Bike race planned for today

SANFORD — Race out this morning and get into shape. This morning at 9 a.m. in the North Star Business Park, the Orlando Road Club, in conjunction with the city of Sanford and the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, is sponsoring a bicycle race they are calling the Natural Florida Criterium. A criterion is an action-packed race that involves the community spectators in the race by allowing them to offer prizes, also called "prizes" to the winners of individual laps during the race. The closed course, which is less than one mile in circumference, will be the location of six races this morning, ranging from 10 to 30 miles in length. The fee is $8 per race and registration is half an hour prior to each race. An additional $2 insurance fee will be charged for each rider. North Star Business Park is located 1.2 miles east of Interstate 4 on State Road 46 (First Street) in Sanford.

Attempt to free antenna fails

PASADENA, Calif. — Heating in sunlight and cooling in shade has failed again to open the Galileo spacecraft's stuck antenna that threatens to cripple the $1.4 billion mission to Jupiter. Radio signals indicated none of the umbrella-shaped antenna's ribs came loose after the antenna was shaded behind the spacecraft Tuesday and Wednesday, the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said in a statement. The antenna had been warmed in sunlight Feb. 17-19. Engineers hope repeated warming and cooling cycles will allow it to open. It will be warmed up again March 19-21, then cooled off in April. The antenna dish failed to fully open when its motor was first turned on last April 11. Galileo is scheduled to reach Jupiter in December 1995 and orbit the planet for two years. It was supposed to take 50,000 pictures, but a smaller antenna will be able to transmit only about 2,000 pictures. Galileo was deployed from space shuttle Atlantis on Oct. 18, 1989.

Sun saves festival; event ends today

SANFORD — Though it seemed that the St. John's River Fine Arts and Crafts Show in Ft. Mellon Park on Saturday would be a repeat of last year's stormy show, eventually the sun dried and brightened the day.

With the improved conditions, Maritza Elias' mood also got better. Elias and the Sanford-Seminole Art Association organized the show and was concerned that thunderstorms would drive away both artists and spectators.

"I guess we prayed hard enough," she laughed, basking in the late afternoon sun. "This is beautiful."

Residents of Sanford, Lake Mary, Longwood and elsewhere in Seminole County shared the best of show prizes in several categories along with artists from outside the county.

The show continues today in the park along the shores of Lake Monroe on the edge of downtown.

The day Saturday began drearily, but after noon the dreary gray that dripped lazily across SANFORD — While mostly everyone else in Sanford was sleeping this morning, Cecil Wright was in making a long, slow journey down U.S. Highway 17-92 to a remote airfield in DeLeon Springs (in Volusia County) where he was to have tested his wings.

Wright and his son, Duane, spent the better part of the last few years constructing a seven-eighths scale model of a 1914 Lafayette Escadrille, the French fighter plane used by Americans before the Americans officially entered World War I.

"It's got a 22-foot wing span," Wright said of the plane. "So it's not exactly something that will go unnoticed going down the road."

He took the airplane on the road at 4:30 this morning in an effort to avoid angering too many other motorists with his slow pace.

"If we drive too fast with the plane," he said jokingly, "it could become airborne before we are ready for it."

The plane, he said, is a mere 350 pounds.

Lake Mary adds more new homes

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Another $1 million-plus worth of new homes has been approved in Lake Mary. It's the second consecutive month of such growth.

According to Lois Long-Abrams, administrative secretary with the City of Lake Mary, "The total value of nine new homes for which building permits have been issued in February was $1,129,914." January's figure for 11 new permits was over $1.2 million.

Lake Mary's population doubled from 1980 to 1990, has not stopped growing. City Planner Matt West reports a population of 2,853 in 1980, 5,929 in 1990, and a present estimate of 6,223. "From this point on," he observed, "the growth will depend on the availability of land within the city for development, which is rapidly diminishing."

Many of the new homes are being permitted for Meadow Brooke, one of the fastest growing new communities in Lake Mary. Three of the homes permitted in February will be on Leslie Lane in the subdivision. Meadow Brooke spokesperson Asia Saltmarsh said, "We'll be applying for at least seven more residential permits during March." As of the end of Feb. 14 permits have been issued for the area.

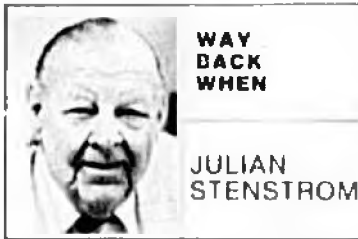

Other growth areas include Hills of Lake Mary and Timacuan, with two building permits taken out for each of them during Feb.

Two of the homes have also received permits for swimming pools, which adds another $20,000 to the value.

Files indicate the last time the total value of building permits issued in a particular month has not exceeded $1 million since June of 1990. In all, only 60 building permits were taken out during the entire previous year.

One commercial building permit was taken out in Lake Mary last month. The permit is for a discount auto parts store at 115 Middle Street. City Planner Matt West expects commercial permits to increase as the year progresses. "The only things holding the

Book reveals first militia

I'm sure you're beginning to think I can't produce a column without mentioning dear old friend and famed Sanford athlete, Buddy Lake. But he recently brought to my attention a book in the Seminole County Historical Society's library located south of Sanford on U.S. 17-92 in what was once the county's old folks home.

The book is "Forerunners Courageous" by former Florida Governor LeRoy Collins. Produced in 1971 by Calceade Publishers, Inc., Tallahassee, it's a series of stories about men, women, families and events that left an indelible mark on

SANFORD — Pauline and Kenneth Snyder thought they were doing the right thing by seeking county approval for their home day care business for about seven neighborhood kids on Lake Avenue. "They're just neighborhood kids," said Kenneth Snyder. "We've been keeping some of them since they were born."

But now, he says, Seminole County regulations have already cost them $250 and may require them to pay hundreds of dollars more.

