BRIEFS

Wildfire battle makes progress

Thousands of firefighters — aided by good weather — made progress Monday in their weeklong battle against wildfires that have destroyed more than 400,000 acres and cost more than $50 million in seven western states.

Several thousand U.S. Army troops, given a basic firefighting course, began relieving exhausted firefighters in California and Oregon.

Twenty-eight major fires were still burning Monday across 330,000 acres in five states — California, Oregon, Idaho, Washington and Utah. Fires in Montana and Nevada were controlled.

A major victory was reported in Oregon with the containment of a nearly 74,000 acre fire in the Ocoee National Forest.

Cheney cuts warship programs

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney decided to cut two of the $1 billion Seawolf nuclear attack submarines and nine of the Arleigh Burke destroyers to be built over the next four years to save an estimated $7 billion.

Cheney's decision Monday to reduce purchases of the two weapons systems followed a four-month budget-cutting review of major new ship and helicopter programs.

No decision was made on the Army's $42 million LHX helicopter, which was also part of Cheney's review.

"There is little doubt that the recent events in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe have altered the social and political makeup of the world. ... However, current events remind us of how fragile world peace can be," Cheney said in a statement, referring to the massive U.S. naval response to the crisis in the Persian Gulf.

"Therefore," he added, "we continue to require a superior naval force to maintain free and open use of the seas."

NASA releases Hubble pictures

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The defective Hubble Space Telescope can capture clearer, more valuable images than scientists had thought and computers can be used to sharpen the pictures even more, NASA announced Monday.

Elated astronomers released pictures the telescope snapped of a star cluster, demonstrating the observatory's potential and showing that the cluster is packed with many more young stars than previously known.

"The images that we're going to release today have exciting scientific content and demonstrate that HST (the Hubble Space Telescope) remains very, very much alive," said project scientist Edward Weiler at a news conference.

Although buoyed by the telescope's capacity, the scientists stressed the instrument is still below intended ability.

"Some of the most important science in the view of most astronomers, the science that we talked about all these years — the age of the universe, the expansion of the universe — those sorts of things we still believe are not possible," said James Westphal of the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena.

Troops ready for attack

United Press International

SAUDI ARABIA — Paratroopers with the 82nd Airborne division spread across the Saudi desert Tuesday with tanks, guns and missiles saying they were ready for anything, including a chemical attack.

"We're trained for it," an Ann Arbor, Mich., specialist said of the possibility of chemical warfare. "If it happens, we're ready for it."

The paratroopers were part of the U.S. military buildup in Saudi Arabia ordered by President Bush to "draw a line in the sand" and help prevent Iraq from invading.

They brought with them Sheridan tanks and TOW anti-tank missiles that would form a defensive line to fight Iraqi forces if they invade.

The soldiers also brought .50-caliber guns and trucks that can fire banks of 12 battle missiles at a time.

Every paratrooper interviewed by a pool of American reporters said he was ready for a chemical attack or anything else that comes.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein used chemical weapons in the Iran-Iraq war, and an Italian diplomat has said Saddam was relocating chemical munitions close to the Saudi border now.

"I'm a little scared but ... we're ready," said a paratrooper from Norfolk, Va.

A lieutenant said the paratroopers trained to fight in nuclear, chemical or bacteriological weapons battles.

"We haven't done it in this heat," he said. But he said the troops regularly train in the humid summer heat of Fort Bragg, N.C.

However, Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf, commander of all U.S. forces in the Middle East, told the pool reporters earlier that the troops have trained in the hot chemical protection suits in western U.S. deserts where temperatures are comparable to those in Saudi Arabia.

The paratroopers, interviewed at an undisclosed staging area, said they were anxious to get closer to the Kuwait border where commanders said Iraqi forces that invaded and occupied Kuwait were building up and digging in defensively.

Blockade strategy effective, U.S. says

By THOMAS FERRARO
United Press International

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine — A de facto military blockade against Iraq entered its second full day Tuesday with the United States ready to use force, if necessary, to maintain a U.N.-mandated embargo aimed at shutting down Saddam Hussein's "war machine."

A few ships headed for Iraq have already voluntarily backed off rather than risk confronting a flotilla of U.S. warships in and around the oil-rich Persian Gulf.

"We are very optimistic at this point that the embargo will hold and that it will be effective,"

City may hire agency to track unpaid bills

By AMY WILSON
Herald intern

LAKE MARY — Former residents of this city who skipped town without paying their water bills may be in for a surprise interrogation if the city commission decides Thursday night to hire a collection agency.

As of June 28, unpaid water utility bills for the city totaled $95,473 and represented 207 accounts. These accounts, dubbed "delinquent" because the resident left no forwarding address, have been accumulating late charges and showing an inflated allowance in the city budget.

Because city administrators have been unable to find these debtors, the city manager is requesting that the city solicit proposals from professional collection agencies who would track them down through a process called "skip tracing."

Steve Wolfram, president of Liberty Collection Bureau, Inc., Altamonte Springs, which collects unpaid water bills for Longwood, said whether it would benefit Lake Mary to hire a collection agency depends on how much information the city requires when a resident requests water service.

He said if no forwarding address is given and all the agency has to go on is a name, it can be difficult to track debtors down — especially those with common names. He said skip tracing involves a search through national credit agencies such as the Credit Bureau Inc., which most collection agencies have access to.

"If the name is Tom Jones, and you've got no forwarding address, then you're probably not going to get a match," Wolfram said. "The likelihood is especially slim when the city doesn't require a social security number."

A representative of Lake Mary's water utilities department said that up until two months ago, only a name and address was required to get water

Game commission plans to open Sanford office

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The State Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission is planning to move a district office to Sanford in the near future, splitting up the responsibilities of operations presently headquartered at DeLeon Springs.

Project Leader Lawson Snyder will be in charge of the new office which will involve only three employees, at the Central Florida Regional Airport. The airport authority this morning approved a lease for a building at the airport.

"In the past," said Snyder, "we've had ten people assigned to cover the entire St. Johns River, with five in the north and five in the south. But many times we had to drive an hour or more just to get to wherever we were working, and many times a great deal of the river couldn't be covered," Snyder said the Commission, by splitting the 10 people into three groups, will have operations closer to their specific areas of interest on the St. Johns.

Once the reorganization takes place, there will be a three employee team operating from the headwaters of the St. Johns, north of Jacksonville, to approximately the Orange Mound area. Snyder's team will cover from there southward to near the Wekiva River or State Road 44, and a third team with four workers will be responsible for the headwaters. "We will, of course, overlap in our river and lake coverage," Snyder added.

The major responsibilities of the Sanford based team will be to investigate any problems occurring in the waterways, including pollution, fish kills, or any other situation that could be considered as abuses to the St. Johns River.

Antique lamp posts to light Park on Park

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Residents who have been away for any length of time will hardly recognize Park on Park with all the improvements that have been made during the past year, and another improvement was given the green light Monday night.

The purchase and installation of six antique style lamp posts was unanimously passed by the City Commission for Park on Park, located between 8th and 9th Streets on Park Avenue.

