

Death Has Stricken Many Of Participants In 1921 Inauguration Of President

WASHINGTON, Mar. 2.—The capital is astir for the inauguration of Calvin Coolidge, but amid glad preparations there are many stern reminders of that other ceremony four years ago, when Warren Harding rode confidently long toward the summit—and the end—of his path of glory.

Looking backward now, it is as if the Grim reaper had taken a place uninvited in the very entourage of the new president. For the first time a chief executive and his wife both have passed into the great beyond within the brief span of years for which he was chosen to lead his people. With them in death is a company of their dearest friends, and nearly all of the great figures who were assembled about them on their day of triumph.

Within the four-year cycle President Coolidge, too, has seen death touch his own family circle and his cabinet, take away two of his predecessors in office, and still forward the voices of several others who shared with him the high responsibilities of government.

Of the many who were brought to Washington to be chief advisors to Mr. Harding just four years ago, only a handful remain in official life. The criteria of personal and political friends he gathered about him here has separated and almost disappeared from the Capitol. Among the ten cabinet members who took office on Mar. 4, 1921, only four will sit in the cabinet of the new administration.

Perhaps the closest personal associate of the first President and his wife was their neighbor and family doctor, Charles E. Sawyer, who became the White House physician. On all occasions from the time of Mr. Harding's nomination for the presidency these three were together, and together they came to Washington for the inauguration. Now all three rest in their last sleep at Marion.

On inauguration day in 1921 four men rode together between the crowded sidewalks of Pennsylvania Avenue—Warren Harding, a picture of high hope and solemn purpose on the threshold of great honors and great responsibilities; Woodrow Wilson, retiring to the solace of private life after eight momentous years in the White House; Senator Philander C. Knox, a former secretary of state chosen to act for that day for the Senate of the United States; and former Speaker Joseph G. Cannon, representing the House. Of these four death has taken the first three, and "Uncle Joe" Cannon has retired from the stage of national life where for so long he was a towering figure.

Arrived at the Capitol, the inaugural party was received in the President's Room by Senator Charles Henry Lodge, majority leader of the Senate. A little later, on the east portico, Chief Justice White administered the presidential oath of office. Both of these, too, were looking on the last inaugural ceremony they were to behold with earthly eyes.

One cabinet officer, Secretary Wallace, died during the term for which he and his chief consented to labor together in the public service. The same period has seen the passing of one of the notable figures in modern American political history, a former colleague of Mr. Harding in the Senate and a force with whom he reckoned in the trials of party leadership, — Senator Doise Penrose. Champ Clark had died a block away from the Capitol while the Harding inauguration was in progress, and his funeral was held in the House of Representatives on the first day of the Harding administration.

Of the original cabinet circle of that administration, only Secretaries Weeks, Hoover, Mellon and Davis are to remain in the new cabinet of President Coolidge, and among these four Mr. Weeks alone was a personal friend of the dead chief executive before his call to highest office. Time has thinned little by little the ranks of Mr. Harding's friends summoned by Mr. Harding to lesser posts in Washington. Attorney General Daugherty, the Warwick of the administration; George D. Chrisman, Jr., the President's next door neighbor in Marion and later his secretary at the White House; Fred E. Seaboy, a friend of many years, named Director of the Mint; Heber Veawase, Mrs. Harding's brother-in-law, whom he appointed Superintendent of Prisons; these and others—most as near to him have all passed out of the picture. Roy A. Havnes, the Ohio editor named Prohibition Commissioner, and A. T. Seymour of Columbus, who is assistant to the attorney general, likewise are expected soon to say goodbye to Washington.

True to a pronouncement that followed close upon his assumption of the Presidency, Mr. Coolidge sought to retain in office the appointees of his predecessor, almost without exception. But the heavy odds of circumstance lay against that purpose from the first. The same destiny that struck Harding down in San Francisco had decreed that within a space of time incredibly brief nothing but a memory should be left of that loyal organization through which he had dreamed to encompass great accomplishments.

HOLLYWOOD GETS GOETHALS TO DIG DEEP SEA HARBOR

Panama Canal Builder Will Direct Operations That Will Cost $15,000,000; Plan A Large Industrial Center

HOLLYWOOD By-the-Sea, Feb. 28.—The announcement of the new Hollywood-Lake Mable deep water harbor and the fact that General George W. Goethals, builder of the Panama canal, is to direct the engineering work was the big sensation of the week in Hollywood affairs.

J. W. Young, developer of Hollywood By-the-Sea, received telegrams of congratulations from all parts of the country, including those from many persons in Florida, interested in the development of the white state's resources.

This deep sea harbor, said to be the finest and the largest between New York and South America, is to cost, according to engineer's estimates, upwards of $15,000,000 and will mean industrial center that will be an emphatic step in the great growth of Southern Florida.

In a visit this week to Hollywood, General Goethals, coming from Palm Beach, looked over Lake Mable, with J. W. Young and Frank C. Dickey, chief engineer of the Hollywood Land and Water Company and expressed his belief that Lake Mable furnished everything in a natural way for a deep water harbor—that the digging and the filling would not be so great as in many other points.

