Man once condemned to die for raping girl is up for parole

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A man condemned to die for the rape of a Sanford teen 24 years ago makes another appeal to the Florida Parole Commission next month to be released from prison.

Dennis Bernovich, now 50, was sentenced to die for the May 1971 rape of a 19-year-old girl. His sentence was commuted to life in prison after the Supreme Court overturned the death penalty in 1972.

Currently a life sentence carries a minimum mandatory sentence of 25 years. Inmates cannot be considered for parole until serving at least 25 years in prison. In 1972, the minimum mandatory 25-year life sentence was not in effect. Bernovich has been before the parole commission every two years since 1988 to have his case considered.

Linda Kuhn has attended hearings and will be at the next one scheduled for Oct. 4 in Orlando. Kuhn is director of victim services in state attorney Norm Wollinger's Sanford office.

"He is coming up for his biennial review," Kuhn said. "We have notified all the victims and we're all going to be there once again with bells on."

The prosecutor had filed two rape cases against Bernovich. Both cases were similar, the first involving the 19-year-old girl, the second Sanford teen-ager who was about 17 years old.

In both instances, other family members were tied up while the victims were bound and assaulted in another room at gunpoint. When Bernovich received the death penalty in the first case, the second case was not prosecuted.

"The line of thinking was why prosecute another case when you can't get any more than that (the death penalty)," Kuhn explained. "Not knowing that a year later his death sentence would be commuted to life."

In addition to the two cases filed, Bernovich was a suspect in about a half dozen other rapes in the Central Florida area.

The rape victims have gone to all the parole board hearings with Kuhn along with deputy Charlie Fagan who arrested Bernovich over two decades ago. A judge's objection to Bernovich's release has also been filed with the board.

A major break in the case came when Bernovich's wife alerted police after finding rope and mask in his car, Kuhn recalled.

"She obviously is in fear because he threatened to kill her when or if he ever got out," Kuhn added.

The parole commission meets in the state office building in downtown Orlando, 400 W. Robinson Street, Suite 109 conference room 3 on Oct. 4 beginning at 9 a.m.

New hope for ousting drugs, crime

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A new program tentatively called BRO will try to help young, poor youths living in public housing avoid getting caught up with drugs and a life of crime.

Brothers Reaching Out (BRO) is being designed with input from residents, city police, church leaders and juvenile justice representatives.

The idea was sparked a few weeks ago when a Winter Park resident approached Cmdr. Dennis Whitmire about a plan to help combat drug activity in Sanford, especially in public housing developments.

After meeting with public housing officials last week, Whitmire said, "There seems to be a new spirit of cooperation between the police department and the housing authority to get rid of their drug problem."

Both parties understand there may be times when police do things which will upset the housing authority, due to police rules and

Authorities bust alleged prostitution ring

MELBOURNE — Federal and state authorities have broken up an alleged prostitution ring that ran 11 establishments, including one in Longwood, and raked in more than $10 million over the years.

Phillip Squillante and Robert Labak, both of Palm Bay, were arrested Friday after a three-year investigation. They are accused of leading the ring that did business in Florida and Connecticut, including the Kanadu Thee Club in Palm Shores.

The two face dozens of counts of racketeering and money laundering charges.

The federal grand jury report details an organization dating to 1979. To avoid investigators getting inside the operation, prostitutes were interviewed first and were only accepted if they had sex with an organization manager, authorities said.

"The guys we got today are the big guys," said Jay Schultz, Florida Department of Law Enforcement case investigator in Melbourne.

Others arrested Friday in Florida on racketeering charges were William Allan Colomoro of Malabar; Michael Squillante of Palm Bay, who is Phillip Squillante's brother; Kenneth Raymond Taromino of St. Cloud; and John Herlihy of Palm Bay.

Also arrested on Friday in Connecticut was Michael Avery, who managed the Palm Shores club. He was charged with racketeering and money laundering.

The other prostitution houses operating in Florida were in Orlando, Lakeland, Springfield, Avon Park, Longwood, Bradenton, and Nokoma, the grand jury said. Three similar operations were in Connecticut.

Federal authorities estimate each establishment made up to $1,000 a day through prostitution.

Avoid telephone sales pitches

TALLAHASSEE — Floridians are so incensed by telephone solicitors that they're willing to pay to be left alone.

About 31,000 Floridians have called a state hotline to get on a No Sales Solicitation Calls list, according to state Agriculture Commissioner Bob Crawford.

People pay $10 to put their telephone number on the list the first year and $5 each year thereafter.

"Complaints about telephone solicitation calls are among the top consumer complaints," Crawford said. "Florida consumers can help ensure their privacy ... by registering with our department."

The list is part of the 1987 Florida Telephonic Sales Act, which requires all telemarketers to obtain the list before operating in the state. The list is updated quarterly and published the first business day of January, April, July and October.

Telephone solicitors who try to sell to people on the list risk fines of up to $10,000. Since 1992, the state has collected $44,212 in fines.

There are exceptions for telemarketers responding to a request by a consumer, those calling in connection with a debt or contract, those in the newspaper business and those asking for charitable donations.

To get on the list, call 1-800-435-7352 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays.

More: Historic district mailbox dispute

By VICKI BOGGS
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The post office has denied giving special treatment to anyone.

Neither the Walt Disney Company nor the residents of the Sanford Downtown Historic District have any kind of special dispensation when it comes to mail delivery.

While Gary Wain, president of the Central Florida Letter Carriers union, said an exception was made for Disney's Celebration community to receive its mail in doorside mailboxes, postal representatives say that just isn't so.

"If we were to make an exception for Disney or for the residents of the Sanford Historic District, we'd have to make an exception for everyone," said Joseph Breckenridge, corporate relations representative for the U.S. Post Office's southeast region. "This is a national regulation. We are not going to make any exceptions. Not for Disney. Not for anyone."

Some residents in the Sanford Historic District have moved their mailboxes from their doors to a rural box at the curb in response to an offer of a free box from the post office. They have found, however, they can't move the box back to the door if they find they don't like the unsightly box in front of their historic home.

Once a box is moved to the curb, it must remain there ad infinitum.

The regulation regarding curbside delivery has been in effect since 1979 and is a part of the post office's efforts to increase efficiency and keep delivery costs to a minimum.

"We have been under tremendous political pressure to control costs," Breckenridge said. "In Japan, for example, it costs $04 to deliver a single letter. It is $06 in Germany. We are doing what we can to keep costs lower in this country. The curbside delivery is one of the best ways to increase efficiency and save money."

Forming Lake Mary

By MARGARET WESLEY
Herald Correspondent

On June 2, 1983, the mayor of the young city of Lake Mary, Walter Borenson, asked each member of the city commission to select an individual from a list of nine volunteers to serve on a five-member city historical commission.

The city commissioners at that time were: Charles Lytle, Russell Megonegal, Raymond Fox, Kenneth King and Burt Perinich.

The Megonegals, Russell and wife, Lillian, who had come earlier from Pennsylvania, were especially interested in promoting a sense of history in the community.

The persons appointed to form the Lake Mary Historical Commission were: Virginia Palmer Anderson, retired postmaster, Lillian Megonegal, Robert Petree, resident city attorney, Colin Keogh, a native of Lake Mary and Margaret Green, retired journalist, who was out of the state for the summer. These nominations were ratified unanimously.

An on-going disagreement arose between the Committee on Ethics of the state of Florida and the city of Lake Mary because of the ethics committee's insistence that the members of the historical commission were required by their rules to file an annual financial disclosure form. Because of this, Virginia Anderson resigned from the commission. The city commission continued to request a change of opinion of the ethics committee. But after their second refusal in July 1987 to recognize the Lake Mary commission as a "purely advisory board with jurisdiction over less than $100,000" of public funds, Margaret Green Wesley also resigned her membership on the board in protest.

However, both Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Wesley continued to cooperate with the commission's projects as volunteers.

Meanwhile, the commission had recommended to the city that they finance publication of the manuscript "Lake Mary Beginnings" by Margaret Green (Wesley) which was accomplished.

Also, through the original initiation by Mrs. Megonegal of accepting historical markers from the Seminole County Historical Society, it was worked out and the first marker was received and erected in front of City Hall (formerly the community hall erected in the 1920s by Frank Evans).

Becker kicks off campaign to run for county sheriff

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Promising a positive, professional, non-personal campaign against the incumbent Seminole County Sheriff, Joe Becker launched a year-long campaign Friday night to unseat fellow Republican Don Ealinger.

"The watch word of this campaign," Becker told over 350 supporters in the ballroom of the Altamonte Springs Hilton, "is to restore confidence and integrity in the sheriff's office, period."

The additional planks of Becker's platform are:

Improve employee morale.

Stop law enforcement experimentation.

Make our streets safer by enhancing specialized neighborhood units.

Establish financial responsibility and Institute an "open door" policy for employees and citizens of Seminole County.

Ealinger is completing his first elected term as sheriff. He is expected to seek a second term in 1996 but has not opened a campaign account. Becker notified the elections supervisor he has opened an account to collect and spend contributions in his campaign for sheriff. Becker will be challenging the incumbent for the GOP nomination in the Sept. 3, 1988 primary. The qualifying period is in mid-July. Incumbents including three county commissioners and the property appraiser have also opened accounts.

Currently serving in the Maitland Police department, Becker is a deputy for a short time under Ealinger and even received a commendation.

A retired U.S. Navy Captain, Becker was a fighter pilot who served in the Vietnam War. During his military career, he also served as the commander of military police at a Naval Air Station. As a civilian he has owned and operated family business and was a regional sales manager for Grumman Aerospace.

During Becker's speech, a heavily disguised man who said he was a Seminole County deputy sheriff was escorted to the podium where he read a letter of support for the candidate. The masked, gloved man wearing a coat, hat and sunglasses said, in a near whisper, he was speaking on behalf of his fellow law enforcement officers who were worried about losing their jobs or other retribution if they publicly supported Becker.

Becker's supporters claimed the somewhat theatrical moment had not been staged but was indeed a deputy who feared for his job if identified.

Some of the most biting commentary of the night came not from the candidate but from Ealinger's former public information officer, George Proechel.

"If I hear about one more new program the sheriff is proposing at no cost to the taxpayers," Proechel said, "I'm going to vomit."

He claimed Ealinger is not a manager but a politician who, when facing a problem throws money at it.

It's almost time for Sanford to host Golden Age Games

By NICK PFEIFFER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — While Sanford's annual Golden Age Games won't officially begin until Sunday, November 5th, the Sanford Recreation and Parks Department is already hard at work and the entries are flowing in from all across Florida and the eastern United States.

This will be the 21st consecutive year Sanford has hosted these games. While it was one of the few cities in the entire southeast United States to hold such games during the first few years, other cities have jumped on the band wagon over the years, and now, the games for senior competition are becoming quite common. Yet because of its history of achievement and success, the games in Sanford still are ranked among the best in this part of the nation. They also draw one of the largest turnouts.

The Executive Committee, has already mailed out 4,000 applications to Seniors who had previously given their names, or have shown interest in participating this year. As of early this past week, at least 300 entries had already been returned.

According to Supervisor Lisa Jones, "Not only are we expecting a successful year of friendly competition, but we also have a number of exciting special events lined up."

Included in the list are the following:

● Monday, Nov. 6 — A social reception and tour of the Sanford Museum will be held at the museum on E. First Street from 5 until 7 p.m.

● Tuesday, Nov. 7 — A twilight river cruise on board the Rivership Romance. The shop sets sail at 6 p.m. for an evening of dinner and dancing. Tickets will be $25 per person and are already being made available at the Sanford Senior Center, 330-5699.

● Wednesday, Nov. 8 — The mid-week banquet, with dinner and entertainment at the Sanford Civic Center. Tickets, at $6 per person, are also available at the Sanford Senior Center.

Ceremonies for the actual games will be held at 1 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 5 at the Sanford

Civic Center. As usual, local officials and dignitaries will be on hand to inaugurate the start of the 21st annual games in Sanford.

As in the past, there will also be the lighting of the Golden Age Games torch.

This year's lineup of events and games remains virtually unchanged from the past few years. Including the competitive events, there will also be a hobby and photography show, daily breakfasts at the Sanford Civic Center (7 a.m. weekdays), two historic fun walks, and the annual dance competition.

While the actual games will begin on the Monday following the opening ceremonies, the Golden Age Games softball tournament will be held November 3 through 5, sponsored in part by the Seminole County Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Team and partner applications must be submitted together. To obtain information or registration forms for the 1995 Golden Age Games in Sanford, write to P.O. Box 1296, Sanford, FL 32772-1296, or phone (407) 330-5699.

New laws

Many new laws come into existence as of today, October 1. For the majority of them, we say, "It's about time." For others, we wish the requirements of previous criminal activities before major punishment is meted out, would be fewer.

Kathleen Finnegan, director of Stop Turning Out Prisoners (STOP) admitted that people often worry about the cost of keeping more and more criminals in jail. She added however, "The costs of letting them out on the streets is much greater to society." We couldn't agree more.

