Kristin Huff can't wait to visit Australia this summer as a 'people' ambassador.

Seventh-grader selected to serve as Ambassador

By VICKI DeSORMIER Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — It's like a dream come true. When Kristin Huff got the call telling her she had been chosen to be an Ambassador for the People to People program, she was thrilled.

This summer, the leadership program will bring together some of the top young people in the world to learn and to discuss pressing issues facing world leaders.

Huff will represent the state of Florida's seventh graders, her mother Tammy Huff sald. "She is representing the best of the country," she said. "They extend a hand of friendship to | | See Ambassador, Page 5A

After fire, work on new kennels still lags

By SHARI BRODIE Herald Stall Writer

SANFORD — Ron Hardee, Humane Society of Seminole County board member and building chairman is ever optimistic that bids will soon be let for the actual building phase of the new dog kennel at the Humane Society shelter.

As the second anniversary of the tragle fire that killed 73 dogs at the Humane Society shelter approaches, work still lags on completing a kennel for dogs who remain in temporary housing conditions.

Hardce stated in April of 1994, that all issues had been addressed and when all engineering specifications were completed and final county approvals obtained, construction bids could be sought. Eleven months later, that is still the

But, Hardee said, in a recent interview, a two-tofive-year timetable on a project such as this is not at all unusual. "This is a state-of-the-art facility," Hardee said, and delays are to be expected.

The board is still awaiting presentation of final specifications from the architect. Hugh Gonzalez, of Gonzalez Heydrich Design, Inc., is donating all of his time in the preparation of the plans, an amount that would come to approximately $60,000, Hardee said. "He will make sure all of the i's are dotted and the t's crossed."

Teen files complaint against rock diva

ORLANDO - A teen-ager who attended a Courtney Love concert accused the punk rock diva of punching him. Ryan O'Donell, 17, filed a misdemeanor complaint against Love on Saturday. He says the singer slugged him about five times in the chest when she performed with her band, Hole, on

The next morning, his chest was sore and red, according to the complaint filed with the Orlando Police Department. Love, the widow of Nirvana's Kurt Cobain, routinely dives into the crowd while performing. But fans at The Edge club in Orlando say she not only dove, but punched out at members of the audience because someone made derogatory remarks. Authorities plan to search for witnesses before forwarding O'Donell's complaint to the Orange-Osceola State Attorney's Office, said Orlando Police Lt. Jerry Demings. "This was just totally uncailed for," said the boy's mother. Dolores O'Donell. "I don't even hit my son. If you or I did that, we'd end up in jail. I think she's completely out of order."

Clam rustling case investigation

COCOA - Florida Marine Patrol officers continue to build their case against two alleged clam rustiers. Authorities searched a clam business here last week and confiscated a number of items that may be linked to two men arrested this week in Cedar Key on stealing clams.

"We have some people coming in Monday to look at the equipment recovered today from Space Coast Clams. We're going to see if we can tie up some loose ends, but the investigation will probably go on for several more weeks." said Major Alan Maraden, Florida Marine Patrol. What brought law enforcement officials to Cocoa was the arrest on Wednesday of Bill Brewster Terry, 33, of Palm Bay: and Collier Lanel Clemons, 38, of Cocoa; in Cedar Key. Police on the west coast had observed the two in a van registered to Space Coast Clams coming and going in fishing areas at night for several months.

They suspected the two of drug trafficking, but when they arrested them Wednesday they found clams, not dope. Terry and Clemons were arrested on several federal, state and local charges including grand theft, possession of POLK CITY - The state has taken a first step towards paying more than $6 million to property owners who agree never to develop their lands in the environmentally sensitive Green Members of the Green Swamp Land Authority voted Friday to send Gov. Lawton Chiles a list of nine recommended If the list is approved by the authority and by the governor, commercial and residential development will be permanently precluded in 9 square miles deemed critical to Florida's water supply. The owners will keep the land, and can continue ranching or farming it.

The proposed prices for acquiring these development rights are higher than water management districts have paid in many cases to buy the land outright.

