

ALIVE AND KICKING

Jabez Thorpe's Manipulation of Real Affection for the Deserving One.

By VICTOR REDCLIFFE.

"One foot in the grave and the other on a banana peel—that's Jabez Thorpe, to my way of thinking."

"Exactly my opinion. A man of his age crossing the ocean! Never was a hundred miles away from his own hearthstone before. It's a terrible risk he is taking!"

Thus the gossiping neighbors of the reputed wealthy proprietor of Thorpe Farm. It was an echo of the current chatter of the village. When hard-fisted, miserly old Jabez Thorpe announced that he was going to England to settle the estate of a distant relative, it had been a nine days' wonder. It had been reported that the interest of old Jabez in the estate was uncertain. He was a fighter, however, and strenuously declared that he was going to see it that he got his rights.

Thorpe Farm was not the pleasant place in the world. It had a pretty fair house on it, but poorly furnished. As Thorpe grew older he had enclosed three acres near the house, and rented out the rest of his land.

Ten years previous he had adopted the child of a second cousin, Nellie Thorpe. She had grown into his life more of a comfort, guide and support than he realized. It was when he came to give up to Nellie the entire charge of his business during his absence, that he began to understand how much he depended on her. If Nellie felt that he was loading down upon her a vast responsibility, she reflected upon the gratitude she owed him. Jabez Thorpe had given her a shelter when she was homeless, and she took up her new duties seriously, but with her bright little heart full of confidence and cheer.

"It is not so hard as I fancied," Nellie wrote to Evan Pearson, her lover, who was filling a clerkship in another town. "A sister of the man who rents the west farm is seeking to restore her broken health through sunshine, garden work and good food. She helps me with the milking and chickens daytimes, and stays at the lonely old homestead nights. Uncle Jabez does not know that I am keeping right on with my little business. I want to prove to him what a busy housekeeper I am when he returns. Besides that, I must fit myself for our own home—long, long ahead, dear, but sure to come if you long for it as I do."

Nellie's "business" was selling milk and eggs. Her exacting relative had cut her down to a minimum as to household expenses, but the economical little housekeeper had managed to save something even out of that. As to the eggs and milk, at the end of a month, Nellie's bookkeeping showed such splendid results that she worked with added pleasure and interest.

Then there was an interruption—sad, sudden and overwhelming. The steamer in which Abner Thorpe had sailed on his homeward trip was reported lost off the Canada coast. Only a few of the passengers had been saved. The name of Jabez Thorpe was not among the list. A week later it was generally accepted in the village that he had met a watery fate. Nellie went to his lawyer, who was a sensible, kind-hearted old man. He told Nellie to remain right at her post of duty. So far as he knew, no will had been left. This being true, the nearest of kin would inherit. Nellie was not in that list, but he encouraged her to believe that the heirs would make some provision for her.

And then, much to the discomfort of Nellie, the heirs apparent began to arrive. There was the relict of a brother of Jabez Thorpe, in-waids, and always snuffing and plying herself. There was a fantastic, fussy old maid cousin who entertained great hopes because Jabez Thorpe had once sent her a birthday gift. There was a callow youth studying for the bar, who claimed near relationship, and a vast deal of knowledge as to the legal phases of the estate. There was a shiftless youth, besides, and all these planted themselves about the premises. For two days Nellie welcomed them. Then she thought the situation all over. She went modestly but firmly before them one morning.

"I have only the directions of the lawyer, Mr. Randall," she said, "as to being in charge here, but he has told me to go right on doing my duty in Mr. Thorpe's interests until the estate is settled. Mr. Thorpe left me only enough money to cover the regular expenses, and I fear I cannot afford to entertain so much company." Thereupon the lazy young man growled out something about nigardly treatment, the lady in mourning flounced out of the room in hysterics, and the fussy old maid flared up like an offended pussy cat. The young legal sprig walked out on his dignity. There was no dinner that day.

The tribe thereafter got their meals at the village hotel. They by no means deserted the old homestead, however. There was too much envy and suspicion among them for that. They watched one another as though afraid that some one was going to carry off the estate—house, farm and all.

Never would the faithful, persevering Nellie forget one bright afternoon as she went about the house attending to her manifold duties. The young limb of the law was smoking a pipe in the sitting room, the other male watcher of the slow development of the estate was asleep with his feet on the table. In the parlor the snuffing relict and the fussy old maid were chattering away like magpies, when Nellie heard a roar.

"She dropped the plate she was washing, and it was smashed to smithereens at her feet. Then with a scream of delight she darted into the sitting room, gave one glance at a sturdy, wrathful figure filling the doorway, and bounded straight into the arms of Jabez Thorpe.

