

Another Famous Army Nurse Retires After 30 Years' Service In Cavalry

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—In pleasant pastures near an agency west in Hawaii, a four-footed veteran of more than thirty years of honorable active service with the colors is kicking up his heels in the peace and comfort due an old soldier.

His name is "Whiskers" and he traveled down from his Montana birthplace to join up with the cavalry in Texas three decades ago. He is now enjoying retirement with his regular rations and assurance that he will never be called upon to work again.

"Whiskers" is just a troop horse in Uncle Sam's cavalry. There is a long list of these faithful selves have decreed restful old mounts for whom troopers themselves in reward for their long years of hard duty. The appropriation for this routine of honor comes out of the trooper's pockets if necessary but the deeds of hero horses of the army have been officially recorded in General Orders before now.

"Comanche" probably heads that list. He was the only survivor of the massacre of the Little Big Horn, when Custer and his gallant detachment went to their death. Legend has pictured this big charger, found wandering and almost dead after the battle with seven wounds to show the part he played, as Custer's own mount. But the records show otherwise. He was a troop horse assigned to Troop 1, 7th Cavalry, and was ridden in the fight by Capt. M. W. Keogh, who died at his chief's side. A regimental order of the 7th, dated Fort A. Lincoln, Dakota Territory, April 10, 1877, directed that Comanche be provided with suitable quarters "and that he will not be ridden by any person whatever under any circumstances, nor will he be put to any kind of work, as a tribute to comrades fallen in the fight."

Comanche died at the cavalry post at Fort Riley, Kansas, in 1881 and that order was never violated. He lived two-thirds of his life on the retired list.

The yellowed records of the cavalry show many other famous horses, coming clear down to Pershing's "Kidron," bought from the French without service to carry the General in France, and "Jeff," the big, amiable charger presented to Pershing on his return to the United States and on which he headed the victory parades of the First Division in New York and Washington.

And among the old records there is none more striking than that of "Black Tom," the mighty coal black on which Colonel May, the Charles O'Malley of the American cavalry in the forties, set tongues awagging by his mad pranks. May was arrested in Baltimore once for leaping his black thunderbolt over a cart loaded with firewood. Again he spurred "Black Tom" up the front stairs of a Baltimore hotel and down again after a log about the corner. The horse won a wager with a leap of 82 feet just after the Mexican war, against a record of 34 feet for the greatest English steeplechaser. "Black Tom's" greatest achievement came in the war when May jumped him over a Mexican field gun to capture the entire battery and the Mexican general, La Vega. That deed is memorialized in the coat of arms of the Second Cavalry.

"Black Tom" stood more than a century hands, a jet-black Kentucky thoroughbred, and his dashy master was more than a six footer.

Old "Whitey" Famous Another army horse of Mexican war fame was General Zachary Taylor's "Old Whitey" who carried his master throughout the war and was never ridden again. He was sent to Washington to be exhibited after the war and was well nigh stripped of his mane and tail on the journey by souvenir hunters.

Among famous horses of the war between the states, Robt. E. Lee's "Traveler" perhaps is best known, although General Nathaniel P. Banks' "Charlie" is credited in a legendary way with having shaped events of the war. He was the only horse known to have thrown General Grant. The fall put the General on crutches and kept him from the battlefield at Chickamauga. Perhaps his absence contributed to the Union disaster in that fight.

"Traveler," Lee's famous gray war horse, was a Virginia horse and was offered to the great Confederate commander as a gift by the owner, but refused. The owner, Major Thomas L. Brun, then sold him and "Traveler" served as Lee's main reliance in the war days and his constant companion afterward. The General always stood beside him when he was shot as the horse was nervous.

Beery And Hatton Link Horrors To Laughs

Raymond Hatton and Wallace Beery in "Behind the Front."

By JACK JUNGMEYER NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—It was inevitable in this age of "laughing it off" that the "war to end war" should be kidded to some extent. The first smart of wounds had been somewhat dulled. A part, this, in the process of romanticizing war, so that its shocking memories may be lived with more comfortably; a translation of pain into comedy.

In the movie vanguard of this adjustment stands Paramount's "Behind the Front," a swagging farce produced by Edward Sutherland, with Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton in the role of the bewildered heroes.

A benighted pair of yokels are these buddies, inveigled into the expeditionary forces by a patriotic vamp, ary Brian, and swept willy-nilly into wild vicissitudes, ironic episodes and dubious heroism—doughboys kneaded into semblance of soldiery by pummeling within their own and the enemy's lines.

One was a pickpocket, the other an alleged detective. A girl who needed two more enlistments to win a trip to France cozens them into the army. She gives each, unknown to the other, her photo, inscribed "To my hero." Thus they are inspired to valor. Canteen, guardhouse and shell pit rock to their prodigious exploits.

While their buddies receive love letters, this sorry pair get dun bills from home town merchants and ironic word that they are exempt from service. In No Man's Land, amid shell fire, they come face to face with a German butcher. Carnage and emity are momentarily forgotten while Beery prepares to pay an old bill. A timely shell saves the debtor eight dollars.

The adventures of the twain terminate in a wild ride in an intractable tank which sweeps the enemy before it, but the triumph of victory is frustrated by the armistice. They return home in time to see the girl for whom they went to war being married to another.

War is both hilarious and hellish, according to "Behind the Front" in which the two are linked by broad satire.

GERMANS BUILD TALL TOWER FOR RADIO DEMANDS

Rises 928 Feet In Air Near City Of Berlin And Is Said To Be One Of Highest In World For Commercial Work

BERLIN, Feb. 8. (AP)—One of the tallest towers in the world built exclusively for commercial radio purposes, has been completed for the German Ministry of Posts and Telegraphs at Koenigs-wusterhausen, near Berlin.

Towering 928 feet above the ground, the triangular steel and aluminum structure falls only 56 feet short of equalling the Eiffel tower in Paris. Including an antenna mast of 53 feet, however, the tower eclipses the Paris structure by two feet.

A spiral staircase of 1,000 steps winds up to the top of the tower a climb of half an hour. A one-passenger elevator, running in a tube 35 inches in diameter, makes the trip in four minutes.

The whole structure weighs only 700 tons, one-tenth the weight of the Eiffel tower, and cost $30,000 exclusive of radio equipment. It is guaranteed to be earthquake and storm-proof. The Eiffel tower cost $22,000,000 at a normal rate of exchange.

A 20 kilowatt short wave sending station, designed to serve the Far East, is being built in a two-story insulated cabin on a platform 754 feet above the ground. The tower will be the binding post for 30 antennae leading to as many sending and receiving stations assembled at Koenigs-wusterhausen.

The tower's radio equipment is especially designed to meet the needs of transmitting photographs by wireless. Dr. Bredow, chief of the radio division of the postoffice department, is predicting that in a few years business letters will be sent by tube from branch postoffices to the main postoffice building in Berlin, photographed and wirelessly to points as distant as Java in less than 10 minutes.

MODERN WOMEN MENACED FROM THEIR THINNESS

Medical Profession Asserts That The Champion Light Weight Girl Will Have To Fight Poor Health Soon

BALTIMORE, Feb. 8. (AP)—The champion lightweight of the world, the Modern Girl, if she wishes to hold her fashionable title, will have to put on the gloves against a formidable opponent of quite another class. For the Medical Profession is menacing her with a salutary knock-out.

"The desire of the modern girl to be extremely thin has become an obsession that is threatening her health and happiness," said Dr. Llewellyn F. Barker, emeritus professor of medicine, Johns Hopkins University.

"The ideal of the exaggeratedly thin figure, dictated by the fashion of the moment, is sure to pass, but it may not go, I am afraid, until it has been the cause of many tragedies."

Wrecked physical health, especially insidiously developing tuberculosis and nervous breakdown are frequently the results of under-nourishment, declared Dr. Barker, outlining the dangers seen by medical men in underweight.

"The trouble with young women today is that their ideal of what is proper weight is all wrong. They have developed an obsession against being fat. They say to doctors: 'I would rather die than get fat.' Some of them starve themselves to the point of almost literally carrying this out. Often already too thin, they diet to grow thinner. By unscientific dieting they fail to eat a balanced ration, and thus predispose themselves to food deficiency diseases. They smoke constantly, especially during meals, to take away the normal appetite they have, and by too many cigarettes increase their nervousness.

Too Fast a Pace "These girls, the greater number of them between 16 and 20 years of age, but many of the same mind between 20 and 30, are trying to force a pace of life that makes far greater demands on them than it did on their mothers and grandmothers, with thin scrawny bodies that do not hold the needed reserve of strength. What is the result? Many of these young women are incurring wrecked health that not only forbids their continuing public activities, but that interferes seriously with their eventually fulfilling the responsibilities of marriage and motherhood.

Dr. Barker was inclined to lay the blame tentatively at the door of the medicals. "The makers of fashion have sponsored a style that is really as unbecoming as it is unhealthy. It will pass, as have the evils of the hourglass figure and other unreasonable and unhygienic whims of fashion.

"But it is time that someone felt the responsibility for this undermining of the health of our young women. Family doctors and public health officials can do a great deal.

"Parents can at least back these. I am quite out of patience with the frivolous mother, who, because of the prevailing mode will encourage her daughter to go against the advice of her doctor.

"Behind the doctors, the artists could help much, if they would unite in featuring the aesthetic ideal of a normal healthy beautiful figure—to replace the emaciated, curvless form sought for today.

"Quite make a great mistake when they think they are more attractive when they are scrawny. According to the standards of most men they are far more charming when they are better nourished, although I am certainly not advocating an era of fat women."