The appraisers hired by the authority all favored paying 75 percent of the full value of Green Swamp land to owners willing to forego development. They recommended that the authority pay a total of $6.6 million to keep about 5,800 acres in agricultural use, or more than $1,100 per acre. The Green Swamp area encompasses about 300,000 acres in Lake and Polk counties. At the land values set by the appraisers, the authority is likely to acquire less than one-tenth of that area with the money available.

OCALA - The sexual abuse allegations horrifled the community: A 48-year-old father was accused of infecting six daughters and stepdaughters with syphilis, and getting two of them pregnant.

But what happened next raised broader fears: The state agency charged with protecting Fiorida's children bungled the case so badly that for years little was done, the agency's secretary

From 1986 until April 1993, when the father was finally arrested, the state's child abuse hotline received 18 tips that the family's 14 children could be victims of neglect and sexual

The children weren't removed from the home until 1993, when one of the stepdaughters said she had given birth to her stepfather's child. "When the mother doesn't protect the children and the father is preying on the children, and the children themselves keep changing their stories, it makes it harder," says Jim Towey, secretary of the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services. "But there's still no excuse for sloppy casework. ... This was just a bumbled case." Former neighbors of the family in a middle-class neighborhood just off a busy commercial thor-oughfare have told police and reporters they didn't know what was going on. Patricia, a retired elementary school teacher who didn't want her last name used, called the case "absolutely appailing." She has followed this and other child abuse cases closely, she said, and she placed some of the blame on the constant turnover of social workers. "Different workers get different stories all the time, but I think these kids were obviously painfully, afraid," she said. Think about the animals

The Humane Society of Seminole County has long been like a Cinderella in need of a fairy godmother.

Torn and tattered, ravaged by a fire that two years ago killed 73 dogs, weakened in the past by in-fighting and lack of consistent direction, HSSC has needed someone to pull it up out of the ashes, wash its face and send it off to the ball to meet Prince Charming.

Accommodations at the shelter were temporary when things were put into place 25 years ago. Building of the "state-of-the-art" kennels, to replace the kennels burned in the April 1993 fire, has experienced more false starts than a swim meet. In the meantime, pupples and kittens are crammed into every conceivable space at the shelter while energies are focused on giving the best care available in adverse conditions.

The public rallied to support the HSSC

The public rallied to support the HSSC immediately after the fire. Volunteers helped clean up the mess and make accommodations for the dogs who survived the fire. Monetary contributions rolled in, earmarked for the rebuilding project, showing a great deal of local support for the effort of the Humane Society. A recent single donation of $5,000 serves to punctuate this feeling.

But while popular support is obvious, board members are frustrated by the red tape they have had to fight in order to get their new kennels built. Placing the society in an awkward position, as permits and plans for building were being prepared, HSSC had to seek approval from both the city of Sanford and Seminole County. Part of the site is located in Sanford and part of the site is located in unincorporated Seminole County. Meeting the requirements of both jurisdictions has resulted in delays of up to 18 months. The HSSC proposes to provide a facility that will be a "boon" to the county, easing the burden placed on animal control. "They haven't cut us any slack at all," said Ron Hardee, board member and building chairman.

Now it appears that all of the roadblocks have been removed, but pity the poor animals who have suffered through all of the posturing.

It could almost be compared to the ugly step-sisters, fighting over the glass slipper.

LETTER

Sincere appreciation

This letter is written to express our sincere appreciation for all the positive feelings we experienced while our son, Chaz, played basketball under the supervision of Coach Blake of Sanford Middle. Coach Blake is the kind of coach/teacher of which this world needs more. He always emphasized the positives of working together as a team. The respect these teen-agers have for Coach Blake is immeasurable. It showed many times, but especially when he would be running a little late because of his duties to his church on Sunday mornings. His team would organize and warm up with such class, you'd think he was there watching. It amazed us. His love and dedication to the youth of our world shows through in his coaching. Thank you, Sanford Middle School, and thank you, Coach Blake, for what you taught Chaz - to be a team player first, and if you work hard enough, anything is possible.

Plundering Social Security trust funds

WASHINGTON — Hats off to the U.S. Senate for giving an eleventh-hour thumbs down to the current version of the balanced budget amendment.