"Oh, uncle! uncle!" she cried. "I am so glad—so glad!"

"Yes, and the only one who is," replied the old man, as he placed a sheltering arm about her. "You young sprig of insolence!" he shouted at the astonished smoker, "out of here with that vile pipe of yours! Here, wake up and march!" he added, pulling the sleeper from his chair. "As to you, ladies," he sang out to the occupants of the parlor, "I've heard in the village of how you've all socked here like a set of crows after a carcass. Well, old Jabez is alive and kicking, after all. And before the day is over he's going to have you the expense and trouble of coming to any more funerals by leaving what he's got, when it's ready to leave, to the only one among the crowd of you who is worth two pence—and that's Nellie."

It was after the dejected, disappointed mob of fortune seekers had left that Nellie proudly exhibited her bookkeeping. It ended by the old man manifesting real affection for his loyal and faithful housekeeper in the words:

"You have proved what you are, dear child—true and good, with a heart of gold. We will have Evan Pearson down here Saturday evening, and make a new deal all around."

Currency Situation in Senate Will Test Influence

Other News of the World in Small Doses For Our Many Busy Herald Readers

The strongest test of President Wilson's control over party policies, and over the legislative performances of congress is about to occur.

Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, whom Gov. Sulzer accuses of having instigated his impeachment will be forced to take the witness stand virtually in his own defense before the impeachment trial is over.

The United States government is taking more than a passive interest in developments in Mexico City during the last few days, chief among which has been the defiant opposition by a majority of the Mexican congress to the appointment of Eduardo Tamayo.

Eleven lawyers from four states and the Dominion of Canada were in Concord today and more are supposed to be on the way here to help Harry K. Thaw resist the efforts of the state of New York to obtain his return to the Matteawan asylum.

Mr. and Mrs. McGuin Entertain. One of the most delightful events of an exceedingly pleasant season at Demopolis, Ga., was the reception given by Mr. and Mrs. A. V. McGuin on the evening of Sept. 18th at their attractive new summer home, "Hillhurst."

The host and hostess received their guests in the pretty reception room. Mrs. McGuin was most becomingly gowned in a white, embroidered robe.

He's a Sanford Boy

The following is from the Tallahassee True Democrat of Friday last: "Paul Shannon Appleyard, the bright fifteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Appleyard, left Tuesday morning for Atlanta for Sweetwater, Tenn., to enter his second year at the famous Tennessee military institute.

We have no objection to Bro. Smith claiming some things, but Paul was born in Sanford, while his father and mother lived here at the time. We shall insist on claiming this "kid" as a Sanford product.

Noted Convict Escapes

J. F. Cooper, who was serving a life sentence for the murder of Marshal J. H. Bowman of Punta Gorda, Fla., in 1904, has escaped from the camp of the DeLeon Naval Stores Company, near DeLand, and has not yet been recaptured.

Cooper was convicted and sentenced to be hanged. He repeatedly obtained stay of execution and remained in jail at Arcadia for about five years. Two governors having passed his case without final disposition of it, Governor Gilchrist, when he came into office, commuted the sentence to life imprisonment.

Death of Mrs. Rossetter

The visit of the angel of death to any home is sad, but when the visitation is made at the home after the angel of life has just departed and left a young cherub, when death occurs and leaves two small children the bereavement is made doubly severe to the husband and the family.

Mrs. Rossetter, and keep company with little Harnet, two years of age. An attack of diphtheria, insidious in approach attacked the mother, and in her weakened condition could not be combated and death resulted in a few days.

The funeral services occurred at the home on Celery avenue yesterday afternoon at two o'clock, the great outpouring of mourners attesting to the love and esteem in which Mrs. Rossetter was held.

A loving husband, two little girls, sister, Mrs. B. A. Howard and brother, Roy Symes and mother all of Sanford are left to mourn her untimely end.

Only a few years ago she was married to Kent Rossetter of this city, whom she loves with two small children to mourn her loss.

She came as a writer for her, here she entered and helped to establish a newspaper of her own, her pen may have written her battles fought, her faithful services rendered to the world.

Under the struggle and the fiercest of death are ended and the mother is left alone to mourn the loss of her darling.

The immense tower now being constructed will be 92 feet in height and beyond this the tank will rise 22 feet, making a very imposing structure.

The water system when finished will have an average pressure of 11 pounds and with the tank as a standing reserve Sanford will not only have a low service for ordinary uses, but in case of fire the city will be well protected.