In November of last year, the wooden playground equipment was put into place through donated labor and materials. Several weeks ago a fountain was installed, dedicated to the memory of Blanche M. Rigling at the park, financed by her grandsons. The new lights will be paid through money donated by the Sanford Women's Club.

Total cost of the lighting project is $10,000.

Munitions stockpile in Thailand allegedly sold by green berets

SAN FRANCISCO — Tons of ammunition and explosives were secretly stockpiled and illegally sold or given away by Green Berets in Thailand as recently as last year, the San Francisco Examiner reported in its Sunday edition.

The newspaper said it obtained dozens of documents indicating that U.S. military officials in Thailand and Okinawa orchestrated a coverup of the millions of dollars worth of missing munitions that apparently was given to the Thai Army and sold into a thriving black market.

One former Green Beret who served with an elite Special Forces unit in Southeast Asia told United Press International in an interview from a boat in Alameda, Calif., Saturday that he saw a large cache of munitions at a secret 200-foot-long bunker on a Royal Thai Army base.

"I was physically there and saw the bunker. I saw the ammo. In my opinion, they risked my life," said Mike Bracey, a former sergeant with the Okinawa-based 1st Battalion, 1st Special Forces, which had its 80-man Bravo Company.

Sanford named Outstanding Race City

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Even though the two local winners of the Sanford Soap Box Derby competition failed to take first place victories in Saturday's All-American Soap Box Derby competition in Akron, Ohio, the City of Sanford was singled out as an Outstanding Race City. Only five official derby franchise cities out of 105 worldwide were given the high honor by derby officials.

Sanford City Commissioner Lon Howell, who represented the city at the Akron event, presented the Race City plaque to Recreation Director Mike Kirby during last night's City Commission meeting. The award was judged on the basis of the overall quality of the cars entered, the amount of publicity generated by the local race, and additional local participation including the overall race program and the banquet held for the racers. The other four Outstanding Race City plaques went to Buffalo, N.Y., Wayne Holmes, Ohio, Sioux City, Iowa and Macon, Georgia.

Kirby was one of an estimated 18 local citizens who went to Akron last weekend to observe the race and cheer for the two entries.

Kirby said, "It was the most all-American thing I ever saw, with the youngsters and their families and the thrilling race heats."

Regarding the local Kit Car Division winner, Matt Mabry of DeLand, Kirby said, "Matt was in a photo finish in his heat, and he lost out to Joshua Weigel of East Nebraska by only one one-thousandth of a second." Kirby said Mabry did win a VIP award for the technical perfection of his car. Mabry was one of 40 out of a total 155 entrants to receive the award, and the first entrant from Sanford to do so in the two years of local racing.

"Anna Morris from Titusville," said Kirby, "who won the Masters Division in Sanford, ended up in a two-car heat, and was beaten by Kevin Fuller of Winston Salem, North Carolina, who won every one of his heats until the very final race."

Overall derby winners in Akron Saturday were Sami Jones of Salem, of Oregon, in the Masters Division, and Mark Mihal, of Northern Indiana, in the Kit Car Division.

Kirby, meanwhile, said he is already making phone calls and arrangements for the Sanford Soap Box Derby event next year, and expects an even larger number of entries because of the success of this year's event.

Sanford approves beautification

West First Street project, grant get go-ahead from Sanford commission

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Even though the City is faced with tight budget restrictions, Commissioners voted last night to provide the matching funds that would allow acceptance of a beautification grant for West First Street.

Commissioner A. A. McClanahan set the tone of the approval during a work session held prior to the regular meeting.

"We'll have to come up with twenty to twenty five thousand dollars in order to accept this," he said. "We have a tight budget but we committed to it back when we first applied for the grant."

The grant, from the Florida Department of Transportation Highway Beautification Program, is for $43,278. It requires City matching funds of $43,278, with $25,732 in actual cash plus $17,546 in in-kind service, such as planting, preparing the soil and maintenance.

McClanahan said, "This will probably be the final beautification project in the City's foreseeable future. But it's a one time deal and we should support it. The present maintenance staff can maintain it. After all, I consider West First Street the gateway to Sanford."

Commissioner Bob Thomas agreed, commending the spirit shown by the citizens of Sanford in working toward this beautification project.

The beautification will consist of planting native trees and wildflowers in the median strip of West First Street, between Avacado Avenue and the railroad overpass. Commissioners agreed that the nature of the materials to be planted would not require installation of any underground sprinkler system, which would save some money.

The City will now respond to the grant request with a letter of acceptance and a maintenance agreement. After all paperwork has been finalized, the DOT will notify the City of when and how the funds will be distributed.

The motion for approval during the regular commission meeting was unanimous.

Beautification of West First Street was approved last night.

State cites SCC for improper recordkeeping

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — For the second year in a row Seminole Community College, among other things, has been cited by the state Office of the Auditor General for failing to ensure that federal grant money is properly monitored and drawn on in a timely manner so that college money is not used to temporarily finance federal projects.

Jim Sawyer, SCC vice president for student and information services, said, however, he views the overall report as being "favorable."

He added that the report was not as bad as it seemed.

"They review the same items year after year and if they find a simple mathematical error, they recommend that item for correction," Sawyer explained. "There is always going to be some human error when you are working with and operation the size of the one."

In addition to the monitoring problems, the college was once again chastised for not establating better accounting procedures which would allow them to strengthen controls and accountability and be in a better position to collect on past due and delinquent loans.

School officials were told to provide "additional assurances" that fees have been properly assessed, collected, deposited or waived. As with last year's report, the auditor said internal checks should be made to be sure that the amount of fees collected is equal to the fees due, based on the registrar's class rolls.

Sawyer said the school would be continuing to update their accountability programs and hoped to be in compliance next year.

The Auditor General's report was compiled by Thurman E. Barrow and supervised by Harold E. Koppel, both of the Auditor General's DeLand office.

Neither was available for comment this morning.

The recommendations must be approved by both the Seminole Community College Board of Trustees and the state.

City discusses solid waste recycling fee schedules

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Several options for future solid waste recycling in the city were brought up for consideration during a City Commission work session Monday evening, and from initial discussions it appears as though the city itself may provide the service on a self supporting basis.

One option would be to simply contract the service to one of the vendors already operating in Seminole County. The recycling fee would be between $1.85 and $2.05 per month for each household. The second option involved city staffed standard make recycling trucks, while the third option would be similar except for the use of recycling truck/trailer/container rigs. The latter appeared to be the most preferred, with an estimated monthly recycling fee of approximately $1.76 per household per month.

City Manager Frank Faison recommended the third option which would be a capital expenditure of $163,940 stretched out over a seven year period, but would, based on 8,250 customers, bring in an estimated $173,957 per year over the same seven year span.

In a memorandum to the City Manager, Acting Public Works Director Jerry Herman said a city operated recycling program would offer similar costs but better service to the customers.

Among the advantages he cited, "Pick up will be the same day as regular garbage service, more responsive service levels by having closer in-town supervision, less heavy truck traffic in the residential areas and more effective utilization of existing personnel."