And the county might be wrong. County officials, on learning Wednesday of a five-year-old law prohibiting counties and cities from blocking home day-care businesses in areas where homes are allowed, began an investigation to determine whether the Snyders' fees should be returned to them.

"This is the first one I've come across," said Ginny Markley, county zoning coordinator. "If the county attorney comes and tells me

"If the county attorney comes and tells me they don't need a special exception, I'll return their money."

they don't need a special exception, I'll return their money."

County Attorney Bob McMillan said he would research the issue.

If the county upholds the requirements, the decision may affect about 80 other such in-home businesses, a state official said Wednesday.

The Snyders ventured into the quagmire of county regulation on a suggestion from a state licensing official to go to the Seminole County Tax Collectors Office to obtain an occupational license for their in-home day care business. That license would cost them $50, but it couldn't be issued unless the business was properly zoned, they said they were told.

Next, the Snyders went to the county Current Planning Division where they were told they would need a "special exception" for the business from the county Board of Adjustment. The fee: $250.

Wednesday, county Development Review Committee members, in review the special exception request, informed the Snyders they may need a sprinkler system installed in their double-wide trailer south of the Sanford airport at 5415 Lake Ave. They were also informed they may need fencing to block the children's play area and a parking area from neighbor's view.

"A fence could cost us a good $1,000, $1,500," said Pauline Snyder. "A sprinkler system I don't even know about that. How can you put a sprinkler system in a mobile home?"

The Snyders say they make little money from their business, which they do more as a service to neighbors than as a money-making venture. They charge single parents

Florida's highly interesting history. It's not a story about Collins' political career, although he's involved in the final chapter dealing with the history of his family home in Tallahassee known as "The Grove."

Collins was Florida's chief executive in the 1950's. During his six years in office the State decided to build a new governor's mansion on the site of the old manston. Collins moved from the old mansion to his own home — "The Grove." When the new mansion was completed Collins moved into it. When his term expired he moved back into "The Grove" where he remained until he died in 1991. But he didn't leave "The Grove" even then. He's buried in a cemetery on the estate among his fore-runners.

Among the historical events related in his book is a yarn about a world's heavyweight championship fight in 1894 in Jacksonville. A few of you old timers might recall the champion at that time was James J. Corbett. Old timer and former sports editor of The Charlotte Observer — George Touhy of Sanford will tell you Corbett was also known as "Gentleman Jim." His opponent and challenger was the British champion, Charles Mitchell of England.

What's all this got to do with Sanford? Well, it's Sunday morning. You're sittin' there at your breakfast table sipping coffee and reading The Herald. So, keep your robe and slippers on and I'll tell you.

The proposed fight, promoted by the Duval Athletic Club, was announced in October, 1893. It was to be held at the Jacksonville Fairgrounds, Jan. 25, 1894. From the day it was announced the citizens of Jacksonville split into almost two equal factions. One hailed the proposed bout, the other deplored it.

Duval County Sheriff Napoleon Bonaparte Broward (a future Florida governor) was told to "resist with force" any attempt by anyone, including the fighters, to even enter the Fairgrounds on Jan. 25. That order came from then Florida Governor Henry L. Mitchell (no relation to challenger Charles Mitchell). He said that if the fight was held those responsible would "suffer the consequences."

Duval County Sheriff Napoleon Bonaparte Broward (a future Florida governor) was told to "resist with force" any attempt by anyone, including the fighters, to even enter the Fairgrounds on January 25. That order came from then Florida Governor Henry L. Mitchell (no relation to challenger Charles Mitchell). He said that if the fight was held those responsible would "suffer the consequences."

The verbal battle between those for the fight and those against it gradually reached a pitch of heated deliberations. It got so volatile it was feared martial law would have to be declared to maintain law and order.

In fact, to prevent hostile activities on the part of the two factions the "Gate City Rifles" of Sanford were alerted to prepare to go to Jacksonville to insure peace would be maintained.

Folks, this was the first I'd ever heard of the "Gate City Rifles." Sanford was founded about 1870 and incorporated in 1877. I did know that at that time Sanford was often referred to as "The Gate City" to interior Florida. Henry Plant had built his railroad as far south as Sanford. And, steamboats laden with passengers and freight had final destinations farther south than Sanford. Therefore, it's apparent that Sanford's first militia had to be formed sometime between 1870 and 1894.

The opposition to the fight even sought a court injunction to prevent the affair from being held. The attempt failed when the court decided there were no state statutes or local ordinances pertaining to such an activity.

January 25th arrived. Tickets for the 2 o'clock afternoon bout went for $10 (just to get into the Fairgrounds) and $25 (for ringside seats). Betting was extremely heavy.

I can't recall Sanford or Seminole County ever having an "athletic club" such as the one in Duval. But I can tell you there was a Lake Monroe Athletic Club. Not only did it sponsor sporting events, it promoted an annual baby contest. I know it to be true because in 1921, I was named "Baby-of-The-Year" and I've got a certificate to prove it. The Herald, in its 1977 centennial edition, ran my baby photo!

To make a long story short, the fight went off as promoted. Corbett knocked out Mitchell in the third round. When the challenger was revived Sheriff Broward arrested both fighters. Each posted bonds and left town.

Corbett returned to Jacksonville the following month for trial. A jury of four whites and two blacks brought in a verdict of "not guilty." Since "Gentleman Jim" had been exonerated, the charges against Mitchell were dropped. He'd already returned to England, anyway.

Before he died, Collins wrote: "Folks today are subjected to more violence in a 30-second commercial about acid indigestion than what went on in Jacksonville that 25th day of January, 1894."

The outcome of the fight turned out to be secondary to the potentially volatile situation that existed in Jacksonville prior to the contest.

Finally, did the "Gate City Rifles" of Sanford ever go to Jacksonville?

