TODAY

Private ambulance service ends

LONGWOOD - LifeFleet Atlantic. a provider of emergency medical services in Seminole County since January 1991, will close its Seminole County operation starting mid-night tonight. The Seminole County EMS Fire & Rescue will now be responsible for transporting patients in emergency situations.

Seminole County EMS Deputy Chief Terry Schenk expects a smooth transition. "We've worked well with LifeFleet over the last six years. Their work force is very professional." Schenk said.

Seminole County Commission Vice Chairman Grant Maloy contacted LifeFleet Atlantic employees on Monday, in the form of a farewell letter, to say that he was always very impressed by the dedication they have shown in taking care of patients. He said to the employees, Please remember that the EMS battle was not about you doing a bad job, it was politics, and politics doesn't always make sense.

The transitions will be an emotional time for the 70 employees of LifeFleet Atlantic. most of whom will be leaving Central Florida to find new jobs. LifeFleet Atlantic's operations manager Sam Wood said most of the company's employees will take positions in south Florida offered by American Medical Response, the parent company of LifeFleet Atlantic. Other have been placed with Rural Metro in Orange County and EVAC Ambulance in Volusia County.

LAKE MARY - Parked in front of the two-story brick Lake Mary home of Tony Panzino is a can-dy-apple red 1995 Road King Harley- Davidson motorcycle. The shine of the chrome would almost blind you in the late afternoon sun. The bike is one of many Panzino has owned in his lifetime.

Panzino runs his own investment company. He is not your stereotypical biker. Riding is a family affair for the Panzinos. Tony's bike has a custom seat designed for two riders. His wife. Susan, joins him as often as she can, "if I can beat my daughter to it." The Panzinos have two teenaged daughters, the youngest of which is looking forward to the day she owns her own "Hawg." says Panzino.

Panzino has enjoyed the freedom of the open road from the seat of a motorcycle for more than 20 years. Recently he joined A.B.A.T.E. of Florida, Inc., Seminole County Chapter (American Bikers Aiming Toward Education) and brought a whole new dimension to his enjoyment.

Sanford plans for special festival

By MCK PPENFAUF Staff Writer Emeritus

SANFORD - The big event of this fall in Sanford is expected to be The Great Fall Exposition 97. The matter was discussed Monday afternoon during a work session meeting of the Sanford City Commission

While specific approvals for cer-tain requirements remain to be decided, the commission voted unanimously on the overall concept, and authority to have Seminole Boulevard closed for the event, possibly as long as two weeks, from Sanford Avenue east to San Juan, next to the New Tribes Mission.

Organizers, known as DreamVi-ion Studios, have requested a 10-day special event permit for Sept. 18 through 27. In addition. they want the city to assure that the event will be permitted each year through at least the year 2001. The city is being requested to provide restroom facilities, electrical connections, trash receptacles, cleanup, police/fire/first aid participation, certain water outlets and street closure along the area, to be the lakefront at Fort Mellon Park.

In return. DreamVision is promising to give the city 12 percent of the profits the first year, and on up in two percent increases culminating with 20 percent for the

For Seminole Boulevard, she proposes continued work on the development of the riverwalk design, landscaping, a boat launching location and other matters, specifically from Mellonville Avenue westerly to the intersection of U.S. Highway 17-92 (N. French Avenue).

Her proposed suggestions for the area on the water include possible development of a beach in See Develop, Page 5A

City closes troubled apartment complex

From staff reports

SANFORD - The water is to be completely turned off today at Pine Shadows Apartments. 1120 Florida Avenue in Sanford. With a $17,000 unpaid water bill and numerous code violations. the city commission Monday, said there was no other choice.

Over 40 apartments which comprise the complex, have been found to be in serious violations of life safety codes as well as city codes. and were determined to be of severe threat to the health and welfare of the tenants and general

Repeated efforts to contact the owner have failed. The property owner, identified as R.K. Seesurrun is presently in Wolverhampton. England. Attorney Paul V. ## Quilt to debut, depicts county history

By MARIA OREM Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County Historical Society Quilt will make its debut July 20 from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Museum of Seminole County History on US Highway 17-92 during an ice cream social hosted by the Celery City Cruisers car club.

The quilt depicts various county ocations, symbols and historical buildings. Photographs submitted by each historical society were used to design the scenes, which were quilted on by volunteers, including popular sites like the big clock in downtown Sanford. "They're still working on it," said museum spokeswoman Kay Bartholomew. "I've seen parts of it and I think it's something that will be greatly admired because it's historical and it shows the county."

Bartholomew said the quilt is centered around an image of Osceola, the symbol for Seminole

Following a yearlong tour of the county, the quilt will be raffled off in a drawing on April 28, 1998, the day the county turns 85. Gertrude Lukas, president of the See Quilt, Page 5A quilt will travel from various locations and to each of the historical societies throughout the year.

