Elliott Smith New Housing Director

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The Sanford Housing Authority on a 3-2 vote Wednesday night named a new executive director of the six public housing projects.

Chosen was 33-year-old Oviedo native Elliott Smith, who has worked as coordinator of youth employment for the Seminole County school administration for almost eight years.

Today was Smith's last day on the job at the school administration office, since the youth employment program, operated under the federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) has been phased out with the loss of federal funding.

He is to begin his $24,390 annually-salariat position with the housing authority on Oct. 11.

The SHA board of commissioners accepted hundreds of applications and interviewed dozens for the post over the past 14 months.

In the interim, Linda Williams, an 11-year employee with the housing authority, has been serving as acting executive director.

Wednesday night, the board split in naming Smith to the post. Voting in favor of his appointment were: Joseph Caldwell, chairman, Eliza Pringle and Leroy Johnson. Commissioner Wayne Cummings voted for another applicant, James Henry, while Commissioner Mary Whitney preferred Mrs. Williams.

Smith submitted his application for the job 10 days ago and was interviewed by the board last night. Although he lives in Orlando now, he said today he plans to move to Seminole County.

Born and reared in Oviedo, he attended

'I'm looking forward to the challenge and I'm going into this new work with positive expectations.'

public schools in Seminole County and graduated from Crooms High School in 1967. He said that his knowledge of the county and its problems appeared to have a favorable bearing on his appointment.

After high school, Smith attended A&T State University in Greensboro, N.C., where he received his bachelor of science degree in industrial electronics. He received his certificate in education at the University of Central Florida and has nine hours toward his masters degree in administrative supervision at Rollins College.

He plans to continue working toward that degree at Rollins.

Smith worked as a shift supervisor at a textile mill in North Carolina and after returning to Seminole County he did some substitute teaching in the public school system.

He began working at the school administrative office in January 1975. He was being paid $24,000 annually when the job was phased out.

Although Smith has not yet set priorities in his new job, he said today he will observe housing authority operations his first week on the job and then set priorities.

"I'm looking forward to the challenge and I'm going into this new work with positive expectations," he said today about the post with the authority, which administers projects with 480 living units in the city of Sanford.

During his years with the county, the staff under Smith's direction ranged from five to 25 persons.

Smith is single. His parents still live in Oviedo and his brothers and sisters, except one, live in the area.

Group Fighting FP&L Power Line

Efforts to stop construction of two high voltage electric transmission lines through Geneva have gone into high gear.

Seminole County Attorney Nikki Clayton is scheduled to return this afternoon from a Wednesday meeting in Tallahassee with aides to state Cabinet members on the proposed routing of the transmission lines.

On Tuesday, Florida Power and Light Company's attorney, Carlos Alvarez, met in Sanford with State Rep. Robert Hattaway, R-Altamonte Springs, and several Geneva residents to discuss placement of the transmission lines.

A meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday in Geneva to rally citizen opposition to the power lines. A similar meeting in February attracted more than 1,000 people.

And on Wednesday, two bus loads of Geneva residents plan to attend a Cabinet meeting when a final decision on the location of the 500,000-volt transmission line is expected.

Ms. Clayton was not optimistic about her mission to Tallahassee. She said the decision appears to have been made already.

Ms. Clayton said a representative of Volusia County also planned to attend the meeting to ensure that compromises between the county and FP&L were not changed.

The plan being approved is the establishment of a one-mile-wide corridor where the line may be placed. The corridor extends through seven counties — 175 miles from Georgia to southeast Orange County. The lines will provide FP&L with about 2,000 megawatts of power from coal-fired generators in Georgia.

The exact location of the lines within the corridor also will be subject to negotiation. A 330-foot right-of-way is required for the lines.

The corridor was adjusted to miss residential areas in Volusia, Orange, Putnam, Flagler and Clay counties but cuts right through Geneva, affecting almost 300 property owners.

A group of Geneva Elementary School students have also joined the fray to keep FP&L out of their community.

Fifth grade students at the school recently sent letters to Gov. Bob Graham asking that the line be diverted through Brevard County on a route that parallels Interstate 95.

The students, in Charming Brooks English classes, told Graham they were concerned the 500,000 volts in the lines could be dangerous and could cause health problems.

They received a reply from Graham who thanked the students for their interest. He said the cabinet will take their feelings into consideration at the Wednesday meeting and assured them that studies of the proposed route had turned up no evidence of any health hazard for residents near the lines.

Marijuana

20-Foot-High Plants Seized; 3 Arrested

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

More than $125,000 worth of marijuana has been seized and three south Seminole County residents arrested following two separate drug busts by undercover narcotics agents.

Lisa Darlene Eaddy, 24, of Maitland, was arrested at 11:57 p.m. Wednesday, at her home after Seminole County Drug Task Force members discovered more than 100 pounds of marijuana and drug paraphernalia at her home which is adjacent to Lake Howell High School, deputies said. Agents searched her home after County Judge Harold F. Johnson signed a warrant authorizing the search.

Ms. Eaddy, a native of Oakridge, Tenn., is charged with possession, trafficking and cultivating marijuana, possession of marijuana with the intent to distribute the drug and possession of drug paraphernalia, jail officials said. Additional arrests may be pending in the case, agents said.

According to state prosecutors, Ms. Eaddy is being held in the county jail without bond. County Judge Alan Dickey had originally set her bond at $50,000 because of the drug trafficking charge and because Ms. Eaddy reportedly told agents she would not spend time in jail. However, when it was learned that Ms. Eaddy is currently on five years probation for an Orange County forgery charge and is in violation of that probation as a result of her arrest Wednesday, bond was revoked, prosecutors said.

Agents said they seized more than 112 marijuana plants ranging in height from three to 20 feet at Ms. Eaddy's home. Numerous plants were found being cultivated in the backyard of the residence, while other plants were found growing in large planters and still others found hanging from the ceiling of a metal shed at the home to dry, agents said.

Agents said several paper bags full of the illegal drug were found in a hall closet at the home, vials and jars of marijuana seeds were found in the bedroom and about 19 bags of pre-packaged marijuana were found in a locked wooden foot locker. Scales and smoking devices also were found in the home, agents said.

Deputies said the total street-value of drugs seized at the home is conservatively estimated at $100,000.

Meanwhile, agents also seized more than $25,000 worth of marijuana during a search of the home of Craig and Hope Crandell, of 2941 Brantley Hills Court, Longwood, at 10:10 p.m. on Sept. 23, deputies said today.

Crandell, 27, and his wife, 24, were arrested on charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia and cultivation of marijuana and are free from the county jail on $8,000 bond each, jail officials said.

Agents said they discovered more than 50 high-grade marijuana plants growing in Crandell's backyard after County Judge Alan Dickey authorized the search.

Agents said the illegal plants ranged in height from one to seven feet. Drug paraphernalia and scales also were found in the couple's home, agents said.

Manslaughter Dismissal Appeal Set To Be Heard

A panel of judges is expected to hear arguments Monday as to whether or not the state has grounds to appeal the dismissal of a controversial manslaughter case in which a 17-year-old Forest City youth was accused of plowing his car into a group of five girls, killing one of them.

According to Assistant U.S. Attorney Evelyn Davis Golden, the hearing concerning the case against Jerome Alexander Jowais, now 18, of 1561 Kenlyn Drive, Forest City, will be held at 10:30 a.m. Monday at the Fifth District Court of Appeals in Daytona Beach. She said she will present the state's arguments for the appeal to District Judges James C. Dausch and Joe A. Cowart and Associate Circuit Judge Steve Welborn Daniel of the Fifth District.

Jowais was charged in the May 17 death of Laurie Anne Hebel, 14, of Longwood. She was killed after a car ran into a group of five girls walking along Wekiva Springs Road, north of Altamonte Springs, at about 1:20 a.m.

Mary Anne Hebel, Laurie's 10-year-old sister, injured her arm, clavicle and pelvis in the crash. Three other girls — Susan Hebel, 15; Jerri Fockler, 14; and Judy Smerilson, 13, all of Longwood, were treated for minor injuries received in the accident.

In addition, police said Jowais' blood-alcohol level was tested and found to be .24 percent two hours after the accident. Florida law says a person whose blood alcohol level tests at .10 percent or more is legally intoxicated.

However, the case against Jowais was dismissed in January after Circuit Judge Dominick J. Saffi ruled prosecutors failed to bring Jowais to trial within the required 180-day time schedule under the state's Speedy Trial Law.

"We are maintaining several things in opposition to the dismissal and in favor of the appeal," said Prosecutor Steve Plotnick. "We are saying that the defense's actions in appealing adverse rulings in the case, forfeited the right to speedy trial because they caused the delay by taking appeals."

"One such adverse ruling that I'm talking about is when the ruling was made to try Jowais as an adult and not in juvenile court," Plotnick said.

"It is our position that the defense forfeits that speedy trial right when they do things such as appeal rulings that cause the trial to be pushed back," he said.

Mrs. Golden says she will present the state's arguments for the appeal to District Judges James C. Dausch and Joe A. Cowart and Associate Circuit Judge Steve Welborn Daniel.

