should have gone to my District went to another District. The home town of the very person who did the maneuvering was the one that lost, and along with its loss a very prominent citizen lost something that he deserved and needed and was well qualified to handle. This is always the case where somebody lets mean, petty politics creep into something that is important and this was all the more ridiculous because after it was over those who maneuvered the whole thing gave evidence that they were quite proud of shadow boxing who was not even permitted to enter the ring. I have not mentioned names or towns but I hope that every city of my District and in fact all local authorities, will refrain from this sort of thing in order that we may get what we are rightfully entitled to.

ASSIGNMENT — I am very fortunate in those ways than one in being on the Appropriations Committee. It so happens that the Chairman of the committee is a personal friend of mine and requested that I be put on that Committee last year when I failed. He renewed the request this year, and I am assigned to the sub-committee for INDEPENDENT OFFICES and I will work under the honorable C. H. Woodrum, of Virginia, who is also a very personal friend of mine. I was fortunate in this assignment because good many agencies which have to handle matters of interest to my District and to my State come before it.

SANFORD — Honorable Joe Hendricks, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C. My dear Mr. Hendricks: In a letter from this office to you under the date of May 2, 1941, it was stated that the authorized report of the District and District Engineers on the proposed improvement of the channel from Sanford to Indian River near Titusville, is covered by St. Johns River with Indian River. It is in the interest of navigation, would be submitted to this office on 27th October 1, 1941. I regret to inform you that recent information from the field indicates the desirability of postponing the date of submission of this report to December 1, 1941. It is hoped that this postponement will make it possible to have the report approved and submitted to the War Relocation Authority...

Speaking at the Philadelphia Forum in the Academy of Music, Sir Alfred Noyes, noted British poet, novelist, and dramatist, said that the "realists" who dominate the world of literature today, Sir Alfred is making a lecture tour of the United States.

Advertising for restaurants and hotels in the South is often carried on by uniformed representatives who are waiters or porters and who stand by the highway and attempt to wave motorists in to hot meals and soft beds.

The custom had to be explained to an irate Military Policeman from the 518th Battalion, recently, who was on duty in front of First Army Headquarters.

First Army Headquarters, where General Drum's staff is camped, is established for the most part in wooden frame buildings about fifty yards off Route 1, in Hoffman, N. C. The entrance to the Headquarters is marked by two white-washed brick pillars, and a pebbled driveway. Outside the pillars Military Policemen on duty at night wear white jackets in order to be clearly visible to automobile drivers.

The pay-off came when a motorist drove up in front of a white-jacketed M. P. one night and said, "Okay, George, we'll stop here. But tell me something: Do they serve a decent dish of Chop Suey in this joint?"

Russia Badly In Need Of Airplanes

TEHERAN, Iran, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Soviet Russia has suffered a heavy defeat thus far in the war, but is not finished and desperately needs new planes to challenge Germany's crushing air superiority, expert foreign observers said Wednesday night on reaching here by Soviet passenger plane from Kulbyshev, auxiliary Red capital.

Col. Ivan Yeaton, United States military attache to Moscow for two years, arrived on the same plane and left by train for the Persian gulf enroute to Washington to report on the Russian military situation. He refused to comment.

"There is no talk yet among the Communists of a separate peace with Germany," one observer said.

Nazis Shift Weight To Southern Front

It is stated from Paris that the German high command, and it appeared that the Crimea and the lower Don valley further to the south likewise were in growing danger.

On the central front, however, the Russians appeared to be firmly holding the Moscow approaches—although German advances had occurred in areas of secondary importance well above and below the city.

The retreat from Kharkov, which the Nazis had claimed last Saturday was described by the Red general staff as orderly and that it cost the invaders nearly 120,000 men in killed and wounded, along with more than 150 tanks and armored cars and much other armament, to occupy the city.

The Soviet declared too that all important factories, railway rolling stock and supplies of raw materials were taken from the city in time and that several plants—presumably those that could not be moved—were blown up.

Nevertheless, the loss of the highest importance, was unquestionably a severe blow to the city, an industrial area of the Russians.

All this, however, was not so vital in the long run as was the Nazi action toward the Crimea and the lower Don.