"Add to the hygienic and the aesthetic arguments against extreme thinness an economic objection: It is a hideous waste for families and for the state to permit its young women to crowd the hospitals and sanatoria, at large cost, simply because they harbor wrong ideas about how much they should weigh."

A new form of steam boiler, the flame of which burns in water, has been developed.

RADIO CHANGES METHODS SHIP'S USE IN CRUISING

Most Of Larger Craft Getting Directions Over Air Waves And Giving Up Cumbersome Ways Of Sea Navigation

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 8. (AP)—Radio, which has dissipated the pall of loneliness that dogged the sailing ships on the isolated parts of the high seas, also is effecting a marked change in navigation methods.

More than half of the larger boats visiting Pacific Coast ports are now getting direction signals over the sound wave and as a result the older, more cumbersome ways of figuring distances, longitudes and latitude are fading.

The information that goes to the captain in his chart room through the "direction finder" enables him to determine his exact position at any time. In the old days the captain set his chronometers when in port or offshore where he was within range of a flashing light signal, the dropping of a metal ball or the whine of a siren. These adjuncts are still employed but the navigator need not depend on them. For he can get his time at stated intervals no matter in what part of the world his ship may be.

Those on the Pacific—from Alaska to Korea—are given a time signal every day at 10 P. M. San Francisco time. It has been caught from points as distant as London. The time given to the navigator is "accurate to one part in 170,000," which in lay terms means that it is not in error more than a half second. To the average man a "second" means little; to the Mars Island Naval observatory it is 1-86,400th part of a day. Time is measured much more minutely than by "seconds," however.

The observer gets his time, not from the sun as is popularly supposed, but by the movements of stars, which are invariable. If a mistake of a half second should be made one day it would almost inevitably be corrected the next time the observer peeped through his telescope and so we contain star pass a fixed point in the heavens, determined by a line on the telescope.

Tourists come to Florida to enjoy the sunshine and the pleasant days to be found here while back home the snow is flying and the thermometer is hovering at the zero mark. In selecting a place in which to spend the winter months these people take into consideration the facilities that are provided for amusement and for recreation. The city or town that has plenty of beautiful parks, attractive waterfront, bank concerts, amusement centers, good golf courses, and plenty of beaches, soon becomes known to the tourists as a delightful place in which to spend their time. And so places like St. Petersburg have become widely known as tourist centers.

Sanford has done well in many ways along this line. It has as fine a golf course as is to be found anywhere in Florida and there are hundreds of visitors who recognize this fact. It has provided a hotel which compares favorably with the best in the state. It has many parks, a well equipped library, band concerts, and some beaches. It has done well.

The next important step necessary for tourist development is the completion of work on the lake front so that winter visitors may take advantage of the beautiful section and enjoy many pleasant hours there. In its lake shore development Sanford has the making of a section comparable to the most attractive in the state. This area's possibilities never amount to anything unless they are appreciated and developed.

Water has a strong attraction for all. Even those who fear it delight to gaze upon it. It would be a fine thing if sufficient facilities could be provided to improve the beautiful spot which Sanford has on its lake front. Placing of benches on the pier and along the waterfront, installation of white way lights so that this section will not be so desolate and uninviting at night, the immediate erection of some sort of a band stand on the pier in order that our band concerts could be given there, would, we are certain, make this most valuable section the city's most popular tourist center.

Invest Here. Golden Rain. No Backdoor. Religion in Politics. By ARTHUR BRISBANE. Copyright 1926, by Star Co.

MR. HINMAN, who writes soundly on finance, speaks of "foreign bonds backed by tangible security," that may be offered to United States investors. The wise American will invest in the United States. Opportunities are not lacking here, and Europe "tangible security" may become a sickly memory the day after tomorrow.

THE RUSSIAN government was powerful and "tangible." Silly American financiers bought Russian bonds. Then came Bolshevism and the bonds were waste paper. Germany was powerful, with great wealth and golden industries. The war went the wrong way, and German bonds, bought to the tune of millions, were waste paper like German marks.

AMERICAN INVESTORS know, by bitter experience, that buying foreign government bonds is like taking a ride on a whale's back. Very nice until the whale dives. The "tangible assets" bonds on railroads, factories, etc., bear in mind that no security of any kind is better than the government bonds back of the security.

How would you like your American money, if United States bonds should suddenly become waste paper? Think that over.

This Man's Religion

A man is no worse than he thinks he is. This may not be a true statement of fact, but at least it is one subject for debate. As long as a man's conscience is clear he will have his self-respect which will be worth more to him than all the amens of a whole world full of ministers and newspaper editors.

The conscience is a peculiar thing. It is an intangible something which we cannot put our finger on or describe in words of one, two or three syllables, and yet it is something which everyone of us very definitely has. We may abuse it and it may become irksome to us at times, but most of us would not do without it and the rest of us can't.

One man's conscience is seldom like another man's. Providing a man's conscience is fully alive and healthy, things that are wrong for him to do are things which trouble his conscience. Quite frequently what troubles one man's conscience does not trouble another's. We used to find persons who had complexes against dancing, thinking that form of exercise quite wicked, and yet perhaps they themselves were the biggest gossip-mongers and hypocrites in town.

The Palm Beach Independent tells a humorous story about an old dandy who got up one night at a revival meeting and said: "Bruders an' sisters, you knows an' I knows dat I ain't been what I oughter been. Ise robbed hen roosts and stole haws, an' I old lies, an' got crunk an' slashed folks w' mah razor, an' shot craps an' dussed an' swore; but I thank the Lord dere's one thing I ain't neber done; I AIN'T NEBBER LOST MAH RELIGION."

It rather makes us wonder just what his religion could have been.

JUSTICE IN KENTUCKY

Kentucky, in a fifteen-minute trial at Lexington, demonstrated that it not only believes in speedy justice, law and order, but will enforce it.

On January 19, Ed Harris, a negro, killed a father and two children and attacked the wife and mother. The negro was captured and confessed. To save him from lynching the man was placed in the state reformatory at Frankfort. No one denied the brutality of the crime, and the need for speedy justice. Officials of Fayette County realized that the reputation of the state would be tarnished if the state would not act promptly. A grand jury of 1,000 men, placed in Lexington practically under martial law during the trial.

Tanks were placed at corners where an "attack" might be made. Soldiers guarded the courthouse and permitted no one to enter without a permit from the court. The prisoner was taken from the reformatory to the courthouse under police escort. The law in Kentucky was to be upheld. Fifteen minutes after court convened the negro was sentenced to be hanged on March 5.

Officials of Fayette County have something in their make-up that should be possessed by every other group of county officials throughout the United States. They knew that a heinous crime had been committed, and were determined that it should be punished as the law provided, and not summarily. They knew a mob would lynch the negro if given a chance.

It was the spirit of speedy and exact justice that influenced Fayette County officials. They were not fighting for the United States, the majesty of the law, but for the negro was guilty, for he had confessed. But they were determined that the sentence should be pronounced by the judge of the court and not by judge Lynch. It is the spirit of people who have faith in law honestly administered. It furnishes an illustration of what every American community must have a high standard of justice and enforce it. When a larger number of communities have more of the same spirit, there will be fewer lynchings; robbers will not take the chances of the court and not by judge Lynch. It is the spirit of people who have faith in law honestly administered. It furnishes an illustration of what every American community must have a high standard of justice and enforce it.

"WOMAN'S PLACE IS— ETC."

It has been decided by the Illinois Supreme court that the extension of the rights of suffrage to women does not carry with it the duty of doing jury service. Jurists will not be called on to tussle with "Juries" or "venue-women." The chief counsel, in the past, of his closing argument, made to struggle to emancipate the grand old phrase, "twelve good men and true," in fit it to a panel containing six husky hobs, one old style reticulate, and a couple of jorgans.

The Supreme court saved their state from a period of agitation and a decision that, without regard to its legal aspects, was wise with the wisdom of letting things alone. More women we believe are glad than are sorry that the ruling denied them the right of jury service. The cause was pushed by club women. Without belittling their motives—for it has been our experience that club women are given much higher than the average—we doubt that they represented a sentiment of the majority of Illinois women.

In strict fairness, perhaps, there is no reason why women should not serve on juries. Now that we have become inured to see them visit the polls, we can grant so much. While women jurors in some cases be swayed more easily by emotion than men, in case of another type they would doubtless hold much more severely to the evidence. Perhaps the way to overcome such makeshift acquiescence as men hand out in the cases of women who murder is to have women on the juries.

But opposed to these arguments are others. As the home makers and the mothers, women would have to be exempt from wider rights of exemption than men enjoy. They would be so much wider, we believe, and they would be so generally used, that to serve a panel of women would cost more than the present service would be worth. Once the novelty of it wore off, and jury service became a drudge, as it is to men, women would try to evade it, just as men do.

It is seldom that an educated, cultured man, with a desire to serve his community, gets on a jury, as it is to men, women would usually most such men seek to be off. Counsel for the defense are paying high prices for their homes is a matter of little moment to them. They want what they want. They expect to buy only once. Their investments are more or less permanent. But the high prices they have been paying have been feeding the flames. In the hope of selling to some other new-comer, smaller investors have been buying right and left. Everyone has been making a profit. The base of the movement for high prices, however, lies in the coming of rich men as permanent citizens, though in many cases they spend very little time in Florida. From a playground for the idle rich, Florida is becoming a home for many very wealthy people. Most of the famous people of this generation visit Florida occasionally, and many of them plan sooner or later to live here.—L. F. Chapman in Elks Magazine.