The vote indicates the Senate was rightfully insistent that any proposed balanced budget amendment should not include the Social Security trust funds. Proponents, in casting their votes, were equally insistent that the amendment just couldn't work without those trust funds.

That's because Congress has long been looking for a way to get its hands on the trust funds as a quick means of deficit reduction. Fortunately, there were enough supporters of the hugely successful anti-poverty program that just couldn't agree to its demise.

The proposed constitutional amendment would have relied heavily on the annual surpluses of the Social Security trust funds — payroll taxes paid by working Americans — to rescue Congress from its budgetary mess. In reality, including Social Security in the balanced budget amendment is a charade which delays balancing the budget until after 2013, because Social Security receipts will continue to generate a surplus until that time. That surplus would have been used to mask the general fund deficit. So proponents weren't, in fact, voting to balance the budget. They were instead voting to continue this charade and continue deficit spending by using the trust funds to mask the deficit. This is not only an inappropriate use of the trust funds, it is also a grossly inequitable way to finance deficit reduction, since the regressive payroil tax favors upper income taxpayers at the expense of lower and middle income workers and younger workers.

America's workers invested in their future, and contributed their fair share from their wages. This balanced budget amendment would have rested the burden of the general fund deficit on the shoulders of Social Security beneficiaries. It's a back door way of using the Social Security trust funds to reduce the deficit, thus avoiding the unpopular tax increases that might otherwise be necessary.

The unique nature of Social Security makes it the only program which deserved to be off the table. The search should continue for ways to get spending in the government's general revenue budget under control. Raiding the Social Security program, as many senators realized, isn't a permanent solution. As lawmakers also recognized, any version of the balanced budget amendment that didn't exclude Social Security shouldn't be approved.

Americans of all generations should thank the courageous members of the Senate who voted to prevent Congress from using the Constitution to legitimize their continued abuse of Social Security trust funds. We owe them a great deal of gratitude.

Welfare reform and statutory rape

BOSTON — Do you ever get the feeling that someone is missing from the debate about welfare reform? The other parent? The father? The sperm donor? Men?

As the Congress writes ever more punitive acenarios for mothers and children, the male of the species barely geta a cameo role. The only part he plays is as deadbeat dad. The only interest the lawmakers have shown is in establishing his DNA. The only policy they are talking about is getting a better grip on his wallet.

I have no problem with these proposals. But much of the welfare debate is focused on the never-married poor mothers — the women who get on welfare the earliest and stay the longest. The men in their lives don't exactly have deep pockets.

The favorite proposal of the moment, to deny cash benefits to any minor mother, comes with a prayer that it will prevent other pregnancies. The theory is that if the government gives girls an economic reason to say no, they'll control male sexual behavior.

But in real life, as opposed to think tanks and hearing rooms, the picture is a little different.

In real life, three-quarters of the girls who have sex before they are 14 say they were coerced. In real life, two out of every three teen-age mothers are impregnated by a man over 20. In real life 400 teen-agers are impregnated by men over 25 every day. And in real life, 30 percent of the 15-year-old mothers have partners who are at least six years older.

We are not talking about powerful girls in equal relationships. In the inner-city culture that sociologist Elijah Anderson describes with terrible poignancy, a sexual "game" goes on.

terrible poignancy, a sexual "game" goes on.

"The girls have a dream," he says, "The boys have a desire. The girls dream of being carried off by a Prince Charming who will love them, provide for them, and give them a family. The boys often desire sex without commitment or babies without responsibility for them."

The men who win status in the eyes of their peers are the ones "who are able to get over the sexual defenses of women. For many the object is to hit and run while maintaining personal freedom and independence..."

In this game, the older male is an easy winner. A 13-year-old girl is by no means on a level playing field with an 18-year-old boy. Nor is a 15-year-old on a par with a 26-year-old. To put it bluntly, a substantial number of the men are what can only be called sexual predators. A substantial number of the teenage mothers are what we used to call jailbait. Remember jailbait? Maybe we ought to think about changing the sexual behavior of men as well as women. Maybe men — fathers as well as mothers — ought to face consequences.

Maybe statutory rape is an idea whose time should return.