Collins didn't say in his book one way or the other. My friend, Lake, doesn't know. I haven't asked him but I'll wager old sports editor Touhy doesn't know, either.

By the way, "Forerunners Courageous" is not only available at the County's Historical Society, there's a copy at the County library in downtown Sanford. I don't know if the General Sanford Library & Museum has one or not. If not, perhaps folks there will arrange to get one.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Longwood firm saves energy

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

ORLANDO — Sonny Panholzer suddenly finds himself spending a lot of time talking to people from the U.S. Navy, the Postal Service, the state energy office and other cities and counties around the nation.

The reason is that he and a small crew of Orlando city employees are actually doing what many others — in government agencies, private corporations and numerous enterprises in between — are only talking about.

Without fanfare, or even much long-range planning, they have been testing and installing or retrofitting innovative equipment in public buildings and facilities that has reduced the city's power bills from 12 percent to 20 percent.

There has been substantial reduction in water usage, too.

The careful research and use of high-tech equipment through the still-modest energy management program implemented by the city's Department of Public Works has stirred much interest.

A major reason for the blossoming program is that much of the research and development, as well as installation, is carried out by Orlando-area companies working closely with city employees.

One of the companies, Condyne Technology Inc. is rapidly acquiring national reputations for innovative work in the energy management and conservation field.

Condyne's based in Longwood, manufactures microprocessor-based energy-saving units that are hooked up to air conditioning systems and heating systems, thermostats and general purpose electric motors used in homes, commerce and industry.

Within the year, all of Orlando's fire stations will be outfitted with Condyne's power-slashing devices on air conditioning and electric motors.

Condyne Technology Inc. claims energy savings of up to 30 percent for its energy-saving units, called Conquest and Motordyne.

The inventor of the Condyne technology, Gary Heath, says the units monitor incoming electrical current, smooth it out, and eliminate the unneeded, extreme highs and lows that waste power. This stabilizes the efficiency of the motor, lengthens its lifetime and eliminates power wastage, he said.

Condyne sells its plug-in units in retail markets to homeowners and small businesses.

Condyne is also cooperating with the Florida Energy Office, the U.S. Navy, the Postal Service, public utilities in a half-dozen states and restaurant and supermarket chains in usage-testing of its technology, said Executive Vice President Ed Haversat.

New judges sworn

Seminole County's newest judges, circuit Judge Wallace H. Hall, and county Judge Marlene M. Alva, took their oath of office and were presented with their robes and gavels Friday afternoon. Clarence T. Johnson, Jr., Circuit Judge of the 18th Judicial Circuit, top photo, left, swears Judge Hall in to office. Judge Alva, right, also took the oath. Hall will fill a vacancy created Dec. 31 following the retirement of circuit Judge Joseph Davis, a 12-year veteran. Alva replaced county Judge Harold Johnson who died in November of colon cancer. Alva will assume her duties Monday. Hall doesn't anticipate changing benches until early April.

New shuttle now closer to launch

By MARCIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — Hundreds of Kennedy Space Center workers cheered and snapped pictures Saturday as NASA's new shuttle, Endeavour, emerged from the hangar and moved a step closer to its first liftoff.

The shuttle is scheduled to lift off on a satellite-repair mission in early May. The weeklong flight will be highlighted by three spacewalks. Astronauts will go out to attach a motor to a communications satellite stranded in a uselessly low orbit, and twice more to practice spacewalking techniques.

The shiny white and black spaceship was transported slowly from the hangar to the Vehicle Assembly Building just a few hundred yards away. A recording of Kate Smith singing "God Bless America" boomed from loudspeakers.

Endeavour, NASA's $2 billion replacement for Challenger, will spend about a week in the giant assembly building. Workers will attach twin solid rocket boosters and an external tank to the orbiter, then transport the shuttle to the launch pad.

Endeavour arrived at Kennedy last May from Rockwell International's shuttle assembly plant in Palmdale, Calif. The ship filled the gap left by Challenger, which exploded shortly after liftoff in January 1986, killing all seven aboard.

Endeavour is named after the first ship commanded by James Cook, an 18th century British explorer; hence the British spelling of the name.

State helps to pay for new Space Coast attraction

Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL — The state has agreed to help finance a $40 million attraction dedicated to the Apollo lunar program at the Kennedy Space Center.

The Apollo-Saturn 5 Center planned in the shadows of the 52-story Vehicle Assembly

Building would house a Saturn 5 rocket, Apollo capsule, lunar lander and launch control center firing room.

The center will be a regular stop on bus tours at Spaceport USA, the main tourist attraction at the space center.

The state said Friday it would sell $27 million in bonds through its Spaceport Florida

Authority, a state agency created to lure space-related business to Florida and authorized to issue bonds for its projects.

TW Recreational Services Inc., which operates the Spaceport USA visitor center, will be responsible for project management and operations. Eddie Harrison, spokesman for the visitors center, said the state bond guarantee would enable NASA to build the attraction much more quickly.

"It's going to speed up the process of building this center by four or five years," he said. "Without the assistance from Spaceport Florida, we probably wouldn't be able to get started until 1997."

Opening of bridge over I-4 in Lake Mary delayed

LAKE MARY — The opening of the new Interstate 4 interchange at Lake Mary Boulevard has been delayed.

Betty Hardy, spokesman for Reynolds, Smith and Hills, said Friday the planned March 9 opening of the $7 million interchange had to be delayed until the end of this week due to recent rains which delayed completion of the project. Hardy said the opening is tentatively set for Friday morning.

Hardy said the rains last week slowed the paving of the southern span of the nine-lane bridge. East- and westbound traffic on Lake Mary Boulevard now share the northern span which will soon carry only westbound traffic.

