WASHINGTON (AP) - D fense Secretary Robert S. Mc-Namara's upcoming trip to letnam could play a key role n determining the amount of taxes to be paid by Americans this year and next. Government sources said today McNamara's post-trip report will weigh heavily with the dministration in setting the size of the surcharge to be formally requested by President Johnson proposed a 6 per cent surcharge on corporate and individual income taxes to take effect July 1. No legislation has been sent to Congress yet but a tax message with only the numbers missing reportedly is ready to go. Mc-Namara probably will leave for Victnam late this week. Although government officials hesitate to describe their tax position as 'beyond the point of no return," they don't see any possibility now of backtracking on an increase this year-bar ring unforeseen economic upheavals.

But the size of the request still is open. Chairman Gardener Ackley of the President's Council of Economic Advisers said last week it won't be less than 6 per cent. One alternative, and there reportedly are many still being considered, would call for different surcharges-8 per cent on individual taxes and 12 per cent on corporate taxes with an effective date of next Jan. 1. Another alternative under study is for a 6 per cent surtax on both individuals and corporations to take effect Oct. 1 or