Statutory rape was the creation of a double standard. It implied that a girl below a certain age was too young to consent to sex. The object of the law was to protect female virtue. The subject of the law was likely to be a 17-year-old boy hauled to court by the trate parents of a 15-year-old girl.

But in the era of sexual liberation and equality, the old laws were rewritten. We went from a double standard of gender to a single standard of power.

Today the object of the law is not female chastity but sexual abuse. And the subject is generally an older man or woman who has sex with an underage child. Statutory rape laws

Statutory rape laws are still used in some bizarre cases. We all remember Joey Buttafuoco, 37, who was convicted for having sex with Amy Fisher. 18. They're still offered as a plea bargain for men charged with violent rape. But they're rape. But they're used rarely, and usually against adults — such as teachers — who violate society's belief that they should protect, not exploit, the young.

We went from a double standard of gender to a

I know that dusting off the laws and applying them to men who father children with young teens has its limits. We have different views of coercion and of consent than we used to. Teen-age mothers could become more reluctant to point the paternity finger. I'm wary of matching a policy that throws mothers on the streets with one that throws fathers in jail.

But look at the figures. Look at the culture. We're talking about adult men and adolescent girls. We're talking about "the game." You don't have to be a Victorian to believe that society has an obligation to defend our young. Or that we have an obligation to state this clearly, publicly, unequivocally.

These days we are quick to attack teen-age mothers. How about trying to protect them? Tell the girls they're too young. But send the word out to men. The word is, "jailbait."

JOSEPH SPEAR

Third-Wave Newt comes unglued I really don't like to be the first to raise an indelicate subject, but somebody has to do it, so here goes.

I think it's time we considered the possibility that House Speaker Newt Gingrich has become a wee bit unglued.

We know by now, of course, that Newt is afflicted with logorrhea -- unrestrained and sometimes wacky talkativeness. Put another way, he is a chronic motor mouth.

Since Newt took control of the country, we have been treated to some fairly bizarre commentary on such compelling issues as the female's tendency to contract ting in wet ditches and the male's yearning to hunt-giraffes. We have heard it argued that poor folks could mitigate their miseries with laptop computers. We've been treated to considerable technobabble about some sort of Third Wave that is

We know, also, that Newt has a tendency to shoot from the hip. Bill and Hill are "McGovernicks." The Food and Drug Administration is "the leading job killer in America." The notion of national service is "coerced voluntarism."

We know that Newt doesn't seem to care that his facts are often not factual. He spoke about a 10-year-old student in St. Louis who was suspended for asking God's blessings on his cafeteria meals. It was not true. He told how the FDA refused to approve an innovative heart pump. It was not true. He rattled on and on about a "federal shelter" in Denver that was outperformed by a private facility down the street. It was not true.

So let us accept that Newt is a prattler, a careless accuser, an irresponsible teller of tales. That still does not explain why he made the preposterous charge the other day that newsrooms across America are riddled with "socialists."

He really said this. He told a group of corporate executives that editorial boards are shot through with "socialists" who are the "mortal enemy" of the Republican revolution and that they, the businessmen, "ought to go to the publishers and tell them" they object and will pull their advertising if their papers don't start getting things right.

Apparently. Newt has been reading too much tendentious literature from right-wing think-tanks which study such matters and conclude, through their unimpeachably objective research, that journalists are the next thing to communists.

The fact is, most mainstream reporters pay far less attention to politicians' politics than they do to the length of their wooden noses. The fact is, most newspapers endorse Republican presidential candidates. The fact is, op-ed pages these days are packed with conservative pundits.

Indeed. I often wonder where all the socialists have gone. Occasionally, some daffy academic writes a utopian book, but most of them have been in hiding since about 1984. I recently saw a guy in a red plaid shirt handing out literature on the street and asked if he was a socialist but it turned out he was a Republican politician trying to look like a working man.

There is a possibility, of course, that Newi is not becoming unglued but has been injected by some mad scientist with DNA material from a gaggle of mean or myopic Republicans who have strutted the public stage over the past half century.

Before intermission the group Benjamin joined Reality Check for more power-packed and spirited melodies. The audience joined in the chorus of "Our God is an Awesome God," while smiles and tears filled the auditorium.