It was an action, incidentally, in which the Nazis' Italian allies apparently were not being of much help, for Fascist troops fighting on the German wing northwest of the mouth of the Don in the sector of Salino were acknowledged last night by the official Italian news agency to have been halted and thrown upon the defensive for the last eight days by Red counter-attacks.

"The column," the agency observed, "had not a moment's peace in eight days."

The German high command announced—and it was not specifically denied anywhere in Allied quarters—that thousands of men from its southern armies were driving into the Crimean Peninsula, having broken the Red line on the Perekop isthmus leading to the Russian mainland.

This was an operation far behind what still appeared to be the main push, but it other forces some 500 miles to the east, which were beating toward the outskirts of Rostov, the Don River port at the gateway to the Caucasus.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

By MRS. IRVING FEINBERG

Ever since World War I, American newspaper readers have been familiar with Mr. T. R. Ybarra's by-line on news dispatches and feature stories from many far-away parts of the world.

1939 he was special traveling correspondent in Latin America for the "New York Times," and in 1940 was a regular commentator on foreign affairs for the National Broadcasting Company over Station WJZ.

Very few of those who know "Tommy" Ybarra as a veteran foreign correspondent, man-about-New York, wit and raconteur realize that he is the possessor of a strange alter ego, namely, Don Thomas Ybarra of Venezuela.

Mr. Ybarra is one of those rare North Americans who, because of his background, has a really intimate knowledge of our "Good Neighbors," and in his recently published book, "Young Man of Caracas," he does not hesitate to tell the truth about them—all ways with affectionate humor.

When young "Tommy" Ybarra first saw the light of day within the shadow of the state House in Boston, little did he know that his choice of parents would lead him into a strangely exciting, strangely divided life, and one filled with overflowing with almost fictional romance and adventure.

His mother, a Plymouth Rock Bostonian belle, his father a dashing young officer for Venezuela, the lusty infant Tommy arrived in the world with a supreme indifference to the complexities arising from a union of South America with North America before the turn of the century.

The exotic life he lived in his early years in Venezuela is a story more filled with entertainment than a shelf-full of stirring romances and more informative about the South American way of life than a tome of political data.

Within the pages of this book you will meet the General himself, Tommy's father, who had the Spanish flair for the grand manner, whose inconsistencies were always magnificent, and whose vigor, humanity and gusto make him a person you will love and long remember.

Then there is Nelly, his wife, who as a girl tamed her fiery mate and raised her children to be good New Englanders despite the un-Bostonian surroundings in which they lived.

You will chuckle over "Yesie" Sullivan, the faithful Irish maid and her struggles with her Latin wooers, over General Ybarra's battles with the English language, over eleven-year old Tommy going off to his first revolution, over all the thousand and one anecdotes that sparkle through the pages of this richly human book.

You will find yourself telling "Ybarra stories" to your family and friends, over the bridgeable to your dinner partner and at the club, so irresistible is this "South American 'Life With Father'."

Sum Jameon's forthcoming novel, "The Fort," encountered an appropriate hazard before publication; the manuscript was blown up with the premises of its London publisher. But a copy had already been sent over here and was in type.

In Lin Yutang's new novel, "A Leaf in the Storm," the author relates that "in China today civilians go out in small parties to visit the front almost before a fight is ended." Just an old Chinese custom.

Piero van Paasveen's newest novel, "That Day Alone" is the first full-length portrait of one of the most exciting eras in world history 1938-1941 — as seen and reported, as lived and recaptured, by a great journalist and a great humanitarian.

Any correspondent can report a catastrophe — only a Van Paasveen can penetrate history distinguished as the insignificant. Here are whispers that speak louder than headlines, the fateful forgotten moments that foreshadowed great events, the personal turning points in the lives of the humble and powerful alike.

telling has now sky-rocketed "The Sun Is My Undoing" to national popularity. You can't escape from this story once you are caught in the fascinating career of Matthew Flood — the meteoric young man from 18th-century Bristol, who leaped from ruin to fortune, threw away his future on a lover's quarrel, and was haunted to the world's end by the memory of the lovely Pallas Burmester. ### Table Supply To Participate In State-Wide Sale

"Streamlined" Event Is Promised Public By Local Manager

Low prices in all departments will feature the sixteenth anniversary sale to be conducted by the Table Supply Stores in cities throughout Florida beginning today and continuing through Nov. 6.