Road construction crews will close single lanes for both east- and westbound I-4 traffic to-night. Alternate inside and outside lanes for westbound traffic will be closed between 9 p.m. tonight and 6 a.m. Monday morning. Alternate lanes for eastbound traffic will be closed during the same time, said Hardy.

Lane closures will also occur Monday night between 9 p.m. and 6 a.m. Tuesday, she said.

Human toll

Partly because the Reagan administration squandered so much money during the 1980s, an enormous stack of unpaid bills has piled up on the doorstep of the American taxpayer. And because the bills arrived at about the same time as the collapse of Soviet communism, cash to pay the debts is being taken from the Defense Department budget. This makes sense, and in fact is overdue. But Congress and the administration can't simply slash military spending. The consequences, especially the human impact, must be recognized and dealt with.

The Pentagon wants to cut $50 billion from military spending from 1992 through 1997, but some lawmakers and independent analysts seek much deeper reductions. Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, predicts that by 1996 the cuts will cost the jobs of more than 2 million personnel and employees of defense industries. Their pain will be as real as that of the unemployed auto worker or waitress, and the government cannot in good conscience be oblivious to this human dimension of its actions.

But how to soften the impact? Nunn has several suggestions. For example, he thinks military personnel ought to be given leaves of absence during their last year of service so they can learn skills that might land them jobs in civilian life. That makes more sense than for them to be doing make-work in uniform until their severance.

Other ideas being floated aren't so good — for example, the notion that companies making military widgets should be given government contracts to turn out civilian gadgets instead. This approach defeats the chief purpose of military cutbacks: saving money.

As a practical political matter it will be hard to muster support for the needed military cuts if ways aren't found to cushion the blow of unemployment. While many men and women in uniform don't have skills that civilian employers can readily use, they often have traits employers crave: maturity, discipline and a willingness to sacrifice. That's a good place to start.

A federal case

Congress threatens to choke the federal courts by making a federal case out of all kinds of things.

Three justices have raised warnings. Justice Sandra Day O'Connor told a House Appropriations subcommittee, which controls the courts' budget, that making federal offenses out of what already are state crimes will have a bad effect on the court system as a whole.

Justice Antonin Scalia called for exercising discipline in creating federal civil and criminal causes of action. He told the panel federal courts cannot be turned into police courts.

Speaking before the American Bar Association in Dallas, Chief Justice William Rehnquist warned against two pending bills, which he said would add to the jamming of the courts. One would open the federal courts to women who are alleged victims of sex abuse. The other would make a federal crime of every crime committed with a firearm.

Can't the authors of such bills see that they are going to extremes? The three justices can. And if Congress doesn't listen, and congestion in the federal courts worsens, the nation can expect a plague of cases in which justice delayed is justice defeated.

What next? FBI agents assigned to direct traffic and issue overtime parking tickets and federal trials for the accused?

Berry's World

Television and youthful learning

Human behavior is unpredictable in some instances because of the different ways individuals respond to positive and negative stimuli. A person's response repertoire is individualistic and conditioned by prior experiences. The television as a medium for shaping values and actions has been presented as the villain in many courtrooms in this land. Defense attorneys have suggested that television programming played a critical role in their particular client's behavior.

It is estimated that most Americans own television sets even in homes where there is an absence of indoor plumbing. It is also estimated that Americans of all ages spend an inordinate amount of time in front of their television set.

Because of the difficulty in specifically correlating deviant behavior to a television show, psychologists speak in generalities about the television and its impact upon behavior.

As an individual grows and matures there are multiple factors that influence development. Normally the family, the people living in his immediate household, are the primary inculcators of societal mores. Their function is to prepare the young child for his entry into the wider society i.e. pre-school and kindergarten. These families are expected to teach children values and ways of behaving that are socially appropriate.

The reality for many children is that the television set becomes a surrogate mother, dating from early childhood. Whether mothers

are employed or not, multitudes of children are spending precious hours gazing into television sets. The problems with television as a surrogate mother are legend. First and foremost the child is deprived of dialogue when televiewing. There are no questions and answers so characteristic of two-year-olds. Dialogue enhances conversational and thinking skills. Hours spent with the child as a passive participant doesn't enhance development in this area.

Television programming is a dimension that requires careful scrutiny in determining which programs will facilitate the values and behaviors that parents are endeavoring to instill. Children left to selecting their own television programs are placed in jeopardy of seeing a kaleidoscope of violent and sexually explicit offerings without any discussion of the negatives associated with them. They see people constantly killing people without reason or remorse.

They view sexual encounters that display no valuing of individuals and devoid of any commitment. Children are like sponges and unconsciously may absorb a great percentage of what they view in the absence of parental instruction and discussion. They may emulate the characters they have viewed in relating to others.

The first line of defense against television programs that leave much to be desired is the family. Families need to establish clear rules about television viewing. Types of programs and the length of time to schedule for televiewing should be thoroughly discussed. Television on school nights is questionable. Children need time for homework, to prepare for the next day and for adequate rest and some physical activity. Reading for fun and talking with parents about what is being read is more rewarding.

VP on campaign trail untethered

WASHINGTON — Vice President Dan Quayle, who was kept on a tight leash in the 1988 presidential campaign, has wandered out of the White House and into the campaign fray this time. His handlers are at a loss to tell him what to do, and the Bush campaign is in such disarray that no one has time to reel him back in.

The marching orders that best describe Quayle's campaign role are, "You're on your own."

The Republican heavyweights who would be in the best position to help prep and protect Quayle in this campaign — Secretary of State Jim Baker, Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney and Housing Secretary Jack Kemp — are themselves preoccupied with jockeying for a place against him in the 1996 race. And if the truth be told, their own fortunes are enhanced each time Quayle does something un-presidential.