City Commissioner A.A. McClanahan, who supported the third option, said, "Limiting the number of vehicles per neighborhood is certainly a plus for this option."

The City plans to continue work toward the solid waste recycling program which City Manager Faison said, "could kick in by mid-December."

Longwood commission to look at plan for future

By AMY WILSON
Herald Intern

LONGWOOD — Local residents will have another chance to hear plans for their city's future development at a town meeting tonight at Lyman High School. The meeting will cover four main topics: strategic planning for the next ten years, downtown redevelopment, sewer comparability study results and the interrelation of these three.

During the past six months, many meetings have been held to discuss the future of Longwood. Tonight's gathering will include city leaders, consultants and planners, as well as anyone interested from the local business and residential community.

"First of all, we'll be discussing the strategic planning," said Chris Nagle, city planner. "This deals with research on what needs to be done, how much it may cost, and what happens if we don't do anything at all."

option will also be examined for the sewer comparability question. He said representatives of an engineering firm will be on hand to discuss Longwood's options, including selling the city's sewer services to an outside contractor for management.

"Next is downtown redevelopment," he said. Discussions will include the "Plan D" submitted by the Herbert Halback firm and approved by the city commission.

"Finally, we'll be putting it all together in a wrap-up, so that everyone will know how it all interrelates." Nagle said the city's proposed one-mill property tax increase will probably also be discussed, since this is the funding source of most of these projects. Nagle hopes to have as many city officials, citizens, business owners and interested persons as possible on hand.

The meeting is at 7 p.m. tonight in the Lyman High School auditorium, 1141 South East Lake Ave..

Nuclear skeleton

The federal government grievously violated the public trust by concealing for 40 years dangerous releases of radioactivity at the Hanford, Wash., nuclear weapons plant and issuing false denials of any threat to public health. The secret emissions occurred between 1944 and 1947, when a wartime mentality prevailed. But decades later, the government continued to act with chilling arrogance.

It took a request under the federal Freedom of Information Act in 1988 to bring the radiation releases to light. The government has now acknowledged for the first time that one in 20 residents in parts of Washington and Oregon was exposed to enough radiation to cause serious illness. The admission stemmed from a study financed by the Department of Energy, which oversees the nation's weapons plants.

No other group of civilians in the world is known to have been exposed to as much radiation over such a long period of time. Thousands of Hanford-area residents are believed to have received doses of radiation comparable to those from the Soviet Union's crippled Chernobyl reactor and equivalent to 1,200 times the level of airborne contamination considered safe for civilians living around nuclear weapons plants.

Some defend the episode during and after World War II, when Hanford began to turn uranium into plutonium, as one of the prices of the Cold War at a time when scientists and engineers didn't comprehend the gravity of nuclear safety problems. But that doesn't excuse a 40-year cover-up of hazardous emissions that began with the Atomic Energy Commission and Hanford's operators. Nor is it justified by national security.

Today, nearly all the bomb production facilities at the Hanford nuclear reservation have been shut down. Secretary of Energy James Watkins says Hanford's future will be devoted to waste management and environmental restoration rather than production of fuel for nuclear warheads. Secretary Watkins deserves credit for being more open about skeletons in the nation's nuclear past than his predecessors.

More importantly, the government must do the right thing now. It should complete a comprehensive study of the health effects of the releases, which were believed to have posed the greatest threat to people now in their 40s who as infants drank locally produced milk. The milk was contaminated because the pasture grass on which the cows fed was polluted by radioactive iodine. If a link is established between the emissions and actual cases of cancer, thyroid illness and other diseases, the government must be prepared to provide medical help and compensation.

Soccer next time

The conclusion of Italia '90, this year's soccer World Cup, raises two big questions: Is the United States ready for the World Cup? And is the World Cup ready for America?

Americans, who will host the next World Cup in 1994, didn't exactly go wild over this year's tournament. Despite the presence of the U.S. national team, its first World Cup appearance in a generation, U.S. television ratings for the games were disappointing. Turner Network Television reached only 2 percent of its cabled audience for the three games involving the U.S. team. Univision, the Spanish-language network, fared much better, perhaps because it respected the game enough not to break away from the action repeatedly for commercials. Nonetheless, the viewer response has made the television networks wary about bidding for the rights to the '94 tourney, creating the odd possibility that many Americans would be unable to watch the World Cup they are hosting.

That would be unfortunate. As always, this World Cup produced some wonderful play and magic moments, particularly those involving Cameroon's Indomitable Lions, the underdog side that came within a breath of the semifinals.

But if this World Cup again proved soccer's international appeal, it also didn't entirely live up to expectations. Scoring was abnormally low and too dependent on controversial penalty calls, and many games were marred by dirty play and penalties. The trend reached its nadir in the championship match, in which the Argentine side, crippled by disqualifications, was dominated by West Germany in a game without drama or excitement.

If U.S. skeptics are to give the next world Cup the attention it deserves, international soccer needs to work to promote a crisper and more exciting brand of play for its big-time U.S. debut.

No blacks at country club? Big deal!

If you try to place the headlines of the last few days into some sort of cosmic order, Saddam Hussein's barbaric belligerence, the oil companies' deceitful price gouging and the on-again, off-again budget deficit negotiations command a high priority. What I cannot comprehend, however, is the media's obsession with the exclusion of black people from a country club whose members spend an entire day smacking a white pellet with a stick, then tracking that pellet over several miles of greenery to little holes that would make a gopher beam.

The only thing sillier than golf, a game invented by people bored with croquet, was a threatened protest against a country club's all-white membership. There's really nothing wrong with all-white country clubs, mind you. They flourish all over the country, and no one notices. They only become wrong to the media when (a) a Supreme Court nominee belongs to one, or (b) it is the site of the Professional Golf Association Championship.

Even then, the all-white country club fits Mr. Dooley's description of the vice presidency — "It isn't a crime exactly. Ye can't be aint to jail fr it, but it's a kind iv disgrace. It's like writin' anonymous letters."

It wasn't exactly a crime when the founder of Birmingham's Shoal Creek Country Club, Hall

Thompson, declared his opposition to black members. The courtly Southern gentleman was merely being honest about the attitudes of his club's members. Unfortunately, he had forgotten what happened two years ago when Al Campanis and Jimmy the Greek, made controversial remarks about blacks in sports. These periodic foot-in-mouth gaffes end up fanning a phony firestorm of protest.

Most Americans privately agree with Campanis, Jimmy the Greek and Thompson, but they still wring sympathetic hands over an issue about which the average black couldn't care doodly squat: "Now, honey, I know you ain't got no job and our family ain't eatin' regular, but if you can just become a member in that nice country club 'cross town, all our worries will be over."

The only thing sillier than golf was a protest against a country club's all-white membership.

Even the Birmingham black businessman who was offered an honorary membership in the Shoal Creek Club to avert the protest saw through the charade. "Joining a country club was never a high priority in my life," confessed Louis J. Willie.

