HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll be industrious today unless you hook up with fun-loving friends. Then all your penchant for hard work will go by the boards. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you have anybody working for you today, keep a close eye on them. Otherwise you'll pay for work not performed. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your search for a little romantic adventure could get you in trouble today. The bait may attract the wrong fish. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Confusion results for your people you are in charge of today because you are both too firm and too forgiving. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you have an issue you intend to clear up with someone in no uncertain terms, stick to your guns. Sugarcoating won't do it. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Where you're cleverer than most, you'll be overreacting and speculating for items you really don't need. YOUR BIRTHDAY Nov. 17, 1974 Pursue clever ideas this year that could add to your resources. Follow through on schemes that can necessitate more trips to the bank. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't make requests of a friend today whose help is really not essential. Later, when you really need her, she may turn you down. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) High-stepping with freespending pals today may give your budget a kick in the pants. You're the one who'll pay the piper. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Keep your guard up today, even if you feel the goal is in your grasp. If you let down loose ends could come unraveled. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You are practical only up to a point today. Think things through or those rose-colored glasses will distort your perspective. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't advise a friend who lacks material discipline to buy something she doesn't need. Being a nice guy to spare her feelings won't help her at all. YOUR BIRTHDAY Nov. 17, 1974 Pursue clever ideas this year that could add to your resources. Follow through on schemes that can necessitate more trips to the bank.

score four club tricks. One way to get four club tricks is to bang down his ace. If that drops a singleton queen he is home. Otherwise the lead of the ace will not give him a chance for more than three tricks in the suit. However, there is a reasonable chance to score four club tricks if he leads toward his hand and finesse the 10. If the finesse works, he continues by playing his ace and will be home safely if East started with either queen and one or queen and two clubs. This represents a total probability of about 31 per cent.

South starts with seven top tricks as a starter for the nine he needs. He also can be sure of one extra club trick irrespective of where the queen is. That will give him eight. Where can he find a ninth? Given time he can set up a diamond, but he isn't going to have time. The opponents have been unkind enough to attack in hearts. Is there any other place to get another trick? Yes, there is. With a little luck he can

HELLO?

Calcium Shortage Part Of Problem

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am now 46 and 10 years ago I had a thyroid operation. My parathyroid glands were also removed by mistake. I went through my menopause immediately with cramping of my hands and legs and muscle spasms - also convulsions. The doctor put me on calcium and phosphorus but kept increasing it until I was on 35 pills a day which is hard to swallow. Lately I have been taking chewable pills which contain 750 milligrams of calcium and 500 milligrams of phosphorus. Could you tell me what would be the right amount of these to take?

I hadn't had a convulsion in almost two years but in the last two months I have had three of them. I live alone and it is very frightening since I have no idea when I will have one. I have been to five doctors and they just put me on more pills. I cannot drink or eat eggs. I wake up all bristled and with black eyes. Is there any way this can be controlled?

DEAR READER - Presuming that you are correct in your interpretation that the convulsions are secondary to low parathyroid function the problem should be solvable. The parathyroid glands, on each side of the thyroid gland, are sometimes damaged during surgery. This is often temporary but your 10-year history means that the damage in your case is permanent. These tiny glands help regulate the level of calcium in your blood. When they are gone or damaged the blood calcium falls. The low blood calcium, not the menopause, causes the muscle cramps, tetany and convulsions that you have experienced. Usually these symptoms can be controlled if the blood calcium can be maintained at sufficient high levels. In your case this may have been uncommonly difficult. The blood calcium is depleted by giving calcium and vitamin D. The vitamin D is very important in the absence of Wrecked truck operator John Griggs studies semi-submerged auto. George Adams of Orlando had floated his boat onto the trailer attached to this car Tuesday afternoon at the public boat ramp, U.S. 17-92 at the St. Johns River, officials said, when the weight of the boat, background, eased the auto down the sloping ramp into water. Adams said the auto's hand brake was set at the time. Estimates of damage to the auto were several hundred dollars body damage, plus water damage to the auto's interior.

School Board Elects Sims Chairman; Served In '73-74

Altamonte Springs businessman Davie Sims was elected Tuesday as chairman of the Seminole County School Board. Sims, who previously served as chairman in 1973-74, immediately resumed his duties. Sims was elected by a 3-to-2 margin over Pat Telson. Mrs. Telson was then picked unanimously to succeed herself as the panel's vice-chairman. "I think we ought to be listening to the public," Sims said following his installation. "I think we ought to be doing things that will improve the school system any way we can. I'll try not to wrangle too many brows and I'll try to work with the principals any way I can." Sims, Stenstrom and Mrs. Telson were chosen at an organizational session which preceded the board's regular meeting. The voting came after Sims and Feather were sworn in.

Sanford has been declared an unqualified success. That word came from the just completed Second Olympic Chairman Vic Arnett Annual Golden Age Olympics in Jacksonville, Fla. Arnett said that the Golden Age Olympics were under way in Sanford, Fla., and the announcer even gave a brief description of what the Golden Age Olympics is all about. "It was quite a thrill as well as a shock," Jackson said, "to hear of our own Sanford, Fla., being mentioned on a television station some 4,000 miles from home. That was the last thing in the world I expected to hear. I just couldn't believe it." It is this type of exposure that may well lead to the Golden Age Olympics becoming a truly national and even international event with plenty of media coverage on all levels, Arnett said. Arnett said that he fully envisions the Golden Age Olympics becoming a world-wide event for persons over 55 years of age in the not-too-distant future and of even hiring a full-time director to run the promotion in years to come. "And, it's not in the distant future," Arnett said. Regression For True Progress?

"Washington will get involved in more electric rate hikes," Howard F. Perry told a workshop group recently. Perry is a spokesman for the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) and he was speaking to utility officials.

Outspoken Perry minced no words and left little doubt that the feds would be moving in on state utility regulatory bodies. He talked of rates as the means for leverage to force less energy use.

When a federal bureaucrat starts talking of leverage (arm twisting), you can make book that in that area, if nowhere else, he has expertise. Perry predicted a much broader use of FEA's authority to intervene between the state and its electric power producers. But he said this would be done on a selective basis.

Now there is an insidious word, "selective." In bureaucratic parlance it probably means that the power to be used would be selected in targets, picking those where example could whip others into line.

He indicated that the feds see conservation as another "source" of energy and plan to exercise greater influence in this area of solving energy problems. He cited "voluntary" building standards to reduce heat loss which "could be made mandatory" if they are not met.

It hardly seems necessary to offer editorial conclusions to this man's statements. Just note how quickly mandatory follows the word "voluntary" in relation to building standards.

This nation did not become the envy of the world in living standards by curtailing the use of more energy by arm twisting or other means. The more energy used per man the greater our productivity became.

We do not need the type of regressive thinking which the FEA bureaucracy is promulgating. We do need the elbow room to get cracking and make use of what energy we have to produce new methods for obtaining more energy sources.