James Woodward, manager of the Sanford Table Supply Store, which is participating in a state-wide anniversary sale.

In announcing the special merchandising event, James Woodward said preparations for the huge "streamlined" sale have been under way for a full two months. All departments have worked on the event, preparing signs and displays for stores, buying groceries, meat and produce and arranging for a comprehensive advertising campaign.

The two fleets of trucks operated by the company have been distributing groceries from the warehouses in Miami and Tampa to stores served by the chain in cities all over the state for more than a month. For the past two weeks, special supplies of meats also have been ordered by W. E. Mallane, market manager.

Mr. Woodward, who lives with his wife and two small children at 217 West Twelfth Street, has been manager of the Sanford store for three years and has been employed by the Table Supply Company in various parts of Florida for six years.

Market manager, Mallane has been in the local store for two months. Preceding his employment here he was relief market manager for Table Supply Stores throughout the state. He remarked that he and his family, Mrs. Mallane and one son, "enjoy residing in Sanford" and that the local store is as well equipped and as favorable to work in as any of the stores located in other cities.

William Cullum, assistant manager was born in Sanford and attended public schools here. The three men who serve customers of the Table Supply Store each expressed his appreciation to the Sanford people who trade there.

Today, in the interests of national defense, Table Supply Stores are co-operating in an effort to conserve paper bags because paper mills and ingredients are needed for defense production. Arrangement of food on shelves in individual stores is designed to save labor and thus get the food to Florida housewives more economically.

Eleven employees of the Table Supply Stores throughout Florida are now in active military service, stationed in camps all over the country. The company

Future Payment Plan Worked Out By Farm Bankers

A plan whereby farmers having Federal Land Bank loans may protect themselves against any post-war slump or crop failures by making payments into a "future payment" fund, which will draw the same rate of interest as the loan, is being charged on his indebtedness to the bank, is announced by H. D. Freeman, Secretary-Treasurer of the Seminole County National Farm Loan Association.

Under the plan a land bank borrower may now send funds to the bank to be held in a trust account for future installments, and this account will be credited with compound interest at the same rate which the member-borrower is paying on his land bank loan.

"The Federal Land Bank and the National Farm Loan Association feel that this 'future payment' fund offers a number of advantages to the borrowers," said Mr. Freeman. "The borrower who has future payment funds in the land bank has a backlog of security upon which he can draw in time of need to keep his obligation in good standing and carry him through a lean period. He is insured against hard times—at no cost to him but the insurance."

"This new plan permits a land bank borrower to make payments for future application on Federal Land Bank loan, sale contract or purchase money mortgage running to the land bank in any amount less than the unpaid balance of his obligation."

Mr. Freeman said that many farmers were now in a position to fortify themselves against future mortgage worries and in taking advantage of the future payment fund plan would be helping themselves, and also would be serving their country because while the investment is earning a good rate of interest, this money would at the same time be doing service for national defense through re-investment by the land bank.

Ban On Non-defense Building May Slacken

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The supply priorities and allocations board is studying possible relaxation of its ban on non-defense building to permit the remodeling of dwellings, it was learned Monday, and also may take steps to supply critical materials to other construction projects already underway which face shutdown because of material shortages.

In a number of cases construction jobs already have been halted, defense officials said, because of inability to obtain steel, copper brass and other scarce materials. The officials emphasized, however, that the moves under study do not imply any modification of the SPAD policy laid down three weeks ago forbidding the start of any new public or private construction which would use up critical materials, unless the jobs were essential to defense or the public safety and welfare.

In addition, the organization will carry out a campaign to encourage men to join the organization.

Nazis Step Up Tempo Of Drive On Moscow From Two Directions

Reds Pour Workers Alongside Regular Troops In Battle South Of Capital

Soviets Reported Fleeing In South

Defenders Admit Situation Is Bad At Caucasus Gateway

The Germans stepped up the tempo of their Moscow drive from two directions today as the Soviets poured workers alongside their regular troops in bloody battles around Tula, 120 miles south of Moscow.

Another main German drive was developing in the Volokolamsk region 85 miles northwest of Moscow and London heard that Volokolamsk was captured by the Germans after bitter fighting. On the southern front the Nazis said the Russians were in full retreat before an assault of German tanks and troops which were smashing into the Caucasus peninsula apparently headed for Novorossiysk and naval base.

