Spring Fling in Chuluota

The annual Spring Fling is expected to draw hundreds of visitors to Chuluota Saturday. The event will be held at the Chuluota Community Center.

Over 55 families and organizations have already signed up to participate in the event. There will be food, arts & crafts, entertainment, and door prizes. Free blood pressure checks will also be available.

The Seminole County Soil Conservation Service will hold an Amdro sale.

The day long Spring Fling will begin at 9 a.m., Saturday, March 28. There is no charge for admission.

Tyson sentenced to six years

INDIANAPOLIS — Mike Tyson was sentenced today to six years in prison for raping a teen-age beauty queen. The judge rejected Tyson's argument that "I didn't hurt anybody."

Before the sentence was pronounced, Tyson took the stand and maintained his innocence on rape charges but also said he was sorry about what happened.

"I expect the worst. I don't know if I can deal with it," the former heavyweight boxing champion said. "I'd be afraid but I'm not guilty of this crime. I didn't hurt anybody — no black eyes, no broken ribs."

While maintaining his innocence, he said that he would apologize to Desiree Washington, the 19-year-old he was convicted of raping, if he had the chance.

"I would like to apologize to her, but she's not here," he said.

Horse in tow

TAMPA — A couple whose horse got stuck in mud had a hard time finding help to free the animal, until they contacted a towing company.

The 25-year-old mare named Heidi survived the four-hour ordeal Tuesday in good shape, thanks to a company that donated use of a tractor-trailer wrecker and straps to lift the 1,200-pound Morgan from a retention pond.

County officials said they wanted to help, but didn't know how, didn't have equipment and feared they could hurt the animal by trying.

That wasn't what owners Jamie and Sarita Park wanted to hear.

"On TV you see them climbing trees, almost breaking their neck to get a dog, cat or raccoon," Mrs. Park said. "That's what aggravated me."

The Parks said they called the sheriff's office, animal services and even 911 — to no avail.

Ultimately, firefighters at the Hillsborough County Fire Department station in Citrus Park offered to help.

Museum facelift OK'd

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — All of the groups dealing with the new design of the Henry Shelton Sanford Memorial Library and Museum have now agreed. The latest plans have finally been accepted.

The Sanford City Commission voted the last of the approvals during last week's commission meeting, voting unanimously on the plans presented by architect Jerry Mills. The plans included the interior as well as exterior of the museum.

Mills is meeting with the project architects today. "We'll be deciding on what it will take to complete all of the plans," he said, Mills added, "From that point on, we'll be meeting again with the Design Committee in late April and by that time we hope to be close to completion with all of our plans."

This new entrance to the museum will be erected about 21 feet in front of the existing entrance.

During the April meeting, exterior colors and a few other minor details remain to be worked out.

"If we can complete the plans by the end of April," he projected, "we could put it out for bids in May, and conceivably start construction by as early as June."

Earlier this month, approvals had also been granted by the members of the Design Review Committee and the Museum Advisory Board.

Before the plans reached the Commission, the Design Review Committee had made only minor last-minute changes in Mills' projections. They included the elimination of a folding wall in the meeting room, which was decided to be unnecessary.

The family of Sydney O. Chase, which has donated $240,000 to the expansion project, has indicated approval. "We've sent a copy of our plans to Mr. Chase in Germany," Mills said, "and while we haven't received a reply, we aren't aware of any objections."

A number of suggestions advanced by the Advisory Board also brought about slight changes. Many of them dealt with the size of access space and doors that are necessary enough to allow easy movement of larger art exhibits or displays.

Corporate Point work starts soon

LAKE MARY — Land clearing for the newest commercial development in Lake Mary is set to get underway. Work could start by this weekend on the Corporate Pointe development.

Meanwhile, plans are being finalized for the third business, a Wendy's restaurant. Developer Pat Callaway said, "We are in the final negotiating stages with Wendy's at the present time, and we expect to formalize the agreement very soon."

When the development was originally presented, four businesses were projected. Callaway said he couldn't comment at this time as to what it might be. "That's something that is still in the future," he said.

Callaway is with Hardy and Callaway Development Group, which has established offices in Lake Mary. The company is handling the development of the entire project.

Although Corporate Pointe was in consideration for many months, approval of the final subdivision plans was only made by the Lake Mary City Commission on Feb. 6. "Since then," said City Planner Matt West, "the work has involved

Road landscaping cut to save money

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners have decided not to pursue a $4.5 million landscaping scheme for 55 miles of roads.

Instead, the county should continue using grass or try a low-maintenance ground cover to green the sides of blacktops, commissioners directed. Commissioners said they will consider starting a $100,000 tree farm or even digging up trees from county-owned woodlands to place "a few" trees along roads.

"I can't believe you all are talking figures like this," Commissioner Pat Warren said during the Tuesday meeting. "We have the Thrasher property and Yankee Lake — you can go out and dig up a six-foot oak tree and plant them. We're not talking about landscaping, we're talking about putting in a few trees."

County staff said commissioners had seemed to indicate a willingness to pursue some kind of minimal landscaping scheme on county roads through a series of decisions. Commissioners have endorsed a $538,000 "gateway" plan for Lake Mary Boulevard and spending $20,000 for landscaping along Red Hug Lake Road. They have also approved installing irrigation connections when road improvements are made for future landscaping.

"Staff was seeing a series of votes that might be best described as supportive of 'doing something,'"

Principals say reduce main staff

By VICKI DeBONNIE

SANFORD — A group of Seminole County school principals have suggested that the best way to trim fat from the school district would be to start at the district administrative offices.

In a letter to interim Supt. Richard Wells, Darvin Boothe, principal of Lake Brantley High School and representative for the principals, wrote that the principals "agreed that if the 1992-03 budget passes in its present form, it would be necessary for schools to absorb much of the shortfall."

The principals, they said, should not be required to absorb all the reductions of the state's "reality budget." The principals believe they should have the opportunity to decide where the cuts should be made to have the least impact on the day-to-day functions of the schools.

The district, they contend, is too heavy with administrators. Wells argues that not only

Endorsement given for land

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The chairman of a Seminole County land protection committee was pleased with the unanimous endorsement of their program by commissioners Tuesday.

"The committee is satisfied these properties will be purchased," said Fred Harden, committee chairman. "There may be a variable if something pops up. We can look at it if it does if the commission wants us to."

The committee, comprised of environmentalists and biological experts, spent 14 months reviewing 33 sites in the county. The sale of $15.4 million in bonds were approved by a Seminole County circuit judge earlier this month. The bonds are expected to be sold within two months. The land acquisition program was approved by voters in November 1990.

The committee ranked Springs Hammock as the top purchase priority in the county. The purchase of the densely wooded area west of Lake Jesu which extends west of U.S. Highway 17-92 is about 60 percent complete, but state financing has been dropped to complete the project.

Other areas of the county that should be considered priorities, in order of ranking, are the Wekiva River basin, the lower St. Johns River area in southeast Seminole County, Black Hammock, the Econlockhatchee River and Lake Monroe properties.

The Econ was given a low ranking because it is the target of state and regional land preservation programs, said Colleen Logan, county natural lands planner. Two Lake Monroe front properties were given last ranking because they have been disturbed and are adjacent to industrial areas, said Harden.

The committee recommended concentrating purchase attention on 10 Spring Hammock properties first. The properties would square off the boundaries of the area.

The following properties should then be targeted in the following order, the committee recommended purchasing:

- Three Wekiva River-area properties.
- Five more Spring Hammock sites at the edges of the property.

- The Fore property in the lower St. Johns River area. The 570-acre property is part of 14,000 acres along the Econ and St. Johns Rivers the St. Johns River Water Management District is seeking to purchase. When complete, the state, water district and several counties would own a combined 35 miles along the St. Johns River.

- Three Black Hammock properties.
- Six more Spring Hammock sites.

- A 200-acre site near the Wekiva River owned by Arvida.

- The 5,500-acre Lee Ranch along the Econ River if the state and water district fail to purchase it.

- Three Black Hammock properties.

- Six remaining Spring Hammock properties.

- The 5,500-acre Lee Ranch should the state and water district fail to purchase it.

- The 550-acre Bothers property on the Econ River if the state and district do not buy it.

- The two Lake Monroe properties west of Sanford.

House passes congressional map

TALLAHASSEE — The congressional redistricting scene shifts to the Senate after the House passed its version, which gained approval after a proposal to create more minority districts was narrowly defeated.

The House voted 67-49 Wednesday to pass the Democratic leaders' congressional redistricting map (HB 1E), sending it over to the Senate.

There's no guarantee Democratic leaders can muster the votes in the Senate to pass any plan today. The Democrats hold a working 21-19 advantage but have already lost two votes on their map.

Still, House Speaker T.K. Wetherell insisted the redistricting job can be finished before the special session ends April 3.