If we can just get the bureaucracy off the backs of industry and individual initiative we can beat the present problems. We won't do it by sitting around listening to regressive ideas coming from the dead hand of government.

We will not make much progress if every time an attempt is made to tap the unlimited source of energy fuel represented by our coal and nuclear resources, a vociferous minority can stop the effort.

The Environmental Protection Agency staff may be sincere in the belief that they are protecting the natural environment for the enjoyment of the people. But the people must have food, clothing and heated housing to live to enjoy it.

The FEA staffers may be sincere in believing they can force a rationing of existing energy to the benefit of all. Both agencies would substitute regression for true progress. For progress lies in a free society, not a controlled one.

Carter Treads Lightly

Jimmy Carter walked a tightrope in his first press conference as president-elect — very skillfully.

As Mr. Carter so carefully pointed out in response to a question about the possibility of an increase in oil prices, he is not the president yet. He does not have the responsibility of the office and cannot do anything about oil prices or anything else.

His response to the question was a nice touch and in keeping with the tone of his other remarks. He carefully avoided most specifics, saying that he wants to get his feet under him first — although we think that he has yet to clarify his exact position in regard to Yugoslavia. He was not entirely clear on what would happen to detainees in Yugoslavia were invaded.

But there will be time for that when Mr. Carter takes office and assumes the responsibilities that go with it.

At the conference, he was sensitive to the emotions of President Ford, deferential and humble in attitude and open in his desire for unity and cooperation in the United States.

He is entitled to support from all Americans as he undertakes the arduous tasks that he faces when he takes the oath of office in January.

Timothy the leprechaun could hardly contain himself when he popped into my living room recently.

"Stop the presses!" he yelled. "Come quick! Turn out all your reporters!"

"Calm down, Tim," I said, "you'll have a seizure. Now what has you so excited?"

"Turkeys!" he stammered. "Turkeys!"

"It isn't nice to call names," I said. "Now which turkeys are you referring to?"

"The feathered kind," Tim said, leaning heavily upon his shillelagh.

"I was just taking a little tour of Seminole and stopped off at a turkey farm. What I saw there made me blood run cold. Seems the birds are resentful of being 'done' in every year about this time to provide Thanksgiving dinners. But come along with me and you can see for yourself."

"Wait, Tim, at least give me time to get my shoes on!" I said, but it was too late. The leprechaun waved his shillelagh and we found ourselves on a turkey farm, somewhere in Seminole.

"That's the ring-leader, over there," Tim said. "He's stirrin' up trouble, he is."

Irreducibly, I scrutinized the milling flock of turkeys. One bird did seem to be making more noise than the others, but it was still just a bunch of turkeys.

"Did you hear that?" Tim said. "I certainly did. He said 'gobble-gobble.' Now let's get the heck out of here, Tim."

"Oh, I forgot that you can't understand 'em," Tim said, waving his shillelagh again.

"... and our brothers and sisters and eventually ourselves end up on the dinner tables of the humans," the loud turkey was saying. "I say that it's gone far enough!"

"The other turkeys cheered. It looked as if they might turn into a mob pretty soon.

"How many of you have lost relatives to the annual Thanksgiving slaughter? Raise your wings!" the loud turkey continued.

"Exactly!" the loud turkey yelled. "And it's time to change that!"

"But how can we change that? We're just birds, and the humans are much bigger!" a turkey yelled from the crowd.

"I'll tell you how — by a hunger strike!" the ring-leader said. "All we have to do is to refuse to eat. Then we will gain weight. All this juicy meat will melt from our bones. Then the humans will have to find something else to serve at Thanksgiving. After they get used to having something else for their main dish, we'll be home free!"

All the turkeys cheered. They flapped their wings and scratched the dirt angrily.

"You see for yourself," Tim said. "These dirty birds are tryin' to undermine a great American holiday."

"I suspect your concern is motivated more by your love of turkey drumsticks than it is by patriotism," I told Tim. "And your fears are for nothing, because you're forgetting one crucial aspect of the turkey character. Just watch."

While I spoke, the owner of the turkey farm had driven up in a truck with a cage on the back. He lowered a wide plank from the cage to the ground, and was spreading corn up the plank to the cage.

All the turkeys, even the loud one, forgot about their plans for a hunger strike and pecked at the corn until all of them were safely in the cage, ready to be trucked to the processing plant.

"You see, Tim," I said. "Turkeys are dumb. So don't worry. And another thing: before you pop up into another turkey farm, give me time to put my shoes on."

Then I wiped my feet on a clump of grass and we went home.

Cities Slow In Cleanup Operations

Last July, the federal Environmental Protection Agency told New York City and some 100 other Eastern seaboard municipalities that they had until 1981 to stop dumping crud in the ocean.

Since 1974, these municipalities have been barging millions of tons of sewage sludge a year out to a point about 12 miles off Long Island Harbor, turning the area into a veritable dead sea.

It is a very real question whether the cities will be able to meet even this liberal deadline set by the EPA. One estimate is that it will take more than $500 million to develop landfill sites or alternative disposal methods, and New York City, for one, is already complaining that its current fiscal straits make it impossible to spend any money on the phaseout.

Meanwhile, nature began taking a bit of revenge this summer when pollution forced the closing of Long Island beaches.

This situation, which is probably the worst example of pollution in the nation, is what Jimmy Carter would have called a "disgrace" — would have, that is, if either he or Gerald Ford had presented the American people with some real challenges during the presidential campaign instead of encouraging them in the belief that all their problems are the fault of somebody else.

The fact is that our cities, which can do no more than their citizens give them the mandate and the means to do, trail well behind industry in the matter of cleaning up pollution.

The Wall Street Journal recently reported, for example, that the worst polluters in the Mississippi River are not private companies but the communities along it. In the Baton Rouge area, Exxon Corp. alone has spent $40 million to clean up its refinery operations and the EPA says that other companies are doing almost as well.

By contrast, it took the EPA five years and a lawsuit to force the city of Baton Rouge to spend $10 million to upgrade its sewage treatment plants.

The much-maligned industrial polluters are "far and away ahead of municipalities" in complying with the Water Pollution Control Act of 1972, says EPA chief Russell Train.

That law set an initial deadline of July 1, 1977 for certain improvements in both industrial and municipal waste-water treatment. The EPA now expects that 90 per cent of all major industries will meet the deadline but only half the nation's cities and towns, serving 49 per cent of the U.S. population, will meet them.

The basic problem, of course, is money. Even though the federal government subsidizes 75 per cent of the cost of building treatment plants, inflation-buried and tax-burdened local citizens have been reluctant to approve the levies and bonds and usage charges needed to pick up the other 25 per cent.

Savers at the associations earn 5.25 per cent interest on ordinary passbook accounts, and 7.75 per cent on six-year certificates of deposit. But borrowing charges have averaged about 8.75 per cent.

Treasury Dept. Investigates Gun Gift

WASHINGTON — The Treasury Dept. is secretly investigating charges that the host of a Las Vegas casino presented an illegal gun to the official in charge of enforcing the federal firearms laws.

