Depot talks underway

Sanford delegation, Amtrak heads meet

By NICK PFERPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A representative of Sanford meeting with Auto Train officials this morning said Amtrak would prefer to stay in Sanford rather than move the train depot.

"They are looking at all their options but the bottom line is that they would rather stay in Sanford. They are very interested in looking at the property maps Bill Simmons brought of the Rand Yard area," Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Dave Farr said this morning.

The attempt to convince Amtrak that the Auto Train depot should remain in Sanford began late this morning when Sanford officials met with Amtrak President W. Graham Clayton Jr., Vice President of Real Estate and Operations Development Tony DeAngelo, and Vice President of Government and Public Affairs Tim Gillespie in Washington D.C.

Meetings have been scheduled for most of the day for Sanford officials who arrived in Washington D.C. this morning.

"We want to find out what our options are," said Mayor Bettye Smith. "We have had so many people express concern over the concept that the operation may move out of Sanford. We want to meet face-to-face with the Auto Train people and see what

High school business students rally for year of competition

By VICKI BOGDANSKI
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — More than 400 high school business students gathered at the Sanford Civic Center Tuesday for a pep rally.

The students, all members of the Future Business Leaders of America, are preparing for a year of competition in a variety of business contests that could take them all the way to the national level.

"The kids work hard all year," said Darla Lanier, a business education teacher at Lake Brantley High School, who helped organize yesterday's event. "We just like to give them a day to get the year started."

Students got into the spirit of competition by having contests yesterday for everything from the best school nametags to the most spirited school poster.

Awards were given to Lake Mary High School for the best team scrapbook, second place in that category was given to Oviedo High School; Lake Mary was also given the award for the most spirited poster, while Lake Brantley High in Altamonte Springs took second place in that event; and Lake Howell High School in Winter Park took first place in the best name tag contest. Oviedo won second place in that event.

Rep. Art Grindle, who has also been a successful business man, spoke to the students about business practices and the practical applications of the skills they will learn in schools.

In addition to the contests, the students were treated to a fashion show.

"The kids really loved that," Lanier said. "Clothes are an important part of business."

In addition to business fashions, Lanier said, there were samples of formal dresses from Miss V's Designer Rentals of Winter Park and tuxedos from Aaron's Tuxedos of Altamonte Springs, which were in time for upcoming Homecoming festivities and the prom which comes up in the spring.

"It was really nice," Lanier said.

Merchants weigh strategy to combat road-work delay

By NICK PFERPAUF

LAKE MARY — Business owners along Lake Mary Boulevard continue their fight today to get road construction back underway. Merchants have been asked to force the County Commission to take immediate action on the roadwork stoppage.

A second meeting of a business owners organization was held at the Community Building in Lake Mary this morning. Thirty-five people attended.

Ken MacDonald of "The Eyes Have It" optical group, one of the co-organizers of the movement, led the discussion.

"I have been in contact with the company which holds the surety bond on the project as well as their attorney," MacDonald said, "and everyone has apparently reached the conclusion that Mahoney Construction is not coming back to finish the work."

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Guardman held in triple killing

MIAMI — A Florida National Guardsman was held for questioning today in the murders of three young people whose bodies were found in a car at Florida International University. The guardsman, attached to the 83rd Support Battalion in St. Petersburg and in the Miami area on hurricane relief duty, was taken to Metro-Dade police headquarters. Maj. Doug Wiles told The Miami Herald for today's editions. Wiles said he did not know the guardsman's name, nor did he have any other information. Police identified the victims as Ronny Quisbert, 20, and Andrew McInnis, 22, both of Miami and Regina Rodriguez, 15, of Miami Beach. They were not FIU students, Metro-Dade police spokesman Juan DelCastillo said Tuesday. "It's a nightmare, a nightmare," said Quisbert's stepfather, Ricardo Fernandez. "There's got to be a motive. Why? Why?" Witnesses saw the three early Tuesday at a bar near the campus where they had socialized with members of a Florida National Guard unit assigned to hurricane relief duty.

State panel backs off some bungee rules

TALLAHASSEE — Some of the tougher proposed bungee-jumping regulations won't be pursued by a state panel, but there are plenty of rules remaining to rile the people who operate the thrill attractions. "There's a lot of mad people in this room," said Gary Coins, operator of Bam-Bam Bungee in St. Petersburg. "There's a lot of mad people out there who want bungee." The Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services' three-member committee decided Tuesday against adopting a warning sign that depicts a bungee cord snapping, a person falling and a wheelchair logo, said Don Farmer, director of the Division of Standards. Instead, the sign to be posted will look more like the cautions found on packs of cigarettes: WARNING. Bungee Jumping Has Caused Serious Injury and Death. The panel also will ease proposals on the amount of fencing required around bungee-jumping platforms, reduce from two to one the number of certified "jumpmasters" who help customers take the plunge and increase the number of organizations that can OK equipment, Farmer said.

Report cites reasons why reefs dying

MARATHON — Scores of homeowners and farmers near Everglades National Park may be displaced to protect delicate coral reefs and an ailing fish nursery, state and federal officials said. That idea was advanced Monday after a scientist announced the discovery of a "smoking gun" linking restricted fresh water flow from the Everglades to the decline of protected coral reefs in the Florida Keys. Officials said Hurricane Andrew, which destroyed homes and farms that once blocked the "replumbing" of the Everglades, provides an opportunity to rapidly increase the water flow into Florida Bay. "I don't think they should be allowed to rebuild," said Allan Millidge, chairman of the South Florida Water Management District's governing board. Readings taken offshore from Marathon in August prove that "almity" water from the bay — once held off by fresh water from the Everglades — is now reaching portions of the reef, said University of Georgia researcher James Porter. Porter believes the data explains why up to 45 percent of the coral on some reefs in the Keys has vanished since 1984. He said studies have shown corals have difficulty surviving in water that is too salty or overly warm. The reefs, along with their environmental value, attract more than 1 million tourists to the Keys, according to the state.

Electricity gradually restored in Dade

MIAMI — Electricity has been restored to most homes and businesses in South Dade County that can receive power, but hundreds of Homestead residents still are being hooked up each day, utility officials said. Florida Power and Light announced Monday that it had completed the first phase of its Hurricane Andrew recovery by completing the last of its customer accounts that could receive power. The city of Homestead runs a separate utility that is hooking up "several hundred each day" and should complete service to all those able to receive it within three weeks, city utility director Rob Brush said Tuesday. "Today it's going to be a big number because I saw the stack of the orders coming in from the field," Brush said. "We only have 80 percent of our circuit miles restored, and there probably are some capable of being restored," Brush said. "We're estimating that on the 30th of October we will be able to serve power to anyone capable of receiving it." FPL, which had 690,000 customers without power five weeks ago in the largest power supplier in South Florida. The city of Homestead's utility serves another 27,000 people this time of year.

Sun Bank buys lakefront building

By NICK PFERLAUF Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The building near the northeast corner of the Monroe Harbor Marina, is now in the hands of Sun Bank. The building was auctioned Tuesday in a mortgage foreclosure sale at the Seminole County Courthouse.

The building presently houses the Sanford Wellness Center, dental offices of Dr. George Edwards, and the Orlando Sentinel.

Although the land on which the building is located is owned by the City of Sanford, the City has no connection with the foreclosure, and is not liable for any of the outstanding debts.

Sun Bank brought about the sale by seeking a judgement against John Smith, developer of the building. According to Circuit Court records, Smith has not paid property taxes in 1990 and 1991. The documents also indicate that of the original mortgage loan of $730,000, $689,352 still remains of the mortgage loan to Sun Bank.

Including the remainder of the loan obtained from Sun Bank by Smith, the interest and court costs, the amount of the judgement was $813,872.

Smith, son of Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith, could not be reached for comment on the transaction.

According to Deputy Court

Deputy Clerk of Circuit Court Jean Brilliant, third from left, conducted the auctioning of property for mortgage foreclosures on the steps of the Seminole County Courthouse yesterday.