Marshal Brown Here

Hon. J. C. Brown lately appointed U. S. Marshal for the Southern District of Florida was in the city yesterday receiving the congratulations of his many Sanford friends.

Mr. Brown is a railway locomotive engineer and a power in the councils of organized labor. He made an enviable reputation in the legislature recently assembled at Tallahassee by his fight for the people.

When asked about the coming senatorial race Mr. Brown declared that in his opinion Duncan E. Fletcher the present United States senator who is considered one of the bravest men in congress occupying most important positions on committees and who is a national figure would be overwhelmingly chosen for a second term in the primaries.

Mr. Brown was one of the twenty-two candidates for the United States marshals and is justly proud of the honor bestowed upon him.

Persons Favors Market

That a central market is the only solution of handling meats and produce in a thoroughly sanitary manner is the opinion of Dr. W. C. Persons, the city physician, who some time ago recommended to council the advisability of establishing such a market.

While no location has been chosen for the market has not gone that far, a tentative selection has been made on West Pine street.

Dr. Persons said he didn't expect these present council to do anything with the proposition, for the reason that the aldermanic system of government was soon to be succeeded by the commission form and he recognized the tendency of the kind for their successors in office.

Dr. Persons concluded by saying that it was the only way to handle the market matter so that flies could be done away with. The entire market could be screened and all the perishables offered would be kept within this limited space, and in this way the fly pest could soon be exterminated.

Office in Herald Building Telephone No. 148

The Daytona Gazette issued a fine special edition last week, containing views and news of that bustling city and the peninsular cities of Daytona Beach and Seabreeze.

Vacation days are over and it is high time we were getting down to business. A rousing meeting of the Commercial Club should be the first step in waking up things and getting ready for the big tourist rush that is coming to Florida and Sanford should get in the game right now.

Eustis has a patriotic citizen in the person of Philip Prioleau. Mr. Prioleau was twenty years city engineer of Jacksonville, and knows what he is talking about when he offers to bulkhead the lake at Eustis if the citizens would provide the legal authority.

"Judicially dry" is the way some of the papers describe the condition in Seminole county. We'd like to hear the construction put upon this language by Cols. Bob Holly and Tom Bates.

That's easy, Joe. Judicially dry means that any one can get a drink except the Judge and he is judicially disbarred from getting next.

What a relief Palm Beach County has been changed to Palm Beach Post People will now talk about Palm Beach County meaning Palm Beach county and not Palm Beach County meaning a newspaper.

Seminole county has floated her good roads bonds issue and now has let contracts for twenty five miles of brick paved highways radiating out of Sanford into the rich farming sections of the new county.

Governor Trammell has appointed the editor of The Herald as a delegate to the meeting of the annual convention of the Mississippi to Atlantic Waterways Convention to be held in Palatka in November.

"If the New Smyrna people will forget all about deep water for a few minutes and devote their energies towards building a better road from the St. Johns river to their city and placing signboards all along the route they will get considerable trade from the winter and summer tourists and the money will go a long ways toward increasing the merchants' profits."

THE EXTRAVAGANT PHONE There are times when the beat of us believe that the telephone is a curse, and not a blessing.

to say things to each other, which they would not dare say face to face. Charles H. Betts, the retiring president of the Western New York Newspaper Publishers' Association, in his annual address made some pertinent remarks.

DUTIES OF NEWSPAPERS Charles H. Betts, the retiring president of the Western New York Newspaper Publishers' Association, in his annual address made some pertinent remarks.

"I do not agree with this view. An editor is or should be a teacher. He should first, by patient study and investigation, inform and enlighten his own mind so that he can inform and enlighten the people."

He will make enemies, but it is his duty to make enemies. He who makes strong enemies is usually able to balance things by making strong friends.

ENDS VACATION SEASON The vacation season is now about over and the vacationers are returning home, bearing the same car-worn expression on their countenances as they had when they went away.

Vacations are supposed to be taken for the sake of rest. But rest once a year is not enough. Better take it once a week, Sundays spent in pleasing natural scenery cost little and do a great deal of good.

THE BODY GETS ITS REST AT THE END OF EACH DAY, but how about the mind? Life is now so strenuous to almost every one that our problems and vexations follow us home after we leave the office.

DRAINAGE OF GARDEN LANDS The fact that the Black Hammock lands near Oviedo are to be drained and that they will be drained according to a specified plan is a source of gratification and a matter of congratulation to all parties concerned and to the county in general.

that they will be drained according to a specified plan is a source of gratification and a matter of congratulation to all parties concerned and to the county in general.

No farming community of any magnitude in the flowing well district of Florida can ever be drained systematically unless the concerted action of all parties concerned can be given to the project.

