Filming turns dry cleaners' biz into TV stage

By VICKI DeGORMEN
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — A little bit of New York came to Sanford Thursday.

Carol and Dan Porter's Sanford Dry Cleaning was the stage for a commercial for Promo-Flora that will air on national television next October through December.

Jones Filming Company arrived early in the morning and was there until late in the afternoon, Carol Porter said. While business ground to a halt for a day, she said, it was nonetheless "a lot of fun."

Porter said she only expected the crew to use a seldom-used back room, but the crew arrived to take over the whole shop.

A harried actress mused over her lines about what she wanted to give to the hostess of a party she was going to attend. A massive bee buzzed into the shop to offer his advice: flowers. Everyone, he advised, loves flowers.

"It was different," Porter said. She said she would do it all over again if she had the chance, but she learned a lot about how film companies work and she would "negotiate things a little differently."

She said she was not aware of how compactly a business is taken over while the filming is taking place.

"They had lunch catered in and everything," she said.

Porter said the film crew "fell in love with Sanford" and spoke about returning here for other projects.

"They loved all the antique shops and the old homes and the marina," she said. "They really loved it here."

She said the producer told her he had heard there was a great deal of crime in Sanford.

"I told him it was changing here," she said. "I said it wasn't all that bad."

Porter and her husband own the corner of the block where the dry cleaner is located. They have plans to stay in the downtown area and continue to be a part of the business community.

She said the film industry has a

Owner battles to save houses for movie

SANFORD — Margaret Jones is continuing to battle the city of Sanford in an effort to keep 13 houses she owns on Lincoln Court from being demolished.

"I just want to have the chance to keep them up so Warner Brothers can have them for the movie," Jones said.

The Sanford homeowner has been approached by Warner Brothers movie studios about purchasing the houses for use in their movie Rosewood. The homes, in poor repair and, in some cases, in danger of falling down, are in the process of being condemned by the city.

If they are not repaired within 30 days, Jones said she has been told by the city, they will be demolished.

But, she contends, many of the problems with the houses are caused by problems with city sewers that should have been disconnected and removed years ago.

Code violations force families out

SANFORD — Eight families have been told to move by the owner of a rooming house at 318 Palmetto Avenue in Sanford. Fire officials say it is regrettable the move has to be made at this time of year, but the structure is simply unsafe.

Arrangements have been made to move all of the families to the Rescue Outreach Mission in Sanford today, until they are able to obtain more permanent lodgings.

Apartment raided for drugs

From staff reports

LAKE MARY — Agents of the City/County Investigative Bureau (CCIB) arrested 13 persons Wednesday night after serving a search warrant at an apartment in Sun Lake Apartments off Lake Emma Road in Lake Mary.

Sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonnough said the warrant was served at approximately 9:30 p.m., at apartment 108 on Sun Lake Circle. The apartment is said to be rented by Adam McDonnough, 19, and his girlfriend, Joanna King, 19.

Besides the two persons, deputies said there were 11 others in the apartment, ages 16 to 20, who were reportedly smoking marijuana. All 13 were arrested and charged with one count each of possession of marijuana under 20 grams, and possession of drug paraphernalia. Both charges are first degree misdemeanors.

Ed McDonnough said Adam McDonnough (no relation) and King apparently would use the apartment for marijuana smoking parties. He said agents conducted the raid after hearing complaints from a large number of people regarding

Blinking the government

MIAMI — Three former employees of a defense contractor billed the government of $30 million by falsifying data about missile parts, including those used in the Persian Gulf War, federal officials said.

"It's not the $30 million. It's that you put someone's life at risk," Wilfredo Fernandez, a spokesman at the U.S. Attorney's Office in Miami, said Thursday.

The three managers named in a 15-count indictment worked in the West Palm Beach factories of Philips Electronics North America Corp., a division of the Dutch giant electronics concern, Philips NV. Philips sold the company in 1983.

Eighty missiles sent to the gulf during the war were returned because they were defective, officials said. There were no documented cases, however, that a faulty Philips part caused a missile failure.

The company cooperated in the investigation. In 1992, it made a voluntary disclosure of the problems at the West Palm Beach facility and settled with the government.

However, Philips faces a minimum of $60 million in fines and penalties stemming from a Department of Justice civil investigation, Fernandez said.

Robbery suspect killed

PENSACOLA, Fla. — Deputies posing as pizza delivery men fatally shot a 15-year-old robbery suspect when he pointed a shotgun at one of the undercover officers, Escambia County Sheriff Jim Lowman said.

Lowman said the sawed-off shotgun apparently was empty. But the deputies didn't know that as they tried to deliver a cheese and pepperoni pizza shortly before midnight Wednesday on a dark and narrow dirt road north of Pensacola.

One deputy had the pizza in one hand and his service revolver in the other when Anthony D. Gee, without saying a word, pointed the shotgun at him from a distance of three to seven feet, Lowman said Thursday.

"The officer had no time to give a command, to do anything," Lowman said. "When the shotgun came in the face all other alternatives left."

Lowman said Gee was a suspect in the October robberies of two pizza delivery people.

Courthouse evacuated

TAMPA — Hundreds of people were evacuated from a county courthouse after police received a bomb threat. No explosives were found, police said.

Officials decided to evacuate the Hillsborough County Courthouse annex Thursday morning after police received a series of calls from someone claiming they had planted plastic explosives there.

A bomb-sniffing dog targeted a package on a courtroom desk, prompting police to evacuate the block surrounding the building. However, the box was full of court records, police said.

The building was opened two hours later.

Book cleared as suitable for students

DAYTONA BEACH — A review committee acting on a protest has determined Maya Angelou's autobiography is suitable reading material for high school students in Volusia County.

The critically acclaimed work, "I Know Why the Caged Bird Sings" was challenged last month by two parents of students at Deltona High School, where it had been assigned as an 11th-grade honors English class.

Glenn Holland, the parent who filed the initial complaint, said the book was anti-religious and promoted immoral values. He also objected to what he considered a graphic rape scene.

A review committee composed of principals, teachers, parents and residents voted 22-2, with one abstention, to continue the current policy, which allows the book. But the group decided to take steps to inform parents about potentially controversial reading assignments.

Japanese students pick up debris

PENSACOLA BEACH, Fla. — Helping pick up trash that still litters Florida Panhandle beaches after Hurricane Opal brought memories of another disaster closer to home for Asuka Kashiwagi.

"I am surprised by how much damage is here," said Kashiwagi, 19, a dietetics student from Tokyo. "The destruction reminds me of the earthquake in Kobe."

She is among about 60 Japanese students spending a week in the Pensacola area on an exchange trip who volunteered to pick up debris Wednesday in this barrier island community.

They also donated sea oats to the Gulf Islands National Seashore to help restore dunes in an adjacent park area that were flattened when the storm spun out of the Gulf of Mexico on Oct. 4 and struck Santa Rosa Island.

None of the students have family or friends in Kobe, but many volunteered to help victims there after the Jan. 17 earthquake.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Report: Change approach to elderly care

By The Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Florida will sink beneath the rising cost of caring for its elderly population if it doesn't make drastic changes in its long-term care system, according to a state commission's report.

Not only is Florida gaining retirees, but they are living longer — often with chronic medical problems.

The state's cost of caring for them could skyrocket from $1.7 billion in 1995 to as much as $12.6 billion in 2010 — a 641 percent increase, said the Commission on Long Term Care in Florida.

"If we don't do something we are facing a definite crisis," E. Bentley Lipscomb, head of the state's Department of Elder Affairs and a commission member, told The Orlando Sentinel for today's edition. "The numbers are staggering and they are just going up."

The commission, created a year ago by the Florida Legislature, studied the long-term care needs of the elderly, the disabled, AIDS patients and the mentally ill. Its final report now goes to lawmakers.

There are 2.7 million people in Florida aged 65 or older, a number expected to grow by 900,000 in the next 15 years. Unless things change, Florida faces a serious funding gap in providing services to those with long-term disabilities. The report says that by the year 2000, there may be only half the money necessary to serve the state's disabled, low-income elderly residents.