"I plan to attend the hearing, along with the prosecutors (Plotnick and Alan Robinson) who handled the case," said Seminole-Brevard State Attorney Douglas Cheshire. "It has been and still is our position that time to try the case under the state's speedy trial law had not run out and we feel confident the appellate court will rule that way."

At the request of State Rep. Dick Batchelor, Gov. Bob Graham's office investigated the state's handling of the Jowais case and determined they could find no fault with Cheshire's office concerning its prosecution.

"It is my opinion that any allegations of misfeasance or malfeasance are unfounded," Graham said in a letter to Batchelor.

While Batchelor said he accepted the governor's findings concerning the state's handling of the case, "The bottom line is that there is still a girl who has been killed by an alleged drunk driver, and I won't be satisfied until the matter has had its day in court."

Batchelor was a key figure in getting the state's new, tough drunk-driving law passed this year.

Elevated 436 Freeway Studied

6 Lake Mary Blvd. Lanes?

By MICHAEL BEHA
Herald Staff Writer

Imagine Lake Mary Boulevard as a six-lane highway between Interstate 4 and U.S. 17-92.

Picture State Road 436 as an elevated freeway, four lanes about 20 feet in the air with six lanes on the ground to serve as access for frontage areas.

Conceptualizing those two projects is exactly what two study groups have been doing and they will present their recommendations in public hearings today at Seminole County's Agricultural Center auditorium at Five Points.

The Lake Mary Boulevard Citizen Advisory Committee planned to hold its public hearing at 4 p.m. and the S.R. 436 Corridor Study Citizen Advisory Committee was scheduled to hold its hearing at 8 p.m.

Seminole County Planning Director Woody Price said the meetings are important because they bring the projects, which are listed as high priority items in the county's comprehensive management plan, through the planning stage and into the funding stage.

Price said the committees looked at the projects and, "They were convinced that the money's not there. They also were convinced that the growth is coming."

The groups, composed of influential people in the communities affected by the highways, have said there is no alternative to the projects.

Price said the money for construction of Lake Mary Boulevard could come from gasoline taxes since the road is designated as a minor urban arterial in the comprehensive plan.

"But those funds already are committed for the next 20 years on Howell Branch Road and Maitland Avenue," he said.

Price said converting Lake Mary Boulevard to four lanes — the first stage in the widening — is estimated to cost between $20 million and $25 million.

Lake Mary Boulevard would be widened as part of the phase one plan from Markham Woods Road to U.S. 17-92. Additionally, a two-lane connector would be constructed, extending Lake Mary Boulevard from between U.S. 17-92 and Sanford Avenue.

Price said the project has an urgent need. About 12,000 cars use Lake Mary Boulevard per day. The road was designed to carry about 10,000 cars a day.

"We're approaching the upper limit of tolerance on Lake Mary Boulevard," Price said.

On S.R. 436, the need is even more urgent, Price said. That road was designed to carry 22,000 vehicles a day but in some sections near Interstate 4 the daily traffic is close to 60,000.

He said the state Department of Transportation will work on sections of S.R. 436 next year, widening the highway to six lanes and doubling the turn lanes at interchanges. But even that will not meet the needs of a rapidly growing urban area, he said.

Therefore, the S.R. 436 committee has looked at the overhead freeway plan and other plans as long-range solutions.

But Price said some people still will question the need for the road improvements.

"We expect there will be some people at the public hearings who are very serious in their opposition," he said.

IN BRIEF

Rewritten Insurance Code Goes Into Effect Tonight

FALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Policyholders will have more protection in their dealings with insurance companies, including the right to sue for unfair trade practices, under a new law that takes effect at midnight.

Among the revised insurance code's major changes are:

- A lifting of a ban on policyholders suing insurers for unfair trade practices and certain other violations not corrected within 60 days;
- Creation of a Comprehensive Health Association, similar to the high-risk motorists' insurance pool, to provide catastrophic health insurance to people rejected for regular coverage because of medical reasons;
- Authority for consumers to pay for most forms of insurance with credit cards.

Major Fraud Scam Broken

ORLANDO (UPI) — Authorities have arrested two Orange County men in a multi-million-dollar fraud scheme that investigators say is the largest ever to hit central Florida.

The arrests Tuesday came after an 18-month investigation into fraud complaints directed at Mercury Machine Tool and Supply Corp., which went bankrupt in February 1981.

Arrested were John Williamson, 48, of Maitland, and John Pinder, 36, of Orlando, who helped Mercury find financing for its customers.

Mercury Machine Tool bought large drill presses wholesale and either sold them retail or leased them to the machine shops that used them. To help customers pay for the equipment, Mercury would line up loans from big finance companies, according to Orange County sheriff's investigator Bill Morris.

In some cases, said Morris, the same piece of equipment was financed two or three times. He said that is like taking out two or three first mortgages on a house.

Innocent Motorist Killed

MIAMI (UPI) — A restaurant owner blazing away at two would-be robbers accidentally killed a 17-year-old girl driving by in her car, police said.

Maria Orge, of Hialeah, died when struck in the head by a stray .38-caliber bullet from the gun of Severino Perez, according to police. Perez was firing at two men fleeing from his restaurant, La Battidora, after they had tried to rob him at about 6 p.m. Wednesday.

The men, including a getaway driver, were charged with attempted robbery and felony murder, while no charges were filed against Perez as of early today.

Marines Land In Beirut; Begin, Sharon Won't Quit

United Press International

The final contingent of 400 Marines waited offshore to join 800 others at the Beirut International Airport, which today listed its first commercial flight after nearly four months of conflict in Lebanon.

Israeli soldiers arrested four gunmen who shot to death a 70-year-old Palestinian man in the Alm Al Helme refugee camp on Tuesday, 28 miles south of Beirut, state-run Beirut Radio said Wednesday.

In Israel, Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Defense Chief Ariel Sharon admitted Wednesday the massacre took place within their spheres of responsibility as ministers, but both spurned new calls for their resignations.

Soviet Jet Crash Kills 13

LUXEMBOURG (UPI) — A Soviet Aeroflot Ilyushin Il-62 airliner with 77 people aboard crashed and burst into flames on landing at Luxembourg's Findel Airport, killing up to 13 people and injuring 64 others, police said today.

Some of the 64 injured were flown by helicopter to France, West Germany and Belgium. A police spokesman said 27 people were released after treatment.

Robbery Trial Delayed; Longwood Lawsuit Dismissed

The trial of a 23-year-old Orlando man charged with burglary, armed robbery and sexual battery has been delayed until the first week of November in order to allow the defendant's newly-appointed lawyer to prepare his case.

Seminole Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. granted Michael Richard Jensen's request for the continuance and allowed him to dismiss the assistant public defender who was representing him, allowing Orlando lawyer Edward Kirkland to take over the case.

Jensen had previously been appointed a public defender after he said he received a gross weekly income of only $140, had no savings and could not afford private legal counsel.

Jensen was arrested in May after two women identified him as the man who broke into their Altamonte Springs apartments on separate occasions, held a knife to their throats, sexually assaulted and robbed them. The women, ages 24 and 33, were attacked just two days apart, police said.

Jensen is also slated to appear for trial on similar charges next week before Circuit Judge Dominick J. Salfi. No request for a continuance or change of lawyers in that case has been filed.

In other court action, circuit Judge Kenneth M. Leffler dismissed a lawsuit which was filed against the city of Longwood by a local body shop owner whose wrecker service contract with the city was canceled.

Leffler agreed with City Attorney Marvin Hooks' that legal documents filed in the case proved the contract between the two parties had expired.

Linda Ivey, owner of Sparky's Auto Body and Towing, filed her suit in April asking that the court block an April 28 City Commission vote which canceled the contract. Ms. Ivey named Mayor June Lormann, Commissioners Charles Pappas, Steven Uskert and Timothy O'Leary as defendants in the suit.

The suit charged that the city's decision to cancel the contract was retaliation against her company because of an argument which occurred April 26 between shop manager Fred Petterson Jr. and city commissioners and not because of failure to meet contract specifications.

Paupers' Burial Fees Hiked

Seminole County commissioners have approved a sizeable increase in the burial allotment for indigent and unknown persons, the first increase in 22 years.

The new rate will be $550 for burial and $400 for cremation, an increase from the $250 payment which has been made to funeral homes since 1960.

Seminole Health and Human Services Director Dr. Jorge Deju told commissioners 21 people have died in the past five years who qualify for the payment.

The payments are made to local funeral homes which embalm and bury or cremate the bodies.

Sanford funeral director William Gramkow told commissioners that funeral directors have taken care of the bodies for many years despite financial losses.

"We receive enough bad publicity as it is. We're not heartless people," he said. "We want to do it as well as possible, but we don't want to be taken advantage of either."

"I don't see how we can do this for $250. We've done it for years. We absorbed the cost because we were nice guys."

Sanford funeral director Robert Brisson said morticians don't know until they do the embalming whether or not the person's family can pay for the work.