As to the justice of the injunction the people whose farms are rendered worthless care but little. This great drainage of the celery delta should be taken up in some manner and carried out and the many acres of land abandoned then can again be placed in commission and many dollars saved and many dollars made in crops upon these lands that now overflow.

Everglades Land Deals Will Be In United States Courts. Tallahassee, Sept. 20.—From all indications members of the internal improvement board of the state, who have Everglades drainage and land sales in charge, do not relish the prospect of having to go to Kansas City in November to appear in an investigation of the case against the Florida Fruit Lands Company.

The investigation was expected to be held at a special session of the grand jury in Kansas City, but Attorney General McReynolds decided to let the matter rest until the regular court term in November.

Definite announcement has not been made that the trustees would be subpoenaed, but it is expected that they will be called upon for information.

Rev. J. P. McKinnon was today called to Sanford, where this afternoon he conducted the funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Kent Rosetter, who died in that town Sunday evening, her pastor being away on a vacation. Mr. Kent Rosetter is the son of Mr. A. T. Rosetter, who is quite well known in Orlando. Mrs. Rosetter leaves two children, a babe of ten days and a little girl three years old. Rev. McKinnon received Mrs. Rosetter into the church shortly after she became a bride. She was much beloved, and her death is unusually sad owing to her youth, and the loss of a mother to the infant and little girl.—Reporter-Star

Successful Negro Publisher—Out of the quagmire of superstition and ignorance among the negroes, a far-sighted of the Nashville Banner says that there has sprung up in that city an institution valued at $400,000, employing more than 200 negroes, doing a business of over $200,000 annually and operating the largest plant of its kind in the world. These startling facts were brought out in the seventeenth annual report of Richard Henry Boyd, D. D., LL. D., the secretary-treasurer, founder and manager of the National Baptist Publishing House, to the National Negro Baptist convention now in session in that city.

Dr. Boyd, it says, was born a slave on a plantation in Mississippi, and was afterward taken to Texas. He served as a waiting boy to a Confederate army officer during the Civil War and was present at the battle of Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge, at which time his owner was killed. He has the distinction of being the first negro ordained as a preacher in the state of Texas, but moved to Tennessee in 1896, after being elected by the same convention to a now "ness" in that city as secretary of the publishing house. The convention's instructions to him were to publish literature for his people.

Without money, without machinery, without training, without any help except from his own store house of ambition and knowledge, his report shows that he has built a plant in the Sunny South for his people that is regarded as the "door of hope" in the skilled printing art school. Religious tracts and pamphlets numbering over 12,000,000 have been distributed during the past fiscal year, while more than forty-three thousand dollars have been turned over to missionary operations on home fields. The report created an outburst of applause, as the plant is located in Nashville, and is being viewed and inspected by the delegates present.

Dr. Boyd, it says, is also secretary of the home mission board of the convention, which board has built four churches and added a membership of nearly one thousand in Panama during the past four years. They have also operated in the far west, having employed fifty-six missionaries to preach the gospel in that region.

J. B. Martin and C. E. Reynolds of Indianapolis, Ind., arrived in town Saturday. Mr. Martin is the proprietor of Epworth Inn.

A distressing accident occurred just west of town Saturday week, an unknown coming man being run over by the morning train as he was sleeping or unconscious between the rails. It seems that the young man passed through the several tracks between Times street and Green and through some of the tracks of the railroad.

He is now in the hospital and it is thought he will recover and it is thought he will be able to walk again. It is thought that the man was either a fugitive or a man from the section car. A coroner's inquest was held but no facts were brought out as to the young man's identity.

Later through the efforts of A. W. Brown, who wrote the postmaster of the Epworth Inn, the man was located at DeLand for some time previous the date of the coming man had been located. The Epworth paper published Mr. Brown's letter and Father Gabriel wrote Mr. Brown that the description given was a description of a young man who had been assisted while sick, by him and had given his name as Joseph Murphy and that he had a sister living at Greenport, N. Y., and that Mr. Brown's letter had been forwarded to her. Up to the present time no further information has been received.

St. Augustine is making a strong effort to get the government give attention to the reservations and property in the Ancient City. A visit from Major Slater, U. S. Army, is expected. Several things desired were explained to him. St. Augustine will have a new school building, a new prison, the prison wall near the channel and the space intervening will be transformed into a splendid boulevard. The reservation upon which Fort Marion is situated is going to have more attention in the future and he made more of the same.