"We know we are not covering all the bases in terms of service now. All these numbers tell us it's going to get dramatically worse," said Fran Carlin-Rodgers, commission member and an administrator with the Orlando Regional Health Care System.

The report calls for a major overhaul of the state's long-term care system and offers several alternatives that could shrink the cost of long-term care for the elderly to $4 billion in 2015.

Florida could dramatically reduce its long-term care costs by shifting from a system that promotes institutional care — primarily nursing homes — toward programs caring for seniors in their homes and neighborhoods.

Among the recommendations is a moratorium on nursing-home construction. Intended to shift some of the $1.3-billion a-year in Medicaid money spent on nursing-home care to less expensive alternatives, said Carlin-Rodgers.

Lipscomb said he does not expect any moratorium on new nursing homes until sufficient alternative, community-based programs are in place.

"I don't think we shut the spigot off until we make sure we have enough water in the bucket," he said.

The report also advocates managed care to replace the fragmented, often confusing and sometimes competitive system that exists today. The managed care system would offer a continuum of services with nursing homes being the final alternative instead of the first choice, Carlin-Rodgers said.

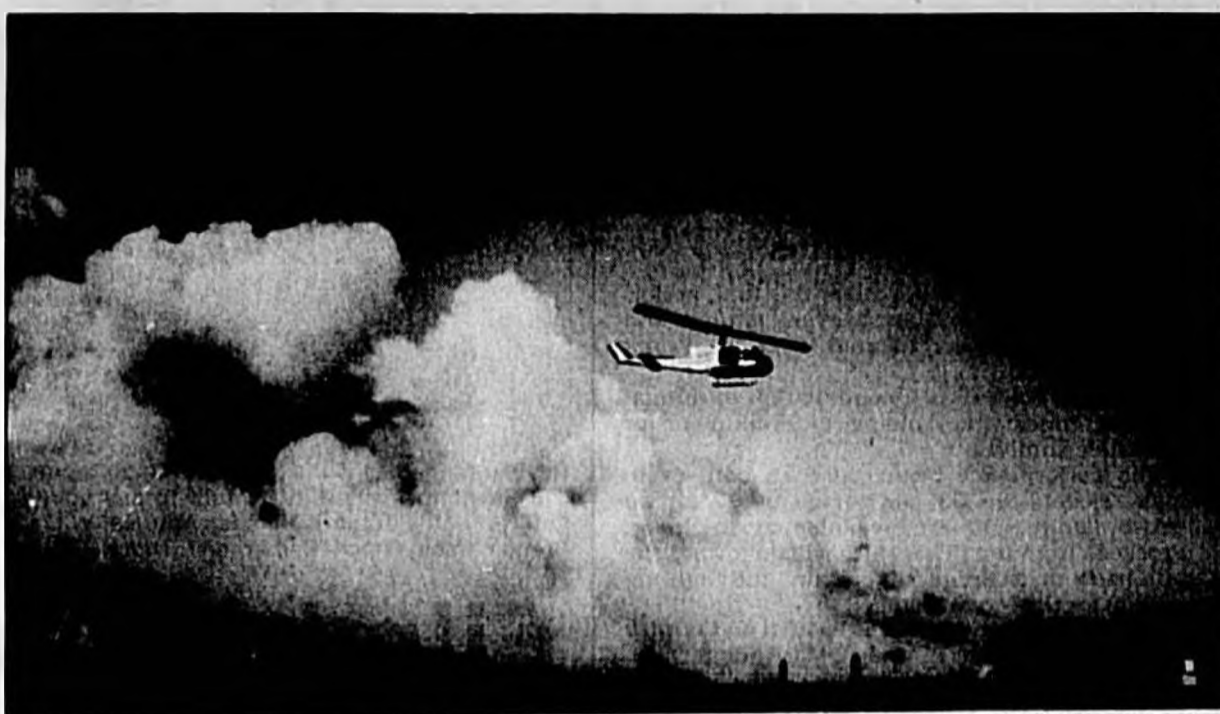

Controlled burn conducted

By MIKE MARTIN
Special to the Herald

OVIDO — A 1,500-acre controlled burn was conducted Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 11 and 12, in the Little-Big Econ State Forest. Division of Forestry crews oversaw the fire operation with the assistance from the Florida Game and Freshwater Fish Commission and the Seminole County Public Safety Department.

A helicopter aided in the effort by dropping specially-designed ping-pong balls, which ignite, and cause a spot fire. These balls are dropped in a grid pattern, which allows precise spreading of controlled flames.

Forest area supervisor advises these fires are needed to remove hazardous and flammable fuels.

A Division of Forestry helicopter was used to drop the materials that started the fires.

At the same time, the controlled burns reduce the risk of loss to recreation areas when a wildfire does occur. These fires also benefit many of Florida's native fire-dependent species.

Editor's note: Mike Martin is the Senior Reporter assigned to the Little-Big Econ State Forest. The forest is located in the southeast corner of the county near Ovid.

Thousands of shoe boxes headed to Bosnia

By PAUL HOWELL
Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTE — Darcy Little has never met President Clinton but now she knows they have a lot in common.

When 11-year-old Darcy packed a shoe box intended for a young girl in Bosnia as part of the "Operation Christmas Child" airlift, one of the items she included was a small teddy bear.

Somewhere among the tens of thousands of gift-filled parcels headed to the Balkans Thursday from Charlotte was an ordinary green and red shoe box that was filled personally by the president himself.

Inside was a music box, blue knit gloves and candy that is passed out in souvenir boxes on Air Force One.

And one cuddly teddy bear. "It makes me feel good to help other children in a war-torn country," said Darcy, a fifth grader at St. Patrick's Catholic School in Charlotte. She attended a ceremony to mark the third annual airlift of shoe boxes filled with Christmas gifts.

Volunteers from the Samaritan's Purse Christian relief agency ship the shoe boxes to children who otherwise would have nothing on Christmas. The shoe boxes come from all over the country, from the White House to the hills of Appalachia.

This year, the group will ship 800,000 of the tiny parcels to the Balkans and other regions of the world that have been torn apart by war, Samaritan's Purse president Franklin Graham said Thursday. That's eight times as many as were shipped last year, he told several hundred supporters outside a hangar at Charlotte's airport.

Planes left similar collection points in Long Beach, Calif., on Wednesday and Orlando, Fla., on Thursday. Cargo planes will gather Saturday in London, where the boxes will be separated and shipped to their destinations.

As Graham spoke, volunteers were preparing to load thousands of crates filled with the shoe boxes onto a giant Russian Antonov 124 cargo plane.

One of the boxes was held closely by Mary Damon, 42, of Ilica Fork, W.Va. She met with the president Tuesday after he read about her efforts to collect thousands of the shoe boxes in one of the country's poorest states.

"Here's the president's shoe box if you want to see it," she shouted into the microphone as supporters leaned in to catch a glimpse of its treasure. "They tell me the president filled it himself. He didn't get an aide to do it for him."

A few minutes later, she opened the container to reveal its contents, which also included a ring with the inscription "Save the Children," a pin, baby shampoo and toothpaste.

There also was a $2 bill and three singles to cover the $5 cost of shipping the shoe box.

"This shows this project truly has no barriers," said Mrs. Damon, who was accompanied by her daughter, Ashley, 11. "Anyone can do it, whether you're poor or the president."

The project — which began when a friend of Graham from England asked him for help — has grown beyond his wildest expectations. Graham is the son of evangelist Billy Graham.

In 1993, the Boone, N.C.-based Samaritan's Purse collected 25,000 shoe boxes for Bosnian children. Last year, they shipped about 110,000 gift-filled parcels to Bosnia and Rwanda.

This year, he said, people in North Carolina and South Carolina sent in more than 150,000 boxes. When the airlift is done shortly before Christmas Day, some 800,000 shoe boxes will have been shipped from the United States and the United Kingdom to the Balkans and other countries.

"What makes this project different from other projects is we have children giving to children," Franklin Graham said. "Each box is packed by a child or a family. And there's a special child out there who needs a little box of love."