His inspection of the Lake Mable site, General Goethals, from drawings that had been furnished by Mr. Dickey and the men in his department. Dickey will be the first aid to General Goethals in his building of the harbor.

The harbor, as pictured by General Goethals, after the data furnished by Hollywood engineers, will be 1,500 by 3,000 feet. Inland Lake Mable, running from north to the south, runs the channel of the Inland Water Ways canal. Lake

Mable is protected at present from the sea by a strip of sand through which a channel will be cut.

Two jetties will be built into the ocean for a distance of nearly a mile. They will be 1000 feet apart. The harbor entrance will be 300 feet wide with a depth of 30 feet. Lake Mable lies one and one-half mile south of Ft. Lauderdale and one and one-half miles from the ocean.

It is at the northern end of property along the Atlantic coast, controlled by J. W. Young, of the Hollywood Land and Water Company.

Mr. Young plans to make this harbor a great industrial center. The possible industries of Florida, he says, have not been developed. Even Florida agricultural and mining wealth has not been developed as it should have been because of the youth of Florida as a modern industrial community. All this, he says, means opportunity.

With highways and railroads growing across Florida, now, he says, freight can be carried to the new harbor to be shipped to world's markets at lowered costs to consumer and yet be a factor in the up-building of Florida.

"One of the modern wonders of the world is the way Florida is being built up," said General Goethals. "Even the most imaginative hesitate to wonder what Florida will be in a few years, with all the energy and capital that is being put back of its development. I have accepted a pleasant job to be one of those who will build this harbor at Lake Mable. The work is particularly pleasant to me. The results of the work in years to come will be wonderful."

Gold Luck-Piece Is Winner In Stirring Bout With A Bullet

CALEXICO, Cal., Mar. 2.—This is the story of a luck-piece that brought luck. The tallman in a 20 peso Mexican gold piece of this border city, credits the coin with saving his life while attempting to arrest a negro. The negro fired and the bullet struck the coin knocking it from a circular hole in the wall.

The coin that formed the watch chain was given to Hartwick several years ago by a Mexican official, accompanied by the admonition: "Wear this always. It will bring you luck."

The story is assured of immortality in the archives of Calexico for the city council has resolved: "We are grateful that, due to the intervention of a watch chain, providentially worn, the bullet fired by the would-be assassin was deflected from its course."

Sea Bird Return To Bathing Beaches

HAMBURG, Feb. 28.—Efforts to safeguard the bird life on certain islands in the North Sea are resulting successfully. Terns and gulls are coming back to the islands of Jordsand, Eilshogen and Nordsee.

A century ago, the Frisian islands were a paradise for bird life. Naumann, the celebrated ornithologist, described them as having the appearance of a flake of foam floating on the sea because of the great number of nests, terns, gulls and other birds. But in the meantime the islands have become bathing resorts and throughout the summer are alive with the noise of pleasure seekers who have turned them into noisy amusement centers. Until recent years birds' nests were pathlessly destroyed.

The measure will be introduced by the Association of the Commerce of the State, which has disclosed by legislation that soon are to be published would be entered upon acquisition of such waterway.

Supervisor Pleads For Attendance At Art Picture Show

An open letter calling attention to an exhibit of art pictures to be held at the South Side School in Sanford, Mar. 4 and 6 inclusive, for the benefit of the primary schools of the city, was made public this morning by Mrs. Stella P. Arrington, department supervisor of public schools. Mrs. Arrington points to the beneficial influence of good pictures on children and urges that all who can attend the exhibition in order to insure its success. Mrs. Arrington's letter follows:

"Recognizing the fact that our school rooms are in need of educational pictures, I have arranged, with the hearty support of my teachers, to hold the Elson Art exhibit in Sanford, at the South Side School for the benefit of the primary schools from Mar. 4 to 6.

"The influence of good pictures upon a child cannot be overestimated. The trend of many a life has been influenced by a single picture.

"Your attendance at the exhibit will greatly encourage us. The Elson Company has offered to affix, without charge, on each picture presented to the school by an individual or society, a brass plate, consisting of two lines inscribed, 'Presented by—' with the name of one donor. Such a gift, or any special contribution to the picture fund, will be most welcome.

"I hope that you will be interested in what seems to us to be of vital importance.

Cordially yours,
STELLA P. ARRINGTON,
Supervisor.

Height Of Festivity At Inaugural Attained By Roosevelt; States Hunt

By HARRY B. HUNT
WASHINGTON, Mar. 3.—Since simplicity and economy have been decreed as the guiding factors in the Coolidge inaugural, historically minded folk have been searching the records to discover just how simple or how ostentatious preceding inaugurations have been.

From the facts disclosed by these queries it seems that the peak of popular acclaim, jubilation and celebration was reached at the inaugurations of George Washington and Theodore Roosevelt.