The first statewide printers' east congress in Florida will be held in Ocala November 11, 12 and 13. The matter has been decided upon by a committee appointed at the last session of the Florida Press Association and great preparations are being made for the event. It is expected that the meeting, or congress as it is called, will be largely attended and the benefits considerable. Ocala folks will undertake to fill in the time occupied by business matters with pleasant entertainment for the visitors.

The magnificent location of this property on the great tributaries of the St. Johns river, where the channel runs almost direct east from Riverview to the Atlantic Ocean, where the city of Jacksonville has built its great quarter million dollar electric light plant. Where the great municipal docks are going to be built. Where there are going to be millions upon millions of dollars spent by private capital in the near future for great manufacturing plants, all are situated by or near to Riverview, lying just to the east of us. This all goes to make Riverview the most classy and desirable property to the great city of Jacksonville.

Something To Consider
Riverview today has over five hundred property owners all boasting for the great future of Riverview. We have 40 homes, some costing three to four thousand dollars. Three mercantile houses. Boat and launch factory of large and growing magnitude. We have now 14 miles of streets, all set out in shade trees. We have free public boat and bath houses. We have one of the most beautiful 50 acre public parks in the state. Riverview has many suburbs since its inception, and Riverview's geographical location is such that it is soon going to make its property value far exceed any property about Jacksonville, and every lot now bought will make the buyer a thousand dollars clear in the near future. We have a complete telephone service, and an efficient motor car lines at a 5c car fare to the heart of the city of Jacksonville. Riverview property will make thousands of dollars for the owners. Don't Have Roaches In Your Home
They crawl through sewers and drains and then over dishes and eatables and scatter disease germs and a filthy poisonous odor.
Don't use a paste for killing roaches for roaches travel through it and it is almost sure to get on their wings and legs, and the least speck of phosphorus paste will kill a person. Many persons die in this way and it is never known what killed them.
You do know that if a chicken eats an insect that has been killed with a paste, it is a dead chicken, and if a dog eats the chicken it is a dead dog, and if a buzzard eats the dog it is a dead buzzard.

Editing a newspaper is a man's game—you keep out.

Advice to this effect was recently given by a well known weekly newspaper editor of Florida to an even better known corporation lawyer and legislative lobbyist.

Editing a newspaper is indeed a man's game," and, sad to state, it has proven most to big a game for any mortal man that ever lived.

Men of brains experience no great difficulty in making some money through the business conduct of newspapers if they are absolutely servile to interests which make their service worth while, but experience has taught all newspaper workers that the man who tries to edit an absolutely independent newspaper has his work "cut out for him."

And the independent paper of the future is going to be the successful paper.

Proper editing of a newspaper requires as much or possibly more brains as is required of the judges who grace the bench of the supreme court of the United States of America.

The Supreme Court of our country does well to handle one case a day, and the judges take their time in sifting the testimony, and they have written law to guide them.

The newspaper editor has a score or more problems each day, problems that are not to be solved at leisure, but NOW. Is it any wonder that mistakes are often made?

Men of no profession stand more solidly and immovably for that which is right than those of the newspaper trade, and a majority of their errors result from leaning too far on the side of "mercy" or being influenced by personal friendship, and not by hope of gain.

The newspaper editor of a corporation who is willing to make his salary in fighting for a just cause, or against crookedness in high places, is often led astray by friendship, and the spirit of sympathy when no amount of money or other worldly gain can touch him.

Philate's question, "What is truth?" is one which confronts him hourly, and is not any cause for wonder that he sometimes fails to "get by with it?"

Yes, editing a newspaper is a "man's job," and if you are not trying to be a man, keep out of it.

The following editorial on this subject, appearing in the latest issue of the Nassau County Leader, is worthy of study by every man or woman who reads.

"Editing a newspaper, in some respects is a good deal like preaching. The Gospel truth must be presented in the form of generalities, or some fellow will get fat and fowl."

Few persons have any view in their own minds, at least those that will preach, and that is a good thing. What they do know is what they know about people.

In some instances he who flies into a passion because a newspaper prints something about him which he considers unwarrantable has every reason to feel perfectly gratified to the newspaper for publishing so little of what it knows about him. And often times the loudest bluffer is the most vulnerable to attack.

"It might be well for some people to reflect upon these matters, and in silent gratitude accept mild admonition, less worse befall them."

Wallace Stovall, editor of the Tampa Tribune, has been motoring through New England and he writes the Tribune a most entertaining and instructive letter about the road construction which he found there. He writes of the defeat of the good roads bill in the last Florida legislature and then says:

Just one week's visit in New England would convince every n'compoo who opposed this measure of the fallacy of his argument. With a paved highway from Jacksonville to Jacksonville and from Jacksonville to Miami and Jacksonville to Tampa, the winter visitors would amount to more in Florida than its oranges and winter crops in past years.