THE FACT THAT THE rich men who have come to Florida

THE LOS Angeles Examiner

What will be the value of the great dam at Boulder Canyon, saving for American power and American farms the waters of the Colorado that now go to waste?

PRESIDENT GOULDING gives assurance that the world court is not a back door to international negotiations, and Uncle Sam will not be pushed through the back door into the league, and every American should be certain that the result of a "first step."

WEDDING WILSON "kept us out of war" is a little while and about to stay out. Few men in history have gained out of their phrases than he did about making "something safe for democracy," etc. and when in the war, and the democracy was "stagnant" the time of more than a hundred thousand million dollars, for foreign loans and home profiteers.

"It is the first step that counts," says a French proverb. Uncle Sam has taken his dangerous first step toward European entanglement against which Washington warned him, and whether that step will lead, no one knows.

COLONEL HOUSE shows that William Jennings Bryan objected vigorously to Dr. Charles W. Eliot's appointment as a minister to China. Eliot, as a Unitarian, did not believe in the divine birth of Christ. The "new Chinese civilization" according to Bryan was founded by a Chinese minister in China, so Eliot was the wrong man.

THIS SHOWS that Mr. Bryan knew more about other things than about "China's new civilization." Gounded upon the teachings of Confucius, mixed with new ideas that Chinese students have brought back from eastern universities, and upon the teachings of foreign signers, especially the British, they established their courts and territories on Chinese soil.

To say that christianity governs "Chinese civilization" is about as accurate as to say that theophany governs civilization in the U.S.A.

If you believe race and religion play no part in our politics read the letter that Colonel House wrote to President Wilson, quoting William J. Bryan, Wilson's secretary of state, "he (Bryan) is very earnest in his advice that a Catholic and perhaps a Jew be taken into the family (the cabinet)." I told him I thought Tanulity's appointment as secretary would cover the one (the catholic) but he thought not.

COL MITCHELL, fighting fiercer, will go away to kill lions and slugs, taking his wife. That's the report.

He could stay home and kill things more important, including for instance, the idea that the expensive battleship still has value, and the other idea that swivel chair desks should be allowed to control the flying "force" of the United States. It will be more accurate to call it the flying "force" of the United States, for that's what it is.

WHEN GOLDSTEIN REALLY CUT LOOSE
According to Montague Glass, who specialized in stories of the cloak and suit trade, a jobber in this line suffered a bereavement. His wife up and died on him. Possibly because it was neighborhood gossip that the couple had not lived together very happily, the bereft one felt it incumbent upon him to manifest an unusual degree of distress, the theory being that this excess of grief on his part would silence the tongues of the slanders and put to eternal rest the rumors of domestic infidelity.

Two days after the interment the husband, dressed all in black and wearing a broad mourning-band on his left arm, was on his way to business. A fellow-jobber halted him and without preamble spoke as follows:
"Honest, Goldstein, I got to say it—for you! I am ashamed that you should carry on so the way what you did at your wife's funeral. As a mark of respect for you I want by your house day before yesterday and the way you acted—well, I could only say again: As one business man to another I am ashamed for you that you should act so."

"A wife, yes? They come, they get you get 'em, you lose 'em. That's life, ain't it? So why, when you lose one should you carry on so I positively, absolutely could not understand."

"Did you maybe also come by the cemetery?" inquired the widower.

"Sincerely not," said his friend. "I'm a business man and it ain't so that I could spare a whole day running way over on Long Island to a cemetery. I came by your house like I said before and when I seen how you carried on that for me was sufficient. Right off I came away disgruntled."

"You think I carried on at the house, huh?" stated Mr. Goldstein. "You should a-come by the cemetery. That's where I raised hell!"

Miss Abbie Doudney Entertains In Honor Of Miss Marge Graves

Miss Abbie Doudney was hostess on Saturday afternoon when she entertained at bridge at her home on Park Avenue, complimenting Miss Mary Graves.

Gorgeous yellow jonquils together with deep purple violets were used in decorating the rooms where the card tables had been placed. The color scheme of purple and gold was further emphasized in the forms of jonquils, and also in the tallies and other accessories.

The afternoon hours passed quickly in the absorbing game of bridge, and the prize for top score, a blue glass pointer receptacle and puff, went to Mrs. William J. Hardy. The low score prize, bridge table markers, was won by Mrs. Ned Chittenden. Miss Graves was presented a dainty gift as memento of the occasion.

After the card game, the tables were cleared and centered with crystal baskets filled with violets and jonquils. Refreshments consisting of creamed chicken in timbales, frozen fruit salad, nut bread, olives, dates and coffee were served.

Invited to meet Miss Graves were Mrs. J. D. Woodruff, Mrs. William J. Hardy, Mrs. Monroe Hutton, Mrs. Ned Chittenden, Mrs. Olga Simmons, Mrs. Ralph Stevens, Mrs. Percy Mero, Mrs. Dock Brown, Mrs. Sanford Doudney, Miss Eleanor Herring, Mrs. Robert J. Holly, Jr., Mrs. Raymond Phillips, Mrs. Hawkins Connelly, Mrs. Lee Peck and Mrs. Grant Wilson.

Mrs. F. E. Roumillat Entertains Members Of Fortnightly Bridge

Quantities of lovely red roses lent their fragrance and beauty on Saturday afternoon in decorating the home of Mrs. F. E. Roumillat when she entertained the members of the Fortnightly Bridge Club, and a few extra guests at bridge.

The valentine idea was carried out in every detail of this pretty party. A novel idea was introduced in the tallies. Upon arrival, the guests were presented a valentine wrapped in red paper and tied with tulle bows. They found their places by the marking on the back of these clever cards.

After several progressions, scores were collected and the first prize, an embroidered tray cover, was won by Mrs. James G. Sharon, while the club prize, a crystal border water set, went to Mrs. D. P. Drummond. In cutting for the consolation prize, a set of hand-painted score pads, Mrs. J. M. Wallace was the lucky one.

The refreshments on tables were centered with cut glass baskets filled with red roses, the handles being tied with red tulle bows. Delicious refreshments in two courses with coffee were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. David Caldwell, Mrs. M. S. Wiggins and Mrs. George Knight.

Of exceptional pleasure was this lovely party, the cordial hospitality of the hostess being reflected in every detail.

WE LOSE SIGHT OF REAL VALUES IN MAD CHASE AFTER THINGS, SAYS CYNTHIA GREY IN INTERVIEW

BY CYNTHIA GREY

She sat behind me, a youthful chatter, at the movies the other night. She was so distressed. Things were so dull. Absolutely the only thing happening was the orchestra sawing away at "The Hungarian Rhapsody."

"Gee, I hate this part of the show!" she exploded to her fellow swain.

"It drives me wild just to sit still and listen!"

"Me, too!" said her escort.

As a matter of fact, the hapless damozel did anything but just "sit still and listen!" Her voice did have some radius!

Ever With Us

But this is no dissertation on the sins of "The Movie Chatter." Like the poor, they will be ever with us.

Our text is: "It drives me wild just to sit still and listen!"

Sitting still and watching the parade of love and hate, honesty and intrigue on the silver sheet is another thing. One can imagine oneself in the center of the fray; it demands no particular inner equipment on the part of the watcher such as music does demand.

There's no earthly sense in always harping back to our grandmothers. There's no earthly or heavenly reason why we should do as they did, think as they thought, or enjoy as they enjoyed, but one cannot help contrasting the reaction of grandmama with that of the modern girl who "can't bear just to sit still and listen!"

Grandmama would have thought herself in heaven if just once a year she could have donned a pretty dress, had a facial and marcel, been called for in a taxi, and come to a beautiful picture house where

Mrs. Richard May Is Guest Of Honor At Lovely Bridge Party

Mrs. H. Richard May, a bride of last week, was the charming guest of honor Saturday afternoon when the Misses Claire Zachary and Miss Emily Griffin entertained at bridge at the home of the former on Magnolia Avenue, there being four tables of players.

Quantities of sweet peas and violets adorned the room where the card tables had been placed and the floral suggestions were also used on the tallies. Upon arrival Mrs. May was presented an exquisite corsage of sweet peas showered in bridal effect.

A most interesting game of bridge was played during the afternoon. When scores were counted it was found that Miss Ruth Henry was holder of top score, and was awarded a dainty corsage. To be awarded to the honor guest, the cut prize, a bottle of bath crystals, was won by Miss Lena Hagan. Mrs. May was given a pair of embroidered pillow slips as memento of the occasion.

Refreshments consisting of chicken salad, stuffed celery, olives, saltines, heart shaped sandwiches, and coffee were served by the hostesses, assisted by Mrs. W. B. Zachary.

Those playing were Mrs. H. Richard May, Miss Marion Hand, Miss Mildred Hand, Miss Ruth Henry, Miss Dorothy Ray, Miss Frances Teague, Miss Carmela Barber, Miss Lena Belle Hagan and guest Mrs. Lena Belle Hagan, Miss Hilda Belghe of Beland, Miss Hilda Butler, Miss Rebecca Scott, Miss Thomas, Miss R. HORRIBLE ACCIDENT AT HAMILTON STEEL MILL

Steel Magnate and Actress Burned to Death; Many Others Badly Hurt

The most horrible accident has just occurred at the Hamilton Steel Mill, by which Paula Perier, the popular motion picture actress, and John Alden Prescott, Pittsburgh steel magnate and millionaire, have lost their lives.