Washington's first inauguration was on April 30, 1789, in New York. His whole progress from Mt. Vernon to New York, made by carriage and not on horseback, was a colorful pageant lasting through an entire week.

He was accompanied on the successive stages of the journey by relays of colonial dignitaries, as well as by a civil and military escort, and his arrival at each relay point was accompanied by illuminations, music, banquets and much speechmaking.

This trip is said to have cost Washington personally about $3,000.

In color and hilarity the Roosevelt inauguration, with its delegations of Rough Riders, Indians, soldiers and shouting citizenry, never has been matched.

Estimates placed the number of visitors who saw the Roosevelt inaugural parade at 500,000.

The parade itself took nearly four hours to pass the reviewing stand.

The Coolidge parade will be limited so it can be "reviewed" in about 45 minutes.

Thomas Jefferson was the first of the presidents to take the oath in Washington.

Jefferson and Madison were inducted into office inside the incompleted capitol building.

When arrangements were under way for the Monroe inauguration in 1817, the House and Senate couldn't agree on the disposition of seats and finally it was agreed to hold the exercises outdoors where there would be room for everybody.

Because of stormy weather, John Quincy Adams and William Howard Taft took the oath inside the lions, all presidents since Monroe have been sworn in in front of the central portion of the capitol.

The one inauguration which may surpass the coming inaugural of Coolidge in intentional simplicity and lack of pretension, was that of Jefferson.

Along with the story of Washington and the cherry tree, American schoolboys have been taught how Tom rode alone down to the capitol, hitched his horse to a sapling outside, and then took the oath.

In reality, however, it does not seem to have been quite so simple. Authenticated records of the occasion show that Jefferson was accompanied to the capitol by a company of militiamen, friends and admirers, and that a really respectable gathering was on hand to acclaim the new president.

The record inaugural "rough-house" was staged at the time Andy Jackson took office.

After the inaugural ceremonies, the White House was thrown open for a reception.

An uncontrollable mob of Jackson boosters surged in, waiters were knocked down, refreshments—there was no prohibition law then—were spilled, glassware broken and the broadened seats of chairs and divans muddled by the boots of the countrymen who climbed upon them to get a better look at "Our Andy."

Vicar Rocks Cradle In Ancient Custom

MANSFIELD, Eng., Mar. 3.—When the Rev. J. Lowndes, the bachelor vicar of Blidworth, near here, rocked a baby's cradle in his church on a recent Sunday it was not in an effort to stop the babe's cry, but the carrying out of a custom which has been observed for nearly 700 years.

From the thirteenth century it has been a rule that the most recently born baby in the parish should be taken to church on the Sunday nearest Candlemas and dedicated to God. On Saturday night the child is baptized, next day it is again taken to the sanctuary and placed in a tiny cradle inside the altar rails. The vicar then dedicates the child to God and rocks the cradle.

The ceremony is intended to symbolize the Biblical story of the presentation of the Child Christ in the temple. The cradle of Blidworth Church was draped with linen and bedecked with a mass of flowers. At the head of the cradle were placed two lighted candles and two acolytes stood near with lighted tapers. In the olden days the parishioners used to parade the village streets carrying the child, but that part of the ceremony is now omitted.

Women Of Germany In Reichstag All Began Life In Humble Stations

BERLIN, Mar. 3.—Of the 493 members of the new German Reichstag, 33 are women. This is 6.6 per cent of the total, or a little more than in the previous short-lived parliament, where the percentage was 5.7. The Socialists furnish the largest contingent, for of their delegation 13 per cent are women.

Perhaps the most interesting woman is Johanna Reltze, who was first a servant girl, then a printer's assistant, still later a Socialist party secretary, and now parliamentarian. Another interesting character is Frau Ansoerg, who started out as a textile worker when she was 13, then became successively coffee picker, shipping clerk, and newsstand saleswoman. Only three of the women parliamentarians had the advantage of a full college course. They are Dr. Gertrude Baemur, a member of the Democratic party who recently lectured in the United States; Dr. Marie Elisabeth Lueders, also a Democrat and identified with the International Women's League for Peace and Freedom, and Dr. Elsan Matz, member of the German People's party.

Elfriede Rynek was a seamstress before she went into politics. Minna Schilling and Marie Juchacz were both industrial workers in their younger days.

School teachers furnish a rather formidable delegation; Frau Pfuefl, Hedwig Dransfeld, Christine Teusch, Clara Mende, Elsa Matz and Margarethe Behm were formerly teachers. Elise Bartels and Lore Agnes describe themselves as plain housewives.

Members from 30 to 18, and artillery regiments from six to three. Training for the infantry would be decreased from 255 days to 140 each year and for the artillery and other troops from 360 to 240.

The plan is based upon the theory that Sweden's military position is greatly better now than in 1914, and the fact that Sweden has no common frontier with Russia. Opponents of the measure, however, point to the recent unsuccessful revolt at Reval, Estonia, as a sign of danger, and it is expected that warm debates will result when the measure comes up for consideration in Parliament.