"I'm going to do everything possible I can to get a congressional plan passed so we don't have to go to court," he said.

Competing bingo bills pass

TALLAHASSEE — The House and Senate have passed competing bingo bills. One would impose strict new regulations on for-profit operators and the other would keep government out of the popular games.

The Senate voted 38-0 Wednesday for its bill (SB 30E) for the free operation of charity and commercial bingo. The House, however, voted 98-16 for its version (HB 57E) to require licenses, fees, detailed records, and background checks for commercial bingo.

"It will allow the people of this state to know who they are and what they're doing with the revenues," said Rep. Ed Healey, a West Palm Beach Democrat sponsoring the House bill.

Videotaped couple put on probation

TAMPA — A couple videotaped through the blinds as they made love inside a ground-floor condominium pleaded no contest to an unrelated charge and were put on probation.

A neighbor used a home video camera last July to film Janet Paddock and Alfred Stephens through the open blinds having sex in a bathroom area of Stephens' condo.

Deputies were summoned and Stephens, 36, and Paddock, 32, were arrested and accused of lewd and lascivious behavior in front of a child, a felony carrying a 15-year prison sentence.

Instead, they charged the pair with three misdemeanor counts of disorderly conduct — having sex afterward in the condo hot tub, swimming in the condo pool with Paddock partially nude and later, entering a bar restroom with the intent of having sex.

Paddock and Stephens pleaded no contest Wednesday to the hot tub charge — meaning they neither denied nor admitted the behavior — and prosecutors dropped the other two counts.

Lax recordkeeping found

TALLAHASSEE — A state audit found lax recordkeeping at the state Department of Education, which oversees $10 billion that goes to public schools and colleges.

The department, which handles more money than any other state agency, hasn't conducted an internal audit in the six years since the Legislature passed a law requiring state agencies to produce them regularly. The Florida Times-Union in Jacksonville reported Wednesday.

A 1989 auditor general's report warned the department it was violating the law and criticized its poor recordkeeping, the newspaper said.

But the agency, with the Legislature's approval, eliminated its vacant position of internal auditor in a round of budget cuts last year.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Garbage transfer station to open

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

WINTER SPRINGS — Looking more like a modern three-story office building amid a 20-acre campus-like setting, Seminole County's $9.4 million garbage Central Transfer Station will be opened in about a month.

The station provides a half-way turnaround point for trucks collecting garbage from Longwood and other south Seminole County areas. It provides a shorter stopping off point for trucks that might otherwise have to drive up to 30 miles in one direction to get to the county dump in Geneva. The station is located east of U.S. Highway 17-92 on State Road 419.

An open house for the public will be held April 8 at 2 p.m. Tours of the facility will be held April 7 from 10 a.m. until noon and April 9 from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

The transfer station is a two-level structure with loading areas large enough to play a football game. Dump trucks first enter through a computerized scale station in front where they are weighed and registered. The trucks then enter the second level of the station by way of a long curving driveway.

Once inside, up to five trucks at a time can back up to holes in the floor and tip their garbage loads below into the back of one of the county's large transport trucks waiting on the first level below. The dump trucks then leave through the opposite side of the building for a stop at the scales, then to return to neighborhoods and businesses for more garbage. When full, the transport trucks, which hold 115 cubic yards of garbage, take the refuse to the county dump, unload, then return to the station.

When opened, about 800 to 1,000 tons per day of garbage is expected to move through the station. The station can handle an average of 1,900 tpd, with a peak capacity of 2,000 tpd, said Sherry Newkirk, county recycling coordinator.

The former county transfer station at the Sanlando community near Altamonte Springs will be closed and razed for a softball complex.

All of the garbage-handling functions take place in the fully-enclosed 55-foot-high building. There is no machinery that can remain dirty and smelly. The whole floor of both levels can be quickly hosed down. Newkirk said residents living in the Spring Hammock Mobile Home Park immediately north of the facility should notice no odors.

"We will be very good neighbors," Newkirk said.

Majority of caregiving to elderly done by female family members

Associated Press

GAINESVILLE — Caring for an increasing elderly population is a major social and public policy problem that needs to be considered by both the government and other agencies, University of Florida researchers said.

"We must communicate to policy makers, employers and the public that the responsibility for providing care falls largely on non-governmental sources, and our study adds to a growing body of research that indicates caregiving is a family responsibility dominated by women," said Dr. Jeffrey Dwyer.

He is an associate professor in UF's College of Nursing and associate research scientist with the Center for Health Policy Research.

Currently, 60 percent of disabled elders are cared for solely by family and friends. When spouses aren't available, the primary care providers typically are daughters.

This trend could cause severe problems over the next half century when the number of Americans over age 85 is expected to increase from 3 million to 18 million, Dwyer said.

Dwyer and colleague Dr. Raymond Coward, a professor of medicine and the associate director for the Center for Health Policy Research, studied 4,000 impaired elderly people and some 13,000 adult children nationwide.

Their findings, recently published in The Journals of Gerontology, found that adult women offspring are three times more likely than sons to provide daily living care. This includes personal hygiene, eating and other life-essential assistance.

A primary reason the responsibility of caring for elderly parents falls on daughters rather than sons is because of what Dwyer calls a "societal gender bias."

State first for crime

From Staff and Wire Reports

TALLAHASSEE — A slight decrease in violence last year won't knock Florida from its vantage point as the No. 1 crime state, a top law enforcement official said.

In 1991, Florida's serious crime rate grew 1 percent, although the rate of violent crimes — murder, rape, aggravated assault and robbery — dropped by 1.8 percent, according to the Crime in Florida report.

In Seminole County, area law enforcement officials are pleased crime didn't spiral upwards in 1991, but they're not ready to say illegal activities are under control.

"There are no significant differences and there's some comfort in that," said Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriott. "But the fact that there's any criminal activity is not good. Let's not take any comfort in that our crime rate is stable."

The serious crimes includes seven offenses tracked by the federal government — murder, rape, aggravated assault, robbery, burglary, larceny and auto theft — plus others like manslaughter, kidnapping, arson and drug offenses.

The number of Floridians who fell victim to crime increased 2.6 percent last year over 1990, according to statistics compiled by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement.

With 1,039,532 victims last year, Floridians had a one in 12 chance of being on that list. One in every eight victims were seriously hurt.

Dying baby's parents fight law preventing organ harvesting

Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE — Lawyers for the family of a baby born with no brain headed to court today, hoping to clear the way for the infant's healthy organs to be given to children who need them before her inevitable death.

Theresa Ann Campo was born Saturday. While she looks like most newborns, she is a victim of anencephaly: a little-understood condition that stops the brain from developing beyond the stem, which controls breathing and heartbeat.

Warned about a month ago by an ultrasound test that something was desperately wrong with their unborn daughter, Justin Pearson and Laura Campo decided that their little girl would be placed on life support long enough for her organs to be harvested. Doctors have told Campo that Theresa's death could give life to five other infants in this country, who need her heart, kidney, liver, lungs and eyes.

"She is perfect in every way, except for she doesn't have a brain," Campo said.

Eight of every ten anencephalic infants are stillborn, and only 400 to 500 live longer than a few minutes.

"There has never been any question but that this child was going to die, especially with her head open to bacterial infection the way it is," said Dr. Richard Beach, a neonatologist at Broward General Hospital. Theresa also has no skull.

That fear of infection slowed the organ-donation process while doctors ascertained Theresa's organs were healthy enough to be shared.

But after being taken off life support, she continued to live.

"If they took her organs at that point, the law would have defined it as murder," said William Scherer, attorney for the hospital. "From that moment on, the law has controlled everything the hospital and its doctors can legally do with this child."

The 1988 statute forbids doctors to declare a patient brain-dead if any part of the brain works.

Waiting for Theresa to expire isn't a viable option from an organ-donation standpoint.

"If we wait for her brain stem to give out on its own, and shut down her organs — which is going to happen in the next week or so — there won't be any point in retrieving them," Beach said. "They'd be so damaged by then that they'd be worthless."

"It's the ultimate Catch-22 in these kinds of cases, for the simple reason that there is no brain to test," said Arthur Caplan, director of Biomedical Ethics at the University of Minnesota.

"No thinking. No feeling. No brain waves. No nothing. The law requires you to plug into something that isn't there, and then refuses to recognize the futility of it all."

"Every hour that they make us wait, she gets closer to death," Justin Pearson said. "How can they — these lawyers and politicians — put us in this situation?"

"If they would just come out and see what we are going through, they'd change their minds. They'd change the law. They'd have to."

Caplan isn't so sure. "It comes down to this: People are concerned about fudging the line between life and death.