Regardless of whether a criminal takes away a person's money or his life, the consequences cannot be measured in comparison to costs of possibly avoiding these actions by keeping prisoners in jail.

Yes, we believe if a tax increase is necessary in order to build more prison space, the people would support it, but with stipulations. Pork-barrel expenses must be eliminated first of all, and other budget trimming must be made before placing an additional burden on the backs of taxpayers.

If unnecessary government expenses are eliminated and there is still a need for money to build additional prisons or hire more prison guards, we believe the people will support an increase.

A new law requiring inmates to serve at least 85 percent of their sentences behind bars is basically good. Of course, why should we consider it a jail sentence if it isn't totally followed? If a person is sentenced to, for example, 10 years, he or she will be released in eight and a half years. Why then don't judges sentence a person to eight and a half years and have the person serve full time. It sounds more logical. The way it is, it looks like our judges are telling falsehoods when they sentence a person to a length of time he knows full well won't be served.

Other new laws include the four strikes item, which imposes mandatory sentences for repeat violent criminals convicted of a fourth violent offense and who have already served one stint in prison. This is one which we believe is still too weak. In effect, it allows a criminal to be involved in three acts before he can begin to concern himself with serving any lengthy prison sentence. While some don't like the new law about welfare moms, we believe it has been needed. It would cut in half the additional cash payment a welfare mother receives if she has more children while on the receiving end of the federal handout. In this way, more children will no longer be used to obtain more government assistance.

We totally object to the law which prevents childcare centers from checking the state's child abuse registry to screen job applicants. How is a child care center to find out if a prospective employee has any history in this matter? Shouldn't the parents have assurance the employee's credentials have been thoroughly checked before leaving them to care for the little ones?

As we see these new laws, some are good, a few can be accepted, and only one or two do we find objectionable. We can only wonder if our lawmakers are more attuned to protecting the rights of a few who may rant and rave, than they are for the safety, protection, and rights of the majority of our decent citizens who elected them into office.

Will these new laws actually be good for the people of Florida, or will they only be of benefit to a few? This deserves close attention by everyone.

LETTER

If it ain't broke

If it ain't broke, don't fix it. Seminole County has an asset that many communities are envious of. The landfill on Osceola Road with 40 more years of projected use.

New county commissioners are proposing that the operation of this precious commodity be contracted out to be run by private companies for profit.

This frightens me as now the county bears the responsibility and control of any leakage of any toxic pollutants into the Florida Aquifer or the nearby Geneva Bubble. Private concerns could just move out and leave a mess and if found responsible could declare bankruptcy.

The county now has a cost per ton or tipping fee much lower than the majority of landfills in the state.

Regulation of where garbage comes from would be very difficult as many surrounding counties use the same haulers as Seminole and could seriously reduce the life of the landfill.

If a contract is coming up for renewal and there is a possibility that current contractor would not be kept, there would be little incentive to spend the monies necessary for the upkeep of the very expensive county equipment.

Privatization of solid waste to me is a lose, lose situation.

We seem so far to be doing garbage right. It ain't broke; leave it be.

Johnson's role in equal rights

Lyndon B. Johnson, our 36th president, would have been 87 years old Aug. 27, 1995. Johnson served as president from 1963 to 1969. Johnson was a Texan whose father and grandfather had served in the Texas Legislature. His adventure into politics led him to Congress as a New Deal Democrat. He worked closely with majority leader Sam Rayburn and became a disciple of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Prior to running for Congress, Johnson had served as the Texas director of the National Youth Administration and the program he developed was cited as exemplary among state youth programs.

Johnson served multiple terms in the House of Representatives. He was elected to the Senate in 1948. In 1951, he became minority whip and in 1953 minority leader. When the Democrats gained control of the Senate in 1954 he became majority leader. In 1960, he accepted John F. Kennedy's offer to become his running mate. The assassination of President Kennedy thrust Johnson into the presidency. For the first time in our nation's history a female judge administered the oath of office to a president. Federal District Judge Sarah J. Hughes administered the oath. Johnson's tenure in the White House was the golden era for civil rights and social legislation. His state of the union address in 1964 was "Let this session of Congress be known as the session which did more for civil rights than the last hundred sessions combined; as the session which enacted the most far reaching tax cut of our time; as the session which declared all-out war on human poverty and unemployment in the United States."

Congress taking its cue from the president passed the Civil Rights Act of 1964 which opened public accommodations to African Americans. Congress reduced taxes and enacted anti-poverty laws. He championed: aid to education, reviewing urban areas, conquering disease, eliminating air and water pollution, developing depressed areas, crime prevention, removal of all obstacles to voting, and support for art and thought.

Thus, Johnson was committed to pursuing equality for African Americans and on Aug. 6, 1965, he signed the Voting Rights Act, which removed all barriers to voting.

There was bipartisan support for the war on poverty and the programs emanating from Washington. This was the scenario when President Johnson addressed the 1965 graduating class of Harvard University, Washington, D.C. His speech was entitled "To Fulfill These Rights." Johnson believed as America proceeded to correct its social wrongs, "It was also essential for black Americans to have an equal chance to reap the rewards of American life, to enjoy equality in their lives, and not merely under law. You do not take a person who for years has been hobbled by chains and liberate him, bring him up to the starting line of a race and then say, you are free to compete with the others and justly believe that you have been completely fair."

Although Johnson did not use the terms affirmative action in his speech the message conveyed earmarked the speech as the epigenesis of affirmative action. Affirmative action evokes both rational and emotional tirades pro and con. Yet like other critical issues it must be considered from varied perspectives. Next week affirmative action will be explored from a personal perspective.

Indiana Halloween memories

LAKE MARY — There it was ... like some other worldly apparition. A 7-foot tall artificial pine tree, a Christmas tree popping up earlier than usual in the retail venue.

But this tree was not festooned in Yuletide glitter ... no twinkling multi-colored lights and glistening glass ornaments.

Ghosts and goblins, pumpkins and little clear, plastic skeletons each containing a green light in its chest cavity encircled the tree. A few dismembered Frankenstein heads thrown in for good measure dangled from the tree. Orange twinkle lights bedecked the branches. It was a Halloween tree!

Scores of artificial jack-o'-lanterns, complete with toothy grins, electric candles and plug-ins sat around the base of the tree and out to a square area resembling a pumpkin patch.

Those make-believe bright orange orbs of autumn mimicked nature with short ones, fat ones, skinny ones and tall ones. They sat ready and waiting to ward off spirits or welcome "The Great Pumpkin" of the Peanuts comic strip.

Actually the plastic and papier-mache' pumpkins are not a bad idea for those who like to decorate early. I'm still battling a moldy spot on my front porch, six years after our first Florida Halloween.

As a transplanted Hoosier, I was used to sunny, cool days and crisp (sometimes down right cold) autumn nights near the end of October. Touched by the nip in the air, the trees began their show of fall colors as leaves turned orange, yellow, crimson and gold.

Pumpkins for our holiday sculptures were selected from a near-by farm which was transformed into a fall festival as scores of moms, dads and kids rode to the fields in home-drawn wagons. Apple cider and hot cocoa were the most popular beverages for sale in the snack shop which had once been an old toolshed.

Pumpkin planting at the Pum'kin Patch was an annual rite of spring, but the uncertainty of the Indiana weather and requirement for a bumper crop to meet yearly demands sometimes posed a problem.

Semi-trailers brimming with pumpkins were trucked to the site and the picking fields were resupplied each night so families would not be denied the chance to choose their "home-grown" pumpkin straight from the field. The little pumpkin hunters didn't seem to mind their choice might have grown up in Ohio or Kentucky, not in the Indiana clay.

A few days before Halloween, the seeds, stringy insides were scooped out and the toothy faces and scary eyes were carved. The artsy projects were set outside and illuminated each night at dusk. The burning candle cooked the flesh of the lid, giving off the faint aroma of fresh pie. Not wanting to resort to a supermarket pumpkin for our first Florida jack-o'-lantern, I went in search of a produce stand I had seen while driving with my aunt.

Being "directionally challenged," I drove the unfamiliar highways for what seemed like hours, without ever finding the elusive pumpkin stand ... to the supermarket we went.

The scraping, cutting and carving complete, Jack was placed on the porch a few days before the big night.

Mildew immediately began to consume the fresh pumpkin and by Halloween, the bottom of the withered winter squash was turning to a gelatinous, slimy goo. A recurring patch of mildew marks the spot to this day. Pressure cleaning, bleach and other chemical agents remove the mark for a while but it always returns.

Faux jack-o'-lanterns with electric candles may not inspire memories but they are easier than killing mildew in Florida.

Join the spirit of band festival

Strike up the band. The 21st Annual Seminole County High School Band Festival is coming up on Oct. 21 at Lake Mary High School. It's not only an opportunity for youngsters to show off their talents and provide an evening of entertainment, but it's a fund-raising event with proceeds going to scholarships.

Going along with that old axiom, "been there, done that," let it be known that I have participated in such programs. My high school band never (while I was a member) won first place in any marching or performance competition. I won't say whether my participation may have caused it, but it gave us great pride to show how well we could march and play at the same time, and move into intricate formations without dropping our instruments.

We also participated in all holiday events such as the Veterans Day, Memorial Day, and Christmas parades. In cases such as Memorial Day, the high school band would march from the middle of downtown, out to the city cemetery, where a special program would be held. As the band marched, the citizens turned out to follow them. It was something which gave a feeling of pride and participation to everyone.

Much of this type of public performance however, has fallen by the wayside. School bands hardly ever participate in city functions. At least it seems like that here in Central Florida. While I realize there are often transportation costs and other needs brought up which preclude much of this participation, it still saddens me to see a lack of our school bands in our parades.

Regarding this band festival, it generally has a good turnout. That should be expected because (hopefully) parents will turn out to watch their youngsters participate. With bands from many schools, there will be hundreds of participants, and therefore many hundreds of parents and family members sitting in the stands.

While watching a school band perform may not be as thrilling to some parents as watching a football or basketball game, let's face it, the youngsters who participate in bands want just as much to succeed in what they do as a halfback or tackle. As such, they deserve just as much parental and public support.

Advance tickets are $2 for adults, and $1 for children. This is probably the most inexpensive evening of entertainment available these days, and we hope not only people directly connected with band activities, but members of the general public will turn out for this program.

It should be noted that it costs about $5 per person admission for a high school football game, so if that is affordable, the $2 for the band festival is certainly a bargain deal.

Give our teen-agers the knowledge that their performance and involvement in school band is appreciated. It goes a long way in helping mold character.

As for me, I've hung up my clarinet. My daughter Donna, who was drum majorette for Seminole High School a number of years ago has likewise hung up her flute and baton.

But when it comes to being a supporter for school band activities, we'll both be marching with the rest, at least in spirit and support. Join us.

Homecoming King beside Queen Traci Tombros.

Jump, an honor student and star of the football team, has been very active in school activities during his four years at the school.

Tombros is also an honor student and is a member of the varsity volleyball team.

The coronation was a quick and simple one which gave way quickly to the football game at hand. Bestowed with flowers and a crown, Tombros was cheered by the fans as Jump and his teammates prepared for battle on the gridiron.

A short time later, at Seminole High School, Angela Wiggins and Alex Acosta were announced as the Queen and King of that school's Homecoming Court.

Wiggins is among the top 10 students in the class of 1998. She is president of the Seminole High School Student Government Association and of the Seminole County Student Government Association.

She is a member of the National Honor Society. She is president of the Destiny choral group. In addition, she is a varsity cheerleader. is listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students. She has won the Hugh O'Brien Leadership Award, the Xerox Achievement Award and she is a finalist in the National Achievement Scholarship program.

She was also Miss SHS last year.

Wiggins hopes to attend

Harvard University and major in political science.

Acosta is a member of the Future Educators of America and the SHS Tribal Council. He is a member of the Student Governance Association and Destiny.

A varsity baseball player, he was given honorable mention on the All-Conference baseball team.

He was also named to Who's Who Among American High School Students.

In addition, Acosta is the magic which brings Chief Ocoela, SHS's new mascot to life.

He plans to attend the University of North Florida, where he intends to play baseball and major in physical therapy.

Drugs

regulations, he added, describing the proposal.

"Rose Davis came to me, probably two months ago," Whitmire recalled, "to discuss the drug problem in Sanford."

A minister, Davis lives in Winter Park but works and travels through Sanford. She is concerned about the young kids in the public housing areas who hang out with the dope dealers.

"She wants to do something with the kids who have not begun to sell drugs or maybe just a first offender," Whitmire explained. "She wants to do something to channel their energies in a different direction. She talked about getting this program, some counseling and giving them some focus and building up their self-esteem."

One long-time drug investigator returned to the proposal but commented afterwards that Davis was not living in the "real world" of the streets.

"My comment to (him) was, 'nothing ventured, nothing gained,'" Whitmire said. "If we do nothing, we know what we've got...exactly the same thing we've got today and tomorrow and next week. I said, 'I'm willing to try anything. If we've got a citizen coming to us and saying this is what I want to do, we can't afford to let the ball drop.'"