Clerk Jean Brilliant, who conducted the auction yesterday, "Smith now has ten working days in which to redeem the property, which would bring it until Oct. 15. If he has not done so by that time, we will issue a certificate of title to Sun Bank."

According to Attorney Donna McIntosh, who has been representing the City of Sanford in the case, "The City terminated the lease with Mr. Smith on March 19, 1992, for failure to make payments."

"The original lease with Smith, approved in Nov. 1985, was for 55 years," she said. "There was an addendum in the lease that allows Sun Bank to continue it, and as soon as the paper work is finalized, the bank will resume payment of the lease agreement."

The original lease called for a minimum payment of $4,898 per year, plus five percent of gross sales for the first $100,000, and additional percentages beyond that level. Sun Bank started the bidding yesterday morning at $1,000.

Harry Reid, III, an attorney representing a group of doctors and investors countered with a bid of $200,000. The bank representative however, raised his bid to $300,000, and there was no further offer.

Mark Tracy, who owns and operates the Wellness Center said, "The building isn't in the best of shape, so after the paperwork is all complete, we may ask the bank to look into some type of refurbishing project to bring the building into a better condition."

Heartache Federal judge considers dying man's case about transplant discrimination

By RON WOOD Associated Press Writer

JACKSONVILLE — A Panama City man who will die unless he receives a heart transplant was still awaiting a ruling from a federal judge on his challenge to Medicaid's age-based policy on such operations.

U.S. District Judge Harvey E. Schlesinger must decide if Medicaid has discriminated against James Alderman, 40, because it refuses to pay for heart transplants for patients older than 21.

Schlesinger was still working on his opinion when the federal court clerk's office closed Tuesday afternoon.

He said a temporary restraining order he issued Friday directing the state agency to pay for the transplant will remain in effect until he renders his decision.

Attorney Gordon Scott, representing the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, argued that under federal law "the state does not have to fund all types of transplants."

"The state of Florida may grant heart transplants to those under age 21, but may not grant them to those over 21," he said.

Scott also argued Schlesinger lacked jurisdiction, saying the case should have been filed in the Tallahassee-based federal court district because it's where Alderman lives and Medicaid is based.

Clyde Collins, a Jacksonville attorney representing Alderman, noted the state pays for liver, kidney and bone marrow transplants for all who need them, but sets an age cap on heart transplants because of the expense.

But he said heart transplants, which cost about $100,000, are less expensive than liver transplants, which cost about $150,000.

Alderman was being discriminated against because of his age and because his heart condition qualified as a disability under the Americans With Disabilities Act, his attorney argued.

In a hearing last week, Schlesinger said the age restriction appeared to be arbitrary based on the limited evidence he had received.

With the court case progressing, Alderman, a patient at Bay Medical Center in Panama City, has been placed on waiting lists for surgery at Tampa General Hospital and Shands Hospital in Gainesville.

He is suffering from severe heart disease after contracting a viral infection about two months ago.

Pay-hike cut ruled not proper

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — The Legislature improperly rescinded a pay raise for state employees after labor unions had signed contracts, a judge ruled in a potentially expensive lawsuit.

Circuit Judge F.E. Steinmeyer of Tallahassee said Tuesday the decision by lawmakers to first approve the 3 percent raise scheduled for Jan. 1 and then to eliminate it violated constitutional collective bargaining protections.

"How many bites at the apple does the Legislature get?" Steinmeyer asked at a hearing.

Attorneys for both sides said they'd ask an appeals court to forward the case directly to the state Supreme Court.

"There's no sense dragging it out," said Kristine Anderson, president of the United Faculty of Florida.

Tropical storm Earl moves away from Florida coast

By RON WOOD Associated Press Writer

JACKSONVILLE — Tropical Storm Earl eased away from the Florida coast early this morning as Tropical Storm Bonnie reached the Azores and a tropical depression continued its trek across the open Atlantic. At 5 a.m. EDT, Earl was centered near 30.3 north latitude and 78.3 west longitude, about 800 miles west-southwest of Bermuda. The storm, moving east-northeast at about 5 mph with top winds of 45 mph, was expected to speed up today, said hurricane specialist Lixion Avila.

"There's plenty of cold air around, but if the storm survives it might be near Bermuda in 48 hours," he said, adding that Earl probably wouldn't pose a real threat to the island. "We think it's not going to be that big but we have to wait and see what happens," he said.

Earl may be a minimal tropical storm, but it did major damage to some North Florida beaches.

"We're taking a pounding," Mike Greene, assistant director of emergency services for Nassau County, said Tuesday.

Efforts to protect the coastline were useless. "We are only putting a Band-Aid on a hemorrhage," he said, estimating that 30 to 35 feet of beachfront on Amelia Island was carried off by the combination of strong winds and higher-than-normal tides, threatening shoreline resort villas.

Investigators seek clues in Cornelia homicide

SANFORD — Four Seminole County sheriff's investigators are working full time seeking clues into the murder of House of Babes owner Perry Cornelia in the driveway of his Casselberry home Sunday morning.

Sheriff's spokesman George Proechel said this morning investigators are continuing to speak with family, friends and business associates in an effort to determine who would want to kill the apparently well-liked businessman. Proechel said Cornelia apparently had no financial problems and was well-liked by employees and other acquaintances they have interviewed so far.

Cornelia was found by his son Perry Cornelia Jr. face down, dead, in the driveway of Cornelia's home at 2590 Sweetwater Trail shortly after 6 a.m. Investigators found Cornelia had been killed with a single gunshot to the forward portion of his scalp.

Kaplan still in state race after shooting

By MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Eric Adam "Rick" Kaplan remained free on $100,000 bond today and apparently, on the campaign trail in his effort to unseat state representative Bob Starks, the man investigators say Kaplan tried to kill early Sunday morning. Officials with the state Elections Division in Tallahassee said this morning Kaplan has not contacted them since his arrest Monday.

Both Kaplan and his attorney James Russ are refusing to speak to reporters about the arrest of the 28-year-old Monday night on charges that included attempted murder. Kaplan's home telephone has been disconnected and a woman answering at his parent's home said he had no comment. A secretary at Russ's office said Russ would have no further comment beyond a press release issued Monday declaring Kaplan's innocence.

Seminole County sheriff's investigators say Kaplan fired five shots from a .38-caliber they found in his apartment into the Starks home at about 4 a.m. Sunday morning, wounding Judith Starks, the wife of Bob Starks.

Investigators say Kaplan believed Bob Starks was home because his car was present.

Debate debate

George Bush says he wants to debate. Bill Clinton says he wants to debate. Certainly the American electorate wants — and deserves — a debate. Why, then, aren't the candidates debating face to face?

The specific reason is that President Bush has rejected the carefully developed format proposed by the bipartisan Commission on Presidential Debates. The broader reason is that, as has occurred every four years since 1960, the candidates are sparring for advantage over the terms of the debates.

In this round, the burden rests on Bush to break the impasse.

Clinton accepted the commission's plan for three 90-minute presidential debates and one vice presidential debate. That might have been expected, considering that a challenger generally benefits more and risks less, in debating a sitting president.

Nonetheless, if Bush genuinely wants to debate his opponent, as he did in 1988, he will have to reconsider the commission's plan or offer an alternative acceptable to both sides. Such a format could be worked out through negotiations between the Bush and Clinton camps. But, to date, Bush-Quayle campaign chairman Robert Teeter has been more inclined to offer only lip service to the concept of debating and to stiff-arm the commission and issue ultimatums to the Clinton-Gore campaign than to engage in good-faith bargaining.

The simple, straightforward format devised by the commission has much to recommend itself. But the key point is that debates of some kind should be held.

The commission proposal was intended precisely to eliminate the quadrennial partisan wrangling that surrounds debates. The panel was established in 1987 with the backing of both parties; its co-chairmen are Frank Fahrenkopf, former head of the Republican National Committee, and Paul Kirk, former head of the Democratic National Committee.

Under the commission's plan, the candidates would appear in a setting close to a true debate. The encounter would be conducted by a single moderator, who would pose the questions and ask follow-ups.

