

SEMINOLE COUNTY MADE FINE RECORD ON Y. M. C. A. WAR FUND

County Pro Rata Was $2,000 Seminole Made It $2,559.44

Seminole county can justly pat herself on the back at the splendid showing made in the drive, for funds for the National War Work to be done by the Y. M. C. A. which closed here Monday evening with a total amount of $2,559.44 subscribed.

The captains and the committees deserve a great amount of credit for the earnest way in which they went about the great drive. Only $2,000.00 was asked of Seminole county, and the committees realizing that it was necessary to raise as much money as possible went at the thing in a businesslike manner with the result that Seminole county reports more than 25 per cent over her allotment.

Chairman Stevens said yesterday that after all Seminole county was not exhausted as the time was too short for the workers to see every one in the county and that if the War Work Council needed any more money that he had a trump card up his sleeve that he was ready to pull at any moment.

The chairman and executive committee desires to express a word of thanks to all the captains and all the committee workers that so graciously helped get the subscriptions together, and most earnestly desires to thank, through the columns of this county that subscribed to the fund and thereby made this report possible.

The treasurer's books at a late hour last night showed the standing of the different teams and the amounts subscribed through each team as follows:

Table with columns: No. of Team, Name of Captain, Total Report. Lists contributions from Sanford, Fla., Ovidelo, Fla., Geneva, Fla., Chuluota, Fla., Longwood, Fla., Altamonte, Fla., Monroe, Fla., Lake Mary, Fla., Paola, Fla., Sanford, Fla., and Frank Harris (col).

Grand Total. $2559.44

Some Fine Letters. C. V. Norfleet who has a fine place on Mellenville avenue and is with John Russell as a regular business while raising winter vegetables as a side line brought The Herald some lettuce today. It was real lettuce—all right and some of the finest headed stuff of the season.

Arcadia Gets 2 Camps. Arcadia, Nov. 22.—Arcadia is to have two Army aviation camps. A committee of prominent citizens from this place who have been at Washington for several days following up the presentation made by Arcadia when the Army Signal Corps commission headed by Col. Edgar came here several weeks ago, telegraphed this afternoon it had secured location of two of these sites for Arcadia. There is much satisfaction expressed here over the success of their mission.

Russians Want Peace. Petrograd, Nov. 22.—The Russian Government yesterday ordered General Bukhonin, commander-in-chief of the Russian armies, to open negotiations for an armistice with the commander of the German army for a proposal to negotiate peace.

Mr. Will I. Smith, who lives near Conway, some time ago set out broom straw seed and secured a good crop in due time. He was advised to plant the seed by Mr. C. H. Baker, a former county agent, who procured it for him.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 20.—A statement that the wheat fields, grain warehouses and flour mills are being systematically burned by German agents at a time when America and its allies are facing a perilous shortage of more than fifty per cent of their necessary supply, was made by Erwin F. Smith of the United States department of Agriculture, before the National Academy of Science.

New York, Nov. 20.—The National War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A. announced today that a total of the nation wide subscriptions to the war fund is approximately fifty million dollars.

Out in Kansas there is a new kind of grafter. He is an individual who goes about claiming that he is authorized to collect funds for food or clothing, as best appeals to his talents, for the government or for some worthy charity.

The Greatest Thanksgiving Feast. The above will be the theme at the Congregational church Sunday morning. Who gave the feast, to whom and why, and what the principal dish was will be related.

Music as follows. Morning: Prelude, Canzone Ambrasa, Navin; anthem, The Thanks of all Mankind, Chas. Gabriel (chorus of ladies); offertory, Dawn, Navin; postlude, Ten Thousand Times Ten Thousand, Nelson.

Evening: Prelude, Pilgrim Chorus, Wagner; anthem, Sing to the Lord of the Harvest, Wesley Hughes (chorus of ladies); offertory, solo, by Mrs. Takach, "Be Brave, Be Strong," Wooler; postlude, Give Thanks unto the Lord (hymn postlude) Myers.

Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Foster and family will reside at the Rectory during the winter season. Mr. Peck and his mother taking their meals at the Gables.

MEETING MONDAY EVENING

To Take Up Movement of Vegetables And Fruits

The Board of Trade is calling a meeting of all the growers to take up the question of movements of winter vegetables. This is not a Board of Trade meeting but the Board is calling it and will lend its assistance and cooperation just as it does every movement for the good of the community.

This question of the shipment of vegetables is one of the most serious that has confronted this section in many years and unless the growers can be assured of prompt shipment of the perishable vegetables there will be a big hole knocked into the prospects of the people of this entire community.

On account of the movement of troops and supplies for the government the movement of Florida products has been held up to a considerable extent and shipments of vegetables have been taking several weeks, arriving in bad order, and proving a loss to growers and shippers.

It is for this reason that this should be taken up by all the growers and shippers that the meeting at the court house will be held next Monday night at 7:30 o'clock and every grower and shipper of fruits and vegetables in the county should be there for it concerns them and is a vital question to all of the people.

Vesper Services at Rollins College. The regular bi-monthly vespers will be held in Knowles Hall, Rollins College, Winter Park, this coming Sunday evening, Nov. 25, at 7:30, and an unusually attractive program of music has been prepared by the Conservatory faculty and students.

This coming Sunday will be of especial note, Canzonetta (Tchakowsky) from violin concerto for violin and piano, a beautiful contralto solo, by Shelley and the entire Women's Club with violin obligato organ and piano with solo parts by Miss Siwert will be heard, in Agnus Dei.

Rev. Clarence A. Vincent, D. D., will deliver the address of the evening.

Chain Letter. Someone with the very best of intentions perhaps has started a chain letter which they term the "Red Cross Chain," strictly in violation of the law.

Attention has been called to this letter by one of the members of the Red Cross in this city. Since the Red Cross is not responsible for the letter the use of the name is a violation of the law in such matters and the writers of such letters are subject to prosecution.

While the chain letter is an antiquated nuisance, still some people persist in writing them. May the day speedily come when they will be barred by law to circulate through the mails. The letter referred to is as follows:

"An Ancient Prayer" "Oh, Lord: I implore Thee to bring victory to our allies."

This prayer was sent from Russia to be sent all around the world. Please copy and send to nine friends, one on each day; on the ninth day you will receive tidings of joy.

It is said by the Ancient People that all who did this would be free from calamity, but all who passed it by would meet with misfortune.

Please do not forget when your nine days are ended. This begins on the day you receive the letter. Do not break the Red Cross Chain.

Memorial Services. The order of the Eastern Star will hold their Memorial service Sunday afternoon, Nov. 25th, at 3:30 in the Masonic Hall. All Masons and their families are invited to be present.

ELECTION IN THE CITY ON TUESDAY

Resulted in Majority of Aldermen Being Re-elected

The White Primary to select the mayor, aldermen and executive committee passed off last Tuesday in the regular election calm that has characterized the city elections here or many years. There was but very little interest shown in the primary—many of the voters and some of the candidates being in the woods on hunting expeditions as unfortunately the season for killing game opened on Tuesday, the same day as election.

There were fifteen men in the race for aldermen and while there was some interest taken it was thought by the majority that it was no use getting excited over the result. There were some eleventh hour circulars scattered over the streets on Monday night but as usual this had but little effect on the general result and people voted as they had made up their minds several weeks ago.

The question of municipal ownership and commission form of government did not enter into the election, although it seemed as if some were inclined that way. The commission form of government will be voted upon at a special election in the future and every one will know that they are voting for or against commission form of government and it made no difference in the election Tuesday whether the candidates or those elected favored municipal ownership or commission form of government as both of these questions will be settled in due time and the people will settle them.

Mayor Davison had no opposition and received a fine vote as his election was conceded by every one on Monday. The following is the vote of the aldermen:

- Roy Symes, 193; C. H. Dingee, 154; W. A. Lefler, 145; R. A. Newman, 132; G. F. Smith, 134; John Adams, 129; Frank L. Miller, 129; F. W. Mahoney, 103; W. W. VanNess, 88; E. B. Randall, Jr., 78; A. P. Connelly, 77; C. B. Rhoads, 61; J. S. Wilson, 70; F. P. Rines, 41; A. R. Marshall, 35. The following executive committee was elected: Geo. A. DeCotes, W. M. Haynes, Forrest Lake, W. E. Watson, A. E. Yowell. * Elected.

Farewell Social. On Monday evening at 7:30 at the residence of Dr. L. R. Phillips will be held a church social. This is the closing of the fourth year of Rev. F. E. Steinmeyer's pastorate here and in accordance with the Methodist rules is the limit any pastor can remain. We deeply regret their leaving us and in view of this fact are having this social that we may all get together in one more social affair while they are here.

Xmas Boxes for Soldiers. The Social Department of the Woman's Club wishes to thank every one who gave their support toward the success of the Seminole Co. Box Fund for our boys who have gone to camps, to France and to our boys of the navy. Today under the supervision of Mrs. S. Puleston and her committee the boxes are being packed and as far as addresses are furnished the boxes are being mailed. The boxes to France have been gone more than a week. These are all mailed under instructions from "Uncle Sam."

To Mrs. J. S. Wilson we owe our thanks for her splendid work in attending to the baking of these cakes. Her committee responded beautifully. In these boxes will be found "a cake like Mother makes," "smokes," cards, chewing gum and a nice kerchief.

The Social Department owes to Mrs. Julius Takach, Mrs. Robert Herndon, Misses Helen Hand, Elanor Ferring, Mildred Holly, Fern

BRITISH AND FRENCH MAKE GREAT DRIVE AGAINST GERMAN LINES

Ward and Mary Elizabeth Puleston, and Messrs. Royal Klintworth, Hume Rumph, Edward Betts and our little soldier, Master Rutherford, all, a very full and expressive thanks for their most excellent program that made this fund so possible—on the eve of November 9, 1917—Thanks. Also to Mrs. B. T. Houser for her services we give thanks.

The financial support received from the various Seminole towns through the sale of tickets follows: Geneva, $1.75; Altamonte, $6.50; Longwood, $5.00; Ovidelo and Chuluota were unable to assist. Sanford, $73.00. Making a total of $86.25.

Then, too, a Club bridge party was given which realized $18.50, this giving a grand sum of $104.75, so that with a small drawing on the Club treasury the funds are sufficient.

Isn't this a royal Thanksgiving and a Merry Christmas. Cordially and gratefully, Mrs. Hal Wright, Vice Chm. Social Dept.