Davis has found about 15 children and four sets of parents interested in the program. The group will be meeting in the public housing unit once used in a police patrol and crime prevention program which was discontinued when funding dried up.

"I don't think we would get very good participation to bring project kids to meet at the police department or some other city building," Whitmire said. He approached former public housing authority director Phyllis Richardson to provide a meeting room in the development.

"I knew our old CPT office was still empty, but she was gone before we could get details arranged," Whitmire added. The use of the former office has been given the go-ahead by the authority management.

Richardson resigned citing medical reasons just two days before an investigation of improper procedures at the housing authority was completed. Finance director Tim Hudson was named interim executive director.

A number of groups and organizations will assist with the program, including SHOCAP, Department of Juvenile Justice, a minister and several church deacons. Whitmire added, Hudson and Linda Williams, management director of the housing authority, have agreed the old police office may be used as a meeting place for the program.

"Hopefully, we can have a ribbon-cutting or something (to kick off the program)," Whitmire added. "She's (Davis) not going to be preaching Christianity. With a lot of kids, (if) you jump out and start preaching, you have turned them off. She just wants to build up their self-esteem."

The proposed program is the latest effort to encourage youths to embark on positive paths and reject crime.

A few months ago, the police formed the QUAD squad to provide a quick response to neighborhood complaints about suspected criminal activity.

The QUAD squad commander reports residents, especially in high crime/drug areas, tell the officers they are glad the police are there, Whitmire said.

Changes may be made in the public housing leases which would lead to the eviction of drug users and dealers along with the individuals living with them, including family members or boyfriends/girlfriends. Hudson said he will discuss the lease language changes with the housing authority attorney.

In addition, housing authority officials will work to stop individuals suspected of illegal activities from using a few apartments to dodge pursuing police. Eviction of tenants routinely offering suspects refuge may be considered, depending upon the examination of several legal questions.

"When we get to chasing the drug dealers, they run into a certain apartment as a safe haven. There are about three or four apartments where the tenants allow that, because they are involved in the drug trade too," Whitmire explained.

In addition, public housing residents get reduced rents based upon their income. Residents pay 30 percent of their gross income for public housing rent.

"What we are faced with a lot of times is, we get a 13 or 14-year-old kid that's got $600, $700, $800 or $1,000 of cash in his pocket," the police commander said. "We like to con-spiculate that money. But what happens is with a kid that age...you know where he got the money and I know where he got the money...but the mother will come down and say it is her money. What we talked to Mr. Hudson about was, if that's the mother's money and she's got $600 or $1,000 bucks to give to somebody, how come she's not paying more than $30 a month rent?"

"We are going to explore some avenues. If the mother claims it is her money, then we might be able to come back with an affidavit from the officer who sees the money that says Mrs. Jones or Mrs. Smith is falsifying her income," he added. "It won't happen overnight. It will take time to incorporate these things and get approvals to change the lease. Other housing authorities are doing those types of things."

vehicles and/or seize license plates under certain circumstances involving drivers with suspended licenses for no insurance, or habitual traffic violators.

The bill also authorizes a pilot program, specifically for Dade, Broward and Hillsborough counties, in which licensed recovery agents can seize license plates under the same circumstances.

DUI sobriety checkpoints, aircraft enforcement operations targeting high speed and reckless driving violations, roadside checkpoint operations where troopers strictly enforce license, registration, insurance and safety equipment violations, and random "Wolfpack" patrols are planned to be used throughout the FHP's area as part of this three-month operation.

"This new law will give enforcement officers the tool it so dearly needs to insure that at least the vehicle driven by those brazen individuals will not be used again until proper insurance coverage is obtained," said FHP Director Col. Ron Grimming.

During Operation Safe Journey if motorists can expect to encounter covert radar operations, daily aircraft surveillance operation, roadside safety checkpoint operations, and troopers working in unmarked patrol vehicles. The four Speed

Measuring Awareness Radar Trailers (SMART) will also be placed in areas where speed limit compliance is low.

The first Operation Safe Journey was conducted during a six-week period from Easter through Memorial Day earlier this year. It resulted in the arrest of 1,510 drunk drivers, 4,943 unlicensed/suspended drivers, and 2,984 uninsured motorists.

Almost 70,000 other traffic citations were also issued during the six-week period.

Picking the right frame is key to eyeglass success

Picture this. Your eyes are the firefeature noticed in any important close encounter, and eyeglass frames your eyes. That makes eyeglass one of the most important fashion accessories for men and women alike.

No longer worn only to improve vision, eyeglass is fast becoming the most important accessory of choice among individuals who want to make a bold personal statement about style and image.

The frame you choose can create different images, from professional, to dandy, to casual.

"The 'school marm' eyeglass look is definitely out for women who want to be taken seriously in the board room," said Carol Norbeck, national spokesman for the Vision Council of America's Envision Yourself program.

"Instead, business women today are wearing styles with a bold fashion edge, such as Eyewear tip: Frames in more conservative shapes and colors are the best choice to appear more intelligent and responsible.

almond-shaped frames of antiqued metal," she added.

If you're going somewhere elegant after work, a quick change to eyeglass frames with intricate enamel or rhinestone-jeweled trims can help you achieve that glamorous image you're after.

Prostate cancer cases on the rise these days

By DEE LAMAR
Special to the Herald

SANFORD — When asked to name the most frequently diagnosed cancer in the United States, most people would probably name breast, or maybe, lung cancer.

But, they would be wrong. The incidence of prostate cancer among American men has increased dramatically during the past several decades.

It's now the most frequently diagnosed of all cancers in our nation.

The American Cancer Society estimates new cases in 1995 will exceed breast cancer by 61,000.

While the cause of this type of cancer is unknown, several risk factors have been identified.

Age is definitely a factor. Almost all prostate cancer patients are more than 55 years old and 80 percent are over 65.

Also, the disease sometimes strikes repeatedly in certain families.

A man's risk is doubled if his brother or father has had prostate cancer.

Other risk factors include dietary fat and race. For reasons not known, African American men have the highest incidence of prostate cancer in the world.

Prostate cancer patients and their significant others must contend not only with the fears of all cancer patients — fear of dying, worry about medical treatment, role changes can make people isolated and alone — but also other issues.

Those other issues which can affect prostate cancer patients and their significant others include: inability to initiate or maintain sexual relations; loss of bladder control, which can decrease mobility and independence due to fear of public embarrassment due to incontinence.

The need for a way to deal with these concerns and issues became very clear to one retiree in 1990 when he learned he had prostate cancer. Instead of becoming depressed, he decided to start a support group in his home for men in a similar situation.

With the help of the American Cancer Society and local health professionals, the Man to Man prostate cancer support group was created.

A Man to Man program attempts to provide a supportive environment in which men with prostate cancer can learn more about the disease, treatment options and the difficult issues and emotions involved.

In 1992, the Florida division of the American Cancer Society adopted Man to Man as an official support program. It became a nationwide program in 1994 when it was endorsed by the American Cancer Society's national office.

Today there are over 60 chapters, including Sanford/Lake Mary, and 75 groups in other states.

The Man to Man program also works to promote early detection to provide a treatment opportunity before the disease has progressed.

Without question, the real hope for the future is in early detection.

The five-year survival rate for those men with the prostate cancer diagnosed in the early stage while still localized is now 94 percent.

Every man 40 years of age should have a digital rectal examination as part of his regular annual physical checkup.

In addition, the American Cancer Society recommends that men 50 and over have an annual annual prostate-specific antigen (PSA) blood test.

For information on a Man-to-Man support group in Sanford/Lake Mary, or other prostate cancer information, call (407) 322-0849.

Dee Lamar is the American Cancer Society's Director for Sanford/Lake Mary. She is responsible for a wide range of important services available to local cancer patients, cancer support groups, public education and fundraising activities.

Norplant: health fiasco or legal juggernaut?

By SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer

It was all a frightening mystery to Kimberly Thompson: the throbbing migraines, the shortness of breath, the shocking 40-pound weight gain in just three months.

"It was the worst part of my life, wondering what is happening to your body," said the 25-year-old Chicago mother of two. "There were times I would cry and say, 'What's wrong? Is it me?'"

It was clear to Rhonda Rice something was terribly wrong when she was hospitalized five times in a year.

"I was having anxiety attacks, irregular heart beats, fainting spells," the 31-year-old Texas woman said. "Getting up out of a chair would exhaust me. I had severe hair loss. My face would break out in boils. I had a lot of problems."

Both women hope to prove their ailments had a common source: Norplant, a contraceptive touted as a major medical advance when introduced in the United States, and now, just 4 1/2 years later, the target of a flood of lawsuits that could jeopardize its future — and, some say, perhaps even the future of birth control research.

Norplant, the first major new contraceptive since the birth control pill came on the market 30 years ago, was hailed as a safe, effective, no-fuss form of protection. Six matchstick-sized silicone-coated rods are implanted under the skin of the upper arm, releasing a synthetic hormone into the bloodstream that prevents pregnancy for up to five years.

Nearly 1 million U.S. women tried Norplant. Now, 50,000 users have retained lawyers to sue over it, according to Chris Parks, a Texas attorney representing 800 women. Most claim they weren't adequately warned of the scope and severity of side effects — including headaches, weight gain, persistent menstrual bleeding, hair growth or loss, ovarian cysts, anemia and depression — or removal problems.

"They were sold a dream and got a nightmare," Parks said. "If you tell women all the facts about Norplant they will not be interested. ... The side effects don't go away and that's what (the company) wants everyone to believe."

"Women who thought they made intelligent choices about birth control now hate themselves," said Jewel Klein, a Chicago attorney representing 4,100 women in a state class-action suit, including Mrs. Thompson, whose implants were removed after three months. She says her health improved after that.

The manufacturer, Wyeth-Ayerst Laboratories, a division of American Home Products Corp., maintains Norplant is a good contraceptive — the Food and Drug Administration recently reaffirmed its support — and claims the litigation has been orchestrated by avaricious lawyers, some of whom were involved in the $4 billion global breast implant settlement.

"We believe in Norplant and in its safety and its efficacy," said Audrey Ashby, a Wyeth-Ayerst spokeswoman. "We're going to defend the cases vigorously ... and we hope the product will be vindicated in court."

On Tuesday, attorneys head to court to ask a federal judge in Texas to certify a national class-action suit on behalf of women claiming Norplant injuries. All federal cases were consolidated last year.

The attorneys claim Norplant wasn't adequately tested (several trials were in Third World countries), doctors weren't adequately trained and women — many of them young and poor — weren't adequately counseled.

They also claim users weren't warned silicone, which has been so controversial in breast implants, could cause serious health risks.

The company says Norplant has been tested for more than 20 years — including on more than 1,000 U.S. women — and been approved for distribution in 39 countries. It also says it provided extensive training for doctors.

The silicone — less than a gram — is commonly used in medical devices, such as pacemakers, Mrs. Ashby said, adding that revised warning labels note the ingredient.

Mrs. Ashby contends the timing of the litigation isn't coincidental: While only about 20 suits were filed through 1993 when 800,000 women had Norplant, that number skyrocketed to 308 — 59 seek class-action status — in the past 1 1/2 years.

"We feel Norplant was a new mark," she said, with the increase coming as breast implant cases wound down and publicity intensified. She cited one day when nearly identical lawsuits with the same typographical errors were filed in Minnesota, Texas and Kansas.

"It's greed," said Dr. Elizabeth Connell, professor of gynecology and obstetrics at Emory University's School of Medicine in Atlanta and a contraceptive expert for 30 years. "You have a bunch of attorneys who have deep pockets. As soon as they empty one, they look for the next one. That's what's happened here."

She said attorneys have employed the same tactics as in breast implant cases: recruiting women through media advertisements, then conducting seminars on what experts to use.

And while no one disputes women are sick, the doctor said, data don't support a cause-effect relationship with Norplant.

Connell also fears this controversy could discourage companies from developing new contraceptives in what already is a shrinking U.S. industry.

"It's one of the worst things I've seen all my years in medicine and one of the worst things that's ever happened to women," she said.

Parks, however, insists this is no ploy by mercenary lawyers.

"It's impossible from a public relations campaign to blame 50,000 women, so you blame their lawyers," he said. "Lawyers aren't supposed to be popular."

While the legal battles have just begun, the publicity already has taken its toll: Daily sales have plummeted from 800 to 60, Mrs. Ashby said.

Dr. Richard Ellenbogen, a Detroit area obstetrician-gynecologist, said he has removed about three-fourths of about 75 implants he had inserted. "I don't know of any physicians putting them in anymore," he said.

Though Ellenbogen hasn't seen significant problems, he said at least half of his Norplant patients suffered side effects. "I don't think it's a very good means of birth control," he said.

Dr. Keith Brown, an osteopath in the Chicago suburb of Elmhurst who participated in a Wyeth-Ayerst training program, disagreed.

"It's as safe as any other form of birth control ... when inserted properly and people are counseled properly," he said, noting he has received few complaints among his few hundred Norplant patients.