This approach would overcome many of the drawbacks of recent presidential debates. Those were more like complicated dual press conferences held before a panel of journalists who consumed much of the allotted time and often jumped from one prepared question to the next without following up adequately on previous answers. This format also would better provide for unadorned, face-to-face exchanges, giving voters a unique opportunity to size up the two candidates and their competing ideas.

In the past 30 years, debates have become a staple of American presidential campaigns. More than any other forum, they help define the essence of the choice faced by voters.

As the trailing contender, the president could make good use of debates to get his message across to voters. That's why it would serve his interests, as well as Clinton's, to come to terms on a format. If the candidates fail to do so, the real loser will be the democratic process.

Seminole high is a fine place

As the parents of a 9th grader entering Seminole High School in August we were apprehensive since we have seen all the negative publicity about that school.

Let me tell you that we have been most pleased with what we have seen at that school — even at the football game that Mr. DeSormier predicted would have such problems. We did not see or hear about any problems. In fact, we have never even seen the students act rudely at school or any function we have attended.

We know there are incidents, but they are just that, isolated incidents; and we know they happen at all the high schools.

I hope that the Sanford Herald will stop fostering this negative impression and start bolstering a positive attitude about our community school. Anyone who is willing to promote the erroneous negative impression without proof should put their money and time where their mouths are. Volunteer to help out at the school and I know you will be impressed with the people and programs there. We are.

Will Bill Clinton value 'values'?

The Bush campaign butchered the "values" issue, and has now backed off it — even though it is at the root of America's most serious problems. They butchered it because too many Bush campaigners are country-clubbers who don't understand the issue, don't believe in it, are ashamed of it, are cowed by the liberal press, are gutless, or most of the above.

So now there is much talk about the cabinet choices of a "President Clinton." And it is time to think about how a Clinton administration might deal with these issues, many of which, ironically, stem from Democrats, liberals and their constituency groups.

Consider education. Clinton says that without "a lifetime of learning" America won't be able to compete commercially. There are indeed certain aspects of our public education system, particularly in urban secondary schools, that are in shambles.

Once upon a time, students were promoted only if they had mastered the required work. Their grades reflected their progress. A student who didn't do the work couldn't get into college, or couldn't get a good job. An unruly student could get booted out of class.

In many inner-city schools, and elsewhere, much of that is gone, driven out in part by super-sophisticated, feel-good, liberal theorizing. Students are often promoted "socially." Their grades are inflated.

Colleges accept most anyone and don't flunk paying customers. Rowdies aren't disciplined because minority politicians will cry racism. Employers, knowing school grades mean little, fearing quota legislation, often don't hire on the basis of school transcripts.

And so, to some students, a question forms: "Why should I work hard and behave myself?"

There was a very American "value" linked to the earlier educational situation. Call it "reward for work" or "you don't get something for nothing." Until that values issue is addressed, public education won't recover.

Students are often promoted 'socially.'

Navy teaches women courage

BOSTON — At last the military is using words that ought to make a sailor blush.

The long-awaited Pentagon report blasted the Navy for its handling of the Tailhook sexual assault scandal. It said that the men in charge were more worried about covering the Navy's tail than uncovering Tailhook.

On Thursday, this investigation of an investigation gone awry finally forced the Navy to do the right thing. Two admirals have gone down with the ship — Duval Williams Jr., the head of the investigative service, and John Gordon, the Navy's top lawyer — were retired. A third was transferred out of his job and others may be sinking fast.

Acting Navy Secretary Sean O'Keefe told a press conference, "Our senior leadership is totally committed to confronting this problem and demonstrating that sexual harassment will not be tolerated — and those who don't get the message will be driven from our ranks."

It appears that this giant vessel of tradition — call it The U.S. Navy Way — is being forced to begin to commence to start to turn around. If so, it's worth taking a moment to give credit to one woman and her whistle. Lt. Paula Coughlin.

Little more than a year ago Coughlin was a 30-year-old daughter of a retired naval officer, a "nifty brat" who grew up to become a navy aviator. She still deeply believed that she was part of the service's extended family.

But on Sept. 6, 1991, in a now familiar story, the young admiral's aide became one of some two dozen women forced down a ganget of smiling, mauling, grabbing, drunken, abusive pilots so out of control she thought she might be gang-raped. She didn't let it go or put it behind her or blame herself.

"I've been in the Navy almost eight years," she would say later, "and I've worked my ass off to be one of the guys, to be the best naval officer I can and prove that women can do whatever the jobs call for. And what I got, I was treated like trash. I wasn't one of them."

A year ago, just days before Anita Hill showed up at the Senate, Paula Coughlin filed her complaint with the Navy. Then, later, when interviews with some 1,500 men at Tailhook turned up only two names of men on the ganget, she went public, "putting a name and a face to this."

To understand how hard it is to go public, you can think about the years in which Anita Hill remained silent. You can think about other women who swallow daily humiliation. You can think about the rubric that women in a man's world should take it like a man, whatever "it" is.

In the military especially, bonding is male. Women are left to attach themselves to this male system wherever they can, like Velcro to a cement block. The Pentagon's report noted that during the Tailhook inquiry, Admiral Williams, the overall head of the investigation, indulged in a screaming match with a senior female Navy administrator, making "comments to the effect that a lot of female Navy pilots are go-go dancers, topless dancers or hookers."

Attitudes against women in the armed services go so deep that they can even poison the possibility of friendship with other women in the male world. In a poignant Washington Post story, reporter Laura Blumenfeld collected these words from some women on the USS Jason, a ship stationed off San Diego:

"I don't have a chip on my shoulder. Most of the other women do."

"A lot of the women whine...."

"Some women are bitches."

"There's more conflict between women and women than between women and men."

"You joined the man's world, you gotta play the man's game."

In that well-regulated, march-in-step world it's hard to find much support for bucking the system. It's hard to act as an individual or as a woman. Maybe you have to be treated brutally as an outsider — "I was not one of them" — before you are willing to stand alone. But Lt. Coughlin did that, and she made a difference.

On Thursday, Acting Navy Secretary O'Keefe said, "We get it. We know that the larger issue is a cultural problem which has allowed demeaning behavior and attitudes toward women to exist within the Navy Department."

This is by no means the end of the Tailhook story or the end of harassment and inequality in the military. But a message has gone out in a sign language well read by the brass: It's not just women who have to measure up to the military, the military has to measure up as well.

We know that the larger issue is a cultural problem.

Scam artists take seniors for a ride

WASHINGTON — Meet the new breed of scam artists. Not your garden-variety pickpockets, they often target the elderly and others who are most vulnerable. For those who fall prey to these pin-striped purse-snatchers, the results can be ruinous.

Though senior citizens comprise only 12 percent of the population, experts say 30 percent of all consumer fraud victims are elderly. Scams can be as simple as people charging for yardwork that never gets done, or as complex as the "living trusts" that many older people are buying to protect their estates from probate costs and taxation.

Living trusts aren't necessarily bad. But for most seniors, the cost of a living trust far outstrips the cost of attorney, tax and probate fees that they would otherwise pay.

Living trusts are generally peddled door to door, many times in rural areas, to victims who fear losing control over their homes or farms. Salespeople often have no legal and little estate-planning training. Agents sometimes turn out to be ex-insurance salesmen who have had their licenses revoked under less than honorable circumstances.

Postal inspectors told Congress of a corollary to this scam where two men asked 24 senior citizens to invest their savings in out-of-state certificates of deposit and certificate pools under which they would allegedly receive higher rates of return. The men ended up converting more than $500,000 for their personal use, and are now serving a prison sentence for mail fraud.

Congressional investigators acknowledge that most of the enforcement has to take place on a state level. This is especially true for living trust cases, where each state has its own laws governing estate preservation and trusts.

In most scams, the federal government's best weapon is mail fraud statutes, which have been amended twice in the past decade, leaving most of the initiative up to the states.