The Russians said the massive German offensive was being launched from the Caucasus and that the German offensive was being launched from the Caucasus and that the German offensive was being launched from the Caucasus.

Engineers Survey Short Cut For River Channel

Plan To Deepen Main River Course And Woodruff's Creek

Three United States Army engineers arrived in Sanford from Jacksonville yesterday to survey and make estimates upon the proposed two-mile short-cut in the St. Johns River channel from Woodruff's Creek to the Osteen Bridge at Indian Mound Village. Edward Higgins, chamber of commerce secretary, stated today.

The engineers, Roberts, Corwell and Dolstrom, will investigate plans made by the Chamber of Commerce which recommended a short line by deepening the river's channel about 40 feet and the group believes that the cost will not be much greater to deepen the channel in Woodruff's Creek to five feet, thereby shortening the distance to the Sanford Boat Works Docks considerably.

This process will enable pleasure cruisers and boats to travel easily in the shortcut and at the same time alterations on the main river channel will change its course somewhat so that the current will be close to the seasonal along Lake Monroe Boulevard, according to authorities.

Floods Threaten Southern States

By Associated Press

Streams in four southwestern states struggled futilely to follow their channels which were all but obliterated by the epidemic of heavy autumn rains.

Floods which were general throughout southern and northwestern Oklahoma claimed three lives and left many homeless and brought about livestock, crop and property damage. Missouri, Texas and Kansas told a similar story on a smaller scale. Two and three inch rains were not uncommon throughout the area.

Troops Move In On Strikers At Bendix Plant

2,100 Bayonet Carrying Soldiers Act Upon Orders Given By Roosevelt

DEFENSE TROOPS Oct. 31—(AP)—Coast Artillery troops moved into the grounds of Air Associates, Inc., at 4:20 A. M. (EST) today under orders from President Roosevelt to operate the production of $5,000,000 worth of defense orders.

The steel helmeted bayonet-carrying soldiers numbered 2,100 as Army officers conferred with plant officials. A clash between returning C. I. O. strikers and non-union workers precipitated the President's action.

President Roosevelt last night directed Secretary of War Stimson immediately to operate the plant and operate the plant of Air Associates, Inc., Bendix, N. J., where a dispute has developed over reinstatement of strikers under recommendation of the defense mediation board.

The action was announced at the White House by Secretary Early. He said the President had ordered the army to take charge of the plant as long as may be required in the interest of national defense.

"Our country is in danger," the President's statement said.

The plant holds government orders for $5,000,000 worth of military aircraft equipment. The second effort to put the strikers, members of the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers, back to work failed earlier last night because of sit-down demonstrations by non-strikers.

Deadlines for purchasing tickets for the dinner will be 10:00 o'clock Monday morning and they may be obtained at the Sanford Furniture Company, Forrest Gatchel's Grocery, Pope Service Station, Rottmiller and Anderson, or by calling 790 by telephone, Mr. Field revealed.

Members of the DeLand post will be present at the dinner and Mr. Field requested that all members make a good showing.

VICHY, Oct. 31—(AP)—The population of the Vichy capital virtually ignored a Free French request for a five minute standstill strike in protest against the German execution of hostages. ## Doudney Figures Sample Taxes On New State Plan

Trend Is To Jump Assessments On Large Property

With the school budget approved Sanford Doudney, county tax assessor, has prepared a list of samples of the taxes property owners of the county will pay. The trend in the new system of placing a 100 percent value on the property and reducing the millage rate has tended to increase the taxes on large property owners and decrease the taxes on small homes and businesses.

Since the school millage is different in different school districts the taxes will vary in those districts with District One and Six highest. A homestead valued at $1,000 last year in District One and Six paid a tax of $17, but this year the same property will be valued at $3,000 and pay a tax of only $12.25. Mr. Doudney computed in the same district a homestead valued at $5,000 last year paid $45 and this year will have its valuation bumped three times and pay $26.75.

Business property in District One and Six last year valued at $100,000 paid $1,000 and this year will pay $1,500 while the property valued at $50,000 last year paid $500 and this year will pay only $750.