Many others in the moving picture company were seriously burned and a number of employees at the mill have lighter burns and ruined clothing.

At 11 o'clock today when the mill sequence of "Hot Steel" was being shot at the Gray's Hamilton steel plant, the most terrible and unexplainable accident occurred which has ever happened at these mills. A whole ladle of molten steel deluged its unfortunate victims.

The director of the Paula Perier Company began shooting on this long awaited and much talked of sequence at 9 o'clock this morning. Although there was quite a large cluster of interested friends and numbers of the mill employes about, everything seemed to go off in splendid shape.

The picture, by some very clever photography, was being made to look as though an accident of the same kind was going to kill the villain as really happened to Mr. Prescott and Miss Perier. This was to be done by patching and a miniature which would be photographed back in the studio. There was absolutely no danger but it was to be a trilling punch.

The rehearsal went off all right. The villain took the heroine, Miss Perier, nearer and nearer the place where he was supposed to murder her and throw her body in an open hearth pit. Everything was ready.

"Camera" called the director. Numberless cameras began to turn on the people from every angle.

The villain's better nature was supposed to conquer at the point when he, seeing that the ladle coming toward him had sprung a leak, flung the girl from him out of harm's way and tripped upon the ground to be supposedly covered by the fiery, molten mass, which would be done at the studio in miniature. There was absolutely no danger as planned.

Mr. Prescott who had been standing out of camera line but in a place to catch Miss Perier, opened his arms as the actor flung her and ready to be okayed when the whole scene was almost finished and ready to okayed when to the horror of the spectators, the stopper at the bottom of the ladle really began to leak. As it was directly over Mr. Prescott and Miss Perier, the whole stopper fell to the ground and the great column of molten steel was upon them.

By standing up and walking on an even plane with men, by being earnest in their work, the business woman has every opportunity presented men," Mrs. Snell finds.

"But that very privilege of taking time in the middle of work to chatter and powder is the shackle that keeps her down—she is granted privileges because she is feminine, and she takes them because she is working as a pastime or until the day of marriage. Let her work with man, accept no allowances for her 'weakness' and she shall be a success."

Miss Lenglen With American Star Approaches

bring only two games to defeat, while Suzanne won three games at love.

Meanwhile the California girl was forced to limit to win her match in the semi-finals of the women's doubles. Paired with Miss Ellene Bennett, an English girl, she defeated Miss P. M. Radcliffe and Miss N. Q. Platt, a veteran English doubles team, in three sets, 8-6, 4-3, 8-6.

Suzanne Better Miss Lenglen, just now in playing in the best form she has displayed for years, according to the tennis experts here. She has acquitted more pace in her shots and this was the only department of her game in which she ever could have been considered relatively weak. Today she is an overwhelming favorite to defeat the American in their expected meeting next week. Tonight as high as seven to one against Miss Willis was offered with no takers.

The point score of the Lenglen-Haylock match, which illustrates Suzanne's great superiority, follows:

First set: 444 454-25
Miss Lenglen 210 131-8
Mrs. Haylock 444 544-25
Second set: 444 544-25
Mrs. Haylock 100 321-7

Coming out of obscurity only six months ago, but with a name that has been coupled with championship riding honors for years, Jockey Willie Garner, a whip of a boy, gives promise of adding more fame to the family of riding champions. He has electrified horsemen and sportsmen at the New Orleans meetings this winter by his expert horsemanship.

He is a good judge of distance and pace, knows how to take advantage and opportunities and jocks the shortest way around.

Willie Garner has another advantage over other boys. He can scale 98 pounds.

The great little youngster is the nephew of Mack and Guy Garner. The latter was America's champion jockey in 1910 and is now riding for King Alfonso of Spain in Madrid. In his championship year Guy Garner rode exactly 200 winners. Mack Garner was America's premier rider in 1915 when he piloted home 104 winning mounts.

Willie Garner is the sixth boy of that name to adorn the turf. He was preceded by these uncles, Guy Swetts, Mack, Lombert and Harry.

Athletic Norwegian Takes Place In American Circles That Nurni Held Last Season; Holds Vault Record

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP)—From a group of four athletic foreigners has come one to assume the place in American athletics occupied by Faavo Nurni, of Finland, last winter. That is, Hjalmar Hoff, holder of all world's pole vault records.

Hoff, from his performances in two meets last week—the Millrose event in New York and the Boston A. A. games—will be star of winter competition, the man to whom the crowd looked for thrills. He shattered the American indoor pole vault record with such ease in both New York and Boston that close followers of sport predict he will make it feet easily—if he cares to attempt it.

His record, set at the Boston meet, is at 13 feet, 1 1/2 inches, half an inch better than he did in New York Thursday night. The previous indoor mark was 13 feet. From all appearances, Hoff plans to add half an inch to his mark in each competition he enters until he discovers a height that is too difficult. In both records he has cleared easily with inches to spare.

Hoff and Nurni are alike only in that they are outstanding athletes. Nurni is light-haired, of medium height, his legs thinned to the muscles. Smiles are almost unknown to him. Only once during his visit to America last winter did Nurni over-exert himself, the night that Alan Helfrich beat him in the half mile in an indoor meet at the Yankee Stadium, the Finn's last race in America.

In that Yankee Stadium race Nurni's shoulders were rolling as he fought to catch the flash from Penn State in a test that was too short for the Olympic champion, but he was impassive and he had no comment to make. Only once did Nurni have anything to say regarding his visit and that came after his name had been connected with matters that called investigation by the Amateur Athletic Union.

"Newspaper men no good, photographer no good, no good," he told an interviewer. Hoff has something to say to everybody at hand and he says it with a smile. While on the field of competition he is shaking his head, slapping backs and indulging in heart laughter.

When he raced Tom Campbell, old "Fat" star in the relay event in New York Thursday night, a smile covered his face as the American gave battle in the back stretch, and with the smile came renewed effort, for Hoff assuredly loves his sport. The Norwegian defeated Campbell.

Hoff is a tall black-haired boy, and at times appears ungainly; especially in his running, but when he grasps a pole and sails over the high bar he is perfect in form and his every exhibition draws the cheers of the crowd.

For Hubert Houben, German sprinter, the American visit is over and he has planned to sail this week for home. The German amateur authorities refused to extend his permit beyond Saturday night in Basel. Houben lost every race he entered here.

Clever New Orleans Scrapper To Meet Gamer In Feature Bout Here Tuesday

Ted Goodrich, crack New Orleans fighter, slated to meet Kid Gamer in the feature bout of Henry D'Amico's show at the local armory tomorrow night, added another knock out to his formidable list last Tuesday at St. Petersburg, when he kayped Ralph Hood of Charlotte, N. C., in one of the most sensational bouts ever staged in the "Sunshine City."

Goodrich is now training hard at his winter quarters in Jacksonville, and expects to win from Gamer by a knock out early in the scheduled 10 round bout. Local fans will remember Gamer as the clever lad who fought a draw with Bobby Cox of the "Gate City" in the first card staged here by Godak.

In addition to the main go, two preliminaries and a semi-final will feature the program with the usual battle royal.

Kid Irving, speedy Orlando fighter who delighted Sanford fans last week by his clever ring tactics and lightning-like jabs, will meet Kid Farlin, formerly of Columbus, Ga., and now of Sanford, in a six round go, and "Gob" Scherps, Atlanta, will meet "Tommy" Orlando scrapper, in the principal preliminary match.

Compton and Barnes Argue The "Courage" Of Pick Up In Golf Game

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 6. (AP)—The noted golf professionals, Archie Compton, Jim Barnes, Arnaud Massey, Walter Hagen, and Johnny Farrell, were engaged in a golfing debate on the question of whether a golfer picks up in tournament play, when he is going badly, indicates a lack of courage.

Compton, British professional champion, upheld the affirmative, while Barnes, British open champion, represented the negative.

The quintet was discussing a certain British pro who had picked up in a number of tournaments after it was apparent to him that he had no chance to finish in the money. Compton contended that he lacked the courage.

"Do you mean to say that a golfer who picks up is not courageous?" Barnes asked.

"Certainly say," affirmed the Britisher.

"You're wrong, and I'll prove it," challenged Barnes.

"If you played at 100 or more strokes on your first round and knew you would be unable to get into the money even though you shot par golf or better for the remainder of the tournament, would you continue to play?" Jim asked.

"Yes, I'd come on in and put up my score," declared Compton. "I'd finish at any cost," he added.

"Then you love to play golf better than I?" was Barnes rejoinder.

"I believe a professional plays too often to continue when he is hopelessly out of the money. I believe the big golfers pick up because they have not the courage to post their scores."

Barnes has his first time to pick up in a major tournament.

BOWLING WITH THE CHAMPION

By JIMMY SMITH

Many bowling fans have asked me what they should do in order to keep in tip-top shape. And if there are any strict rules about dieting they should follow in order to enhance their work on the alleys.

In answering them I can best cite my own case. I eat anything I want and as much as I want. As a rule, however, I eat two meals a day. Not because I think it better or enough. But because my routine consists in getting up late at night and I consequently don't arise very early. This, obviously, means a late breakfast—most a lunch. In a word, I always feel in the proverbial pink.

To those seeking bowling laurels I would say this: Don't eat a big meal and then go on the alleys. Either wait an hour or two off the boat twelve hours Thursday and raced again in Boston Saturday, also failed to win, but he has demonstrated an ability, which should require very little training on the boards. He will remain here a while.