POLICE BRIEFS

Fake valium prescription leads to arrest

Nicholas Cain, 24, of 3500 N. Highway 17-92 in Lake Mary, was arrested by Sanford Police Tuesday. According to the police report, Cain attempted to falsify a prescription for valium, and requested it to be filled at Eckerd Drugs, in the Wal-Mart Plaza, 3811 Orlando Drive.

Firearm charges placed

Bernard Harold Williams, 31, of 4631 McKay Avenue, Lake Monroe, was arrested by Sanford Police Tuesday. He was found by officers in a parking lot at a convenience store at 1806 West First Street, reportedly holding a double barrel shotgun. Police report he attempted to flee from the area when they approached, but with additional officers and a K-9 dog, they were able to apprehend him. The gun was found in the front seat of his vehicle. Following his arrest, it was found he was wanted on a warrant charging him with violation of parole. He was charged with improper exhibition of a firearm, and possession of a firearm by a felon. He was placed in jail under $2,000 bond.

Sanford man charged in Casselberry

Casselberry police arrested Bobby Lee Cotton, 19, of 418 San Marcos, Sanford, Tuesday. Officers stopped him when they reported seeing his car go through a red stoplight. Police said he attempted to give a false identification during their investigation. Cotton was charged with resisting arrest without violence, running a red light, and driving with a suspended drivers license. It was later determined that his license had been suspended 13 previous times.

Reported to Sanford police

The following incidents were reported to the Sanford Police Department:

• The home of Wilber Kallies, 2820 Central Drive, Sanford, was burglarized Monday night, while Kallies was sleeping. He reported his portable TV set was stolen.

• A vehicle owned by Charles McClain of Orlando, was burglarized at 2025 Chase Avenue Monday night. Items taken included two tool boxes. According to McClain, "Whoever took them must have been strong because they weighed plenty."

• A diamond ring was reportedly taken from an unlocked vehicle at 1201 W. 20th St. Monday night or Tuesday morning. The ring was the property of Johnny Haddock of that address.

Three arrested on drug charges

Sanford police arrested three persons parked in a vehicle at 2605 Park Avenue Tuesday. Officers reported smelling smoke in the vehicle and investigated, finding evidence of drug usage. Arrested were Cathy Grace Dinger, 39, of 1304 Pine Avenue, Sanford, Theodore James Rice, 33, of Columbus, Ohio, and William Edward Baker, 50, of 1001 E. 4th Street, Sanford. Baker and Rice were each charged with possession of a controlled substance and possession of drug paraphernalia. In addition to those two charges, Dinger was also charged with tampering with evidence, when she was reportedly seen attempting to get rid of a cannabis cigarette.

• Willie McCloud, 22, of 26 William Clark Court, Sanford, was served a warrant Tuesday charging him with failing to appear for a sentence rehearing.

Suspect in killing extradited

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — George Bellamy, Jr., who's address was listed as 74 Lake Monroe Terrace, a year ago, has been extradited from Valdosta, Georgia. He faces charges of first degree murder and armed robbery.

The case involves the robbery and murder of Isiah Cohen, 22, of 121 N. Jackson Street in Altamonte Springs. According to the Seminole County Sheriff's office, on Feb. 8, 1991, Cohen was robbed then killed by a single shot to the head, in a parking lot at Eudell's Grocery, 2154 Beardall Ave.

The sheriff's department launched an immediate investigation. According to sheriff's spokesman George Proechel, "Through a lengthy investigation, and interviews with witnesses and other persons, we were able to declare Bellamy as the suspect in this case, and issued a wanted notice."

Proechel added, "We understand Bellamy was arrested on an unrelated charge by Valdosta police, who found he was wanted in Seminole County, and we immediately set up extradition proceedings."

Bellamy was returned to Sanford Tuesday evening, and placed in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

He was given his preliminary hearing yesterday, during which he was assigned a court appointed attorney and informed that he was being held without bond.

It's all right

Seminole County road crews are adding a right turn lane to Sanford Avenue, at the south corner of 25th Street in Sanford. According to Assistant Road Superintendent Tom George, "We'll be having an increase in trucks in that area, but a right turn lane has been needed for a long time anyway." Work on the $30,000 project is expected to be finished within a month.

A gamble

Lottery officials around the country have become remarkably candid lately about how foolish it is to play their big-money lotto games. There are, they correctly point out, much better ways to spend your money. And they urgently recommend that you take advantage of them.

Consider, they say, that even if you overcome the odds and win the big money, there's a good chance you'll have to share it with another winner, thereby substantially reducing your own winnings. Consider also that jackpots are usually paid out not in lump sums but in installments over several years — further reducing their real value.

Good advice for all prospective players — except that the lottery officials want you to take it only if you plan on buying tickets in $5 million blocks.

That's how an Australian syndicate won $27 million in the Feb. 15 Virginia Lotto game — by buying a ticket for each of 5 million number combinations out of a possible 7 million. They reportedly tried to buy them all, but ran out of time. The syndicate nevertheless found a way to beat the system. And that has sent shockwaves throughout the lottery world.

What worries the lottery pushers is that single-ticket buyers will be discouraged from playing the game if they have to compete against big operators like the Australians. Virginia has already taken steps to prevent further mass purchases of lotto tickets, with other states likely to follow.

Lottery officials have also been rushing forward to tell some truths about their game that they usually forget to mention when hyping multimillion-dollar jackpots. They want everyone to know, for example, that the Australians had three chances in 10 of losing everything they invested and had there been multiple winners the syndicate could have lost money on the deal.

Never mind that single-ticket buyers had to settle for the far longer odds of one chance in 7 million of winning the jackpot.

Safety is cool

Safety sells. That fact is readily apparent to anyone who has seen the car ads on TV lately or in magazines and newspapers. After years of resisting consumer and government demands for safer cars, auto makers are promoting air bags, anti-lock brakes, built-in child-restraint systems and others. It's a welcome change.

According to the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, auto makers historically have not used safety to lure car buyers. The Institute traces the makers' aversion to safety to the 1956 model year. That was the year General Motors introduced a new restyled Chevrolet that was expected to be very popular.

To counter the competition Ford decided to push safety. Its ads emphasized safty door latches, deep-dish steering wheels, stronger seat anchors and options like lap belts and padded instrument panels. GM ads highlighted style and performance.

When Chevys outsold Fords that year, the myth was born that safety didn't sell. It has taken three decades to debunk it.

The Insurance Institute notes that many car companies that fought mandated safety features in the past are now rushing to get them in place and into their ads ahead of government requirements.

Half the car commercials that appeared on the first full day of the 1992 Winter Olympics program touted air bags. Chrysler is advertising built-in child restraints for its passenger vans. Anti-lock brakes are a big safety item even though government regulations don't require them.

How reasonable. How fashionable.

What happens in the name of 'art'

In deciding what attitude to take toward the National Endowment for the Arts and its famously controversial grants, one key question, surely, is the frame of mind of those who created the "art" and authorized the grants.

In a recent column on the subject, Washington journalist David Broder opts for the "mistake" theory. "Bureaucracies make mistakes," he argues. "The NEA has made fewer than most. But a nation that cannot afford to finance its arts — even the occasionally tasteless or offensive variety — is a nation that has lost its perspective, its self-confidence and probably its soul."

Now, at first glance, that's a pretty persuasive argument. We all make mistakes. If that's all the NEA did (and only rarely at that), what's all the fuss about? Forgive and forget.

But a moment's thought suggests that a closer analysis of the argument is necessary. There are various kinds of mistakes. Which kind is Broder conceding the NEA made? If somebody, out of sheer carelessness, ran the Japanese flag rather than Old Glory up the flagpole atop the U.S. Capitol, that would be one kind of mistake, and one easily forgivable. If, on the other hand, he did so secretly and quite deliberately, but got caught red-handed and was fined, one might still say he made a mistake, but it would be a different kind of mistake. Things just didn't work out as planned, that's all.

Which kind of mistake is Broder saying the NEA made — simple errors without intention to offend, or calculated offenses that attracted rather more attention than expected and hence blew up in their perpetrators' faces? If the latter, did the American public and its representatives in Congress lose their perspective, their self-confidence and perhaps even their souls by taking offense?

Take Andrea Serrano's "Piss Christ": a photograph of a crucifix — a small statuette of the crucified Jesus — immersed in a glass of the artist's urine. We can dismiss any notion that this was a "mistake" of the first kind described above. Serrano knew perfectly well what he was doing, and so did the peer panel that examined the photograph and recommended it for exhibition at federal expense. And so did the bureaucrats further up the line who approved the recommendation — at least until we reach a (one hopes) purely imaginary level so altitudinous that "art" is funded there sight unseen.

But if Serrano, the peer panel and the bureaucrats above them knew what they were doing, what precisely was it?