Kemp and Cheney are low-key about their political ambitions and how they intend to achieve them, but Jim Baker, the Texas Richelieu, is not above a little palace intrigue. Baker is crucial to the Bush re-election, but he sees no percentage in helping Quayle look good now. When Baker is being kind, he calls Quayle a "lightweight." His falling out with Marilyn Quayle, who has grown fond of the title "First Lady To Be," is already graffiti material on Washington walls.

There is no question that Quayle is definitely out of the nest this time. But did he jump or was he pushed? Some conservative advisers say they set Quayle loose to get him out of their hair. Others say Quayle struck out on his own, and his handlers are at a loss to make him understand the seriousness of the situation he is facing this time out.

A member of the GOP re-election team told us in frustration that Quayle thinks this election will be a cakewalk compared to the last, when he was the butt of Johnny Carson jokes. One member of the Republican National Campaign Committee says Quayle feels "invincible," thanks to a positive profile of him by The Washington Post. The newspaper put its top political and investigative reporters on Quayle and came up with nothing more sinister in his character than political ambition. "That aceria gave him new confidence in himself, and he really feels he will shine on the campaign trail this year," the GOP source told us.

If Quayle is going to shine, it won't be because he gets any coaching from the Bush re-election team because no one knows who is in charge of the campaign. Since the death of Lee Atwater last year, no one has emerged with the ability and the willingness to exercise leadership.

One GOP strategist says that within the troika managing Bush's campaign, Robert Teeter has the best political instincts, but hates to take charge; Fred Malek wants to take over, but his instincts are terrible; and Robert Moebacher wants to have something more than a ceremonial role, but no one at the White House is willing to give him what he wants.

Meanwhile, Quayle is setting his own agenda. Whose idea was it to go forth? "The vice president's, absolutely," one of his aides told us. "He has no illusions about 1992."

Some GOP leaders think otherwise. In a re-election campaign, the president has to keep above the fray and the vice president's job is to be point man and take the hits.

Although Quayle recently made three forceful appearances, GOP analysts say that he is not ready for a debate. He still loses his cool when confronted with tough questions from the press.

ELLEN GOODMAN

Some Democrats talk issues

BOSTON — Paul Tsongas takes some getting used to.

There is his name. Tsongas, as in the poster at a New Hampshire pool: "Tawimmers for Tsongas".

There is his humor. It runs the gamut from droll to dry to wry.

There is also his appearance. Dour. And his defining, life-changing experience. Cancer.

Then there is his prescription to cure the economy. It sounds like the economic equivalent of a bone-marrow transplant. Pretty grim. Great if it works.

The people of New Hampshire had the time to get used to the man from Lowell, Massachusetts. They got over the slight speech impediment and the gray affect and the Speedo swimsuit. Somewhere along the line they stopped thinking of him as another Greek from Massachusetts.

He became the plain, direct, straight-ahead guy who said, clearly, what was wrong and said, clearly, what he would do about it. Again and again. He convinced the voters that he wasn't Santa Claus and might not be a star, but he knew what he was talking about.

This morning-after-the-election-night-before, some will tell you that Tsongas won because New England is his turf. Local boy makes good.

Some will tell you that he didn't win. Clinton lost. To Gennifer, to the draft board, to the media. Or maybe they'll say that Clinton won because he survived.

Some will tell you that Tsongas is just "The Green Room," the waiting room of the Democratic primary. A safe place to put your vote until the real star of the party takes the stage.

Some will tell you that he'll have his slightly balding head handed to him in the South and the West. That he isn't much for pressing the flesh and has a bit too much arrogance and too little cash.

And there is some truth in all of this. But sitting here on the New Hampshire border watching this primary unfold over weeks and months, in ads and debates, in the marathon testing of men and messages it looks like Tsongas took hold for one reason. He was the one Democrat who said best what people know in their gut. The whole world is changing under our feet; we better start catching up.

Credit Pat Buchanan for the most-effective Bush-bashing. But the Democrats in New Hampshire were sending a message as well: George Bush is history. Not in the grotesque Arnold Schwarzenegger sense of the word — "Hasta la vista, baby." Bush is history in the literal sense. World War II. The Cold War. The Eighties.

No bragging about how we won the Cold War, no rousing choruses of "We're number one," not even a replay of the Iraq desert song can change reality.

There is a strong sense across the country that as the world changes, we are mired in a backwater of nostalgia and economic decay. This is our first post-Cold War election and the atmosphere here is not unlike England in 1948 when the people turned out Churchill. Thank you very much, sir, and good-bye.

"People want the truth and I am giving it to them," said Tsongas. Humility is not the strong suit of this self-declared truth-teller. But clarity is. And so is persistence. He doggedly presented himself as the "pro-business liberal" offering pain and perestroika and a pamphlet of economic ideas.

Somewhere in New Hampshire Bob Kerrey's persona blurred around the edges and Tom Harkin played to the past and Jerry Brown became as jarring as an 800 number on automatic re-dial.

What brought the former senator to the front of the pack was his ability to state the problem and offer a plan. And what stopped Bill Clinton's slide into oblivion was not his charm or even his cool under fire. It was persistent and confident answers to question after question about what we should do.

This campaign may degenerate into sound-bites and back-biting. By September we may be back to red, white and blue. What is worth noting is that the campaign began in New Hampshire with voters looking for the guy who can tell them how to get out of the rut.

They want to know what happens next. It's that old and that fresh.

The first round went to Citizens for Tsongas. The message is that we're getting serious — at last.

Voters are looking for the guy who can get them out of the rut.

 the landscape gave way to vibrant blues and cheery puffs of white.
 "This is absolutely perfect weather for an art show," said Kelli Kendra of Sanford. "I go to a lot of art shows around the area and I really love this one. I would be real disappointed if people would have to miss this because of the weather."
 Kendra said that she did not come to spend money, but rather to take in the beauty of the artwork.
 "It's really fine art this year," she said. "It's not a simple craft show."
 Steve Ruddy, whose designs and jewelry in titanium ranged in price from $25 to more than $100 said he had not sold much, but had had many who had come to admire his work.
 "This is supposed to be a money making venture," he said, "but I think the weather had a lot to do with people's mood. It'll be better tomorrow (Sunday)."