Gloriane Angellotti, 37, recently had her implants removed after nearly five years and had no problems. "I thought it was great," she said. "It worked and it was convenient. That's the bottom line."

But those who've sued say some doctors told them nothing and warnings didn't include some illnesses, while downplaying others. For example, potential side effects mention weight gain and prolonged bleeding, but don't indicate that could mean 60 pounds or menstruation for 45 straight days.

Linda Salazar, a 21-year-old New Mexico mother of two, blames Norplant for gallstones, anemia, depression, a thyroid disorder and 16 consecutive months of menstrual bleeding that cost her a job.

Shoveling for a good cause Miracle house to be built in one day

By NICK PFENFAUF

MAITLAND — The Home Builders Association of Mid-Florida recently broke ground at the site of the 1985 Miracle House to be built Nov. 11 in the Carrington neighborhood of Hunter's Creek.

In addition to representatives of various building companies involved, Ray McCoy, president of the Mid-Florida Home Builders Foundation, was present as was Les Davies of Adam Walsh Children's Fund.

The groundbreaking ceremony marks the beginning of the site preparation that must be done in advance of the construction. "In order to complete the house in a day," said Bob Wheeler, chairman of the construction team, "we have to clear the lot and lay the foundation in advance."

"On Nov. 11," he continued, "we will have over 600 volunteers on-site, doing everything from the framing to hanging the front door."

The Miracle House is planned for three bedrooms, two-and-a-half baths and den, with 2,469 square feet of living space and a swimming pool on a lakefront lot.

After completion, the house will be sold with the proceeds to benefit the Adam Walsh Children's Fund. The fund will

Auto service shop stays in Sanford

SANFORD — The Sanford Kmart store, at 3101 Orlando Drive, is the only one in the Sanford area with an automotive facility. While the parent company is in the process of selling its automotive services there are not expected to be any changes in the Sanford facility's operation.

Lake Mary's Kmart does not have an automotive service facility.

The Kmart Corp. headquarters in Troy, Mich. has announced it is selling its money-losing auto service centers to Detroit entrepreneur Roger Penske, who runs a winning Indy Car racing team, a truck leasing business and car dealerships.

The $112 million deal will convert 860 U.S. Kmart auto service centers including the Sanford operation, into Penske Auto Centers.

"It takes us out of a business that we didn't, perhaps, know as well as we should have," Kmart Chairman Floyd Hall said Monday at a news conference to announce the divestiture.

While additional changes in the operation may be announced in the future, at present, Kmart officials say when Penske concludes the purchase, it does not plan to close any of the present facilities, and hopes to be able to retain all of the personnel now employed through Kmart.

The finalities of the purchase are still being arranged.

Alaqua markets

By NICK PFENFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

HEATHROW — Developers of Alaqua, an exclusive country club community located west of Lake Mary, have signed an exclusive agreement with Stirling International Realty, to take over marketing and sales of the development. Stirling co-owner Roger Soderstrom said the agreement covers an estimated $29 million in sales of custom Alaqua homes and homesites.

"Alaqua has matured as the dominant luxury community in Seminole County," Soderstrom said, "and it will probably be the last community of its kind developed here."

Alaqua is located in the dense Wekiva Forest along the banks of the Little Wekiva River. It is a development of Westbury Properties, Inc. Michael H. DeGroot, Jr., is president.

"Through great efforts and cost, we have created a community in which we have great pride," DeGroot commented.

Stirling's Showcase Center, which is open to the public week days from 8:30 a.m. until 8 p.m. and until 6 p.m. on weekends, is located on Lake Mary Boulevard, near Interstate 4 at the entrance to the Heathrow International Business Center.

SANFORD — A new business is now operating in Sanford. Or rather, operating off shore from Sanford. It's Fisherman's Tour, owned and operated by Carlton Enoch, a Sanford resident for the past nine years.

The tour offers fishermen the opportunity to fish on a boat for a half day or a full day. Enoch is operating a pontoon boat, anchored immediately across U.S. Highway 17-92 from Lake Monroe Inn, Bait and Tackle.

The fishing trip is all inclusive, with food, bait and tackle included in the cost.

The first tour leaves its anchorage at 7:30 a.m. returning at noon. The second tour is from 3 until 7 p.m. Cost for the half-day trip on Lake Monroe and the St. Johns River is $10 per person. The all-day trip is $17 per person.

"While the boat is capable of handling 15 people," Enoch said, "I want to keep the number down to no more than 10 so that everyone has plenty of room to fish and enjoy the trip."

Arrangements for either the half-day or full-day trips can only be made by advance reservations.

To reserve a trip on Fisherman's Tour, phone 323-7446 or 321-1419.

Clinton urges twin-track approach

WASHINGTON — Seeking to break an impasse in the peace process in Northern Ireland, President Clinton is urging all sides to consider a proposal to simultaneously negotiate a political settlement and the disarming of rival factions, the White House said Saturday.

White House press secretary Mike McCurry said Clinton and Vice President Al Gore expressed that view during a meeting on Friday with Irish Foreign Secretary Dick Spring.

Clinton and Gore used the session to repeat their belief that "the guns and bombs must be banished for good in Northern Ireland," McCurry said in a statement.

The president told Spring that dialogue about the future aspirations of Northern Ireland's sectarian communities holds "the best guarantee of a just and lasting peace," the spokesman said.

But Clinton and Gore also said there is a clear need to quickly restore momentum to the process and commended efforts by the Irish and British governments to do that, McCurry said.

"They stated that they see a basis for progress in the 'twin track' proposal to begin inclusive talks between the two governments and the Northern Ireland political parties and to establish an international body on the decommissioning of weapons," the press secretary said.

Clinton critical of Medicaid reform

WASHINGTON — Republican plans for Medicaid reductions could force the sale of family homes, cars and even furniture as a condition to placing an elderly spouse in a nursing home, President Clinton said on Saturday.

"I don't think it should be a precondition that if a husband has to go into a nursing home, his wife has to go into the poor house," the president said in his weekly radio address.

Clinton said another provision "buried" in proposed GOP cuts in the Medicaid program would eliminate all national standards for nursing home care.

The Senate Finance Committee voted early Saturday to overhaul Medicare and Medicaid to save $450 billion over the next seven years as part of the GOP's program to bring the federal budget into balance by 2002.

The committee also decided to make 10 percent of senior citizens pay sharply higher premiums for some Medicare services.

Medicaid growth would be cut at least 10 percent a year to 4.9 percent to save $182 billion. Nearly all federal rules for the health safety net for 36 million low-income children, families, elderly and disabled people would be eliminated and the program converted into block grants to the states.

Clinton said the Medicaid cuts threaten a return to the era in which many patients were over-medicated, physically restrained and cared for by "under-trained nurses and fumbling technicians."

"Congress should strip these outrageous provisions from the budget bill," he said. "They're inconsistent with our core values. ... They are certainly not necessary to balance the budget."

Love bug season

CLIMAX, Ga. — Those love bugs are at it again — splattering windshields and bumpers along the highways of the Deep South.

"It's a rough way to go," said H.A. Denmark, a retired University of Florida entomologist who has studied the insects. "I don't recommend it, but they die happy, I guess."

The quarter-inch black flies, so named because they mate in flight, are attracted to the heat and exhaust fumes of highways and swarm every May and early fall.

"I think they're worse this year than they've ever been," said Dixie Hutto, a restaurant owner in Climax, a farming community of 200 in southwestern Georgia.

Love bugs can clog radiators, causing engines to overheat. They can smear windshields, cutting visibility. And the acids in their decomposing bodies can ruin auto paint.

Everyone agrees they're a nuisance. Some curse them. Others make jokes: "What is one love bug? An unloved bug."

But nobody really knows what to do about them. Some people hang bug screens on the front of their cars and trucks. Others just wash their vehicles more often.

Hunters beware: Roads closed

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

The Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission (FGFC) has issued a warning about road flooding in the Rock Springs Run Wildlife Management Area. The 13,910 acre park is located west of Sanford, south of SR-46, and is partially in Lake and Orange counties.

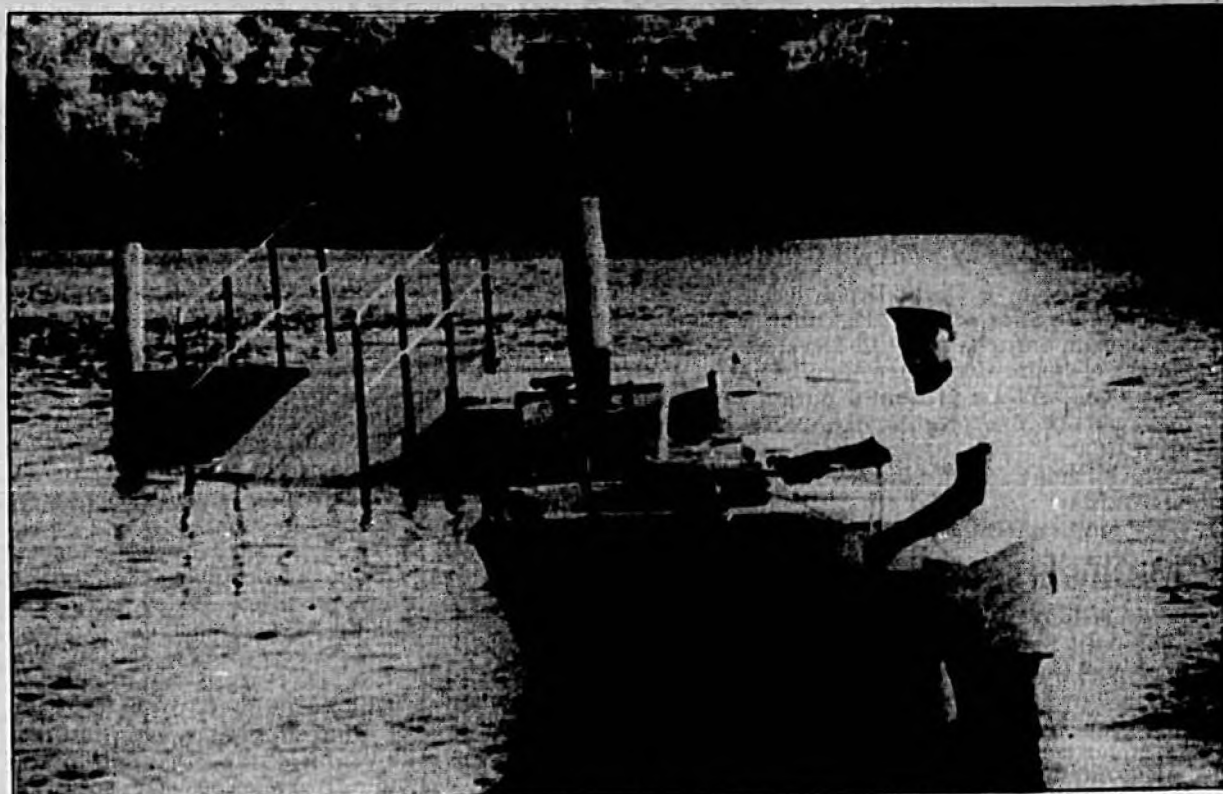

According to the commission, persistent wet conditions precipitated by heavy rains have damaged several roads, which are now closed until at least November 16.

Hunters planning to utilize the management area during archery and muzzleloading seasons may be affected by the closures. Officials hope the roads can be reopened in time for the start of regular gun season on November 17.

Mike Abbott, FGFC's regional wildlife biologist said, "Many of the roads are impassable and need to be repaired before they will be safe for vehicular traffic. If vehicles attempt to use them in their current condition, the roads will suffer even more damage."

Officers have cautioned that strict laws will be strictly enforced during this flooding period.

"Until the roads are reopened," said Major David Starling, "motorized vehicles are Proechel said since Eslinger took office in 1992, the sheriff's department budgets have increased each year, from a $2-85 million.

"His budget is double any other budget in Seminole County," Proechel asserted.

When the county commissioners rejected the increases in the sheriff's proposed 1996 budget, Proechel said, money from the Law Enforcement Trust Fund will be used instead of tax money.

"Guess what! That's your money too," Proechel added.

The trust fund contains cash and money from the sale of property forfeited through the courts. A large portion of the money comes from drug activity.

The public is not getting the straight story from the media on some of the sheriff's projects, Proechel asserted.

He said the two bargain helicopters purchased at $200 each from military surplus will cost $350,000 or more, plus a $300,000 hangar.

"You can buy a used fully loaded law enforcement helicopter for $250,000," Proechel stated.

He also claimed the Sheriff's office used helicopters three times during 1994, using Volusia County's helicopter twice and Orange County's once. He asked rhetorically whether the equipment is really necessary.

The $100,000 motorcycle unit has been disbanded and the equipment either stored or scrapped, "depending on who you talk to," Proechel said. The neighborhood bike patrol is no longer active, he claimed and another to the Bosta, Range and Water patrol started by Eslinger.

Several water craft, including jet skis and airboat are in the department's vehicle inventory.