Here the defenders of "Piss Christ" will try to bog you down forever in a dispute over the definition of "art." But you know, and I know, and I venture to say even David Broder knows, that they were all acutely aware of the flagitious offensiveness of the photograph to many millions of Americans, and that a desire to scandalize these latter was far and away their primary purpose, however much it might be decorated with testimonials to the photograph's value as "art."

With any luck at all the photograph would have made its way around the exhibition circuit, eliciting testimonials from the cognoscenti to the NEA for its "courage" and discreet laughter over the chockheaded ignorance or paralysis of the booboisie.

Line-item veto is sham issue

How to characterize the (recent) commotion over the line-item veto?

Put it this way: If all the gab were a rainbow and you followed it to the end, what you would find would not be a pot of gold, but it might help you grow some prize vegetables.

The Republicans claim the line-item veto would be a painless cure for the deficit problem and a shackle on a spendthrift Congress. That's some pure stuff, and it would probably produce three-pound tomatoes.

The Democrats say it would be an unacceptable and perhaps unconstitutional encroachment on congressional power. That stuff would generate some tall corn.

The simple truth is the line-item veto is a sham issue. It is an easy subject to demagogue — which is why tub-thumping politicians love it, especially in an election year. But depicting it as a budget-balancing tool is a trespass on the good sense of the average citizen and it should be outlawed.

For the uninitediated, a line-item veto would allow a president to strike individual items from the huge, take-it-or-leave-it appropriations bills the Congress sends him for signing. Its primary target would be "pork-barrel" expenditures — the extraneous grants and projects that powerful members of Congress wangle for their home districts.

But here's the dreary secret that presidents never tell you and Congress never seems able to impart: In the context of trillion-dollar budgets, pork-barrel spending is peanuts. To argue that you can remedy the deficit problem by purging pork is to argue that you can drain the ocean by scooping with a cup.

Examples are endless, but take just one that was offered by two Republican senators who recently failed in yet another attempt to pass a line-item veto measure. If our virtuous president had line-item authority, said Dan Coats of Indiana and John McCain of Arizona, he would have been able to cut from one recent budget such heinous waste as $100,000 for prickly pear and mesquite research in Texas.

Think about it. George Bush's most recent budget proposal projects a deficit of $399 billion. To balance it, he would have to slice off one prickly pear project every 10 seconds of every day around the clock for one year, three months and 10 days.

With a line-item veto, said Coats and McCain, the president could have saved the public $70 billion over a five-year period from 1984-1989.

Think about it. That's 700,000 prickly pear projects. During that same five-year period, the accumulated deficit came to $1,059 billion. That's 10,590,000 prickly pear projects. Even with the line-item veto, we would've gone in the hole 9,890,000 prickly pear projects. Some solution, the old line-item.

Here's something else to think about: During that same five-year period, the cumulative interest on the national debt came to $1,019 billion. That's interest alone, money down the tubes. Does it never occur to the dunderheads who lead us that real reduction in the national debt might be a better road to solvency than whining about prickly pear research?

The line-item veto makes sense for only one reason, and it has little to do with honest deficit reduction. It would constrain the most powerful members of Congress from dispatching unfair shares of pork to their districts. People like Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., say, a career politician who vowed in 1990 to ship $1 billion worth of bacon back to his home state by 1995 and surpassed his goal four years ahead of schedule.

It surprised no one when Sen. Byrd recently took the floor to voice clamorous opposition to the Coats-McCain line-item veto measure. It would save little money, thundered Byrd, and it was "quack medicine which would be better denominated as snake oil."

Indeed it was, and he might have recognized it because it was oozing from his pores and puddling at his feet as he spoke. Or was that the stuff that makes the garden grow?

Depicting it as a budget balancing tool is a trespass on good sense.

Media are fooled by assumptions

Picture this sporting moment: Vice President Dan Quayle pauses while pollicking in Strom Thurmond's South Carolina, dons his favorite lime-green slacks (the ones festooned with cute little whales) and tees off at the local Lily-White Links.

We can all picture the media moment that would ignite — in a flash, Quayle's press corps becomes a pack of barking donaldsons, shouting questions laced with moral indignation: "How can you golf at a club that bars black members? Are you soft on civil rights? Is this your code-word campaign to win the redneck vote?"

We'd make this the front-page and prime-time news it would deserve to be. But, of course, it wasn't Our Veeep who was caught in the act, golfing on the greens of lily-white links the other day. It was the Democratic presidential front-runner, Bill Clinton, stalwart of civil rights and prime beneficiary of the black vote this primary season. He partook of a round of golf at the all-white Country Club of Little Rock — and no one in the media teed off.

Clinton's press corps was transformed — into a pack of mute giraffes, craning their necks, getting a good look but saying nothing to convert this event into news. The first we read of it was after a local NAACP official complained, and Virginia Gov. Doug Wilder made it news by saying it was "inconceivable" that Clinton or any governor would golf at such a club.

Actually, the incident reveals at least as much about the way we in the media perform our jobs as it does about the way Clinton performs his. Most pols never quite understand what goes into the decisions made by the media each day. Some think it's a conspiracy to play up one story and bury another. Wrong. But what is true is that reporters, just as all folks, come to their jobs with a few basic assumptions that guide decisions about just where we will dig a little deeper in search of a full story, and where we think there's no need to dig at all.

So, if we see George Bush or Dan Quayle for any of the gang that gave us Willie Horton as a campaign symbol golfing at, say, Strom Thurmond's favorite country club, we'll be all over them like a cheap suit. We'll be checking whether the club discriminates against blacks, checking not because of political conspiracy, but because we carry the basic assumption, based on past events, that civil rights just aren't a hot priority for Bush and Quayle.

Most southerners know they'll be scrutinized closely on this, even though such discrimination knows no regional bounds. So Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., quit an all-white club when he considered a run for the presidency. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, quit two clubs when he ran for vice president. The lipoff that he wouldn't run for president this year was that he quietly rejoined those clubs after the 1988 campaign.

Bill Clinton is another sort. Most journalists assume he's just fine on civil rights, that he cares deeply about the rights of blacks and other minorities. So when we hear Clinton is golfing, our assumptions just don't make us pounce to see if he's committing uncivil rites. But make no mistake; Clinton gets no free pass. The media just carries a different packet of assumptions, right or wrong, fair or unfair, when it comes to Clinton. Let him be spotted across a room in deep conversation with a very stylish blond and — faster than you can say "Henny Youngman" — the questions will fly: "Who was that lady I saw you with?"

Most southerners know they'll be scrutinized closely on civil rights.

School officials study options on new administrative building

By VICKI DeBONNIE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Officials in the Seminole County school district still are exploring their options regarding a new administration building.

The building formerly occupied by NCR on Lake Emma Road is being looked at as a strong option.

"I think that is our most cost-effective option," Dianne Kramer, the district's facilities planner, said Wednesday.

The asking price for the 44-acre site and 154,000 square foot facility is $6.7 million. Water and other utilities are already in place and there are more than 1,000 parking spots at the facility. It will cost $3.1 million to renovate the NCR facilities to make them suitable for use as the district headquarters.

To bring the current facility at 1211 Mellonville Ave. in Sanford, up to standards, including increasing the available space, it would cost more than $10.5 million, according to the school district.

"This (the Mellonville Avenue site) needs so much work," Interim Supt. Richard Wells said. "We could move into the NCR site at a lower cost than to fix this building."

The district's Business Advisory Board suggested that it would cost too much to purchase a new site and build a new facility. That cost would be more than $10.6 million and it would take more than two years to complete the project.

According to Wells, the BABB believes that the purchase of the NCR building would be the best business decision.

Money to purchase and renovate the NCR site would come from the capital outlay budget. That money must be used for construction projects and is not being taken from money that could be used in the classroom.

Wells said the options would be discussed by the school board next month.

who had been strongly opposed to the exterior designs originally presented, expressed his pleasure at the new plans. "These are simply outstanding," he commented. "I think Mr. Mills has done an outstanding job in taking care of all of the suggestions the people have brought forward, and I'm glad to see these plans in a final stage."

One of the questions brought up during previous meetings on the exterior design was how to best handle the columns presently at the front entrance.

According to Mills' plans that have now been accepted, the columns will remain where they are. With the new building front to be extended further out to the south however, the ultimate design shows new columns in front of the entrance, with the old columns inside the building, at the back of the lobby area.

The major rooms in the new plans include two regular galleries, the Henry Shelton Sanford Gallery, the Henry Shelton Sanford Library, a temporary exhibit room, and a meeting room. The rest of the space includes office, and storage space. A small kitchen is also included.

Principals

does the district have the lowest number of district-level administrators in the state, but even if all the suggestions of the principals were implemented, there would still need to be an additional $6.4 million in cuts.

"They've suggested cuts, all at the administrative level," Wells said. "Other cuts will have to be made to meet the budget cuts."