Lukas said the society is most grateful to the quilters guild for using its talent for this fund-raiser which will truly benefit residents and visitors of the county museum.

VA implements drug formulary

The Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) is announcing the implementation of a national drug formulary, a move that will provide systemwide consistency in pharmaceutical dispensing policies and practices, effective immediately.

Said VA Under Secretary for Health Dr. Kennneth W. Kizer, The advantage of a national formulary is that it facilitates continuity and consistency of care, increases standardization of pharmaceutical products and efficiency, and lowers pharmaceutical prices through enhanced competition. The net effect for the patient is better care at a lower price."

The national formulary contains prescription medications. over-the-counter drugs, and medical and surgical supplies. To provide flexibility and assure that individual patient needs are met. VA medical centers may use products not on the formulary if certain patients need non-formulary items. The formulary is a dynamic document which will undergo continuous review, allowing VA to respond to changes in therapeutics and clinical treatment.

VA has used medical center-based formularies for more than 30 years. While this local process historically benefited the individual facilities, it also led to considerable variation in drugs available at different facilities.

Developing a national formulary was part of Kizer's "Commercial Practices Initiative." Maximizing a developing business strategy in the private sector, in 1995 Kizer established a pharmacy benefits management group to manage the cost, use, outcomes and distribution of VA's pharmacy program. During April 1996, VA moved from 173 individual medical facility drug formularies to 22 network

VA has also sought additional savings beyond its routine low prices through national volume-based competitive pharmaceutical contracting. The result has been a savings of more than 8100 million in the last year.

VA currently spends 81.3 billion annually on pharmaceuticals, or between 6 to 7 percent of the total VA health-care dollar.

VA announces change in SGLI premium rates

The Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) is announcing that the monthly premium rate for Servicemembers' Group Life. Insurance (SGLI) decreased from 9 to 8-1/2 cents per $1,000 of coverage, as of July 1, 1997

The change means that the monthly premium for a servicemember with the maximum SGLI coverage of $200,000 will decrease from $18 to $17, a savings of $26 million to servicemembers. The decrease is attributable to a continuing decline in mortality rates and is the first rate change for SGLI since July 1, 1994, when the rate was increased to 9 cents.

Some 97 percent of servicemembers, or a total of 2.3 million servicemembers, carry more than $449 billion in SGLI coverage. More than 90 percent take the maximum $200,000 in Servicemembers insured by SGLI are guaranteed the right to convert their coverage to Veterans, Group Life insurance VOLI) when they separate from service. VGLI is renewable for life in five-year-term periods and can be converted to commercial insurance at any time,

St. Swithin or Swithun. Take your pick.

By golly, it's St. Swithin's Day, Saint who?, you say.

He was Bishop of Winchester (AD 852-862).

Not much was known about the good bishop's life, but there's quite a story about what happened on July 15, 971 when his relics were transferred to Winchester Cathedral.

It rained that day like never

According to English belief, it will rain 40 days thereafter when it rains on this day:

"St. Swithin's Day, if thou dost rain, for 40 days it will remain. St. Swithin's Day, if thou be fair, for 40 days, 'twill rain nea mair.

Here's a simple wish for a better film

Eta, Eleanor Butler was crowned queen later that evening

A Simple Wish (PG): Martin Short and Kathleen Turner are two actors I mistook for "Hollywood deceased". I had this sense that they had been cast into the dreaded wasteland of washed up stars. You know "The Wasteland"? That is my term for stars who have fallen out of the spotlight. Remember Chevy Chase, Andrew "Dice" Clay or Mark Harmon?

Until the release of A Simple Wish. I thought that Short and Turner had succumbed the same fate. After the results -monetarily and critically- of this film, their career may be in jeopardy. Credit bad decision making on their parts. These two are just too talented to be misguiding their careers with films like A Simple Wish.

A Simple Wish is a benignant failure. It is a well intentioned kiddle fairy tale that suffers, primarily, on the script level. Short and Turner play opposing fairy godpeople fighting over the rights to a magic wand. In the middle of this struggle is Anabel (Mara-Wilson) and her family. All Anabel wants is a simple wish that her aspiring Broadway actor/father (Robert Pastorelli) would get the lead role in a new musical so the family would not have to move to Nebraska -- why they must move to Nebraska is unclear.

Murray's bumbling ineptitude has caused a snag in Anabel's however. He. wish. accidentally, turns Anabel's father into a bronze statue. The spell must be reversed before midnight or Anabel's father will remain in his suspended state forever. Topthat off with the fact that Claudia (Turner), the evil fairy godmother, is hot on the trail of Murray to get her wand back and Anabel seems confronted with a "no win" situation.