 Elias said that the festival organizers had made an attempt to ensure that the artwork was of a higher calibre than in past years.
 Singers from the Great American Sing-a-Long of Sanford had been scheduled to entertain at the show, but did not set up on Saturday due to the inclement weather. They have promised to entertain today, weather permitting.
 "I think we should do much better Sunday," Elias promised.
 Gary Monroe, a contemporary photographer at Daytona Beach Community College and Gary Bolding, director of the Duncan Gallery of Art at Setaon University were charged with selecting the best works at the show on Saturday.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED REDISTRICTING OF CITY OF SANFORD

This notice is being provided by counsel for Plaintiffs in Delattibaudiere v. City of Sanford, CIV No. 83-739-CIV-ORL-17, a class action brought by black residents of Sanford to challenge at-large city-wide voting for members of the City of Sanford Commission on September 19, 1983. As part of this case, the United States District Court for the Middle District of Florida, Orlando Division, entered a Final Judgment on April 17, 1984 establishing four single member districts in the City of Sanford. It is the opinion of Plaintiffs' counsel that these proposed districts comply with the Voting Rights Act. A chart comparing Demographic Data Reflecting Population and Voter Registration in the City of Sanford based on 1980 and 1990 Census Data is provided.

Longwood mulls asking sheriff to patrol city

City seeks ways to cut expenses

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — The City of Longwood is examining ways to cut back on expenses. Under present discussion is a suggestion to get rid of the City's police department.

The City Commission met with an ad hoc committee last week. The committee was established to seek ways to trim the city's budget. The main point of discussion however, was the possibility of turning law enforcement in Longwood over to the Seminole County Sheriff's Department.

This first meeting between the Commission and the committee was described as organizational. Mayor Adrienne Perry said, "At this point, we're not ready to make a decision. We are going to continue contacting other cities who have consolidated their law enforcement, and find out how it has worked for them, what the problems might be, and how much money could be saved."

Spokesman for the Seminole County Sheriff's department George Proechel said the County presently does not handle law enforcement in any of the municipalities. "I don't believe anyone in Longwood has been in contact with us about this matter at the present."

The ad hoc committee meetings were initiated by Commissioner Claudi Keith. "This isn't just to look at law enforcement,"

she commented, "the committee is to look at all of the high cost items in our budget and see what might be done to reduce them."

Keith is serving her first term on the City Commission. "When I first came on board and we started talking about the City budget," she observed, "we were hearing a lot of justification for spending, but not enough facts and information. We're trying to resolve that with this committee."

City Administrator Don Terry explained, "We hope to have the police consolidation matter resolved by the first of June, with a town meeting, perhaps at Lyman High School, scheduled for the middle of June, and give everyone the opportunity to be heard on this subject."

"From that point on," he said, "the matter will probably come up in a referendum in November."

North Seminole escapes hail

From Staff and wire reports

While hail and rain caused isolated, heavy damage in Longwood and elsewhere in south Seminole County on Friday evening, law enforcement officials in Sanford and Lake Mary said the effects of the storm were minimal in those areas.

For example, Melissa Johnson, a dispatcher with the Sanford Police Department, said on Saturday that department received no complaints related to the weather.

"We didn't have the first call about it," she said. "It sure didn't effect anyone here."

The Florida Highway Patrol said they had no reports of accidents along the highways in Seminole County during the late afternoon storm.

The rest of the county did not fare so well, however.

"The roofs are completely gone," said Judith Duncan, manager of the Capistrano Condominium in Altamonte Springs, where 10 families lost their roofs. "There is so much hail it looks like Colorado out here."

The families were forced to seek lodging from relatives, friends and hotels.

The storm hit hardest from 5 to 5:30 p.m. in a 3-mile-wide swath from Longwood to Fern Park in Seminole County, then continued southwest into east Orange and Brevard counties.

In Altamonte Springs, parts of a brick wall fell at a hotel and crushed two cars and a gas station canopy collapsed on more cars.

Across south Seminole, ice chunks ranging from marble- to golf ball-size piled up 4 to 12 inches deep along streets where azaleas had been blooming minutes before.

"This is just like in Cleveland," said an elderly woman shovelling hail off her sidewalk at the Lake of the Woods community in Fern Park.

The storm moved southeast at 15 mph with winds of more than 58 mph. Rain totals were not available for the area, but the National Weather Service estimated close to 2 inches were dumped on the area during the hour-long storm.

Two unoccupied cars at the Days Lodge in Altamonte Springs were crushed when brick facades on two buildings peeled away, said Pfc. Mark Anderson, a police spokesman.

Weekend quilt show held here

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — No longer just a means of keeping warm, quilts are now recognized for their artistic value as well.

On Friday and Saturday, several hundred quilts, like paintings made in cloth, hung from specially designed frames in the Sanford Civic Center.

Admirers examined designs and compared stitches on the pieces while others sat in isolated corners experimenting with stitches of their own. Cameras flashed as artisans sought out ideas for designs of their own.

"There's a special bond among quilters," Janet Smith, vice president in charge of membership for the Central Florida Quilters Guild, said. The guild sponsored the show which wrapped up Saturday afternoon.

Smith said that more than 1,000 people made their way through the show over the two days.

"We've had 12 people join our guild on the spot as a result of this show," she said. "It's been wonderful."

The guild meets on the fourth Thursday of the month at 7 p.m. at the Sanford Civic Center. It currently has more than 100 members.

On Saturday an award was given for the viewer's choice of the best of the show. That prize was given to Kiyoshi Yamaguchi of Statesboro, Ga.