But, as usual, black feelings "get no respect." A we-know-what's-best-for-you media unleashed an investigative binge that concluded with an amazing revelation: Most of the nation's country clubs have no black members! That's like discovering that rich people play polo and poor people play the numbers. I wish I knew what syndrome causes white Americans to get periodically sidetracked on such gargantuan irrelevancies in race relations.

Thirty-one years ago, I wrote a column for the New York Age, a Harlem weekly, titled, "Big Megilla Over a White Tennis Ball." I criticized the public furor over a Forest Hills, N.Y., tennis club's denial of a membership to the son of U.N. Undersecretary Ralph J. Bunche. I contended that membership in an exclusive country club wasn't likely to inspire people to link hands and sing "We Shall Overcome."

Ms. resurrection stirs promise

BOSTON — When the obituaries for Ms. Magazine were written last fall, it was hard to go into deep mourning.

The founding magazine of feminism had been, to put it kindly, floundering. With a revolving door of owners, a dearth of advertisers, and a variety of magazines nibbling at its demographics, it was no longer must reading. The early "click" of original insight had turned into the ho-hum of predictability.

In fact, the last cover of the old Ms. featured Glenn Close with a headline that should have been banned from the sisterhood subscription list: "Move Over, Meryl. Glenn's Got It!"

Ms. had lost its edge. But then the '80s had lost their edge. Where was the edge anyway?

The magazine suffered from the same success and failure syndrome as the movement. On the one hand, you could find feminism in Women's Day. On the other hand, social activists were busy power-dressing, finding babysitters and joining 12-step programs to conquer stress.

The only true reason to rue the demise of the magazine was that it still carried the feminist standard. There was a vague uneasiness that the death of Ms. would be used as another indication of the decline of the movement.

Now Ms. is back. It's not the same magazine. It's not even a magazine. Robin Morgan, its new editor calls it a "magabook."

But it is ad-free — or as Morgan says, "Free at last, thank god almighty, free at last" — and on its way to finding a new sense of self. "If the magazine was to go on imitating its imitators," says the editor, "it was past its time. Now we're in a totally different place. Ms. will go back to the cutting edge."

It's hard to find that razor-sharp edge of original insight in these pages. Maybe we have moved beyond surprise. But at least two pieces in the first issue are worth the price of admission. The first is an article rich in black humor about the relationship between the old Ms. and its would-be, or rather wouldn't-be, advertisers. Gloria Steinem, the founding editor, tells all about the unholy alliance between women's magazines and advertisers, and her failure at bucking it.

Her best story about the difficulty of selling a feminist audience takes place at lunch with Leonard Lauder, president of Estee Lauder. At some point, he explained, Ms. readers are not "our women." Why not? Because, he told Steinem, Estee Lauder is selling "a kept-woman mentality." But 60 percent of his cosmetics customers work, she countered. But, he answered, they would LIKE to be kept women.

The second piece is an essay on agelism and feminism that has enough hard truths to make many younger readers squirm in recognition. The 76-year-old author, Barbara Macdonald, draws some uncomfortable images of the ways younger women plug their elders into sacrificial family roles.

"The old woman is at the other end of that motherhood myth. She must not fight for her own issues — if she fights at all it must be for 'future generations.'"

Her greatest joy is seen as giving all to her grandchildren." Macdonald's voice is strong, honest, fresh — the sound that we called "angry" when it came from younger women in a younger Ms.

What is newest in the magazine is its international flavor, including some fine reporting on women in Eastern Europe by one of their own. There is also a rather nifty piece or two (circa 1970s) including one on the relationship between meat and male dominance called: Postpatriarchal Eating. Oh well.

Early on, Ms. did seed work. Today nearly every robotype envelope in America comes addressed Ms. and even Glamour magazine is running pieces about fetal rights and sexual violence between its perennial worries about hair and hemlines.

The magazine that took these issues to the mainstream is no longer targeting a mass audience. As Suzanne Braun Levine, the editor of the Columbia Journalism Review who once edited Ms., says, "The old Ms. tried to catch the potential of readers who didn't know they were feminists. The new Ms. is written, if not for the converted, for the well-disposed."

The old magazine had a circulation of nearly half a million. To stay afloat, the magabook wants fewer good women, 100,000 readers, who will pay $30 to $40 for six issues a year.

There may always be a conflict between the mass market and marketplace of ideas. The new magazine is less glossy, less hip than Ms. at its best, but more focused than Ms. in its long schizy decline. After a bit of rest and regrouping, Ms. is entering a second phase. It's called "promising."

Ms. had lost its edge. But then the '80s had lost their edge.

Saddam stokes anti-U.S. feelings

By LEE STOKES
United Press International

CAIRO, Egypt — Iraqi strongman Saddam Hussein played on traditional Arab fears of U.S. intervention to outflank Saudi Arabia and keep Arab leaders attending a summit in Cairo divided over his invasion of Kuwait.

"Saddam is now using his political clout as well as his military muscle," said one Western diplomat in Cairo monitoring the one-day Arab summit which ended late Friday.

"He's trying to force the summit to focus on U.S. military intervention in the region rather than his own invasion of Kuwait ... he's cleverly outflanking the Saudis."

The Arab summit however voted to send Arab troops to join American forces in Saudi Arabia, with only Libya and the Palestinian Liberation Organization backing Iraq. It was unclear which of the Arab states would actually send troops.

The United States and Britain deployed troops and jet fighters to Saudi Arabia this week to deter possible Iraqi aggression against the oil-rich kingdom after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. Naval forces from several Western nations are in the Gulf area, possibly preparing for a blockade against Iraq.

Saddam made political capital of the Western move by calling on Saudi Moalims and Arab nationalists Friday to declare a Jihad or holy war against the Saudi ruling family and the "new Western Crusaders."

The anti-Western hysteria was also present in Jordan, where thousands of Palestinians, Jordanians and Yemenis were reported to be flocking to Saddam's anti-Western banner.

As part of Iraq's efforts to outflank the Saudis, the Iraqi delegation to the Cairo summit also succeeded in engineering the departure of Kuwait's deposed Emir, Sheikh Jaber al Ahmad al Sabah.

"If the Gulf Arabs and other moderates accepted Iraq's demand that the Kuwaiti Emir leave the summit before it could even begin, then Saddam is cleverly outflanking Saudi Arabia," the envoy said.

There was still a question mark over the next move of the Arab world's most populous state, Egypt.

Even though Cairo receives more than $2 billion a year in U.S. aid, it has so far resisted U.S. calls to send troops to defend Saudi Arabia and has been cautious by playing down the military aspect of the Gulf crisis.

Egypt's diplomacy appeared destined to fail however because Iraq's invasion has underlined deep divisions within the Arab world which have allowed Baghdad to exploit differences between Western-oriented moderates and Arab nationalists.

Although a majority of Arab states eventually condemned Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, others have indicated that they would side with Saddam if it came to a military confrontation with the United States.

"Libya, Jordan and Yemen have indicated that they will send volunteers to fight for Saddam, but the real question is whether a country like Yemen would throw its forces against its old foe Saudi Arabia, thus creating a second front," said Ian Jones, a Cairo-based writer on Middle East affairs.