In District Two and Three, including Longwood, Altamonte, Lake Mary and Oviedo the taxes on a homestead valued at $1,000 last year was $13 and this year will be $12.25. A property valued at $10,000 last year paid $100 and this year will pay $117.50.

Business property in the same two districts will have a drop in taxes parallel to the drop in District One and Six. A piece of property valued at $1,000 last year paid $60.38 and will pay $50.25 this year, while a piece valued at $5,000 last year paid $301.90 and will this year pay $251.25.

The Chuluota district or District Four had an assessment of $10 on a homestead property of $1,000 last year and will this year pay $3.75 on the same property. The owner of a homestead valued at $5,000 last year paid $50 and this year will be required to pay $166.25. The business property valued at $1,000 last year paid $10 and will pay $48 in 1942, while the business property previously valued at $5,000 paid $288.88 last year and will now only $240 this year.

In District Five, encompassing Geneva and Ocoke, the property valued $1,000 homestead paid $10 and will this year pay $5.25, while the $5,000 homestead last year paid $50 and will pay $173.75 in 1942. The business property of $1,000 had a tax reduction from $57.38 to $49.50, while the $5,000 business property drops from $288.88 to $247.50 for taxes this year.

These taxes listed are estimates. The school board will estimate the general school millage, the school district tax and the school bond tax, as well as the County maintenance millage for the County Hospital, general fund, fire and forfeiture fund, road and bridge fund, agriculture fund, health fund, public utility fund and the mother's pension.

November 27 Set For Florida Thanksgiving

TALLAHASSEE, Oct. 31—(AP)—Florida's Thanksgiving day this year will be Nov. 27 because the 1941 legislature officially fixed it for the last Thursday in the month.

President Roosevelt's previous proclamations of the third Thursday for Thanksgiving produced some confusion in Florida because Governor Cone disregarded the presidential plan and officially proclaimed the last Thursday. The result was two Thanksgiving days, federal offices closing for one and state offices closing for the other.

17 Persons Fail Driver's Tests Given This Week

Seventeen of the 40 persons from Nassau and surrounding towns who took driver's test on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week failed to pass the examination, according to the report made today by State Patrolman G. G. Darty.

Two persons failed the examination due to poor eyesight and two drivers were unable to pass the test because some part of their automobile was defective. The remaining 13 were totally unfamiliar with road rules and signals and Mr. Darty pointed out that "no excuse could be offered for these people" on his report to the highway.

The draft office pointed out that there may be no draft quota to round Christmas time since the county is filling an extra quota this month.

Reuben James Is Hit While On Convoy Duty In North Atlantic Last Night

No Word Given Of Loss Of Life

Congress Is Stirred But Roosevelt Sees No Policy Change

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31—(AP)—The Navy Department announced today that the U. S. destroyer Reuben James was sunk by a torpedo during the night of Oct. 30, while convoying in the North Atlantic west of Iceland. The commanding officer was Lieut. Com. H. L. Edwards.

The Reuben James was the first American warship sunk and the third attack since President Roosevelt's shot on sight order. First reports brought no word of possible loss of life. The ship ordinarily carried 120 men.

Congress was stirred by the news but Roosevelt said he saw no possibility of severing diplomatic relations with Germany and thought there had been no change in American policy as a result of the loss of the Reuben James and attacks on other United States vessels.

An authorized British source said today if the destroyer was participating in a convoy "it was no wonder that she was torpedoed. American destroyers have no business entering the war zone."

In Washington, Senator Gillette (Iowa), who ranks among the leading opponents of the administration foreign policy said America would protect her own interests no matter what incident they were in.

Non-Essential Lights Ordered Blacked Out

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31—(AP)—The office of production management Thursday ordered an immediate blackout of ornamental and unessential lighting in the southeast, including Northwestern Florida, and announced that an electricity rationing program for southern industry would begin Nov. 10 unless heavy rains ended the region's water shortage.

It issued a mandatory order for immediate creation of a plant power grid connecting 40 public and privately owned systems in 13 states, in order to bring power from areas having some surplus into the drought-stricken industrial region.

Donald M. Nelson, priorities director, said the orders were designed to insure full and uninterrupted operation of defense plants despite rapidly mounting demand for energy and a prolonged drought which has reduced the supply of hydro-electric power.