Their rap rendition of "There's not a Friend Like the Lowly Jeaus" left several in the older crowd with a grin on their face. This traditional hymn with a new twist and beat made an obvious appeal to the youth.

Commissioner George Duryea noted that with the water back at its present level now, he felt the city shouldn't do anything at this point.

Mayor Rockett Instructed Holland and the city staff to revisit some of the valve heights originally established for the pond drainage, and look into the possibility of conducting a bor-, ing operation.

While the cost for such boring wasn't immediately known, Rockett said he estimated the cost to be possibly $1,000 to $2,000 or even less.

On July 1, 1979, Longwood Health Care Center, Inc. issued $2.1 million of first mortgage revenue bonds to construct a 120-bed nursing care facility. The issuer leased the project to Mediplex, Inc. for 25 years. Beverly Enterprises acquired the facility from Mediplex in 1982 and currently leases and operates the care center.

HRS discovered "a series of mistakes" in April 1993 that resulted in the agency's failure to take any substantial action in the case, according to a report issued in June of that year by administrator Don Dixon, who had just taken over the Children and Families Program in Marion County.

A heavy caseload, high personnel turnover, low morale and a breakdown in communications hampered the child abuse investigations, according to Dixon and Mary Rogers, the program administrator who had supervision over the case at that time.

When Ms. Rogers eventually compiled all the reports on the case, she and sheriff's officers went to the rundown mobile home where the family was then living and interviewed the oldest girl, who had just turned 15. The stepdaughter then reluctantly admitted her stepfather was the father of her 9-month-old baby, Ms. Rogers said.

"I like to help out," she said. But, now, Huff needs some help from others if she is going to be able to make the trek to the southern bemisphere.

"I need to have $5,000 by the first of April if I'm going to be able to go," she said. As part of the leadership program, she is expected to raise the money for the trip herself.

The Lake Mary Rotary Club is sponsoring a raffle to help raise money. Anyone who wants to help out by buying a ticket or in any other way can call Tammy Huff at 830-8141.

Huff will earn high school credit for the experience, but more than that she'll earn invaluable education about life in another part of the world.

"I'm very excited about that," said Huff. While in Australia, she will attend school with the people with whom she will be living:

she will live among some indigenous people for a day to learn their ways and she will have the chance to swim at the Great Barrier Roef.

"I can't wait." she said.

Grasso said he wanted to die rather than linger in prison. Republican George Pataki vowed during his successful campaign against Cuomo last year that he would send Grasso back to Oklahoma and reinstate the death penalty. Within days of taking office, Pataki ordered

Grasso transferred to Oklahoma.

In the final hours before he was to receive a lethal injection. Grasso wrote a poem which began: "Ready, willing, and waiting am I, asked for death but could not die. Each sunrise is one day less, I'll endure this horrible mess.' For his last meal, Grasso was given steamed mussels, a cheeseburger, spaghetti and meatballs, and a strawberry milkshake.

Grasso was convicted in New York of strangling 81-year-old Leslie Holtz in July 1991. He then confessed to killing 87-year-old Hilda Johnson of Tulsa on Christmas Eve 1990. He strangled Johnson with an extension cord from her Christmas tree in a robbery that netted only $4 in change and a television set.

Grasso, 32, asked to be executed for the Oklahoma murder. But Cuomo, a fervent death penalty opponent, fought to have Grasso first serve his New York sentence.

Journey of discovery Seminole track teams take fact-finding trips

Prom Staff Reports

In, order to find out where they are, the Seminole High School track teams had to hit the road this past weekend, the boys traveling to Fort Myers to participate in the Edison Relays while the girls ran in the Bob Hayes Invitational in Jacksonville.

According to their coaches, the Seminoles found what they were looking for

"We had mixed results," said Seminole boys' coach Ken Brauman, whose team finished third with a team score of 53 behind Fort Myers (71) and Naples-Barron Collier (70). "We were OK in some events and terrible in others.

"It was a good meet for us. The hard part was that it was the first real meet where we've had preliminaries and finals. And it showed. Also, everybody got to compete. We're pretty inexperienced in a lot of events. The entire team got to run this weekend, which was important."