Spending spree

Seminole County sheriff's deputies arrested two persons Wednesday in connection with a reported burglary. Arrested were William Shea Scott, 23, who police say refused to give a local address, and Jennifer Schmidt, 18, of 401 W. Seminole Boulevard. According to the arrest report, the two are suspected of taking a cellular phone and a purse containing credit cards last Sunday from a van. They then were said to have gone to a store in Altamonte Springs where they charged $1,100 on the credit cards, and another store in Casselberry where an additional $267 in merchandise was obtained.

The two were located by deputies Wednesday sitting in a vehicle at Third Street and Cypress avenues. Deputies said they located the credit card stubs in the vehicle. Scott was charged with burglary and petit theft, and Schmidt was charged with burglary.

Double charged

Frederick Jermaine Grubbs, 19, of 83 Lake Monroe Terrace, was arrested by deputies Wednesday in connection with the reported burglary on Dec. 8 of a Mazda. He was charged with burglary to a vehicle. After being taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility, deputies said they found reason to believe he was also responsible for the burglary of another vehicle on the same day, five blocks from the first incident. He was given an additional charge of burglary to a conveyance.

Car burglaries

Sanford police are investigating a reported attempt late Tuesday and early Wednesday of three vehicles parked near the same location in the 700 block of E. First Street in downtown Sanford. The vehicles were identified as a 1989 Plymouth, 1988 Oldsmobile and 1991 Ford. In all three cases windows were smashed in order to gain entry. Police believe there was evidence that attempts were made to start each of the vehicles, but was unsuccessful. Nothing was immediately determined to have been taken from any of the vehicles.

Drug arrest

Curtis Lee Williams, 36, 70 Castle Brewer Court, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police Wednesday as the result of an undercover operation at 12th Street and Jasmine Avenue by members of the police Special Investigative Unit. James Simmons, 26, 2610 Narcissus Avenue, Sanford, was located by deputies on Sanford Avenue Wednesday. He was wanted for failing to appear for bail.
John Henry Smith, 37, 237 Holly Avenue, was located by deputies at the Probation and Parole office at 2698 Orlando Drive Wednesday. He was wanted for failing to appear on a charge of possession of cocaine.
Donald Ray Wilson, 31, 915 Maple Avenue, Sanford, was located by Sanford police at his residence Wednesday. He was wanted for violation of probation on a conviction of dealing in stolen property. A second warrant report was issued showing that, while at the jail, he was given another warrant for the same charge.

Sanford police reports

A 39-year-old man reported he was confronted by three men at approximately 12:15 a.m. Tuesday morning, at Persimmon Avenue and SR-46. He said one of the men, armed with a handgun, stole his wallet with $5 in cash, and a $150 pocket pager.

What rising speed limits bring

By GARRY MITCHELL
Associated Press Writer

MOBILE, Ala. — Engineers responsible for highways in the Southeast say increases in the speed limit only bring more wear and tear where the rubber meets the road.

While motorists expect to get somewhere faster, engineers anticipate speed-related accidents and the need for more guard rails and road redesigns.

The 55-mph national speed limit was imposed in 1974 as an energy-saving measure. It was abolished last month.

Some legislators in the Southeast are already working on raising their speed limits, and highway officials meeting in Mobile on Wednesday said they expect the increases to level off at a uniform 70 mph throughout the region.

"We would not like to have Florida at 90 mph, and Georgia at 85 mph," said Marion G. Waters III, Georgia's traffic operations engineer.

Waters was among about two dozen members of the 12-state

Southeastern Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials who met for about two hours over lunch at a hotel in Mobile.

Waters said Georgia transportation officials favor a limit not to exceed 70 mph, citing the potential for high-speed accidents and the expense of altering roadways not designed for the higher speeds.

Frank Carille, assistant transportation secretary for Florida, said his department favors a maximum 70 mph limit. But he said they have asked each highway district for recommendations on areas where a higher speed could be permitted.

Tennessee highway engineer Clellon Lovell of Nashville said his state could keep the 65 mph limit on interstates because of concerns that speeders would take advantage of a 75 mph limit.

"People already drive 70 to 75 mph," Lovell said. "If you raise it to 75 mph, it's going up to 80 mph when people drive it."

But in Alabama, state Sen.

Lowell Barron, D-Pyffe, has a bill raising the limit to 75 mph on rural interstates, 70 on four-lane divided highways, and 65 mph on other rural state highways. Urban highways would remain at 55 mph.

Changes in the speed limit are happening faster than the conversion to metric. Congress ordered the switch by 1998, then delayed the conversion to the year 2000.

The highway officials meeting in Mobile said they already had millions of dollars committed to the conversion, such as changing miles to kilometers, and voiced concerns about the delay to 2000.

"We think we probably ought to take the leadership role in this matter. It's very technical and will have a tremendous effect," said Mississippi Department of Transportation executive director Robert Robinson of Jackson.

Robinson, who is president of SASHTO, said Congress could decide in the year 2000 to put it off again.

The highway officials said the public isn't aware of the background work required with road specifications and contractors in making the conversion.

"This conversion is not something you can turn on and off like water," said Alabama chief engineer Ray Bass of Montgomery. "We're already geared to metric for maintenance operations."

Man questioned in Amtrak derailment has an alibi

By MICHELLE BOONSTEIN
Associated Press Writer

PHOENIX — Video store receipts and auto club records show that a contractor who has come under suspicion in the deadly Amtrak sabotage case was in California hours before the derailment, his attorney says.

"The bottom line is he is not the person," Allan Sarkin said by telephone from the home of his client, Frank E. Olin, in Val Verde, Calif. "He was here. We can prove that. Everyone remembers him."

FBI agents raided Olin's home on Wednesday and carted off bags of tools, computer records and other items.

Agents were said to be looking for plans and tools used to wreck the Sunset Limited, which hurtled off a sabotaged stretch of track into a dry desert gulch Oct. 9 near Hyder, killing a crew member and injuring 78 people.

A freight train had crossed the site 18 hours earlier. Val Verde is approximately 350 miles from Hyder, and Sarkin admitted that questioning by FBI agents indicate they believe Olin could have made the trip to Arizona, sabotaged the track and returned home by the night of Oct. 8.

"Every time you say, 'We can show we were here,' they say, 'Well, what about 10 hours before that?'" he told The Arizona Republic.

Jack Callahan, an FBI spokesman in Phoenix, refused to discuss the direction of the investigation.

Olin denied Thursday having anything to do with the derailment.

"You know, I saw the pictures (of the derailment) in Life magazine and on TV. ... It was pretty scary for somebody to think they can do something like that," he said.

Sarkin said Olin was beating his alibi on receipts that show he and his girlfriend rented videos in Val Verde about 8:30 p.m. on Oct. 8. American Automobile Association records show Olin called for help later that night after locking his keys in his truck, the lawyer said.

Sarkin said FBI agents took two typewriters from Olin's home, apparently to determine if he used them to write anti-government notes signed "Sons of Gestapo" that were found at the crash scene.

Olin lived for about a year in Holbrook, and was known to some neighbors as a hot-tempered, abrasive man with a history of run-ins with railroads.

"He was an awful person. He had that attitude like you're just a peon," said Cindy VanHemert, who works for a company that sold Olin concrete for an ill-fated project that led to a dispute with a railroad.

Ms. VanHemert said the FBI, questioning people here after the derailment, told her Olin's "bragging that he could have done the derailment — had the means to do it." She also said Olin was in Holbrook, some 200 miles northeast of Hyder, the weekend before the derailment.

Two former employees, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Olin frequently talked about train derailments as a source of money for scrap metal collectors.

"He'd show us employees' pictures of train derailments," one of the men said. "He'd say that's where the money was."

Underdog Day

Today, the third Friday in December, was designated, many years ago, as "Underdog Day." It is to salute, before the end of the year, all the underdogs and unsung heroes, the number two people who are often responsible for the success of the number one people.