He said they pick up the bodies, take them to the medical examiner's office if the death must be investigated, return them to the funeral home and prepare them for burial.

He told commissioners that Orange County pays funeral directors $375 per body and Broward County, $425.

Brisson also said that state laws mandating a concrete container be placed in the grave to keep the coffin intact have increased costs for burial.

Another state law, mandating that all bodies be embalmed whether they are buried or cremated, increases cost even more, he said.

Longwood Gives Final OK To Budget

The Longwood City Commission has tentatively approved an ordinance that would place a proposed charter amendment on the Dec. 7 ballot to extend the term of commissioners from two to four years.

A public hearing and final passage of the ordinance is scheduled for Oct. 11 in the Longwood City Hall, Wilma Avenue and Warren Street. The first reading was held at Monday night's commission meeting.

Also on the December ballot will be two commission races for the district 3 seat now held by J. Russell Grant and the district 5 seat held by Timothy O'Leary. The qualifying period for candidates opens Oct. 8 and ends at 5 p.m. Oct. 22.

Also Monday, the commission gave final approval to the $2,090,000 general fund budget for 1982-83 and the $2.21 per $1,000 assessed property value tax rate. The tax rate is down from the 1981-82 tax rate of $3.12 per thousand because of the extra one-cent state sales tax. However, taxpayers may see their tax bills increase because of an average 20 percent jump in property valuations.

Included in the budget is an across-the-board 7 percent cost-of-living increase for employees. A $1,500 incentive pay raise was given to City Administrator David Chacey, City Clerk Don Terry, Police Chief Greg Manning, Fire Chief Charles Chapman and Public Works Director Tommy Jackson.

Site plans were approved for the Messina-McCusker office-warehouse on Savage Court off State Road 434 on a 4.711-acre tract and the Schreeman Building, office-showroom-warehouse at Baywood Avenue and County Road 427 on approximately one acre.

Flagging Down The Convict Gravy Train

Many of the Social Security Administration's cutbacks in disability benefits are causing great controversy, but one place they are clearly justified is in the nation's prisons.

In the last 34 months, a total of 5,109 convicts have been dropped from Social Security disability rolls, thus saving the taxpayers $25 million each year. Another 800 convicts are in the process of being dropped and still another 1,000 cases are under review. The prisoners involved had been receiving an average monthly benefit of $322.

These checks to prisoners were superfluous. All their needs — food, clothing, health care — were taken care of by the various prison systems. Those receiving the Social Security payments represented 2 percent of the nation's prison population.

The bizarre business of paying benefits to prisoners was revealed to the public in the "Son of Sam" case. David Berkowitz is serving a sentence of 30 years for killing six persons in New York in 1977.

Disability benefits for prisoners came under fire in 1980 when it was learned that Berkowitz was getting a monthly Social Security check for more than $300 (the Social Security Administration refused to give an exact figure) mailed to him in prison. The check compensated him for the inability to hold a job because of mental impairment.

Other prisoners were receiving checks for similar reasons, or because they were injured while they were committing a crime or because of injuries received while in prison.

The administration currently is conducting an investigation of all disability payments, checking about 50,000 cases a month. It feels about 30 percent of those on disability rolls don't belong there. Thousands who have had their benefits cut off are finding it most difficult to enter the job market with so many thousands unemployed.

The administration is not trying to deny benefits to those who are truly disabled, but there is evidence it has made some mistakes in its efforts to cut runaway Social Security payments. In the case of benefits to prisoners, however, the administration must move ahead swiftly. There can be no argument about these cases. Only an overgenerous and lax administration of the Social Security System would have permitted prisoner benefits to be granted in the first place.

Navy Gets Partner

The Navy and Adm. James D. Watkins, chief of naval operations, must be commended for working out an agreement with the Air Force to share the responsibility of guarding the nation's sea-lanes.

The Navy traditionally has rejected sharing such missions with other services. Besides its ships, the Navy maintains its own air wing and Marine landing forces. The Army, however, has relied on the Air Force aid to support its military actions.

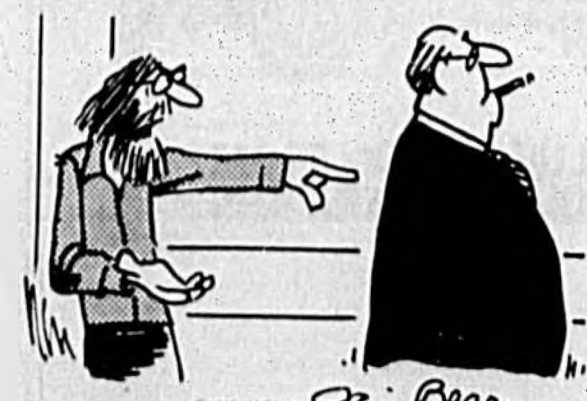

The agreement will comply with the wishes of Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, who seeks less interservice rivalry and more coordination among the Army, Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps. Negotiations on the matter began last year.

The arrangement calls for the Air Force to conduct long-range B-52 bomber sorties against enemy ships and naval bases and to provide coverage with its fighter aircraft for U.S. warships. The Air Force also would operate AWACS warning and control aircraft with Navy fighter operations and help patrol naval defense lines across the Atlantic from Greenland to Britain and Western Europe.

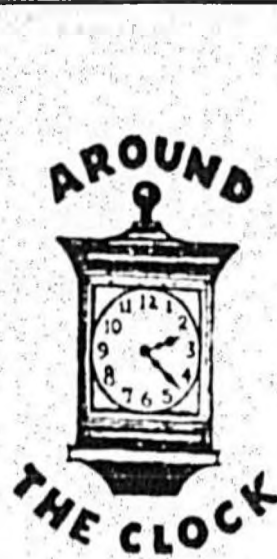

In turn, the Navy would use its carrier aircraft to provide fighter cover and aid the Air Force in bombing land targets. The two services also would cooperate in the support of rapid deployment forces.

The services working together in this fashion can save millions of dollars in defense funds and provide greater flexibility to the nation's military might. We hope the enactment of the agreement will lead to less rivalry among the services and a more unified defense effort.

Happy fourth birthday to the Seminole County Humane Society. Although the society was chartered in 1973, it was not until October 1978 that the actual shelter operation began providing special care for abused and injured animals. When it became necessary to move the shelter from the Sanford Airport, a site was obtained from Seminole County with the understanding the new shelter be completed and in operation by October, 1983.

Therefore the Humane Society has a big task of raising the construction money needed to reach its goal in time. To that end several fund raising activities are planned. Coming up in October are a sale at table 14, Flea World every Saturday; a booth at the Altamonte Mall Charity Bazaar, Oct. 23; a Shakey's Pizza Party on State Road 436, Casselberry from 5-9 p.m. on Oct. 28 when 25 percent of your purchase will go to the shelter; and a Cruise for Critters on Oct. 31. The cycle "cruise" participants will meet 9 to 11 a.m. for coffee and doughnuts at R.C. Hills Kawasaki on Highway 17-92 in Longwood before departing. The $7.50 fee includes lunch and a chance to win door prizes.

The Seminole County League of Women Voters, which participated in the pre-primary forums on Channel 24 and Orange-Seminole Cablevision, will again be part of the media general election activities. Providing non-partisan information to voters by sponsoring debates has become a League tradition, according to Ruth Ann Bramson, president of the Florida League of Women Voters, who will moderate two televised debates sponsored by the LWV Education Fund. The debates will be between candidates for the U.S. Senate on Oct. 23 and candidates for governor of Florida on Oct. 30. Both debates will take place in Tampa before live audiences beginning at 7 p.m. and will be carried on radio and television.

Congressional Leadership debates will be sponsored on Channel 24 from 1-2:30 p.m., Oct. 7 and 24. The first debate will focus on national security-defense spending with its effects on domestic programs. The Oct. 24 debate will deal with the economy and issues such as Social Security, taxes and unemployment.

The Altamonte Springs Historical Society has elected new officers to serve for a two-year term. They include Vi Sims, president; Homer Sewell, vice president; Dorothy Erisman, secretary; Pat Israel, treasurer; and Olla Rickett and Bill Bellevue, two-year directors. Betty French and Sherry Will will continue to serve on the board for one more year, as will outgoing president Howard Phelps.

The historical society came to the rescue of the turn-of-the-century house at 130 Park Ave., Altamonte Springs, which faced destruction. The house was given a reprieve in April when the city commission, the historical society, and Florida Hospital-Altamonte, owner of the property, signed an agreement allowing the house to stay where it is for two years. The society hopes to raise the money to move the building to another location and convert it into a museum and community center.

The Altamonte-South Seminole Jaycees will hold their annual Halloween Haunted House project there and give $1,000 of the proceeds to the Historical Society.

Canadian Economic Problems

The International Monetary Fund's selection of Toronto as the site of its heavily festive annual meeting two weeks ago will surely be recorded as one of the great ironies of financial affairs in 1982. The IMF, and its companion organization, the World Bank, exist to channel soft loans to the world's poorest countries. Canada, which hosted the partygoing of these two financial handholding groups, may soon qualify for their assistance. Today, Canada is facing the worst economic crisis of its history.