"A few thousand Arab volunteers wouldn't make much difference to Saddam's strategic position ... but if Yemen and Jordan agreed to go all the way, then Iraq would have the advantage of encircling Saudi Arabia," Jones added.

"This would also complicate Arab mediation efforts ... Arab states might have to decide whether or not they would become involved in a disastrous military confrontation with Iraq."

Although the United States has approached both Iran and Iraq's ideological foe Syria, there was no immediate indication that the Iranians — who fought an 8-year-long war with Iraq — would deploy troops against Baghdad.

A Western naval blockade of the Gulf would simply do the job the Iranians were doing until the suspension of Iran-Iraq hostilities two years ago, according to one expert.

"A Western naval blockade of the Gulf would simply do what the Iranians were doing during the Gulf war with gunboats rather than sophisticated warships," David C. Roberts, a Bahrain-based U.S. banker, said in a telephone interview.

He said the argument about whether Iran or Iraq controlled the strategic Strait al Arab waterway in the northern Gulf — which before Iraq's invasion of Kuwait marked Baghdad's only outlet to the strategic waterway — was superfluous.

Conservatives dominate court

By HENRY J. ROSE
UPI Supreme Court reporter

WASHINGTON — During its just completed 1989-1990 term, the Supreme Court continued to advance the conservative agenda in a wide area of constitutional law including abortion, school prayer and crime.

In case after case, the conservative majority led by Chief Justice William Rehnquist, and composed of Justices Byron White, Sandra Day O'Connor, Antonin Scalia and Anthony Kennedy, controlled the outcome.

States were allowed greater power to restrict a minor's access to abortion by imposing waiting periods and two-parent notification requirements; Bible club meetings were allowed in public high schools officially bringing religion into the schoolhouse for the first time since the court outlawed school prayer in 1962; and criminals found the court to have a deaf ear when it comes to pleas of illegal searches; and death row prisoners seeking relief were repeatedly rebuffed.

And, in an emerging area of law that may defy liberal and conservative labels, the court ruled there may be a constitutional right to refuse medical treatment. But the court also said that families seeking to stop life sustaining care for comatose loved ones must provide "clear and convincing evidence" of the patient's wishes — in a portion of the ruling that could make it more difficult for families seeking to end such care.

"The court was harsh and even draconian in criminal law, almost callous toward inmates seeking relief in federal courts," said conservative court watcher Bruce Fein. "And the court repeatedly rebuffed the efforts of death row inmates trying to evade capital sentences. ... In the criminal area there is a sternness that glints from the eye of the court."

In the social areas, though, the court seemed less inclined to take decisive steps and instead made incremental moves, according to A.E. "Dick" Howard, a University of Virginia law professor.

"Until there's a vacancy (on the court) things will not change much," he said, "especially in the area of abortion and the social issues. The court will not take bold initiatives."

He said the court did give "muted signs to states that they might exercise more power in some sensitive areas. The right to life advocates could take heart in both the (right-to-die case) and abortion. They were more encouraging than not."

In other notable cases before the court during its 1989-1990 term, the justices:

—Ruled the religious use of peyote is not protected by the First Amendment's guarantee of freedom of religion. The case involved two American Indian drug abuse counselors fired for use of peyote, who then sought unemployment benefits.

—Upheld the constitutionality of sobriety road checkpoints used by local law enforcement agencies across the country to snare drunken drivers.

—Issued the death knell for political patronage, ruling in a case from Illinois that party affiliation should not be a part of the government hiring process.

—Ruled in a case involving an Ohio man that mere possession of child pornography can be made illegal.

—In a case involving the University of Pennsylvania, ruled universities cannot withhold from the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission peer review material used in the tenure granting process.

—Held a Washington state prisoner was not entitled to a court hearing before the state could administer powerful antipsychotic drugs.

—Upheld the use of videotaped testimony in child abuse cases, but said courts must hold individualized hearings to determine if the alleged victim would be traumatized.

Lawyer discipline levels off

From staff reports

TALLAHASSEE — Lawyer discipline statistics leveled off in the 1989-90 administrative year ending June 30, with 411 cases successfully prosecuted by the Florida Bar on behalf of legal consumers and the legal profession. The total prosecutions compared to a record setting 425 errant lawyers disciplined by the Florida Supreme Court during the previous administrative year.

"Historically, lawyer discipline tends to take a large jump in one year then plateau for a while," said John Berry, the Florida Bar's legal division director. "In the previous year, disciplines increased 38 percent, setting a record. So what I think we're seeing now is the plateau."

A total of 28 attorneys resigned in lieu of sanctions in 1989-91, the same number as the previous year. There were 31 disbarments, down from 44 last year. Suspensions were also down slightly, from 117 to 99 in the year just completed.

Berry theorizes that the high profile of the Bar's disciplinary process during the past year, which culminated in major reforms which went into effect March 17, may be responsible for the 13 percent jump in complaints logged.

Some of the soldiers passed the time with sardonic humor. When a reporter asked one of them the precise purpose of his .50-caliber gun mounted on a truck, he replied: "To stay alive."

The paratroopers also brought communication trucks and an entire repair unit for trucks, tanks and missiles with them.

The mechanics all had M-16 rifles by their sides.

"They are soldiers first," an officer said.

The paratroopers also had medics commanded by a second lieutenant who said the medics never get the attention they deserve.

"Everybody gives all the attention to the big toys," he said, referring to the tanks and anti-tank weapons nearby.

The pool reporters were bound by rules prohibiting them from saying where in Saudi Arabia the U.S. units are, their size or from identifying any soldiers by name.

further aggression by Saddam, Iraq's unpredictable and volatile president.

On Sunday, at the request of Kuwait's deposed government, Bush ordered U.S. forces to halt all Iraqi imports and exports. He said the action was in accordance with week-old U.N.-mandated economic sanctions against Iraq.

Speaking with reporters near Bush's seaside estate Monday, Fitzwater declined to say whether the United States would shoot at a ship that refused to turn away.

"We won't discuss the orders, the operational authority given" U.S. forces, he said.

Later, however, following administration consultations, White House spokesman Douglas Davidson said, "We'd use force, if necessary." He refused to elaborate.

Fitzwater said no Iraqi ships left their ports Monday, and that "two or three ships" headed for Iraq voluntarily turned away.

Those vessels made no contact with U.S. forces, Fitzwater said, offering no further details.

The press secretary said the embargo covers "everything" — particularly food going in and oil coming out — but in a brief statement later he noted that, in accordance with the U.N. resolution, "supplies intended strictly for medical purposes" would be permitted through.

"The purpose of the embargo and the sanctions is to put the pinch on them," Fitzwater said, "not to let supplies go in that allow them to maintain the war machine." On Monday, Bush called President Carlos Andres Perez of Venezuela, a major supplier of oil to the United States, to discuss future energy needs. The United States had relied on Iraq and Kuwait for about 4 percent of its oil.