Part of the problem is also that older people are simply more trusting and have a harder time resisting sales pitches, according to investigators, who say that these crimes often go unreported. "It's a vicious circle. (The elderly) are seen as easy prey because they're often too embarrassed to complain to authorities," one staffer on the Senate Select Committee on Aging told us.

While living trust operators have come up with a dishonest twist to an honest practice, most scams smell from the start. The most common variety involves mail solicitations announcing large prizes of cash or merchandise. But there's a catch: The swindlers instruct their targets that a tax must be pre-paid, which they pocket without producing a prize.

A 79-year-old legally blind Minnesota woman answered solicitations from a company that invited her to enter a "contest" for large cash prizes. In exchange for $20, the company mailed her a quiz with questions such as: "Is California on the Pacific or Atlantic coast?" She would continue for years playing the contest, losing $5,000 to the company. The Minnesota Attorney General recently sued the company for fraud and deception.

"These people are lured in very subtle ways to believe they have winnings that aren't there," Minnesota Attorney General Hubert H. Humphrey III told our associate Jan Moller. "Some are literally held captive by high-pressure salesmen."

Once victims enter into a scam like this, they become immediate bait for other fraud perpetrators.

Living trusts are generally peddled door to door.

the proposal. During the last meeting, the commissioners appeared unanimous in agreeing to have the item placed on the ballot.

"It would call for a special millage addition," said Mayor Randy Morris. "The millage would increase by up to one mill, and to be added to the tax rolls for up to 15 years."

If approved, Morris said, "It would allow the city to conduct paving and drainage projects in various sections of the city, as well as repaving existing roads."

The City has already approved the roll-back rate of 3.78477 mills to bring in $3,819,091 for operational funds for fiscal 1992/93. The money obtained through the additional one mill would be earmarked only for paving and drainage, and would not have any effect on the budget.

If the mill is added, the rate to homeowners would be 4.78477. With the increase, the owner of a home valued at $80,000, with the $25,000 homestead exemption, would pay $262.06 in taxes rather than $207 under the present roll-back rate.

The owner of a $120,000 home would have his taxes increased from $357.65 to $452.65.

"Keep in mind," Morris commented, "if this goes on the ballot and is passed, it doesn't mean everyone will have their streets paved. The City will still poll all residents on any given street and find out if they want it paved or not."

He continued, "If more than 50 percent don't want it paved, and we have reason to believe there are residents of that opinion, then the money will be placed in a pool, and move on to another paving project."

"In all cases," Morris added, "we intend to do the drainage projects regardless of whether people want their street paved, because we know there is a serious need in many areas."

While land presently planned for development or scheduled for future development will continue to have paving and drainage paid for by the developer, Morris said the money could eventually be beneficial to those areas as well. "If the roads start to break down in ten years or so, this program will take care of repaving those streets as well."

"If this passes," he said, "the City will have a paving and drainage program that will take care of its needs well through the year 2000."

Tonight's special called meeting of the Lake Mary City Commission is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the commission chambers of Lake Mary City Hall, 100 W. Lake Mary Blvd.

laws taking effect today.

This year's major revision to the Clean Indoor Air Act makes smokers who light up in day care or health centers, common areas of retirement homes and condominiums liable for fines of between $100 and $500.

It also eliminates designated smoking areas in schools and requires that restaurants which seat 50 or more people reserve at least 30 percent of their space for non-smokers.

At Seminole County district schools outdoor areas, often fenced in and screened from public view, are being constructed at schools where teachers have expressed an interest in having a smoking area. Otherwise cigarettes have been banned completely from school campuses.

Ken Elmers, administrator of Hillhaven Healthcare Center in Sanford, said he has not seen the new legislation, but said that employees are not allowed to smoke in the building and residents who smoke must do so in areas away from other residents.

"We have tried to make this a smoke-free environment, but some of the older residents who have been smoking for years just can't quit so we just try to segregate them from the rest of the residents when they smoke," Elmers said.

The other major smoking measure requires tobacco merchants to obtain a new $50 annual license, which could be revoked if they sell cigarettes to anyone under 18. The bill marks the first effort to put teeth in Florida's existing law banning cigarette sales to minors.

Tobacco dealers who sell to minors could also face civil fines and administrative fines ranging from $500 to $1,000.

Jeff Martin, manager of the 7-Eleven store on French Avenue in Sanford, said he has not yet received word from his corporate offices explaining the new license or instructing him on the procedures for obtaining one.

"I know we'll have to get one, but I don't know when," he said. He said that his employees are very careful about selling tobacco products to minors so he is not worried about the license.

One of the year's most popular bills was the so-called "potty parity" measure aimed at eventually reducing the chronic long lines at women's restrooms.

might be done to persuade them stay."

Farr said Amtrak confirmed the move is not being considered in the very near future.

"Budgetary constraints do not allow for a move, even in their 1993 budget," Farr said.

In addition to Smith, City Manager Bill Simmons and Dave Farr, executive director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce and Seminole County Deputy Manager Kevin Grace, made the trip on board the Auto Train.

Amtrak officials provided transportation from the terminal to the various meeting places.

Clayton's office confirmed the group began meetings at 10:30 this morning with Amtrak President W. Graham Clayton, Jr., in his office at Union Station.

Also scheduled for this morning was an 11:45 luncheon with members of the Congressional staff Transportation Committee.

"At 1 o'clock," Farr said, "we are to meet with Congressman Craig James, and we hope to have a meeting at 2 p.m. with Senator Connie Mack."

The group will board the Auto

Train at 3 p.m. this afternoon for the return trip, and is expected to arrive back in Sanford by 9 a.m. tomorrow morning.

Farr's trip was financed through donations from a number of members of the Chamber of Commerce. "The round trip cost $398," Farr said, "but they raised about $500 so I would have additional money to pay for meals."

Simmons round trip also costs $398, but Mayor Smith has booked a sleeper coach. "It costs about $100 more," she said, "but I am going to personally reimburse the City for the difference."

"They said they will be discussing the problem for the next four to six weeks, and probably be contacting Seminole County to re-open the project for bids, which could take another 60 to 90 days."

Jill from Hair Benders did the hairstyles and make up for the event.

Though the main objective of the FBLA is to prepare the students for the business world, the students had a little fun in Sanford yesterday.

"That was the point," said Lanier. "We wanted them to enjoy themselves a little bit before they got into the serious work ahead of them for the year."

Lanier said that Seminole County has almost always sent representatives to the annual national competition in several categories.

"We just wanted to psych them up," Lanier said.

Prior to leaving yesterday, Smith said, "I felt the sleeper was necessary because it's a long trip, and if I'm going to be at my best for these meetings, I feel a good night's sleep will be needed."

In originally announcing consideration of a change in locations in May of this year, Auto Train officials had suggested, in a company memorandum, that there were two basic alternatives: "A location near the current Sanford facility," or a "site as close as possible to the Orlando airport."

They had proposed that the facility to handle the large double-decker Superliner equipment should be 30 acres or larger in size. The present Sanford facility is 28 acres.

Alternatives to be discussed by the Sanford group include the possibility of expanding the present location, or seeking another site in the Sanford area that might be acceptable for the expansion project.

Auto Train public affairs spokesman Howard Robertson had said late last week, "We aren't ready to move out of Sanford, but we are definitely looking ahead to what we can possibly do by the time the larger cars go into service."

Neither Robertson nor Sharon Mahoney of the Customer Relations department were available for this morning's meeting.

Earlier Mahoney had indicated that immediate action is not expected. "This isn't in the immediate future," she said, "as we don't have the capital at the present time for any new project."

Robertson said however, "With 25 percent more ridership planned, there is no way we can continue at the present facility."

Smith, Simmons and Farr are scheduled to arrive back in Sanford tomorrow morning at approximately 9 a.m.

"They will also have a County Commission meeting on October 13," he said, "and I have sent a registered letter requesting that the matter be put on the agenda for that meeting." He continued, "I urge every one of you to be on hand for that meeting. Let's have a show of strength and a show of determination."

The Lake Mary Boulevard widening project from Country Club Road to Interstate 4 halted in July, when the prime contractor, John Mahoney, of Boston, reported financial difficulties. Subcontractors subsequently, pulled their equipment from the site.