Goodwin Goodwin, English walker, defeated in his first appearance by Harry Hinkel and Mack Weisa, had permission to appear in only the Millrose games and may also turn to Europe without a victory. It is probable, however, that the British authorities will be asked to permit his appearance in two of three more races.

Jack Makes Faces So Mrs. Dempsey Is Not At His Battles

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Estelle Taylor, movie star and wife of Jack Dempsey, does not attend boxing bouts in which her husband figures. He does not want her to and besides he "makes faces."

"You see, he will make faces while he is fighting," she explained, and when I'm around he tries to show me he had planned the operation just to please me."

Mrs. Taylor said Dempsey has facial expression but lacks technique. She doubts if he will ever attain perfection on the screen because all directors under whom he has worked are fatal in their opinions.

The champion's wife disclaimed reports that she had urged a recent operation which Dempsey had undertaken to change a defect in his nose. "I had nothing to do with that," she said. "Long before Jack was born I had planned the operation for the reason that owing to certain defects in the structure of his nose, his breathing was hampered and he was in the bitter rivalry which had grown up between the two quarters. Municipal statistics on the distribution of artists in Paris give Montparnasse 20 per cent of the total, while Montmartre with 11 per cent, has fallen from its former leadership to third place, being eclipsed even by the Granelle quarter, which lies just west of Montparnasse and takes its overflow. The fashionable quarters around the Eiffel, the Champs Elysees and the Parc Monceau are fifth and sixth but the well-known opera, Madeline and Boulevard districts have only a small fractional representation.

PARIS LETTER

PARIS, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The spring "openings" of the Parisian style dictators are in full swing. Paquin and Worth, opening today, brought the number of showings already on view to 46, and there probably are nine more first class controllers of fashion still to make their 1926 bows, among them Lanvin, Callot and Hove.

Chinese red, spring-like green, beige and dark blue are given as the colors to be most popular next season. One of the exhibits which has evoked much comment is that of Prince Felix Youssouppoff, newly established in France. The prince does not claim to be the artist who designed the gowns he is displaying and admits that he has at least three talented designers working for him. He avers his personal ambition is to turn women from imitating men in dress and to influence them to revert to purely feminine types which men always have liked.

Another "dry" statesman in this land famous for its wines and liquors, has been added to the already considerable lists of prominent abstainers. Premier Briand, setting on his doctor's orders, is no longer drinking wine nor even coffee at his meals.

Former Presidents Millerand and Poincare have long been "dry," as has "Old Father Victor," Georges Clemenceau, who came close to being ex-president. Among the older politicians in France, the cult of abstinence, at least from "hard liquor," has been gaining many adherents.

Mr. Briand never was a very heavy drinker and his many great oratorical successes have been achieved on nothing more than a kind of orangeade. He has, however, been an inveterate smoker, selling his own 30 or 40 cigarettes a day for 80 years. Now, however, that pleasure has been denied him—also by doctor's orders.

The nude has had its day in the Paris music hall and revue stage in the opinion of Andre Antoine, an authority on the Parisian theatre. M. Antoine visited a few great houses in Paris where shows noted for their sumptuous allowances of the nude—and nude on these stages means just that—in order to watch the reaction of the public to this particular part of the entertainment.

He no longer found, he says, that "somewhat feverish equivocal thrill that marked the appearance of a number of Eve-before-the-fall figures on the stage."

The public seems to have become indifferent, almost bored, a feeling of lassitude owing to monotony in to be noticed," he described, on the scene where a completely clothed figure was the center of a specially Edenic group, and notes that it was the completely covered figure that drew all eyes in the house. "The time has come," Antoine concluded, "to find something else, and the first manager who succeeds in doing so will revolutionize this class of entertainment."

Top hats, the ancient "stovepipes" of the past, are passing away in Paris, to the great discomfiture of world-wide arbiters of fashion but without worrying the hatmakers or tailors. Paris is one of the last great European strongholds of formality to give in before what haberdashers regard as "the American influence" in matters of sartorial ease.

"Men have to wear hats," said a prominent hatter on the boulevard, "but they don't have to wear top hats. The top hat still is worn by Europeans for solemn functions and there is no noticeable falling off in its sales for such purposes. It is due to American influence, however, that the top hat is no longer worn to the theatre, concerts, dances and other evening amusements. Personally, I think it is for the best. Most men look absurd in top hats, anyway. A dark soft hat will do just as well, or the derby makes a good compromise."

"The top hat is going out with the clayhammer," commented a famous Scotch tailor near the opera. "Men used to buy several evening suits, a dinner jacket, a morning coat and trousers and a couple of walking suits. The top hat is disappearing with the sur-

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

BY CHARLES P. STEWART WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Americans think it's something awful the way they're being gouged now by British rubber producers. But the United States Geological Survey hints, it isn't a circumstance to which coming a few years hence, when this country and Mexico get down about to the bottom of their oil reservoirs.

The survey gives them about 10 years before they begin to feel the pinch seriously. AMERICAN oil isn't the only oil in the world. Probably it's only a comparatively small part of it.

The British own or control what are believed to be rich fields in the middle and near east—Persia, Mesopot and elsewhere. Japan undoubtedly has plenty in Sakhalin Island, off Siberia. Russia is supposed to be well provided.

But these countries hardly draw out all on their own supplies. They cork up their wells and come over and buy here. THE United States provides the world with about 70 per cent of its oil. We and Mexico produce approximately 80 per cent. The world can afford to come to us because we are not hogged about our prices. Five owners may not think so, but the Geological Survey predicts that they'll look back on them as such when their domestic wells run dry and they have to go abroad for gas to turn their motors.

The survey plainly expects that the foreigners are holding something up their sleeves, in hanging onto their own stores while we're using up ours as fast as we can pump them.

LETTING oil come to the surface all by itself and run out voluntarily, needless to say, is a cheap method of production. Pumping it isn't very expensive. But the quantity available by such means is limited. As previously remarked, we appear to have enough to last 10 years or thereabouts.

Then we shall have to begin wringing it out of oil-bearing rock, which costs money. In effect, it will have to be mined, like coal, requiring high-priced machinery and man-power.

AT this point the British, the Japanese and the Russians will mainly extract the stoppers from their wells and oil will begin to nothing, just as ours used to do. Operation of our own oil mines will be making our gas cost us about 60 cents a gallon by this time.

We'll gaze longingly at our neighbors' cheap product overseas and say we'd like some. "Certainly," they'll reply cordially. "You can have all you want around to cents a gallon."

Of course this is assuming we don't discover more domestic oil, of which the Geological Survey doesn't seem to think there's much prospect.

Or that some new means isn't invented for driving automobiles, ships and other vehicles of the land, sea and air which now depend on oil and its derivatives for their motive power.

This latter really is considerably talked about, but it behooves us to do something besides talking or we're due for a financial experience in the course of another decade that probably will make us feel as if the British rubber monopolies had treated us generously.

LONDON LETTER

LONDON, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Epic stories of the sea, such as the President Roosevelt's rescue of the crew of the British steamship Ancon, and similar exploits in recent years have done much to restore the American Merchant marine to the prestige it held in England a century ago when the fine old American clipper ships, carrying cargoes to the farthest corners of the world, were the proudest vessels afloat.

Colonies demand the best blood and brain their mother country has to offer. This demand has resulted in the establishment of the training center in Norfolk, a certificate from which assures immediate acceptance of the immigrant by the colonial governments. Farms are provided and financial assistance given those who have passed tests for fitness.

On a 1,000-acre farm here in England, conditions under which settlers work and live in the colonies have been reproduced. The course of training lasts six months, after which a student has some success as a pioneer in Canada, Australia or British Africa.

London's first labor symphony orchestra has started full dress rehearsals with a view to opening a concert season early in the spring. The orchestra was organized by Herbert Morrison, secretary of the London labor party.

Luxuriously upholstered, the new seats have high sloping backs and are fitted with softly padded headrests. These will allow the head of the traveler who wishes to sleep to settle how snuggly he would have been in a cross-channel steamer, or will ease the agony of air-sick passengers sweeping along in the mists or sunshine high above land and sea.

Complaints that Berlin police, armed to the teeth with revolvers, short sabres and night-sticks, scare out foreign visitors who want to ask questions, have resulted in an order requesting police to take the initiative in helping strangers about the city.

The chief of police in his order said that the three weapons with which policemen are armed are necessary and that they tend to prevent disorder. But he urged members of the force not to lose patience, to answer politely all questions no matter how foolish they may seem, and give explicit direction as to streets and places of interest.

London's well dressed men have reached back into the 1840 period for some of their styles of 1926. The Prince of Wales and other young Londoners who are responsible for the leading fashions, have revived the black evening waistcoat, double-breasted, with heavy lapels and cut straight at the waistline.

MORE FACTS ABOUT THE FLEETWOOD AND THE FLEETWOOD UNIT

Plans prepared by Beacham, Grand and Gaines, New York and Asheville, N. C.

Contract let to Buchholz Construction Company, Asheville, N. C.

Steel work ordered from J. E. Moss Iron Works, Wheeling, W. Va.

Height of hotel, fifteen stories. Cost, $2,000,000.

Rooms, 300; capacity, 600 guests. dining room will seat 1,000.

Secondary hotel, 100 rooms, for maids and chauffeurs of guests. Casino and swimming pool, tennis courts, docks, etc.

Builder, Commodore J. P. Stoltz, owner of Fleetwood Hotel System.

Contract time, hotel to be completed this year with formal opening New Year's Eve.

THE FLEETWOOD SECTION

Location, Fairyland Point, an elevated peninsula between the Halifax and Tomoka rivers.