More than 10 percent of the Canadian work force is unemployed. The inflation rate stands at 11.5 percent. The prime lending rate is 15.5 percent, two points higher than the U.S. prime. The Canadian dollar reached its all-time low of 76 cents to the U.S. dollar last spring, sending shock waves across the nation. It has since improved to 81 cents U.S. Industrial activity is stagnant.

Furthermore, there's little hope for significant improvement. The Conference Board of Canada, which projects economic growth at a non-existent 0.2 percent in the second half of this year, sees only a 2.2 percent increase in 1983.

The Canadian political leadership, as usual, blames its problems on the United States. Canada is the States' biggest customer, and much Canadian industry is owned or controlled by U.S. interests. The slump in heavy manufacturing in the U.S. has been repeated in Canada. But economic sluggishness in Canada is not new. For years, Canadian investors have been sending capital south to the U.S. The upshot has been a pervasive sense of second class citizenship in Canada, that remains unaffected by Britain's formal recognition of Canada's independence last April. A Canadian citizen living in the U.S. remarks that "Canadians have no pride in their country comparable to that of Americans. There's mainly a deep sense of things getting worse."

Things have been getting continually worse, thanks to the economic policies pursued by the Liberal government of Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau. Trudeau, a native of French-speaking Quebec, takes his cues not from the United States, but from Western Europe. His cultural and political kinship is with France, which is now governed by a dedicated socialist, Francois Mitterand.

It's no accident, therefore, that conditions have worsened markedly in Canada, as they have in France. Trudeau's efforts to exploit Canada's envy of the United States by limiting foreign participation in Canadian industry have ravaged the economy. His National Energy Program, introduced in October 1980, attempted to purge foreign (American) shareholders from Canadian energy companies. The result of NEP has been to strangle U.S. investment in Canadian energy resources. In 1981, oil and gas exploration in Canada fell 25 percent, and industry earnings fell 35 percent.

The perception of growing crisis has spread from Newfoundland to British Columbia. The talk in business and government circles is of "economic emergency," and severe austerity measures, including wage-price controls, foreign exchange controls, and interest rate ceilings. The result of these would be a severe loss of value in the Canadian dollar.

Nepotism Report Gets 2 Results

WASHINGTON — Bureaucrats at the Los Alamos National Laboratory responded to my recent exposure of nepotism at the nuclear research facility in typical fashion: They attempted to uncover the whistle blowers, instead of taking steps to correct the abuses.

Officials pored over telephone records of the New Mexico lab in a desperate attempt to find out who had talked to my associate John Dillon. And what terrible secrets had been compromised? That officials had given cushy jobs to their relatives at a time when less favored employees were being laid off.

Los Alamos spokesman Jim Breen said the search of phone records was done to determine whether employees were making unauthorized calls to my office on the Federal Telephone System (FTS). "We have reason to believe FTS may have been used," he said. "It is a criminal violation."

In hopes of preventing any further waste of time and effort, I can assure the vengeful bureaucrats their telephone search was

Banks Lose By Winning

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The Washington lobbyist usually is portrayed as a smooth operator who stalks the halls of power and pulls the strings. But there are times when a special-interest group will get a bit too slick and will end up in hot water — which is what happened to the nation's bankers and their trade association, the American Bankers Association.

Since the late 1970s, banks have been trying to convince Congress to let them invest and assume equity positions in export trading companies (ETCs) — companies that market abroad goods and services produced in the United States.

Congress has been reluctant to chip away at the prohibition, dating from the Depression, that forbids a bank to mix banking and commerce. But now both the House and the Senate have passed ETC bills, since they are convinced of the United States' need to greatly increase its export markets and of the banks' ability to facilitate this if they are allowed to share in the profits.

The bills are considerably different and, as a result, a conference is needed to iron out the differences. Staffs of the House and Senate banking committees have been meeting, and word is that most of the differences have been resolved.

Thus it would seem that there is a clear path for the bill to become law and for the bankers to get what they have been after for the last five years.

But there's more to the story: When the Republicans came to power in the Senate, Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, assumed the chairmanship of the Banking Committee from Bill Proxmire, D-Wis. The bankers assumed that they would get all kinds of legislative goodies from Garn — who, they assumed, as a good conservative Republican, would be much more pro-banking than the liberal Proxmire.

They gave Garn a shopping list of wants — and, sure enough, he began to work on an omnibus banking bill. However, in the 16 months or so in which the bill has taken shape, the banks did not get all they wanted. In fact, some of the banks' avowed enemies — the savings and loans and the credit unions — received new powers that make them more competitive with commercial banks.

The ABA decided that it would rather fight than give in, and it turned to its list of "contract bankers" around the country — bankers who have close personal, financial or political ties to senators and representatives. It is these contract bankers who do the ABA's arm-twisting.

Gerald Lowrie, the ABA's executive director of government relations, called his contact-banker troops into battle with an Aug. 25 memo in which he said that the Garn bill "should be defeated or drastically amended."

In an internal memo, the ABA government-affairs people — under the heading, "miscalculations" — try to explain why the Garn bill ended up being so wrong for them. One such miscalculation, they say, was that the bankers "put faith in securing balanced treatment from committee staff, regulators and Treasury." Another was believing that they had a "solid bond with Chairman Garn and (committee staff director) Danny Wall." This commitment, they say, was "not reciprocal when (the) bell finally rang."

The memo debates the "value of 'obstructionist' tactic." Opposing the legislation, it notes, "lets ABA members let off steam" and "causes principals to come to us rather than the other way around."

The "obstructionist" tactics worked, but now it looks as if the ABA made another miscalculation.

At least 12 senators have put "holds" on the Garn bill. This means that, according to the rules of Senate courtesy, the bill will not go to the floor for a vote until the hold is lifted.

But Garn showed that he could play hardball, too, and enlisted the cooperation of Rep. Fernand St. Germain, D-R.I., chairman of the House Banking Committee.

With only a short time left in this legislative session, the ABA lobbyists now find that they may have outsmarted themselves.

doomed from the start. None of my sources called from laboratory telephones.

Fortunately for the taxpayers and Los Alamos workers, my report inspired other, less perverted investigations of the situation at the laboratory. The investigators are going after the substance of the charges, not trying to unmask the whistle blowers.

A Hispanic rights group, the American G.I. Forum, asked the United States attorney to look into Los Alamos hiring practices. And the Energy Department, which oversees Los Alamos, has launched an investigation by its inspector general.

Spokesman Breen said the lab itself had requested the U.S. attorney's investigation of the G.I. Forum's complaint, and added that laboratory officials will cooperate fully. Breen said he was not aware of the separate inspector general's investigation.

A spokesman for the inspector general said he could neither confirm nor deny that an investigation was under way. But my sources say the I.G., while focusing primarily on alleged abuse of travel allowances by lab personnel, is also scrutinizing hiring practices at Los Alamos.

Meanwhile, I have further examples of nepotism for the bureaucrats and the investigators to chew over.

One case I reported was the hiring of Susan Gilmore, the stepdaughter of Rosemary Harris, associate director for administration, whose office is responsible for hiring and firing, among other things. Disgruntled employees said Gilmore was hired over more qualified candidates, but Harris denied she pulled any strings for her stepdaughter.

Now I've learned that David Chastain, the stepdaughter's husband, was hired last July as a $2,900-a-month laboratory engineer, even though he does not have a New Mexico engineering license. The Los Alamos spokesman confirmed this, but said "many" of the 879 other engineers at the facility don't

ROBERT WALTERS

Secret Water Dealing

SIoux Falls, S.D. (NEA) — The governor enthusiastically embraced the concept of the West River Aqueduct and he convinced the state legislature to hastily endorse the 288-mile-long underground water pipeline.

Back in Washington, the Army Corps of Engineers and the Interior Department's Bureau of Reclamation circumvented their standard procedures to approve use of the pipeline to drain almost 16.3 billion gallons of water from the Missouri River every year for the next half-century or longer.

The consortium of five major corporations that conceived the plan to divert the water into another state for use in a commercial venture, Energy Transport Systems, Inc., obviously thought it was a superb idea.

There's only one problem: Most of the people directly affected by the pipeline scheme were never given much of an opportunity to express their views about the project.

The water would be withdrawn by ETSI from the Oahe Reservoir, located behind a massive Missouri River dam less than five miles northwest of the state capital of Pierre, then transported through the near 200-mile Aqueduct to a point near Gillette, Wyo., where it would be combined with pulverized coal in a slurry pipeline.

ETSI originally secured permission to draw the water needed for the slurry pipeline from the Madison Formation, a vast aquifer which underlies much of South Dakota, Wyoming and Nebraska.

The environmental impact statement for the ambitious project, required by federal law and drafted by the Interior Department, assumed that ETSI would rely upon the Madison Formation for its substantial water requirements.

Last year, however, ETSI officials opened secret negotiations with South Dakota Gov. William J. Janklow to instead purchase Missouri River water from his state. Interior Department officials were notified of the change in plans, but acceded to ETSI's request that they temporarily waive their rules requiring advance public notice of the proposal.