Rex Davis, director of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, allegedly accepted the gun in violation of the laws that his agency is supposed to uphold. Under these laws, firearms can't be presented as gifts to residents of another state.

Davis categorically denied the allegation. He told us that he had visited Las Vegas only once and had stayed long enough to make a speech and had never accepted an illegal firearm from anyone.

The allegation against Davis filtered out of a Justice Dept. investigation of Charles Baron, the "kreeper" at the fashionable Riviera Hotel on Las Vegas' strip.

Baron is a retired brigadier general, who has lived in Las Vegas for 29 years. He is known to be an avid gun collector. Reports reach Washington that he was passing out weapons to visiting celebrities.

One of Davis' own agents overheard a conversation indicating that a high A.F.P. official, possibly Davis himself, had accepted a gun from Baron. The investigation eventually focused on Davis. Treasury officials told us that internal

Mortgage Rates May Dip

NEW YORK (AP) — The cost of home mortgages might be coming down in 1977.

That pleasant prospect comes from the people who should know, the officials of the nation's savings and loan associations, who make the majority of home mortgage loans.

"We're savings are coming in at a great rate and we're starting to pile up money," said a representative of the U.S. League of Savings Associations, which is holding its annual meeting here.

"When you've got a lot of merchandise on the shelf and you want to move it you lower prices," he explains, noting that savings held by the associations rose about $50 billion in the past year to a total of $340 billion.

Homebuyers aren't used to good news of this sort, but in a way they can thank themselves. It takes savings to make mortgages, and a good many of those who borrow for mortgages are savers also.

Those savers have soared in the past two decades or so, helping build total assets of the associations to more than $300 billion, compared with a mere $16.9 billion in 1950.

Savers at the associations earn 5.25 per cent interest on ordinary passbook accounts, and 7.75 per cent on six-year certificates of deposit. But borrowing charges have averaged about 8.75 per cent.

Because of this spread, which the league calls "an unprecedented development during recent years," the associations have managed to significantly improve their sometimes unsteady earnings.

It is for this reason that economists of the league now feel that a decline of one-half per cent on mortgage charges is likely in 1977, with an upturn in home sales following as a direct consequence.

League economists now project a 1.8 million new housing starts in 1977, compared with an expected total of 1.5 million this year. They anticipate an unusually large rise in the multi-family market.

To the surprise of some people, the savings and loan people had a very good year in 1976 in spite of the relatively weak new-home market because of continued strength in existing-home sales.

This phenomenon has gone almost unnoticed in popular portraits of the housing market, but it has become a huge factor. Sales of existing homes are reported as strong throughout the country.

Price, quality of construction, size and many other factors are offered as explanations of the strength in this used-home market, in which sales are expected to reach 2.7 million units this year.

The language was straight out of military operations. They were issued "orders." They were "dispatched," "detained" and "briefed." After a full day's spying, they were "debriefed" and "secured" for the file.

CARTER DONNYBROOK — At the height of the presidential campaign, Jimmy Carter inadvertently stirred up a temper in Great Britain — an old-fashioned Irish donnybrook which was overlooked at home.

He met in Pittsburgh with Irish-American leaders, many of them dogmatically anti-British. A militant priest read Carter what purported to be a copy of the Democratic platform on Ireland and asked whether he supported it.

The platform was carefully calculated to offend neither side. But the priest argued the non-controversial platitudes with some language of his own. Between two innocuous sentences, he inserted a word for the U.S. should encourage the formation of (a) United Ireland.

These are trigger words, which disregard Protestant views and uphold the position of the Irish Revolutionary Army. The unsuspecting Carter, groggy from the grueling campaign, overlooked the inflammatory sentence.

The British press, however, focused on the quote that Carter hadn't noticed. Within a few hours, the British and the Irish Protestants were in a rage. Carter was denounced by several English parliamentarians, one of whom called the Irish terrorists "peasant politicians."

To make matters worse, an sensational English paper reported that Carter had backed the Irish terrorists' position while sporting a pro-Irish button declaring "Britain Out!" In fact, a British button said "Britain In!"

St. Patrick's Day parade months earlier. He immediately snatched it off, but the photographer was too quick for him.

Carter's real position was that the warring factions should sit down together and talk peacefully. He sent a telegram to the Irish Minister, explaining his views. Such responsible papers as the London Times also tried to set the record straight.

But the damage had been done. Our European sources tell us that the denial has never caught up with the original story. Only in the United States has the story gone mostly untold.

Brantley Shakes Up Senate's Key Posts

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — New Senate President Lew Brantley, who has vowed to erase the "country-club" image of the Senate, hasn't wasted any time shaking things up.

Brantley had barely taken the oath of office Tuesday when he announced a wholesale reshuffling of committee chairmanships. Only two chairmen kept their posts.

Some senators, including Dale Gurnea, Kenneth Myers and Jack Gordon, were not happy with the changes.

But Brantley told a news conference late Tuesday that he had no intention of changing any of the jobs back to the way they were. He also said he didn't think the criticism would last.

"A few who are slightly offended will come to the realization that I treated everyone extremely fairly," Brantley said.

Brantley, whose father was a Georgia sheeprafter, was unanimously elected as the state's 60th Senate president at a legislature convened for a organizational session.

In his acceptance speech, Brantley discussed his top legislative priorities, singling out the push he's promised for the abolition of property taxes as a school-funding base. He also talked of reforming insurance laws and overhauling collective-bargaining laws.

In committee appointments, the big surprise was the naming of Tom Galien, D-Bradenton, to the powerful Rules chairmanship.

Brantley said he narrowed the choice down to Galien and Myers because he wanted to pick a senator who was not in the running to succeed him.

This way, he said, he could not be accused of trying to handpick his successor. He also said he passed over outgoing Senate President Dempsey Barron because he wanted to establish firmly that he will be his own man.

However, Brantley said he felt Gordon had expertise that could be used as chairman of the new Finance and Tax Committee. He said Gordon would still be vice chairman of appropriations.

Poston, D-Miami, a 10-year senate veteran and perennial chairman of the Transportation Committee, was removed in favor of Myers.

"I am in a state of shock," Myers, D-Miami, said of his appointment. "I have never served on the Transportation Committee in the 12 years I have been in the legislature."

However, Brantley said he removed Poston because "you can get stagnant staying with the same individuals." Poston was named chairman of the Executive Business Committee.

Sen. Bob Graham, who has fought with Brantley in the past, was stripped of all his chairmanships.

Graham, who had been chairman of Education, Health and Rehabilitative Services and of an appropriations subcommittee, was not even returned to those committees as a member.

Brantley said the fact that Graham was the only senator who never pledged to him while he was running to the leadership post was "always in my mind."

Alan Graham was talented. But he said it was a "schizophrenic talent" that fluctuated greatly.

Sen. W.D. Childers, D-Pensacola and a close Brantley friend, retained his powerful Commerce chairmanship.

The only other senator to keep the same chairmanship was Natural Resources chairman Guy Spicola, D-Tampa.