Anti-Soviet Army Soon To Organize

PIROT, Serbia, Mar. 3.—Increasing evidences of activities are apparent among the troops of General Baron Wrangel, which found inter-allied protection in the Balkans as a place of refuge after the collapse of the Wrangel anti-Bolshevik campaign in the Crimea.

These troops have been kept under supervision, in a disarmed and demobilized condition, during the intervening time. But a skeleton organization has been maintained and the commanders have been keeping in touch with their men.

It is now announced that these Russian forces, in both Jugoslavia and Bulgaria, will be reorganized this spring. General Wrangel himself will take command of this work in Pinot, covering the Serbian sector, and he will be assisted by General Scorp, in charge of the men living in Bulgaria.

Orders to report at Pirot have been sent out to many men scattered through Serbia and Bulgaria.

Sweden Proposes Drastic Cuts In The Nation's Armament

STOCKHOLM, Mar. 3.—Drastic reductions in the personnel of the Swedish army have been proposed by the government in line with a general policy of economy. While definite figures have not been made public it is regarded as probable that a bill reducing the army from six to four army corps will be introduced in parliament some time during the coming session. This would result in the disappearance of a number of historic regiments, some of them more than 300 years old. The navy, under present plans, will not be affected.

The government plan is to cut down the number of infantry regi-

A demonstration of the process of manufacturing puffed wheat and rice by the Quaker Oats Company was given in Sanford Tuesday morning by Matthew H. Carter, assisted by D. A. More, both of whom are of the advertising department of the company. Mr. Carter is making a tour of demonstration and, since beginning last Fall, has covered 13 states. The finished cereal is made from ordinary whole grain wheat, or rice. The grain is steamed for a period under a pressure of 240 pounds. After it has been cooked sufficiently it is expelled from the container suddenly and the expansion of the steam contained in the grain, allowed by the sudden removal of pressure, causes the grain to swell to eight times its normal size.

The demonstrations were being made with special equipment mounted on an automobile.

Gas of Volcano Kills

THE HAGUE, Mar. 3.—Seismic and volcanic action has been intermittent in Java, since the earthquake at Wonosobo last November, according to colonial dispatches received here. Papandayang, a volcano about 8,000 feet high, 87 miles southeast of Batavia, the capital of the Dutch East Indies, is showing increased activity, several craters having formed into a huge one which is belching poisonous gases by which some native overseers have been killed and surrounding vegetation destroyed. The volcano is also emitting streams of hot mud, ashes and stones, and local earth shocks and tremors are felt continuously. Government geologists have gone to the scene to investigate. A violent and destructive eruption of Papandayang occurred in 1772.

To Renew Efforts For Forestry Law

JACKSONVILLE, Mar. 3.—S. Bryan Jennings, local attorney, who has tried several times to secure passage of a forestry law for Florida, states that he will renew his efforts at the forthcoming session of the legislature. His announcement followed a conference with Raymond H. Torrey, secretary of the National Conference on State Parks, who has made two visits to Florida in the last two years to survey park developments. Mr. Jennings, it is stated, is primarily interested in promoting a progressive forestry policy through a board composed of the governor, commissioner of agriculture, their successors in office and five members appointed by the governor. Such board would be authorized to co-operate with all agencies to gather and disseminate information regarding forests and engage a technically trained forester to direct the work.

Purchase of the Montezuma Hotel, a three story structure at Third Street and Magnolia Avenue by Harry T. Bodwell at a consideration approximating $50,000, was announced Tuesday morning. The hotel is situated on a lot having a frontage of 68 feet on Magnolia Avenue and 117 feet on Third Street.

The hotel will be operated as it now is for the remainder of the present season. As soon as the present rush subsides it is the plan of the new owner to remodel the building and refurnish it. J. R. MacDonald, who now has charge of the operation of the hotel, will continue as manager under the new ownership, it was further announced.

The hotel management is at present making arrangements to house the members of the Milwaukee, American Association, baseball club. The greater number of the team will arrive in Sanford Wednesday to begin their training here.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY.

GUARD YOUR THOUGHTS.—Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things. Philippians 4:8.

LET US SMILE

The thing that goes the furthest towards making life worth while that costs the least and does the most, is just a pleasant smile. The smile that bubbles from the heart. That loves its fellowman, will drive away the cloud of gloom, and coax the sun again. It's full of worth and goodness, too. With manly kindness bent, it's worth a million dollars, and doesn't cost a cent. —Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Lent has arrived. So has Sanford.

The heights of success cannot be reached on an elevator.

Spring will soon be here and time for the new Easter bonnet.

Stone Mountain seems to have been too hard for Gutson Borglum.

Does anybody realize that tomorrow a president will be inaugurated?

Good gracious! Yesterday went by without the announcement of a new subdivision.

One good thing about it, radio is breaking up poker parties and that's some improvement.

A Sanford woman we are told recently celebrated the tenth anniversary of her thirtieth birthday.

The trouble with most men is that they are always ready to start something and get tired before they finish it.

Asheville boosters "approve" of Florida. Well, we always thought Asheville a nice place to spend a summer's vacation.