Improvements, paved streets, electricity, water, sidewalks, a school site, a yacht club.

Fonteneda Drive, paved boulevard along Halifax river from Ormond, to the Fleetwood Hotel, distance of five miles.

Tomoka Drive, paved boulevard along the Tomoka river from the Fleetwood Hotel to the F. E. C. Railway tracks, distance of seven miles.

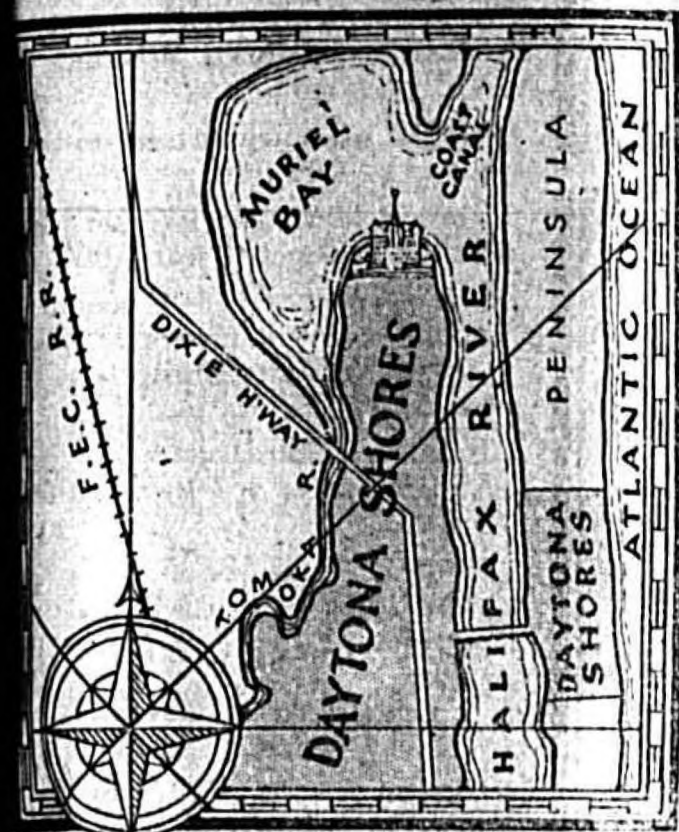

Fleetwood Concourse, 120 feet wide, with central parking, extending down middle of peninsula distance of one mile, from the Dixie Highway to the Fleetwood Hotel.

Entrance Gateway to Fleetwood Section at Dixie Highway and Fleetwood Concourse.

Small restricted zones for business and apartments; large home-sites and estates.

This $2,000,000 15-story Fleetwood Hotel will be built at Daytona Shores this year. It is not a dream--not a vision--but a hotel for which all plans have been drawn and contracts let. It will be opened formally New Year's Eve

FLEETWOOD Means Profits!

The $2,000,000 Fleetwood Hotel which will be built this year in Daytona Shores will put money in the pockets of Daytona Shores investors.

This statement is based on facts. Values of property surrounding other hotels of the Fleetwood system at Hendersonville, N. C., Augusta, Ga. and Chattanooga, Tenn. began to mount from the first announcement of construction, and are still going up.

As for property surrounding the Fleetwood Hotel at Miami Beach, every Florida investor knows the story of its rise. This property has increased more than 1,000 percent and is still rising.

WHAT the Fleetwood of Daytona Shores --- fifteen-stories, a $2,000,000 institution---will be built this year and completed in time for formal opening New Year's Eve, was Commodore J. Perry Stoltz's pledge to the people of Daytona Beach at a public meeting. Read the facts about the letting of the contracts on the opposite page.

Then read the facts about the Fleetwood Section of Daytona Shores. Realize that millions are being spent to make this supremely beautiful water front property an ideal place for homes. And realize further that the coming of the Fleetwood Hotel, with its many recreational features, will make moneyed people want to live here.

The Fleetwood Section is not yet available for public offering, but we are accepting reservations prior to the formal opening. That investors realize big profits will be made here in a short time, is evidenced by the flood of reservation requests.

This magnificent property on a narrow elevated peninsula between two great rivers is priced moderately for early investors. So moderately, indeed, that if you want to be considered in the allotment when it is opened to investors, you will have to act quickly. Come to our local office and study the preliminary plats. Note the superb character of development now under way --- the great riverside boulevards, miles in length, and the mile-long Fleetwood Concourse, 120 feet wide, extending from the Dixie Highway to the hotel. Then make your reservations. Any piece of property in the Fleetwood Section will make real money for you before the year is out.

World's Largest Will Having 95,940 Words, Filed For Probate In London

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—(P)—What is believed to be the world's largest will, containing 95,940 words, has recently been filed for probate in London. Jack Matthews, president of the National Selected Morticians, said in an address here.

"This will of Mrs. Frederica Evelyn Stillwell Cook, widow of a wholesale dry goods dealer, disposed of an estate of $102,315," said Mr. Matthews, "and thus Mrs. Cook used a word in her will for almost every dollar she had to dispose of."

"There are no records showing any wills that approach in number of words the will of Mrs. Cook. It put into the average newspaper, it would fill 95 columns or 12 pages of eight columns each."

"London boasts of many long wills. That of Thomas Cubitt, grandfather of the present Lord Alhcombe, whose will probated in 1825, contained 24,740 words and the will of the eighth Duke of Devonshire 17,730 words, but in neither was there an accompanying document instructing as to details of burial. The idea of preparing for one's funeral long before any thought of death, is taking hold in America much faster than in the old country and serves to save the bereaved family money, trouble and annoyance."

"The shortest will ever filed in London says: 'All for mother—C. T.' and disposed of an estate valued at $41,250. Elias Meyer's recent will, disposing of a $9,350,000 estate, contained only 125 words. Another small will contains a photograph of a girl, autographed 'Muriel' on the back which is written, 'I leave all to her.' It was signed by a soldier who was killed in the world war and was admitted to probate even though not signed by witnesses.

"The smallest London will is engraved on the back of a soldier's identity disc, a piece of brass about the size of a silver dollar. A microscope must be used to decipher it."

OLDEST TREE SPARED

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 5.—The state of Washington's oldest inhabitant, a cedar tree 2300 years old, has been spared the ax through the generosity of nature lovers. It is 300 feet high, 33 feet in circumference and 18.4 feet in diameter.

STATE NEWS BRIEFS

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

OCALA.—Dr. J. H. Therrell was elected president and Walter Pedrick, secretary-treasurer of the Marion county Fair Association, at the annual meeting of the organization held here.

CLEARWATER.—One of the best known fishermen and seamen in this section of the country passed away with the death recently of Captain James Fogg, 71 years old. Captain Fogg's death took place at Clearwater Island, where he had lived for some time.

TAMPA.—Josiah Richardson, bondaman for Charles Killingsworth, missing convicted bandit, prepared to contest forfeiture of the bond, because of his inability to produce Killingsworth to serve a prison sentence. An attorney was engaged by Mr. Richardson to take the case to the higher court if necessary. The amount of the bond is $7,000. Killingsworth recently escaped from officers near Ocala while being brought to Florida from Texas.

PENSACOLA.—Pensacola sent representatives to the so-called Galveston-New Orleans rate hearing case, being held at the latter place. The hearing, which will vitally affect this city, was for the purpose of listening to complaints involving export and import freight rates to and from points in the central west and Mississippi valley, via gulf ports.

ST. PETERSBURG.—Florida sunshine and a bottle—one filled with water—started a blaze in the automobile of George H. Alton, of Swampscott, Mass., which threatened destruction of the machine. Mr. Alton left the bottle of water on the seat of his car. The sun's rays did the rest.

BARTOW.—Members of the Florida Grape Growers' Association held their semi-annual meeting at Tampa Thursday. Addressed by a number of delegates featured the gathering.

WEST PALM BEACH.—The United States government was appealed to by local city officials to halt traffic on the water between Palm Beach and West Palm Beach to help traffic ashore. The government was requested to close the south bridge during 4 to 6 o'clock, when traffic ashore is at its height.

Chief Executive Refuses Aid Requested by The Senate; Says Views On Subject Have Undergone No Change

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The Senate appealed to President Coolidge today to seek a solution of the intricate controversy, but the request was answered almost immediately by a rebuff from the White House of the President's policy of non-intervention.

The Senate's action, it was said officially, had not convinced Mr. Coolidge that there was any change in conditions which would justify a change in his policy.

He does not consider the Senate's advice in any way binding upon the federal government, although he regards it as a valuable expression of opinion. He also feels that passage of the resolution would be more or less necessary in order to permit it to center attention on the pending tax bill.

The author of the measure, Senator Copeland, Democrat of New York, had given notice he would insist on a vote on the proposal every day and much time was being consumed in roll call.

After having twice refused to consider such a step, the Senate succumbed to the growing pressure for action and adopted the resolution making the chief executive to request a conference of the operators and workers at the White House.

An adopted however, the resolution was amended in order to leave it up to the President to decide when the conference would be held.

The vote for adoption was 54 to 21. On last Friday the Senate rejected the proposal on the following day it rejected the refusal 49 to 23.

Twenty Republicans, 27 Democrats and the one Farmer-Labor Senator voted for the resolution today while 19 Republicans and two Democrats voted against it.

COOLIDGE NOT TO FIGURE IN COAL STRIKE DISPUTE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The Senate's action today to request a conference of the operators and workers at the White House, will not figure in the coal strike dispute, it was said today.

The Senate's action today was a purely legislative measure and does not constitute a binding upon the President, it was pointed out.