According to Seminole girls' coach Nate Perkins, the trip to Jacksonville was the first step in the Tribe's preparations to try and repeat as state champions.

"It was a very close meet all the way around." said Perkins, noting that the Seminoles were a close fourth (37) behind Gainesville-Buchholz (54), Miami-Southridge and Palm Beach Lakes.

"This gave us a chance to see where we're at at this stage of the season. I was impressed with a lot of our performances. And we have some young girls who should be able to contribute by the end of the season. It's just a matter of time." The performance for the Seminoles boys was turned in by the 4 x 400-meter relay of Ansel Jackson, Derrick Swain, Charlie Farmer, Derriko Shaw, who turned in a first-place time of 3:26.0.

Seminole's 4 x 800-meter relay of Antone Groomes, Willie Lawson, Eigin Holloway, and Donnell Williams finished second in 8:26.4 while the 4 x 100-meter relay of Jackson, Swain, Farmer, and Cliff Branch placed third at 42.9.

Shaw contributed thirds in both the 110-meter high hurdles (15.1) and 300-meter intermediate hurdles (41.1). Farmer was second in the 100-meter dash (10.8) while Jackson came in fourth in the 200-meter dash (22.1).

Seminole's only points in the field events came in the triple jump, where Williams finished fifth with a leap of 43 feet, 4 inches and Robert Ruffin placed sixth (42-11). Belinder Morgan led the Seminole girls by winning the triple jump at 39-5, currently the best girls' leap in the state.

SANFORD - Rain washed out two of the three games scheduled for the Opening Day of the Sanford Little Major Baseball League at Roy Holler Memorial Field Saturday, but the game that was played was worth the price of admission.

Frank Martin ended a nine-inning marathon, drawing a one-out, bases-loaded walk in the bottom of the ninth, forcing in Joseph Gunter ingsworth gave up one uncarned (in with the winning run as the Stairs Realty/Hopkins Meats White Sox edged the Marlins 5-4.

The starting pitchers for both clubs were nearly flawless over the first six innings (the maximum a Little Major can throw in one game). For the Marlins, John Kill-

Both teams then plated three runs each in the seventh inning, keeping the game tied at 4-4 and setting the stage for the bottom of the ninth. Joey Blake and Gunter drew walks to open the inning and Lee Fredrick singled to load the bases. Glee Sanford, Page 2B

Today's topic: team nicknames. We touched on this momentarily last week, when Major League Baseball granted life to the Tampa Bay Devil Rays and the Arisona Diamondbacks. That's as good a sign as any that we've reached the saturation point of professional aports expansion: apparently, we've run out of good nicknames.

The last wave of expansion, which naw the number of professional sports teams in the Florida jump from two to 11 (not counting the D-Rays or any of the United States Inter-Regional Soccer League franchises), gave us some decent names: · Tampa Bay Lightning and Florida Panthers

Oriando Magic and Miami Heat Florida Marlina O Jacksonville Jaguars

Orlando Predators, Tampa Bay Thunder, and Miami Hooters State-wise, we were on a roll.

Then we land the Devil Rays. I guess we were due for a stinker. Some Seminole County residents

Also, you want something that sounds good in a war cry, something that can be hollered at the top of your lungs without sounding ridiculous. "Block that kick, Tailors," or "Hold that line, Butterwill be faced with the task of flys" just doesn't cut it. selecting a nickname when Winter

In his book, "The Worth Book of Softball: A Celebration of America's True National Pasttime," Paul Dickson includes the 10 commandments of softball, No. 7 of which is germaine to the subject:

hard industrial-patriotic name. American River or Eagle Masonry has a built-in two-run edge over Ed's Lounge or the Beerhunters.

And, political correctness aside, if nicknames have a gender, it's generally male. Even women's teams of a school take them, regardless if there's a plausible female alternative. Instead of Ewes or Cows (we won't get into female dogs), it's Lady Rams and Lady Bulls.

(As a matter of technical style, the Sanford Herald does not use gender designations with nicknames.)

Ultimately, when it comes to sports teams, fair Juliet is wrong. A team's destiny can be influenced by its monicker. It's tough to be taken seriously, regardless of how talented you may be, if the team name is overly cute, oratorically clumsy, or easily twisted into something profanc.