The misleading environmental impact statement was published on July 17, 1981 and the two-month period for public comment closed on Sept. 16, 1981.

On the day that deadline passed — and the public was precluded from participating in the decision-making process — ETSI disclosed its plans to buy Missouri River water.

The states of Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska recently filed a civil suit in U.S. District Court in Lincoln, Neb., alleging that federal officials acted illegally in acquiescing to the unprecedented out-of-basin diversion of the water.

Both the concept and the secretive manner in which it was implemented are subject to legitimate criticism. One newspaper, the St. Joseph, Mo., News-Press, likens South Dakota's unilateral action to "serving your friends a chicken dinner with birds you lifted from your neighbor's hen house."

have state licenses either. He said the job opening was advertised.

Chief administrator Harris' father, Dr. Payne Harris, also works at Los Alamos. A physician, he originally worked at the laboratory from 1954 to 1962. He was an unpaid consultant in 1979, and became a paid consultant last year.

Dr. Harris has been working under a contract, which extends through the end of the fiscal year today, that pays him $295 for each day he works for the lab, with total yearly compensation not to exceed $20,000. The contract also includes a $5,000 travel budget.

The Los Alamos spokesman said Harris assists the legal staff in litigation brought by former employees claiming to have suffered radiation exposure from atomic tests at the facility during the 1940s and 1950s. "He's one of the few people who can provide historical data," the spokesman explained, adding that Harris' consulting fee is "pretty cheap for a medical doctor."

Long-Wear, Disposable Contact Lenses Seen Soon

ATLANTA (UPI) — Dr. Paul Farkas believes the day is coming when people will be able to wear contact lenses for much longer than a year without taking them out and eventually will buy disposable lenses at the drug store.

"First we're going to make the doctors more confident of the product," said Farkas. The contact lens expert was in Atlanta recently attempting to do just that — make eye specialists more confident about prescribing soft contact lenses for extended wear. His one-day seminar was sponsored by several contact lens firms.

Farkas, who has practiced for 25 years, shares the largest private contact lens practice in the country with two other vision experts in New York City. He and his associates see 100 patients a day and he estimates that together they have served more than 30,000 patients.

"We're going to have a contact lens that will hold up better," said Farkas in an interview. "Eventually we may very well have a disposable lens. You can buy them at the drug store, a six pack, use them and when they wear out, put in another." The disposable extended wear contact lens is down the road a ways, he admitted, possibly 20 years. But he doesn't think its going to be that long before the thin, water absorbent lens that allows the eye to "breathe" will be worn for very long periods, more than a year, without the necessity of removing them for cleaning.

Farkas says contact lenses have been around since the 19th Century when they were made of glass. A type of fluid lens came out before World War II, followed by the hard contact or plastic lens after the war. The first soft contact lens, developed in Czechoslovakia, was approved by the Food and Drug Administration in the early 1970s.

The soft contact lens for extended wear won the FDA nod in January 1981. The lens is only about two one-thousandths of an inch thick, allowing the eye to "breathe" more normally. It also has a high water content, making it compatible with the wearer's tears and eliminating the "foreign body" sensation. It has an almost gel-like consistency.

Because oxygen can reach the eye through this type of lens, Farkas said, it can be worn while sleeping and up to several months without removal. One of his patients has worn her contact lenses for six months without taking them out, he said.

Farkas believes the problem of getting oxygen to the eye through the lens has virtually been solved. "They can wear them for a year or more now so far as the oxygen thing is concerned," he said. "The problem is keeping them clean. What we need now is a product that will repel mucus."

Cost of the new soft lens runs from a low of $200 up to $700-$800, said Farkas, depending on the quality of the lens and the length of follow-up care. The hard lens is less expensive, is easier to handle and gives better visual acuity. They are recommended for certain eye conditions.

Statistics compiled by contact lens manufacturers indicate there are 18 million contact lens wearers in the country with 50 percent using the hard lens and 45 percent the soft lens.

Royals, Geronimo Keep Cork On Autry's Champagne

By United Press International
Gene Autry was hoping to offer a champagne toast on his 75th birthday Wednesday night in honor of his California Angels clinching the American League West championship.

But, for the second straight night the Kansas City Royals staved off elimination from the pennant race by beating the Angels, 6-5, behind the hitting of Cesar Geronimo.

The loss froze California's magic number at two for clinching its second division championship in four years. The Royals, who now trail the Angels by 2 1/2 games, have four games remaining against Oakland while California plays three against Texas.

Geronimo, batting in the No. 9 position in the lineup, collected a single, triple and homer, scored three runs and knocked in two others to give the Royals their second straight come-from-behind victory over the Angels.

"Geronimo is a pro," Kansas City Manager Dick Howser said. "He's a veteran player who has been through this before."

Geronimo, a reserve outfielder on the Royals, played in five NL championships and three World Series with the Cincinnati Reds before coming over to the AL in 1981.

"There's no pressure on Cesar," Kansas City's George Brett said. "He's not even supposed to be playing. He can play relaxed and everything he does is plus."

Brewers 6, Red Sox 3
At Boston, reserve catcher Ned Yost, in his first at-bat against Boston this year, slammed a three-run homer in the ninth inning to lift the Brewers, who now have a four-game lead in the AL East.

Tigers 3, Orioles 2
At Detroit, pinch-hitter John Wockenfuss hit a leadoff homer in the ninth inning to give the Tigers their victory. The loss was the fifth in the last seven games for the Orioles.

Yankees 13, Indians 6
At Cleveland, Ken Griffey drove in five runs and Jerry Mumphrey knocked in four more to highlight an 18-hit attack.

Blue Jays 8, Twins 0

At Toronto, Gary Ward knocked in four runs with a three-run homer and an RBI single and John Castino slapped a two-run triple in powering the Twins.

Rangers 5, A's 3
At Arlington, Texas, Larry Parrish drove in the winning run with a seventh-inning single and Tom Henke earned his first major-league victory in sparking the Rangers.

White Sox 6, Mariners 5
At Chicago, rookie Greg Walker's two-run triple capped a three-run fifth inning that carried the White Sox to victory.

Hockey

CENTRAL FLORIDA AMATEUR HOCKEY ASSOCIATION
Four games were played Sunday, September 26, at the Orlando Ice Skating Palace.

The Northstars captured First Place in Division 1 by winning both games of a doubleheader. Ean Sanders and Todd Dahl both of Daytona Beach led the Northstars to a 7-4 win over the Oilers. A well-balanced scoring attack and sound goaltending by Orlando's Dan Turner paced the Northstars to a lopsided 11-4 win over the Flyers.

In Division 1 play, the Canadians, with plenty of offensive punch, out scored the Blackhawks 6-2 with Dave Battles scoring 2 goals. Bruce Glover, Eric Roth, Ron Micheli, and Scott Micheli each adding 1.

The most exciting game of the day was the Blackhawks, Bruins matchup with the Blackhawks coming out on top 4-3. Ron Ayres and Sam Klein led the way for the Blackhawks with 3 and 2 goals respectively.

The Bruins loss moved them back into a tie with the Canadians for the Division 1 lead.

Hunters, Fishermen Contribute In Many Ways

September 25 was National Hunting and Fishing Day, and was so proclaimed annually since established by Congress in 1972 to give sportsmen recognition for their contributions to conservation.

Cliff Nelson

Fish and Game Writer

Last year, nearly one million licensed hunters and fishermen in Florida provided the state with over $8.5 million in direct revenue, and entitled the state to nearly $3 million from the Federal Government, all of which was used for hunting and fishing conservation work within the state.

It is important for the public to appreciate the fact that hunters and fishermen not only contribute significant funds to the preservation of our outdoor environment, but are also active in many local programs to improve the quality of wildlife for future generations.

The October hunting calendar for Florida is highlighted by the opening of the first phase of the dove season on Saturday. This first phase will last throughout October, and will be followed by a second phase from Nov. 13 through 28, and a third phase from Dec. 11 to Jan. 3, 1983.

Shooting hours will be from noon until sunset during the first phase, and from one-half hour before sunrise until sunset for the other two phases. This year hunters will be able to shoot white winged dove as well as mourning doves. The daily bag limit of 12 may contain no more than four white winged doves.

The white winged dove is very similar to the mourning dove, being the same size and having the same general coloration. The principal differences are a more rounded tail on the white winged dove, and conspicuous white wing patches or stripes. My reference books show them as being native to the western United States. How then, did this western bird suddenly become so prolific that it became a legal game in Florida?

According to Carlton Chappell, Jr., biologist supervisor for the Florida Division of Wildlife, several of these birds were imported and kept in a cage in Homestead until accidentally released by a hurricane many years ago. The birds thrived in the local orange groves, and as they multiplied, extended their range northward past Vero Beach. He is uncertain of the northern extent of their range, but believes some few may have reached Central Florida. He would be most interested in any kills of white winged dove in this locality. These reports can be made to any local conservation officer, or if you can call this newspaper with the report, I will be glad to forward the information to Chappell.