England Suffering From Heavy Floods

LONDON, Feb. 9.—(AP)—A large part of England again is under water. The floods in some portions of the country exceed those of January. Out of the past 22 days there has been only one day without rain. The last two weeks have been exceptionally wet.

Virtually every river in this midland and eastern districts have overflowed in its banks. Many thousands of acres of low lying ground and parts of several towns are flooded, stopping street car traffic. In some places the water continues to be for rain.

Three Persons Hostile To Calles Government Reported Executed

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Three more executions of persons hostile to the Calles government have taken place in Mexico, reports here today.

He lists the names of the three as: Jorge Land proprietor in the state of Jalisco, Gilberto Chavez Alvarado, state of Jalisco, and Dr. Francisco Rodriguez Betancourt, who had been firing squads recently. Dr. Betancourt was executed at Aguas Calientes, state of Jalisco.

Martinez is a leader of the De la Huerta conspirators here. His records recently were seized by the department of justice.

Ancient Blue Law Will Be Before Grand Jury Today

Publishers of the Nashville Age and Banner and managers of the street railway company and a number of other business concerns will appear in Magistrate Reasonover's court today to answer charges of violating the law, preferred by George W. Hight, local attorney. Continuance may be granted them pending the outcome of Thomas' case.

Thomas, who was cited four times in charges with selling gin and putting a large core in a tire, was sold, it is said, to a person who wished to visit a sick neighbor.

Soft drink and candy merchants have been invited to attend the trial of the Nashville Drug club this afternoon for discussion of the law.

A serious campaign is about to be launched to discontinue the Blue Law, it is said, in Nashville.

WIDENING OF CITY STREETS TO BEGIN SOON

City Engineer's Plans Okeyed
Commissioner's Meeting
Work On Principal Avenues
Will Be Finished By Fall

Widening of the streets in the downtown district will, in all probability, get under way about the first of May, according to City Engineer W. B. Williams, who today gave out a list of the streets to be widened and improved, and who also stated that the work is expected to be completed by late fall, possibly during the first week of November.

First Street is to be improved and repaved from the railroad tracks near Railroad Avenue east to Sanford Avenue. Second Street is to be widened to 40 feet from the pump branch west to Oak Avenue. Ninth Street, widened to 47 feet from Park to Atlantic Coast Line Depot.

Oak and Magnolia Avenues are to be widened to 50 feet, from First to Fifth Street; Park Avenue, 60 feet from Fulton Ninth Street and Palmetto from Commercial Avenue to Second Street. Sanford Avenue will be 40 feet from First to Fifth Street.

Park Avenue, the street designated as the Dixie Highway route, will be 60 feet, of asphalt, beginning where the new paving just south of the city hall has been laid to Ninth Street, and will be lined with white wall lamps on each side of the street.

Wiring System Changed

Mr. Williams stated today that notification will be mailed to the public utilities companies now operating in the city to the effect that all wires, both telephone and electric, will be removed together with poles from the streets in the future, and no poles or wires will be allowed to stand on the main streets, it is said. City officials say this will be one of the greatest improvements in the appearance of the city possible to make at this time.

The property owners along the streets to be widened are to be notified that all existing gas and water connections will be renewed by the city at the latter's expense, in case of leakage or trouble in connections, it will not be necessary to tear up the streets to get at the source. This is said to be a plan which will meet with the general approval.

Rotary Club Is Behind $2,000,000 City Bond Issue

Organization Pledges Support
To Measure Following Talk
By Commissioner Chase At
Weekly Luncheon Meeting

City Commissioner E. F. Housholder appears before the Sanford Rotary Club today at its regular noon luncheon meeting and spoke on behalf of the proposed $2,000,000 bond issue.

At the conclusion of his talk, the club went on record as favoring the issue and pledged the support of the members at the election to be held on March 19.

Mr. Chase gave a detailed account of the projects to be benefited from the funds derived from floating the bonds and the amount which would be expended in putting the various improvements under way.

A financial statement of the city, which the commissioners had prepared, was given and disclosed the fact that the net bonded indebtedness of the city at the present time amounts to only $1,008,287.39 and has not approached the limit set by law.

Outstanding bonds are listed by the city to the amount of $2,568,000 which includes bulkhead, street lighting, sewers, land reclamation, improvement, public utility and special assessment bonds.

The public utility bonds of $315,000 and the special assessment bonds of $100,000, under the charter of the City of Sanford are not deemed a part of the bonded debt. These bonds are payable by the income and revenue derived from the operation of the utility plants and by special assessments against property holders of the city.

The 1925 assessment valuation of the city is given as $11,550,648 and is said to be far below what the 1926 assessment will be. The rapid rise in property values during the past year is expected to increase the assessed valuation to at least $25,000,000.

The law allows a bonding limit of 15 per cent of the assessed valuation. Under the issue planned, the city will be in a better financial condition than the majority of the cities in the state.

Mayor Forrest Lake will appear before the Kiwanis Club tomorrow at noon in the interest of the bond issue.

Mitchell Declares Davis' Actions Are Aimed At Patrick

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Secretary Davis' investigation of the activities of a spy office, it is alleged primarily by Maj. Gen. Patrick, head of the army air force, is the belief of William Mitchell, and the former colonel has expressed the defense of his own time chief.

Describing Gen. Patrick as "the only member of the old regime to see the light and come out and tell the truth about it," Mitchell said the General is being made the victim of an espionage system within the department. The new investigation of the air services officers, Mitchell contended, is "aimed at any change in existing conditions" and was undertaken at instance of "the War Department clique."

A circular said to have been issued by the state's attorney backing for the bill proposing establishment of an air corps, and now signed by Secretary Davis, Mitchell said, presumably by a clerk acting as a spy. Mitchell said the circular presented a summary of a memorandum prepared by Gen. Patrick for the use of Congress and that it was distributed by a reserve officer.

Mitchell characterized the "espionage system" as a continuation of one invoked during the war, and that any man is discharged who does not agree with what the chief in the War Department wants him to say.

Author Of 'Four Mile' Laws Succumbs At 92

HUNTLAND, Tenn., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Horatio R. Moore, 92, author of the "Four Mile Law" in Tennessee, died here yesterday.

Mr. Moore, as a member of the Tennessee house of representatives, introduced the four mile law which made the first prohibition law in Tennessee in 1877. The measure provided that whiskey could not be sold within four miles of a school house.

In 1900 Mr. Moore was a candidate for congress on a prohibition ticket but was defeated. Nathan Bedford Forrest was elected.

Food Corporation Merger Strikes Snag As Federal Anti-Trust Suit Is Filed

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The food corporation merger has fallen through and Wall Street had an uneasy market in food stocks today as an aftermath of a federal anti-trust suit filed yesterday in Baltimore against the proposed $2,000,000 Ward Food Products Corporation.

Ward Baking "B" stock, considered by Wall Street the chief speculative stock of the enterprise, tumbled from 79 1/2 to a low of 66 1/2.

Negotiations for a $140,000,000 consolidation of the Postum Cereal and California companies, were called abruptly after $188 a share had been offered for a controlling interest. It was considered certain that the merger would go through, but it was announced yesterday that the negotiations were not willing to buy or sell into a government investigation.

The Federal Trade Commission, which gave a detailed account of the merger, testified that George B. Barber, chairman of the Continental Baking Corporation, Mr. Barber objected to making public 1925 sales figures of the corporation, which is one of those in the proposed merger in the Ward Food Products Corporation. He expressed willingness to give the figures privately to the commission. The Continental has 103 bakeries in 81 cities.

Wall Street financiers in a symposium have expressed opinions as to the value of large mergers.

Francis H. Sisson, vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company, said: "The American people are gradually learning that, so far as harmful practices are concerned, the size of the concern has no relation to its business ethics. It would be much easier to watch a few big business men than thousands of small dealers."

Clarence Dillon of Dillon, Read and Company said that in big operations, machine-like, impersonal administration must be prevented.

George E. Roberts, vice president of the National City Bank, said: "We have clung too long to the economic absurdity that large corporations are bad for the community just because they are large."

State Legislative Seat To Be Sought By Judge Phillips

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Judge H. B. Phillips, Jr., departed last July by Governor Martin as chairman of the State Road Department, announced today his re-entrance to politics as a candidate for election to the state legislature. He will seek election as representative in group one from Duval county, he announced.

Dr. F. A. Hathaway of Jacksonville was appointed head of the state road department to succeed Judge Phillips after a stormy political battle which followed a request by the governor for Judge Phillips' resignation.

Judge Phillips refused to resign and was removed from office by the governor. Governor Martin contended that Judge Phillips had been "in accord with the policy of the administration." Judge Phillips denied that he had opposed any of the proposed highway improvements included in Governor Martin's program.

Directors Elected At Annual Meeting S. B. & T. Company

At the annual stockholders meeting of the Sanford Bank and Trust Company held recently in the directors room of the institution, officers for the ensuing year were elected and financial statements were shown. A 7 1/2 per cent increase in deposits within the last year, according to bank officials, deposits at the close of the fiscal year 1925 were given as $446,851.58 as opposed to 1924's figures of $384,925.88, and resources showed a corresponding growth.

Officers for the new year were elected as follows: W. H. Tunnicliffe, president; L. M. Marshall, vice president; W. H. Tunnicliffe, secretary and treasurer; H. M. Giles, assistant cashier.

Directors named are: W. H. Tunnicliffe, chairman, W. H. Tunnicliffe, R. B. Wight, Edward Higgins, Roy F. Symes, C. F. Williams, Dr. Samuel Palestine and R. J. Holly.