A Simple Wish is directed by Michael Ritchie (Fletch) and written by Jeff Rothberg, who was partially responsible for writing that terrible Warner Bros. kiddle flick, The Amazing Panda Adventure. Rothberg tries to create a patchwork out of other classic children's tales like Snow White, Cinderella and The Wizard of Oz. The result of his mixture, much to our chagrin. is an unoriginal bore. If he had put a clever spin on the material -- maybe a parody-- it might have been a better film.

There are several "head scratching" sequences as well-A scene where Anabel and Murray visit Nebraska is absolutely pointless not to mention a broad attempt at ethnic humor,- Then there is and far too long -- I was about this long sequence where Murray and Claudia do battle in Claudia's lair. The sequence tries to dazzle with special effects, but it is anticlimactic to yell "Get to the point!", but they might have kicked me out

How much wood would a wood chipper chip?

By SHARI BRODIE Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY - The city with one of the area's strictest arborordinances is buying a wood chipper

No, the city of Lake Mary is not planning to cut down all of the trees that contribute so much to the "quality of life."

As the city is in the process of reviewing needs for fiscal year 1997-98, 'we identified a tierd to purchase a wood chipper said full Temby public works director, in a memorandum to the mayor and city commissioners because we must currently haul downed. trees and limbs to the landfill. and pay disposal costs, which run about $5,000 annually

The cost of disposal has been especially high this year. as the city has had to deal with the removal of pine trees in Liberty Park, that died as a result of the recent flooding

In a Feb. 28 letter sent to Sherry Newkirk recycling program director for the Seminole County Solid Waste Division. Temby said that the city of Sanford has been accepting Lake Mary's debris for about a year and a half at a site where they having a chipping facility but that option

District delays seeking heritage designation

From Staff Reports

PALATKA The St. Johns Hiver Water Management District will delay seeking a federal designation for the St. Johns. River, as In Atserican Heritage River, the District's Governing Board decided

The Governing Board, members of the public and legislators expressed concerns about a lack of information being available from the federal government detailing the potential long-term impacts of the initiative President Hill Clinton announced the initiative in Feb. mary as a way to enhance the economic cultural, historic and environmental impacts of 10 rivers throughout the United States Clinton plans to name the water bodies as American Heritage Rivers on Dec. 1-

The Governing Board will discuss the issue again after more information is obtained from the federal government, likely by September

As part of the nomination, the federal government is seeking the communities' visions for the rivers, in addition to letters that reflect the support of the public and local governments. The District held meetings in Jacksonville. Palatka: Sanford and Palm Bay in June to gather input.

We've been awaiting the details from the federal government to enable us to address all of the issues discussed during the past month," said Luida Burnette, director of the

Treat them with respect

Sanford's former City Manager Warren E. "Pete" Knowles, now living in Englewood, Fla., (near Venice), made news recently in St. Petersburg Beach. What happened may give an indication of something our Seminole County and various city governments should consider.

Knowles now represents a group called Range Riders, retired former city managers who volunteer their services to various cities needing knowledgeable assistance.

This time, Knowles was scheduled to appear before the St. Petersburg Beach City Commission. From a lengthy list, the Range Riders were to help select top candidates for the position of a new city manager, which they had reportedly done.

Knowles was told by the mayor that it would be a short meeting and he would be at the top of the agenda. The meeting began at 6 p.m.

When he arrived however, he was forced to sit through a lengthy discussion about telecommunications towers (sound familiar?) then other matters, one by one, were brought up.

By 8 p.m., he was still waiting to be heard. With the long drive back to his home still ahead, Knowles walked out of the meeting.

While the mayor and several city officials admonished Knowles, citizens and other officials admonished the city. One explained that Knowles and the organization were volunteers and should not be treated with such disrespect.

like the city commission isn't ready to sit down and discuss it. When they are, let me know, but please don't waste my time."

No further meeting with the Range Riders had been set as of early this week.

The point here isn't to call attention to the way Knowles was treated. Rather it is to call attention to the fact that many people, specifically asked by a government body to make a presentation, are not being paid for their time. As such, we believe they should be given special treatment and consideration.

Without exception, most of our area commission meetings are lengthy. People often have to sit through several hours of discussions, none of which are of any particular concern to them, in order to be on hand for one specific item.

Preparing an agenda for a meeting is not a simple task. But once it is prepared, it can be adjusted at the will of the commissioners. Seldom is this ever done.

We believe it's time the government leaders take a look at what goes on in their meetings and at least consider why groups or certain individuals are on hand.

Our meetings run relatively smooth when it comes to the workings of the members of the commissions and councils as well as their department heads. But when it comes to members of the general public and persons specifically asked to appear before the commission, we believe there should be more respect given.

Clinton proves adept at foreign policy

As President Clinton heads to Europe to preside over expansion of NATO, it's hard to remember that this is the same president who made such a mess of foreign policy at the outset of his first term.