The speedy dove provides very sporty shooting for hundreds of hunters every year. If you can bring down a fair percentage of these elusive targets, you are well trained for duck and quail hunting. Besides the sport, they provide gourmet dining for the lucky hunters.

After archery season closes Oct. 17, the state-wide muzzle-loading gun season opens October 22 for three days. Muzzleloading enthusiasts can take antlered deer with one or more antlers visible at least one inch above the hairline. It will also be legal to shoot rabbits, squirrels, and hogs with these antique weapons. Just remember to keep your powder dry, and your ramrod straight!

Another popular Buddy Bass Fishing Tournament sponsored by the Osteen Bridge Fish Camp will be held Sunday, commencing at 7 a.m. Check in time is 1:30 p.m. According to Dell Abernethy, sponsor of the tournament, all bass must be 12 inches or more, and contestants will be fined two ounces per each dead fish registered. All live fish will be released as part of a continuing conservation program.

Fishing in the local area continues to be good in the St. Johns River, and in Lake Monroe in particular, with fair to very good catches of both bass and speckled perch being reported during the last week. Lake Harney has produced some nice catches of speckled perch in the deeper holes, and a few boats came into Lake Jessup camps with great catches of specs last week. Drifting with Beetlespin baits has proved effective in both Lake Harney and Lake Monroe. The water level rose several inches after the rains last week, which will give us all a good excuse if catches are poor. If we catch plenty of fish, then of course that is a visible testimony to pure skill.

Remember this. A sportsman is a man who values the game more than the meat.

Special Eagle Scout Court To Honor Jeff Rufenacht

Jeff Rufenacht, senior patrol leader of Boy Scout Troop 7, will be honored at a special Eagle Scout Court of Honor on Monday, at 7:30 p.m., at St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, Orlando.

A tenth grader at Lake Brantley High School, 14-year-old Jeffrey is a graduate of Bear Lake Elementary School and Teague Middle School. His Eagle Scout Service Project was to supervise several work teams and paint the kindergarten playground equipment as well as clean up trash and debris in the playground area at the Bear Lake Elementary School.

The community and the school children at Bear Lake assisted Jeff by collecting aluminum cans for his project. Money from the aluminum can drive paid for paint and supplies needed to paint the playground equipment. Money left over was donated to the Bear Lake PTA Beautification Committee in June.

An active member of Junior Achievement and Toastmasters, Jeff sings in the College Park United Methodist Church Choir as well as in the Lake Brantley High School Concert Choir. He is a member of the Junior Varsity Cross-Country Team at Lake Brantley High School.

LWV Slates Meeting

Age No Obstacle For Pair In Love

DEAR ABBY: These days you hear so much about older women marrying younger men. Thanks for saying, "It CAN work out."

When I was 33, I fell in love with a 19-year-old man. I had six children, no job and no money. He accepted all of us.

Today I am 47 and he is 33. We have eight children (two are now happily married) and we also have a grandchild. The children and I will testify to what a loving husband and father we have, and he will testify to the shower of blessings he has received from us.

When we married, almost everyone thought it wouldn't last, but we considered all the negative aspects plus objections from parents — his and mine — and we decided it could work out if we cared enough about each other.

Yesterday I read an article on marriage and one question was asked: "If you could change one thing about your spouse, what would it be?" Abby, would you believe I couldn't think of one thing? Then I asked my husband that question. He thought for a long time, and finally said, "I can't think of anything either."

LUCKY US
DEAR LUCKY: You may be lucky, but the success of your marriage cannot be attributed to luck alone. For one thing, you're a unique couple — you accept each other just the way you are.

Albert Einstein reportedly said, "Women marry men hoping they will change, and men marry women hoping they will not. So each is inevitably disappointed."

DEAR ABBY: I was born and raised in a small town in Iowa, and I'm now residing in St. Paul, Minn. I'm dating an older man from the office, and we're getting "serious." He's a wonderful guy and everyone considers him quite a catch.

Now for the problem: He's constantly putting down my "roots" and making fun of the little town I was raised in. Whenever he introduces me, he mentions the fact that I'm a "country girl from a hick town" in Iowa, and puts me down in a very mean and arrogant way. Then he laughs and makes a joke of it. Of course, I'm hurt. What should I do? I love the guy, but I wonder if I can plan a happy future with a man who seems to delight in ridiculing my small-town roots.

HEARTSICK FROM IOWA
DEAR HEARTSICK: Have you told him that his "jokes" about your roots make you uncomfortable and unhappy? If you haven't, do so, and take your cue from his behavior. (He may be a nice guy with a peculiar sense of humor.)

If he continues to hurt you after you've told him how you feel, you'll know you're in love with a mean and insensitive man, so proceed at your own risk. (P.S. My roots are in Iowa, too, and I'm proud of it!)

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "No Name in New Mexico," whose future daughter-in-law asked her to be matron of honor, reminded me of my wedding.

De Treville Moves Up At Hall Of Fame

Brenda Carter de Treville has been promoted to director of marketing at Six Flags Stars Hall of Fame announces the attraction's general manager Marty Trencher.

Mrs. de Treville is the daughter of Jessie W. Carter, 1101 W. 20th St., Sanford, and the late Mrs. Ruby Carter.

Brenda is a graduate of Seminole High School and holds a B.A. degree in communications from the University of Central Florida, Orlando, and an A.A. degree from the University of Florida, Gainesville.

In her new role she will be responsible for total marketing of the Central Florida attraction with emphasis on advertising, public relations and creative design; group, tour, travel and hotel-motel sales as well as special promotions and catering. She has served as Stars director of sales and promotions since January 1980.

Mrs. De Treville served as corporate director of communications for Florida Cypress Gardens for three years, director of publicity and public relations for Circus World for two years and senior publicist for Walt Disney World for five years.

She has been named an "Outstanding Young Woman in America" three times and recently was awarded the "Young Community Leadership Award" for 1982. She is also a recipient of the Delta Air Lines Flying Orchid Award, the Redbook Magazine's "Beauty in Action" award and was named by the Biographical Center of Cambridge, England, as an "International Youth in Achievement" for 1982.

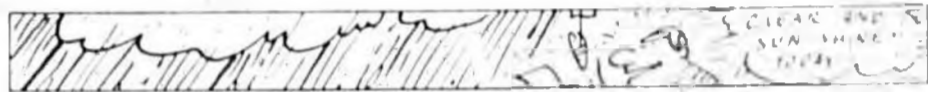

Mrs. de Treville has been an active member of the Florida Public Relations Association and is the winner of the prestigious Golden Image Award. She serves on the board of directors for the Florida Travel Research Association and the alumni council of the University of Central Florida. She is a member of the national University of Florida Public Relations Advisory Council.

Brenda and her husband Rick live in Orlando.

The 12 to 18 hour forecasts of the weather bureau are considered 85 percent accurate today.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Friday, October 1, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY October 1, 1982
If you feel you have a worthy project or enterprise to offer this coming year, don't be hesitant to launch it. You could be extremely lucky with things which you originate.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The results will be better today if you attend to matters personally, instead of delegating them to someone else. Keep the control in your hands. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the seasons following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There is material opportunity around you today, but it may be veiled and difficult to perceive. Rely upon your instincts and you'll spot it.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Normally you are optimistic, but today you might be apprehensive regarding the outcome of events. Be hopeful. Your fears are groundless.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This can be a day of major achievements, and that which you desire can be accomplished. However, you may be a trifle slow getting out of the starting gate.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Valuable knowledge could come your way today from the least-suspected sources. Be a good listener, even to those whose opinions you seldom respect.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You could be rather lucky materially today, but it's not likely to come from the course which you have charted for yourself. Providence will provide the path.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Let your heart rule your head where your mate or special someone is concerned today. Things will work out better than if you plan every step logically.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This is a good day to launch ventures or projects of an artistic or creative nature, even though you might feel that they still need more development.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You should do quite well today in involvements having elements of friendly competition. This includes vying for the attention of someone to whom you are attracted.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're not likely to take as much interest in your own work today as you will that of another who needs your help. You'll then put forth your very best effort.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Instead of trying to change someone you're fond of, point out his or her virtues and build upon them instead.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You could be rather fortunate financially or materially if you are involved in something with an imaginative partner of the opposite sex.

Same Diet But Different Woes

DEAR DR. LAMB—I just became a hypoglycemia patient. I was never interested in reading about it as it didn't concern me. Now that it has hit me I never see anything about it.
Is it true that hypoglycemic and diabetic patients use the same diet? Did I understand my doctor? He doesn't want me to eat cake, bread, rice, potatoes, noodles, peas, corn, beets, lima beans, fresh carrots, no berries, cherries, bananas, strawberries and a few other things. Is all this possible? I wasn't put on a diet to reduce as I am a little under weight.