It is very clear that Florida needs improved roads over which automobiles can travel from point to point with comfort. On the roads of New York, Massachusetts and Rhode Island there are thousands of automobiles apesing every day, probably at least half of them at this season of the year coming from other localities and touring over the good roads. These tourists and visitors step in at good hotels, and the general estimate is that each person spends an average of $8 to $10 a day, and some much more than that. But they invariably stay where the roads are good.

When Florida gets a system of improved highways its superb oranges, its fruits, its vegetables and farm products, its fresh air and its numerous other advantages will make it the greatest winter resort for the whole north, east and west, which will bring them in thousands with their cars. They will tour the state, stopping at our hotels, eating our products and spending their money on the Florida Highway.

And then Col. Stovall gets down to figures and tells us what these good roads would mean in dollars and cents of outside money to the people of Florida. Listen to him:

When you get to figuring on what good roads would do for Florida, you become amazed at the results. It is our belief that when we get a system of good roads, connecting most of the principal points and resorts in the state that at least 100,000 will come to Florida every winter with their cars. One hundred thousand people at $10 a day each would make a total of a million dollars a day spent in our state by visitors for a period of three or four months. It almost staggers credulity, but it is what one sees in this country, and nothing is thought of it. The hotels are well kept, because they have custom enough, and mostly from the motor travel, so that they can afford to keep them in first class style.

These may seem at first to be somewhat extravagant statements, but a little reflection will convince most intelligent persons that the figures are not very much exaggerated. Speaking of the different kinds of roads in New England the Tampa editor says:

Here they are spending millions of dollars on the roads. Most of the states have more than one method. The main roads are called state roads and are built by the state. The lesser roads are county roads and town roads, which the state helps to build, paying from one-third to two-thirds of the cost and sometimes more. It is the state road that attracts most of the visiting motor travel, the county and town roads being used chiefly by local traffic, though in the main they are well built and offer many attractions off the beaten path.

Ten or fifteen years ago there were thousands of abandoned farms throughout New York and New England. That was before the states had built any considerable mileage of good roads. Today the land that was not then worth paying taxes on is now worth $100 to $200 an acre and is used for market gardening.

All through the country are hard smooth roads which are untroubled by weather conditions, and along which people can travel every day in the year, either with a team hauling produce or a motor car or other vehicle for business or pleasure.

There is a variety of roads being built in this northeastern section of the country. In the smaller cities and villages a large amount of vitrified brick is being used. The brick is laid on a base of footpath cement concrete with a surface of sand about an inch or a half an inch thick. This kind of road is much in favor, but it is expensive where the bricks have to be shipped any considerable distance. For country roads broken stone is generally used, with the upper three layers of stone mixed with a layer of asphalt, asphaltic oil, or refined kerosene, and a surface of one or an inch or two of concrete.

Such roads would revolutionize the commercial and agricultural interests of Florida. They would reduce by two-thirds the cost of marketing the fruits and other crops, and leave the money so saved in the hands of the fruit growers and farmers. They would extend enormously the area of profitable production of early vegetables for northern markets, for it is easier to cover on a good road that two miles on one that is unimproved.

What Florida needs to make her famous and wealthy is good roads and more good roads, and then some more good roads. They pay.

Such facts and arguments are actually unanswerable, yet we Florida people sit around and allow our natural advantages and our tremendous possibilities to be dominant simply because we haven't even a part of the business sense which the people of bleak and barren New England always exercise where dollars and cents are at stake.

Now and then I get a post card from some of my friends who are away enjoying themselves at some watering place (whatever that is) and they tell me about what a good time they are having and how yours truly is laboring away trying to make a living and unable to take even the train to Enterprise. Sometimes I think those picture postals are a nuisance and just invented to make a man discouraged with his lot. What good does it do me to gaze at some spot a thousand miles away and see the boys sporting themselves and get a line below with some of the good things they are enjoying and the words, "You ought to be here, etc."

As long as I am ignorant of anything except grits and bacon there is no earthly use in telling me about anchovies and humming birds wings and hot birds and cold bottles and Rectors and over the Rhine and State street and out in Denver and San Francisco and St. Louis and other seaports that are all Greek to me. I am patiently waiting until the elevator is put in the court house and on that day I am going to fill up on sulphur water at Phillips' corner, put on a red necktie and ride up and down on the elevator all day and have my picture taken "onroot" as the postals say, and then some of my friends will get some real post cards depicting high life in Sanford as she is writ.