It's too much to say that Clinton has been a great foreign policy president -- luckily, he's had no wars or grave crises to face — but his strategy and execution so far have been very good, setting up the structure for continued U.S. global leadership in the 21st century. Clinton's success in this arena is a surprising development in view of the disasters he endured early in his first term, such as the death of U.S. troops in Somalia, being intimidated by thugs in Haiti, and having diplomatic initiatives bluntly rebuffed in China

To the despair of his secretaries of State and Defense, Clinton wasn't interested in foreign affairs and spent little time on it. The results showed in repeated humiliations for the United States and the administration.

But that's changed. Besides deciding it was dangerous not to pay attention to foreign affairs. Clinton also got lucky. Former President Jimmy Carter saved him from disaster in Korea and in Haiti, and Croatian military advances gave him a second chance to build peace in Bosnia.

However, Clinton also deserves credit for developing a sound overall strategy almost from the outset on two key fronts: world trade and Europe.

He's been dedicated since 1993 to an open trading system, the key to prosperity around the world and in the United States, and to expansion of NATO to keep the United States cemented in the post-Cold War European security structure.

In both cases, he faces fights in Congress to keep the momentum going -- this year on fasttrack authority to negotiate new trade agreements and in 1996 on Senate ratification of NATO expansion.

But contrary to the rap that his foreign policy is driven simply by domestic politics, there is a distinct vision to Clinton's view of the U.S. place in the world, if not exactly a grand strategy.

One scholar has identified seven models for the shape of the world's future, and the evidence suggests that Clinton lan't confused about which one he believes in.

Clearly. Clinton thinks that the United States is the world's lone superpower, the "indispensable nation" without which nothing useful can be achieved. Some Clinton sides say that, de facto, the world lives under a Pax Americana and that Clinton wants to keep it that way.

It ain't happily ever after, but...

WASHINGTON-So I'm strolling through Platypus, a boutique that sells handmade and specialty items, when a book catches my eye. On its cover: A photo of a laughing elderly couple cuddled behind the steering wheel of a convertible. The man and woman, giggling as if over a shared high school secret, look like they're on a drive-in date begun 50 years ago. The book's title: "Happily Ever After: Couples Talk Ahout Lasting Love."

At the gym, I glance up at the TV and see a woman in a fabric softener commercial wrapping her baby in a towel. Delirious at the fabric's softness, she coos over her sheets, baby clothes, her whole stupendously cushiony wash.

Buying groceries, I spy the new Vogue cover model, who has a heart-stopping grin and syrup-smooth skin. Right below her is the latest Newsweek, featuring the stars of the new blockbuster, "Men in Black."

Some folks wouldn't have noticed that the book's romantic couple, the ad's blissed-out mom and Vogue's July cover model are all black. They wouldn't have seen Newsweek and remembered how last summer, a black man played by the younger Man in Black, Will Smith, saved the world in "Independence Day."

I did--and was reminded of President Clinton's desire for Americans to begin a "dialogue" that increases tolerance across color lines. My reaction: Great, though progress requires doing as well as talking.

But plenty gets said without a word. Every time a "mainstream" movie, publication or ad features blacks as integral pieces of the American puzzle, I hear something. When People, In Style and supermarket tabloids feature black celebs--once relegated to Ebony and Jet--partying and styling, readers get a message. They get one too when they don't see such folks in Vanity Fair.

In truth, Americans are already talking constantly about race--inside our heads.

I said a silent "cool," to the Vogue model, the fabric softener mom and Smith. African-Americans buy and wear high fashion, use laundry products and, hey--brothers have saved my world many times.

The cover of "Living Happily Ever After" sparked a longer discussion. In fact, the beautiful book is based on discussions writer Laurie Wagner had with 30 white, Latino, Asian, gay and black couples, who describe in wry, eloquent terms how they've stayed together more than 30 years. Based on David Collier's Oscar-nominated documentary, "For Better or Worse," "Happily" sparked a "wow," in me, then a riot of silent questions:

"Who chose that photo for the cover?" "Don't they know publishing dictum that says black folks on a cover makes readers assume it's a 'black' book--and turns off nonblack readers?"

"Who bought this book?"

Children of the Control of the Contr

I did--along with 28,000 others since "Happily Ever After" debuted last fall, according to Annie Barrows, senior editor at Chronicle Books in San Francisco. Editors who chose the picture of Alice and Ancil Johnson--wed 51 years when photographer Stephanie Rausser snapped them--were looking for a cover that attracted "as many people...as possible." Barrows said.

Some

are all

have

Ironically, "Happily" has sold better than expected, exceeding its original printing by over 8,000. "It's a hot anniversary gift." Barrows said.