Raw carrots should be all right as will many raw vegetables. A raw apple will not increase the peak level of blood glucose in either patient.
Since you are looking for information I am sending you The Health Letter number 18-8, Hypoglycemia: The Low Blood Sugar Problem. Others can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR READER—Most cases of hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) are caused by an overproduction of insulin or at least a faulty release so the insulin peak occurs at the wrong time. Diabetes is caused by not enough insulin.
People who have "reactive" hypoglycemia have low blood glucose levels that occur like a rebound after absorbing too much glucose as in sweets. Starches are glucose molecules bound together. The usual treatment includes avoiding these foods so you won't have a peak glucose level followed by too much insulin and a low glucose level.

DEAR DR. LAMB—Please explain the symptoms of a rare virus called campylobacter. Is it contagious? A friend of mine had it for two weeks and the doctor said it is a rare disease.

In diabetes the lack of insulin prevents glucose from entering your cells to be used for energy. This results in an increase of blood glucose levels and symptoms. Treatment often includes avoiding glucose and starches to avoid a further increase in blood glucose levels. The end result is that the diets, for different reason, are the same in many respects.

DEAR READER—It is not a virus. That is important because it can be treated with antibiotics and viruses cannot. It is a bacterial infection.
It belongs to the group of organisms that cause food poisoning illnesses. In fact it behaves much like the common food poisoning caused by salmonella. It can be caused by ingesting something that contains a large number of the organisms. The bacteria set up housekeeping in the intestine.

In recent years diabetic specialists have increased the amount of carbohydrate in the diet and decreased fat and cholesterol to avoid heart and vascular disease.

Like Salmonella, it may cause abdominal pain and severe watery diarrhea. It can also cause a systemic infection with fever and other signs of infection.

Both hypoglycemic and diabetic patients do need carbohydrates in their diet. But the source should be bulk-containing carbohydrates.

The gastroenteritis form usually lasts only a few days and may be self-limited but it can last longer. The short illnesses usually require only supportive treatment with fluids. Longer and more severe illnesses should be treated with antibiotics.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Bridge hand analysis showing North, West, East, South hands and a vulnerable dealer. Includes a list of cards and a note about the opening lead.

one diamond. He had a perfect hand to try two no-trump over his partner's two clubs, but bid two spades. Finally, after the three club bid he went out his way to bid a three-card heart suit. South didn't like the idea of playing in no-trump, but he felt he had to bid it and did. West opened the three of spades. South looked over dummy and was happy about the whole thing. He did have a slight problem at trick one. A spade finesse was there for the taking. Should he take it? He decided not to.
You don't have to climb a mountain just because it is there. You don't have to take a finesse either. South played dummy's ace of spades and continued with ace and six of clubs. Eventually, South scored game with five clubs, two hearts, a spade and a diamond.
He might have taken that spade finesse and made his contract. In order to beat him it would be up to East to lead back a heart. This lead would knock out one of the two entries to the South hand. Since East held two club stoppers, that seven-card club suit would have been wasted cards.
Almost every bridge player likes to play no-trump contracts. Today's North was one of a rare species who just doesn't want to. He held a perfect 16-point no-trump, but elected to bid

Elderly Therapy Seminar

The disoriented aged person who cries out for his or her own mother is using fantasy as a way of coping with a painful reality.

Those who care about and care for the frail older person exhibiting such bizarre behavior must "tune" into those feelings. This conclusion was reached by Cleveland social worker, Naomi Feil, ACSW, through long experience in working with the elderly.

Mrs. Feil has written a new manual on this subject called "Validation-Fantasy Therapy." It outlines the method she originated almost 20 years ago which is currently used in nursing homes throughout the United States to help the very aged (80-100 plus years) in their struggle to resolve the "unfinished business" of the past and restore dignity to the present.

"It is a method that accepts people where they are...it helps disoriented old-old reach their goals...not ours," explains Mrs. Feil. She says that the disoriented older person "returns to parents and loved ones from the past in fantasy...if no one listens (to their expressions of feelings) the feelings continue. If someone listens, the feelings are validated and often subside."

Mrs. Feil developed this unique approach to working with adults after three years of frustration in using "traditional" methods with the disoriented elderly at the Montefiore Home for the Aged.

She notes that Validation-Fantasy therapy is not indicated in all cases of disorientation. "Behavior in old-old age is a combination of physical, social and emotional factors."

Mrs. Feil, who earned a master's degree in social work from Columbia University, has received many awards for film scripts she has written on aging, and presents workshops throughout the country on Validation.

She will be conducting her second workshop in the Orlando Area on Oct. 18, at the Community United Methodist Church in Casselberry.

The workshop is being co-sponsored by the Visiting Nurses Association and the Seminole County Mental Health Center and is open to anyone who works with, lives with, or is interested in better understanding this particular aspect of the aging process.

The registration fee is $30 per person. For additional information, contact Seminole County Mental Health Center, Aging Services Program at (305) 323-2036.

Don't Sit Too Close To TV While Playing Video Games

BOSTON (UPI)—Children using old color television sets as display screens for home computers or video games like Pac-Man and Space Invaders may be exposed to radiation eight times the safe amount, doctors warned today.

The radiation from color televisions made before 1970 may be affecting the eyes and thyroids of young people who spend two hours a day hunched over their sets, the physicians from Veterans Medical Center in Washington reported in the New England Journal of Medicine.

"Although it is generally agreed the video display terminal is not a major source of radiation for the user," the doctors wrote, "field surveys of older color television sets have indicated 1.33 to 16.2 percent of receivers at some surface point exceed 0.5 millirentgens per hour, which is the limit for emission set by the Food and Drug Administration Bureau of Radiologic Health." Radiation intensity would not be a problem at normal viewing positions but people using microcomputers or playing video games tend to sit close to the display screen.

United Way Agency

Children's Home Society Helps Many People

(Throughout the 1982 United Way of Seminole County fund, the Herald will spotlight various agencies which will receive in the coming year a share of the funds raised. The goal this year is $338,000.)

"If somebody doesn't come get this baby, I'm going to choke it!"

When words such as this are screamed over the phone, you rearrange priorities fast and go into action.

First comes the assurance that help is on the way, then there is the assessment to determine that the frantic mother will be able to cope until the worker arrives; then make arrangements to handle another appointment and race to the mother as quickly as possible.

The visit to the home finds a distraught 17-year-old single parent who had thought she could raise the baby by herself.

She loved it so much! It was so cute! But she couldn't stand the crying, and being tied down all this time, and the financial pressures. She couldn't take it any more.

This is one of the kinds of situations that Children's Home Society, a United Way Agency, gets involved in. In existence since 1902, Children's Home Society has become the largest private adoption agency in the country. It has placed more than 21,000 children in its 80 years.

To help this girl the Children's Home Society Social worker talked with her about what she wanted for herself and for her baby. It was clear that the mother needed a break and that the baby could be in danger if she stayed there. An offer was made to put the baby in one of the 14 licensed foster homes Children's Home Society supervises. This would give the mother a chance to sit back and evaluate her life and the life of the baby without some of the pressures.

Eventually, the mother came to the realization that, though she loved it very much, she did resent the baby and the restrictions it put on her. Various kinds of help available in the community were pointed out to her, but she concluded, after 5 weeks of talking and thinking, that she could best express her love for her child by giving it up to a couple who desperately wanted a child and who were in a position to adequately provide for it.

After writing out answers about the kind of parents she wanted for her child, she was given three non-identifying summaries of some approved adoptive couples so that she could pick the parents for her child. Then she wrote a letter, to be given to the child in later years, expressing her love and the reasons for giving it up. Arrangements were made for a last visit with the baby in the office. She signed surrenders, giving up all rights to the child. Then she left to pick up the pieces of her life and to start anew so that she would become the kind of person she wanted as parents for her child.

It's a heart rending story, but it happens many times. The mother will never forget.

That's what Children's Home Society is all about: to work with parents with unwanted pregnancies; to help them make informed decisions they can live with; to work with parents who can't cope with their children; and to find happy waiting homes for children who need parents.

United Way agencies include the American Red Cross, Boy Scouts of America, Catholic Social Services, Children's Home Society, Community Coordinated Child Care, Consumer Credit Counseling Service.

Rock Concerts Are Big Even In Bad Times

United Press International

Adverse economic conditions have cut into the earnings of rock 'n' roll concert promoters, but most of them still say it's a great business despite the fine line between profit and loss.

"Things have definitely been hurt by the economy," said Eddie Gaddis, head of The Agora, a Dallas rock club.

"There's less money being made by promoters, less money being made by record stores, less money being made by record companies and ticket prices have gone up $1 or $2 a person during the last year."

This summer, there are more rock acts than in previous years, Gaddis said, and major groups — such as Fleetwood Mac — are touring with smaller backup groups with one or two hits to their name, such as the new group, Men At Work.

"People are still going out to the rock 'n' roll concerts, but they're not selling out like they did last year," Gaddis said. "This year, your big concerts have 3,000 or 4,000 seats left. But there are more shows."

Radio stations have raised advertising rates, he said, and record companies that formerly subsidized concert productions and advertising cannot afford to any longer.

"CBS dropped about 300 people last week," Gaddis said recently. "Fewer people are buying records."