With the implementation of neighborhood policing through district substations in the county, Proechel also questioned the need to move from the current 25,000 square foot space into the 100,000 square foot building proposed at Five Points. Public Safety would also occupy the building.

"I'm not even going to mention the jail greenhouse," Proechel added, referring to the inmate hydroponic gardening operation recently launched. "I can't keep a straight face over that one."

Money to start the hydroponic project came from inmate commissary profits, not tax dollars. Vegetables grown by inmates will be served to the prisoners, reducing the amount spent on fresh produce under the sheriff's plan.

Under the current sheriff, Proechel said, morale is at a 20-year low. He claimed a survey of 600 employees showed 84.25 percent were against him.

On Friday, the 144 correction employees and jail nurses eligible to vote on the question of representation by the Teamsters soundly defeated the measure, 109 to 22 after two days of polling.

Proechel's brother, Bob is serving as Becker's campaign manager.

The chairman, Robert Petree, had asked present members to find persons in the community who were willing to serve on the historical commission, in order to present a list to the city commission from which to choose three or four appointees to add to the historical commission. This technicality resulted in the decision by the State Ethics Committee to release members of the historical commission from filing a financial disclosure statement. It had taken three years or more to procure this opinion, but the commissioners finally won their point.

The historical commission's chairman are: Robert Petree, organizer and first chairman, Mary Wolff, James Thompson, Lillian Griffin, and Jean Brooklyn, present chairman.

In its 12 years of existence, the Lake Mary Historical Commission has initiated or undertaken several successful projects. Two annual "Olde Lake Mary Days" have been held. An annual calendar is published containing 12 or more historical pictures.

The city has made available to the commission a room in the old city hall, now known as the Frank Evans Center, and use of the building as needed for special events and programs.

The commission has established its headquarters there, with office files and a library of Lake Mary history, open to the public for pleasure, research and education each Monday morning from 9:30 to 11:30 o'clock.

Contained therein are books and pictures of local area history, historical documents, deeds, census records, family histories, biographies of local persons, photo files, historical artifacts, records of local clubs and organizations, as well as files on the influence of the railroad, turpentine and lumber industries, Indians, businesses, roads, art, navy base, displays on historical subjects and much more.

The library may also be opened at other times by appointment by calling 324-3060 or 323-3915.

According to the latest post office figures, Breckenridge said, it costs $243 per unit per year to deliver mail door-to-door. Curbside delivery is $154 per unit per year. The cost per unit per year for delivery to cluster boxes is $108 per year.

"When we're being told by everybody and his brother to control costs," he said, "We need to control costs. If we retreat from that position, nobody wins."

Breckenridge believes Wain's statements have inflamed an already-volatile situation in Sanford. "He's talking about facts that just ain't so," he said of the union leader. "We're not talking about big numbers in the historic district, but we have to treat everyone the same. We're not making any exceptions for anyone."

Breckenridge did say that, though it is the post office's policy to make periodic appeals to residents to move their mailboxes to the curb, such requests would not be made in the Sanford Historic District in the future.

"Those who have moved to curbside delivery will be required to remain there," he said. "but we will not make any further appeals to get the others to move their mailboxes."

Breckenridge said that former Sanford postmaster Patrick Brennan had made the same promise, but word of the agreement had not been passed along when he went on to a temporary assignment in Tampa. He has now been assigned permanently to that station. Breckenridge said the new postmaster assigned to Sanford will be made aware of the agreement.

Wuerffel leads Florida

GAINESVILLE — Danny Wuerffel continued his touchdown barrage, throwing for three scores Saturday in No. 3 Florida's lackluster 28-10 victory over Mississippi, which kept the game close by controlling the clock.

Florida (4-0, 3-0 Southeastern Conference) also got two TDs from freshman Jacquez Green, who started in place of suspended receiver Reidel Anthony. But the Gators defense continued to struggle, surrendering 325 yards to Ole Miss (2-2, 1-2) and leaving coach Steve Spurrier looking exasperated on the sideline.

Florida scored on its first three possessions but couldn't pull away because Ole Miss held a 10:40 advantage in time of possession.

The Rebels, though, squandered several good scoring chances. Tim Montz, who was 6-of-6 on field goals, missed two of three attempts, including a 42-yarder in the second quarter after a nearly 9-minute drive. Ole Miss' final chance ended when Mark Smith was stopped at the line of scrimmage on fourth-and-3 at the Florida 14 midway through the final period.

Roush Racing teammates Ted Musgrave and Mark Martin will start in the front row Sunday, followed by Bobby Hamilton and 10-time North Wilkesboro winner Darrell Waltrip, his brother Michael and Irvan's new teammate Dale Jarrett.

Patriots march on Lake Brantley totally dominates Seminole

Lake Brantley's Bryan Zornick celebrates after Dee Brown's 45-yard punt return in the second quarter of the Patriots' 35-0 whitewashing of the Tribe Friday night at Thomas E. Whigham Stadium.

SANFORD — Lake Brantley rolled up 498 rushing yards while limiting Seminole to 67 yards of total offense in an easy 35-0 victory Friday night at Thomas E. Whigham Field.

"Running the ball is what we do best," said Lake Brantley coach Fred Almon. "Dee Brown called every play, and he attacked the weaknesses in their defense. Dee is a quality athlete. I love our offense, and I'll never change it. The defense played well again."

Dee Brown opened the scoring in the game on a 45-yard punt return with 2:50 left in the first half. Brown took a Phillip Falk punt at the Seminole 45, got behind a wall of blockers on the left side of the field and turned on the burners. John Berardi's point after gave the Patriots a 7-0 lead.

Brown would strike again with 5:51 left in the second quarter with an 81 yard run along the Lake Brantley sideline. Berardi's extra point extended the Patriots lead to 14-0.

After two lightning quick scores, Lake Brantley's offense took its time during a 53 yard, nine play drive to make the score 21-0 with :47.8 before halftime. Brown capped the drive with a one-yard plunge. Brown rushed for 154 yards on 10 carries.

Dell McGee closed out the scoring with two long touchdown runs in the second half. The first of the two runs came on the second play of the half as the senior running back raced 65 yards. Berardi's extra point put the Patriots ahead 28-0 with 11:16 remaining in the third quarter.

McGee then raced 77 yards for another score, and Berardi's kick closed out the scoring with 5:24 in the third quarter. McGee, who only carried the ball three times in the game, was the leading rusher with 151 yards. After the game, he praised the Patriots offensive line.

LAKE MARY — If football games can be scripted ahead of time, the Lake Mary Rams will take about a dozen repeat performances of their 27-0 trouncing of the Deltona Wolves in a Class 5-A District 4 football contest which also was the Rams Homecoming game Friday night at Don T. Reynolds Stadium.

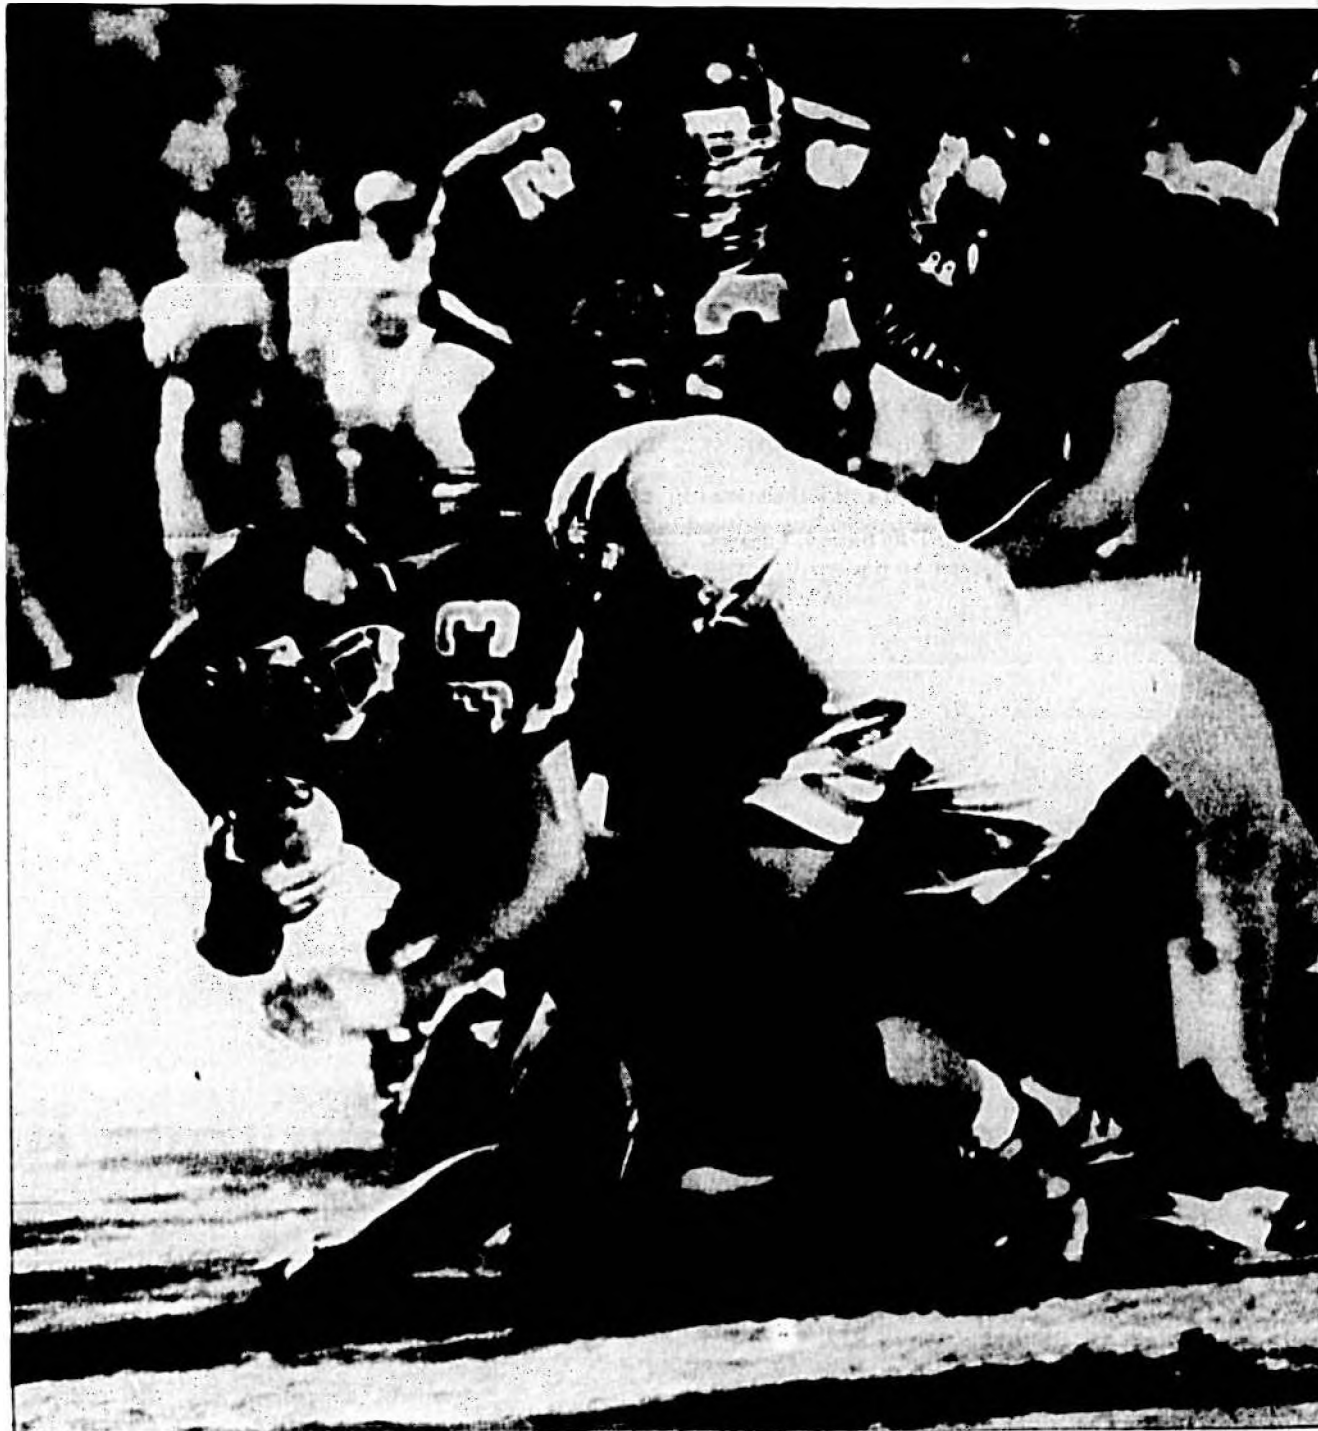

The game had all of the ingredients of a Hollywood movie from the home team leaving the field victorious, right down to the Homecoming king rushing for three touchdowns as the band played the school fight song. Rudy would be proud.