Barron, D-Panama City, was named chairman of Governmental Operations, where Brantley said he expected Tucker to pursue his favorite theme of efficiency in government.

Sen. Curtis Peterson, D-Eaton Park, was picked as Education Chairman while Jon Thomas, D-Fort Lauderdale, was named head of the HHS committee, succeeding Graham.

Other new committee chairmanships include Edgar Dunn, D-Daytona Beach, Judiciary-Criminal; Pat Thomas, D-Quincy, new committees on corrections, probation and parole; John Vogt, D-Ocala, new committee on Economic, community and consumer affairs.

Alan Trask, D-Fort Meade, Agriculture chairman; Dan Scarborough, new committee on personnel, retirement and collective bargaining; and Mattox Hair, D-Jacksonville, Judiciary-Civil.

Ex-Dope Dealer Vetoed

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — The Cabinet has refused to grant a teaching certificate to a Jacksonville man who served 18 months in a federal prison for attempting to sell heroin to an undercover narcotics agent.

Schuler Cox Jr., told Cabinet members that he made "a tremendous error in judgement" when he got into dope dealing. But he said he has rehabilitated himself and could make a contribution to society as a teacher.

The Cabinet voted unanimously on Tuesday to deny Cox a teaching certificate.

"It isn't quite as simple as you would like to make it," said Gov. Reubin Askew. "The question is how much we would like to expose young people to someone who's had this experience."

Cox was convicted Oct. 21, 1971 of possession of two pounds of pure heroin with intent to sell.

He said he was "recruited by an old Army buddy to get into a get-rich-quick scheme" involving sales of heroin smuggled into the country from Southeast Asia.

Cox said he obtained a master's degree from the University of North Florida after his release from prison and hoped to get a job as a junior college teacher. His civil rights were restored last year.

Askew urged Cox not to be discouraged by rejection of the teaching certificate. The governor, who has taken a hard-line stand against teachers involved with drugs, reiterated his feeling.

"People who would indulge in it for the most part wreck their lives, so it isn't my intention to give a license to dismiss," Askew said.

Replicans weren't the only ones who felt kind of Tuesday. Tucker ousted the chairman of three important committees in revising the committee structure from 18 standing panels to 22.

State Facing Slump?

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — The state may escape the budget blackbills it suffered the past two years but it probably will be hit with a recession in 1977, some top economists predict.

The recession could mean that the state will have only $110 million in additional revenue to appropriate next session, compared to $200 million last session, senators were told Tuesday during a seminar on state revenue.

That could spell an even greater push for some kind of tax increase to fund the multitude of requests from various state agencies, the experts said. Some fields, such as education, already have complained that they don't receive enough money to keep up with inflation.

James Zingali, director of the Senate Finance and Taxation Committee, said that although smaller revenue projections than expected had exhausted a $28 million reserve for this year, supplemental funds probably would save the state from another blackbill.

For the past two fiscal years, the Florida government has been forced to reduce expenditures through blackbills of $100 million or what the legislature had appropriated because revenue fell short of predictions.

"We might get a little blackbill this year but not anything significant," said Zingali.

Another economist, David O. Jones of Chase Econometrics, predicted that a recession would hit Florida and the rest of the nation beginning in mid-1977.

He said the recession would not be as severe as the last one but would push national unemployment up to as high as 10 per cent by 1979.

However, Dr. Robert Lammalitti, dean of the University of Florida business school, said his prediction was not that severe. He said he believes the current mode of recovery would continue through next year.

House Democratic Chief Slashes GOP Leadership

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Democratic House Speaker Donald Tucker, the first Florida speaker to succeed himself in 50 years, has inaugurated his new term by spilling Republican blood on the House floor.

Tucker was officially returned to the rostrum Tuesday as the House organized for its next session, beginning in April.

He then told members who would head 22 standing committees. Then he slashed the House minority staff from 11 to 2, touching off cries that he was trying to annihilate the Republicans.

House Minority Leader William James, R-Bradenton, and House Clerk Allen Morris, The House also confirmed Wayne Westmark as the new Sergeant at Arms.

Tucker created several new committees in expanding the committee structure from 18 to 22 standing panels. Among the new committees are Tourism and Economic Development, headed by Rep. Jerry Melvin, D-Fort Walton Beach and Corrections, Probation and Parole, headed by Rep. Don Hazelton, D-West Palm Beach.

Tucker also created a special committee on Organized Crime, headed by Rep. Eric Smith, D-Jacksonville.

In setting up that panel, Tucker cited the migration of Hodes was ousted in favor of Rep. James Helman, Finance and Taxation Chairman Carl Ogden was replaced by Rep. Charles Boyd, and Governmental Operations Chairman Robert Hector was replaced by Rep. Hyatt Brown.

Tucker, afflicted with what aides said was a serious infection in his inner ear, was sworn in by Supreme Court Justice B.K. Roberts. Roberts also swore in the 120 members of the House, including 31 freshmen.

Also returned to top posts were Speaker Pro Tempore John Ryals, D-Bradenton, and House Clerk Allen Morris. The House also confirmed Wayne Westmark as the new Sergeant at Arms.

Hodes' ouster was expected. He had been reported in trouble since he voted against the appropriations bill last session in a dispute with Tucker over whether education spending should be increased. He received no other leadership position.

"We've had no other disagreements this year," he said, adding that Tucker had indicated earlier that Hodes would either retain his chairmanship or receive another top post.

"He didn't keep those commitments," said Hodes, a Tampa physician. He said he would seek a place on the education panel.

"We've had no other disagreements this year," he said, adding that Tucker had indicated earlier that Hodes would either retain his chairmanship or receive another top post.

Lake Mary Candidates: What Are They Really Like?

JOHN AND JOANN DECKER IN THEIR SHOP

Decker: Patrolman Weds A Meter Maid

Four generations of the John Decker family live in the family home on West Crystal Lake Avenue, Lake Mary. "We are an ordinary working family. We all work," said Decker. Decker, 44, chief electrician at Florida Power Corp., has been employed by the company for 17 years. His wife JoAnn, 41, is in her third year of teaching sign language at Seminole Community College.

Their eldest daughter, Taffy, 20, has joined the Air Force and will be leaving home to report for duty on Dec. 7, election day. Cheryl Ann, 17, attends the Florida School for the Deaf in St. Augustine. Son, John II, 14, is a student at Crooms High School.

Members of the first and second generation, Decker's mother, Mrs. Anna Mae Decker, and grandmother, Ella Graves, also have jobs.

Mrs. Decker is a professional seamstress. Grandmother Craves crochets afghans. It takes her a month to six weeks to complete one of her works of art.

Although Decker was born in Hamilton, Ohio, his family brought him to Central Florida when he was still a child. His father, only 41 at the time, had had a heart attack and the doctor recommended that he move to the sunshine state for his health and "peace and quiet."

The family in 1944 chose Seminole County for their home because it is centrally located

THE ELECTION:

By DONNA ESTES
 Herald Staff Writer

A total of 1,135 Lake Mary residents is eligible to cast ballots in the Dec. 7 municipal election where candidates are seeking three city council posts and the mayor's office.