The administration, in formally announcing the decision Sunday to interdict any Iraqi imports or exports, refused to use the word "blockade." Some nations consider a military blockade an act of war, and Bush has said the United States is not at war with Iraq.

Fitzwater said Monday, "We're not interested in semantics. We're interdicting these ships. That's our policy. We choose to use the words that we believe best describe our policy."

Fitzwater also declined to say what other nations would join the United States in enforcing the embargo, saying the administration would leave it up to those countries to announce their participation.

Bush began his vacation on Friday, saying "life goes on" and vowing that he would not be held "hostage in the White House" by world events.

He said he would direct U.S. efforts from his summer compound, but that he would return to Washington this week for briefings.

Fitzwater rejected a suggestion that perhaps Bush's vacation — underscored by golf, boating and jogging — was interfering with the president's ability to manage the nation during a crisis.

Bush has flashed his cellular phone on the golf course, showing reporters he can and does stay in touch with advisers.

But late Saturday, after finishing up a rainy round of golf, Bush snapped when asked by reporters if there had been any skirmishes in the Middle East.

"You tell me," he said. "I've been playing golf out here."

service. Now an application including the resident's place of employment and work phone, as well as social security number, must be personally delivered to the city. A friend or relative can submit the application, insofar as it's complete.

"A lot of times girlfriends show up to sign in the boyfriend," Wolfram said, or the person whose name appears on the bill has moved and the roommate continues to live there, both of which create "all kinds of problems" in collecting the bill.

The unusually high number of outstanding fees was discovered in April, according to the city manager's report, which lead to the new application procedures.

At its regular Thursday night meeting, the city commission will decide if it wants to solicit proposals from collection agencies. If it does, the last date for submitting proposals will be Sept. 28, so that costs can be included in next year's budget.

A main consideration will be whether or not it's profitable to try and collect old debts, or if the city should simply continue the new application process and make further changes in the water hook-up policy which would help prevent future unpaid bills.

Wolfram said usually an agency will not charge the city unless the fee is collected, and if so they'll take around 50 percent of the bill.

"I wouldn't recommend that they go out and hire an agency first," he said. "They should hire a consultant to go over their records and see what kind of information they have to go on. They should then decide that in the future, here's what we can do to make it more collectible."

The regular city commission meeting will be at 7 p.m. at Lake Mary City Hall, 100 N. Country Club Road.

He said his team is currently working on a three year project checking the vegetation in Lake Monroe, and this, in the months and years ahead, will be expanded to include Lake Jessup and Lake Harney. "We don't have information with which to compare present

It's a family affair at Casablanca Hair Studio with mother, Dalia, leading her daughter, Nella, to hair styling excellence.
'Play it again.' You get free haircuts at Casablanca.

When Rick told Sam to play it again, in the movie "Casablanca", he was referring to a song. But stateside, you can play it again by earning free haircuts at Casablanca Hair Studio. Pay for six haircuts and the seventh is free.
Casablanca Hair Studio, a family owned and operated salon, opened its doors for business February 7, 1986. The salon was called the Hair Cutting Station at the time with the name change occurring in October 1986.
Casablanca is not a mirror and chrome salon. It is a shop with a homey feeling, and the plants, posters and wicker take you back in time to Bogey's era.
The prices on services also take you back a few years. Being family owned, they cater to the entire family, from toddler to senior citizen. Perms are priced from $19.95 to $65.00, using Zotos and Nexxus perms. The haircuts, which earn the seventh cut free, are $8.00 with shampoo.
Mother, Dalia, and daughter, Nella, run the "show". Dalia, formerly of Tampa, has more than 22 years experience. Nella is a graduate of Woody's Styling Academy, with four years experience.
Dalia is also involved in another business, related to "transporting" you to another state of mind. She is an associate of Sanford travel agency, Cruise World. Dalia specializes in cruise bookings with special rates for individuals as well as groups. Dalia handles all the major cruise packages, as well as bookings for Sea Escape, out of Port Canaveral, Miami, Fort Lauderdale and Tampa. As a matter of fact, Dalia and Nella will be cruising from September 1 through September 10, at which time the salon will be closed.
Casablanca is located at Five Points Plaza, on 17-92 across from Longwood Lincoln-Mercury. Walk-ins are always welcome, but appointments can be made by calling 323-7212. Casablanca's hours are Tuesday through Friday, 9:30 AM to 5:00 PM, with evening hours until 8:00 PM on Thursday, by appointment only. Saturday hours are 9:30 AM to 4:00 PM.
Dalia and Nella invite you and your family to visit them. Mention this story and they will give you free NEXXUS samples to suit your hair condition.

YOUTH BASEBALL

Locals named All-Americans

DES MOINES, Iowa — Three members of the Baseball World team that swept its way to the AAU 12-and-Under National World Series championship last week were named All-Americans by a vote of the coaches.

Leading the way was Bradley Ramirez of Union Park Little League, who was voted the tournament's Most Valuable Player. Dan Bogea of Altamonte Springs Little League and Peter Gill from Goldenrod Little League also were voted to the 15-player All-American squad.

During the tournament, Baseball World hit .400 as a team and slugged 16 home runs in eight games. Also, Baseball World's pitchers walked just 12 batters, a big reason why the locals were the only team to go through the competition undefeated.

Seminole to register for fall

FIVE POINTS — The Seminole Pony Baseball League will hold registration on Aug. 18 and Aug. 25 for its upcoming fall league schedule. Prospective players between the ages of 5 and 15 can sign up between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. either day at the Five Points Complex, located on State Road 419 southeast of U.S. 17-92.

For more information, call 323-5570.

Oviedo sets winter registration

OVIDO — Players interested in participating in Oviedo Little League's sanctioned winter program can register this Saturday between 10 a.m. and noon at the league complex.

The league will sponsor play in all age groups, from the 8-year-old Rookie League through the 14 and 15-year-old Senior League. This is the first year that the winter programs are under the sanction of Little League Baseball.

Coaches and umpires are also being sought. For more information, contact Bob Lovel at 365-5590.

CROSS COUNTRY

Lake Howell registration set

CASSELBERRY — Any girl interested in running cross country for Lake Howell High School should show up at the school track ready for practice on Wednesday, Aug. 15 at 6 p.m.

Any girl interested in running that is new to the program should contact Coach Tom Hammonree at 878-5565 (school) to see about getting the necessary paperwork completed before Wednesday.

Domino's comes out of losers' bracket to take second in nation

From staff reports

JACKSONVILLE — Domino's Pizza fell one victory short of its dream of two national championships in one year as the Seminole County-based team dropped a 4-1 decision to Lake Loyal in the winner-take-all final of the 1990 American Softball Association (ASA) 16-and-Under Girl's Slowpitch National Tournament at Drew Park.

"A first and a second in the same year is not too bad," said Domino's manager Bob Montalvo. "We had to come out of the tough bracket to get to the finals, so I'm real proud of the girls."

Domino's finished the tournament with a 9-2 record, but what was more impressive was the fact that eight of the wins had come against teams that finished in the top 16 of the 56-team tournament.