Vogue magazine editor Anna Wintour dealt with the color issue more directly--in a letter to readers confessing her hope that they would embrace black cover model Kiara Kabukuru. Typically, sales of magazines featuring black cover models have lagged behind those with whites. Kabukuru is Vogue's 25th black cover model; in its 105-year history. (Beverly Johnson was first in 1974.)

"There's been so much media speculation about the lack of black girls on magazine covers." Wintour explained Wednesday, referring to recent news articles questioning black models' scarcity in fashion shows and magazines. "Obviously, it's upsetting when you read in The Washington Post and The (New York) Times that maybe there's a problem."

Wintour, who is "keeping my fingers crossed" about July issue sales, agrees that there should be more black supermodels. "As great as Naomi (Campbell) and Tyra (Banks) are, we wanted to expand. ...We tried many models for the (July) cover--(Kabukuru) was by far the most stunning."

Choosing Kabukuru wasn't just "the right thing to do." says Wintour. "She was the prettiest girl."

Not long ago, it didn't matter how pretty black models were--or how much African-Americans spent on products or the appeal of our actors. Mainstream culture seldom treated blacks as contributors. In that context, one book, one magazine cover, even a dumb fabric softener ad makes a statement.

It ain't happily ever after, but it sounds good to me.

Funny thing about smoke

BOSTON--Funny thing about smake. You ley to get a lid down on the stuff and it drifts out the edges.

Here we are at a peak moment in the automoting movement. RJR has pust given Joe Camel the heave and sent him to the off ad desert. The government is into the second round of negotiations for a stiffer tobacco deal. Flight attendants have begun a 85 billion class action suit against secondhand amoke.

Just when it's getting safe to take a long breath of fresh air, there's a whiff of something newly noxious.

Sniff, aniff. What is that odor coming from yet another smoking section? Sniff, sniff. Could it be a cigar? Could it be 4.4 billion cigars, or roughly 20 percent more than last year?

And could it be that while the smoking police were tracking down the hip and glam marketing of cigarettes, the old stogic was being transformed into an elegant accessory for the eager mouths of the young masters of the universe?

From time to time this year I smelled the return of the cigar. I learned about upscale cigar bars and restaurants where men and women actually line up to get into a smokefilled room. I learned about cigar societies and cigar tasting.

In search of the full flavor of the image revival I even leafed through the glossier-than-thou, 434-page magazine called Cigar Aficionado. I discovered a campaign that recks of money as much as tobacco leaf.

Glance at the August issue in which super model Claudia Shiffer holds a fully lit and pricey stogic midway between her mouth and her cleavage. Cigars are being "positioned" with ads for martinis and MC's. The cigar is sold among upscale power toys: fireplaces, leather chairs, smoking jackets and golf clubs. There's even a Gulfstream jet ad--for the cigar smoker who has everything but his own smoking section.

There is something astonishingly retro in this revival. My favorite cigar ad is almost a parody. One Alpha male is telling another how he recruited a new star for the law firm. "I told him that except for the age difference we were very much alike," says Alpha One, "...we went to the same prep school, same law school, the squash, the golf, both married our college sweethearts, you know." The clincher? "It turns out we smoke the same cigar."

Male bonding through cigar smoking? Is there something symbolic going on here? Or should we remember what Freud said, that sometimes a cigar is just a cigar. Especially since it's being marketed to women as well.

In any case, it is startling to see that, while the health spotlight has been on cigarettes, the Havana craze has gone on unabated. It's been ignored largely because cigarettes are considered worse for your health, more addictive and more adult.

But one average cigar has the nicotine of four or five cigarettes and as much tobacco as 15. There's less lung cancer among those who don't inhale, but someone who smokes one or two cigars a day has a much greater risk of cancer of the mouth, throat and esophagus than a nonsmoker,

Just weeks ago, a surprised and alarmed Centers for Disease Control reported that teens are experimenting with cigars at a much higher rate-one out of four had smoke a cigar last year-than anyone knew. Call it trickle down chic.

City Manager Bill Simmons responded that discussions since the request was submitted, had indicated there would be "an out for both sides" written into the wording of any agreement.

(7) The unipolar, one-superpower world first identified by columnist Charles Krauthammer.

Clinton is operating under the last model and trying to make sure that the others are short-circuited, especially the three-bloc or two-bloc scenarios. This accounts for his NATO initiative, efforts to get along with Communist China, and the formation of links to other Asian countries.

But there are dangers to the system Clinton is trying to foster. A famine-crazed North Korea could launch a desperate attack on South Korea, making Clinton a war president. Relations with China could easily become adversarial, and Clinton could be embarrassed by renewed warfare in the Balkans.

Dangers also face him in Congress, where a majority of Democrats and a growing minority of nationalistic Republicans oppose the fasttrack. In debate this fall, Clinton will be helped, though, by the booming U.S. economy and low unemployment, which refute the idea that free trade "sucks" jobs out of the country.