One of the biggest rock concert promoters in the Southwest is Louis Messina, president of Pace Concerts Inc. in Houston, who handled 200 concerts last year in Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Alabama.

"Rock is doing real well, but some of the bands are not doing as well as they used to," said Messina. "Business is down 20 to 25 percent, but we're still doing real well."

Like all of the promoters interviewed by UPI, Messina declined to discuss specific financial figures.

He said rock concerts generate numerous other businesses — parking, T-shirts, food concessions, advertising, stage hands and security guards.

"It generates a lot of money for a lot of businesses," said Messina. "You name it. I enjoy the business. It's fast-paced. You set your own destiny. The money is good, but I just like being a part of the entertainment business."

Asked if the growth of cable television threatened to harm the concert business, Messina said: "The thing that TV misses is the excitement of being there, which you can't capture by being in your house. Cable is being abused in the entertainment field and I don't see it taking away from concert business."

"I think we'll always have big acts. The atmosphere at concerts is such that nothing can take its place."

Another Dallas promoter, Mark Lee, concentrates on the new rock — he calls it new music — and has brought the Police, The Clash, Squeeze, Talking Heads and Steel Pulse to town.

"The economy is not real good," said Lee, who operates a punk club called the Hot Klub. "You've got to move toward smaller concerts because there are more groups bidding for the same entertainment dollar."

Lee said, "The large shows are falling considerably short of the anticipated gross. New music is thriving, but that's not to say all my shows did as well as expected. They did not. New music is affected by the economy as much as the old music."

The Doobie Brothers, on their final national tour, are breaking up because of economics, said Lee, who doubted members of the group would be separating if the money was rolling in like it used to several years ago.

The premier rock concert promotion company in Kansas City is News West Productions, headed by Chris Fretz. News West is working in partnership with Contemporary Productions of St. Louis.

Fretz would not discuss finances, except to say a promoter realizes about $3 profit from a $15 concert ticket.

"Kansas City, considering what's been coming through, is a great concert town," he said. "But right now I don't think anybody's making money in the market because there is too much competition in the market."

The business is definitely riding the yo-yo, he said.

"It has some consistency to it, but the audience is changing so drastically that a group that is hot this year could lose money next year," he said.

The most profitable shows are at stadiums, he said, noting that 53,000 people saw Foreigner in May at Arrowhead Stadium.

"But we've had bombs in every area of promotion, from family shows to concerts to motor sports," he said. "Weather can kill you."

"People just think you hire a band, sell some tickets and put a lot of money in a bank," Fretz said. "For every three shows, you have one or two losers. That's what makes it such a marginal business."

Rock is a dangerous business to be in, agreed Rick Landry, a New Orleans promoter handling Las-Vegas type acts for Celebrity Register Inc.

"We do very little rock. Rock is too intricate," he said. "I always tell the promoters you got too many details. Some buildings will not allow rock groups because of the nature of the crowds or whatever. We've had more success with the Vegas shows."

New Orleans' amusement tax also scares away big rock acts, said Landry. The tax takes about 13 percent of a show's profit, compared to about 6 percent in Baton Rouge, 3 percent in Biloxi, Miss., and none in Texas.

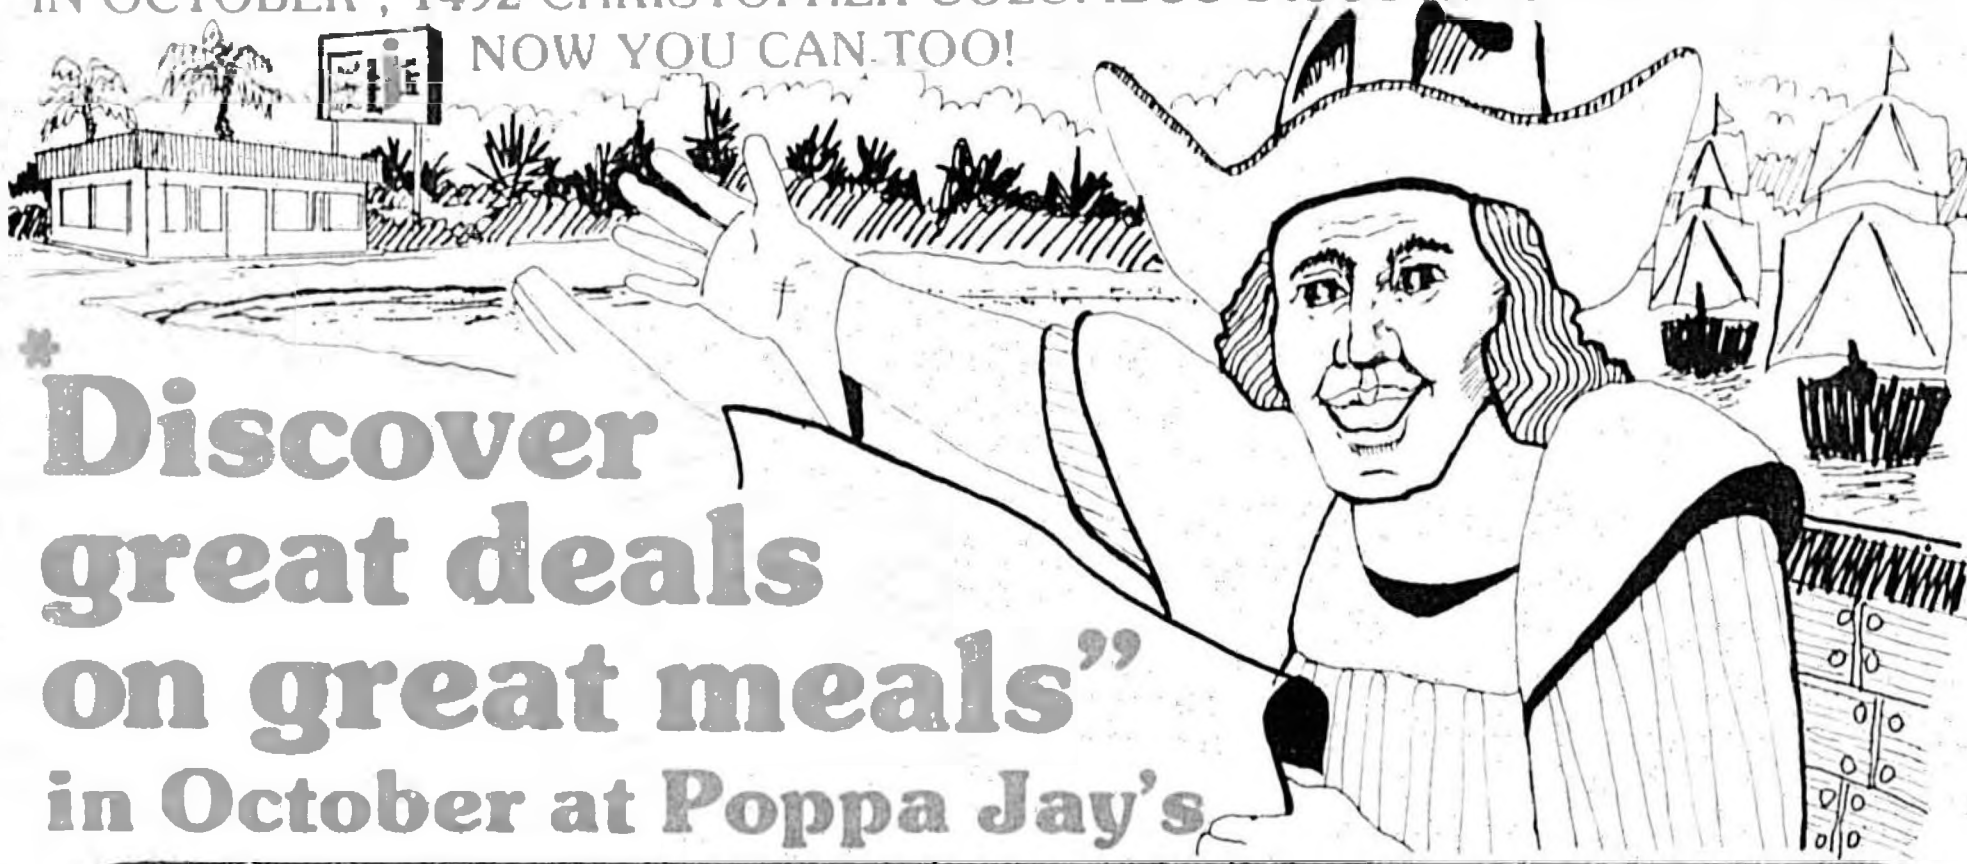

"A lot of promoters bypass New Orleans," he said.

It costs another 12 percent to rent the Superdome. Between the tax and the rent, he said, a promoter loses about 25 percent of his profit in New Orleans.

Another problem with New Orleans, Landry noted, is the lack of medium-size buildings. The city offers the 3,000 seat Saenger and then the Superdome, with some 70,000-80,000 seats, depending on configuration.

"The business is a science now," Landry said. "You've really got to work at it. The promoters are the ones that come up with all the dollars and take all the risk on it."