The only opposed council race on the ballot is for city council seat three, formerly occupied by Martin Bacon Sr., resigned. Seeking to fill the one year remaining in Bacon's term are John Decker, 44, a member of the city's planning and zoning commission and board of adjustment; and Cliff Nelson, 54, retired Navy veteran and former president of the Central Florida Zoological Society.

Running unopposed for mayor is incumbent Walter Sorenson, 34, who is completing his first term in office. Sorenson is production manager at Scott Electronics, a division of the National Cash Register Co. (NCR).

Sorenson and his wife have one son, Christopher, 6, a second grade student at Lake Mary Elementary School.

Lillian Griffin, 48, who is completing her first term in Seat 2 of the City Council, is running unopposed a second time.

She and her husband, Frank, have two sons, Frank Jr. and C.R., and a daughter, Lorraine. They own and operate a heavy equipment construction business.

Seeking re-election unopposed to a second term on the city council, Seat 4 post is Burt Perinchief, senior member of the music program at Seminole Community College.

He is 38 years old and has a PhD in music from Michigan State University. He and his wife have a son, Richard 13, and a daughter, Ruthann, 7.

Polling place for the city election is the Lake Mary Elementary School.

Poll workers, who have been named, include: Homer Gleason, chairman of the election board; Mrs. Lillian Burke; Mrs. Letha Fowler; and Mrs. Arolyn True, inspectors and Mrs. Jon Day, alternate and Mrs. James Gehr Jr., deputy.

Nelson: Pearl Harbor Changed His Career

Clifford (Cliff) Nelson dropped his pursuit of a degree in chemical engineering on Dec. 7, 1941, when the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor. He left his college studies at the Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in Ruston, La., his home state, to join the Navy. After World War II, he went back to school, but was called back into the service for the Korean conflict, deciding to make a career of the military.

He retired as a captain with 29 years service behind him, including a nine-year stint at the old Sanford Naval Air Station, returning to the home in Lake Mary that he had acquired in the mid-1950's.

During his military career, Nelson also attended the Drexel Institute of Technology in Philadelphia and graduate school in California where he obtained a degree in naval science.

"We liked the Central Florida area, Seminole County particularly and Lake Mary most of all," Nelson said, adding that he and his wife, Ginny, agreed that the Lake Mary community would be their home after retirement.

The couple met at a cadet dance prior to Nelson's commissioning in 1944 and married after 13 dates later that same year in Philadelphia. Their only son, Christopher, his wife Besty, and "our two lovely granddaughters" live in Sanford. Nelson's hobbies are photography, hunting and fishing. Their mixed breed "Italian cocker spaniel" Wags is 15.

In 1972, as it appeared that the little Sanford Zoo would be abolished and its animals given away, Nelson was urged to be president of the organization, the Seminole Zoological Society, founded to save the facility.

"I was told the group had to be organized and that the job would be over in 90 days," he said. When he left the office, work was well under way to establish the new Central Florida Zoological Park, off U.S. 17-92 in Sanford.

"Lake Mary is a very new city, still plagued with many, many problems of growth and the pains of taking care of itself," Nelson said. "Some of our citizens cannot afford improvements for improvements sake. Some decisions should be considered on a personal basis rather than the city making arbitrary decisions on what is good for the citizens."

"We probably won't like the results of growth in the future, but we will like it better if it is planned for rather than unplanned," Nelson said.

Break One-Nine!

Use your eyes before you use your ears.

Before you think about putting up your CB base antenna, make sure you've got your signals straight.

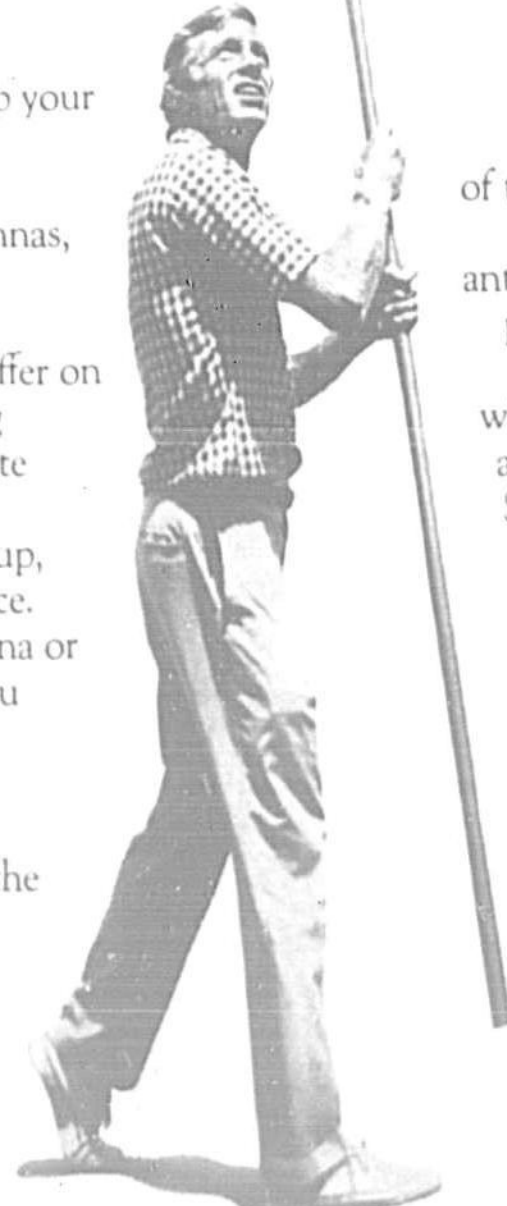

To begin with, Citizen Band antennas, unlike TV antennas, are under FCC regulations.

FCC and local rules sometimes differ on the allowable height. So, before erecting your antenna, check with the appropriate authorities.

And when you're ready to put it up, check on one other thing — the clearance.

The slightest touch of your antenna or guy wire to a power line could cause you a serious shock.

Here's how to play it safe. Make sure that you check all directions. In other words, not only the space above the antenna but all around. So, if your antenna should happen to fall, it won't happen to fall onto a power line.

How far away is safe? Certainly a distance no less than the height of the mast.

This safety rule not only goes for CB antennas but TV antennas as well. Or any metal pole for that matter.

And here's another word of caution; even when using guy wires to raise or lower your antenna you can't be assured of positive control. So, better double check the clearance.

So many people are now tuning into CB that we thought you should also be tuned into the necessary safety requirements.

This safety message has been brought to you by Florida Power and Light as a public service. Because serving the public is really what we're here for.

In Winter Springs You 'Ask Mary'

By NANCY BOOTH
Herald Correspondent

Mary T. Norton, Winter Springs general city clerk, has the distinction of being the oldest employee in terms of service on the city payroll.

In addition, she has to be a payroll clerk, bookkeeper, secretary, notary public, supervisor of elections, and a mini-chamber of commerce. Whenever someone has a question, they are usually told, "Ask Mary."