The roadway in a number of areas is restricted to two lane traffic, with deep holes and standing water causing difficulty in access to many businesses.

Merchants and business leaders along Lake Mary Blvd. have been concerned over the reduction in business caused by the construction, but at this morning's meeting, they agreed to promote the fact that they are "alive and well" and still operating their businesses as normal, to avoid a reduction in clients because of the obstructions in the stalled project.

The original widening project was scheduled to be completed by June 1993. Seminole County officials have indicated that the deadline could still be met if the

Bush seizes initiative over debates

President Bush is suddenly seizing initiative in the battle over presidential debates, proposing a dramatic month of Sunday show-downs to close the campaign. Democrat Bill Clinton says Bush is bluffing, and challenges the president to face off this weekend.

"Let's get it on," Bush declared Tuesday as he tried to shake the perception he was ducking debates.

"Let's start Sunday - I'm ready," Clinton fired back, trying to keep the high ground in the debate war by noting Bush's refusal to participate has already caused three scheduled debates to be canceled.

With a guaranteed audience in the tens of millions, a debate series as proposed by Bush would dominate the final month of the campaign.

Clinton wooes voters under 30

COLLEGE PARK, Md. - The rock music that frequently booms over the loud speakers at Bill Clinton's political rallies is just one clue that he wants under-30 voters to pay attention to him.

Crowds gathered to see President Bush are more likely to hear country songs than the pulsing rock music favored by Clinton. But the president's campaign aides say they're determined to hold on to a voting bloc that favored Republicans in the last three elections.

"It's very important that we campaign to that voter age group," said Bush campaign spokeswoman Darcy Campbell.

A majority of young voters haven't supported a Democrat since Jimmy Carter in 1976, but Clinton and running mate Al Gore may be striking a chord, even if the Fleetwood Mac songs they play are older than some of the students they're attracting.

Don't expect convention in Perot race

WASHINGTON - Ross Perot says he'll "be in it to win" if he revives his independent presidential challenge. But don't expect a Perot race to be anyone's idea of a conventional campaign.

With less than five weeks to go until Election Day, it seems unlikely that the Texas billionaire can mount - or is even interested in mounting - the "world class campaign" he once promised.

Instead, look for more of the same technique that Perot has spent much of the year developing and refining - use of free media through frequent appearances on talk shows.

Perot, who once suggested he might spend $100 million of his own money on a campaign, is expected to supplement his free access to the airwaves with relatively low-budget television commercials.

No new taxes

WASHINGTON - House and Senate negotiators are looking for a few billion dollars to expand Individual Retirement Accounts and build up the inner cities without raising taxes.

President Bush has told Republicans that as much as he wants to offer incentives for saving and improving blighted areas, he will veto any bill that increases taxes.

The Senate on Tuesday night approved a $36 billion catchall tax bill with those provisions and a lot more - including an extension of two increases on high-income taxpayers that Bush signed in 1990 and has been apologizing for in his re-election campaign.

The bill, passed by a strong, bipartisan vote of 70-29, now goes to a Senate-House conference committee that will begin work Thursday on finding a compromise between the measure and a $17 billion version passed by the House in July.

Impeachment brings celebration

BRASILIA, Brazil - Tens of thousands of people celebrated a watershed for Latin American democracy with cheers, fireworks and samba drums after lawmakers voted to impeach scandal-tainted President Fernando Collor de Mello.

Tuesday evening's vote by the lower house of congress followed weeks of huge demonstrations pressing for Collor's ouster. In a sign of political maturity, a political crisis had led to something other than a military coup.

"It's the first time I am able to feel proud that I'm a Brazilian," said Virgilio Montecanto, an 18-year-old student. "I think now I will be able to raise my children in the future in a country that is moving forward."

Montecanto was among some 100,000 people who rallied outside parliament after the man who took office in 1990 on a clean government platform was ousted. There was dancing and waving of the national flag.

Kids confront racism In Smithsonian exhibit

By RYA LELYVELD

WASHINGTON - A baby-faced girl named Tanisha describes how she fought back the tears after two girls on her school bus laughed and called her a nigger.

"Maybe they thought they were being funny. Maybe they were trying to be mean. Maybe they hated black people," says the young girl with purple ribbons in her hair, whose earnest face fills a small television screen.

Tanisha is one of several children who tell their stories in "The Kids Bridge," an interactive exhibit that opens today at the Smithsonian Institution's Experimental Gallery. It's designed to help young people confront issues of racism, prejudice and ethnicity.

In an interactive video program, children can ask Tanisha questions about the school bus incident and describe how it would have made them feel. They can also suggest ways she might face the situation.

"Everybody knows something of how she feels," said Kimberly Camp, the director of the Experimental Gallery. "So it's a very cathartic experience."

To enter "The Kids Bridge," children pass under a small bridge, bracketed by smiling, life-size cutouts of a black boy and a Hispanic girl.

"In the United States, we belong to different races, ethnic groups, cultures and religions," reads a large sign.

"In this exhibit you may discover ways you are like people who at first don't seem to be like you at all. And you may find ways to bridge some of your differences."

The Kids Bridge was developed by the Children's Museum in Boston, where it remains a permanent exhibit. The Smithsonian version eventually will travel to cities across the country.

Everywhere in "The Kids Bridge," children are given activities to do and questions to answer.

In one area, they're asked to sit down for a moment and fill out a questionnaire about themselves - about where their families come from, who they think is "awesome" and what they'd do to change the world.

In another area, they spin a wheel to find out who shares their ideas.

Under each description like "I have trouble with math," or "I'm sort of shy," the wheel displays photographs of people of all shapes, sizes, races and ages.

In a large model of a city block, children can peer into windows and see models of families celebrating special occasions. There's a Jewish family sitting down to its seder and a group of Muslims kneeling in prayer.

"Hi. Would you like to learn some words in Khmer. It's the language of Cambodia," a teen-age boy calls out from a video screen in a program that offers children the chance to learn a few words in Khmer, Cantonese, Spanish, Haitian Creole and English.

The exhibit emphasizes community, and includes a section on Washington, with photographs of neighborhood life.

Are cartoons educational?

By DIANE DUSTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - One broadcaster claims that a "Chip 'n Dale" cartoon show in which the chipmunk heroes "stop Cheddarhead Charlie from an evil plot" is educational for children because it shows the rewards of team efforts.

Another says a "Yo Yogi" segment in which "Snag learns that he can capture the bank-robbing cockroach more successfully by using his head, rather than his muscles" fulfills the federal requirement that broadcasters serve educational and informational needs of children under age 16.

But activists trying to improve the quality of children's television said Tuesday that shows like these are not what Congress had in mind when it passed the Children's Television Act that took effect a year ago this week.

Broadcasters are making a joke of the new federal law by claiming cartoon shows like "The Jetsons" educate kids about the 21st century, said Peggy Charren, founder of Action for Children's Television, who was instrumental in getting the law passed.

Rather than creating shows to fit the educational requirements, stations too often are re-defining existing programs as educational, said Kathryn Montgomery of the Center for Media Education, a public advocacy group that studied how well local stations are complying with the law.

The point of the law was to get broadcasters to help more with efforts to improve children's reading and math skills and assist kids' understanding of important events.

Jeff Bowmann of the National Association of Broadcasters said local stations take their programming responsibilities very seriously.

"We are confident the broadcasters are in full compliance," he said.

Criticism of milk slammed

By ROBERT IRRIS
Associated Press Writer

WAUSAU, Wis. - When Dr. Benjamin Spock - the man who literally wrote the book on child care - came out against milk, America's dairy farmers were aghast. So was the American Medical Association, which says he's all wrong.

"I am stunned, really completely taken by surprise, because I always believed milk was the perfect food for a baby, perfect nutrition," said Karen King, 44, a dairy farmer from Edgar.

Spock, 89, appeared in Boston on Tuesday with representatives of the Physicians Committee for Responsible Medicine, a nonprofit group of 2,000 doctors that promotes preventive medicine and alternatives to animal research.