The principals have suggested that secretaries be pooled at the district level, rather than having a one-on-one situation.

The principals also suggested using private companies for custodial and other services. They also suggest that any position previously funded by grants should be discontinued after the grant money is depleted.

The best way to save money, Boothe's letter said, is to eliminate positions such as that of supervisor of personnel and director of business. Whole departments such as the community relations department, would be targeted in the principals' plan.

"If cuts are to be made, even if they must entail personnel, then every division of this entire school system should share in these cuts," the letter said.

Indian teens: More problems

By PHILIP BRASHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — American Indians suffer more physical and mental problems as teenagers than any other group and attempt suicide at four times the national rate, says a federal study.

"We are now on notice ... exactly how devastated this community is," said Rep. George Miller, chairman of the House Interior Committee. "You cannot participate in the formation of public policy and ignore the conclusions of this report," the California Democrat said.

Nearly one in six Indian adolescents has attempted suicide and 20 percent of the teenagers surveyed for the Indian Health Service study described their health as poor.

One in four Indian boys is a problem drinker by the end of high school, and 11 percent of the youth surveyed reported extreme hopelessness, said the report, published Tuesday in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"This is the most devastated group of adolescents in the United States," said Michael Resnik, a University of Minnesota researcher who helped conduct the study.

obtaining all the necessary permits and approvals." He added, "With so many local, State and Federal restrictions in place these days, paperwork generally takes a great deal of time."

The other two businesses already announced for Corporate Pointe are a Builders Square retail store, and a Bob Evans Restaurant. "The two restaurants will probably be side to side," Callaway explained, "but we don't believe they will be competitors, as they're two different types of operations."

The Corporate Square development consists of almost 20 acres of land. It is located at the intersection of Lake Mary Boulevard and Lake Emma Road, just east of the new Interstate-4 interchange.

"After we get the land clearing done," Callaway said, "we expect to start work on the Builders Square facility by next week." The building will contain 107,000 square feet.

He expected work to begin on the Bob Evans Restaurant within the next 60 days. "It won't take quite as long to finish that one," Callaway explained.

"Our plans call for both of the buildings to be finished at approximately the same time, and we hope to have them in operation possibly by late this fall, but definitely before the end of this year."

Roads

said Pam Hastings, county capital improvements planner.

Hastings asked commissioners if they wanted to include a landscaping factor in the road impact fee paid by builders of new homes and offices. By spacing spreading-canopy trees 25 to 80 feet apart along new roads, the county could expect to pay $82,500 per mile for landscaping, said Hastings.

If applied to all 65 miles of roads under construction or about to be started, the total cost would be about $4.5 million. Annual maintenance for all the roads would cost $265,000 per year, said Hastings.

Commissioner Larry Furlong said commissioners should remember the 42-58 voter rejection of the 1989 "Green Penny" sales tax for road landscaping. "We may want to commit to these standards, but before we commit to spending money, maybe we should go to a referendum and see if the people are ready to pay for it," said Furlong.

But Warren said most commissioners believed residents wanted some road landscaping, but didn't want to raise taxes to pay for it.

Commissioner Bob Sturm suggested following the Orange County example of establishing a tree farm under power transmission lines to provide low-cost landscaping.

Commissioners decided during upcoming budget review sessions this summer, they would consider spending $80,000 to $100,000 to establish a tree farm or purchase a piece of equipment to dig trees out of the ground to use for road landscaping. Until then, the county should continue planting grass sod and try low-cost, low-maintenance landscaping in some areas.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

House refuses to override veto of tax cut

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration and congressional Democrats say they are open to writing a second tax bill this year to replace the middle-class tax cut vetoed by President Bush.

But there is no assurance that will happen. Democrats still insist that higher-income people must pay more and the administration still says that is not acceptable.

On Wednesday, the House hammered the final nail into the middle-class tax reduction, which Bush had vetoed Friday. Democratic leaders, who have 268 votes in their camp, could not muster even a majority to override the veto. It was sustained on a 215-211 vote, 73 votes short of the two-thirds necessary to enact the bill over Bush's veto.

The veto was the 27th by Bush. None has been overridden.

Pentagon prepared hit list

WASHINGTON — A Pentagon hit list of hundreds of National Guard and military reserve units that face extinction is evoking congressional opposition even before it is made public.

Rep. G. V. "Sonny" Montgomery, D-Miss., a senior member of the House Armed Services Committee and a key supporter of the Guard and reserve, said Wednesday the proposed cuts will target one out of every three Guard armories across the country.

Asked how it would be received on Capitol Hill, Montgomery replied, "Like a lead balloon."

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, were releasing the list at a Pentagon briefing today.

Son decapitates mother

PARKVILLE, Md. — A released mental patient decapitated his handicapped mother and yelled, "I'm Hannibal the Cannibal!" as he was led away, police say.

Jean Lorenz, a 57-year-old woman who had multiple sclerosis and used a wheelchair, was found dead in her home Wednesday. She had been stabbed repeatedly. Her son, David Lorenz, 29, was jailed on murder charges.

Mrs. Lorenz had called her sister, who contacted the police, authorities said. Paramedics were about to break down the door when Lorenz opened it.

"He answers the door, and he's got blood all over him," said Baltimore County police spokesman Steve Doarnberger.

He yelled, "I'm Hannibal the Cannibal!" as he was led away, Doarnberger said. In the hit movie "The Silence of the Lambs," a serial killer known as "Hannibal the Cannibal" mutilates and eats his victims.

Police said Lorenz was released from a psychiatric hospital in December. The reason for his hospitalization was not disclosed. WMAR-TV in Baltimore quoted neighbors as saying Lorenz had stopped taking his medication on Tuesday.

A long, curved knife believed to have been used in the slaying was found in the house, police said.

In 1987, Lorenz was forcibly hospitalized for a psychiatric evaluation. Records of the incident that prompted the move were not immediately available. Doarnberger said. It wasn't immediately known how long he had been held.

Judge frees two men after 17 years

LOS ANGELES — Two men imprisoned 17½ years for a deputy sheriff's murder were freed Wednesday by a judge who said false evidence was used to convict them. The judge apologized for "gross injustices" the men suffered.

Prosecutors had joined defense lawyers in seeking freedom for the men, saying Los Angeles police coerced witnesses and suppressed evidence.

Police denied those charges Wednesday and said they still believe the men are guilty.

In an emotional courtroom scene, Superior Court Judge Florence Cooper ordered Clarence Chance, 42, and Benjamin Powell, 44, released immediately.

Family members embraced the men amid cheers and tears.

"I'm very, very happy. I'm overwhelmed," Powell said as he sorted through a stack of family snapshots.

A weeping Chance said: "It's nice."

Lyman students to talk with Atlantis astronauts in orbit

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — With the Space Shuttle Atlantis now properly in orbit, a group of earth-bound assistants are scurrying about in some Seminole County schools to prepare for some Friday experiments.

A group of about 10 students from Lyman High School and Rock Lake Middle School in Longwood traveled to the space coast on Tuesday morning to witness the launch of STS-45. They returned to school to check their amateur radio equipment for planned conversations with the astronauts as they pass overhead.

"The students are really excited about this," Joe Laughlin, a science teacher at Lyman who is coordinating some of the experiments, said.

Laughlin, a licensed ham radio operator, is coordinating local efforts in the SAREX (Shuttle Amateur Radio EXperiment) project.

Lyman is one of only nine schools in the country who will be allowed access to the shuttle during the trip.

Many of the students who are participating in this year's experiment made a somewhat successful try last year to speak with astronauts aboard another shuttle flight. While they were able to make contact with the astronauts, there was some trouble keeping in contact with the astronauts.

"We're a lot better organized this year," Laughlin said.

Laughlin got his amateur radio operator's license last year in order to participate in the experiment.

"I've worked with it a lot since then as well," he said.

SAREX is an educational program designed by the American Radio Relay League (ARRL), the Radio Amateur Satellite Corporation (AMSAT) and NASA.

According to Rosalie White, ARRL's educational activities manager, the students who are able to interact with the astronauts can learn some valuable lessons.

"When students talk with real astronauts in orbit, they learn about technology and communications," she said.

Astronauts fire electron beam gun

By SUSAN HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Atlantis' astronaut blasted an electron beam gun at the Earth today to try to create artificial auroras in the heavens and tried to communicate with Russian cosmonauts aboard the Mir space station.

Although astronaut David Leebsma received sound from Mir around 5:40 a.m. EST, his signal was not acknowledged. The Atlantis crew shuttle will have three more time periods this morning to try to contact the Russian station.

Economy up a weak 0.4 percent in fourth quarter

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON — The U.S. economy edged up at an annual rate of just 0.4 percent in the final three months of last year, a pace that was even weaker than previously believed, the government said today.