Mrs. Norton performs all these duties as well as sitting in on regular and special council meetings, and taking care of the city's ordinances, public hearings and codifications. She does her job in such a pleasant and efficient manner that most people who come in touch with her agree, "Mary is a doll!"

Mrs. Norton and her husband, William, live in Winter Springs with their daughters, Kathy, 18, a student at Seminole Community College; and Janice, 9, a pupil at the local elementary school. Their eldest daughter, Mrs. Mary Moncrief, resides in Sanford with her husband, Bruce.

Mrs. Norton would like to see the city adopt a comprehensive personnel policy, including a wage scale. She feels this would create better morale among city employees and better working conditions because "when employees are hired they would know what work up to," she says.

Being a long-term resident of the city, she has personal desires regarding the city's growth. She would like to see the city have its own post office, a bank established, doctors or other professionals locate here and some light commercial industry. Although she is against the area becoming a "booming metropolis," she feels there should be more services available "so people can do business in their own city."

MARY NORTON: SHE'S 'A DOLL'

Mayor Taps Charter Unit In Longwood

By JANE CASSELLBERY
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Mayor James Lormann has appointed seven members of a charter revision committee with three appointments yet to be made.

William Carpenter, a city resident and attorney, was named chairman of the committee, which Lormann charged with the task of formulating a charter proposal by June 8, 1977. The committee will hold an organizational meeting Nov. 30.

Also selected to serve were City Clerk Onnie Shomate, Walter Lee, incoming president of the Longwood Chamber of Commerce; and Shelley Cox, who is experienced in city and county government.

Lormann had asked each of the council to nominate someone to serve on the committee. Nominated to serve by his mother, Councilwoman June Lormann, the mayor declined, but said he would serve in an advisory capacity. She then nominated Harry Lindsey.

Councilman Parker Anderson named Thomas Schaefer and Lawrence Goldberg nominated Mrs. Virginia Warner. Appointees are yet to be named by Councilman Gerard Campbell and Council Chairman J.R. Grant and an additional one by the mayor. Grant was absent from the Monday meeting and Cornell and Lormann said they hope to choose volunteers from the city.

Those interested in serving on the charter revision committee were invited to call city hall or Mayor Lormann.

YES, MA BELL, THERE IS A VIRGINIA

Retiring Virginia Wallace, service representative for Southern Bell Telephone in Sanford, receives award for her 30 years of service from Bill Roy, division commercial manager (center) from Orlando, and Herbert Gilruth, general commercial supervisor from Jacksonville.

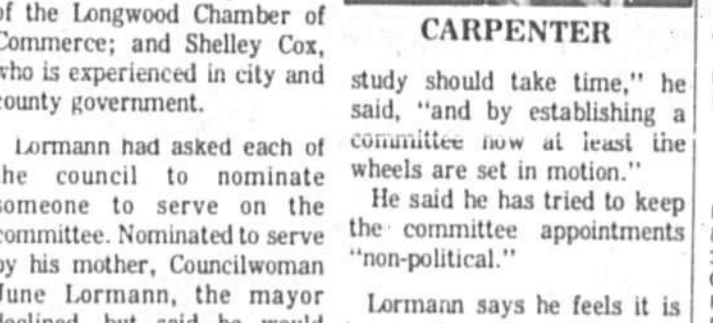

Sanford is Great!

A FINE PLACE TO LIVE! LOOK AT THESE ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF YOUR CITY'S GOVERNMENT:

A new public works complex of shop, vehicle storage, and administration building.
Fire insurance rating down to a Class 5, city wide, for lower insurance rates for all.
New fire stations, located to give better service and coverage.
New fire equipment with one large pumper and three new mobile units.
City wide paving program with all streets paved except a couple of miles where drainage lines will go in the future.

A new city hall complex underway.
A city with full coverage of both water service and sewage service. A fact few cities can claim.
Acquiring two more recreational areas through the use of federal grants.

A CITY THAT HAS LOWERED ITS CITY TAX MILLAGE FOR THE PAST TEN YEARS, THIS IN A TIME OF INCREASED MATERIAL COSTS, INFLATION, AND ECONOMIC DEPRESSION.

Probe Uncovers Three Such Cases In Florida

State Pension Checks Are Sent To Some Corpses

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — There's no foolproof way to prevent state pension checks from being sent to corpses, says Retirement Director Robert Kennedy.

"We have to depend upon people to return the uncashed checks and notify us of the deaths of retirees," he said.

In most cases, according to Kennedy, people are honest and notify the state that the retirees who were receiving the pension checks have died.

But Auditor General Ernest Ellison criticized the Division of Retirement last week for failing to check death records often enough. He said a spot check revealed three cases in which pension checks were being sent to dead persons.

Kennedy said the division, which mails 38,000 pension checks every month, has implemented monthly checks of state death records to improve its procedures.

But one-third of the retired state employees live in other states or foreign countries and there's no way the division can determine whether they have died, Kennedy said. Attempts to obtain federal death records have been unsuccessful, he said.

Ellison said the three deceased retirees who were identified in the spot check in April had died at least 11 months before.

The first case involved a man who died May 18, 1975. His checks were being sent to a Tampa bank, Ellison said, and the bank has returned $2,000 sent to the man after his death.

The second case involved a former state employee who died Jan. 20, 1975. The division mailed $3,047 in pension checks to him between the time he died and the computer came up with his name.

"That one still hasn't been cleared up," Ellison said. "Apparently the warrants have been going to a daughter, the best we can figure out, and she's been cashing them."

Kennedy said his agency is attempting to recover the money.

The third case involves a man who retired with a disability May 1, 1974 and died the following Dec. 1. Ellison said his wife received $6,142 in pension checks after his death.

But the woman was entitled to receive $6,245 because she had contributed to the retirement system, so the state sent her an additional $203, he said.

Kennedy said the woman should have reported the death of her husband to the state but didn't because she thought she was entitled to continue receiving pension benefits after his death.

The Florida Medical and Hospital Associations have become the first of many special interests that will attempt to carry favor with the 37 new legislators by dining and dining them.

The associations got to the freshmen one day before they were sworn in, holding a reception for them Monday night at a Tallahassee country club.

House Republicans have come to the aid of their leader, Rep. William James, in the continuing flap over legislative parking spaces.

James, a Delray Beach Republican, and other legislators were moved last week from choice parking places to distant locations in the rear of the House parking garage.

The move fueled speculation that House Speaker Donald Tucker, D-Tallahassee, who has been feuding with James, was punishing the Republican leader.

Sergeant-at-Arms Wayne Westmark, however, claimed he was solely responsible for the changes. James complained long and loud, and was returned to his old parking place by Westmark.

The Republicans, meanwhile, have asked James' transportation problems, regardless of the final location of the parking place.

They gave him a pair of roll-up skates.

Haynes' Hunches

By JIM HAYNES

Stick To Coaching, Coach!