"We really had a lot of distractions this week with all of the homecoming festivities, so I'm just glad that we came together when it counted and we were able to win the game," Lake Mary coach Doug Peters said. "We started slow in the first half on offense but we really got things going in the second half. We seem to be a second half team this year and tonight was no exception."

Recolon Jumps was crowned Homecoming King in a pregame ceremony and he protected his new found kingdom during the game by rushing for 129 yards on 26 carries with three touchdowns. Jumps also had a 24-yard touchdown run which was called back because of a holding call. Of course Jumps had a lot of help from the offensive line.

"Everyone really did their job tonight and made the blocks so I could get the yards," Jumps said. "We want every night to be a big WINTER PARK — Lake Howell (4-0) remained undefeated Friday night, blanking the Colonial Grenadiers (0-5) 35-0 in front of approximately 3,000 fans celebrating Lake Howell's homecoming.

"We have a good little football team, these kids play well together in all areas," said Head Coach Mike Biseglia.

The Silver Hawks, who rushed for 246 yards, jumped out to a 20-0 cushion in the first quarter, and never looked back. Lucious Cooper led the way, scoring touchdowns on his first two carries of the game. He finished with a season-high 176 yards on eight carries.

Cooper ran 51 yards for his first touchdown on the third play of the game and later added a 79-yard scamper. "I read the blocking, and just kept on running," said Cooper.

After Lake Howell recovered a fumble on Colonial's first play of the game, Ellis DeJesus ran six yards for a touchdown that widened the Silver Hawk lead to 14-0.

Senior quarterback Rick Lieflander kept the Grenadiers off-balance with precision passing, completing 5 of 7 passes for 57 yards. He also added 20 yards rushing to his total.

The Silver Hawk defense had another solid performance. In addition to keeping the Grenadiers out of the endzone, the defense held Colonial to 190 total yards and caused two turnovers that led to 14 Lake Howell points. "Our defense did a nice job shutting them out tonight," added Biseglia.

Silver Hawk defensive back Narada Overton picked off a pass on the opening drive of the second half to set up an eight play 92 yard drive that was capped off by a second DeJesus six yard touchdown run that put Lake Howell ahead 28-0.

night and this game tonight definitely was."

In addition to Jump's big night, Donnie Casey rushed for 127 yards and a touchdown on 12 carries to finish out the potent Lake Mary rushing assault.

The Lake Mary defense pressured the Deltona offense the entire game. Richard Badger, and Brian Wright, each had two sacks and Kyle Kessler, and Casey each added a sack and an interception respectively to pace the defensive pounding of the Wolves.

The Rams first touchdown came with :10 left in the first half when Jump scampered in from five-yards out. The extra point attempt sailed left giving Lake Mary a 6-0 lead going into the locker room.

After the break, the Rams controlled the pace of the game scoring on their next three possessions in the second half with long, time consuming drives. Lake Mary was poised to score from the Deltona 17-yard line as time expired.

"Overall, I am real pleased with the way our guys played tonight," Peters said. "Deltona is a well coached team, but our guys really came out to play and I think that was the difference."

Next week, the Rams will host the Lake Howell Silver Hawks in a Class 5-A District 4 and Seminole Athletic Conference football contest. Game time is set for 7:30 p.m. Friday night.

6A-District 4 play, the Lions will take a week off before returning to action on Friday, Oct. 13, when they host the Deltona Wolves in a 7:30 p.m. game at John Courier Field.

Bolles, 4-1, also has a bye next week. The Bulldogs will undertake one of the longest roadtrips in Florida high school athletics when they travel to Key West on Friday, Oct. 13.

Playing on a rain-soaked surface Friday night, neither the Lions nor Bulldogs were able to get much of anything going in the first half. William McCray scored on a 5-yard run in the first quarter while Gerry Giurato added a 16-yard scoring run in the second quarter to give Bolles a 14-0 halftime lead.

But while Oviedo's offensive woes continued in the second half, Bolles got untracked, scoring on four of its five possessions in the second half.

McCray and Giurato each notched a second touchdown. McCray (65 yards on 13 carries) bullying in with 3:04 left in the third quarter while Giurato (48 yards on eight rushes) came off the bench to score a personal statistics-fattening touchdown with less than 90 seconds remaining in the game.

Sterling Forrest pulled in a pass from Roderick Brown and rumbled 66 yards for a touchdown on the first play from scrimmage of the fourth quarter.

Fontaine LeMaistre, who converted all five extra points, also kicked a 28-yard field goal early in the third quarter.

Mike Glummo led the Lions with 42 yards rushing in nine carries. Leroy Jackson contributed 20 yards on seven carries. Quarterback Andy Neufeld, who also gained 20 yards rushing on 10 carries, completed nine of 12 passes for 84 yards. Shawn Lingard caught six passes for 68 yards.

Arvida has fiscal affection for SHS

By VICKI BOGGS
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Arvida Corporation has been a tremendous supporter of Seminole High School.

The Academy of Health Careers has been a major recipient of their financial support.

Recently, the corporation donated $60,000 to complete the three year $150,000 grant they have presented to the school that has been designated for "excellence."

The money has been used to make the health academy one of the strongest educational facilities for students interested in a career in medicine.

"This academy has benefitted greatly from these donations from Arvida," said John Cullum, a spokesman for the school.

The most recent donation was used to purchase new books for the academy library, including an extensive update of the reference section, a complete multi-media research computer lab including high speed laser printers and a teaching lab in the academy itself.

Educational software, video equipment and educational videotapes and laser discs were also purchased.

Finally, the grant allowed for the installation of video projection equipment and a wireless public address system in the media

Learning non-violence

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

U.S. Attorney General Janet Reno went back to school recently. She was surprised at the complexity of some of the classes now being taught.

Reno visited Fort Caroline Elementary School in Jacksonville recently, for a "Back to School" event, designed to call attention to the importance of school safety and parent and community support for local students.

Among programs she participated in or attended were "Victory over Violence," where students mediated and engaged in conflict resolution to learn to defuse tense situations. Also, "Truancy Arbitration," designed to diminish the number of truants by teaching children and their parents the importance of coming to school, on time. Truancy is a major risk factor contributing to delinquency.

"When I was in school," the Attorney General said, "we didn't have conflict resolution or mediation programs, but we had our share of conflicts. They were not, however, violent like many are today." Reno continued, "I am so pleased to have this opportunity to see how the students in Jacksonville are learning non-violent ways to resolve conflicts."

Reno's visit was part of a nationwide "America Goes Back to School" project. It is a joint initiative sponsored by the Family Involvement Partnership for Learning, and the U.S. Department of Education.

The partnership is made up of over 140 educators, community leaders, parent and religious organizations.

Others participating in the week-long event were President Bill Clinton who spoke at Southern Illinois University, and Vice President Al Gore who gave a "Save Student Aid" talk at the University of Pittsburgh.

In commenting on the program, Reno observed that 30 years of research show that when family and community members are directly involved in education, children achieve better grades and higher test scores, have higher graduation rates, are more likely to enroll in higher education, and are better behaved.

Carvers wed 71 years; club plans Oktoberfest

There are love stories, and then, there are other love stories. But Ethel and John Carver have carved a love story that has been tenderly nourished for more than 71 years.

Time has toned down much of their vim, vigor and vitality and their thick hair may show silver threads among the gold, but nothing can dim the twinkle in their sparkling, loving eyes.

The Carvers celebrated their

DORIS DIETRICH

71st wedding anniversary on Sept. 24. They were married on that day in 1924 at the Rev. Roberts' parsonage in Willacoochee, Ga. And they have spent their entire married life in Sanford.

Before they were married, John came to Sanford looking for work. Back then, there was not even a First Street in Sanford. A stable stood where the present Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce is located and some of the few streets in town were brick.

John did locate work in Sanford and traveled back to Georgia to marry the girl of his dreams. He and his beloved bride live happily ever after. He went to work as a barber for the J.K. Smith Barber Shop on June 1, 1924. The shop was located in the rear of Roumillat-Anderson's Drug Store where he worked 20 years clipping the hair of many of Sanford's esteemed citizens.

Later, he bought the shop and re-located to 108 S. Park Ave., the present site of Sanford Hair Styling Salon. He remained at this location until his retirement in April, 1971. For those counting, John cut hair in Sanford for 47 years and is a legend among barbers.

Ethel worked at Sanford Naval Air Station before joining the city of Sanford's Water Department in the old city hall on Fulton street where she was a department head.

Today, they are each 89. Ethel will be 90, on Jan 1 and John's birthday is June 4. They reflect back on their lives together in Sanford. Ethel mentioned several bustling businesses. It seems there were several drug stores, banks, grocery stores, furniture stores, women's shops, men's stores and hardware stores in the downtown area.

"We had a good town," Ethel said. "It was a big, thriving town." See Dietrich, Page 2C

LAKE MARY

MARY ROWELL

After a small summer break, the Lake Mary Woman's Club has started back up. The speaker for the September meeting was Mrs. Ralph Austin (Charlotte) Smith of Sanford.

Mrs. Smith, a past president of the Sanford Woman's Club and a past president of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs, is a member of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. She spoke to the club members about her experiences in various local women's clubs as well as the national organization.

Mrs. Smith joined a Junior Woman's Club in 1913 when she was only 12 years old. She joined the Sanford Woman's Club in 1927. After 50 years of membership in the Sanford Woman's Club, she was given a lifetime membership. Mrs. Smith was recently recognized at the 100th anniversary of the General Federation of Women's Clubs for her membership years.

If you missed the third annual "Fun Dog Show" sponsored by the Parks and Recreation Department and the Recreation Advisory Board of the city of Longwood, you missed the laughter and the community spirit, a good old-fashioned "wishing your fellow competitor well," and the good feelings that come from being with those who share a common interest, a love of dogs.

Mindell marks 87th birthday; National ABWA Day observed

Mindell Kendrick is surrounded by her children and grandchildren on her 87th birthday.

The energizer battery bunny has nothing on Mindell Kendrick who is still going at age 87. Mindell recently celebrated her 87th birthday early with family and friends at the place she enjoys most, her church, St. Matthew M.B. Church, Sanford.

Mindell's pace slowed a little when she had a stroke a few years ago. According to daughter, Cynthia, her stroke and other health problems haven't stopped her yet. She's still going.

More than 50 family members, church members and friends joined the celebration. It was a day where Mindell brought love, joy and peace to the hearts of her two families, the Martins and the Kendricks.

Mindell and her husband, Jesse, are parents of 10 children. Four of their children, Jesse Jr., Cynthia K. Oliver, Dorothy K. Baker, Mack Charles and their spouses living in the area, planned the birthday festivities.

Another son, Dr. Joseph Kendrick and wife, Gloria, flew in from Knoxville, Tenn. Also arriving unexpectedly were grandsons Larry Bailey of Washington, D.C. and Jeffrey Leach of South Carolina. Jeffrey filmed the birthday celebration and other weekend events as part of a documentary he is doing on the life of Mindell.

Gifts arrived from many parts of the United States from their children, grandchildren and great grandchildren. Cynthia stated, "We want to give mama her flowers while she yet lives. She gave us life, faith and a sense of caring for all mankind."

ABWA meets for national confab

Carolyn Bufon Elman, executive director of the National American Business Women's Association, was the guest speaker for the national celebration of ABWA's Day. The Central Florida Area Council observed the annual day with a luncheon at the Church Street Station Presidential Ballroom, Sat., Sept. 23.

One of the highlights was the message in honor of women who have ventured out into the world of business and the workforce. A circle of leaders, a circle of friends, are what these energetic women have become.

Mrs. Elman reminded ABWAs that the "organization is a place to reach out, be friends, support and encourage success. Becoming a top woman of the year is the award for accomplishing growth, development, personal professionalism, and goals are met through leadership and networking. Women of ABWA are mirrors for one another."

The message will remain in the minds of all of the women present. "Goals are achievable if you work to be a success at whatever you desire in life."

Mayor Glenda Hood of Orlando sent an official ABWA Day Proclamation.

The theme "Together" for 1995 is a common vision each member shares nationwide. It symbolizes the circle of leaders See Hawkins, Page 2C

'Please Call Police' banners save lives

DEAR ABBY: I can't thank you enough for mentioning the "Please Call Police" banners in your column. I ordered one; then two and a half months later — in 100-degree weather — the engine of my car went dead just outside Texarkana, Texas.

I put my "Please Call Police" banner on my windshield so cars and trucks could see it as they passed. In a few minutes, a police officer showed up saying someone had called in after seeing the banner. The officer drove me to a garage, then had my car towed in and drove me home.

Abby, that banner saved my life! I am 87 years old and have a heart condition. I couldn't have lasted very long in that heat. Thank you a thousand times.

APPRECIATIVE IN TEXAS
DEAR APPRECIATIVE: No need to thank me — that's what I'm here for. How fortunate you had the foresight to plan ahead for such an emergency.

You are not the only reader who has told me what a lifesaver these banners can be. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Last winter, a friend of ours had a life-threatening experience. She and her three children were driving on a major highway in Indiana. It was 10 degrees below zero when her car stalled. (It had "knocked 18 inches the day before.")