The group warned against feeding whole milk to infants, saying it's low in iron, high in fat and can be contaminated with antibiotics or too much vitamin D. Other foods, such as kale, broccoli or fish, provide more calcium without the fat, the group said.

Spock said children should be breast-fed if possible until they are at least 2. "After 2 years, forget milk altogether of any kind. That's the preferable thing," said Spock, whose books have guided millions of parents on child care since the 1940s.

M. Roy Schwarz, AMA senior vice president of medical education and science, said his group was alarmed by the advice.

"We certainly would not agree with Dr. Spock's opinion on that because we do not believe the science supports that view," he said. "We love him for all he's done for children, but we think he's wrong here."

The National Milk Producers Federation called it "unsound and nutritionally dangerous" to suggest children stop drinking milk because of what Spock "feels is good for him." Other dairy groups said the same.

INCUMBENT INVESTIGATED

We have heard it all before, the incumbents overzealous actions leading to lawsuits with settlements, his admission to alcohol use, while involved in an accident with a county vehicle, grand jury investigations with critical conclusions about him, the wrongful arrest of a person by the sheriff himself, the incumbent's attendance at an out-of-state federal training school for over two (2) months while still receiving full pay and benefits, and finally, big donations to the sheriff's campaign.

It is regarded that the political appointment of the Incumbent to Sheriff by former Governor Bob Martinez was a mistake. Consider, can a man in his early 30's, without an academic education, earning over eighty thousand dollars per year, successfully lead a department with over 500 employees, many with advanced degrees and years of law enforcement experience?

His record is controversial. The grand jury investigation summed it up best, "We, the Grand Jury, find that Sheriff Eslinger ignored procedures and by so doing brought about this miscarriage of justice." Clearly, the Incumbent has not earned your vote.

Incumbent Trains At Your Expense

While Sheriff, the incumbent enrolled at an out-of-state Federal Training Program taking over two months leave with pay and benefits. The pay rate for sheriff is over 80 thousand dollars per year. Seminole County tax payers paid the sheriff to go to school. Because of a lack of knowledge, the incumbent needs professional education. This educational expense adds to administrative salaries and the taxes you pay for them. This liberal use of your tax money is inappropriate and can be resolved by electing a qualified candidate.

RESTORE PROFESSIONALISM

Help take political patronage out of your Sheriff's office. With Larry Conniff no on-the-job training is required. He is qualified, the old fashion way, he earned his stripes.

With over twenty years in law enforcement, Larry is fully prepared to provide the decisive leadership. He has a clear vision of both the problems and the solutions. His conservative business philosophy will ensure that Seminole County will see its tax dollars invested wisely and judiciously.

Seminole County deserves a sheriff with only the highest academic credentials. With a Master's degree in Public Administration and a Bachelor's degree in Criminal Justice, Larry Conniff will bring skills, training and competence to the Sheriff's office.

Rams run streak to seven with quick sweep of Tribe

By TONY BOGGERMAN
 Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — Playing with unflappable self-confidence, the Lake Mary Rams dispatched the host Seminole Fighting Seminoles 15-4, 15-11 in a Seminole Athletic Conference girls' volleyball match Tuesday night.

It was the seventh win in a row for Lake Mary, which improved to 10-3, 3-0 in the SAC. Seminole falls to 2-5, 0-3 in the conference.

"We got everybody in and we looked at some things," said Lake Mary coach Cindy Henry. "I think we looked a little sharper in the first game. We went into automatic pilot in the second game."

"I didn't like to see us relaxing when in the second game, but even when Seminole got back to 13-11, the girls weren't timid. They kept attacking the ball. That shows they have confidence in themselves and that'll pay off in the future."

Lake Mary raced out to 8-0 leads in both games. But where they finished off Seminole with a 9-1 run in the first game, the Rams couldn't put away Seminole in the second game, seeing the host team cut the lead to 6-5, 11-9 and 13-11.

Seminole coach Beth Corso was pleased with her team's effort against such a strong opponent.

"We were outgunned," said Corso. "They (Lake Mary) are unbelievable. Their passes and sets were incredible. Even when their passes were off, their setters were making beautiful sets. It was wonderful to watch."

"We need a win so badly right now, it's not funny. And who do we play tonight? Lake Mary. We're rebounding from letting Lyman get away and taking Oviedo to three games. We're due for a win."

Seminole's junior varsity gave the Tribe a split of the night's action, beating Lake Mary 7-15, 15-9, 15-4.

Lake Mary will play at DeLand this evening before returning to SAC competition at Lake Brantley on Thursday night. Seminole plays at Lake Howell Thursday.

LYMAN SWEEPS

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Finally, it was Lyman's turn again.

After seeing its season-opening five-match win streak go by the boards to hard-hitting Lake Mary and Oak Ridge, the Lyman High School girls' varsity volleyball team exacted some revenge on home-standing Lake Brantley Tuesday, sweeping the Patriots 15-6, 15-2.

"Lake Mary and Oak Ridge are two very tough teams," said Lyman coach Christy Tibbitts. "They both hit the ball hard. We were always on defense. Tonight, we were able to get back on offense."

Carrie Scranton led the Lyman attack with eight kills while Michelle Bishop contributed five kills. Wendy Acey handed out six assists. Hope Kercher served 21 of the Greyhounds' 30 points, including the first 14 in the second game.

In junior varsity action, the Greyhounds defeated the Patriots in two games, 15-14, 15-8.

Lyman (5-2, 2-1 in the Seminole Athletic Conference) plays again Thursday at Oviedo.

OCS RAMS TAKE TWO

MAITLAND — Liz Hufford and freshman Allison Hirsch lead the Orangewood Christian School Rams to a sweep of a Central Florida Athletic Conference/1A-District 8 girls' volleyball doubleheader Tuesday evening.

The Rams rallied from a 12-4 first game deficit to beat Trinity Prep 14-16, 15-9, 15-9. Orangewood followed that up with a 15-1, 15-3 blowout of Loch Love Prep.

Orangewood's junior varsity also won Tuesday, sweeping Trinity Prep 15-8, 15-7.

Now 15-1, Orangewood Christian will return to action Friday night at Pine Castle Christian Academy.

Catherine Foye (No. 6) and her Seminole teammates couldn't get anything going Tuesday as Diane Duber (No. 9) and the Lake Mary Rams dominated play of the net in a sweep of their Seminole Athletic Conference match.

Crenshaw, York are Series' winners

Special to the Herald

BARBERVILLE — Lakeland's George Crenshaw dropped low out of turn four on lap 107 last Saturday night and went on to win the Florida Harvest 100 NASCAR Goody's Dash Series race at Volusia County Speedway.

But the big winner was Mickey York of Asheboro, N.C., who had to retire early with a blown clutch but was able to hold on and take the national point championship when runner-up and defending points champion Johnny Chapman of Stoney Point, N.C., blew an engine on lap 72.

"The car has been super all year long," said York, 45, after claiming his first title. "We just had a failure tonight."

South Daytona's Scott Laughlin ended a two-year drought by holding off a hard-charging Debbie Gammons of Ormond Beach in the 15-lap Higgs Auto Parts Street Stock feature.

Laughlin and Jimmy Heffner, third behind Laughlin and Gammons in the main event, were the heat winners for the Street Stocks.

David Steele, an 18-year-old pilot from Tampa, took early leader Ben Rodrigues on the 50th lap, then ran away from the pack in the 25-lap Mega Power Series of Sprint Cars main event to cap the late-running, rain-plagued night of racing.

In the Florida Harvest 100, Crenshaw ran in second or third place for most of the second half of the race, chasing after Robert Huffman for the last several laps through a

Busy mom just keeps cooking

By DEB FREEMAN
Herald Correspondent

LAKE MARY — Cynthia Frazier learned to cook, she said, after her marriage 19 years ago, and did so by trial and error. She said she resorted to a lot of cookbooks for recipes. Today she is considered a good cook by family and friends.

Her specialty, she said, is a jello salad recipe she got from her mother.