Dr. Hulley Sunday. Dr. Lincoln Hulley, president of the Stetson University and one of the best orators of the country will be at the Baptist Temple both morning and evening hours next Sunday.

For the morning hour the Doctor has consented to deliver one of his special sermons—those that know Dr. Hulley know that this will be a treat.

In the evening hour at seven o'clock Dr. Hulley will deliver that thrilling oration entitled "Over the Top"—this will be a special service in which the experiences of Sergeant Guy Emple will be given. Serj. Emple has been in the great world war and tells his experiences from actual life in the trenches. Dr. Hulley in his gifted way will bring a vivid word picture and show some of the things that really happen to a man fighting in this great war.

Goldboro Schools. Among the many contributors to the Y. M. C. A. War Work fund who deserve special notice is the Goldboro schools. This colored school which is composed of children within the first three grade contributed nearly five dollars for this fund. While this is not much money, yet coming from the colored children of one school it means much, and the children of Goldboro are justly proud of the record of their school.

In Memoriam. Richard Patten was born May 9, 1839 in Marietta, Ohio. He was in active business until seven years ago when he retired. For many years he was in the Oil business in Ohio. He was one of the pioneers in that field, and sunk the first oil well in that area, and later was one of the prominent refiners of that state. After the Spanish American war he spent eleven years in Cuba. His health being poor, some three years ago he sought for an ideal place to spend his last days and selected Sanford. He and his wife have gathered around them a large number of warm friends, and during this time made themselves a place in our hearts.

He had a stroke of paralysis early in the summer, and has gradually been growing weaker until Monday morning, November 19th he was called home.

He has been a member of the Presbyterian church for 32 years and since coming to Sanford put his membership in the local church. He was a Mason for nearly 50 years.

He is survived by his wife, by his sons, H. W. Patten of Calgary, Canada, and F. J. Patten of Havana, Cuba, and by his daughter, Mrs. Mary P. Ware of New York City and one grandson, Richard P. Ware, also of New York.

The funeral service was conducted at the residence Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock by Revs. E. D. Brownlee and F. E. Steinmeyer, and the interment was conducted by the Masons.

The sympathy of the town goes out to Mrs. Patten and her daughter who has been with her during the period of her father's illness.

Italians Hold Teutons At Every Point

The great Hindenburg defense line upon which the German commander in chief built his hopes of keeping the British from making inroads into the open territory beyond has been smashed. The task was apparently easy. Attacking over a front of thirty-two miles, extending from the Scarpe river east of Arras to St. Quentin, Field Marshal Haig's troops penetrated the German lines in the region of Cambrai five miles, at one point his troops sweeping five miles beyond the German lines, catching the Germans completely by surprise. They captured numerous positions regarded as impregnable, took thousands of prisoners and numerous guns. The latest advices indicate the attack has not yet ceased.

To the south around St. Quentin and east of that point in the Aisne region, the French began an offensive, the details of which have not yet been received.

The Italians everywhere are holding the Teutonic invaders. The British are progressing in their Palestine offensive.

London, Nov. 22.—The Earl of Derby, in a speech this afternoon, said that Field Marshal Haig's victory was a great triumph, the full extent of which is yet unknown.

Washington, Nov. 22.—Officials in Washington were deeply stirred today as press bulletins began to unfold the scope of the smashing British victory on the western front. While army officers were cautious in their comment, it was evident in all quarters that officials generally regarded this as the greatest blow dealt the Germans since the war started.

London, Nov. 22.—In one of his longest communiques Field Marshal Haig thrilled the British nation today with news of perhaps the most striking victory on the western front, reviving hope at a gloomy period.

JOINT CONVENTION AT MIAMI

F. E. C. Chamber of Commerce and East Coast Canal Association. A joint convention of the Florida East Coast Chamber of Commerce and the East Coast Canal Association will be held at Miami on the 26th of this month, where the consolidation of two organizations will be considered, it being the opinion of many members of both bodies that better results can be gained by joining forces.

It was decided to hold the joint convention at this time in order to have as many East Coast people in Miami during the Waterways Convention as possible. Every East Coast community should arrange to send as large a delegation as possible, and all delegates should make their arrangements to remain in Miami during the entire week, so as to take in the entire Waterways Convention.

Excursion rates of one fare plus fifty cents for the round trip from any point on the F. E. C. Ry. will be in effect after midnight of the 25th.

This will be an important convention, aside from the possible consolidation of the two organizations, as the election of officers for the ensuing year will take place.

Convention headquarters will be established at the Hotel Urmey, Avenue B between 12th and 13th Sts., where the delegates and visitors will be registered and the business sessions will be held. Delegates and visitors will be expected to register as soon after they arrive in Miami as practicable. The first business session will be held at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of the 26th.

Membership cards in the Atlantic Deepwaterways Association may be secured at the Hotel Urmey by those desiring them at the same time they register.

Mrs. May Dickens will be with Mrs. Martin this season at the Green Cove Springs hotel. Mrs. Martin will not open Comfort Cottage as first planned.

UNIQUE TEST FOR LIBERTY ENGINE

American Aviators Won't Have to Experiment While Flying Over Enemy.

TWO PROBLEMS TO SOLVE

United States Bureau of Standards Has Devised a Way to Reproduce the Conditions Found in High Altitudes.

Washington.—The bureau of standards is erecting a little greenish-gray concrete building on the edge of its grounds where one of the final chapters of America's preparations for aerial warfare will be written. The bureau declines to discuss what part it will play in the final design of the new "Liberty air engine", which the government is expected to mount on all American airplanes for use in the European war, but it has become known that before the final design of this engine is approved it must undergo a few final tests in that little greenish-gray building.

There will be determined, under conditions almost identical with conditions found at various altitudes, just how an airplane engine performs when it gets so high that the air gets perceptibly thinner. It will be tested in a temperature down to freezing.

Bringing High Altitude Down. The bureau building is a tomblike structure, full of delicate instruments which will have the effect of bringing the skies down to the earth, insofar as airplane conditions are concerned. It is impractical to send an engineer aloft to watch the engine perform up there, so the bureau plans to bring the skies to the engine.

Ever since the European war began, the aviators of the warring nations have been flying to astonishing heights in the clear air of France. Altitudes of 10,000 feet are quite commonplace, and 20,000-foot flights no longer excite wonder. Aviators must go up high, and they must have engines that will take them there, so the engine designers have been experimenting for the last three years with an engine that won't "smother" when it gets into thin air.

So far the allies have been unable, for various reasons, to make absolutely accurate tests. An engineer can go aloft in a plane, but he can't load in a ton or two of apparatus also and test out sparking efficiency, compression density, horsepower delivery and all the other things that he should do. Being confronted with the necessity of making such tests, the bureau of standards experts figured out a method.

The Two Problems.

First, they argued, they must know just what an airplane does at an altitude, say of 20,000 feet. An engine that will perform perfectly at 10,000 feet has a tricky habit of "stumbling" and missing ignition when it gets another 10,000 feet higher, and the experts wanted to observe all its ailments at that height.

Second, they wanted some sort of a mechanical arrangement which would permit them to test untried types of engines under conditions similar to conditions very high aloft, and to approve or condemn the performance of these untried types.

So they set to work to build a concrete, tomb-like structure, about 15 feet long by 6 feet wide and 6 1/2 feet high. This concrete chamber was so constructed that it could be made a vacuum if necessary. The walls are 12 inches thick and tarred on the outside. They needed thick walls because at 20,000 feet altitude the air pressure is about seven pounds to the square inch—about half the pressure at sea level. That meant that when the scientists got to duplicating air pressure at 20,000 feet the walls had to support an outside pressure of air equal to eight pounds to the square inch. If the walls were not built thick they would crush in like paper.

Either Hot or Cold.

Then a complete heating and refrigerating plant was installed so that when the four or six big fans which are to whirl the air over the engine at 40 miles an hour start their gale it will be down to the temperature that one finds thousands of feet up.

Into this air chamber they expect to put the engine type that is to be tested, mounted so that it can tilt forward, backward or sidewise, just as it would behave in the air.

As soon as everything is ready the doors are locked and made airtight, and the engine is started. When it starts, the air on the inside of the chamber is the same density as the outside air, but when the engine begins to suck in air to make explosions the inside atmosphere rapidly becomes exhausted. The chamber is provided with an intake valve which will admit the air that is needed.

Observation Windows.

The chamber is also provided with glass windows, through which the experts may watch instruments which register the air pressure and the temperature of the chamber. By data secured in actual flights the bureau experts know the exact density of the air at each of the various hundred foot levels. An ordinary aneroid barometer would give this data only approximately. When the engine starts and begins consuming air on the inside of the chamber the inside pressure begins to drop from 15 pounds to the square inch to 14 pounds, to 13 pounds, and so on, until it has reached a rarity that corresponds to a great height.

As soon as it reaches this rarity the intake valve is opened slightly, and only enough air is admitted to take the place of the inside air that the engine is consuming. This, of course, keeps the pressure inside at the desired rarity, and to all intents and purposes the engine is now flying at an altitude of 20,000 feet.

General Mobilization.

As soon as the engine starts, other parts of the chamber's machinery start too. For instance, the exhaust begins to work. It would be utterly impracticable to discharge the gases from the engine into the outside air through the ordinary exhaust pipe. With the air inside at seven pounds pressure and the outside air at 17 pounds the force of the outside pressure would jam a great quantity of atmosphere back up the exhaust pipe, fill the chamber with fumes and smoke and reduce the inside pressure to normal.

To overcome this the experts designed a blower attachment which will suck the gases and fumes from the engine with a force sufficient to prevent the outside air from rushing in. Also, the fumes and gases will pass through pipes which spray these gases with cold water, thus keeping down the temperature in the chamber.

The actual horsepower performance of the engine can be determined without trouble. Every ounce of pull it generates is transmitted to a big electric generator on the outside, and the amount of electricity generated by the engine's power makes it perfectly simple for the scientists to determine when the engine is faltering.

Through the glass doors of this concrete chamber, the scientists will observe the engine itself or the instruments attached, which will register every performance of that piece of mechanism. If it won't work in an air-pressure of seven pounds to the inch, that engine will never do for high observation work.

Tests Pre-Compression Also.

Broadly speaking, this is the chief use to which that concrete chamber will be put. It has another use, however. That is the testing of pre-compression devices. It has been found advisable to equip all airplanes that are expected to attain great heights with a pre-compression attachment. This is designed to gather and concentrate a quantity of air and at the moment of each discharge of the cylinders, inject it into the cylinders to supplement the deficient supply that the engine can take through its intake valves.

