Sinclair Lewis's "It Can't Happen Here" in which the prospects of an American dictatorship are discussed, is causing considerable comment throughout the country, not the least of which centers around the possibility of the Hr. R. L. Desa, Editor, The Sanford Herald, the least of which centers around the possibility of the same rigid censorship in the United States as already prevails in other parts of the world. In 16 European edinities the newspapers from which more than 400,000,000 revenues control and manipulation, and 14 of these 16 nations came under the rule of dictatorships shortly after the freedom of the press was abolished.

J. Rosco Drummond, executive editor of the Christian Science Monitor, who spent some months in Russio as few years ago, relates in an interesting manner the matthets by which the communist party controls the earth's inhabitable surface. He lists Stallin's six points for the guidance of the Soviet intelligensia as follows:

"And the strangling of the press in the principal European countries, and only to a lesser extent in the Far East and in some South American countries," Mr. Drumanond relates, "has advanced from mere censorship of news to the stage of positive control of thinking. It means that in most of the countries the propagation of ignorance (false news and half truths) has become an instrument of national policy. It has become one of the most forcible and yet combustible machines for operating government. It cannot fail to be one of the most disintegrating elements in the structure of world our modern herbivores do.

"When the opinions of masses of people are molded by misinformation and when the force of such opinions is thereby manipulated to particular ends, we have in operation an influence which is destructive of freedom of thought and freedom of conscience, and which thereby is destructive of intelligent national government and international government.

"Freedom of the press, I think we should appreciate, is not an end in itself. Freedom of the press is not guaran-teet by the American Constitution for the benefit of newspaper editors slone.