This brings to mind such people as Dr. Watson who helped Sherlock Holmes, and Robinson Crusoe's friend Friday. Even Bullwinkle Moose and Robin, without whom Rocky the Squirrel and Batman could probably not have survived.

By some coincidence, this afternoon, the City of Sanford is honoring a total of 68 employees who have garnered a total of 730 years of service to the city. One has been employed for 30 years, four for 25 years, and five for 20 years, which amounts to a total of 210 years for just these ten people.

Years ago, it was relatively common for people to hold down the same job from right after school until retirement. Today, WOW, how things have changed! People go skipping from one job to another, merely because they believe they could make one dollar an hour more, or get a fraction more in benefits.

Relatively few (but thankfully not all) of the people age 40 and under would probably tell you they have had as many as a dozen jobs thus far.

Long-term employees are a special breed. They have managed to retain their jobs because they are constantly productive, and most often improving their skills.

Through this long term, they manage to build a loyalty to the company for which they work. In most cases, that loyalty is realized by management and returned in what some of the shorter-term employees may consider as favored treatment.

It is a shame the word "dog" is used in the designation, but the word "underdog" doesn't refer to an animal. It is a person who doesn't necessarily receive the credit, but does most of the leg work.

In this way, we salute not only those 68 Sanford city employees who are being honored today, but the staffs of each of our cities and county, and the workers in all of our businesses and organizations, whether they are employed or volunteers.

For people who have not trod in their shoes, it may be difficult to understand what they often have to go through, especially in dealing with people who have difficulties. But they manage to get through each day without quibbling, and without griping or bad-mouthing their bosses.

Thanks folks. You have stuck with the program for a long time. You deserve our appreciation.

LETTER

Chasing bad guys

I was hoping that the Sanford Herald would have something on the chase and crash by county officers recently, so I could have the opportunity to comment on the idiocy of such actions.

History has shown on too many occasions that such folly ends in tragedy for unsuspecting civilians. It is only by the grace of God that this chase did not end in death for the driver of the other car. How would the sheriff have explained the inexcusable death of this person to their family? He couldn't because there would be no excuse. In essence Eslinger is saying to the public that we are going to get the criminal no matter how petty the crime, no matter the amount of destruction of innocent life or personal property.

Here it was the day after Thanksgiving with the roads flooded with holiday traffic, and you have county deputies acting like juveniles playing cowboys and Indians. I don't know, maybe they truly believe that the theft of a purse and a stolen car are an equal trade for a human life. One would think that with another election coming up soon that Eslinger would've used his brain (Undersheriff) Steve Harriett to avert what could've turned into not only a tragedy for someone's family by a black eye for the sheriff's department.

With area roads handling increasing loads of everyday traffic this is one issue that Steve Harriett should be looking at to change policy regarding chases. I know that the Sanford Police Department have rules for such engagements and seriously doubt that you would find them chasing petty thieves across half the county like the Sheriff's Office did. After all Eslinger hired Harriett as his thinking man, one would think that Eslinger would use Harriett to full advantage. Remember, like the commercial says, "a mind's a terrible thing to waste."

How about a shoot-out next November?

Every so often during the current budget dispute, some Democratic politician -- noting the favorable poll ratings President Clinton has received for refusing to agree to the alleged Republican demand for "cuts" in Medicare, etc. -- has suggested that perhaps Mr. Clinton ought to keep right on refusing and put the whole issue before the voters next November.

The presidential election, on this strategy, would become in effect a referendum on whether American voters would rather have a truly balanced budget (and whatever horrendous spending "cuts" the Democrats could make them think that would entail) or a continuation of current spending policies (making the financial collapse the Republicans predict in such a case).

If neither side blinked -- if the Republican Congress refused, straight through 1996, to back down on its current budget proposal, and Mr. Clinton continued to veto it -- the government would have to limp along under a series of continuing resolutions, and the stage would be set for a truly majestic shoot-out in November.

Which side would win? There are many who believe that the "Spirit of 1994" that elected the 104th Congress is alive and well outside the Beltway, and that a healthy majority of American voters is ready to rein in the federal government, end deficit spending and turn the major social programs over to the states. But there is plenty of evidence, in the form of polls, suggesting that, on the contrary, a majority of voters are alarmed at the velocity of the Republican reforms, are fearful that they go "too far," and prefer Mr. Clinton's gentler approach.

As I have pointed out before, the Republicans' main problem is that it is impossible to disprove a prediction in advance. The Democrats are saying -- I myself heard Democratic House minority whip David Bonior say, on a talk show -- that under the Republican budget literally hundreds of thousands of elderly patients will be turned out of nursing homes. That may be a bare-faced lie, but how can the Republicans effectively refute it? If the Democrats, by delaying action on a budget, can arrange to base their 1996 campaign on a whole series of such predictions, they may succeed in scaring millions of voters into their camp.

The presidential election would become a referendum on whether American voters would rather have a truly balanced budget.

On the other hand, there is something hugely attractive about offering the American people a clear-cut choice between balancing the budget or driving the old jalopy into the brick wall at full speed. This is after all, a democracy, and in a democracy the voters are supposed to get what they want.

On the whole I would be in favor of a shoot-out next November, provided I could see any hope of rescue if the Democrats won and the American people thereafter changed their minds, as they most certainly would.

Waldholtz should resign

BOSTON--The woman behind the microphone had changed her tune. This Enid Waldholtz wasn't a trumpeter in the marching band of the Gingrich parade. She was singing a country western ballad of the betrayed Everywoman.

No longer did the Utah congresswoman sound like the darling of the "No Excuses" wing of the conservative revolution. She belonged to the "He Done Me Wrong" choir.

During a hypoxic five-hour press conference this week, the Republican whose 3-month-old daughter had been the mascot of the 104th Congress alternately sounded like a savvy lawyer and like the celebrated victim of a con artist.

"I loved Joe Waldholtz and trusted him with all my heart," she said repeatedly and tearfully. "...I was as stupid, as blind, as gullible, as naive, as trusting as anyone could be with another human being."

Joe Waldholtz was not only to blame for a $1.7 million check-kiting scheme, but for stealing $4 million from her father. When the house of cards came down last month, he'd left her holding the baby and the bills.

"When you go home tonight and you're with the person you love the most in the world and they're holding you as you go to sleep and they tell you that they love you and that you're the love of their life," said this sadder-but-wiser Waldholtz, "ask yourself if they're capable of what I've just told you."

Only once was this marathon he-a-culpa interrupted. When C-SPAN lost its connection to Utah and went to call-ins, it was clear the people in political junkiesland were split down the middle on the ballad of Enid. And on her culpability.

One group, almost to a man, talked about her as a professional. How could a tough lawyer not have known what was happening with the money? The other group, almost to a woman, talked about her as a wife blinded by love.

Several in the first group compared her to male politicians caught in campaign financing scams, men who didn't plead ignorance. At least one in the second group compared her to Doris Day and Debbie Reynolds, star wives who were indeed dupes of their husbands-managers.

Well, frankly, my heartstrings are a bit hardened to the pulls of folks like Waldholtz, who rode into Congress on family values platforms that offered little but tough love. Sisterhood isn't that powerful. Not even sub-sisterhood.

Still, there's more than enough in the ballad of Enid and Joe to strike a sympathetic chord. In this intimate and rambling Q-and-A, she described her joy as a 35-year old single, Mormon lawyer who finally found a man with whom she could have it all--a partner who applauded and promoted her success. "When I got married I thought that was the one place I didn't need to fight. I relaxed every guard that I had built up in my professional life with my husband."

The woman who had lost an election in 1992, won in 1994 with a new, more feminine image. Joe had softened her, the analysts said. Now she says he had softened her for the kill.

But I am most fascinated at the way the public gauges innocence and responsibility these days. We are going through a time when more people claim to be victims of something and more people discount the reality of victimhood.

Cries of racism and sexism, complaints about being held down or messed up by bosses or parents, the economy or the culture are heard everywhere. So are the generic responses to such complaints whether they are true or false: "Stop Whining," "Take Responsibility for Yourself."