REAFFIRMS DECISION

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Reaffirming its previous decision, the Supreme Court of Illinois today denied an appeal and ordered that a $100,000 interest money set aside by the state in 1917 and 1918 be divided among the various reporting

PERSHING AND PARTY ARRIVE AT KEY WEST

Retired Chief Appears In Poor Health But Asserts He Is Not On Sick List; May Enter Hospital Soon

KEY WEST, Feb. 9.—(AP)—General Pershing arrived here shortly before noon today aboard the cruiser Denver enroute to Washington, D. C., from Florida, where he served until 1919. He is considered one of the largest expositions ever planned in America.

Pershing appeared in very poor health, but announced that his condition was "fair" declining to either confirm or deny persistent reports that ill health had prompted his resignation in the South American boundary dispute and his immediate return to the United States.

"I am not on the sick list, but I suppose my health for the past few months would entitle me to be, except for the fact that I have not been on active military duty. It is true that I have been under my physician's care. I intend to enter the Walter Reed hospital on my return to Washington, but can't say how long I'll stay there," he declared.

This statement was made after Mr. Pershing's arrival. Pershing's aide, had characterized the general's condition as "bad." The famous "Black Jack" was said to have kept below deck during his entire journey here, except for brief intervals during clear days, when he walked about the ship.

Elaborate ceremonies marked the arrival of the former A. E. F. Division in the World War. Lieut. Commander F. Baltzell, U. S. N., acting commander, and Capt. C. M. Murray, of the U. S. Marine Corps.

After a brief chat with his visitors, Pershing appeared on deck, where he was honored with a 15-minute salute from the side guns of the Denver. After expressing his gratitude to officers and men of the warship for his treatment aboard the vessel, he almost a Victory medal with destroyer class on Chief Walter T. G. Orr, of Athens, Ga.

As Pershing walked down the gangplank, a brief salute was given by the crew of the Denver, joined his men in cheering their distinguished guest.

The general declined to make any statement regarding the A. E. F. Division controversy, and declared that he would continue to remain silent on this subject until reporting his activities to his superior in Washington.

Spanish Airmen Are Making Good Time

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The Spanish aviators flying here from Rio Janeiro passed over Florianopolis, 600 miles by airplane southwest of Rio, at 12:20 o'clock this afternoon.

SANTOS BRAZIL, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Commander Franco's seaplane crossed the Atlantic this morning, 10:58 o'clock this morning. Santos is 250 miles southwest of Rio de Janeiro, the starting point for today's flight.

ROAD TROUBLE CLEAR

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Difficulties encountered in Sarasota county in establishment of the Tamiami Trail south of Sarasota have apparently been cleared up. Dr. F. A. Hathaway, chairman of the State Road Department announced here today.

Policeman Is Kept At Tracks To Keep First Street Open

Numerous complaints received by the city commissioners and the police department against the Atlantic Coast Line Company's trains blocking the crossing at Railroad Avenue and First Street, have resulted in the commission ordering a policeman stationed at that point with orders to arrest the train crew of any train blocking the street for more than five minutes, according to a statement made today by Chief of Police Roy G. Williams.

A policeman has been on the job for the past four days, the chief said today, but no arrests have yet been made for violation of the law prohibiting the crossing being blocked for more than five minutes.

Several citizens have reported instances of flagrant violation of the law during the past month; it is said, and the steps made to arrest the train crew have resulted from these complaints.

The law provides a penalty of $25 for the first offense of this nature and increased fines are said to be due for second and subsequent offenses.

Lake Monroe School Bond Election Put Off

The Lake Monroe school bond election scheduled for Feb. 18 has been postponed to some time during the month of April, according to Fred R. Wilson, attorney for the board, who stated today that the action had been taken because so few of the voters had qualified to cast ballots.

By delaying action on the matter until more poll taxes have been paid, members of the board believe that a more successful election will be held.

Mercury Drops In New England States

BOSTON, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Ther and New Hampshire were driven suddenly to the lowest levels of the winter today. While fields in New England were covered with a heavy blanket of snow, Lancaster, Mass., on the Vermont line reported 29 degrees below zero.

The lowest temperature recorded in New England today was 29 below at Lancaster, Mass.

Ponzi To Give Self Up To Sheriff Soon, His Friends Declare

Money Wizard Arrives In Jacksonville By Motor From Tampa About Noon Today

JACKSONVILLE, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Charles Ponzi is in Jacksonville and intends to give himself up at the sheriff's office as soon as he can arrange to retain counsel to defend him, friends of the "financial wizard" said this afternoon.

Charles Genico, a brother of Mrs. Ponzi, said Ponzi left Tampa early last night by auto, mobile and drove through Jacksonville. Genico said he believed Ponzi arrived here shortly after noon.

Mrs. Ponzi, indicted with her husband and two associates on the same charges, is staying at the home of a friend here, and will give herself up with her husband as soon as he completes his legal arrangements, Genico said.

BOSTON, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Massachusetts authorities will offer no objection to the prosecution of Charles Ponzi, former financial wizard of Boston, by the state's Attorney General Jay B. Denton said today.

Ponzi, who was indicted at Jacksonville yesterday in connection with a Florida land scheme, is under sentence of seven years in this state as a "common and notorious thief." His exceptions to the trial now are before the supreme court.

The indictment is not unique. Attorney General Denton said Charles Ponzi exercises the right provided by the supreme court, we would move to have him brought back here. I suppose the Florida authorities will go through with their case and we will offer no objection."

JACKSONVILLE, Feb. 9.—(AP)—With an indictment of four counts charging violation of a law regulating business under a declaration of trust, Charles Ponzi, whose financial operations in the last six years have attracted world wide attention, today again was the object of a search by police.

The indictment was returned yesterday by the Duval county grand jury while the "Wizard" and his wife were in Tampa. Word came from Tampa that Mrs. Ponzi had taken a train shortly before the indictments were made known for Jacksonville. At an early hour today he had not been taken into custody, although police have watched all incoming trains.

HUTTON OUTLINES LEGION'S PLANS FOR EXPOSITION

Rotary Club Goes On Record As Whole-Heartedly In Favor Of The Campaign For The Exhibition Building

The Campbell-Lessing Post of the American Legion has not yet received its quota in the drive to be undertaken by the state legion for funds with which to erect an "All Florida Building" at the Sesqui-centennial exposition to be held in Philadelphia this summer, according to officials of the post.

As soon as the quotas are allotted each post in the state will perfect final plans for the drive, is scheduled for the week of Feb. 22.

M. B. Hutton, commander of the local post, appeared today before the Rotary Club at the body's regular noon luncheon meeting, and outlined the Legion's plans for the drive and briefly sketched the benefits the state would receive from the proposed exhibit at what is considered one of the largest expositions ever planned in America.

Not a Legion Affair

This is not to be a Legion affair in any sense," Mr. Hutton said, "owing to the failure of the state legislature to provide funds for the building to house the exhibits of the state of Florida, the state Chamber of Commerce has called upon the American Legion to assist in laying before the visitors to the exposition the reasons for Florida's claims to ability and progress."

Every county of the state is expected to have a booth, and horticultural products in Philadelphia. During the six months of the Sesqui-centennial, practically all of the wonderful products of this state can be shown to millions of people.

It was learned by the state Chamber of Commerce that a few real estate developers were planning to erect a building, call it the Florida Palace, and use it in advertising their particular properties. Mr. Hutton added, "This would be in no way representative of the state, and would do more to bring on a flood of anti Florida propaganda than anything else which might be conceived in the minds of those wishing to destroy the state's present popularity."

The entire project is one which should have the whole hearted support of every citizen of the state, and the American Legion, which the assistance of you gentlemen, will do its part in helping to put Florida before the eyes of the world in its true light," he said.

The Rotary Club went on record today as favoring the project and pledged its assistance to the drive.

Apple Growers Buy Big Local Tract

H. S. Long, of the Sanford Realty Company, today announced the sale of an 84 acre tract near the old county poor farm to a local syndicate of apple growers. The tract is being purchased for a consideration of $250,000.

The land, which is heavily wooded, is known as the old Hagan farm. Development including the installation of all public utilities and elaborate beautification features will be started at an early date according to the firm.

D. M. Bramer and Mr. Wiehard, the two men associated with the local syndicate in the enterprise, are said to be the largest apple and peach growers in the state of Pennsylvania.

Voluntary Abstinence Is Applauded By Cardinal Who Warns Dry Leaders

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP)—A new note on prohibition which has been appearing in the Episcopal Church, has been struck in a pronouncement of Cardinal O'Connell of Boston, that the Roman Catholic Church applauds voluntary abstinence but opposes compulsory abstinence.

Cardinal O'Connell did not mention the Episcopal controversy over the modification of the prohibition laws.

He confined himself to defining the position of his church and warning present prohibition leaders that the Catholic Church would not allow itself to be entangled in the compulsory total abstinence movement.

Although the Catholic Church has long been fighting against temperance, the cardinal said, "the compulsory prohibition is a different matter entirely. It is a different thing from the voluntary abstinence movement."

Dr. Esphenham said that Bishop Manning of New York three weeks ago told him that he did not believe in prohibition, and did believe in enforcement of the law. The bishop said this statement was in error and that the strong prohibition sermon at Sunday services was a mistake. The cardinal said that the strong prohibition sermon at Sunday services was a mistake. The cardinal said that the strong prohibition sermon at Sunday services was a mistake.