Last August Jerry Posey sat in his office at Seminole High School and breathed a deep sigh as he looked at the schedule.

"Six and four," he said, talking to no one in particular, unless it was himself.

Posey has turned out to be as poor a prophet as he is adept at coaching.

Fifteen weeks later — no, make that 2,500 yards later — Seminole stands as the No. 1 team in Central Florida. Carrying a 9-0 record, the Seminoles as a good bet to finish out a perfect season Friday night at Lake Brantley.

After that, it's on to the playoffs, a road never traveled by a Seminole County eleven.

"No sir," said Posey the other afternoon before practice, "I never thought we would be here. This is far more than I expected. We only had three starters returning — four, counting one changing positions."

Ricky Mann, Kenny Lee, Greg Pringle and John Litton were the four. That's not counting Tim Raines, who in case fans have forgotten, needed the first month to finally convince his dad to let him play football.

Raines now has 13 touchdowns to his credit and is the thorn in every opponent's side. Carrying the mail only 10 times a game, Raines has averaged 100 yards per game, and has in effect "made" the Seminole offense go. Teams have to show him such respect, the rest of the backs are able to execute the devastating ground game which has become a Seminole trademark.

Defensively, however, Seminole may be even more devastating. While the offense has piled up 197 points and 2,500 yards of total offense, the Orangemen have limited foes to a mere 59 points and 921 yards.

Seminole has a 14-game winning streak going. But that's not all.

What the playoffs hold could be a virtual treasure chest.

Just playing for a state championship would be an experience every member of the team will remember for a lifetime. More specifically, an extra three games tacked onto the season will give the team considerably more exposure. And that's not a state ranking we are talking about. Exposure before college recruiters.

The prospect is enough to make a second-string guard drool.

For the record, this won't be the first undefeated team in school history. Nor unbeaten, untied. In 1961, Seminole went 9-0-1 and added an Elks Bowl victory over Dade City. Then, too, the 1970 team was 10-0, but lost to Orlando Edgewater but had the Sentinel Bowl reversed when the Eagles had to forfeit the game.

Munson Runaway Winner For A.L. MVP

NEW YORK (AP) — For catcher Thurman Munson of the New York Yankees, capturing the 1976 American League Most Valuable Player Award was the culmination of a fantastic season.

Munson was named winner of the award by the Baseball Writers Association of America Tuesday in a landslide. He easily outdistanced runner-up George Brett, third baseman of the Kansas City Royals, by 87 points.

In leading the Yankees to their first pennant in 12 years, Munson hit .302, belted 17 homers and batted in 105 runs.

The 29-year-old right-handed swinger, in running away with the honor, collected 18 of the 24 first-place votes and a total of 394 points from the 24-man panel of writers. He received four for second and two for third.

He became the first Yankee to gain the accolade since Elston Howard in 1963. Howard also was the last catcher to win the MVP.

Brett received 217 points, including two first-place votes. He won the league batting title with a .333 average.

Third in the balloting was center fielder Meikey Rivers of the Yankees with 179 points, including one first-place vote. The speedy Rivers batted .312 with 43 stolen bases.

An elated Munson said at a press conference Tuesday evening: "This is the greatest individual honor I've ever received in baseball. I'll try harder to win it again next season."

As for losing the World Series to the Cincinnati Reds, Munson said, "It wasn't a disappointing World Series. We got beat by a great ball club. We'll be back next year."

Hal McLean, Kansas City's designated hitter, finished fourth and another Yankee, first baseman Chris Chambliss, completed the top five. First baseman Fred Carter of Minnesota was sixth.

Others in the top 10 were center fielder Amos Otis of Kansas City, 58 points; relief pitcher Bill Campbell of Minnesota, 56; first baseman Lee May of Baltimore, 51; and pitcher Jim Palmer of Baltimore, 47.

Some 29 players were mentioned on at least one vote, but outfielder Fred Lynn of the Boston Red Sox, last year's MVP, was not among them.

Seven Yankees were named on at least one ballot, while five players from Kansas City and five from Oakland received votes.

The Yankees now have won the MVP award 19 times since its inception in 1931, top among teams in both leagues. Munson is the latest in a long line of outstanding Yankee catchers that includes Bill Dickey, Yogi Berra and Howard.

The 5-foot-11, 195-pound Munson has a career batting average of .288 since joining the Yankees late in the 1969 season. He caught 121 games last season and appeared in 31 more as a designated hitter or pinch hitter.

Tenace, Baylor Relocate In Sunny Southern Cal

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — The Jerry Kaptein Signing Sweepstakes continue today with at least one and possibly two more quality players due to be parceled out to major league teams.

Kaptein, the super-agent who may at the moment be the most powerful man in baseball, presided at separate news conferences Tuesday, announcing that catcher Gene Tenace has signed with the San Diego Padres and outfielder Don Baylor would go to the California Angels.

"We'll have at least one more signing and maybe two on Wednesday," said Kaptein, who still has eight of the most appealing free agents as his clients.

Three of Kaptein's remaining players are outfielder Joe Rudi, shortstop Bert Campaneris and pitcher Rollie Fingers, who, like Baylor and Tenace, used to work for Charles O. Finley and the Oakland A's.

White Sox Get A Lemon Named Bob As Manager

CHICAGO (AP) — Bob Lemon, a Hall of Fame pitcher who did a "creditable" job in his only stint as a major league manager, is the new manager of the Chicago White Sox.

The announcement was made Tuesday by Bill Veck at a news conference held in Illinois Masonic Medical Center, where the White Sox president is scheduled to undergo cervical spine surgery to relieve pressure from his neck nerves.

Bob Lemon did a creditable job when he managed the Kansas City Royals, said Veck, propped in a wheelchair and wearing a brown robe with gold polka dots.

"He last season was not a complete disaster, he is the type of man who can do the job," said Veck.

Lemon, 56, replaces 67-year-old Paul Richards, who is stepping down and will serve as a consultant for the White Sox, who finished last in the American League East in 1975 and had one second-place finish and two fourths. Last season, he served as a coach with the American League champion New York Yankees under Manager Billy Martin.

"I learned a few things from Martin," said Lemon, who faces a big task of guiding a club woefully lacking in star players. "He's a good baseball man and gets the most out of his players."

Look At Policemen's Pay!

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

In the "Babe Ruth Story," actor William Bendix promised a critically ill boy a home run. Anything can happen in Hollywood, so when the Bambino came through with his homer, the movie cameras showed the boy perking up. He went on to live happily ever after.

Baseball players, or sports figures in general, are not in the business of saving or protecting lives. They may make the public stand up and cheer or provide excitement and entertainment for millions of people. This, too, is a public service.

But they don't save people's lives.

Pittsburgh Pirate pitcher Doc Medich leaped into the stands this season and tried to revive a heart attack victim. The man died, but Medich succeeded, it would have been because of his medical school training, not his playing ability.

Assuming that saving lives is one of the most admirable things a human can do, why does the average professional athlete make more money than the average doctor? Why is the average basketball salary nearly $110,000, when the average salary for policemen and firemen in America is under $15,000?