It's sometimes hard to spare the argument, to acknowledge that being a victim is not a permanent excuse and that taking responsibility is not the same as accepting blame.

At this moment, Enid Waldholtz seems to have lost the support of the "personal responsibility" crowd and won the sympathy of the tension in American society.

Any way you calculate it, husband Joe was a con man of the first magnitude. Unless you believe that she bilked her own indulgent father out of $4 million, they were both Joe's marks.

But the illegal infusion of money into her campaign when she was lagging behind probably bought the election. Whether she believed that money was legal or only convinced herself it was--her seat is stolen goods. The victim was also a winner.

At the press conference, someone posed the moral dilemma this way: If she were driving a car that Joe had stolen, wouldn't she have to give it back? She answered, "You can't give back an election." But you can give up the seat.

When all is said and done, this wife and mother, this victim deserves our sympathy. But even the wronged have to do the right thing. For Enid Waldholtz, the right thing is resigning from Congress.

She was singing a country western ballad of the betrayed Everywoman.

Greek government barely operating

WASHINGTON -- The birthplace of democracy has become the laughingstock of Europe at a time when it should be playing a pivotal role in bringing peace to Bosnia.

Greece is the only southeast European nation that is a member of both NATO and the European Community. Yet at a time when 60,000 NATO troops are headed to nearby Bosnia, Athens has been preoccupied by the health of ailing Prime Minister Andreas Papandreu and nude photos of his wife that have been splashed across the front pages of newspapers across Europe.

"We could play a decisive, positive role in Bosnia," one source with close ties to the Papandreu government told us dejectedly. "But instead, Greece is caught up in a chaotic, defensive situation."

For weeks now, Papandreu has been clinging to his life on a respirator. Our diplomatic sources in Athens and Washington say that even if the 76-year-old Socialist survives, his long political career is finished.

A banking scandal that we broke open in 1987 stirred international controversy and forced Papandreu from office. But he has been the dominant figure in Greek politics for two decades.

When Papandreu made a stirring political comeback in 1993, respected Greek journalist Elias Demetropoulos predicted that Papandreu's health would become a major problem. Demetropoulos suggested that Papandreu thank the voters for re-electing him and then immediately groom a successor to ensure a smooth transfer of power.

Papandreu ignored Demetropoulos' advice, and Greece has paid dearly. The prime minister's health has steadily eroded, and he has been known to work barely three hours a day, rarely showing his face at the office.

"Greece has wasted two years," one Greek political analyst told us. "It has nominally had a government, but no prime minister. And with everybody in Papandreu's party fighting to position themselves as his successor, there has been no governing at all."

Papandreu made matters worse by naming his curvaceous young wife, Dimitra Liani-Papandreu, chief of staff. She has become her husband's gatekeeper, carefully controlling access to the boss, which has added to the sharp divisions that have crippled the ruling Pasok party.

While there has been rampant speculation that Papandreu's wife is actually the one running the country, the Greek public was recently treated to photos of the empress with no clothes -- literally.

A Greek publication revealed 20-year-old photos of Mrs. Papandreu sunbathing in the nude and cavorting intimately with another woman. Dimitra is Papandreu's third wife -- a woman he met while she was working as a stewardess on his presidential jet.

"It was a very negative development on top of a terrible economic and political situation concerning Greece's credibility in Europe and around the world," said one source. "Greece has become a laughingstock. All of the European newspapers are running naked photos of the prime minister's wife."

A fierce succession battle is likely once Papandreu dies. While some insiders have predicted that Mrs. Papandreu will succeed her husband, our sources say that Papandreu's political rivals will make sure that doesn't happen.

"If he dies, all the long knives will come out for her," predicted one Greek analyst.

The birthplace of democracy has become the laughingstock of Europe.

...ors, accompanied by a Sanford Fire Inspector, checked the rooming house Wednesday saying they found many serious problems which could be life threatening.

The structure, originally built in 1882 is listed on the National Historical Register. It was built as a private residence, but has been converted into eight separate units. The license has been held by a man identified by officials as Dalbag Chima, who authorities say immediately and voluntarily relinquished his license.

"This was entirely a matter of life-safety," said Sanford Fire Chief Tom Hickson. "It wasn't just that there were a few code violations, but the conditions were so bad that there probably couldn't be any immediate repairs, and moving the people out is the only thing which could be done to protect their safety."

Hickson said the violations were of state codes, although there were also a number of areas where city fire and safety codes were found to be in violation.

According to Inspector Roy Costa of the Hotel and Motel Orlando division, the structure was found to have a number of electrical hazards, structure hazards and severe sanitation problems.

"We don't have the authority to order the people to move out," Costa said, "that would have to come from a governing authority, but Mr. Chima himself has asked the people to move out as soon as possible."

"We probably wouldn't have checked that structure right now," Hickson said, "but we do make checks of all facilities at least once a year, and we would have probably found these problems soon, even without someone phoning in a complaint."

Hickson said that while some looked at the move, at this time of year, as a "grinch" type of action, making people homeless just before Christmas, it was done more as a prevention of the loss of lives, which would be much more tragic.

"Contrary to what some people are saying," Hickson observed, "no one has told these people they must move out within just a few hours. To my knowledge, no deadline was given, they were just asked to leave as soon as they could find new lodgings."

The fire department is seeking help in relocating the eight families "We're working with the Salvation Army to find housing," he said, "but if anyone can offer us any assistance, I hope they will contact us as soon as possible." The Sanford Fire Department is at 322-4952.

Bosnian Serbs end state of war; Sarajevans herald peace

By JOVANA GIBB Associated Press Writer

PALE, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic symbolically ended the state of war in the Serb half of postwar Bosnia today — except in Serb-held Sarajevo.

Karadzic's gesture was intended to show world leaders he is committed to peace, while reminding them he bitterly opposes their decision to unify Sarajevo under the rule of his enemies.

Peace became official in Paris on Thursday with the signing of a U.S.-brokered accord that divides Bosnia into two regions — one controlled by Serbs, the other by Muslims and Croats.

Some 80,000 NATO troops, including 30,000 Americans, will pour into the country soon to try to make the agreement stick.

In the government-controlled heart of Sarajevo, newspapers heralded the official end of the 3 1/2-year war in huge, front-page headlines.

"The war is over," the Avaz newspaper proclaimed. "Welcome to peace," said Sarajevo's main newspaper, Oslobodjenje.

An editorial in Sarajevo's Vecernje Novine said, "People wonder: Can the soldiers of war become the soldiers of peace? ... Anything is possible. The people were not asked about anything by anybody, anyway."

Karadzic — beaten at the bargaining table and on the battlefield, and indicted by an international war crimes tribunal — revoked a combat order he issued to Bosnian Serb troops on July 28. The news was reported by the Serb news agency BRNA.

With the signing of the peace accord brokered in Dayton, Ohio, the state of war was converted to a state of immediate war alert, the news agency said.

Karadzic exempted Serb-held suburbs of Sarajevo from the order. Despite vehement objections from Sarajevo Serbs and their leaders, the accord requires that the Bosnian capital be united under a Muslim-Croat federation.

Officials have hinted, however, at a certain flexibility in the actual timetable for handing over the nine Serb neighborhoods in the capital to the Bosnian government.

Antonio Pedaays, the U.N. civilian chief for Bosnia, said in a statement Monday that Bosnian government forces would not enter Serb-held areas of Sarajevo for three months after the NATO force arrives, and that the deadline may be extended.

An extension would allow time for a smooth transition, and prevent a feared exodus of Sarajevo Serbs. Between 70,000 and 80,000 Serbs live in the nine Serb-held Sarajevo neighborhoods.

Antonio Pedaays, foreign minister of the self-styled Bosnian Serb government, told Bosnian Serb television late Thursday that "the handover Sarajevo will be postponed for about a year."

In a telephone interview from Paris, Buha also said that "during that time a new city will be built. We shall see where."

Buha did not specify what he meant by a new city, but Bosnian Serbs have said they want a new capital of their own to compensate for the loss of Sarajevo.