There are many of these pre-compression devices being offered to the government, which at this time cannot be proven except under actual battle conditions, but with the use of the rarified air chamber at the bureau, the government experts can decide within a few moments the uselessness or value of the device.

RED CROSS NURSE

Mrs. Richard Darby, formerly Miss Ethel Roosevelt, has served in France as a Red Cross nurse. Her husband and two brothers are now serving abroad.

ARABS ENRAGED AT TURKS

Deliberate Shooting of Lieutenant While Engaged in Prayer Stir Revolt.

Cairo.—A new reason for the revolt of the Asiatic tribes in Turkey against Turkish rule has become common property of the Ottoman army and threatens to cause other defections, according to reports reaching here.

According to these stories Abdul Kader, a Turkish officer commanding an Arabian contingent, deliberately shot and killed a lieutenant who did not salute because the Turk passed while his subordinate was at prayer. The Arabs are protesting bitterly that this conduct scarcely conforms to their ideas of a holy war.

Fisherman Catches Shark.

Reading, Pa.—Dr. D. G. Long of this city had a narrow escape while on a fishing trip to Fortques, N. J., where he hooked a four-foot shark which bit fast to his clothing when he hauled it into the boat. Charles Cole and Felix Oehring, who accompanied the Reading doctor, cut the shark's head off before its hold could be released.

PARISIENNE'S LATEST FAD

The animal was caught by a brave polli and is now the companion of its mistress. It is submissive to one person only and that is the young lady found in the photo. Paris has taken to the idea and more than one is seen on the streets of the Parisian capital.

NOW ATTACK RED CROSS

Officers Directed to Trace Source of Pro-German Propaganda—Spread False Stories.

Washington.—Pro-German propaganda, which has long busied itself against the government of the United States, has at last attacked the Red Cross so nearly in the open that General Manager Harvey D. Gibson has sent a telegram to all division managers in the United States to report to him the source of every attack.

"Rumors and innuendoes critical of and calculated to embarrass the Red Cross are being industriously circulated as part of an unpatriotic propaganda," wired Mr. Gibson. "Many stories, utterly unwarranted in fact, emanate simultaneously from too many parts of the country to be merely accidental."

Mr. Gibson intimates that the source of the propaganda will be found. He says:

"Every criticism or innuendo against the Red Cross should be immediately challenged and followed up."

The stories are of many kinds. One is that the Red Cross sells and keeps the money for sweaters and other articles given for the soldiers. Another is that nearly all money contributed goes for expenses and salaries.

"Of course the stories are maliciously untrue. As Mr. Gibson says:

"The Red Cross is run as an open book. It has no secrets. It is making a sincere effort to serve mankind, and is doing it as carefully and economically as it knows how. The utmost effort is being made to give publicity to all its activities."

SAWDUST IN GERMAN BREAD

Analysis Shows That About Two-Thirds Is From a Wood Product.

Rome.—That German bread is mainly sawdust is now proved by a military attaché of the Swiss legation in Berlin, who returned to Rome ill with dysentery. He brought a loaf of German bread to see if it was responsible for his bad health. Berne experts just analyzed the loaf and found it contains corn, 12 per cent, barley, 22 per cent and the remaining 66 per cent was wood sawdust.

Bread tickets also are in force in Switzerland. The daily allowance is 250 grammes, about nine ounces. Sugar tickets soon will be issued, with monthly allowance fixed at 18 ounces, and rice nine ounces. Butter is to be rationed too, the amount differing with districts, but nowhere to exceed three ounces a month.

With the institution of rations in Switzerland hundreds of German and Austrian visitors left for home. One reason was they can no longer send home food by parcel post, and the other, more potent, is that under the Swiss regulations food tickets are only issued after a thorough inquiry about the visitors' nationality and business. A large inflow of people, intent on spying, thus is also stopped.

WOULD OMIT ONE MEAL A DAY

Wisconsin Traveling Men Have New Plan to Help in Conservation of Food.

Green Bay, Wis.—Elimination of one meal a day, as a food conservation measure during the war, is being advocated by Green Bay council 123, United Commercial Travelers, for all individuals not engaged in strenuous work, such as farm and factory work.

The traveling salesman believes if a sufficient number of people will omit a meal a day, the amount of food saved will help in a large measure to enable the government to place larger supplies in the camps of the men who are fighting or in training, for the war. Buttons will be distributed to traveling men willing to omit a meal a day during the war.

GERALDINE'S REPLY

By LOUISE OLIVER.

"Hello! Yes, this is Geraldine Ford. Who? No, I can't guess. I haven't an idea. Well, since you insist on it, I'll have to, I suppose. Is it Arthur Wright?"

"No? Really it sounds like his voice—the way you jerked out that 'of course not' sounded exactly like him, too."

"Then—let me see—is it Fred Oakley? Yes, I'm sure it's Fred—he promised to call me up if he heard where Jim's ship was. That's nice of you, Fred, and do tell me about dear Jim. I've been so anxious about him. Really, I've dreamed about him for—What?"

"Not Fred. Then who in the world are you?"

"Dick—Dick Lippincott? Why, the idea! I never thought of it being you. Why didn't you say so in the first place?"

"Thought I'd know! The very idea—as though I could tell anyone's voice over the telephone!"

"Told me you'd call me up? Well, I can't remember that long."

"What? Why, Dick Lippincott, I didn't know you could use such language. If you're not careful, you'll have your telephone taken out. That's what it says in the book—no profane language."

"Well, I'd like to know what it is, then, if it isn't swearing."

"Yes, I think you'd better beg my pardon."

"I—know what you called me up for? How should I know? Say, is this going to be another guessing affair? If it is, I'm going to hang up. Besides, I'm busy—awful busy."

"Sewing!"

"M—hm. Mending my dress that got torn on the rose bush last night when we were taking a walk. I want to wear it to the Allens' tonight. It got torn fearfully, the ribbon's off the net ruffle for a whole yard, and I have to sew it by hand."

"What do I want to wear it for?"

"Oh, because. What do you want to know for? Can't I wear it again if I want to?"

"Because you said you liked it?"

"Why, I didn't remember. Did you say you liked it? Well, I told you before I can't remember things so long."

"What is it? You think it's a long time, too, only for a different reason."

"Don't I remember anything? You said last night? Why, let me see. Wait just a minute. I'm thinking. Yes, you said Betty Harlowe looked like a wood nymph in that gauzy white dress she had on, and that Laura Seaton was the wildest person you'd ever known—"

"Don't say 'thunder.' It sounds almost like swearing over the phone."

"No, I can't remember anything else you said."

"You don't believe it!"

Here the receiver went up with a bang, but Geraldine wisely waited on the stool. In an instant the bell jingled furiously. She watched the phone curiously for a full minute, smiling over each ring. Then she took down the receiver calmly.

"Hello!" she said, in a far-away detached voice.

"Yes, this is Geraldine," she went on coldly.

"Not through! I can't conceive why you should wish to talk to me when you don't believe anything I say."

"You're sorry?"

"You don't sound like it."

possibly think I'd say yes, do you, even if I had a mind to, with the whole town listening?"

"No, I can't forget it, you can say as you like. But I won't say no either, for it's none of their business, is it, what I say? So I'm just going to be neutral—and not say anything at all."

"Why, Dick, you did say all that before, about caring so much and loving me so long and everything. Do you think you need to say it so many times?"

"Going to say it until I answer?"

"Suppose I don't answer and leave the telephone? What would you do?"

"Come right over?"

"Oh, no, you mustn't. I look perfectly awful."

"Then I'd better answer, you say?"

"Oh, Dick, I can't, with the whole town listening. Besides I must have time to think."

"How long? Oh, fifteen minutes at least."

"Coming over?"

"A—all right, Dickie; I guess it would be better."

And hanging up the receiver, Geraldine put her arms around the telephone and kissed it tenderly. (Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Heron's Foot for Bait.

So great is the heron's reputation as a fisher that it has long been thought that it's feet, owing to some peculiar scent or oil which they were supposed to possess, attracted the fish, more especially eels, to within easy reach of its beak. In some places the rustic angler still believes that if a heron's foot is placed with his worms the latter are more eagerly taken by fish.—London Outlook.

Ink Spots in Books.

Anyone who has been unfortunate enough to get ink on a favorite book, or, worse still, a borrowed one, may be interested to know how one housekeeper removed such disgusting marks. She brought a little oxalic acid, diluted it with cold water and paluted it over the ink spots with a fine camel's hair brush. Then she applied a sheet of blotting paper to the stained part, and absorbed the stain with the liquid.

All in Family.

Bobby was seated in the reception room of a hospital awaiting his mother's return from the bedside of a friend. A nurse in passing asked him if he had a good time playing out of doors these fine days. Bobby looked wistful and said there weren't many children in their neighborhood. The nurse asked: "Haven't you any brothers or sisters?" To which Bobby replied, "Oh, yes, but they live with us."

Mrs. E. L. Wiggins and daughter, Miss Bessie, who have been the guests of Mrs. T. H. Humphrey for the past three weeks left Wednesday for St. Augustine where they expect to make their future home, being former residents of Arcadia.

T. W. Lawton was visitor at Lake Mary School Wednesday afternoon.

PAOLA ITEMS

Mrs. A. V. McGuin has arrived from Atlanta, Ga., and will spend the winter here with her husband. Mr. and Mrs. Eldredge and Mrs. Waller are down from Virginia and will spend the season in their home. Mr. Eldredge is making some nice improvements on the place and will soon have things spick and span. We are glad to have them locate here.

Mrs. Bullock and Mr. and Mrs. Clark and daughter, Margaert Clark are at Island Lake again for another winter.

Miss Frances Pearson has returned from West Palm Beach and has accepted a position with the L. Allen Seed Company of Sanford.

Miss Hattie Lou Ivey is expected home for the week end from Rollins College.

A. A. Hicks has lately purchased a new Ford car.

Clark Pearson left last week to join his brother, Oscar, at Black Point, where they are employed by the government.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Stenstrom are staying with Mrs. Clark Pearson.

Geo. Garwood and family have moved from here to their farm near Sylvan Lake. He has given up his position here as section foreman.

EAST SANFORD

Mrs. Irving E. Estridge and little son are spending some time at Dr. Masters' sanitarium at Port Orange. Mrs. Estridge is there for treatment. Mrs. Farmer of Kissimmee spent last week here with her sister, Mrs. I. E. Estridge.

John Ingram was here last week from East Beach, Lake Okeechobee, the guest of his daughter, Mrs. W. R. Guerry.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Estridge are enjoying a new Buick touring car.