The Commerce Department report on the gross domestic product — the total amount of goods and services produced inside the country — showed that the economy slowed to a near standstill at the end of last year following two quarters of very weak growth.

Today's GDP report marked a sharp downward revision from a month ago when the government had estimated the economy was growing at an annual rate of 0.8 percent in the fourth quarter.

A weaker showing in international trade and a slower build up of unsold business goods were the major contributors to the downward revision.

Another report today showed that the weak economy was hurting the bottom line at American corporations. The Commerce Department said that after-tax profits fell by 4.5 percent in 1991 to $188.1 billion, the poorest showing for U.S. companies since 1987.

A third report — from the Labor Department — said 15,000 Americans made their first trips to unemployment offices during the week ending March 14, raising new claims for jobless benefits to 447,000. The report said the number of workers filing initial claims for unemployment insurance was up from a seasonally adjusted 432,000 the previous week.

Executions on rise as prisoners out of appeals

By ARLENE LEVINSON
Associated Press Writer

Arizona is testing its gas chamber tonight. It may need it for the first time in 29 years on April 6, when Donald Harding is set to die. California, too, may soon carry out its first execution in a quarter-century.

And Delaware put an executioner to work this month for the first time since 1946.

Since the death penalty was reinstated in 1976, a half-dozen Southern states have performed most of the nation's executions. But now the pace of executions is accelerating, and more states are making use of capital punishment.

The chief reason given: Prisoners are exhausting their appeals in state and federal courts, a process that can last about eight years.

At the same time, the U.S. Supreme Court is turning a cold shoulder to last-ditch requests for stays and curtailing death row inmates' access to federal courts for appeals.

Moreover, politicians are coming under pressure to take a hard line against crime.

"The American public wants it. They're fed up with the criminals getting away with 'murder' and they want to see them pay," said Pennsylvania Attorney General Ernie Preate.

Every year, criminals take about 22,000 lives, and every year 250 to 300 people are sentenced to die. More than 2,500 men and women are on the nation's death rows, according to the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund.

Since the Supreme Court in 1976 allowed states to resume capital punishment, 166 men and one woman have been executed.

Tornadoes and hail pelt much of the area

From staff and wire reports

Seminole County was largely spared from the brunt of a powerful storm last night that pelted other central Florida counties with high winds and heavy hail, damaging cars, homes and a Lake County citrus cannery.

About 2,200 Florida Power Corp. customers south of Oviedo and in the nearby Alafaya Woods community were without power this morning for about an hour beginning shortly after midnight. A total of 79 Florida Power and Light customers in Winter Springs were without power for about three hours early this morning after a tree fell on a power line.

Ken Roberts, Seminole County emergency management coordinator, said there were reports of minor storm damage in south Seminole County but none in northern areas of the county. Roberts said the damage did not reach the extent of the hail storm of two weeks ago which caused $100,000s in damage to homes, businesses and autos.

"It looks relatively minor compared to two weeks ago," said Roberts. "I saw a few screen enclosures with same damage and there was still ice on the side of the road on Howell Branch Road this morning."

Area police and fire agencies report the storm caused no reported problems.

"The storm was caused by a cool front as it moved through the Central Florida area," according to Don Martin of the National Weather Service observation station at Orlando International Airport. "The jet stream is farther south than usual which what I believe accounts for the increased hail and severe storms."

Elsewhere the storm seemed to repeat the dramatic events of March 8 that left Altamonte Springs yards several inches deep in hail.

Hail the size of grapefruit fell in some areas, while tornadoes were reported in Marion, Orange and Brevard counties, according to the National Weather Service. One twister touched down in Fellowship in Marion County, residents said.

"The trees are laying in the road blown to bits here," said Ralph Rudolph, who added that high winds blew off the roof at the Friendship Masonic Lodge.

In Orange County, a man hit by lightning near Winter Park was admitted to Winter Park

Memorial Hospital complaining of chest pains. He was placed on a heart monitor and in stable condition early today, a nursing supervisor said.

The forecast for tonight will be fair with a low in the lower to mid 50s and a north wind at 5 to 10 mph. Tomorrow skies will clear and continue to be sunny with a high in the lower 80s and a northwest wind at 10 mph.

The weekend looks partly cloudy Saturday and Sunday and mostly cloudy Monday with a chance of showers. Lows are forecasted to be 55 to 60 degrees with the highs in the mid and upper 70s.

In Orlando, residents reported wind and hail damage that included some collapsed roofs, broken windows, downed power lines and blown-out porch screening.

Municipal associations reviewed

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — They were started in 1989 as a way to bring unincorporated neighborhoods together to work for a common goal, but often, MSBUs have pitted neighbor against neighbor.

Tuesday, Seminole County commissioners voted to restrict the types of improvements that can be accomplished with MSBUs — municipal services benefits units. They also voted to require more residents of a neighborhood to agree to creating the assessment districts before the costly process is begun.

The MSBU program was created in 1989 to allow neighborhoods without mandatory homeowner's associations to develop plans for improvements such as drainage or street paving or walls and landscaped entrances and assess each property owner in the defined area a portion of the expense.

Since the county began helping neighborhoods to set up the assessment programs, 28 applications have been received but only nine have been created and three are still in the review process, said Peggy Flomerfelt, county MSU analyst. Of the applications received, 17 were for roadway improvements, seven were for aesthetic improvements and four for water service, Flomerfelt said.

Flomerfelt said about half of the applications for the 16 un-created MSBUs were withdrawn because the cost was much higher than residents wanted to pay. The other half failed because the community was divided, she said.

"We looked at these as a way to solve problems, but it created more problems than it solved," said county commissioner Fred Streetman. "Homeowners associations came to us to do this."

"The problem was philosophy," said county budget director Jean Kassab. "They hoped the MSBU process would pull neighborhoods together and what it did was it caused division."

To help limit problems, commissioners decided to eliminate walls and other aesthetic improvements. A controversy arose recently in a Seminole County neighborhood, Cedar Ridge, after county MSBU planners found a proposed wall would have to be built on individual homeowner's lots. Some wanted the wall, others did not. The wall was dropped from the plan.

Commissioners will now limit MSBUs to paving, drainage and any other "essential needs" of a neighborhood. Commissioners also increased the required percentage of approving property owners from 55 percent to 65 percent to assure MSBU proposals have wider acceptance before they are created.

Exams aren't over yet

Rams, Patriots have different goals for Slam Jam

By TONY DeBORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

LAKE MARY — With their nine-week exams now behind them, the Lake Mary Rams and Lake Brantley Patriots are approaching their next test in markedly different fashions.

Both schools' slowpitch softball teams will head south for the weekend to play in the Slam Jam III hosted by Fort Lauderdale-Westminster Academy, possibly the state's most prestigious non-state championship tournament.

But where the Rams are going in looking to prove themselves, the Patriots will just be trying to enjoy themselves.

"We definitely want to go down and play more than two games," said Lake Mary coach Jeannie Fisher, who will send the Rams against Class 4A state power Palm Beach Gardens at 7 p.m. Friday. "We want to see if we can be competitive with teams from southern part of the state. This will be a good test for us."

Fisher is anxious to get her team back on the diamond. When the season was put on hold for nine-week exams last Thursday, the Rams were coming off two of their strongest performances of the season.

"Being off this week and having no games has hurt us," said Fisher. "Now we're heading into the second half of the Seminole Athletic Conference schedule."

"We had given the kids a couple days off because of exams. Today (Wednesday) was the first practice we had this week and we looked pretty good. We hope to continue playing the way we played last week and build toward peaking at the district tournament."