President Slobodan Milosevic of Serbia, who negotiated on behalf of the Bosnian Serbs in Dayton, brushed aside their objections and signed away their claims to part of the Bosnian capital.

Today, the man who instigated the war with his Serb nationalist dreams, then backed down after U.N. sanctions battered his country, told the Bosnian Serbs they have nothing to fear when Sarajevo is reunited.

Trust the terms of the peace accord and have confidence in the international force who will enforce it, Milosevic said. Tens of thousands of U.S.-led NATO troops are expected to be in place within weeks.

In New York and Europe, meanwhile, preparations were being made to ship out the largest mission in NATO's history.

great potential in Sanford. "I think I learned a lot from them and they may have learned a little about Sanford too," she said. "There needs to be some learning experiences like that. They think a little differently than we do."

She said the quaint atmosphere of the Sanford community is "ideal" for the film industry and she looks forward to many more movies and commercials being shot here.

"I think this is just the beginning," she said.

Special meeting

SANFORD — The School Board of Seminole County will meet in special session on Monday, Dec. 18 at 1 p.m. at the district's new facility on E. Lake Mary Boulevard in Sanford.

The meeting is being held for the board to consider authorizing the purchase of software for the new administrative complex's computer system and various other related items.

The public is encouraged to attend the meeting.

ago, but which were not. "They just erased them from the map," said Jones. "Those lines are still there and connected. They're not on the maps so the city says they're not there. But they are."

Jones hired geotechnical consultant P. Ralph Brown of Brown and Brown Consultants of Altamonte Springs to come to the property and map the lines as they are on the property.

Brown was reluctant to speak about the issue, but did confirm that he had been to Lincoln Court and that he had mapped the lines.

"I could see no problems out there," he said. "Everything works fine."
Brown declined to comment on how the maps he produced matched up with the maps the city has used.

Jones is anxious about the city's proposal to tear her houses down, but she hopes Brown's findings will bolster her argument to save the houses, at least temporarily.

Warner Brothers wants to take the houses from their location on Lincoln Court and move them to a movie set elsewhere. Four will be used in the movie, the other nine will be demolished.

people coming and going from the apartment.

The two made their initial court appearances yesterday afternoon in a courtroom at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility. They were held under $500 bond each.

All of the other suspects were booked into the jail. Some remain in custody, while others have been released after posting $500 bond each.

Reports on the various arrests were not immediately available at the sheriff's office, and no names other than the two occupants of the house were revealed.

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

Womens' SB players needed

SANFORD — Two teams, one established and one brand new, are in need of players for the upcoming Sanford Recreation Department Women's Polar Bear Slowpitch Softball League that will begin play in early January.

For more information about the new team call Dan at 328-0052, or for the rebuilding team call Len or Gigi Klein at 328-6401.

Ferguson Baseball Camp

SANFORD — Seminole High School will be the site for the Rod Ferguson Holiday Baseball Camp that will be held on December 20-23.

The instructors will include Tim Rames (White Sox), Randy O'Neil (Detroit Tigers), Ed Dickmeyer and Scott Kersey (Seminole Community College) and coaches from the Sanford Post 53 American Legion team.

The camp, for players ages 9-18, will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily with analysis of the players on the 23rd by the St. Louis Cardinals.

Cost will $100, including lunch, for the camp. For more information call 14071321-8582.

ELSEWHERE

Flyers blank Lightning

PHILADELPHIA — John LeClair scored two goals and Ron Hextall got his first shutout of the season as the Philadelphia Flyers beat the Tampa Bay Lightning 4-0 in a tight-fisted game.

LeClair, who has 10 goals and seven assists in six games against Tampa Bay since being acquired late last season, helped Philadelphia improve its record at home to 14-3-1.

Hextall stopped 18 shots and lowered his league-leading goals-against average to 1.78. He improved his record to 11-2-1 and got his 11th career shutout, snapping the Lightning's four-game winning streak.

Bruins top Panthers

BOSTON — Adam Oates scored a career-high four goals Thursday night to lead the Boston Bruins to a 6-1 victory over Florida and end the Panthers' six-game unbeaten streak.

Oates scored twice in the second period and once in the third to turn a 2-1 game into a 5-1 blowout. But Florida scored three straight goals in the third period to get back in it.

Heat "clipped" in LA

LOS ANGELES — Miami's skeleton lineup proved to be almost too much competition for the Los Angeles Clippers to handle.

They committed five turnovers in less than six minutes, fell behind by nine points before the first substitutions were made and by as many as 14 late in the first half Thursday night.

Loy Vaught rallied the Clippers from their first-half slumber with 20 points in an 89-84 victory over the Heat, snapping a nine-game losing streak.

Kevin Gamble scored 24 points and rookie Kurt Thomas added 19 in his third start for the Heat, who were down to nine healthy players.

Miami lost its third straight. This also was the 300th coaching defeat for Pat Riley, whose .716 winning percentage is the highest of any active coach in pro sports.

Biggio stays with Astros

NEW YORK — Craig Biggio decided to stay in Houston, while Jack McDowell found a new team in Cleveland and Randy Myers signed with Baltimore.

Biggio got a $22.36 million, four-year contract from the Astros, McDowell got a $10.15 million, two-year deal with the Indians and Myers got $6.3 million over two years from the Orioles.

Al Leiter, who made $795,000 last season with Toronto when he was 11-11 with a 3.64 ERA, agreed to an $8.6 million, three-year deal with Florida.

Center fielder Lance Johnson got about $5 million over two years from the New York Mets, and catcher Mike Stanley was given a $2.3 million, one-year deal by Boston. Outfielder Darryl Hamilton agreed to a $1.05 million, one-year contract with Texas, and outfielder Mike Kingery signed a $1.5 million, two-year deal with Pittsburgh.

Cardinals acquire Clayton

ST. LOUIS — The St. Louis Cardinals, worried about the status of 40-year-old shortstop Ozzie Smith, acquired Royce Clayton from the San Francisco Giants for three pitchers.

The Giants got left-handers Allen Watson and Doug Creek and right-hander Rich DeLucia. The Cardinals also will get a player to be identified, probably in the next few weeks.

From rags to riches

Blake goes from unemployment line to Pro Bowl

From Staff and AP sources

NEW YORK — Two years ago he was a third-string quarterback for the New York Jets. A year-and-a-half ago he was out of a job.

Today he is in the Pro Bowl.

Sanford's Jeff Blake continues to defy the opinions of the so-called "experts" as the Cincinnati Bengal signal caller was selected Thursday night to back up Miami's Dan Marino for the AFC team when the NFL Pro Bowl is played in Honolulu on February 14.

But the two teams that figure to battle it out for the right to represent the AFC in the Super Bowl, the Cowboys and 49ers, dominated the selections with 19 of them making the Pro Bowl.

Ten Cowboys and nine 49ers were named to the AFC squad. It was the third straight year Dallas had the most selections.

Headed for the NFL's all-star game from Dallas are running back Emmitt Smith, guard Nate Newton, tight end Jay Novacek, defensive end Charles Haley and safety Darren Woodson.

The other Cowboys selected in balloting by players, coaches and fans were backups Troy Aikman at quarterback, Michael Irvin at wide receiver, Larry Allen at guard, Mark Tuinei at tackle and center Ray Donaldson, who is injured.

San Francisco center Bart Oates was picked to replace Donaldson. San Francisco also had wide receiver Jerry Rice, who made it for the 10th time in 11 seasons. The other starters from the 49ers were linebacker Lee Woodall, safety Merton Hanks and cornerback Eric Davis.

Backups from San Francisco included quarterback Steve Young, defensive tackle Dana Stubblefield, linebacker Ken Norton and safety Tim McDonald.