C. W. and Edmond Stowe are driving a new Ford touring car to replace the Ford that was stolen.

The East Sanford Red Cross chapter will meet with Mrs. H. G. Dietrich during the next month at her home on Beardall avenue.

A committee of ladies met with Mrs. C. E. Chorpeling last Friday to plan for the Christmas tree and entertainment at Moore's Station church. A good program is being planned but the gift giving will not be as elaborate as heretofore.

We are pleased to report Tom Sullivan and Jim Estridge as having received two promotions since being at Camp Wheeler near Macon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ellsworth are mourning the death of their fine, much valued dog, Chris—only a dog, but such a faithful friend.

The ladies of the Red Cross Auxiliary met at the Library Wednesday and accomplished quite a lot of work.

Mr. and Mrs. Dinkel and Miss Dinkel were calling on friends in Orlando Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Healey attended the Red Cross executive meeting in Sanford last week. Mrs. Healey has been elected to serve on that committee.

Florida Sunday Schools Asked to Observe a "Safe and Sane" Christmas

The Florida Sunday School Association is this year suggesting to the Sunday Schools of the state that the government's appeal of food conservation be observed, and that all pupils in the state be asked to give gifts for worthy enterprises instead of expecting to receive gifts from the Sunday school.

The suggestion is made that all candles and sweets be dispensed with at the Christmas festivities. There are approximately 120,000 Sunday school pupils in the state. Candy and sweets to the amount of one half a pound are usually given to each pupil in Sunday school where gifts are given. If this practice is abolished the schools of the state will effect a direct saving in sugar of nearly 80,000 pounds. It is also suggested that even oranges and apples may be restricted with profit.

This restriction will give every pupil of the state the real meaning of Christmas, which is to bring their offerings to the Sunday school at the Christmas time and bestow them upon some worthy institution or enterprise.

The Sunday schools of the state will find many worthy objects where gifts of money, clothing and eatables will be found much needed. It is suggested that the various denominational orphanages and other phases of work will be splendid objects upon which to center the attention of the pupils for this occasion. Some of these denominations are making other suggestions, and the schools of those denominations are urged to make the Christmas occasion one of large giving to these works. There are many institutions and places, interdenominational and undenominational where gifts may be bestowed with fine results. The Florida Children's Home Society; the many hospitals; the Associated Charities; prison work; Salvation Army homes; missions and many other places can be made glad by the gifts of the schools.

Christmas has been set aside by at least thirty denominations as a day when special emphasis should be placed upon destitute and horrible conditions existing among war-stricken Christian lands. Unless America responds to the appeal of the starving, unhappy people, they must soon perish. So the thirty denominations which compose the present "Sunday School War Council of America" have requested the International Sunday School Association to cooperate in this great move. Already literature is issuing from the office of the Florida Sunday School Association and from the various county Sunday School Associations asking that as many schools as possible consider this great benevolence at Christmas time. Additional information can be secured from the state office, or from the county officers, or from the Armanian and Syrian Relief Committee, 1 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y.

R. C. Weidler, general secretary of the state association in a recent interview said, "Never perhaps in the history of the S. S. forces of America, and certainly never in Florida has there come such a large appeal as this. More than 2,000 years ago the hills of Palestine echoed with the glad songs welcoming the new Christ. Today these same hills resound with walls of anguish and sorrow. Millions of Armenian and Syrian Christians are in bitter tears. They stretch eager hands to America. From our office we are trying to touch every Sunday school in the state. We want all to learn the Christmas lesson as to desire no candy nor presents so long as one suffering child exists here or across the seas. We sincerely trust that every right thinking person will take up this great, humanitarian plea and urge everywhere a "safe and sane" Christmas. The U. S. Food Conservation Committee is working with us, but the best of all is that the schools of Florida will be working in harmony with the large idea of Christian brotherhood which is spreading around our globe."

BOXING LIKED BY SOLDIERS

Art of Self-Defense Has for Long Time Been Encouraged in English Army and Navy.

The introduction of the manly art of self-defense into the training work of the various military camps throughout this country will be a good thing for the young soldiers.

In England boxing has for a long time been encouraged in the army and navy.

Many noted British professionals are men who learned to box while serving in the ranks or on shipboard in the royal service.

It is a certainty that from now on the same ideas will be carried out in this country, and it is sure to follow that boxing gloves will be a part of the equipment of every encampment of the American soldiers and of every American man-of-war.

POISON GAS NOT CHLORINE

Substance Alone Could Never Cause Agony and Internal Injuries Reported From France.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Chlorine is not the substance from which poison gases is made on the European battlefronts, according to a paper read before the American Electrochemical society convention by William D. Marshall, a delegate.

"During the first year of the war," Mr. Marshall said, "reports from abroad frequently reached this side to the effect that chlorine was used in the form of gas attacks, releasing it from cylinders, or containers, against the position of the enemy. My own experience with chlorine, as well as what I have heard from others on the subject, leads me to believe that it alone could never have caused such agony and internal injuries as were described, because in my practice I have never seen nor heard of anybody permanently injured by inhaling chlorine, although the temporary inconveniences and pain caused by it seemed at times rather serious."

Rather than perform a deadly mission Mr. Marshall said that chlorine had lent itself for war purposes in sanitation, sterilization of wounds, etc.

"BROKE" SOLDIER SAVES LIFE

Lack of Car Fare Brings Him to Rescue of Man Hurt by Train.

Minneapolis.—If Frank Brickley, private with the First Minnesota hospital corps, had had five cents Small Drafahl, 181 Bunker street, St. Paul, would probably be dead.

Drafahl was struck by a Chicago Great Western train at Wyoming street and the railway tracks. His left arm was mangled four inches from the shoulder.

Shortly after the accident, Private Brickley, who was walking to barracks from South St. Paul, because he did not have car fare, met Drafahl, bloody and staggering, at Lucy and Concord streets.

He applied a tourniquet to the arm above the injury and stopped the flow of blood, probably saving the man's life.

FEIGNS BLINDNESS, IS FREE

French Professor in Military Prison Deceives Germans by Remarkable Will Power.

Paris.—A professor of the Sorbonne, the great French university, recently obtained his release from a German military prison by a remarkable exercise of will power. He fell into the hands of the Germans in 1915. Deciding at once to get free in some way, he feigned blindness.

From that time it was impossible for the German military doctors or eye specialists to catch him off his guard. They subjected him to the severest known tests. He was tortured by scientific ways of verifying sightlessness, but never once departed from a fixed blank gaze.

He was finally declared totally blind, and included in a recent exchange of permanently disabled prisoners.

PLAN HOTEL CLEARING HOUSE

New York Has Scheme to Save Visitors Inconvenience in Locating Accommodations.

New York.—A hotel clearing-house, with the object of locating without delay suitable rooms for visitors when the hotels are filled, will be inaugurated under the auspices of the Hotel Association of New York city. The congested condition of hotels here at certain times during the year, as during the present world's baseball series, where visitors who failed to make reservations were unable to find accommodations without considerable trouble, led to the decision to organize the clearing-house. Under the new arrangement the hotel keepers believe that the troubles of the business sojourner in New York are at an end.

Probably True.

Mistress—"You say you can't read, Norah. How is the world did you ever learned to cook so well?" New Cook—"Sure, mum. O'lay it to not bein' able to read th' cook books."

PUBLICITY PULLS PROGRESS

"PRODUCING NOT PROMOTING" BOARD OF TRADE RESULTS (BY THE SECRETARY)

W. J. Peebles, General Agent Pennsylvania R. R., to visit Sanford

A visit from Mr. Peebles of the Pennsylvania Railroad to the Board of Trade, dated Nov. 19th outlines in a measure the traffic conditions as they are and goes into the matter of the perishable movement from Seminole county. Mr. Peebles states that during the early part of December he expects to visit Sanford and will do all possible to hurry our product to market in the meantime. So far, car load movement is consuming eight days to New York and a proportionate length of time to points beyond New York and to the western markets, and unless we can improve the service serious damage will result. Under the law now and will result. Under the law now and will result. Under the law now and will result.

Fifty one tourists arrived in Sanford yesterday. Most of them will spend from one week to a month in the city. This is only a sprinkling of what we will get directly after the holidays. This is the result of continuous, systematic advertising made possible by the Board of Trade.

Arcadia Gets Aviation School

Today's Tribune tells of Arcadia as having landed a Government Aviation School, the result of work of her progressive citizens assisted by Congressman Drane. This brings us back to our gun school for Seminole county. Already a large sum has been spent in making maps, photographs, etc., of the site which is in the Chulucota, Geneva, and Oviedo section. All the data is now in Washington, in the hands of the secretary of war and it is hoped action will be taken at an early date. We have at least been promised an official inspection of the site and with other places succeeding by pulling together is now an increased reason why we should maintain the same methods and secure one of these plums for Seminole.

A letter from B. R. Kessler, secretary Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce, states that Florida is to get another cantonment. This evidently refers to the gun school. If you are a citizen of Seminole county, surely you must be interested, particularly when you realize that a gun school established in this county would increase the population at least 30,000 and would turn loose over $200,000 monthly among our merchants, farmers and other industries. It simply takes progressiveness and cooperation to cure these things—how do you stand?

Forty one tourists registered at the Hotel Carnes last night.

Charles Howard Plattenburg, noted lecturer and city builder will be at the High School auditorium Dec. 3rd. His lecture will tell you what other places are doing, what you can do and the reward of your effort. It is sincerely hoped that every citizen in this community will hear Mr. Plattenburg. Let's wake up, pull together and get within our reach the many things we need and want.

Calling on the Board of Trade to express appreciation of the progressive strides being made by this section and of the favorable advertising being given Seminole county as a tourist center were Dr. W. H. Cox, state health officer, Mr. W. N. Stewart and Mr. John Dickinson of Jacksonville. These gentlemen appreciate also the close feeling between Sanford and Jacksonville and lay the credit at the doors of the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce and Sanford Board of Trade.

All growers who are interested in the prompt movement of their crops to market are requested to meet at the court house in Sanford next Monday night at 7:30 o'clock. The transportation matter is now a serious one and the meeting is for the purpose of keeping together for the common good. Every grower should be present. This is not a Board of Trade meeting, but a meeting that is entirely to help you of Seminole county. Unless methods are adopted now to insure normal movement the results will tell in the returns from your crops.

Express companies are now asking for an advance of 10 per cent in their rates.