"If we had a completely rational system then I think it would be legitimate for people to compare salaries," says Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association. "If the majority agreed to base the system of salaries on society's needs, then the top priorities should be for cancer research and the like."

"If we had such a system, then it would be fair to ask, 'What does playing ball mean?'"

"But we don't have that kind of system. Our system is a hodgepodge. It's based on all sorts of rational and irrational things."

"If a rock star fits the tempo of the times, then people will pay to buy his records. This has nothing to do with whether society needs rock stars."

"The fallacy of comparing athletes salaries with other professions is that it makes a stupid assumption. If a ballplayer makes less, would a teacher be paid more?"

"Absolutely not. If a ballplayer makes less, then the rich owners will make more."

"Professional athletes are merely the beneficiaries of

Hypnosis No Smoking Cure
By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB - My husband and I are heavy smokers. We have now reached the point where we can feel the ill effects from smoking so much and have tried a few times to stop but always ended up smoking again.

Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1561, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.
DEAR DR. LAMB - I would like to know what causes gallstones and why we have to have our gall bladder taken out. What are gallstones really made of?
DEAR READER - Gallstones come in different varieties. Some are made mostly of the bile pigments and are hard stones that one can see on a routine X ray of the abdomen. Others are made of cholesterol, which is concentrated in the bile. Still others are a mixture of cholesterol and pigment with other chemicals.

Gallstones are most likely to form when the gall bladder has become inflamed. It can get inflamed just as your appendix can. They also tend to form when there is an abnormal ratio of bile pigments, cholesterol and substances that help to maintain solubility of these in the bile. The material settles out and forms smaller grains which grow to larger stones.
The gall bladder is usually removed when stones are present because of the very present danger of an acutely inflamed gall bladder which can rupture and lead to serious complications, or because the small stones may lodge in the bile ducts and obstruct the liver. There is also a higher incidence of cancer of the gall bladder in patients with stones.
The decision whether to take a gall bladder out or leave it in is often based upon the age and medical condition of the patient in relation to these dangers.

Here is a hand that helped decide the finals of the 1945 Spingold Cup. Both teams reached six spades on identical bidding and the same opening lead was made. At trick two a low trump was led. The winning declarer rose with his king of trumps plucked West's queen and made his slam. The other one played the jack and was one down.
After the match the losing declarer complained about his bad luck, but it wasn't bad.

School Board Rejects 5 Of 6 Mediator Proposals

By KRIS NASH
Herald Staff Writer
Negotiators for the Seminole County School Board Wednesday rejected all or part of five items in a six-point package aimed at resolving disputes that have kept 1,500 district teachers working without a contract for nearly three months.
The action came during a 3½-hour negotiating discussion on contract recommendations submitted by state mediator Douglas Stowell of Tallahassee. Stowell was in Sanford last month to help settle the current impasse between the school board and the Seminole Education Association (SEA). Some 100 teachers jammed the meeting room Wednesday — standing along the walls and perching in windowsills — to hear the four-man school board bargaining team, headed by Chief Negotiator Ernest Cowley, accept only one recommendation from the special master's 23-page report.
At a meeting held last week, SEA members voted overwhelmingly to approve Stowell's findings in their entirety.
Cowley opened the session by reading a management position paper which stated in part that the administration "is in agreement with some of the special master's recommendations," but that "because of fiscal responsibility on the part of management, we must indeed reject a part of his findings."
The position statement praised the special master's efforts to analyze material related to budgetary disputes between the two sides — including teacher salaries, wage supplements and contributions to medical and health insurance premiums.
But, the paper concluded, "one who is not familiar with such processes can grasp, in a three-hour session, only a little more than the 'surface information' as it pertains to (total school financing). Therefore, we are in disagreement with some of his conclusions of fiscal matters."
Among the fiscal conclusions submitted by Stowell was one recommending a $300 annual raise in base pay for county teachers. Stowell also suggested increases in wage supplements and the $150 payment made by the school board toward the teachers' $200 yearly insurance premium.
After Cowley announced that the school board would not accept the state mediator's recommendations on these three points, a presentation was made by Sanford Middle School teacher Susan Smith, the SEA's financial consultant and a finance officer for the Florida branch of the National Education Association (NEA). Mrs. Smith pointed out that Stowell's report had found more than $7 million in the 1976-77 school budget which the special master said "it would seem . . . was available to the board" to meet teacher demands.

The difference between the total financial outlay required by Stowell's recommendations and the $21,209,504 currently being paid teachers from the school board's $52 million annual budget amounts to less than $75,000, Mrs. Smith said. "Out of $7 million," she concluded, "we don't feel that $75,000 is that big a dent."
"You can throw all the figures around you want to," Cowley responded. "You can confuse these people (in the audience), you can try to See SCHOOL BOARD, Page 9-A

Tax Hike For Floridians Predicted

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — The Senate's two most powerful leaders on budgetary matters are both predicting that taxes will have to go up next year.
Appropriations Chairman Phil Lewis and Finance and Tax Chairman Jack Gordon said Wednesday that unless revenue projections for the next fiscal year improve dramatically, some new taxes will have to be levied to meet all state needs.
The Senate Appropriations Committee was presented figures showing that taxes will bring in an additional $107 million next year.
That amount would have to be balanced against agency requests already for $380 million in extra funds, with many budget requests still out.
"This points up the problem we are going to be facing next year," Lewis told committee members.
Gordon, given the job of finding new tax sources, told his committee they would be looking at the state's entire range of taxing sources.
He said at a press conference the committee would make a major effort to raise revenue by closing loopholes and would examine new tax sources such as an inheritance tax, sales tax on professional services and perhaps changes in the gasoline tax.
"There are many areas of state service, certainly including education, that may very well be in need of more funding than we can anticipate from the present tax structure," Gordon told newsmen.
"That is why this committee is going to examine all possible tax sources and look at all kinds of loopholes to be closed in order to bring about a comprehensive and fair tax program," he said.
Gordon said he had major reservations about Senate President Lew Brantley's goal to eliminate property taxes as the source of $750 million in school funding.
He said in addition to the problem of locating taxes to replace the $750 million, the property tax elimination would represent a windfall to big land-holding corporations.
Gordon said his committee would probably vote on Brantley's proposal in January or February but said it might come out instead with some sort of "circuit-breaker" property tax relief to help low-income persons rather than complete elimination of school property taxes.
Gordon said projections were that state revenue would increase $110 million to $170 million next year, insufficient to meet inflation.
"Those kinds of figures certainly point to some kind of tax increase," Gordon said. But he said major increases such as an additional one cent on the sales tax might not be necessary.
Gordon said he would like to have gasoline tax levied as a percentage of the purchase price rather than eight-cents per gallon.
He also said he planned to study allocation of gasoline dollars with the aim of getting more funds to urban areas.
New Senate Transportation chairman Kenneth Myers, D-Miami, told his committee a top priority would be to revise allocation formulas to give urban areas more transportation funds.