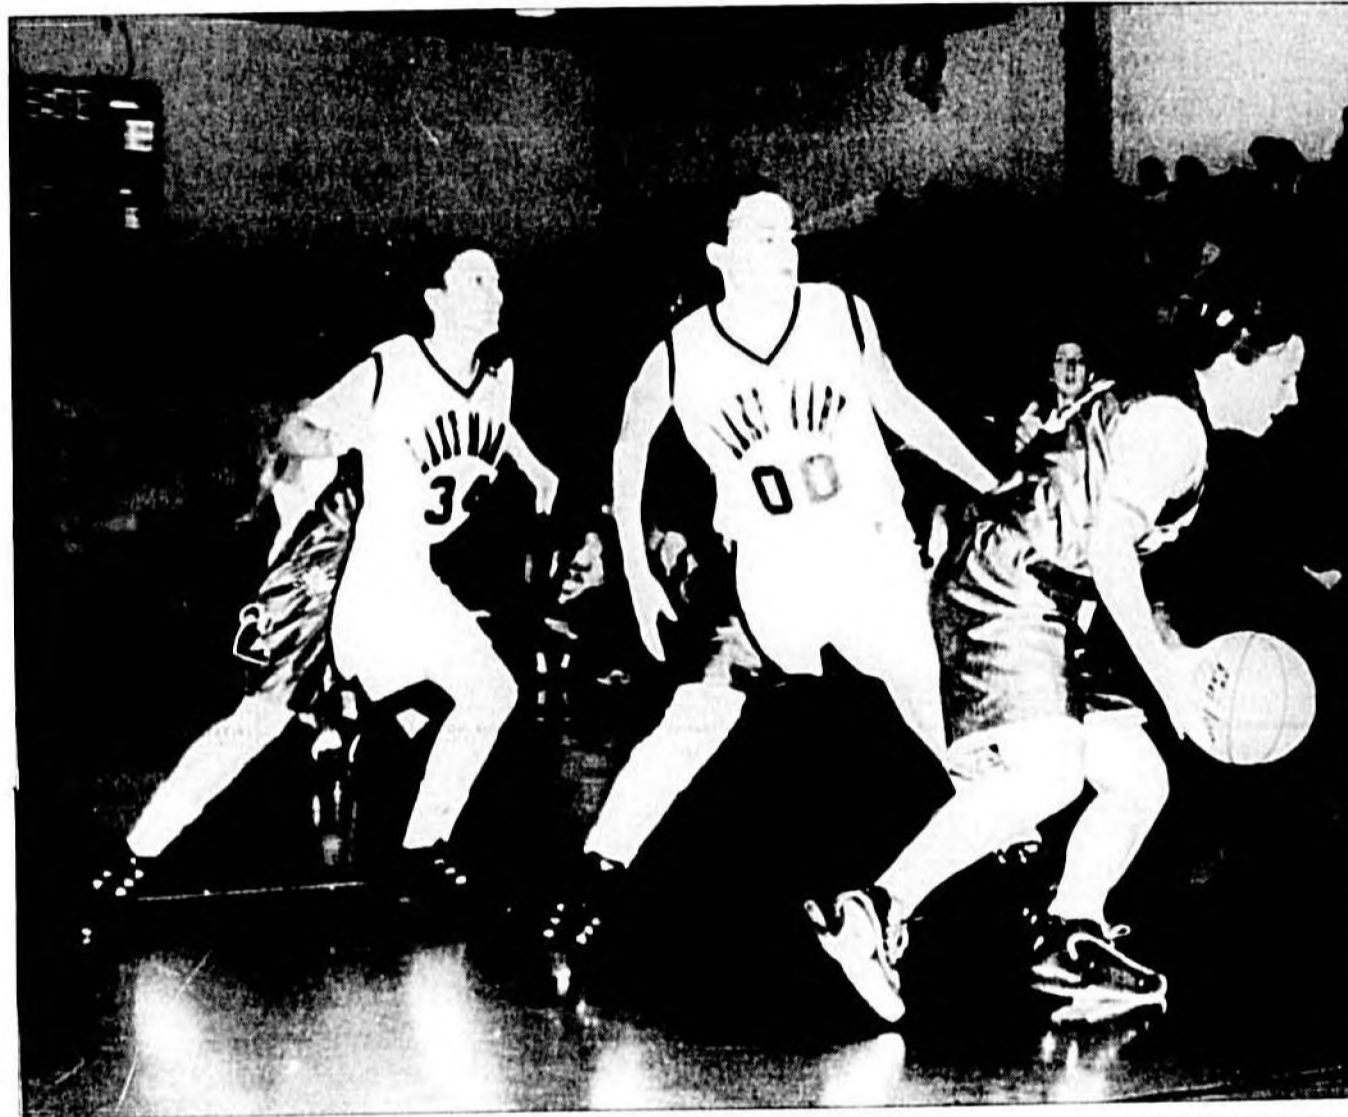

"I think the defense has been making a statement all year," Woodall said of having six 49ers defenders on the NFC squad. "Having a lot of players from the defense chosen to the Pro Bowl is saying a lot."

Denver, a 7-7 team, had the strongest AFC representation with six: starters in safety Steve Atwater and specialists Jason Elam (kicker) and Glyn Milburn (kick returner), and reserves in wide receiver Anthony Miller.

LAKE MARY — Senior center Lori Hammett scored 18 points to lead host Lake Mary past Lake Brantley 61-44 in Seminole Athletic Conference girls' basketball action Thursday night.

"We came out sluggish and didn't shoot well in the second half," said Lake Mary coach Carl Brown. "We got some intensity in the second half and started running our offense really well. Lori really stepped up for us in the second half."

LAKE MARY — Don McIntosh headed a pass from Jason Pirkey into the net early in the second half as the Lake Mary Rams edged the Lake Brantley Patriots 2-1 in a Seminole Athletic Conference boys' soccer game at Don T. Reynolds Stadium Thursday night.

Lake Mary had taken a 1-0 lead in the first half on a goal from Pat Mangun, but Lake Brantley came back to tie the game at 1-1 at intermission on a free kick from Dan Fendrich. Fendrich took the ball from just outside the line and got it over the wall and into the upper corner of the goal.

McIntosh got the game winner when Pirkey served a crossing pass from the left side and McIntosh ran from the right and headed the ball into the near post.

"The defense did a good job," said Lake Mary head coach Larry McCorkle. "Chris Kessinger, Devon Hale and Chad Buckmaster all had outstanding games. This was a good week for our young team with wins over both Lyman and Lake Brantley."

The junior varsity contest went to the Patriots by the score of 2-0.

The Rams (7-3-1) will be at Pine Ridge on Saturday, while Lake Brantley (5-5-2) will be off until they play at University next Thursday.

HAWKS HUMBLE TRIBE

WINTER PARK — Jeff Yearick netted three goals and three more Silver Hawks had two scores each as Lake Howell whipped Seminole 11-1 in a boys' Seminole Athletic Conference soccer contest Thursday night at Richard Evans Field.

David Lewis, Josh Holcomb and Victor Nespeca were the two goal scorers for the Silver Hawks, while Austin Punneo and Marvin Gabriel added one goal each.

Getting assists for Lake Howell were Randy Cook, P.J. Singer and Nespeca (two each) and Lewis, Derrick Seaman, Paul Loerzel and Al Stumano (one each).

Seminole's goal was an unassisted shot off the foot of Jason Armstrong in the first half.

Lake Howell also won the junior varsity contest with a 4-0 shutout.

The Fighting Seminole (2-10-2) will host Gateway in a Class 5A-District 6 game at Thomas E. Whigham Stadium tonight, while the Silver Hawks will be idle until hosting Osceola next Thursday night at Richard Evans Field.

SANFORD — Depending upon your point of view, it doesn't get much better, or worse, than this.

The Lake Mary Rams were nearly perfect in destroying the Seminole Fighting Seminoles 75-6 in a Seminole Athletic Conference wrestling match Wednesday night at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium.

Lake Mary won 13 of the 14 matches, including 12 by pin, to run its record to 4-1 on the season.

The Rams won the first nine matches by pin, with five ending in less than a minute and only two lasting as long as three minutes.

All told Lake Mary won the first 12 matches before the Fighting Seminoles got their only points of the night, on a pin by Williams, at 215 pounds.