Lake Loyal, the defending ASA National Champion which finished the tournament 7-1, had a much easier time of it as only four of their wins came against the top 16 teams.

Domino's 11 opponents had a combined 37-11 record for the tournament. They outscored their opponents 74-28 and defeated the first, third, fourth, fifth, seventh, ninth and two of the 13th place finishers.

Domino's, which finished the summer 47-11, had done practically the same thing in winning the 40-team National Softball Association (NSA) National Tournament two weeks ago. In that tournament, six of their seven wins came against the top 12 finishers.

Last week, Domino's won five straight games to get out of the losers' bracket and earn the right to play the defending champions for the title. They forced a final winner-take-all game by defeating Lake Loyal 2-1 in eight innings.

Renee Sanville of Lake Mary High School sent the first game into extra innings by getting a two-out, pinch-hit single in the bottom of the seventh inning to tie the game at 1-1. April Manning of Oviedo High School drove in the winning run with a two-out double over the outfielder's head to score the runner from second base.

Lake Loyal, from the West Palm Beach area, also eliminated Domino's from last year's ASA tournament when the local bunch finished fourth.

"What's amazing is that we split six games with them last year and four games with them this year," said Montalvo. "But they keep winning the big one."

"We look to play teams like Lake Loyal during the regular season because we know that is the type team

During the school year, Lake Brantley's Michelle Davis (standing) and Lake Mary's Tara Calvin lead their respective teams in search of county and state titles. Last week, they helped lead Domino's Pizza to a second place finish in the ASA national tournament.

Southeast blanked in Wisconsin

By ROBBIE STOCK
Herald Correspondent

LACROSSE, Wisconsin — It wasn't a fitting way to end a banner year.

A 13-year-old All-Star squad from the Southeast Seminole Babe Ruth League traveled to Wisconsin to play in the All-American Youth Baseball Tournament — and came home with an 0-5 record.

The tournament ended the first year of the league, which fielded over 300 members in six different age divisions. Three of the league's All-Star teams won district titles and two finished second in the state.

In the five-game series, the Southeast lost three games by two-run margins — including their last two — and one game by three runs.

Southeast opened up the tournament by dropping a 6-4 decision to the host team, the LaCrosse Boys' Club. Adam Coleman, Jimmy Carigan and Chris Tulip combined for five hits in a losing effort. Three errors in the first inning led to four LaCrosse runs.

An 11-1 loss to eventual champion Waukausa, Wis., followed the opening-game disappointment. Coleman, Tulip, and Brian Buchanan each had one hit in the contest.

Coleman came through with a

Nominations sought for Hall of Fame

From staff reports

SANFORD — Nominees are once again being sought for the Seminole County Sports Hall of Fame.

Organized by the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, the Seminole County Sports Hall of Fame was created to honor those players, coaches, administrators and fans who contributed to their sport.

The criteria are: that the nominee must be at least 21 years old on the date of nomination and that the nominee must have lived in Seminole County for a period of not less than three years or must have worked in Seminole County for a total period of not less than five years.

Nominees are being taken by the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce through Sept. 15. A complete

Stressen-Reuter needs help from 'friend' in Pee Wee

By ROBBIE STOCK
Herald Correspondent

LONGWOOD — In golf, the putter can be either a best friend or a worst enemy.

With one smooth stroke, three bad shots can be erased while one choppy effort can destroy two good shots.

For Todd Stressen-Reuter, there's been entirely too much of the latter this summer.

And as the Lyman High School senior prepares for the International Pee Wee, he has no doubt about where the problem in his game lies.

"Putting will be the key," said Stressen-Reuter about his performance. "I have the yips. I can't make the come-backers."

The International Pee Wee is the final junior tournament of the summer and is played at the Marriot World Center Country Club, a luxurious 6,300-yard layout. Much like Shoal Creek, where the PGA Championship was held last week, the Marriot penalizes errant tee shots with tight fairways and thick rough.

But that won't change the strategy of Stressen-Reuter, a go-for-broke player who often booms his drives in excess of 280 yards.

"I play aggressive anywhere," said Stressen-Reuter. "I won't hit my irons (off the tee) unless I have to."

Stressen-Reuter's aggressive style has helped him to top 10 finishes in two tournaments and one qualifier this summer. He finished eighth at the "Big I" Insurance Classic after qualifying third at Timacuan Country Club. He shot a 73 to qualify and 76-77 in the tourney. He also placed eighth in the East Lake Woodlands Junior Invitational, posting rounds of 82-80-75.

"I'm hitting a lot of greens (this summer) — when you have putting like mine, you have to hit greens," commented Stressen-Reuter. "I'm playing pretty good, and I figure to do well (in the Pee Wee)."

Stressen-Reuter will need to putt well if he is to better his last year's performance, a 153 total and a fourth-place finish. Joseph Scott is the defending champion.

"It gives you confidence and you've beaten other key players in the state," said Stressen-Reuter about the importance of doing well in the Pee Wee. "It makes you feel good about your game. Trophies just collect dust but you're up in the clouds."

Seminole County's only other entrant in the tournament is Lake Brantley's Mike Berzovich. He finished 23rd in the Florida Junior Invitational last week.

UM's Maryland doesn't regret bypassing draft

United Press International

MIAMI — Russell Maryland's decision to forego the NFL in favor of staying at the University of Miami for another year is as valuable as having a blue-chip recruiting year, head football coach Dennis Erickson said Monday.

"I'll take him over any five high school players in the country," said Erickson, whose Hurricane will be vying for their second straight national championship this year.

Maryland, a 273-pound tackle known as the "conscience of the Hurricanes" because of his vocal insistence that his teammates study before they party, was the second leading tackler on the defensive line last year.

He won honorable mention All-America honors on a team which placed end Greg Mark on the first team and tackle Cortez Kennedy on the second. He led the line in tackles in 1988.

Maryland, who hopes eventually to earn a Ph.D. graduated with a degree in psychology last spring but decided against going into the NFL draft. Instead, he gave Kennedy moral and emotional support as the Seahawks made him the third player chosen.

"The first time, I really tried to stay away from the draft. I concentrated on giving Cortez my vote of confidence, and didn't think about my own possibilities," Maryland said at the Hurricanes' media day Monday.

Then when the question of the supplemental draft came up, Maryland wavered.

"The second time, I kind of let it creep up on me. Two weeks before the supplemental, it surfaced again. I had to make a decision in two weeks instead of three months.

"The biggest problem was second guessing myself. I knew I wanted to stay, but then again I started thinking I wanted to leave."

In the final analysis, Maryland decided to go with his instincts.

"It was just a feeling. No specific reason. Just a feeling I should come back, nothing in particular," said Maryland.

Scouts say he probably would have gone in the first round and thus could have commanded a contract worth up to $1 million, but Maryland is through second-guessing himself.

"I won't look back unless something just awful happens to me in the next year. You have to make decisions and go with it," he said.

Maryland received a national championship ring as a second-year freshman in 1987, and again last year. He said the rings and a chance for a third one had little impact on his decision.