Speaking of house signs, here's a choice one that an exchange dignitary says: "This is the House Paul Revere Would Have Passed if He Had Come This Way."

We haven't counted the number of railroad crossings within the city limits, but there are several and only a few of them are guarded.

Judging from the "Activities in Mellbourne Realty" column in the Times, Mellbourne is keeping pace with other progressive Florida cities.

Local people are showing more confidence in Sanford than ever before. That should be a good indication to outsiders that there is something really here.

"Jacksonville negro lived to age of 137." We doubt it, because we don't believe anyone could live that long in Jacksonville.—Tampa Tribune. It's hard to believe.

Gainesville readers of the Daily Sun and brother editors of the state will miss the brilliant editorials of "Col. Bob" who has been appointed tax assessor of Alachua county.

According to M. Erte, the famous French designer, men are going to wear brown and violet suits for evening dress, pearl bracelets and all that sort of thing. Shows how much Mister Erte knows about it.

Three masked bandits lined up the guests of the Melrose Tavern in Miami and robbed them of thirty thousand dollars. Well, at that they weren't out anything. If the bandits hadn't got them, the proprietors would.

One of Angelo Patri's great articles dealing with the training of children open with these paragraphs:

Many a home is unhappy because the children are forever sighing, "O, I wish I had a car like Hoosier. If I only had a dress like Mary's. Why can't we have a tennis court? Harvey's have one. Goodness, this old house hasn't anything. In Ben's house you can turn on the light or the hot water or the radio or anything you like. I wish—"

Dissatisfaction spreads like the measles and it makes the family just about as happy and as comfortable to live with, too. The only cure for it is to begin at the top and teach ourselves to be happy with what we have and work cheerfully for what we would like to have. If we have such a philosophy for ourselves it will soon be reflected in the children. A good way to begin is to praise common things. You can do it honestly, reverently, for the common things are above price and beyond understanding and without them we could not exist a single day.

Then he goes on to mention some of the praiseworthy common things, just as if people did not know there were such things. And they don't.

He mentions water, the rain, a bowbow "lying in the lap of the lake," etc. And he probably knew while he wrote that just about one person in a hundred reading this article would see anything but a lot of twaddle in his words.

But Patri is right. The happiest household we have ever known was made up of a large family of girls and boys who lived in a veritable fairyland, though their house was not fine, their clothes very plain, their money mighty scarce. But they had the blessed gift, and TRAINING, of imagination. One of the boys astride a cornstalk became the Black Knight. One of the little freckled-faced girls with a grape-leaf crown became the Queen of Silver. Even the everyday food on the family dinner table became royal viands.

The common things were viewed with understanding eyes by that family because they had the guidance of a father and mother who in their childhood had been shown the beauty of common things. And they were as happy as the day was long.

Patri declares that there is too much restlessness, too much eager grasping for the unnecessary and the costly. "Better," he says, "for all of us if we learn to praise the common things that are ours for the seeing and the smelling and the tasting of them."

But Patri knows that unless people are gifted with imagination, or trained to see the true values, they are always like old Peter Bell.

"A yellow primrose by the spring,
A yellow primrose was to him,
And it was nothing more."

As Funny As Can Be

It is to laugh. The "only woman book-maker of England" came to the United States to "play the ponies" in Florida. New York newspapers published stories and interviews concerning the celebrated race-track woman "bookie," upon her arrival in America. Florida newspapers published dispatches about the celebrity. And in due time she arrived at Palm Beach. Then after a few weeks stay at Palm Beach and Miami, Florida newspapers published the story of her return to England, "broke". The "ponies" did not run right for her, and she lost her cash.

And how could she have lost her cash at a Florida race track? That is where the laugh comes in. Florida has a law against race track gambling. Florida cannot have race-track gambling without the flagrant violation of the state laws. But a woman "bookie" can come from England and "go broke" at the Miami race track, according to the newspaper reports which are printed merely as some of the authentic news of the day.

If a "bookie" from England can come to Florida and lose her money at the Miami race track, it would seem almost probable that there are others experiencing the same fortune. It is even probable that there are "others", too, who are enjoying the other side of the game, with their winnings piling up in proportion to the diminishing rolls of the fellows who put their cash on the wrong horse.

And the people of Florida sit about with sickly gains and let this open violation of their laws go on unmolested! Curious what a bunch of money placed in capable hands can do in Florida. It can buy protection for anything. Florida law enforcement is a joke.

PRESIDENT EBERT

LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL

President Ebert's critical illness comes at a time when his work for the republic is practically completed. His six-year term of office expires this spring, and many of the leading politicians have been spoken of as his successor. Outstanding of these has been Chancellor Marx, a man not unlike the head of the Government and with whom President Ebert has been able to work with the least friction. The problem that soon will face Germany is to find a statesman who can follow in the path that has been made by this first administration.