The only match not to end by pin found the Rams' Richardson claiming a 14-8 technical fall victory at 160 pounds.

Both teams will now join the other four SAC squads and 10 other teams in the prestigious 29th annual Christmas Invitational Tournament at Lyman High School tonight and Saturday.

and C.J. Meert were more than up to the challenge as the Greyhounds and Lions battled to a 0-0 tie in boys' Seminole Athletic Conference soccer action Thursday night at John Courter Field.
Oviedo won the junior varsity game 3-0.

"This was a great high quality high school game," said Lyman head coach Ray Sandridge. "Both teams had 8 or 9 quality shots at goals. Usually in games like this (two rivals playing each other) the game gets defensive with very few shots."
"But we had several chances in the opening half and I felt we should have led early. But they've (Oviedo) got a great team and really put a lot of pressure on us in the second half. I'm real proud of my team, because they stood up against a good squad

Carissa Sica, Ayesha Harrison and Lauren Bradley, jumped to a 7-0 lead on a Hammett layup and led 7-4 after the first period.
Shonte Day scored six points to help Lake Brantley to a 10-7 lead, before the Rams went on a run and took a 17-12 lead. But a three-point play by Kate Carrough gave the Patriots an 18-17 edge and the teams went to the locker room tied 18-18.

"This is the best we have played in a while," said Lake Brantley coach Karen Sawczyk. "I'm very happy with our effort. Kate is a good spark plug for our team, and we are only going to get better as the season goes on."
Carrough was 13-for-15 at the free throw line en route to a game-high 23 point performance for Lake Brantley. Day added 10 points for the Patriots, who were 18-for-18 from the free throw line.

Maggie Reedy and freshman Ashlee Ballance each scored 12 points for Lake Mary.
Reedy's field goal extended the Rams lead to 20-16 midway through the third quarter, and Lake Mary held a 42-23 advantage at the end of the third quarter despite Carrough scoring 12 points in the period to help keep the Patriots close.
Lake Mary outscored Lake Brantley 19-12 in the fourth quarter to put the game out of reach.
The Rams beat Lake the Patriots 60-31 in the junior varsity game.

The teams will now take a breather until after the new year. Lake Mary (12-2, 3-1 in the conference) returns on Wednesday, January 3, to host Bishop Moore, with Lake Brantley (2-11, 0-4 in the SAC) not coming back until Tuesday, January 9, when it travels to Sanford to take on Seminole.

WINTER PARK — Mindee Hampton scored 17 points before fouling out as Seminole remained undefeated in the Seminole Athletic Conference with a 58-47 win over homesteading Lake Howell.
Rosetta Jackson scored 12 points for the Tribe, while Shemetta Stokes added 11 and Dana Merrick 10.
Allison Duncan had 12 points to lead Lake Howell, while Heather Gomes had 10.
Lake Howell (9-5, 2-3 in the conference) plays at Winter Park (in a quadrupleheader with the boys' teams) Saturday, while Seminole (11-1, 4-0 back up to Marino will be fellow Pro Bowl newcomer Jim Harbaugh of Indianapolis.

The AFC defense begins with the NFL's best record, will be represented by starters Dale Carter at cornerback, Dan Saleaumua at defensive tackle and Neil Smith at defensive end, and fullback Kimble Anders. The backup from the Chiefs was linebacker Derrick Thomas.
"It's never routine. You can never take it for granted," Thomas said. "Injuries, things of that nature can ruin a player's season."
Dan Marino was selected for the ninth time and will start at quarterback for the AFC. The running backs are starters Chris Warren of Seattle and Marshall Faulk of Indianapolis, and the only rookie in the game, Curtis Martin of New England.

Marino's targets will be Tim Brown of Oakland and Carl Pickens of Cincinnati at wide receiver and Ben Coates of New England at tight end. The backups are wideouts Miller and Yancey Thigpen of Pittsburgh.
Other AFC starters will be Dolphins tackle Richmond Webb and guard Keith Sims; tackle Bruce Armstrong of New England; guard Bruce Matthews of Houston; and center Dermontti Dawson of Pittsburgh. Backups will be Zimmerman, guard Steve Wisniewski of Oakland, and center Mark Stepanovich of Houston.

Listening to God through life's trials

Ever had a bad hair day? How about a day when you were just out of sorts and decided to take a much needed break?

I recently took one of those days. After over a week of painting and wallpapering, handling work, husband, children, church and school activities I was in desperate need of some rest.

My head was pounding and that one eyed idiot (television) was just what the doctor ordered to help me wind down. (That is after the news and all its gory details ended.)

As I turned off the t.v. to escape to a good book my husband and children headed off to mid-week evening services at church. A tinge of guilt crossed my mind as they happily sped off to meet with my other brothers and sisters in Christ but my body would not stop hurting nor would my willpower force me to lift my weary feet from the pillow.

Isn't it amazing though when we try to take a break from God and veg-out in the privacy of our room he comes knocking to let us know he hasn't forgotten us.

First, the telephone rang with a call from gentleman thinking a party from our number had paged him. As we tried to filter through who could have left my number in his pager I found out he worked with a volunteer organization.

Oops! My volunteer column for the week was late and here was a nudge from God saying I'm supplying you with something to relieve your stress even though you left me out tonight.

Next, just before my family arrived home my mother informed me my husband had filled in for the songleading and my children actually stayed out of trouble after services.

Later, a good friend called for me but instead talked to my husband for a long time. It was nice to still relax and even nicer to know my friends feel comfortable sharing their thoughts with my spouse.

Maybe he's an okay guy after all. Those disagreements and run-ins we've had lately all seemed to fade.

That gentle nudge from God was nice. He never leaves us or forsakes us. It's comforting to listen to his voice through others sometimes.

As my husband prepared my son and daughter for bed and then read them a book I sat and reflected. Although we have our share of disappointments God has been good. I was reminded of the poem titled "Footprints." The poem discusses how when times are rough God is carrying us.

I then smiled as I pictured my husband snuggled with the children. I guess it was time to count my blessings once more and realize that life here has its ups and downs but the Lord is always there for us.

God's time of carrying me that night helped me see that his hand still guides our paths even in the moments of exhaustion. I pray that I will continually see those burnt-out times as an opportunity to feel that hand at work and allow Him to take charge.

Baptist's feature 'Won By One'

Nationally known contemporary Christian artists "Won By One" recently performed for members of First Baptist Church of Lake Mary. The group was part of an anniversary celebration which also featured "Fat Guy" Dennis Behavia, famous fan of the Orlando Magic.

The church will present a Christmas musical "The Gift of Christmas" at 7 p.m. Sunday in the Greenwood Lakes Middle School gymnasium. For more information about the events call the church office at 333-6873.

Company says it can put a new face on security industry

By EVAN PEREZ
Associated Press Writer

CORAL GABLES, Fla. — Banking on the idea that no two faces are identical, a small company hopes to revolutionize the security industry with a high-tech ID system that substitutes faces for passwords and codes.

Identification Technologies International is hoping its One-on-One system will become standard security at automated teller machines, office buildings, cruise ships and even to check the identity of welfare recipients and people using computer networks.

"There is no other device that can guarantee that you are you," Dr. David Bendel Hertz, president and founder of the Coral Gables-based company, said Thursday at a demonstration of the system at the University of Miami.

Hertz said the company plans to put the

One-on-One facial imaging system on the market in six months.

The system records the facial characteristics of a person, essentially creating a facial map. That data is then transferred onto a microchip embedded on an access card, about the size of a credit card.

The person trying to gain access then inserts the card into a computer reader. A camera takes another photograph of the person, and the system compares that digitized photo with that stored on the card. If they match, the door unlocks.

The company already has a prototype guarding a computer laboratory at the university's College of Engineering.

That system gives students 24-hour-a-day access to the lab, and combined with a security camera, makes the expensive computers in the room less vulnerable to thieves, said College of Engineering Dean M. Lewis Temares.

The system being tested at UM would cost about $2,000, Hertz said.

Consumers often are asked to remember passwords and personal identification numbers to access everything from bank accounts to garages.