On NATO expansion, Clinton is opposed by an odd collection of liberal doves and hawk hard-liners, ranging from Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., and former arms control chief Paul Warnke on the left to former Pentagon official Fred Ikle, Russia scholar Richard Pipes, and former Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., on the

The opposition also includes such centrists as former Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and former Clinton adviser Michael Mandelbaum. On the other hand, Foreign Relations Committee ranking member Joe Biden, D-Del., who had been opposed, has declared in favor of expansion, though he says that getting twothirds of the Senate to approve it will be 'a real

Opposition is based on potential cost, fear of renewed Russian nationalism, and the problem of Central European states left out of the expansion.

So far, Clinton has met the objections by seeking European cost-sharing, winning assent from Russian President Boris Yeltsin, and permanently excluding no democracy from membership. He'll make a side trip to Romania to stress the point.

With budget constraints and advancing lameduckhood increasingly impairing his ability to institute domestic initiatives, Clinton may well major in foreign policy for his last years in office. He might even get a top grade.

Florida Keys Sanctuary and bay scallop rules approved

SANFORD _ The Governor and Cabinet, on May 13, 1997, approved the following Florida Keys Sanctuary and bey scallop rules proposed by the Marine Fisheries Commission (these rules took effect on July 1, 1997):

FLORIDA KEY8 NATIONAL MARINE SANCTUARY RULES

These rules, which implement zones in state waters of the Florida Keys National Marine Sanctuary where fishing is restricted or prohibited:

prohibit all harvest, possession, and molestation of any living or dead marine organism or habitat feature within the Western Sambos Ecological Reserve (SER), and within the Cheeca Rocks, Eastern Dry Rocks, Hens and Chickens, Newfound Harbor Key, Rock Kay, and San Key Sanctuary Preservation Areas (SPA's): however, properly stowed finfish, shellfish, and marine plants, and fishing gear not readily accessible for immediate use (by being stowed unbaited in a cabin, locker, rod holder, or similar storage area, or by being securely covered and lashed to a deck or bulkhead), may be possessed on a vessel in transit through these areas: catch and release fishing by trolling is also allowed at Sand Key prohibit touching and standing on a living or dead coral formation

· prohibit all harvest, possession, and molestation of any living or dead marine organism or habitat feature, and all fishing, within the Eastern Stimmon Special-Use area. education purposes.

BAY SCALLOP RULE

This rule continues the current bay scallop management plan indefinitely, and adds the first 10 days of September to the July/August open season in allowable harvest areas beginning this

SHUPE'S SCOOP

BAY SCALLOPS ARE A BALL TO HARVEST, BUT A REAL CHORE TO CLEAN. TO ASSIST IN THE PROCESS, PLACE THEM ON ICE FOR A WHILE AND THEY WILL OPEN UP. THIS MAKES IT MUCH EASIER TO OPEN THEM.

FISHING FORECAST

Bass fishing will continue to be slow through September. Air and water temperatures will have to cool in order for base to become more active. Puzzle Lake atill remains one of the top picks because the water is low and bass are contained to the narrow river channel. Bream and catfish will continue to bit worms and mussels throughout the aummer. Sebastian Inlet has great catch-and-release fishing. Live shrimp and one-ounce jigs are the most popular offerings. A few redfish, flounder, sea trout and jack crevalle can also be caught around the rocks. Snock and tarpon are also present in good numbers back in the Sebastian

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports great offshore action. King mackerel, cobia and dolphin are roaming 8-A Reed and Pelican Flata. The water is very clean, so don't venture too far offshore. Tripletail are biting in the buoy line. while flounder and sheepshead are hitting in the Port. Trout and redfish are rated as good on the flats of the Banana and Indian Rivers.

Sheepshead and small bluefish dominate the action at Ponce Inlet. A few redfish, drum. bluefish and jack crevalle are also present. Live or dead shrimp is the favorite bait. The tip of the north lettles is the best spot. Redfish and trout are rated as good in Mosquito Lagoon.

Back in the groove Kathy's Baby Shop resumes perfection

SANFORD - It wasn't as easy as in the past. but Kathy's Baby Shop recorded its seventh undefeated week in the Sanford Recreation Department Spring Recreational Volleyball League after seeing its perfect sensonal record ended last Monday night at Sanford Middle School's Dun Pelham Gymnatorium. Kathy's Baby Shop went 5-0 Monday night but had to go overtime twice to up its lead in the A League to 11 games. Kathy's Baby Shop had little trouble in disposing of Beer:30 11-1. Sanford Church of God 11-3 and Ladies of the Court. Plus 2 11-6. But almost lost to the YKnots for the second straight week before prevailing 12-10 and going deep into overtime to edge Westview Baptist Church #1 14-12.