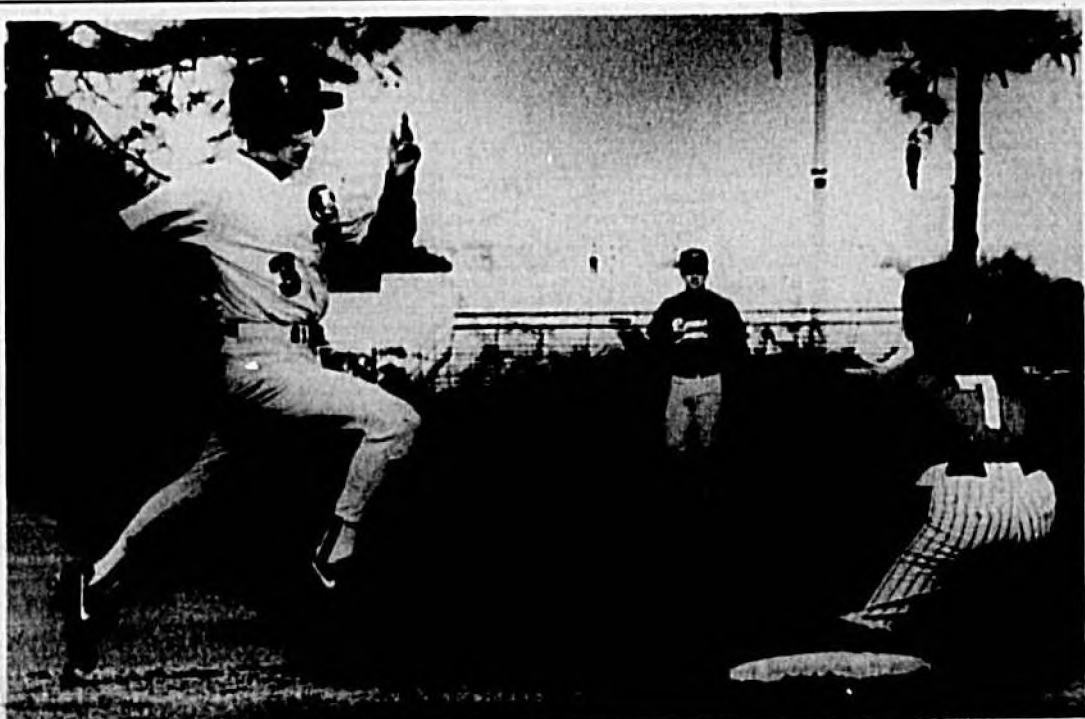

Coach Reny Betris and the Lake Brantley Patriots, who are going down a day early to play Palm Beach Gardens tonight before beginning play in the Slam Jam against Forest Hills at 7:30 p.m. Friday, hope the southern swing will help restore a degree of normalcy to their season.

"Our kids are really playing hard," said Betris. "In the past, when we would make a mistake or two, it wouldn't hurt us. We could rise above them. This season, it seems that one play is beating us. Everything seems to be magnified this year."

"We played two good games last week (beating Oviedo 13-3 and DeLand 21-3) before breaking for exams. We played really well offensively and defensively. We figured that the game with Oviedo was the jump start for the rest of our season."

As a result, Betris and the Patriots are not putting a lot of pressure on themselves to do anything more than go down and enjoy the experience.

"For us, it'll be more of a good time and a chance to get some good softball to," said Betris. "The girls had three fundraisers to cover the cost for this trip so that we can go down, stay three nights and enjoy playing in a very, very good tournament."

You can't beat Mother Nature

Rain washed out almost all of Wednesday night's schedule. Scott Ferguson (No. 3) and his Seminole teammates were in the second inning against Daytona Beach-Seabreeze when play was suspended.

At Lake Mary, Scott Johnston (No. 7) and the Rams never took the field against the Lyman Greyhounds. Seminole and Seabreeze will try again tonight while Lake Mary and Lyman rescheduled for April 2.

DAYTONA BEACH — How is a team supposed to react after losing for the first time, being ranked No. 1 in the state and going through nine-week exams, all in a six-day period?

Seminole High School baseball coach Mike Powers had no idea what to expect when he took the Seminoles, 18-1 and the top-ranked team in the Florida Sports Writers' Association Class 3A state poll this week, to Jackie Robinson Stadium Wednesday to play the hot-hitting Daytona Beach-Seabreeze Sanderabs.

"The kids seemed a little loose but they were a little tired after finishing exams," said Powers, whose team lost its first game last Friday after a season-opening 18-game win streak. "I was concerned how they'd react. We had to give them a pep talk before the game, but it didn't take long."

"The first inning was a little blasé, but in the second inning, Anthony Roberts led off with a walk. We tried to hunt him to second but Tony Duncan singled off pitcher's leg. We had runners in scoring position and we were back to the old Seminole we were two games ago."

Roberts scored and Seminole had runners at second and third with one out and a full count on John Lugering when the rains fell and the game was stopped. Powers said that the inclement weather dampened what has turned into an emotional evening once the Seminoles had shaken off the cobwebs that had accumulated over several days of inactivity.

"The kids were fired up," said Powers. "We had some alumni home for spring break who came out to see us play and that excited the guys. And we were playing on a former Major League field, where the Montreal Expos used to train. I had played there when I was with the Expos. We went into the clubhouse and told the kids the old stories. That seemed to pump them up."

As if all that weren't enough, the Sanderabs are probably the most important team the Tribe will face during its regular season other than the five other Seminole County schools.

"They're the team we have to get beat to get through the district," said Powers. "They're good enough to be a state-ranked team. I think they're something like 14-4 and they have two of the leading hitters in central Florida according to the newspaper."

"We beat Seabreeze 4-0 at Sanford Memorial Stadium earlier this month, but they've been scoring a bunch of runs lately while playing some good people. They're a good team."

The game was rescheduled for 7 p.m. this evening. Powers wasn't sure whether the game will be resumed with the Seminoles leading 1-0 in the top of the second inning or if they will start the game from scratch.

SCC grad Thigpen hopes to rebound from 'off' year

By JOE MOEHMIL
AP Sports Writer

SARASOTA — For most closing relievers, 30 saves is a major accomplishment. For Seminole Community College graduate Bobby Thigpen, it was a slump.

That's because Thigpen had saved a major league-record 57 games the previous season for the Chicago White Sox and was rewarded with a $3 million contract.

"I pretty much would have had to be perfect last year," said Thigpen, who was far from it. "There were boos and jeers and unfavorable comments from the fans. Thigpen heard them."

"Not when I was pitching because once you get out there, you don't hear anything. But you hear them when you're not in the game. Especially from fans who have had a few beers. They're the loudest. You hear the remarks but you learn to live with it."

Thigpen had 30 saves in 39 opportunities last season. He blew eight saves the previous year but that was lost because of his remarkable achievement. Not only the 57 saves but the 65 opportunities. And to emphasize the feat, the previous record was 46 saves by Dave Righetti in 1986.

"That was a once-in-a-career year," Thigpen said. "People have to realize that."

He also conceded that if he had had 38 or 39 saves last year, things wouldn't have looked so bad.

"Except for my teammates and people who follow the team, it wasn't a terrible year. It was just average. But it looked worse because of the previous year."

Thigpen thinks his problems last season might have started in spring training when he was used sparingly and had only 10 competitive innings.

"I never felt I got in rhythm all year," he said.

He had saves in his first four appearances. Then he had problems. An excellent stretch of 11 appearances between July 20 and Aug. 10 earned him two victories and seven saves when he didn't allow a run in 13 1-3 innings.

But it all blew up in his face late in the season. His earned run average soared to 3.49 after being 1.83 the previous season. And the fact that Scott Radnsky was going well as his setup man didn't sit well with his critics.

Thigpen, like most relievers, thrives on heavy work.

"Last year, I remember two or three times when I was off a week at a time," he said. "One time we played 10 games without me throwing."

He's getting more work this spring and he's also going to use his changeup, a pitch he abandoned last year.

But what of the looming shadow of the 24-year-old Radnsky?

"That doesn't bother me," Thigpen said. "Rad is a left hander. I'm a right hander. He throws hard. I throw hard. I know they're going to use him. That's not my job. My job is to get it done when I'm out there."

"I think if I go out there and get 35-36 saves, everybody will be happy. I'd love to get 40. But as long as we win the division, I could care less."

The White Sox aren't going to win any division if Thigpen is ineffective, though. Radnsky will get his chances but there's some question if he is ready to take on the heavy responsibility of being "The Closer" for a pennant contender.

"Radnsky will get his chances, but I still consider Thigpen my closer," new manager Gene Lamont said.

'Hounds blow away Sandcrabs

From Staff Reports

DAYTONA BEACH — Jamie Beland and Susan Willis each hit an inside-the-park home run during a six-run rally in the seventh inning that punctuated Lyman's 10-1 slowpitch softball win over the Daytona Beach-Seabreeze Sanderabs Wednesday afternoon at Bethune Point Park.

"It was an OK win," said Lyman coach Christy Tibbits after her team had improved to 10-3 and guaranteed themselves of having a winning season. "The wind was so bad. They were hitting everything in the air and the wind would hold it up. And we were just getting base hits here and there."

"The seventh inning was a good inning. We batted through the order once and everyone contributed. I also played a lot of different people today, so that was good."

Lyman took a 4-0 lead into the top of the seventh when Beland led off the with an home run down the third base line. An out later, Willis hit her round-tripper.

It was Beland's third home run of the season and Willis' first.

Michelle Bishop led Lyman's 13-hit attack with a 5-for-5 performance that included a double and three runs scored. Beland went 3-for-4 with her home run and a run scored while Willis was 2-for-4 with a home run and her run scored.

Andrea Godzisz, Jolie Beland and Carrie Seranton each contributed one single. Melondie Hillsman and Jill Mendelsohn each scored a pair of runs while Jamie Mendelsohn scored one run.