She is employed as a secretary in the O.B. unit of Florida Altamonte Hospital, and has been working there for four years. She works four days a week and then comes home and fixes dinner, except for those times she works an evening shift. Then, she said, she prepares dinner before leaving for work.

The Fraziers have three children: Timothy, age 15, Audrey, age 12, and Leighton, 10. Cynthia cooks for the whole brood because none of them can fix anything except peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, she said, although they do occasionally go down to the chicken restaurant for a boxful, and occasionally her husband, T. Gray, will grill a hamburger. "The kids don't cook, but they do have chores and have the responsibility for their cleaning up behind themselves," Cynthia said.

T. Gray is an architect with his own firm, T. Gray Frazier, Architect, in Lake Mary, and has been in business about eight years. Cynthia helps out at T. Gray's office, also.

T. Gray, whose dream was to build his own home, and the Fraziers moved to Florida about eight years ago from the North; Cynthia from Chicago, and T. Gray from South Carolina. After living in Altamonte Springs for a few years, they bought property in Lake Mary last year, and T. Gray finally got his chance.

Although her self-professed specialty is her jello salad, Cynthia's friends and family make much over her potato salad, which also comes from a recipe her mother passed on to her. What's unique about it? Well, she uses the standard ingredients except that she uses little mayonnaises and some mustard, but the secret ingredient is what throws most who sample it.

"It's made with whipping cream," Cynthia says. "My mother loved it, and she didn't think there was anything it wasn't good in."

Packing child's lunchbox

By MARIALISA CALTA
NEA Food Writer

Packing a child's lunchbox is my idea of culinary hell. Try anything the least bit creative — like adding a dash of curry to the chicken salad — and it comes home, untouched. Pack what the kids say they want — mostly high-fat, cold cuts and high-sugar desserts — and you doom yourself to both guilt and boredom.

Now, at home, my kids will chow down on aricholtes in vinaigrette, salad Nicoise and Sichuan shrimp. But when it comes to their lunchboxes, they get picky. For most of last year, my youngest would eat only tuna fish sandwiches, while my oldest favored sliced cheese. White bread only, of course. And no crusts.

Finally, I figured out what was going on: My daughters don't want to be embarrassed by lunch. That means no little containers of linguine with pesto or chunks of homemade brown bread; too weird. Also, I realized, they don't want to be surprised by lunch. In the primary grades, especially, when everything about school is new, I think kids want lunch to be familiar and predictable. Which left me with ... tuna fish and cheese.

I am partially resigned. Ellen Klavan, author of "The Creative Lunchbox," has written what I consider to be the First Lunchbox Commandment: "If you want your child to eat his lunch, you've got to send him to school with food he likes."

But there are ways to vary the routine. My kids fell for Klavan's strategy of cutting sandwiches into different shapes, and in this way, I've gotten them to eat sandwiches of half whole-wheat and half white bread. And it was from Klavan's book that I got the idea of flattening a slice of bread, spreading it with peanut butter or cream cheese and jelly (two combinations my kids used to hate), rolling it like a jellyroll and slicing it. My kids love these "pinwheels" and clamor for more.

Rena Coyle, who has written a number of cookbooks for children, turned me on to toothpicks. Kids love toothpicks, and a small container filled with cheeses, meats, vegetables and fruits stuck on toothpicks (especially the fancy kind with the colorful tops) will often disappear, when a sandwich made of the same ingredients would be left uneaten. Likewise, bamboo skewers stuck with veg-

1/2 teaspoon lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon dried parsley
1 6 1/2-ounce can water-packed tuna, drained

2 tablespoons carrot, grated
2 cups cooked pasta, shape of your choice

FRIED BANANA AND PEANUT BUTTER SANDWICH

1/2 large banana, peeled and sliced lengthwise into 1/2-inch pieces
1 1/2 teaspoons butter
3/4 teaspoon sugar
pinch of cinnamon
2 tablespoons peanut butter
2 slices bread

In a hot skillet over medium heat, combine butter, sugar and cinnamon. Add banana and cook until warmed through.

Spread peanut butter on one slice of bread. Top with banana, then second slice of bread. Serve warm or cold.

Recipe developed by Dean Kennedy, student, New England Culinary Institute, Essex, Vt.

GRANOLA BARS

4 cups regular rolled oats (not the quick-cooking kind)
1/2 cup brown sugar

3/4 cup sesame seeds
2 cups walnuts, almonds or other nuts, chopped
1 1/2 cups coconut, grated
1/2 cup honey
1 cup vegetable oil
Preheat oven to 300 degrees. In large mixing bowl, combine all ingredients, mixing until well-blended.

On a greased cookie sheet, pat the batter into a loaf about 1/4-to-1/2 inch high, about 10 inches wide and 12 inches long. Bake about 15 minutes until golden brown. Cool and cut into 2-by-3 inch bars.

Yield: 20 granola bars.
Recipe developed by Dean Kennedy, student, New England Culinary Institute, Essex, Vt.

VEGETABLE KEBABS WITH CHUNKY HERB DIP

fresh vegetables such as broccoli, cauliflower, mushrooms, red and green bell peppers, cucumbers and carrots, washed and cut into squares

Dip:
2 scallions, roughly chopped
6 cherry tomatoes, halved
1/4 red or green pepper, cut into 3 pieces
1/2 cup sour cream
1/2 cup cottage cheese
1/2 teaspoon dried basil
1/2 teaspoon dried mint
1/8 teaspoon salt
Thread vegetables onto wooden skewers.

Make dip by placing scallions, cherry tomatoes and bell pepper chunks into bowl of food processor or blender, and processing until vegetables are small chunks.

Add sour cream, cottage cheese, herbs and salt and process until well-mixed, about 10 seconds. Serve with vegetables.

Yield: about 1 cup of dip, enough for 6 kebabs.

Recipe from "My First Cookbook," by Rena Coyle (Workman Publishing, 1986).

October: Time to celebrate good German food, drink

The time to celebrate German food and drink is during the month of October when many of the traditional foods are readily available and often on sale.

Prepare this sweet, spicy and coarse mustard to serve with your special German meals.

GERMAN MUSTARD

1/4 cup mustard seed
1/4 cup dry mustard
1/4 cup cold water
1 cup cider vinegar
1 small onion, chopped
2 Tbsp. brown sugar
1 tsp. salt
2 cloves garlic, minced
1/4 tsp. cinnamon
1/4 tsp. allspice
3 Tbsp. honey

Combine mustard seed, dry mustard and water in 2-cup glass measure. Set aside for at least 3 hours.

Combine remaining ingredients except honey in 2-cup glass measure.

Microwave on 100 percent power, uncovered 6-7 minutes or until reduced to 1 cup.

Strain into mustard seed mixture; process in blender or food processor until pureed to desired texture. Stir in honey. Spoon into containers and cool. Refrigerate at least 3 days before using.

Small jars work well for this mustard. Nice to give as a gift with a hard sausage, cheese and cracker assortment.

Sauerkraut hidden in the center of these meatballs gives a wonderful German flavor, perfect for October entertaining.

SAUERKRAUT BALLS

1 cup sauerkraut, drained
1 tsp. brown sugar
1/4 tsp. caraway seed
1 lb. ground beef
1 egg
1 slice fresh bread, crumbled
1/4 cup chopped onion
2 Tbsp. milk

Combine sauerkraut, brown sugar and caraway seed in a small mixing bowl. Toss until combined; set aside. Combine ground beef, egg, bread, onion, milk, garlic salt and pepper; mix well. Flatten 1-inch balls of meat into patties. Place 1 1/2 tablespoons of sauerkraut mixture on each patty. Shape meat around sauerkraut forming 12 meatballs. Roll each meatball in browning powder. Arrange in 8-inch round glass baking dish. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave on 100 percent power 5-8 minutes or until meat is set.

Co-worker's skin-tight outfit stretches the limits of taste

DEAN ABBY: I work in a large office where both men and women are employed. We have never had a dress code, so the employees wear pretty much what they want to wear.