The loss to Kathy's Baby Shop was the only blemiah on the Ladies of the Court. Plus 2's evening as they tripped Sanford Church of God 11-7 and thumped Westview Baptist Church #1 11-0 and Beer:30 11-1 and the Yknota by identical 11-1 tical 11-1 scores.

Pepsi 400 to become biggest night event ever on July 4, 1998

Special to the Herald

DAYTONA BEACH - Thomas Edison would have been proud. More than a century after the developement of the light bulb, the world's most famous speedway. Daytona International Speedway. will become home to the world's largest outdoor lighting project.

Daytona International Speedway has hosted the "Great American Race," the Daytona 500, and the "Mid-Summer Classic," the Pepsi 400, annually since 1959.

After hundreds of thousands of competitive miles driven on the hallowed grounds of Daytona, lights will be turned on for the first time for a NASCAR Winston Cup event at Daytona International Speedway on July 4, 1998 for the 40th running of the Pepsi 400.

For years fans and drivers alike have complained of the heat and humidity of Florida in July. This move should take care of all complaints of heat and make for an ultra-unique happening. Although Musco Lighting of Muscatine, Iowa will add significant light to the track, the surrounding area will be virtually unchanged by the illumination of the racing surface. A precisely-controlled, directional system will be utilized, ensuring that the street lights along Speedway Boulevard fronting the race track will be brighter than the almost non-existent spill-over light from the track.

Musco Lighting, the leaders in sports- and large area lighting, will provide more than 2.205 fixtures on 130 poles ranging from 70 to 140 feet in height. The project will require 150 miles of wire, 800 tons of concrete and 2,600 square feet of mirrors to properly light the 2.5mile high-banked trioval.

With all this lighting power. however. Musco will build an efficient system operating at a relatively low cost of $240 per hour (based on seven cents per/kw).

Speedway seating capacity is currently being expanded by nearly 18,000. Lights will provide a spectacular view from each of the nearly 140,000 permanent grandstand

Reserved seat ticket holders for the 1997 Pepul 400 will have until September 15 to renew their current seat locations for the historic 1998 event. All remaining reserved seat tickets will go on sale through the Speedway's ticket office on October 1 at 9 a.m. Deposits can ve made beginning July 17 for new ticket orders.

The Speedway ticket office phone number is (904) 253-7223.

A NASCAR Winston Cup race at Daytona under the lights is sure to be one of the greatest spectacles in motorsports, second only perhaps to the Daytona 500," said John Graham, president of Daytona International Speedway. "Each year, through the combination of huge television ratings and sold-out grandstands at the Speedway, the Daytona 500 enjoys the largest audience in motorsports. With the addition of lights, we expect the Pepsi 400 to be a very close sec-Sec Daytona, Page 2B

Top women's hoop tournament at SCC

Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD - While it may not be the WNBA (Women's National Basketball Association) or the WBL (Women's Hasketball League) it's as close as you are going to get in this area as Seminole Community College is hosting the Sunniland World League Shootout this week at the Health and Physical Education

The Sunniland Corporation sponsored event has drawn international teams from Poland and Finland as well as Florida teams from Melbourne, Orlando, Port Orange, Oviedo. Coral Spring and Seminole Community College.

After the first day of round robin play, the host team from SCC was 3-0, while Poland-Warsaw and the Orlando Warriors were both 2-0.

Finland Pyrinto (1-1). Poland-Sleza (1-1). Port Orange (1-1). Brevard [Melbourne] Playmakers (0-2). Oviedo (0-2) and Coral Springs (0-1).

Monday's schedule called for 10 games and the event will continue today through Wednesday.

With the advent of the the two women's professional leagues, it is now more important than ever for the female players to take advantage of every opportunity to showcase their talents on the court and be seen by as many college coaches and pro scouts as possible. This tournament also gives Seminole County basketball fans an opportunity to get an early look at some of Seminole Community College head couch Ken Patrick's prize recruits.

Expected to play for the local train are 6-foot-10, 209-pound Jana Kodova, 5-foot-8 Dasha Kudruyutseva and 5-foot-4 Crystal Kodova, from Pusal, Estonia, is two inches taller than any player in the pro ranks and played on the Estonia National Team.

Kudruyutaeva, from St. Petersburg, Russia, is touted as an excellent player and possibly one of the best guards in the world, while Tanner is a fine prospect from Ponce de Leon High School.

According to Patrick, last year's event drew coaches and scouts from more than 10 tallege and univer-

"Last year was our first attemp at bringing in players from around the country and Europe." Patrick said. "It was a very successful recruiting event for the coaches and the girls. This year I expect to nearly double the number of coaches coming to the tourna-

Co-sponsoring the event with Sunniland Corporation are HealthSouth, M&M Mars. Converse and Dr. Tom Winter, M.D., Orthopedies and Sports Medicine.