His quilt, called "Wave" incorporated several traditional designs into a modern blend of blues, teals and whites.

Ex-official removed from board

J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Former Seminole County county manager Ken Hooper has been removed from a regional transportation advisory committee for failure to attend meetings.

Actually, Hooper attended only one of the monthly Citizens Advisory Committee meetings after he was appointed by county commissioners in May 1991, said Keith Caskey, a senior transportation planner with the Metropolitan Planning Organization.

Hooper said he has been busy performing consulting jobs for an Orlando firm, Professional Engineering Co., since he was ousted from his county manager's position in October 1990.

"Time commitments are tough," said Hooper.

Hooper did note the CAC did not meet on a regular basis during the last eight months. Hooper also serves on the county Library Advisory Board.

"Everybody's busy, but there's no excuse for that," Furlong said.

Stretch on I-4 has 4 crashes

SANFORD — The Florida Highway Patrol reported four accidents within a five mile stretch of Interstate 4 Friday between 11 a.m. and noon.

Spokesman Linda Felton said on Saturday that all of the accidents were minor and did not involve any serious injuries, but she said it was unusual to have so many accidents in such close proximity and in such a short time span.

"I guess it is a little unusual, but since they were so minor we barely took note of them," she said.

The accidents were all on the eastbound side of the interstate and occurred at Highway 44 in Volusia County, at the bridge between Sanford and DeBary, at a spot just west of Highway 46 in Sanford and at the Highway 46 exit in Sanford.

High school report

Lake Mary

Allison Slater Senior

March to be busy time for Rams at Lake Mary

LAKE MARY — March roared in like a lion for Lake Mary High School students, especially for seniors who will enjoy the unofficial Senior Skip Day on Thursday to celebrate the less than three months that are left of their high school careers. One senior, Tomer Selfan, was recently named the schoolwide PRIDE winner in Social Studies. Writing PRIDE winner Marc Collins and Science PRIDE winner Will Huttner won the countywide PRIDE competitions recently also. As school committee made up of seniors Allison Slater, Melissa Mau, Ryan Munns, Charlotte Offer, Lisa Tyll, Bekah Boothe and Brett Leckie is aiding the administration in coordinating the LMHS Prom Promise Program sponsored by Nationwide Insurance during the month of March. In an effort to raise awareness among students about the effects of drugs and alcohol, especially when driving, the program will encourage students to sign a contract promising that they will not take drugs or alcohol on Prom night, which for LMHS will be May 16. The program was kicked off on Friday with a drunk driving simulation in the parking lot. Students were able to get behind the wheel of a car which simulated alcohol's effects on driving ability. Students found themselves swerving all over the road and nearly hitting passers-by. Senior Bekah Boothe was recently named the LMHS Walt Disney Dreamer and Doer for 1992. The award goes to an outstanding junior or senior who effectively demonstrates Walt Disney's "Four C's": Courage, Curiosity, Constancy, and Confidence.

International festival tops Seminoles' week

SANFORD — This past week Seminole hosted its annual Foreign Language Week. There were many festivities going on throughout the entire week. Each day started off with the pledge of allegiance to the flag said in a foreign language and then repeated in English. On Tuesday night, Polyglots hosted their own banquet in the school cafeteria. They invited parents and school administrators. The week turned out great with lots of participation; now it's back to English. We're thankful to have such a great foreign language department. Destiny and Pizzazz — Seminole's vocal ensembles, will be hosting a first time show, "SHS Presents." The show will be held on March 18 and 19 and any student is welcome to perform and show off their talents. The two groups are using this as a fund-raiser to travel to Washington, D.C.

for their state competition in April. A huge track meet was held on Friday at the Seminole stadium. Many people came out to watch this big event of the track season. Schools came from all over the District to compete in this multi-county meet. The Seminole track team finished very well with some personal records set. Basketball season ended with many victories and personal accomplishments for the players. As that season came to a close so did the cheerleading. For the senior players and cheerleaders and our mascot — Sammy Seminole (Arash Farshid), this is a disappointing time, as these special high school activities come to an end. New try-outs will be coming up which means these devoted students will move on to future endeavors after graduating.

Paki helps kids get home

By VICKI DeBONNIE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A three-and-a-half inch tall character is making his way into the schools and will hopefully help children when they need it most. Paki, the cartoon characterization of the Life Pak Company's medical information packet, is being introduced into the classrooms at Hamilton Elementary School in Sanford and plans are being made to introduce him to other schools. Paki's image is seen on stickers in the windows of many downtown Sanford merchants as a sign to youngsters that if they need help the store where he is seen is a "safety zone" and they can go there for assistance. The character's creators, George and Joyce Grubbs of Oviedo, are bringing him to schools to try and familiarize the safety zones. In the classrooms students receive a simple flyer produced by the Grubbs, with some financial assistance from area businesses, that tells students about the character and lets them know they can count on the "safety zones" when they are in some sort of trouble. "There are so many dangers to the youngsters out there that they need to be able to make a decision quickly and this helps direct them quickly to a caring adult," George Grubbs said. The flyer the students receive in class contains a "Passport Home" for parents to fill out if their youngster should become lost or missing. The passport includes space for the parent to fill in the child's name and other vital statistics. There is a place to put the child's finger prints, immunization record, distinctive marks, optical record and dental history. Grubbs also encourages parents to include a recent photograph of the child and a sample of the child's hair. The information is those things that are most vital in assisting law enforcement of-officials in searching for a missing youngster. Grubbs said parents should keep the information up-to-date and in a safe place. He said the schools he has contacted have been very receptive to the idea of teaching the children about Paki and the Safety Zones. "We think it is a good idea," said Caren Gager, principal of Hamilton Elementary. "This is something that will possibly help students when they need it most." Grubbs said that the response from Goldsboro Elementary School has been equally enthusiastic. "They've been unbelievable," Grubbs said. Grubbs said he is looking for civic organizations to help sponsor the printing of the Passport Home. "They can be real heroes if they are able to come up with the money to help us help our young people," Grubbs said.