Willis was also the winning pitcher, helping to limit the Sandcrabs to six hits and a meaningless run in the seventh inning as she improved her personal record to 9-2.

Lyman will return to Seminole Athletic Conference play next Tuesday, when the Greyhounds visit Lake Mary for a showdown with the co-conference-leading Rams. Lyman and Lake Mary are both 5-1 in the SAC with four conference games remaining.

Spring ushered in with concert

SANFORD — The Spring Concert of the choirs of Seminole Community College will be held in the Fine Arts Concert Hall on the college campus on Sunday, at 3 p.m.

This will be in celebration of the 25th anniversary of the choral program at the college. Featured will be the Choral and Chorales under the direction of Dr. Burt Perinichief. Robin Lee Parker will accompany at the piano.

The SCC Chorale is the chamber choir of twenty-four voices and will perform a very varied program from Renaissance sacred music to madrigals to a Broadway medley based on popular tunes of George Gershwin, Cole Porter, Irving Berlin, and Henry Warren. Ellen Crell has choreographed the medley.

The Chorale is the concert choir of 36 singers. This group recently performed at the annual Intercollegiate Choral Festival in Lakeland under the auspices of the Florida-American Choral Directors Association. Chorales will present a versatile concert program including Randall Thompson's "A Feast of Praise," Ludwig von Beethoven's spoof of the metronome in tribute to its inventor, Maelzel, and representative works from four centuries of choral music.

The two groups will close the concert with several massed numbers. The public is cordially invited to attend the concert and there will be no admission charge.

Husband wants the story of wife's hard-core books

DEAR ABBY: I am concerned about my wife. I have found books that are very hard-core pornographic in nature hidden in my home. The books are novels, not picture-type magazines. They describe women having sexual encounters with men who come to their door, and similar fantasies. I came upon them accidentally.

The books are very descriptive and are causing me a great deal of concern. I have not mentioned this to my wife since he has hidden them from me. I did not go looking for them, but found them under "her" side of the bed while I was painting the room during a week of vacation.

These books cannot be purchased in a regular bookstore, but can be purchased in an adult bookstore. We have a very good sex life and do not have any problems other than the ordinary problems of money and raising two children for the past 25 years that we have been married. I subscribe to Playboy magazine, but she reads it and it is in our home without being hidden.

I thought that we were open with each other about issues, but this has thrown me for a loop. She reads these books sometimes at night before bed, and as soon as I enter the room, she covers them up and hides them. I do not know where else she reads them, but while washing her car, I found some when I cleaned the interior.

ADVICE

Why is she hiding these books from me? Why is she all of a sudden reading them? What should I do about this? The deception has me rather uneasy. We both read novels with sexual activities as part of the story line, but not the entire body of the book.

CONCERNED LOUISIANA HUSBAND DEAR CONCERNED HUSBAND: Since you and your wife have no problems other than the "usual" after 25 years of marriage, perhaps your wife has hidden the books because she is not as comfortable discussing sexual fantasies as you had supposed. Men are usually more stimulated by the visual — your Playboy magazine is a good example. Women, however, are sometimes more aroused by the written word. If you feel deceived, talk to her about what you have discovered. But I don't think the books are a threat to your marriage, any more than her wanting to keep some of her fantasies to herself.

DEAR ABBY: Last week, my husband's aunt and I were talking at a relative's wedding reception. She asked me how long Joe and I had been married. When I told her, she signed a deep sigh and said, "Your wedding was Joe's funeral."

I said, "Excuse me?" She then repeated herself in exactly the same sad tone, so I asked her what she meant by that remark. She replied, "Well, Joe was much more fun when he was drinking."

Abby, when we first met, Joe was a big drinker, but he gave it up and made a pledge on our wedding day that he would never have another drink. He has kept that pledge, and we have a good marriage and a beautiful family. Don't you think Joe's aunt's remark was mean and ugly?

HURT IN ST. PAUL DEAR HURT: I would say it was more a combination of stupidity and ignorance.

GARAGE SALE GUIDELINES 1. Advertise what people want! Children's clothing, shoes, collectibles, tools, books and antiques are the most popular items. 2. Make it convenient to shop at your garage sale! Be sure there is adequate parking space. Post signs with directions to parking areas. Make arrangements with neighbors. 3. Make it easy to pay! Have plenty of change and a system for handling. Make sure one person is on duty at all times at a centralized location, preferably with a calculator or adding machine. 4. Provide prices. Do not make every person ask, "How much is this?" Prices make for quick, effective sales or a good place for customers to start bargaining. 5. Get an early start. Set up displays the evening before, if possible. 6. Depreciate/Donate. Separate the inexpensive items from the more costly ones. Bring furniture, clothing, toys, lawn equipment and other items with similar merchandise. 7. Specialize. Establish one area for "Under $5" another for "Under $1". Consider having a batch of items that are "FREE" with purchase of $5. Remember the youngsters, too! Offer items with the small, low priced items that are appropriate for this purpose. 8. Time your sale strategically! Have it at a time when most people are at home and unconcerned with special events. 9. Combine your efforts! Incorporate your sale with a neighbor for more variety and greater impact. 10. Be specific! When advertising your sale in the newspaper, list individual items. Don't simply say, "several things available." Each time you list an item, you are broadening the list of potential customers. 11. Be generous! If you have items left over, give them to a charitable organization. If you see that some items are not moving well during the sale, mark them down during the last hours. Remember, the prime reason for holding the sale is to put your unwanted items into cash!

Could fatigue be linked to chronic depression?

DEAR DR. GOTT: After 2 1/2 years I was diagnosed with chronic depression and chronic fatigue syndrome. My doctor says they go hand in hand. What information can you provide?

DEAR READER: People often become depressed from feeling constantly tired. Therefore, depression and chronic fatigue DO go hand in hand. The problem that stumps the experts, however, is whether depression is a cause of the chronic fatigue syndrome.

My answer is: in some cases. This is the reason that a trial of anti-depressant medicine is appropriate for the chronically fatigued patient who seems depressed. In fact, many authorities have recommended anti-depressant drugs, such as Elavil, for all chronic fatigue sufferers. Of course, this therapy is given after tests to rule out a physical cause for the symptoms.

The syndrome, consisting of exhaustion, swollen glands and sore throat, is difficult to diagnose. Some patients seem to suffer from persisting Epstein-Barr virus infection ("chronic mononucleosis"), whereas other patients may have undiagnosed Lyme disease or underactive thyroid disorders.

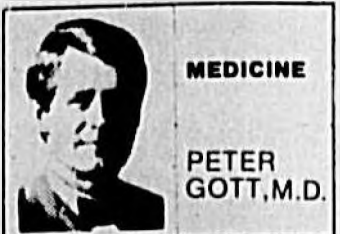

Therefore, any patient with chronic fatigue syndrome deserves a full examination and a truckload of blood tests to discover hidden physical ailments. If all the tests are normal, anti-depressant medicine is a good next option.

To give you further information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Mental and Emotional Illness."

DEAR DR. GOTT: It seems the study of the French custom of drinking red wine has been the subject of several articles I've read recently. I'm surprised you didn't point out that cholesterol can be lowered by eating red grapes or drinking grape juice, rather than drinking wine and suffering from alcohol consumption. Resveratrol is present on fresh grapes, according to two articles I've read.

DEAR READER: Thank you for writing. I was not aware that resveratrol, the natural substance purported to prevent heart disease, is present in grape juice. Of course, you would have to eat many grapes a day to equal the amount of resveratrol in three or four glasses of red wine, but I can certainly appreciate that grape juice might be a logical substitute for the teetotaler.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

An anonymous person once wrote, "Whatever you do, do cautiously, and look to the end." He would have made a great bridge player. Today's deal highlights how important it can be to analyze a deal fully. One wrong step and the contract fails, but if you are cautious, you will arrive home safely.

To test yourself, cover the East-West cards and plan the play in six diamonds. West leads the club queen.

After six natural bids, there were two cue-bids followed by a sign-off in six diamonds. South has two potential losers: one in each black suit. Obviously, if the spades are breaking 3-3, there will be no problem. But if they are dividing worse than that, care is needed. Most declarers would win trick one with the club ace, cash the K-Q of diamonds, play off the spade king and try to cross to the spade ace. When East ruffs, is it bad luck or bad play?

The latter. The right line after drawing two rounds of trumps is to cross immediately to the spade ace. When you lead a low spade, what can East do? If he ruffs, you play low from hand. In a moment, you will discard dummy's club loser on the spade queen and then ruff your club loser in the dummy.

So East discards. You win with the spade king, play a heart to dummy's ace and lead dummy's last spade. Once more East must discard. But now you win with the spade queen and ruff your spade loser with dummy's diamond ace. You lose just one trick — a club.