The Board of Trade has delegated Mr. E. T. Woodruff to attend the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Convention to be held in Miami Nov. 30th. The purpose of the convention is to officially establish one of two water routes between Boston and Key West. One route being from Jacksonville down the East Coast via the canal system; the other via the St. Johns river and a cross cut canal to the Indian river. Already we have eight feet of water to Sanford and an average of four feet to Lake Harney. To establish this waterway via the St. Johns river means a deeper river by several feet which means ocean going ships to and from Sanford and on down the state. The Board of Trade today is inviting the visiting Rivers and Harbors committee and other men of national reputation to return via New Smyrna and Sanford from Miami and make the steamer trip from Sanford to Jacksonville on the St. Johns river. It is hoped the invitation will be accepted. Backlogging the Board of Trade letters are the personal letters of several of our leading citizens. We all want to work together for this wonderful cause.

Governor Wants Home Guards

SAYS EACH COUNTY SHOULD HAVE OWN AND NOT CALL THEM OUT OF COUNTY

Tallahassee, Nov. 19.—Governor Sidney J. Catts has written an open letter to the people of Florida, urging that more interest be taken in the organization and equipment of home guard companies in each county of the state. The chief executive requests that his letter on this subject be published in full. It follows:

To the People of Florida: It has been brought to my attention recently that there is not that activity among all of the counties of the state, as in my judgment and opinion, there should be, looking to the organization and formation and the equipping of county guards, as provided by the act of the last legislature.

I desire to say to the people of Florida that a little while ago there arose an emergency in this state which necessitated the governor of Florida calling to his aid the only power left in the state to enforce the civil arm of the government, to-wit, the county guards. There seemed to be some doubt in the minds of certain citizens at that time, as to the power of the governor to order away from a given county and into another county, in case of an emergency, county guards to preserve order and to enforce the keeping of the peace, and, on account of this doubt, I, as governor of Florida, asked the supreme court of Florida for an advisory opinion upon the subject and, upon their rendering an opinion to the effect that I had the power, as commander in chief of the militia of the state—they holding that county guard organizations were part of the militia of the state—I therefore, on account of the fact that the Duval county guards were the only county guards at that time with sufficient numbers, equipped with arms and uniforms and other necessary equipment, ordered the Duval county guards into another county to preserve the peace and enforce law and order. Since that time, I have noticed that there has been a decline in many of the counties of the interest that the different county guard organizations were taking in the county guard movement. The instance referred to in relation to the Duval county guards was an emergency that I cannot conceive will ever arise in the history of this state again; that is to say, at a time when only one county guard organization of the state is equipped with arms and uniforms. I understand there are several organizations in the state now that are thus equiand it is my purpose to say to the balance of the counties in the state, who have not shown the interest in this matter that, in my opinion, they should have shown, that it is not only necessary, but, in my opinion, their duty to at once organize and equip county guards in each of the counties of the state. There is plenty of time now for this to be done, and I have no hesitancy in saying that those counties who do not make an earnest effort to organize county guards in their respective borders will be held responsible for the preservation of law and order within their own counties, and I cannot conceive of any emergency in the future—and I warn the different counties of the state to the effect—where it will be necessary for me to ever again ask any county guard organization outside of the county where the need is felt to go into that county to preserve order. I have heard that an utterance of this kind from the governor of Florida would strengthen the county guard movement throughout the state, and, as it is my greatest desire to foster and encourage this movement throughout the state by the several counties I am therefore giving this public utterance upon this subject, and I trust that steps will be taken in every county in this state to immediately organize, uniform and equip county guards in every county in this state. I do not think it is right that one county should be required to spend the money of that county, and then some other county reap the benefit of it. This is an individual proposition as applied to each county, and I don't think that one county has any right to expect that another county will shoulder its financial burden, and I do not propose, as near as it is within my power, to aid any county with this kind of warning given them, if they do not at once take the necessary steps to protect the peace and dignity, law and order within their own boundaries. I am intensely interested, as chief executive of this state, in the enforcement of law and order. That is the only way we can live in this state, and preserve our homes, and therefore, I feel that I have a right and that it is my duty as well, to appeal to my fellow citizens and particularly to the county commissioners of each county and the citizens as well within their borders, that they immediately organize, uniform and equip county guards so that each county can, within their own borders have an organized force of men to stand behind and make strong the civil arm of the law in the respective counties.

Very respectfully,
Sidney J. Catts,
Governor.

OVER $93,000,000,000 SPENT ON WORLD WAR

Washington.—The second Liberty loan of $3,000,000,000 will be applied to the $20,000,000,000 war bill of the United States to June 30, 1918. This vast total of American expenses, however, is only one-fifth of the cost of the war to the other belligerent governments.

The actual cost to date, based on figures to the first of this year and the daily rate of expenditure since then, is $33,814,783,000. This includes Uncle Sam's $2,000,000,000 Liberty loan.

Great Britain has been the biggest spender, with $22,080,375,000 to her credit. This does not include Canada's $643,700,000, nor the $763,800,000 spent by Great Britain's other colonies.

The other entente allies have spent: France, $15,114,000,000; Russia, $12,863,000,000; Italy, $8,911,000,000; Belgium, $763,000,000; Serbia, $603,000,000, and Roumania, $706,000,000.

The central allies have spent much less according to the figures available. Germany's expenditures are estimated at $20,333,000,000; Austria's, $3,000,000,000; Turkey's, $1,000,000,000, and Bulgaria's, $784,500,000.

The riots would be on post two hours and off four hours throughout the 24 hours of the day or duty.

The county's orders are that "in cases not covered by instructions, he is to call the corporal of the guard." At night it is the corporal who is called to make the arrest in case the militia catches anyone trying to cross his post; and he must be continually on the job, not only when his relief is on post but also during the preceding relief.

Powers of Leadership. But it is guard duty in time of war that calls all a corporal's powers of leadership to the force. This is called exterior guard duty and consists of outposts during a halt and advance, flank or rear guards during an advance or retreat. It includes all that is commonly called patrolling. Bodies for this duty may be larger than a squad, and may be under the command of a sergeant or even a commissioned officer, if the duty is important enough; but here again the squad is the normal body to use and the squad leader the man put in charge if he is capable.

Every reader is familiar with the thrilling tales of patrolling from the trenches, and knows of its importance in the securing of details of information too minute for the alarm to pick up. The reconnoitering patrols have always been considered the eyes of an army, and even the airplanes cannot altogether take their place. Whether a corporal does any or much of this sort of work depends on the ability of the individual, and if he does well in this he soon ceases to be a corporal, for the qualities required in good advance guard or outpost work are those required in much higher grades than that of corporal.

Having discussed the military and what might be called the domestic responsibilities of the corporal, there remains a more difficult, because more intangible, responsibility. It is not mentioned in the "Infantry Drill Regulations," but it is much in the minds of the people. This is his responsibility for the moral tone of the American army. He can exert the greatest influence in this matter because he is the authority most closely in contact with the men.

Woman Fined for Feeding Dogs Bread. Miss Carolina Stiff of Dover, England, was fined $25 for feeding bread to dogs. She had been buying 20 pounds of bread daily for herself and her 14 dogs. She admitted feeding the dogs bread four times a day.

GERMAN SNIPER'S MASK

This German sniper's mask is made of 2-inch Krupp steel. It is very heavy and is believed to be only used when resting on some object. It was captured in a recent battle by Canadian.

An inside secret

about fried potatoes

As far as taste is concerned there are only two sides to fried potatoes—inside and outside. But both sides must be just right or your fried potatoes won't be!

Take the outside, first! It must be brown—a crisp brown. Potatoes fried in wholesome Cottolene can certainly answer "here" when it comes to a crisp brown outside. But this outside is not only a crisp brown. It is a quick brown. A quick brown means that the outsides of your potatoes are rapidly sealed, and that the insides will be just as tender and mealy as fried potatoes can be.

Frying proves, too, how wholesome and digestible fried foods can be, when you use pure Cottolene.

In baking with economical Cottolene, be sure to use one-third less than you would ordinarily use of other shortenings.

That is because Cottolene sets the highest possible standard for purity and richness.

Cottolene

"The Natural Shortening"

Bob Holly can get a joke out of anything. He has a two column headline in the Herald this week, "Jolly Embalmers," etc.—Tampa Tribune.

The hunters, who have been in the woods this week report good luck with deer, turkeys, ducks, quail and squirrels and Seminole probably has a fine hunting grounds as any county in the state.

See where "Robert Holly" was married in Marion county the other day. Hope our Bob Holly hasn't got himself in bad.—DeLand News. Not guilty, Chrs. One time up is enough.

Editor Holly of the Sanford Herald is overwhelmed with thankfulness because a lady has knitted him a helmet. Well, Holly's dome of thought needed covering or camouflage of some kind.—Lakeland Telegram.

A new paper has been started in a South Florida town and the Tarpon Springs Leader declares the town in question has "no more need of another paper than a hat as for two tails." The same remark applies to other communities, but people start these long felt want fillers, and won't be happy until they get their fingers burned.—Lakeland Telegram.

"Two solid cars of lettuce, he first cars to be sent out of Sanford this season were shipped on Wednesday," says the Sanford Herald, which adds that the lettuce crop of Sanford never looked better and that "there will be quite an acreage of early stuff that will bring a good price. The cool weather hereabouts for the past thirty days has headed up the lettuce and the crop is looking fine and crisp. It really sells to the buyers that are flocking here to get the standard Sanford brands. Romaine was the first to go out this season, several cars having already been shipped from here and lettuce will continue to be shipped from here for several months and long after the celery crop has started." Busy days in Sanford, surely, and it must be admitted that the Sanford section is doing its part in helping to feed the people.—Times-Union.

not a bit. We are looking forward all the time and looking for greater and better things than ever happened in that visionary long ago. Some papers are publishing the events of forty years ago, not for us. How would our ladies like to see their names in print of something that happened forty years ago when they are giving their present age as just forty. Never look backward. Remember what happened to Lot's wife.

THE Y. M. C. A. FUND
Y. M. C. A. means Young Men's Christian Association and it also means in Seminole county, "You Must Come Across" and we did it. The magnificent sum raised here in Seminole county for the Y. M. C. A. War Work fund speaks louder than mere words and praise is due Chairman Stevens, Secretary Haynes, Treasurer Maines and every one of the captains and lieutenants and workers in the field as well as those patriotic citizens who contributed. Special mention should also be made of the colored people who gave of their substance without stint and the colored captains who worked unceasingly among their own people to swell the fund. And if there is another call made, as there will be if the war lasts long enough the same patriotic people will be found on the firing line doing their full duty. When there is work to do the good people of Seminole county are found doing it every time.

OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS
The sugar famine is growing. The north and the east felt it first—now it has come clear down to Florida and there is no sugar for sale by the wholesalers and little by the retailers. Florida could furnish sugar for the whole United States. What an opportunity is offered here now for real philanthropy and business acumen at the same time. If a big corporation would guarantee a market, next fall, in Jacksonville or Tampa, DeLand or Sanford for all the cane raised at a fair price, and would furnish the seed at cost—Florida would show the world something in real cane raising next fall. Cane would be raised on all the low lands of the states—from a quarter of an acre plot to a dozen or a hundred acres, cut and sent to the mill. The railroads and steamboat lines would make money by quoting a very low rate on hauling the cane to the mill, and then transporting the finished sugar from the refinery. The time to get up such a plan is NOW—when the cane seed should be saved and then the land gotten ready for planting in the early spring. What a beautiful sight it would be to see waving cane fields on both sides of the St. Johns from Jacksonville to Sanford! This is possible. The land is here, the people are here to plant and raise the cane. All that is needed is the guaranteed market and the money to pay for the crop after it has been raised.—DeLand News.

NOW IS THE ACCEPTED TIME
This is the time to get busy. The lettuce is moving, other crops are looking fine, cattle and hogs bringing good prices and there is a prospect of more tourists than ever before. Therefore it behooves us to get busy and start to making this the trading center of this part of Florida. Nothing has ever stimulated buying so much as the Christmas edition of the Sanford Herald and this year it will be a symposium of many fine features. Aside from the many and varied Christmas stories and Christmas cheer it will contain descriptive matter of the county and the city and will be an edition that will give the prospective residents of Florida a fine idea of what the county and the city contains in way of attractions. There will be many cuts and plenty of good reading and this edition will be in great demand for those who want the folks in other states to realize what a great county we have. It will be possible to make this year's edition the greatest ever if the merchants will advertise as they should and they should advertise this year of all years. It takes a stimulus this year to induce the buying and the stimulus will be found in the Christmas edition. We have secured at a great cost one of the prettiest illuminated covers that has ever graced a special edition and the entire edition will be larger and better than ever before. Help us to make this year the banner year and we want you to make your county great and to let other people know it is great. The edition will be published 14 days before Christmas in order to give the trading public plenty of time to do their Christmas shopping early. Get ready for it and if we fall to see you in time send in your copy.

ASKING TOO MUCH
In view of the staggering load of free reading matter for the public good" every small newspaper in the country is called upon to carry, why should it not be the proper thing for the United States Government to establish one official newspaper in which all this stuff could be printed and distributed to the hundred million citizens of this country? If all the newspapers published weekly in this country would use all the "dope" sent them next week, all the weekly newspapers would contain exactly the same matter—except some of them—more than half in fact—could not get all the dope into their regular issues, even without any advertising. What would be the use of a local newspaper if it were made up of the same matter as the "local" newspaper published in a state a thousand miles away? The truth of the matter is that the thing is being greatly overdone. These conservationists send out reams and reams of good white paper—absolutely wasted. And with a white paper famine facing us, we hold that it is wanton carelessness. Then they ask for millions of reams more to waste through the printing of a hodge podge of half baked or warmed over stuff in the newspapers. Just as an example of how far this riding of a free press has gone, let us list the stuff that came into the Commercial office last week for free insertion. Some of it was as much as four full columns in length and if we had used all of it we would have had a print a thirty-six page paper, or left out news and advertising. Here is the list:

- W. C. T. U.
- Postal Orders.
- Y. M. C. A. Helps.
- Florida State Fair.
- Red Cross (National).
- Liberty Loan (belated).
- Local Red Cross Work.

- Civil Service Examination Notices.
- Three columns of pro-German stuff.
- State Food Conservation Propaganda.
- University Extension Press Bulletins.
- Women's Registration Card Campaign.
- Official Statements of U. S. Departments.
- "Gas and Flame" Chemistry Specialist Recruits.
- Appeals for Industrial Branch Volunteers for Army.
- Dope from the Committee on Public Information.
- United States Agricultural Suggestions to Farmers.—Leesburg Commercial.

NO McADOO DAY
During the progress of the Liberty Loan campaign, Secretary McAdoo visited many sections of the country in the work of stimulating interest in the campaign. In one southern city where Mr. McAdoo is well known and admired, the proposition was advanced by enthusiastic members of the entertainment committee to designate a day as "McAdoo Day." When the proposition reached the ears of the secretary it was promptly negated, with the remark that this was no time for self-exploitation, and that the entire energy of the American people should be centered on the one great task of winning the war. Mr. McAdoo was right. The people of this city would gladly have done him honor, and at any other time the secretary would have been pleased and gratified at this remark of their favor. But, as he well says, this is no time for exploiting personalities. It is a time when mere individual interests must give way for the interest of humanity in the mass. And there are many others beside the secretary who have sensed this fact. Leaders of thought and action, in every avenue of life are cheerfully relating to the rear their personal interests and ambitions and making themselves mere cogs in this great wheel that is to carry the nations onward and upward. At the same time it is a thought that needs to be emphasized, as not all of our people have yet grasped the fact that self must now take a more humble place; at least for a season. When the cause of the people has been won, doubtless there will be laurels distributed for many who are today working in comparative obscurity, but in the meantime let us do the work at our hand without clamoring for a place in the limelight. To be and to do is sufficient for today. Rewards may well be deferred till our great objective has been realized.

COTTON IS A GOOD CROP
What a wonderful crop cotton is, says the State Marketing Bureau. Florida produces more of long staple, or the Sea-Island variety, the kind used to make thread and lace material, than any other state. The invasion of our fields by the boll weevil should not discourage our farmers. Human ingenuity should be able to overcome this pest. For many centuries cotton was used for the one purpose of making coarse fabrics. Now it is a substitute for silk, wool and flax, and has scores of uses in the arts and manufactures. The U. S. Department of Agriculture at Washington has issued a dozen or more documents relating to cotton. "One twelve-inch gun," says a recent writer, "uses up half a bale of cotton with every shot fired. A modern machine gun in operation three minutes will use up a whole bale. The United States is converting a million bales a year into powder, as cotton forms the basis of nitro-cellulose. The world must depend upon the United States for cotton for several years to come. There is virtually no substitute for it. This country supplies about three-quarters of the world's requirements; the plant is used to clothe four-fifths of the population." Cotton seed was formerly thrown away, and several southern states had laws imposing penalties on planters for dumping seed into streams, because it polluted the waters. Now the seed has scores of uses. It is a substitute for butter, olive oil, lard, etc., and the meal makes valuable stock feed and fertilizer. The story of cotton now appearing in the Times-Union as a serial story, under the title of "The Romance of King Cotton," by Judge Benjamin Harrison, is an invaluable contribution to the literature of this great southern product, and should be reproduced in book form for permanent preservation and use. The cotton crop now being marketed has enormous value, and will bring a vast sum of money into the south. In addition, the south has raised more live stock and grown more corn, grains, grasses, forage, and other food and feed than ever before. As a result less by many millions of the money that is brought into the south by the cotton crop will be sent away as in the past. These many millions will be kept in the south for business activities, for construction work, for the development of latent resources and for numerous purposes that must aid in a large enrichment and upbuilding of our wonderful Southland.

Her Best Wishes.
It was the last day of school. The teacher was giving a farewell party for her class, as she was to be married in the near future. The children spent a pleasant afternoon, and before they realized it the time came to say good-by. One by one they marched up and shook hands with their dear teacher. Doris said: "I hope you will get as good a husband as my papa is."

Straw Used in Ancient Heavens.
Both wheat and barley straw were used by the ancient Hebrews, chiefly as fodder for the horses, cattle and camels (Genesis 24:25; I Kings 4:28; Isaiah 11:7; Job 25). There is no intimation that straw was used for litter.

Good roads Civilizers.
The building of an American road in one of the most lawless provinces of the Philippines was said to have had a wonderfully civilizing influence.

Avoid Sheep Sorrel.
Sheep sorrel is not often eaten by live stock owing to its sour taste, but it is well not to pasture horses or sheep on sorrel as the weed is somewhat poisonous to these animals.

Only Dine.
A great artist was once describing the decadence which in so many cases seemed to unfold the middle period of life. "Yes," he said, "old men dream dreams, and young men see visions, but middle-aged men only dine."

CHICKEN LIVERS

An old hen has a much larger liver than you in proportion to weight of food eaten. Then it follows that they get bilious just like you do. They are grouchy, cross, unhappy. Start her liver and make her happy. Then she will lay eggs all winter. Come and get a package of B. A. Thomas Poultry Powder. Feed it occasionally. See your hen perk up—hear them sing—look for eggs. Your money back if it fails. L. Allen Seed Co. Sanford, Fla.

MARKETING HOGS

Beats buying them. Steve Hoover, Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, writes, "Commenced feeding my herd of about 100 Hogs B. A. Thomas' Hog Powder over two months ago. Fifty were sick and off feed. Nearby herds had cholera. I did not lose one—they are well and growing fast. L. Allen Seed Co., Sanford, Fla.

The Art of Living

If music is the art in which you are ambitious to distinguish yourself, you may have to go away from home to get the necessary training, and perhaps cross the water, to secure the finishing touches. But the art of living can be practiced right at home, and very likely you will have as good instruction as can be found anywhere, in the circle of your own family.—Exchange.

Optimistic Thought

A woman who has never been pretty has never been young.

Inhuman Punishment

"Doesn't your choir sing at the prison any more?" "No, several of the prisoners objected on the ground that it wasn't included in their sentence."

HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST IN AND AROUND SANFORD

Mrs. Norma Elog McLaughlin, Social Editor. Anyone having guests, parties or any social for this column, it would be appreciated if they would telephone 276-3

The Parish House dinners continue to be the most attractive place to spend Thursday evening—an unusually large crowd was in attendance last evening. Many people came over from Live Oak, Geneva, Chuluota and DeLand. The music was fine and delicious refreshments were on sale.

Miss Ruth Mettinger, Miss Muriel Harrod, Miss Tehlma Harber of Commerce, Ga., Young Simmons and Roy George of Gainesville, Ga., left Tuesday in Miss Harber's car for a trip down the east coast. They will go as far as Miami, returning to Sanford Friday.