Ebert has not been a brilliant executive. It is difficult to estimate the man, so unassuming he has been, so matter-of-fact and self-effacing. His simplicity has been in marked contrast with the showiness of the preceding regime. The bourgeois leader took the place of the lords and lordlings, the Hohenzollerns and their hangers-on, and brought to the highest office in the land something of the quietness of his saddlery shop.

That on occasions he forgot himself was due to force of habit. He could not fully grasp the changed conditions and for this he has been loudly abused by Maximilian Harden and the more radical of the German publicists.

But he steered an even course. He sought to popularize the new democracy granted under the Weimar Constitution. He, no doubt, knew the difficulties of his role for the transition from the monarchy of the pre-war variety in Germany to representative government was the bridging of a yawning gulf. Moreover he had to take into consideration that no people are more the creatures of habit than the Germans. They had bowed down before royalty for so long that it was no easy matter to change their manners.

If he compromised with this aged sentiment by allowing the former Crown Prince to return and by conferring with some of the extreme royalists, his course at least may be regarded as a sop to the enemies of the republic which pleased a large part of the population that looked upon the democracy as an experiment.

Because he has kept the machinery going, has avoided the pitfalls that beset his government, and has brought Germany through its worst trials he has served the republic faithfully and well. It has been a thankless job and the simple, unassuming, quiet saddler has made a place for himself in the history of the German nation.

GOING THROUGH Kansas, west bound, from Chicago, over the Santa Fe, you ride over a perfect roadbed, with perfect equipment. The Pullman cars, admirable in comfort and simplicity of decoration, solid steel from end to end, represent the highest achievement of scientific transportation. Your stateroom is large, ventilation perfect. This world is comfortable for those that have money and live on the top of the wave.

THROUGH THE car window you see a solid part of America, where hard work produces substantial wealth. The cities fly past, Topeka, Emporia, Newton, Hutchinson. The early workers came here drawing slowly, in wagons drawn by mules oxen, horses. Their children roll along the smooth, well paved streets in automobiles. You look in vain for horses in these cities.

THE CHILDREN of these automobile riders will travel through the air, and in a day go West to the Pacific, East to New York, or southeast to Florida.

Mark this prediction: within 20 years a million Americans that now ride in automobiles labeled "Ford," will fly in airplanes also labeled Ford and go 100 miles on a gallon of gasoline and no tire wear.

BETWEEN THE towns you see the real hard working America, broad lands to which the farmers give their lives, feeding the nation.

In an open field, dark brown steers stand in long rows at feeding troughs, fattening their heavy bodies for the meat enters.

In another field men are husking corn left over from last year's crop, safe from mould in the shock outdoors. The cribs are half empty now and will hold the rest of the corn.

In the next field a man walks the long rows behind three powerful horses, ploughing.

Try that work twelve hours a day with one foot in the furrow and one on the high ground, the reins around your shoulders, steadying the plow and ploughing straight.

Only to look at it for three minutes makes the man from the city want to lie down and rest.

ON ONE SIDE of the track a rounded pile of stones twice as tall as a big willow tree growing near shows where moving ice dropped part of its burden ages ago. Scientists may find huge bones underneath those stones in future explorations.