While we're on the subject, just what is a Jasper?

Chemical pesticides reviewed Common sense approach helps control pests

Safe pesticide usage is a major concern for everyone these days and everyone seems to be looking for environmentally safe pest control. If you feel like Florida has more pest problems than other places, you are probably right. We flock to Florida for the mild climate. This mild climate is also the perfect environment for pests, such as insects, diseases, weeds and nematodes. Our warm temperatures provide year round growing conditions for plants and pests which often makes it necessary for year round pesticide usage. Because our environment is so fragile in Florida, the University of Florida/IFAS has developed a more integrated approach to pest control: one that utilizes chemical control as a last resort. The new approach is called Integrated Pest Management of IPM.

The first step in IPM is to be aware that minor damage to our plants is acceptable. When chemical pesticides are used they can destroy beneficial insects as well as the ones we consider pests and can even cause pests to become a bigger problem in the long run. Often pesticides are used in haste, for pests that would usually not become a major problem if left untreated. Complete control is not practical in the landscape, and pests should be chemically controlled only when excessive damage is likely.

Overwatering, over fertilization and improper mowing are all examples of landscape practices that can contribute in making lawns and landscapes more susceptible to pests. The informed gardener can reduce pesticide usage by avoiding these practices and using a combination of pest control strategies (IPM). Pesticide use can be lowered by taking proper care of your yard and using pesticides to minimise pests and their damage, not to eradicate them. An IPM program involves monitoring your yard weekly, because early detection makes successful control more likely and often means handpicking or pruning infested plant parts will be enough.

The best and easiest control methods are usually preventative measures that mostly involve changes in the way that we care for our landscapes. For instance, overwatering promotes a shallow root system and can lead to root rot. In addition to higher maintenance costs more frequent pruning and mowing will be required. Overwatering also causes pesticides and fertilizers to leach into lakes, rivers and retention ponds. Over fertilizing creates excessive new growth that is inviting to chinch bugs, sod webworms, nematodes and brown paich fungus disease. Mowing at the proper height is also crucial to lawn care. A lawn that is mowed too low results in the removal of too much leaf surface and prevents the leaf from absorbing sufficient sunlight for food production. When the lawn is moved higher, a denser turf with a deeper root system develops and helps to shade out weeds and thus reduces the need for chemical herbicides. Get into the habit of sharpening the blades on a regular basis because dull blades leave a jagged edge that is more susceptible to disease. If pests do become a problem, first seek a pesticide considered safe for the environment (and you) and spot treat the affected area and a buffer zone around it. Materials that are effective against most insect pests and are safer for the environment include highly refined horticulture oil. Bacilius thuringiensis (BG) and insecticidal scap. Scape and oils are widely used by homeowners and even commercial landscapers. A "homemade" mixture of dish soap and vegetable oil can also be substituted for bottled brands.

Basically the key to IPM involves a common sense approach to pest control which utilizes careful weekly monitoring, proper watering, fertilizing and mowing and spot treatment only with pesticides. Realize that some damage is expected and should be tolerated if it is not excessive.

If you have specific questions or concerns about properly caring for your landscape, call us at the Cooperative Extension Service. 323-2500, ext. 5550 or 5558, or bring questions and samples to our plant clinic on Mondays from 9 a.m. until noon.

Wife regards porno movies as 'degrading' while I was in the tub at a motel. my husband got a porno movie on the pay-TV channel. On returning to bed, when I saw what he was watching, I refused to watch it with him. I thought it was degrading to women, and I told him so.

When the movie was over, my husband wanted to get affectionate, but I told him to buzz off. He turned over and went to

> DEAR ABBY: While cleaning out a drawer, I ran across an old column of yours. It was about a lady who lost her 2-year-old daughter in a Bears store in Garden Grove, Calif. They would not announce the lost child over the loudspeaker for fear that someone with evil intentions might kidnap the child. I can't imagine anything more terrifying than losing a child in a large store. A few months ago, my sister lost her 16-month-old daughter in Mervyn's in Mess, Aris. She went to a sales clerk, who announced a "Code Two" over the loudspeaker. Then the employees each went to a door. No customers were permitted to enter or leave the store until the child was found. (An employee found my niece hiding in a clothing rack.) I think this a wonderful idea.