The dance given at the Elks Club Tuesday evening was a delightful affair, enjoyed by all present. Fruit punch was served during the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Betts, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Butt, Mr. and Mrs. Nixon Butt, Leiland, Mr. and Mrs. Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Wight, Mrs. Newman, Mrs. Puleston, Mrs. Theraser, Mrs. Jones, Misses Walkie, Hand, Mettinger, Vernon McDonald and Messrs. B. W. Herndon, Arthur Yowell, Sam Yountz, Shuman Lloyd, Gen. DeCotes, E. E. Brady and F. A. W. Brown were present.

A more beautiful card party has never been seen in Sanford than the one Wednesday afternoon given by Mrs. R. J. Holly, in honor of Miss Annie Hawkins' guests, Mrs. Homer Harber, Mrs. John Harber and Mrs. T. J. Syfan of Commerce, Ga. The whole lower floor was thrown open and beautifully decorated, with white star possums, asparagus fern and roses. Mrs. Holly looked most attractive in an evening gown of pink tulle and silver, receiving with her were Mrs. Homer Harber, Mrs. John Harber and Mrs. Syfan. These three charming women have never visited Sanford and it is regretted that they leave today for home. Eight tables of players enjoyed the game. Mrs. Frank Miller won the first prize, a beautiful card table cover. Mrs. Miller cut the consolation, six set glass individual salts. The guests of honor were presented with boxes of correspondence cards. Delicious refreshments were served. String band sandwiches, coffee and coffee. Those invited were: Miss Annie Hawkins, Mrs. Hart, Mrs. W. C. Hill, Mrs. B. A. Howard, Mrs. Hart, Mrs. Hensholder, Mrs. Hoff, Mrs. Bower, Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. Harry Lewis, Mrs. W. W. Newman, Mrs. Puleston, Mrs. Theraser, Mrs. Roy Symes, Mrs. Frank Miller, Mrs. Deham, Mrs. Gonzales, Mrs. Henry, Mrs. Maye, Mrs. Reed, Mrs. Tolar, Mrs. Fred Williams, Mrs. Neal, Mrs. W. A. Fife, Jr., Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. G. F. Smith, Mrs. Thigpen, Miss Willie, Mrs. Hal Wight, Mrs. Henry Furdon, Mrs. Rodmillat, Mrs. McLachlin, Mrs. Hey, Mrs. Deas, Mrs. Allen Jones and Mrs. Archie Betts. Assisted Mrs. Holly in serving.

Chas. Whitener of Jacksonville is the guest of his aunt, Mrs. J. N. Whitener.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Flach of Chicago have arrived in Sanford to spend the winter. Mr. Flach is representing the Fruit Growers Express.

H. C. Berman and J. H. Randolph of Leesburg were registered at the Hotel Carnes Wednesday.

Dr. and Mrs. Hulley of DeLand will be the guests of Mrs. T. A. Neal Sanford.

Mr. John Musson, who was run over by an automobile last Saturday is doing nicely. He is considered out of danger.

The Daughters of Wesley will have a bazaar and turkey supper Saturday evening. The menu includes roast turkey, cranberry sauce, dressing, creamed potatoes, home made bread and butter, chicken salad and baked beans. Many beautiful pieces of fancy work will be on sale. Mrs. Speering is president. This little band of women have worked very hard to make this bazaar a success. They have been meeting every Thursday evening for some time. They met last night with Mrs. Claude Herndon.

Mrs. Oscar Pearson and Miss Frances Pearson of Paola were in Sanford Wednesday.

Radolf Kuster, a prominent young attorney of Jacksonville has been visiting in Sanford.

Miss Katherine Spencer of Key West and Miss Gertrude Hutchinson of DeLand are the guests of Mrs. Wilcox.

Mrs. P. J. Parramore and Miss Annie Parramore, who are the guests of the Hotel Carnes will probably remain in Sanford until after Christmas. This will be good news to their many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Fagan, who had charge of the skating rink here last winter have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dietrich. Mr. and Mrs. Fagan are on their way to Kansas City for the winter.

The committee on Christmas boxes for the boys in the army and navy urge that their addresses be sent in at once. So far only thirty-six names have been sent in. If you want your boy to have a Xmas box (and we all want that) send or telephone his name and address to Mrs. Ernest Hensholder, 172.

Miss Katherine Wilkie entertained the Every Week Bridge Club very delightfully Thursday afternoon at (Continued on Page 8)

Mrs. Con. O'Neill, Miss May O'Neill and Mrs. Tanner of DeLand spent Wednesday in Sanford.

Mr. S. O. Chase of the firm of Chase & Co., Jacksonville, spent several hours in Orlando yesterday. Before returning he drove out to his famous bluewing grove in west Orange.—Orlando-Reporter-Star.

Dr. Puleston, R. A. Newman, D. L. Thresher, George Speer and Harry Ferran of Eustis left Monday for camp on Taylor Creek, where they will spend the week hunting.

Signing The Food Pledge

EXPERIENCE OF MRS. PAPWORTH WILL BE INTERESTING TO LADIES OF SEMINOLE WHO CAN APPRECIATE SAME

Mrs. Harry M. Papworth, worker for the Patriotic League in New York City writes her father, M. F. Robinson some of her experiences in obtaining signatures to the conservation food cards.

"Monday morning, having at last recruited my small company of five, and instructing them in methods of procedure imparted to me by officers higher up, I divided them into pairs, armed them with kitchen cards, window cards and pledge cards and led them off."

New York is a city of violent contrasts. Within the limits of my precinct are to be found owners of comfortable, if not sumptuous private residences, cliff dwellers in large, modern apartment houses and hotels and renters of cheap little flats over stores abutting on the noisy elevated railroad.

The private residences and high class apartments presented no difficulties as a rule and were without interest, except as showing a universal willingness to conserve the food, and a general industry in Red Cross and other relief work.

Occasionally the maid would report "Madam too busy to see you just now" which was annoying, but excusable. The mother who was bathing the baby and the cook who was mixing a cake for the oven could not be interrupted with impunity. But Madam who was engaged with a dressmaker and asked us to call another day, I politely but firmly insisted upon seeing. I told her, in my sweetest tones when she haughtily and indignantly swept to the door, that I was sorry to disturb her or to interrupt her for a single instant with her dressmaking activities, but that I myself had been so busy these important days that I had no time for dressmaking at all—a statement she could easily verify by looking me over—and that she would save many moments of my time if she would spare one of hers to sign her card and save me another call. She signed, looking as sheepish as I hope she felt.

Rather to our surprise we found even among the lower classes no objections to signing as a rule, on the part of German women. They were usually pleasant spoken and friendly and I should hate to think they were not as honest as they seemed. If there were any who were not entirely loyal citizens they were at least too well informed to refuse to sign a pledge that committed them to so little.

In no instance did we have to explain to a German housewife the object of our visit. One German janitress had refused the first day to sign, but had winked at the canvasser. I called upon her next day, to ascertain the significance of the wink. She refused in a loud voice to sign the card, then took it from my hand and stuffing down her neck, whispered she would sign and mail it when her husband (evidently within hearing) did not know. Whether this was a ruse to get rid of me I do not know.

A German janitor in a high class apartment house refused to allow us to go up in the elevator, saying he had received instructions to that effect. After three days of telephoning the owner of the building and the food commissioner the situation lifted down to the fact that the owner had given, upon request, a permit to the food commissioner, who had mislaid it as of no consequence, our pins and literature being sufficient identification. The owner, however, claimed he could not possibly permit the food canvassers to go through his building because the lost permit might turn up to be used by another food canvasser who would the second time cause his tenants to be "annoyed." I do not know this owner or his nationality, but the trick of putting himself on the right side of public opinion by granting a permit and then availing himself of a flimsy excuse to block the work of the government is after the pattern of the German nation in seizing a pretext to invade a neighbor's territory, plunge Europe in war, and at the same time appear righteous. Only a German brain could have conceived it.

The Irish—the poorer classes were almost invariably hostile at first. Often this attitude could be attributed to ignorance, and some of them had not read the papers and one, at least had never heard of Hoover or a food commission. I did not inquire if she had heard of a war. The task of appealing to patriotism in these instances seemed too stupendous for a short space of time. The best we could do was to win over these women by assuring them that their signatures would not make them liable for any money and that it would aid the government in regulating the high cost of living. We could not blame them for their interest in the cost to themselves. The price of food is a very real and pressing problem to these poor people.

We found a few among the Irish whose objections to signing lay deeper than mere ignorance or selfishness, and who were frankly "against the Government." We endeavored to convince these disloyal ones that their own interests as well as their duty lay in allegiance to the United States, whatever might be their grievance against England. They all signed the pledge, willingly enough in the end, save one woman. We ascertained her name from the postman as she had declined to divulge it the previous day. But though we threatened to report her name to the authorities (a prerogative we used but once in this district) we could not induce her to sign the pledge. We obtained, to save ourselves from complete failure in this family the signature of the husband, who said that while he was loyal to his country he had no business to be an ally of England.

The attitude of the Irish seems to be expressed by the little boy who said he hoped Germany would lick England and the United States would lick Germany. How this result could be managed seems not to worry them at all. They never face the fact that with Germany a victor, the hope of "Home Rule" for anybody but the Kaiser would be laid in the dust. The Germans appear so docile and stupid and the Irish so sharp of tongue and ready of wit. And yet the clever German has played upon the stupidity of the Irish until he has made him antagonistic to that country that fights for the very principles he acclaims. This sounds complicated but is nevertheless true.

At the end of the third day I and my assistants were becoming weary of our task. The obstacles we had encountered so joyously on Monday morning with such lively appreciation of the humor in our novel enterprise, became first boring, then distinctly irritating. To be treated like pedlars or intruders took all our patriotism to bear it with a smiling front. And to explain and plead for a cause that should need no recommendation wore out our patience.

Then those interminable stairs! Sometimes four long flights for the reward of one signature that could not be obtained on two former climbs. Only my military training at golf enabled me to endure the unusual exertion. Two of my little company who had not chased a little ball over hills and swung their arms about all summer, but had ridden in automobiles, succumbed utterly and had to lay off for a day to recuperate.

Barely, it. He also serves who only stands and waits," she also serves who only goes up stairs.

There was a reward for our long climbs, however. The fact of our being tired gave us a reader hearing. Being tired was something these poor people could understand and respond to. I found it such an effective argument that I was tempted to use it exclusively and save a deal of conversation. But I had awakened to the knowledge that these were something more to the food canvass than at first appeared. It presented an opportunity to speak a word for our country to a people who had been an easy prey to the wrong kind of propaganda.