We had been concerned about her driving in such weather, so we had given her our "Please Call Police" banner.

Abby, she managed to get the car to the side of the highway and then she placed the banner on her windshield. She and her children sat in the car in the bitter cold only about 15 or 20 minutes before a trucker came to their aid. (A driver going the other way had seen the banner and signaled an approaching truck driver to stop and assist her.) The driver graciously helped her restart her car and followed her to a truck stop several miles down the road.

I'm writing not only to tell you how valuable the banner was, but to ask you to print the address for others who may want to order them. We plan to give them to friends and family as gifts.

MRS. GEORGE WOLVERTON, CLARKSVILLE, IND.

DEAR MRS. WOLVERTON: Your letter highlights the importance of being prepared for highway emergencies. Many readers have written to tell me that the "Please Call Police" banners make excellent holiday stocking stuffers.

To order the banners, write to WCIL-Banners, P.O. Box 92501, Los Angeles, Calif. 90009. (WCIL is the Westside Center for Independent Living, a not-for-profit organization that helps people with disabilities live independently.)

Make your check or money order (U.S. funds only, please) payable to: WCIL-Banners. You will receive one "Please Call Police" banner as a premium for a $5 contribution, and another banner with each additional $4 contribution. Include $1 per order for postage and handling. (Many people order two banners — one for the windshield and one for the rear window.) Please allow eight weeks for delivery...

place." She has seen many changes in the community. "There are so many more cars," she said. "And this computer age is one of the biggest things. It has cut down on so many people in jobs."

Today, the Carvers are still quite active. He still drives, and they go grocery shopping and prepare all of their food. Ethel is legally blind, but enjoys her reading machine and television. In past years, she kept her nimble fingers at work with exquisite needlework and she liked to fish. John also liked to fish and hunt.

The Carvers are members of the First United Methodist Church and are the parents of three deceased children. They have three grandchildren.

In celebration of their anniversary, friends called at their home to wish them well. Their grandson and his wife, Robert and Sandra Thompson, took them out to dinner, and Libby and Eddie Mossman, a niece and nephew, also took them to dinner.

Ethel said the secret to a happy marriage is, "Get up and be thankful you are all right. Think of all the good things to be thankful for."

Would Ethel marry John all over again? "Oh, yes," she said. "I found what I wanted. I can't remember when we weren't together. We are thankful we can do for ourselves."

Oktoberfest set

October is here and it's not a bit too soon to plan a social right now with the Sanford Woman's Club. On Friday, Oct. 20, the club will host Oktoberfest at the clubhouse, from 5 to 8:30 p.m. The event is sponsored by the Education Department for the scholarship fund to benefit a deserving woman to return to the classroom.

Co-chairmen of Oktoberfest are Vivian Buck and Pat Foster. According to Vivian, Sanford has not had an Oktoberfest in a number of years, and being a connoisseur of German foods, she seemed to think it will go over big. She said she and her great effort of the owner and dog, who were sometimes successful and oftentimes not.

This was a "Fun Dog Show" and the contest categories were great fun: Shortest Tail, Best Trick, Best Costume, Funniest, Singing/Talking, Longest Tail, Most Obedient, Biggest and Smallest Dog, Best "I Won't Do Anything," Owner/Dog Look Alike, Best of Show. The dogs could be entered in any and all categories and there were prizes and trophies for all. Sponsoring this successful event were: McDonald's at 17-92 in Longwood; Supreme Leather Restorers, Ancare Supply in Longwood, Longwood Shoe Repair, Annette's Pets in Casselberry, Seminole Greyhound Park and Fair Complex, Taco Bell of Casselberry and Longwood, PetSmart of Casselberry, Winn Dixie of Longwood, Bonacker & Leign, Gatorade of Orlando.

The very brave judges, as introduced by Lomax, included: Kathleen Ducher of the City Hall Finance Department, Eva Nelaler, a City Hall employee, Jennifer Neisler, Woman's Health and Fitness. The board members, also sponsoring the event, included: Mary Huttner, Cindy Latimer, Phyllis Shepard, Chairman Rob Wons, and Robin Sargent.

During the "Funniest Dog" category, the audience was treated to dancing dogs, dogs giving kisses, a dog who watched his owner play the harmonica, a dog who took a sock off its nose, a dribbling soccer playing dog, and the winner, the funny tourist dog, complete with sunglasses, Mickey Mouse hat, shorts, camera and fanny pack — a Shih-tzu named Tai Jen, owned by Lin Morello. The close second place was the dribbling soccer-playing dog owned by Jason Landry, named Dingo.

A huge round of applause was given to Maria Cox and her dog, Ranger, who had been horribly abused by his previous owner and then adopted by Cox when he was brought into "Low-N-Care," her place of employment. Ranger won second place in the "Most Obedient" category and first place was accepted by Teresa Clott and her dog, Bogle.

The funny "I Won't Do Anything" category's First Place Award was unanimously presented to Patty Powhida and her dog, Bear. It was Patty's wonderful spirit of good cheer and acceptance that won the heart of the audience each time she asked her dog to perform and Bear just kind of stood there.

husband, Richard, also an aficionado of German cuisine, search out German restaurants even if they are visiting Paris or Buenos Aires.

Incidentally, food for the event will be prepared by Vivian and her committee. The menu includes: Cucumber Salad, Knockwurst, Bratwurst, German Potato Salad, Sweet and Sour Cabbage, Green Beans and Spaetle, Swirl Bread and Butter, Apple Strudel and iced tea and coffee.

Adding to the festivity of the evening will be servers all decked out in colorful, authentic German costumes currently being made by several club members. Festive music will be provided and expect a lot of friendly folks.

Tickets, at $10 each, are available from any woman's club member and a limited number will be offered at the door. For information or tickets, call Vivian, 324-4899.

15 return from trip to Ireland

A group of Mayfair Country

Club friends has returned from a fantastic trip to Ireland where the name of the game was golf, golf and more golf. They flew to Shannon and were transported to their home for the duration at a cliff house overlooking the Atlantic at Bally Bunion.

Jean Clontz said the view from their lodging place was "spectacular and unbelievable. It was so clear you could see 20 miles. There is no pollution there and very little crime."

Alice Daniels commented, "It's a beautiful country. Only top officials carry guns...so clean...the people are lovely...the woolens are gorgeous...the scenery is spectacular."

The trip was organized, coordinated and conducted by Mike Leary, and was geared toward golfers. Jean said they played five courses including the second most famous golf course in the world at Bally Bunion.

In addition to golf, the group shopped, visited the sites, but mostly, enjoyed the serenity and scenery of the lovely country as well as the warm hospitality of the cordial and friendly residents.

Jean said she arrived back home with a bad cold and chuckled she may have caught it kissing the Blarney Stone. She also added a sad note about Dr. Clyde Meade becoming ill on the trip and is still recovering.

Others on the trip were: Dr. Frank Clontz, Jack Daniels, Mary Meade, Dr. Roger and Gail Stewart, Joyce and Rich Cleary, Joe Shirts, Stan Wilson and Dr. Bernard and Namol Jack of Dallas.

Having a ball at the new ball

The opening of the Seminole Towne Center mall has generated a lot of enthusiasm in the community. Sanfordites are excited over the ultra-modern facility that invitingly beckons, "Shop 'til you drop."

On opening night at the big gala, Martha Yancey, a former Sanford Chamber Goodwill ambassador, and Rod Layer escorted Miss Sanford Meredith Miller who represented Sanford. Martha said Meredith is so vivacious and lovely that she made a big hit during the evening and represented Sanford well. She posed for pictures with several merrymakers.

She added about the mall, "I love it. I think it's great. The grand opening was a class act. We haven't had anything like that in Sanford."

Martha mentioned that the entertainment and fireworks were outstanding. She said, "Bettye (Mayor Bettye Smith) made a nice talk." Martha added that she saw several Sanfordites enjoying the gala including Janice Springfield, Ruth Lee, Jones and Paul Porter, Sheriff Don Zainger and his wife, Mary, and Sanford Police Chief Ralph Russell and his wife, Sandy.

Among others representing the city of Sanford and their wives were: Bill Simmons, city manager; Jay Marder, director of Planning and Development; Jerry Herman, director of Public Works; and A.A. McClanahan, of the Planning and Zoning Board. Also attending was Lisa Jones, chairman of the Golden Age Games.

At the Church of the Nazarene's recent Pioneer Days, held at the church, Pat Nicol and Phyllis Morse (from left) serve Buffalo Stew to Pastor Al Green and his wife, Dot.

Second place was presented to Jason Ramsey and his dog, Elmo, and third place to Christopher Baber and his dog, Fubar.

Best of Show was awarded a huge trophy, accepted by Lin Morello for her 11-year-old Tai Jen. Tai Jen also won Best Costume as a "Biker Dog," complete with black leather jacket, hat and boots, dangling a heart-shaped "Mom" tattoo, riding a silver motorcycle with license tag, "Bad Dog." It was creative and innovative the way the motorcycle was crafted with accessories to fit the dog's size perfectly and he sat unassisted on the motorcycle.

The success of a function is the positive reaction of the participants. Leaving the show, one could hear the laughter of those recalling funny events; comments such as, "Isn't it remarkable that all those dogs could get along with each other," and still others making a point of thanking Lomax for her dedication to such an imaginative and comfortable "Fun" dog show.

Church sponsors Pioneer Days

The Church of the Nazarene members will do just about anything to have some good clean fun. Last weekend the members joined together on a Sunday to commemorate the "Pioneer Days" with a new fashioned hayride pulled by a tractor for the children and a buffalo stew that tasted amazingly like beef stew; it was delicious as was the homemade banana nut cake and the apple cinnamon cake, both loaded with calories and made by peeling the bananas and cutting the apples, no store boxes in this church meal. The meal was served on tin pie plates and the drinks were served in plastic cups inside the tin cans to replicate the days on the pioneer trails. The pastor, Al Green and his wife, Dot, were on hand to share in the festivities with Pastor Al recounting the history of the "old days" while Dot told tales of their first meeting and courtship, including Al's proposal of marriage to Dot from the pulpit.

The church has recently started a pre-school and day care center, complete with an accredited curriculum, the A BEKKA, which is more traditional in its emphasis on the family. For further information on the church or the pre-school or day care center, please call 831-8558.

Scouts plant trees at school pond

Three Lake Mary Girl Scout

Troops, part of Stardust Service Unit, spent last Saturday morning planting trees and understorey at the pond in front of Lake Mary Elementary School. The troops — Troop 1431 from Heathrow Elementary, Troop 1050 from Lake Mary, and Troop 148 from Greenwood Lakes, Sanford Middle and Lakeview, were planting as part of an ongoing project by the Stardust Service Unit of Girl Scouts to develop an environmental education center at the pond.

Only natives were planted. Some of the trees planted were Sand Pine, Longleaf Pine and Fringe. Most of the plantings were understorey — flowers, shrubs and ground cover. □ See Rowell, Page 9C

Hobbyist of the Week

Stan Dudek relaxes in his ceramics shop while maybe planning his next masterpiece.

Flair for ceramics extension of artist's painting ability

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — With 22 years of ceramics experience behind him, Stan Dudek now teaches his favorite hobby of painting as well as continues it for fun. For eight months Dudek has shared his skills with students at A Ceramic Experience on Park Avenue.

He attributed his flair in ceramics to his artistic ability. "This has just been an extension of my art and a way to continue," he said. "It's relaxing. It's also very rewarding when pieces are finished."

Although Dudek commented that in his earlier days of ceramics in the 70s the pieces were easy and basic, "I made things like mugs, flower pots and pictures back then."

Being exposed to ceramics to 1000 while still in the service, Dudek took classes then but it became his passion much later. He is now seen sitting in his chair in the ceramics shop overlooking the busy traffic on Park Avenue relaxed and creating his masterpieces.

His computer programming business of nine years, Custom Software Development, is operated at night so Dudek finds that his ceramics can be done in the afternoon when things are much quieter. He has enjoyed the independence and still of the day working on various pieces that are displayed in the store.

Dudek has made a racoon.

numerous floral pieces and a notebook that the store proudly displays. He explained the assorted paints and techniques he used for these works.

"I used air brush for the racoon," he said. "It begins with cleaning, then firing. Next the pieces are decorated and fired again. It's an all day affair. It's in the kiln from three to five hours. Then cooled. The airbrush technique is a squirt-type gun with a compressor."

Dudek expressed that his favorite painting has been an authentic folk art. "I enjoy painting these on boxes, wood surfaces or canvas," he said. "It's called Austrian folk art and florals are painted."

He further elaborated on the specifics of the art. "It originated in the 1700s. At that time only royalty got the expensive furniture. Peasants would paint these flowers on their furniture. They may symbolize a birth or a marriage to the people."

Although Dudek began his fascination with the arts as a child he did take classes while in high school. These classes along with his imagination was what gave him the talent to create some of his own unique works.