My objection is the way some women dress for the office. I object particularly to women in stretch pants. The other day, one woman wore skin-tight stretch pants with a sleeveless blouse tucked into the waistband. You could see her knave-high stocking line through her pants leg, and her slightly puffy stomach was protruding. Some of the men just shook their heads as she walked by. She saw them snickering and announced that this was the latest style. Abby, am I wrong in thinking that this kind of outfit is inappropriate for an office? What do you think?

DEAN ABBY'S CONCERN

The manner in which employees dress should be determined by those who set

How to remove the pain of heel spurs

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have heel spurs, for which my doctor has suggested heel cushions or cortisone. I decided against the cortisone but, obviously, the cushions are not a long-term remedy. Since you're both sensible and practical, I'm requesting your views for control of this annoying problem.

DEAR READER: Heel spurs, which are outcroppings of calcium from the heel bone, can irritate the tendons and sensitive soft tissues of the heel. The first (and least expensive) step is cushions, which may relieve much of the pressure on the spurs, hence on the tissues, too. If the cushions don't work, a cortisone injection (to reduce irritation) is a logical next step.

Because podiatrists deal exclusively with foot problems, I suggest you see one. Orthotics (special insoles) might prevent future problems. A podiatrist can advise you.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Several years ago my wife had a 90 percent blockage of the aorta. Her physician did bypass surgery and a bilateral sympathectomy at the same time. Since then, she has had no sexual desire of any kind, and we remember him asking if we had all the children we wanted. Just what was done to her?

DEAR READER: During the operation your wife required (to bypass the aorta and to sever certain nerves causing arterial constriction), the surgeon probably damaged some of the nerves necessary for sexual arousal. If I'm correct in this assessment, the situation is permanent. In my opinion, you should have been informed of this potential consequence before surgery.

I suggest you ask your family doctor to find out (from operative reports and hospital records) what exactly the surgery entailed. He can then discuss this with you and explain the specifics about which you are concerned. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Where to Find Sex Information." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped

Answer to Previous Puzzle

By Phillip Alder
There are times when The Law of Total Tricks underestimates the number of tricks available during the play of a deal. The most important time is when there is a double fit.

When you and your partner have a double fit, normally only about 22 points are needed for game. You should always bid at least one more trick than your point-count suggests.

Therefore, if you have a two-suited hand and immediately hit a fit in one suit, you should try to show your second suit so that partner knows whether there is a double fit.

Today's deal suggests that it pays to compete — as it often does. Over North's limit raise of three hearts, showing about 11 total points and four trumps, East might have risked a take-out double. This would have persuaded West to sacrifice in four spades, based on the double fit in the black suits. Four spades doubled would have cost only 100 points.

Four hearts is defeated by a club lead and a spade switch. But West actually opted for a low spade. East put in the 10, confident his partner wasn't underleading the spade ace. If declarer wins this trick, he goes down. After drawing trumps, he takes the diamond finesse. But when it loses, East puts his partner on play with a spade to the queen, and a club switch nets two more tricks for the defense. However, South played his spade nine at trick one, cutting the defenders' communications. Later, South discarded one club loser on dummy's fourth diamond, losing only one trick in each side suit.

Readers are invited to send card-play questions to Phillip Alder, in care of this newspaper.

They can be answered only through the column.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Oct. 1, 1992

You might be a trifle more restless than usual in the year ahead, but this could work to your benefit. Instead of sitting on your ideas, you may find profitable outlets in which to utilize them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you actively seek ways to better your lot in life at this time, there's a good chance you'll find the answers you need. Don't just wait for something to happen. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) In financial or business affairs, do not discount your hunches today. They could prove to be substantial assets.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone you recently met is well worth getting to know better. However, it will be up to you to try to establish the relationship; this individual is too reserved to do so.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you are in a situation today that involves people you haven't previously met, don't be shy. Making new acquaintances could be just the lift you've been looking for.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Ambitious concepts you conceive today should be developed, because they may not be as far-fetched as you think.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone you'll associate with today might impress you with progressive ideas about matters that pertain to your career. See if you can find ways to adapt them to your needs.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Clever! You'll know how to put into action what others can merely talk about. This will give you a big jump over your competition.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If there is some special information you're in need of today, don't wait for it to come to you. Get on the phone and talk to people you know will give you straight answers.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're best equipped today to handle assignments that require deep concentration. This can be a very productive day for you — if you focus on projects of this sort.

CANCER (June 21-July 23) A situation that could not be resolved with force can be concluded today — if you use your mind instead of muscle. Think your way through to desirable results.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Information that has been denied you in business circumstances might be casually discussed today among friends with whom you'll socialize. Be a good listener.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This could be a profitable day for you, provided your expectations are within the realm of reality. Don't look for more than that to which you're entitled.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is going to have a Christmas wedding, so I would like to order your booklet on "How to Have a Lovely Wedding."
Also, is there some kind of minor operation that can be done to restore her virginity?
Please do not say where this letter is from, because this is a very small town, and you know how people gossip in small towns, if you get my drift.

DEAR MOM: I get your drift. But there is no way a girl's virginity can be surgically restored.

P.S.: The absence of a hymen does not mean that a girl has been sexually active. It can be ruptured through various sports activities.

2 eggs, hardboiled
6 potatoes, boiled, cooled, cubed
salt and pepper to taste
Place above ingredients in a large bowl. Whip 1 cup whipping cream, add 3 tablespoons mayonnaise, 1 scant teaspoon mustard. Fold into potatoes and other ingredients. Chill until serving.

SWEDISH CARDAMON BREAD
1 pkg. active dry yeast
1/4 cup warm water
Mix and set aside

1/4 cup butter, melted and cooled
1 egg
1/4 tsp. salt
1 cup sugar
1 1/2 tsp. ground cardamon

About 8 cups regular flour unbleached
In a large bowl, blend yeast and water. Stir in milk, melted butter, egg, salt, sugar, cardamon until blended. Stir in 7 cups flour to form stiff dough. Knead 10 minutes on lightly floured board. Place in greased bowl, cover, let rise until double, 1 1/2 to 2 hours. Punch dough. Divide into 9 equal portions and roll into ropes. Braid 3 ropes together to form 3 loaves. Cover and let rise until doubled in size. Bake in 350° oven for 35 to 40 minutes.

Sugar Icing
Beat until smooth 1 cup unbleached powdered sugar, 2 teaspoons milk, 1/4 tsp. almond extract. Put on loaves. Sprinkle with maraschino cherries and nuts.

'Murphy Brown' attack on Quayle tops in the ratings

By DEBORAH HASTINGS
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES — The Murphy-strikes-back episode of "Murphy Brown" was the most-watched show on television last week.

Murphy's response to Vice President Dan Quayle's complaint that the sitcom glamorizes single motherhood gained a 29.3 rating and helped CBS win the first week of the fall season with a 13.1, the A.C. Nielsen Co. said Tuesday.

Each ratings point represents 931,000 homes.

ABC had an 11.9 rating and NBC an 11.4. Fox Broadcasting Co., with 12 hours of prime-time programming compared to 22 hours at the Big Three, got a 7.6.

Only two of more than 30 new fall series made it into the Top 10. Both were from CBS' top hit-making producers.

"Hearst's" political sitcom from "Designing Women" creators Harry Thomason and Linda Bloodworth-Thomason, ranked fifth in its debut.

"Love and War," the latest offering from former "Murphy Brown" producers Diane English and Joel Shukovaky, placed seventh.

ABC won the network news ratings with a 10, CBS had an

8.8 and NBC an 8.3. Here are the top 10 shows, their network and rating: "Murphy Brown," CBS, 29.3; "Roseanne," ABC, 23.9; "Coach," ABC, 20; "Cheers," NBC, 19.6; "Hearst's Affre," CBS, 19.3; "Home Improvement," ABC, 18.7; "Love and War," CBS, 17.4; "Murder, She Wrote" and "60 Minutes," CBS (tie), 16.9; "Evening Shade," CBS, and "Wings," NBC (tie) 16.8.