Every recurring primary, campaign or election emphasizes the duties of citizenship. It is the one time of the year that the average business man can assist the business of good government. He approaches the fray armed with a ballot and armored with good intentions and high purposes. He bares his breast to the foe, raises his head like a chial longing stag, lifts high his javelin and forgets to go to the polls or plays run all day with a few chosen spirits. Its a funny little old world and the population brings up the funny average.

There is just a bare possibility that some man will run for office in the next city election and give the inspectors and clerks a chance to get their salaries. It begins to look now as though one or two men will offer themselves for aldermen but the mayor's chair will remain vacant. Even Lips has ceased to talk about what he would do if he were mayor and I see no hope for the city at all. The mayor's job is going by default and the only thing to do is to raise the salary and make the office more attractive and maybe some excitement can be created.

Rational men pay very little attention to statisticians. Some say they invariably remain as fat as Bill Nye's observations. Some of their traits are bald on the outside and some are bald on the inside. Yesterday, though, when one of them strolled in our car that park days over the per cent more now than they did in 1899 it started us out of our equilibrium until we stopped to think that we are getting fully 150000-000000 per cent more wages than we were getting in 1899.

Women we are assured in a Chicago paper will all be bald in an other century. One more thing to be bald about, the safety razor.

President Dozier of the Leesburg Board of Trade, is still very enthusiastic over the prospect of increasing the usefulness of the Ocala-Kelley road. After a recent visit to Washington, Mr. Dozier seems encouraged. The project is a large one and has been under consideration for a long time. The effort is being made to get an appropriation for a 60-foot channel with a depth of 6 feet, 107 miles long, running from the St. Johns river to Lake Okechobee.

Dr. Kelly has been appointed pastor of the colored Methodist church, since the death of the former pastor, Rev. J. W. B. Jackson. Dr. Kelly was a preacher but gave up the ministry for the practice of medicine and now he will combine the practice of medicine with preaching.

"Suppressing" News

This week we looked in a neighboring exchange expecting to see an account of how a young man had gone wrong. Instead we were disappointed to find a notice about a young man who had been killed by a mowing machine.

It is reported here that the sheriff of Sumter county has John Gary, the negro who attempted to kill City Marshal, Torian Sunday morning, in custody, but the report cannot be confirmed.

Acting Marshal Stafford has gone to Sumterville at the request of the sheriff of Sumter county to identify Gary. The town is quiet, but a number of citizens are gathered on the streets awaiting the confirmation of the report.

"There is no city in Florida anywhere near the size of Bradentown that is going on here," says the Manatee River Journal. "In addition to our twelve miles of sidewalks in use, council has arranged for the construction of eleven miles, which will give the place twenty-three miles. Seaboard Air Line is erecting a new passenger station, a new city hall going up and various other improvements in sight."

The Palatka Board of Trade is planning a home-coming week. There are many former citizens of Palatka who are now living in other parts of the country who would be glad to come and see the city and the mighty changes that have taken place and renew old friendships.

The elevator in the court house is gradually assuming shape and will be in running order in a few weeks.

Game Laws In Nutshell

Although the newspapers have recently printed the game laws of Florida it is very probable that a considerable few people know them inaccurately. We have a new state game warden now who evidently means business and he is appointing the best men he can get in the various counties as county wardens to see that the law is enforced.

The hunting season is near at hand and for the benefit of hunters who want to obey the law we publish the following synopsis of some of the things it is unlawful to do.

First, it is a violation of the law to hunt without first securing a license.

Second, the hunting season does not open until November 20, and closes Feb. 20.

Third, the law prohibits the killing of quail, ducks, doves, turkeys, swan, geese, snipe, mudhens, squirrels, deer and all game bird or game animals except between the dates mentioned above.

Fourth, it is unlawful to buy or sell any of the birds or animals protected by the law.

Fifth, the law prohibits the killing in any season of turkey hens and female deer.

Sixth, the use of traps, snares, pits, dead falls, or the baiting of fields for the purpose of capturing or killing birds, is prohibited.

Special attention is called to the fact that the open season for doves and squirrels is the same as for any other game.

Funeral of Bryan Higgins

The funeral of Bryan Higgins, the victim of the head on collision between passenger train No. 83 and an extra engine on Tuesday morning occurred from the Catholic church at eleven o'clock Wednesday morning.

body and acted as honorary escort, as did the B. of L. E. The pall bearers were Mayor Spencer, A. P. Connelly, R. A. Newman, H. R. Stevens, Ed. Rowland, Cruse Barnes, Geo. McCross and W. H. Peters.