D.J.T. IN CUT BANK, MONT. DEAR D.J.T.: Mervyn's and Sears should be commended for their wise policies on protecting children.

could see no reason for this problem. The guilt I felt was devastating.

Finally, out of desperation, 1 sought out a urologist who specialises in sexual dysfunction. I felt embarraced and defeated, and after many tests and some lab work were completed, the verdict was that I had gone through male midlife change. (I thought that happened only to women. I was wrong. It happens to men, too.)

For me, the solution was an injection every three weeks and a small pill three times a day. Now I feel like I'm 25 again - and so does my wife.

I'm writing to encourage other men to seek help for this problem. There are many different therapies available. What is right for one man may not be right for another, but help is available if you're man enough to seek it out. You may use my name, but not my address

GOTTA PARTY!

Why do some people always feel so cold?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am always very cold. In a 75-degree room l wear a stocking cap, sweatshirt, quilted flannel shirt with an Afghan over my lap and am still cold. I'm 53 and, except for having high cholesterol, healthy. Can you help?

DEAR READER: The extent to which any of us withstands heat or cold is largely a function of accommodation. People adapt to their environments.

In general, persons living in warm climates have more blood than those individuals who live in chilly surroundings. This is because an increased blood volume is necessary to supply additional blood to the skin. where heat is lost through perspiration. People in cold climates have less need to lose extra body heat, hence they have less blood.

The adaptation process takes a week or two, during which persons may experience symptoms as their bodies adjust to the changing ambient temperature. For example, "apring fever" (the temporary lassitude that affects many of us annually in the temperate climates) is believed to be caused by the body's sudden effort to produce more blood, in preparation for warmer weather.

Conversely, we commonly "feel" the cold more acutely during the first cold snap in the autumn than we do later in the winter, when we have become physiologically acclimatised.

Resistance to extremes of temperature also depends on body build (stout people are more tolerant of cold), level of activity (exercise increases body heat), and general health (ill patients are more intolerant of cold).

Finally, diseases such as hypothyroidism and anemia cause patients to be unduly chilly.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Recently my urologiat recommended that I have more sex to help with a prostate infection. Was he

DEAR READER: Possibly. Although prostatitis is usually treated with antibiotics, some types of infection appear to be caused by congestion of the prostate giand. Such congestion can often be released by sexual activity. Thus, if you enjoy sex rather infrequently, your urologist may well have been serious when he advised you as he did.

Last January, I traveled to Australia, where I spent a week coaching that country's junior players. I was particularly impressed by Murray Green, from Brisbane. For practice, I selected deals from several sources, including those generated by a computer program. Today's deal came from "Tricks of the Trade" by Englishmen Terence Reese and David Bird ($15.95, 800-274-2221). Green, sitting West, defended perfectly.

How should South plan the play in six spaces after ruffing the initial diamond attack?

Two clubs was strong. artificial and forcing. After receiving spade support. South bid what he hoped he could make.

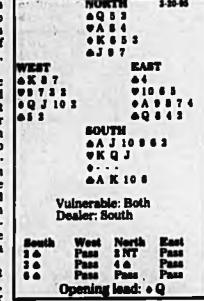

The correct line, after ruffing the diamond lead and playing a heart to dummy's ace (dummy's only guaranteed entry), is to run the club nine. If it loses to West's queen, South uses the club jack as the dummy entry to lead the spade queen. If the club nine wins, declarer continues with the club jack. If West wins this trick and gives his partner a club ruff, declarer congratulates him on an excellent defense. And if the second club finesse wins. declarer switches to trumps.

With this layout, that line | & X 8 7 works. However, South decided to lead a low spade to his lack at trick three. If West won, declarer planned to use the spade queen as the dummy entry for the club finesec. And if West had hesttated before ducking, South would have continued with the spade 10, forcing a second dummy entry. However, Green ducked smoothly. Misled, de-clarer continued with the spade ace and went one down, losing a trick in each black suit. Phillip Alder's new book, "Get Smarter at Bridge," is available. autographed upon request, for