"I really didn't expect a national championship when I first got here. I'm not a person to say that since I've got these two national championships, I'm going to go," he said "It's my feeling, my job is never done. I've got a job to do with this team, and I might as well stick it out this last year and get this other national championship as a team."

two-run homer in the team's third attempt at victory, but they fell just shy to the Los Angeles All-Stars, 8-5.

Two runs in the last inning allowed Palatin, Iowa to sneak by Southeast in a fourth-round matchup. Mike Goodall provided two hits for Southeast.

And the team ended the tournament with a 7-5 loss to Rosemont, Ill. Once again, three first-inning mistakes did the damage. Coleman provided his second homer of the tourney.

On the bright side, catchers Pat Bogan and Goodall threw out three of four would-be base-stealers while Carignan and Tulip played solid infield defense.

Although the last games have been played, the season is not officially over. An awards ceremony and a coaches softball game will be held on Sept. 24. Each league participant will receive a certificate, being a charter member of the league.

"It was quite a highlight to make the trip," said Mickey Norton, who accompanied the team to Wisconsin. "Although we didn't win a game, it was a great way to end the season."

He also added that the league plans to expand next season and include a 16-year-old division.

New brides answer old question

DEAR ABBY: Many times you have received letters from new brides who are pestered by family and friends who ask, "When are you going to start a family?"

All the women in our family give the same answer: "When we want one." After getting the same reply repeatedly, people stop asking. Also, it calls for no discussion and it can be delivered straight to a busybody or with a smile to one's favorite aunt. In any case, it is 100 percent effective and leaves no hard feelings.

E.P. IN ORANGE, CALIF.
DEAR E.P.: Congratulations. You have just performed a helpful service that I'm sure will be appreciated by the many brides who are too polite to say, "It's none of your business."

CONFIDENTIAL TO "THE OLD PHILOSOPHER": Keeping score of old scores and scars, getting even and one-upping, always makes you less than you are.

MALCOLM FORBES

DEAR READERS: I recently published some letters from readers complaining about children who had never been taught how to behave in public. I received a storm of protests from mothers who were "fed up" with

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Inattentive people who had no patience with children.

A reader in Phoenix sent me a pertinent piece from June's Family Circle magazine. It was written by Joan Wester Anderson. I quote the highlights:

"A toddler is not a miniature adult and cannot be expected to stay quiet or cooperative for more than a few minutes (less, if he's tired, hungry or stressed). Thus, it is more an act of love to protect this child from surroundings in which he cannot cope than to drag him everywhere in a quest for togetherness."

"When exposing a tot to adult settings as an occasional learning experience, it is not a sign of parental failure to remove said toddler should he turn obnoxious..."

"We innocent bystanders have a job to do, too. We can: "Stop wimping out. People who'd like to enjoy a meal can insist that the management move noisemakers.

"Emphasize the adult only nature of certain invitations.

"Offer enthusiastic praise when we spot well-behaved tykes and parents who are exercising common sense and concern for others. "Your children are darling — You're doing a great job" as we pass in a supermarket parking lot may be just the lift a tired parent needs to keep on keeping on. If the rest of us have the right to complain, we have a corresponding duty to affirm. In the long run, this may be the best way to protect everyone's territory."

To Joan, I say, "Right on, sister!"

DEAR ABBY: I work for the U.S. Postal Service, and I'm glad you set the record straight about those fancy new postage stamps. (It is not the taxpayers, as you first stated; our revenues have come from postage sales since the service was reconstructed in 1970.)

Abby, I am a window clerk, and the most popular question people ask me is, "What kind of pretty stamps do you have today?" Most people don't want the same old stamps — they want big, new, beautiful stamps. And as for an Elvis Presley stamp, you won't see it for a long time, because a person has to be dead for at least 10 years before we can put his or her picture on a postage stamp. With Elvis, it will not be easy, because you can't get two people to agree that he's really dead.

POSTAL WORKER IN ROCKPORT, MAINE

DEAR POSTAL WORKER: Although the memory of Elvis lives on, his remains were laid to rest in 1977; therefore, he is eligible for commemoration on a postage stamp.

DEAR READERS: Guess who said, "Life is not a matter of holding good cards but of playing a poor hand well"? Charles Goren? Alfred Scheinwold? No! Robert Louis Stevenson.

Many medicines can treat hypertension

DEAR DR. GOTT: Once a patient has been diagnosed with hypertension, how does a physician go about prescribing the correct medication for control? I've been on numerous samples, all of which produce a severe reaction such as dizzy spells, a red flush, fatigue, etc. Is trial and error the only answer?

Medicines have side effects — ranging from simple fatigue to life-threatening blood disorders — that vary with the drugs and their doses. Although these side effects are not a problem for the majority of patients, there is no way to predict how well — or how badly — a person will react to anti-hypertensive medication

DEAR READER: To a large extent, the treatment of hypertension is a trial-and-error procedure. There are many drugs available for this purpose; most doctors have their favorites and, depending on the severity of the high blood pressure, will use one or another medicine with which they are familiar. To date, there is no one preferred treatment that is universally accepted for this common ailment.

Some physicians choose to treat mild hypertension with diet, exercise and diuretics, kidney-stimulants that reduce excess body fluids and, as a secondary effect, lower blood pressure. Such drugs include hydrochlorothiazide, Hygroton, Maxzide, Dyazide and others.

For moderate hypertension, more doctors are turning to beta-blockers (such as Inderal and atenolol) or to calcium-channel blockers (such as Calan and loptin). Recent studies have shown that angiotensin-converting enzyme inhibitors (such as Captopril, Zestril and Prinivil) are effective and safe, especially if the hypertension is complicated by a weak heart action.

Severe hypertension may require in-hospital control with potent intravenous drugs (such as nitroprusside), followed by one of the above compounds, alone or in combination with diuretics, for out-patient management.

Other useful drugs for moderate-to-severe hypertension include methyldopa (Aldomet), hydralazine (Apresoline) and reserpine (Serpasil). All anti-hypertension medi-

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
A beginner quickly learns to guard the trick-taking potential of honor cards. This becomes a habit that is difficult to overcome. Look at today's deal. South opened with a strong artificial two-club bid, bid his natural heart suit and then jumped to game in hearts. When a club was led, it appeared that declarer would have four losers — three spades and the king of hearts — unless the king of hearts was singleton. Or perhaps there would be a free finesse against the heart king if the defenders led hearts. So declarer played a low spade at trick two, saving his spade king for later. East won with the spade nine and led back a heart. South put in the queen; West won the king and returned the suit. Declarer now cashed all of his heart tricks but one. He hoped that the defender with the spade ace would blank it. No such luck. Eventually declarer had to lose two more spade tricks for down one. And the winning play? At trick two, declarer should boldly lay down the spade king, hoping that West holds the spade ace. To cut down spade ruffs in dummy, West will then have to lead a heart, but in doing so, he offers a free finesse. On the actual layout, suppose West takes the spade ace and plays a trump. South will win and play a second spade. If East wins, he does not have a second trump to play. If West wins, he cannot play another heart without giving up his natural trump winner.