Fathers Fox and Bresnahan officiated at the church and several beautiful selections were rendered by the school choir.

Eather Bresnahan paid a beautiful tribute to the young man, giving a brief outline of his life as a citizen and member of the church and pointing out the uncertainty of life by his opening words, "Be ye always ready, for ye know not what hour the call may come."

It was a wonderful coincidence, or as Father Bresnahan designated it a special act of Providence, he happened to be a passenger on the ill fated train that morning, and was the first one to reach the site of Bryan after the wreck.

Drilling Deep Wells

Mr. Pepper, superintendent for the Oil Well Drilling Company of Jacksonville, which is now putting down a well, says well for locating the level of the Lake water table.

The well is 112 feet deep and was dug a week ago. It is expected that these wells will have a bearing on the water table of the peninsula.

Prominent Builders Here

Architect Murray S. King and Contractor O. N. Larson of Orlando were in the city on Wednesday looking over the city and the proposed park. These gentlemen are the architects and contractors of the proposed park.

Mr. King is a prominent builder and has many contracts in the bustling metropolitan of Orange county and in other adjacent towns.

Anything in the architectural or building line will receive the careful attention of Mr. King or O. N. Larson at Orlando.

Some Pumpkin Vine

Cenway, S. C., Sept. 24.—"Peter, Peter, the pumpkin eater," never ran across a pumpkin in his day near so large as the one now growing in the yard of Dr. R. G. Sloan, of Little River, this county, or he could have kept 100 wives.

Reliable persons assert that the vine covers more than one-tenth of an acre and has produced 300 pumpkins, the largest of which weighs nearly 100 pounds. It is truly a wonderful sight to behold.

Without doubt the largest pumpkin vine in the world. If California has ever produced the like it has never been reported in these parts.

Dr. Sloan says that the vine was a voluntary growth. He never dreamed of it assuming such proportions. He expects to let it stand there until frost.

It is understood that the county fair authorities will make an effort to have it on exhibition here in October. If it can be kept in a sufficient state of preservation it will be exhibited at the state fair in Columbia.

Safety Of Railroads

Compelled By Law

New Haven Wreck Start Official Investigation

Money Is Placed Above Human Lives And Railroads Make No Effort For Safety

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—On the heels of the Interstate Commerce commission's scathing denunciation of the New Haven road for the recent Wallingford wreck, in which it was held that "man failure," beginning with its high officials and ending with its trainmen, was responsible for the loss of twenty-one lives, sentiment in congress rapidly began to crystallize today in a movement to take up the whole subject of legislation for train safety at the December session.

Backed by the influence of the Interstate Commerce commission an effort will be made to empower the commission to deal with such questions as steel cars and modern safety equipment. Commissioner McChord, who has investigated many recent wrecks, is drafting a bill to place such power with the commission.

Representative Stevens of New Hampshire, chairman of a sub-committee of the Interstate Commerce committee, today began hearing preliminary testimony on the drafting of a similar bill. The hearing today was devoted to its contents. Experts in railroad operation will be heard before a report is made.

Another check was given to use the check given him by Jacob H. Schiff, a New York banker, in a case he closed. The banker so testified today on the stand in the impeachment trial of the Governor. The designation of the check for the Governor's campaign fund did not prevent it from being used.

The North Carolina Legislature convened in extra-ordinary session today to consider proposals made by several railroads for readjustment of freight rates.

Register Your Dog

Our attention was directed to the following clipping which appeared recently in the Tampa Tribune, and it is here passed on to those of our people who own valuable dogs. There were so many peculiar laws passed at the last session of the legislature that it would require the average life time to digest them all, but this is one of much moment to our people, as there are many dogs here of great value.

"Among the new 'kinks' in Florida game laws, is a section concerning bird dogs. All must be registered with the county tax assessor, or they are considered legally nothing. A person can steal a bird dog and if the purp is not registered with the assessor, his owner cannot prosecute the man who took him. The 'taker' is neither a thief or criminal, according to law. A license for the dog does not have to be taken out, but the dog must be registered if his owner would own anything of value."

Irish Potato Crop In Florida

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 19.—The Irish potato acreage this year will be considerably larger than any previous season and conservative estimates have been made by the growers and they believe the total is about 20 per cent larger than last year.

The reports from different sections of the north of a shortage in the spud crop has determined many growers to plant a larger acreage than usual. While the potato crop in Florida last season was not up to the usual standard in the Hastings potato belt, growers are confident that this year will be a good season and by spraying to prevent blight they hope to have a larger yield per acre of good stock that will command good prices.