The stands should be titled like they are for the Daytona 500 when the Papsi 400 goes under the lights on July 4th, 1998. The move will make things a whole lot more confortable for fans and drivers as they will no longer have to deal with Florida's heat and humidity in July.

SANFORD - The next three weeks the volunteer column will focus on three women who work for Habitat for Humanity's Women's Project. According to a recent press release, this project is a diverse group of about 100 women living and working in the Seminole County area who have come together under the auspices of Seminole County Habitat for Humanity, Inc. to build a home for a single mother and her two daughters who are currently living in substandard housing.

Also known as "Women at Work" project, this effort is the first house in central Florida which will be built entirely by female volunteers.

This will provide an opportunity for the women of Seminole County to work together in a spirit of com-munity while helping those in need. It will also bring attention to the disproportionate numbers of poverty level households which are headed by women and build confidence and pride in the women who participate and show others that all of us have unique talents which, when shared in a cooperative venture. make each of us stronger and provides women volunteers an opportunity to learn and put into practice valuable skills in the construction field, as well as home maintenance and repair.

The project is comprised of a Steering Committee and five sub-committees : Fund Raising. Construction, Public Relations. Volunteer Coordination and Ceremonies. Each committee is assigned specific tasks, but they work together on many overlapping issues (e.g. fundraising and public relations). General oversight fo the project rests withthe Steering Com-constant battle to avoid controlling the lives of those around us. This is particularly true of parents, doctors, attorneys, politicians, police, and chil-tren with aging parents. I don't know why some people lose control when they cannot control others. It's a strange irony, because, dom isn't all that sound. Like any smart to anticipate fluid losses and when you think about it, the only person we can control is ourself. Our society would be a better place if more people lived by that principle.

DEAR READER: The problem of

The serenity prayer helps me. Perhaps it would also help you and your relatives. It goes like this: "God, grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, the courage to change the things I can, and the wisdom to know the difference."

Try that on your family. If it doesn't work, walk away. After all, you have no control over others, do you?

Note that central, even in its most severe form, should not include emotional or physical abuse. If it does, obtain assistance from your local lawenforcement authorities and, perhaps. encourage your family members to seek counseling.
DEAH DR. GOTT I'm a 27-year old female, in excellent health, who evercines regularly and vigorously. Recently, my gynecologist ordered a cardiac ultrasound because I have a heart murmur. The test showed "slight mitral valve prolapse." Should I be concerned? Can I continue to exercise?

DEAR READER You needn't be concerned and you can continue your exercise program.

Mitral valve prolapse, an extremely common condition in healthy females to be trare in males), is basically a floppiness of one of the cardiac valves. which fails to close properly during heart muscle contraction.

As a result, a tiny jet of blood sets up eddy currents that the doctor can hear with a stethoscope as a murmur (extra sound in the heart).

The majority of people with MVP suffer no health consequences. In some cases, however, the MVP can cause irregularities in the pulse rate that can be diagnosed with a cardiogram. These might require medication, such as beta blockers, for treatment or prevention.

As I have previously writted, healthy adults do not have to consume extra fluid unless they are thirsty. The thirst center in the brain will alert us if we are becoming dehydrated.

All things being equal, we can then drink enough water to slake our thirst and return our metabolism to a proper balance. So, my advice is: Listen to what your body tells you to do. incidentally, if you're thirsty, stick to water not sods, because sods may give unwanted calories and additives.

Of course, if you live in a hot, humid environment or engage in particularly

If you read Barry Rigal's first book, Deceptive Declarer Play," you will know exactly what to expect from workmanlike job covering the four are nas for deception: leads, signals, following suit and discards. However, deceptive defense is much harder than deceptive declarer-play for two reasons: You cannot see partner's cards, and you have a partner who might be misled into error by your beautiful falsecard.

Regardless, diverting declarer into defeat by deception is one of the greatest joys in bridge. This deal occurred during a rubber bridge game in London. Do you see any way for an ex- NY 10025-7124. pert South to fail in six hearts?

West led the club two. As this had all the aura of a singleton, declarer called for dummy's ace. He planned to rely on the trump finesse, which you can see was working. However, sitting East was Liza Shaw. She dropped the club king under dummy's ace! (Liza knew South had the heart ace from his Blackwood reply.)

Look at malters from South's point "Deception in Defense," Rigal does a of view. That club king was surely a singleton. If so, and if East had the heart king, there was no need to take the finesse. Yet what if East had started with two low trumps? Then taking the heart finesse would be fatal because East would get a club ruff. So, understandably, South continued with a heart to his ace and another heart. Now, though, Liza won with the king and gave her partner a club ruff!