There was another reason why we entered into pleasanter pastures on the upper floors. Whether people of unfriendly and ill natured dispositions care nothing for the light and deem it not worth going after, or whether living in twilight gloom at noonday makes people grouchy and bad tempered, I am not a psychologist enough to determine. Perhaps it is one of those "viscous circles." But we discovered a coincidence so universal that it might be stated as a proposition thus: Geniality increases with the sunshine and suspicious lurks in inverse ratio to the number of stairs. One door in a particularly dark hall refused to open to our knocks at all. We were told by the neighbors that this family never answered a knock. They had suffered burglars once and would take no more chances. As we went higher doors from opening warily just a crack were thrown ajar and on the top floors we were often asked in and offered a glass of water or even a glass of milk.

On one of these top floors we found an old lady living quite alone in a clean but poorly furnished flat. She cordially made us sit down. A sweet serenity shone from her eyes and lighted her wrinkled face, as though a little of God's sunshine which flooded her small home was reflected in her soul. She proudly pointed to her service flag in a window so high that only as the risk of a crick in the neck could it be seen from the street. The star, she said, was for her boy serving in France. She said it with a love and courage that I am sure had faced the ultimate worst and would be equal to the sacrifice if it came.

It was on one of these sunny floors that we had the most thrilling experience of our canvas. To save time we usually rang two bells in these small halls. As my gifted colleague spoke both German and French fluently I would shift her to my door if opened by a woman of either nationality. Nothing is quite the open sesame of a mother tongue. If both women were French I dived down into my forgotten school day lore and brought up and dusted off what French I could. Such expressions as, S'il vous plait, N'est pas, Alors, and Il n'y a pas de quoi, came readily enough and I overworked them a little. In this instance a German woman answered my ring and I was about to hand her over to my partner, when I discovered that she was in difficulty of some kind. A woman with coal black hair, large black eyes and gleaming white teeth was gesticulating wildly and pouring forth a tirade at such a speed that I could not understand. My colleague, who had been gently bred, seemed inadequate to the situation, and indeed, I hesitated about tackling this virago alone myself. My German woman signed her card without demur and released me to go to the rescue of my friend. As neither of us spoke Italian it was some moments before we understood the cause of the excitement. "Sign a card," scornfully exclaimed this daughter of Italy, "Of course I will sign a card. It is too little a thing to ask. I would do more, I would fight for this country." Glancing at her neighbor's door (which so closely joined her own that only a thin wall separated the two homes) she drew us inside. "What do you think I am?" she cried, "like those Germans who make their home in this country and serve another? I make my living here and I belong to America. I fight for America, not for Italy, but Oh, see what they have let happen to Italy!" She sank in a chair trembling and white with emotion and pointed to a newspaper open upon the floor. "America is a great and good country," she went on, her breast heaving and sobe in her voice. "She sends help to Belgium, to France, to Russia, but not to poor Italy. I know, I read the papers. We had her in our arms now, kneeling each side of her, trying to soothe her—to make her understand how sorry we were for Italy and for her. 'America has made a large appropriation to Italy,' we told her. 'It is also in the morning paper.' 'Yes, I know,' she wailed. 'But it is too late, TOO LATE!' They did not ask for men, they do their own fighting, those Italians, but they had no money, no guns, no ammunition—and now it is TOO LATE!"

The ominous words rang through the well-lit hall as we went down the stairs. Not until we had reached the sidewalk did it occur to us that the subject of food had not been mentioned during that visit.

She was magnificent, that poor Italian woman. She had the imagination to visualize those gray German hordes sweeping through a fair country, despoiling its treasures and torturing its people. She had the sensitiveness to quiver at the picture of atrocities committed upon innocent inhabitants, of horrors that are enacted in the name of necessity by a power that spares neither children nor angels of mercy. She had a heart to bleed for suffering three thousand miles away. Big enough to forget her own petty privations, she participated in the larger interests of the cataclysm that is shaking the world.

Would that those calm pacifists could be more like her—those Americans who, resting in the happy confidence that the privileges and blessings now enjoyed are secured to themselves forever, complacently see French soldiers and British sailors defend the homes of peaceful countries. With self righteous pride in their aloofness, and who now withhold support from their government in its great trial, and by their criticism give encouragement to the foe.

The last night of the campaign a kaleidoscope of strange faces shifted through my dreams, a babel of foreign tongues disturbed my slumber and great weariness prevented repose. But with the clear vision of wakeful hours I saw as never before that the crisis of all history was at hand. It is about to be determined by the survival of the fittest whether a monarch who blasphemously proclaims himself an agent of God, holding his subjects in allegiance by a false assumption and flouting all civilized laws. Shall might, by might alone, impose his will upon the world? Or shall free peoples with concord, and unity of purpose, with ever increasing regard for the claims of all, with justice administer the affairs of nations.

Because I hope that Truth may prevail over superstition, willing obedience over compulsion, and right over brutal force, and believe that mankind is worthy of the trust—I am grateful for the high privilege of being tired in such a cause."

"Potter's Field." The graveyard in which are buried those who are interred at public expense, comes by its name legitimately. In England and the continent the clay used to make pottery was dug up in long trenches, which were left unfilled. Common consent soon made it possible for these unsightly stretches of ground to be put to the useful purpose of interring the bodies of those who were cared for as a charge upon the country.

To Overcome Fatigue. If you are weary after a fatiguing day, on reaching home take ten minutes' rest lying on the back. When you rise, cleanse the face with cold cream, rubbing lightly across the lines and in an upward direction to correct sagging of the muscles. A cloth wet in very hot water should then be applied, followed by several applications of cold water. You will be surprised to find yourself quite rejuvenated.

First Newspaper Woman. It is said that the first newspaper woman was an American, Mrs. Anne Royall, who was not only the first woman journalist, but the first woman to own and edit a newspaper. It is also curious that she is said to have originated the idea of "interviews." She was born in Maryland in 1700, put her first printing press on Capitol Hill in Washington, D. C., and published a small weekly, first called the Washington Paul Fry and later the Huntress.

Backward. James was standing beside the cradle of his month-old brother, trying to quiet him, when his mother came in and picked the baby up. After picking him up, she said to the father: "I really do not know what is the matter. Joseph will be eleven months old tomorrow and he has only two teeth." James said: "Gee, that ain't nothing. Grandma's eighty years old and she only has one."

Public Warned Against Rats

In this time of high cost of living, everybody should help to kill rats, a pest that destroys over $200,000,000 worth of foodstuffs annually besides distributing disease germs that cause the deaths of untold numbers of human beings. The easiest and most effective way to rid the house, barn, store, or other buildings of rats is with Stearns' Paste, which can be bought for 35 cents at any store. It also effectively destroys mice, cockroaches and waterbugs that prey upon foods.—Adv.

KEEPS RECORD OF MEN

Army of Clerks for Files in War Department.

United States Profile by British Difficulties in Checking Up Casualty Reports.

Washington.—A small army of clerks, operating files covering 40,000 square feet of floor space, soon will be employed by the statistical division of the war department to keep the individual record of every man wearing Uncle Sam's uniform.

The main purpose of the statistics is to provide an accurate means of checking casualty reports. Incidentally, however, the complete army history of the men will be recorded.

Maj. J. J. Jones has charge of the central office in Washington. Another will be established in Europe. Weekly reports will be made to central offices by divisional bureaus, which in turn will receive information from three members of each regiment, specially detailed to the work.

Two filing systems will be maintained. One, containing in alphabetical order the names of every man in the service, will serve as a check in referring to the regimental files.

The record of each man will contain the name and address of his nearest relative, to serve as an aid to prompt transmission of cabled reports of deaths and serious illness. The war department also will undertake to give relatives reports of military funerals, location of burial places and information concerning Americans held in enemy prison camps.

Until the Red Cross came to its aid, the British government experienced great difficulty in handling casualty reports, and by the establishment of this system the war department intends to avoid similar confusion.

DOG VETERAN OF WAR

"Boyeau," the German police dog, shown in the picture with Sam Burbank, his master and bugler of the Columbia War hospital in New York city, is a veteran of the European war, and if the Columbia unit is ordered to the front, may see service again.

Boyeau was drawing a mitrailleuse along with three other dogs at the beginning of the war. He was a member of a French company. Somewhere in Belgium he came under German fire and was wounded in the right fore-leg. His companions were killed, but Boyeau stuck to his gun and dragged it into position. He was taken to a hospital and his broken leg was set and gradually healed. Then he was brought to America and purchased by Mr. Burbank, who keeps him at the hospital as a constant companion.

HEALTH STRAPS BURN MANY

Celluloid Street Car Contrivances Ignite and Blinge Passengers in Newark, N. J.

New York.—The Public Service Railways company of Newark, N. J., recently installed in its trolley cars celluloid "straps" for the strap-hangers, this as a hygienic measure.

A car from Newark to South Orange blew out a fuse at Howard street and South Orange avenue. Instantly every one of the new straps burst into flame. People got off the cars the best way they could, but several were burned.

The fire was put out by the fire department after it had done considerable damage.

SEATTLE WOMEN WOULD ARM

Discuss Defensive Measures Against Woman Sluggers at Mass Meeting.

Seattle, Wash.—At a mass meeting of Seattle women held to discuss defensive measures against a woman slugging, who has caused a reign of terror in this city and who is believed by many to be the man guilty of the murder of Miss Ruth de Merrit and Mrs. Florence Wehn, it was suggested that all poodlers and others who make a living by going from door to door be interned, chain locks placed on all residence doors and all women armed for the duration of the emergency.

THE DANGERS OF TAKING CALOMEL
 If you only realized the terrible injury you do yourself when you take calomel, you'd never put another grain in your mouth. It's rank poison. Instead of calomel, use that splendid guaranteed vegetable compound, Martin's Liver Medicine, the medicine that is winning favor. It is excellent for headache, constipation and kindred ills. It acts forcibly and quickly without griping. Causes no loss of time from business; does not impair the appetite. While the prescribed dose is one tablespoonful, I have found by experience that a teaspoonful at bedtime promotes sound sleep throughout the night and a comfortable movement before breakfast. It gives me great pleasure to be able to recommend Martin's Liver Medicine as a pleasant and thorough laxative.—Andrew M. Bank, Miami, Ga.
 Martin's Liver Medicine is made according to the prescription of a celebrated Southern physician who used it for years in his practice. It is purely vegetable and is guaranteed to give satisfactory results. If after using it you are not satisfied, return the empty bottle and receive your 50c.