Those unique works have won Dudek numerous ribbons in various shows around the area. Talking about an honor he won, Dudek said, "I'm proud of a piece I did for a ceramic show last year." he said. "It was a complicated piece that I got a high first for my rosette. The rose was on a pillow vase."

He continued by saying, "The rose was all red but with different shades of the color. I added black to make the different shades. They are solid red but the shades are hard to do."

Dudek was busy working on another piece he plans to enter this October in a ceramic show. "There's a ceramic show in October at the Orlando Expo," he said. "It's one of the largest ceramic shows in the country. People all over the United States enter."

He carefully painted black acrylic paint on a platter. "I will paint some floral work on it. Then I'll paint scrolling on the sides. I want to make it authentic for the period."

Several cans painted by Dudek were also displayed in the store. "I paint on Pringles potato chip cans," he said. "I get to eat the pringles first. I paint a black acrylic on the can then I add the Austrian floral design."

A black notebook with the traditional floral was also sitting on a shelf. "All I did with the notebook was to buy a black notebook and paint the flowers on it."

Dudek added that the cost of beginning ceramics and making a piece can range from as low as $20 and under. He suggested beginners start with classes.

Ceramics and work doesn't take up all his time. Dudek has been married to his wife, Marion, for 24 years. They have lived in Sanford all their married life.

Among the flowers planted were wild petunias, butterfly weed, Florida sage and passion flower. Coral bean, honeysuckle, jessamine and streptocarpus were also planted. The purpose of most of these flowers and shrubs is to attract birds and beneficial insects such as ladybugs and butterflies. The passion flower is, in fact, the only plant that the Golden Fritillary butterfly, in its caterpillar stage, will eat.

The next stage of the planting is tentatively scheduled for Arbor Day, the third Monday in January. The service unit is currently looking for help writing the educational curricula for the project. If you would like to help with this, please call Debbie Swearingen, the service unit events co-director at 323-3949.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Cool
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Oct. 1, 1995

Use your best judgment in partnership arrangements in the year ahead. A teammate of equal talent could spell success. A poor choice, however, might result in complications.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you fail to think for yourself today, someone with whom you're involved may start making decisions for you that might not be to your liking or advantage. Be careful. Libra, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758 Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10150. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You won't be able to relax and enjoy yourself today if you sweep an important matter under the rug. Do your duty before partaking in fun and games.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Potential love interests might not think you're as alluring today as you think you are. Your ego could get punctured if you come on too strong.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Stay within your own sphere of influence today. You won't be very effective if you try to project your authority in someone else's ballgame.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Just because an arrogant associate makes a lot of noise today, it doesn't necessarily mean that this individual is right. A roaring mouse is still a mouse.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be extremely conscientious in money matters today if you're handling funds for someone else. You might have to account later for every penny spent.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Avoid rehashing a volatile issue today that you know from experience will get a rise out of your mate. He or she might react even more strongly than usual.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you put yourself in a position of having to work under pressure today, you might not be proud of

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
Anthony Storr, the British psychiatrist, claimed, "Marriages do not infrequently break up because the more compliant partner eventually feels compelled to reassert his or her lost, separate identity."

Bridge partnerships often have a dominant half, the better player who tries to guide his partner through the pitfalls of each deal. However, every player is happy for partner to take control when he can see the winning defense.

Today's deal decided the Life Master Pairs at the Summer Nationals. Sitting East and West were Joe Kivel, of Corona Del Mar, Calif., and Allan Siebert, of Little Rock, Ark. Kivel made sure his partner didn't do the wrong thing.

Against four spades, Siebert led the diamond king. With which diamond should Kivel signal?

Kivel wanted to guarantee a trick for his spade king. But if he encouraged with the diamond nine, might not his partner think this was a suit-preference signal for hearts?

To stop an accident, Kivel didn't signal with any diamond. He overtook with the ace and returned a diamond, forcing the ruff in the dummy. Now East had to win a trick with his spade king and the contract came home with only one overtrick, not two.

Maybe you are thinking "only one overtrick; so what?" Well, in pair events, overtricks can be worth many matchpoints. If South had harvested 12 tricks, Bill Root, of Boca Raton, Fla., and Richard Pavlicek, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., would have won the title. They finished only two points behind Kivel and Siebert.

Phillip Alder's book, "Get Smarter at Bridge," is available.

But Mommy, didn't you say that you can sell anything in the classifieds?

Yes dear, but not your little brother.

Yes, the Classifieds are a great place to buy or sell just about anything under the sun. And yes, you can make money clearing out those no longer used items from your attic, basement or garage and sell them for cash in the Classifieds. But please note: you cannot sell little brothers through the Classifieds. (For that you'd probably have to take out a full page ad).

Simply call 322-2611
 to place your Classified ad.

The way we were: Celery Feds reunite

What in the world is a Celery Fed?!

For 16 years, the Seminole High Celery Feds have enjoyed an annual weekend beach reunion at Daytona Beach and this year it took place Sept. 15-17 at Holiday Inn Shores, formerly Days Inn South.

Begun in 1980 by the SHS Class of 1950, the reunion originally included only classes 1947-53. A few years later, it was expanded to include all SHS alumni who consider themselves Celery Feds.

I'm sure that many of you newcomers to Sanford are wondering what in the world is a Celery Fed! Well, up until the early 1950s, there was more celery grown in Sanford than in any other area of the world so the city was known as the Celery Capital of the World or Celery City. Therefore, Seminole High School took this unique designation and nicknamed themselves the Celery Feds. Other schools in the area were the Sandcrabs, Barracudas, Tigers, Yellow Jackets, Bulldogs, and Panthers and these names are repeated in other schools all over the country, but we stood out as the Celery Feds.

Celery ceased to be king here, so in the late 1950s, Seminole High's nickname was changed to the Seminoles.

For the past several years, the organizing chores of the Celery Fed Reunion have fallen on the shoulders of two very capable members of the Class of 1950, Tommye Methvyn Johnson and Joan Dampier Anderson. And every year at least 100 people show up for a marvelous weekend, or longer, together.

This year, Tommye, Joan, and Joan's sister, Gloria Dampier Skinner (Class of 1947) arrived on Monday afternoon, Sept. 11, and set up housekeeping in their usual oceanfront efficiency. Former teacher Roger Harris and his wife, Louise arrived on Tuesday, while I, Class of 1954, came late Wednesday afternoon for my 10th consecutive reunion. Beverly Benton Douthitt (1953), husband Joe, and some grandchildren were also there early.

We all spent most of Thursday on the pool deck, sunning, swimming and visiting. Around noon, other Celery Feds began arriving and some of these, with their spouses, were: Class of 1947 - Jim Anderson, Walter Cook, Clarence Grantham, Nolley Trapp, Jean Boetler Brooklyn, Sonny Horton, Paul Pezold; 1948 - Arthurene Wilson Cook, John (Bunny) Beard, Estelle Gracey Coleman; 1949 - Edgar Bruce, Floyd Sparkman; 1950 - Horace Green, Jesse (Peanut) Galloway; 1951 - Frances Edwards Galloway; 1953 - Mary Anne Buker Bruce; 1954 - Sandra Dunn Parker.

After getting ideas of places to eat from various sources, couples and groups made their selections and enjoyed seafood, Japanese, cafeterias, or Italian. Upon their return, everyone gathered on the pool deck for more visiting and tall tales.

Early Friday morning, the sun worshippers staked out their lounge chairs by the pool in the group's favorite area. And by late morning there was a large contingent there, reminiscing and catching up while soaking up the sun and an occasional dip in the pool. Time was taken for a quick sandwich at the poolside restaurant or a snack in the room and then they were back for a few more hours in the sun.

Other activities during the day and weekend included card games, shopping, napping, walking on the beach. Early Saturday afternoon, the FSU fans gathered to watch their team demolish North Carolina State while the University of Florida fans disappeared later in the day to cheer on their team against University of Tennessee. All of course, were pleased with the outcomes.

The largest contingent of Celery Feds and their spouses arrived on Friday afternoon and these included: Class of 1942 - Ralph Wolfer; 1943 - Jean Harper Jacoby, W.L. Hiers, Sam Thurmond; 1945 - Dorothy Morrison, Lou Temple, Harold Chapman; 1946 - Albert Sumier, Billy Kinard; 1947 - Carl Williams, George Chapman, John Skinner, Ed Ward; 1948 - Helen Slaughter Gwinn, Bill Ingraham, Barbara Saunders Chapman, Dickie and Viola (Skinner) Frank, Alvin Penley, Henry Freeman; 1950 - Don Cain, Margaret Partin Ingraham, Joe Wells; 1951 Garnett White, Aubrey Moran, Bobbie Hicks Snyder, Shirley Hamilton Latham; 1953 - Margie Morrison Hudgins, JoAnne Moore Sanders, Hank McLaulin, Edwin Tison; 1954 - Paulette Cason White, Edward McCall; 1955 - Rebecca Cain Pelham, Joe Hunt; 1956 - Margaret Moore Temple, Raymond Hardy; 1957 - Iris Causey Hunt, Raymond Weinmann; 1958 - Barbara Bass Penley, Amoret Speir LaRosa.

Finally after greeting and visiting with all the newcomers, restaurants were chosen and groups waiting with the rest of tourists at the popular eating places. Upon their return, everyone again gathered by the pool until the wee hours.

All of the above events were repeated on Saturday with lots more there to participate. And even more people trickled in that afternoon to enjoy the camaraderie. Some of these coming on Saturday were Class of 1942 - Harriett Boyd; 1945 - Bob Gut; 1947 - Bill Ludwig; 1948 - Glenn McCall, Mona Mills Walker, Henry Freeman, Jane Chapman Gut; 1949 - Betty Joan Anderson, Bunny Beard, Tommye Johnson, Sandra Parker and Estelle Coleman.

GRACE M. STINE-CIPHER

Duncan Kime, Dorothy Von Herbulis Anthony; 1950 - Doris Anderson Gormly, Pat Haudin Brooks, 1951 - Rudolph Smith; 1954 - Louise Benton Elliott, and teacher and coach, Fred Ganas.

I've probably left out several who were there as some weren't on the two lists I referred to though I did try to write down others I saw. Also, a few of the class years may be incorrect.

Anyway, there were approximately 130 in attendance at the barbecue dinner on the sun deck on Saturday night which was catered by Gary Ganas. Following the meal, a group of former glee club members serenaded the rest of us with old familiar tunes. This party didn't break up until late as old friends were reluctant to say goodbye.

At breakfast the next morning, final conversations were held and farewells were said until next year.

The majority of those attending this year have retired as many of us are now of that age. Harriett Boyd, former railroad employee, stated that they could get up a railroad crew as there were six railroads there, only one of whom was still working. In the group there were doctors, pharmacists, a professional boxer, office personnel, business people, teachers, social workers, real estate brokers, technicians of all kinds, postal employees, homemakers, etc.

Conversations centered around reminiscences of our shared youth, information about absent classmates, concern over old friends who had serious illness, grandchildren, the excellent improvements already made to "our" beach hotel with more to come, changes in the Central Florida area, and the like.

Paulette, Sandra and I (and even Edward) reminisced about our Polly Pigtail Club. Ed Tison and others who had had paper routes told us who lived where in the 1940s and 1950s; we remembered that we used to walk everywhere, football games and glee club trips were recalled, school day "crushes" were revealed, former "steadies" met again, and nostalgia for the "good old days" reigned.

Floyd Sparkman made us laugh as he told of a Saturday night when several fellows left the Celery Crate (at old City Hall) and went to the zoo. Evidently this was a regular occurrence and someone was elected each week to jump the moat onto Monkey Island. This particular night was Floyd's turn, and while there he was dared to throw the monkeys into the moat which of course he did. Well, the police heard the commotion from their nearby station and came over in full force. All the others fled the scene but the only place for Floyd to hide was in the monkey hut. He was relieved when the police found him as anything was better than being bitten by the monkeys, even spending the night in jail.

Gloria Skinner remembered that she and several other girls were with Pat Anderson the day before she was diagnosed with polio and were quarantined for six weeks. This was in 1945 before the polio vaccine. Pat later died as I mentioned in a previous article.

Clarence Grantham recalled that one of the pranks that he and others pulled was holding an imaginary rope across Park Avenue (then 17-92) and watching as the cars screamed to a halt.

We were reminded that a romance was rekindled at one beach reunion. Margaret Partin and Bill Ingraham had last dated at an SHS May Day Ball and both had married other people. Maggie said that Mona Walker had practically dragged her to the 1987 Celery Fed Reunion, telling her that it would lift her spirits. Bill stated that he had also come reluctantly. While there, they each discovered that the other was spouseless and after a few comical incidents at the reunion, they began dating. Not long afterwards they were married and haven't missed a reunion since.

This is just a sampling of the fun to be had at this yearly reunion. Of course "you had to be there" to realize the full impact of this special event. Perhaps this brief synopsis will entice you other Celery Feds to join us next year for the time of your lives! Just contact Tommye (Mrs. Harold) Johnson in June of 1996 for complete information. We'd all love to see you there!