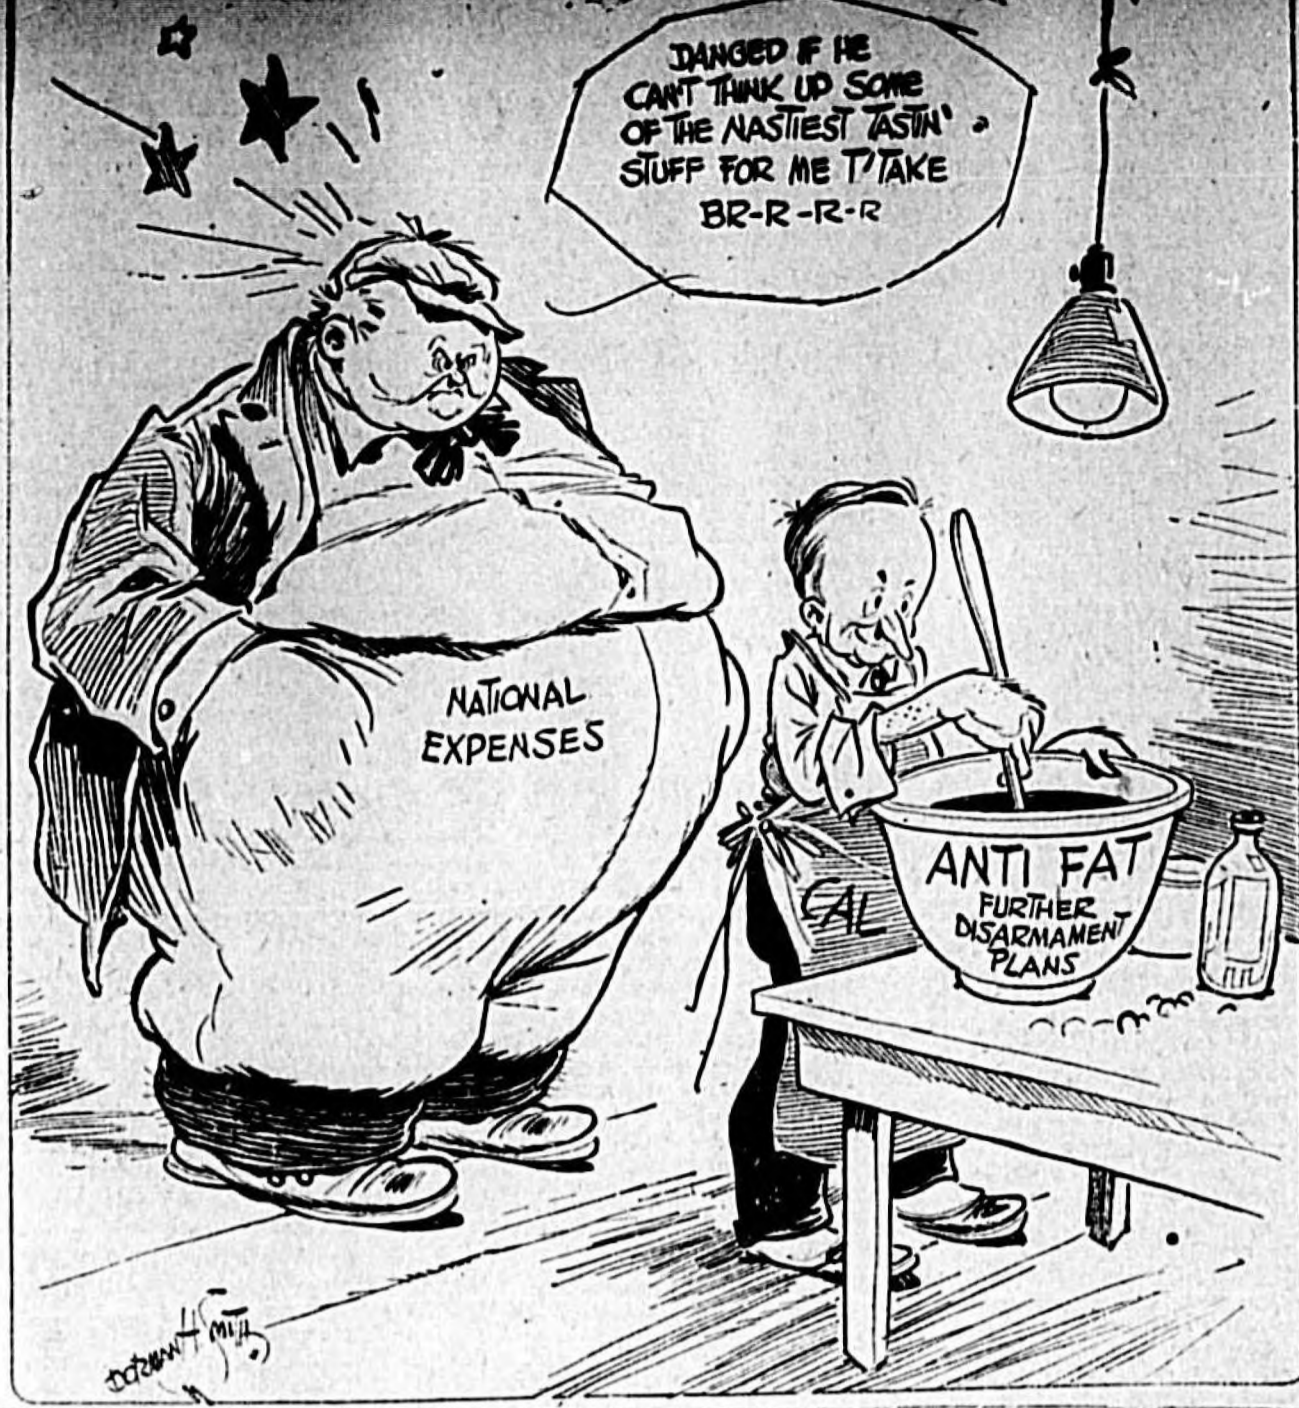

On the other side of the track science has already found something of greater financial value than any dinosaur. There a hundred primitive wells, their long arms moving up and down, are slowly pumping oil out of the ground. The engine that pumps uses a small part of the oil that the ground yields. And so the farmer, working in the fields, uses for himself a small part of what he gets out of the earth; the rest goes off to be spent by others, the railroad owners, the middlemen, the retailers.

JAMES C. DAYTON with one possible exception the best newspaper publisher in the country, says those oil wells remind him of the hideous monster philosophizing in "The Tempest" as he pulls the legs and big pincers from some crabs and allows others to go free, remarking that he is treating the crabs as Cetebeas, the omnipotent ruler above, treats human beings.

STRANGE SAYS Dayton, that on one side of the track the farmer still toils for a hard living. On the other side, slowly moving oil pumps tell you that one farmer has gone to Palm Beach and is now sitting on the edge of the surf in a fancy bathing suit, paid for with one barrel of that oil. Providence might say that the farmer at work is happier than the oil farmer at Palm Beach, although neither would believe it.

THIS IS a great and a wonderful country. If you could concentrate in one brain the imagination of Poe, Heine, Coleridge, Michael Angelo and Swift, that composite imagination could not even dimly foresee what this nation is to be when the residences are on the mountain tops.

In that day, on these level plains, machinery will do the work precisely as machinery now does the work in the great rolling mill at Gary. There are from the great range is changed into steel rails, and no part of the steel is touched by a human hand or influenced by human labor, until the very last then the clear steady eye of a young master workman looks along the rail, seizing it with his long iron pincers as he makes sure that it is straight, before the electric magnet, dropping down, lifts the blue gray steel rails to the waiting flatcar.

COMPLETE THE MEMORIAL
NEW YORK WORLD

The hot-headed, violent statements and actions of both sides to the controversy over the Stone Mountain memorial to the Confederate armies indicate that compromise is going to be difficult and that the completion of the great poetic project is endangered. That is deeply regrettable. Few sculptures have so captured the imagination of the public as the vast carvings planned on the steep of the great Georgian mountain in commemoration of one of the world's ablest Generals and his gallant armies. Until Gutson Borglum, the sculptor, some days ago denounced the memorial directorate, the public was unaware of brewing difficulties in the organization and the campaign to sell the memorial half-dollars, authorized by Congress, was under way.

Now Mr. Borglum has been dismissed; the models of many of the figures have been destroyed; the association has declared the sculptor interested chiefly in the money and not the purpose of the memorial; and the sculptor has ascribed his discharge to the fact that he is a "Northern man." Since he was even more of a Northern man when he began the work nine years ago, that explanation does not seem weighty. The directors promise that a new artist will be found and the work will continue, but it is probable that public confidence has been shaken and the project damaged.

At this distance the rights and the wrongs of the argument are obscure. But it is plain that the heroic idea should not be allowed to perish. If there are mediators who can compose the difficulties it is time for them to step in. If these should be composed, then there should be immediate reorganization in which the public will have confidence. For there is something about the Stone Mountain concept which stirs the soul of a matter-of-fact age.

A SERIOUS QUESTION
PALM BEACH POST

Recently in France a young woman at her fiancé's request killed him to relieve him from further suffering from a disease that was declared incurable. The young woman was detained but shortly and acquitted. Within ten days of her acquittal, a young woman with a tubercular sister who had been declared incurable, and whose sufferings were extreme, at the invalid's request, shot her to put her out of her misery. Failing to kill herself also, she gave herself up to the police.

These circumstances give rise to a renewal of an old controversy, whether it is justifiable to kill an acute sufferer from an incurable disease. The elements of mercy, fairness and humaneness are decidedly apparent, but unfortunately there are numerous other elements not so easily determined or disposed of.

Furthermore, it is a problem that society is unprepared to meet and solve immediately, and these cases are likely to form a dangerous precedent. The rapidity with which the second followed the first is sufficient evidence of this. If this last case, the features of which are identical with the first, is also found justifiable and the young woman acquitted, it may but pave the way for a veritable wave of such "justifiable" killings. Yet it would be manifestly unfair to acquit one and to punish the other.

The outcome of these cases will affect not only France but every other civilized country. In fact, the cases themselves may have already created a problem to be met by every country in the near future. The dangers of any such situation are only too apparent.

DOES GAMBLING PAY?
MIAMI TRIBUNE

The return of Osborne C. Wood, Governor General Leonard Wood of the Philippines, to New York with empty pockets should startle into attention all those who think that gambling is a paying business. The gambling escapade of young Wood not only brought disaster to himself, but it has undoubtedly brought intense chagrin to his honored father, who stands high in the esteem of the national and international public.

One of the baneful results of getting the gambling habit attached to one is that it puts a fever into the blood that makes difficult steady and normal activity afterwards. The Temple of Fortune exacts heavy toll from her devotees. Where an occasional man wins, tens of thousands lose and the spirit of the whole business has a tendency to injure both the characters of the participants and the business enterprises with which they are associated.

Gambling of any kind is particularly unfortunate on the part of young men or young women. The period of youth is the time when a strong basis of success must be laid by hard and persevering work, if the future holds out any hope of permanent prosperity. The young man or the young woman who loses his or her head and places hard earned money on any gambling issue is foolish in the extreme.

The experience of years goes to prove that results of this kind of thing works a direct injury to the employer who loses the best time of his employees, while the workers themselves are usually left "holding the bag." Most decidedly gambling does not pay and the person who is determined to find this fact out by sad experience will usually discover himself in a predicament similar to that in which young Osborne Wood now finds himself.

How to Solve It

Every number indicates the beginning of a word—if horizontal, crosswise, until the first shaded stop to the right; if vertical, downwards until the first shaded stop below. Compare the synonyms in the appended lists to the spaces in the diagrams and fill in the words you know. These will give you clues to the more difficult words. When completed the words should interlock perfectly.