Goldsboro to get a 'Healthy Start'

By J. MARK BARFIELD, Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Goldsboro will be the focus of Seminole County's first "Healthy Start" effort to reduce infant mortality.

"We are going to make a more thorough case management effort there," said Dr. Jorge Deju, director of the Seminole County Public Health Unit. "We will try to ascertain all of the problems there. Not only health but housing, economics, everything that is affecting people there. Then, we'll see what the coalition and the community can do to improve things."

Deju said the efforts will begin in April with an increased number of in-home visits to pregnant Goldsboro mothers by a health department nurse. Deju said such counseling visits are useful in learning of other pre-

"We will attempt to get more mothers to come in early in pregnancy," said Deju. The focus was placed on the mothers in the care of the health department.

A statewide mother and infant organization recently ranked Seminole County the top county in the state for infant health during the 1987 to 1989 period reviewed.

The county has formed a Healthy Start Coalition to review the needs of pregnant mothers and infants. Deju said the coalition, comprised of health care workers and other social service professionals will study the needs and resources of the county during the next six months to determine a course of action to keep infant death numbers low.

The Goldsboro initiative will be financed through $100,000 that will be sent to the county this year by the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services to enhance maternal and infant care.

CHIROPRACTIC FOR BETTER HEALTH

DR. A.W. WOODALL CHIROPRACTOR

The Healing Art

Have you ever stopped to think about the healing art and what it means? It's not magic, but it IS method. Doctors of chiropractic use the natural health method, based on many decades of scientific observation. Like other branches of the healing arts, chiropractic is both an art and a science.

A normally functioning nervous system is vital to good health. All of the structures and cells in your body depend on impulses carried by your nervous system. When these impulses travel uninterrupted, your organs and cells are able to function normally. But when there is interference, either too much or not enough nerve supply, your tissues and organs cannot function properly. This may make your body more prone to disease and other bodily ills. The most delicate and important organs of the nervous system are located in your brain and spinal column. Although the spine supports and helps protect these vital nerves, any misalignment may cause interference with the flow of nerve impulses. That's why doctors of chiropractic concentrate in this area.

Plane

when it is empty. Wright, 72, a retired pilot and aviation instructor, said he does not know if he is related to Wilbur and Orville Wright, but said that aviation is becoming a family tradition.

His son is a maintenance specialist with Comair at the Comair Aviation Academy in Sanford.

"I guess it's just in our blood," he said.

Wright said that the neighbors in his Loch Arbut neighborhood were all curious about his large model airplane project as it has progressed. He said that none of them complained however.

"They're all as excited about this as I am, I think," he said.

Though his home is just off of Mayfair Golf Course, he said the plane has never been hit by a wayward ball. Neither has it drawn any curiosity seekers off the links.

"They're too busy with their golf game to notice any old plane in someone's back yard," he said.

The Vermont native who moved to Florida when he retired a decade ago said he has always wanted to try to build his own airplane from scratch. This is his first attempt at it.

"I have no doubt that it will fly," he said of the plane prior to the test flight. "We have been very careful in our work."

Homes

increase back," he said. "It is waiting to finish the widening of Lake Mary Boulevard. Once that is finished, we'll see commercial building pick up."

Seminole County issued 69 single-family residential building permits during February, almost the same number as issued in January. David Heitz of the building department indicated the monthly number might increase as the spring and summer approaches.

The City of Longwood, for the second consecutive month, issued no single-family residence permits. Only two were taken out in December.

Bonnie Howington, with the Longwood City Planning Department commented, "The number is starting to pick up during March." She observed "We have the Oak Villa subdivision underway now, and so far this month, we've already issued six permits." Longwood had one multi-family residential permit issued in February.

Sanford, on the other hand continued at a low level, with only two residential permits totaling in value at $111,130 during February.

Costly

$25 per week and working couples $50 per week.

"Last year, I reported to IRS we cleared about $2,500 after expenses," said Kenneth Snyder. "We only took in about $5,000."

Beverly Wheeler, a state licensing official, said state laws prohibit counties and cities from preventing in-home day care businesses for 10 children or less in residential areas. But Wheeler said the five-year old law doesn't address homes in agriculturally zoned areas. Wheeler is central Florida licensing supervisor for the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

Wheeler said the Snyders have been licensed since September to keep five pre-school and five after-school children in their home. The Snyders told DRC members Wednesday the first child is dropped off at about 5:15 a.m. and the last child is picked up at about 6 p.m.

When told of the county directives to the Snyders, Wheeler said "That certainly wasn't the intent of the law."

with Chris Stokes on third and Mike Ruglenius on first, Morgan retired Matt Pipkins on another come-backer.

Edgar Aviles tried to score on Pipkins' safety-squeeze bunt in the fifth inning, but Seminole catcher Matt Freeman threw out Pipkins and John Lugerling fired home to Morgan, who tagged out Aviles.

Sophomore Todd Bellhorn of Oviedo also allowed only two hits in his first start since reporting from the junior varsity basketball team. He struck out three and walked four. Seminole's lead-off batter reached base in the third, fourth, and fifth innings, with the Tribe squandering the first two opportunities and almost wasting the third.

"Bellhorn is an excellent left handed pitcher," said Powers. "Last year he no-hit us for his first varsity win. He'll be a fine pitcher down the road."

In Seminole's third inning Lugerling reached second on an error and advanced to third on Cory Gochee's sacrifice bunt. Bellhorn then retired Scott Ferguson and Eckstein. Jeremy Chynat led off the fourth with a walk and stole second base before Bellhorn beat Matt Freeman, Anthony Roberts, and Demy Beamon.

Lugerling singled to open the fifth, but Bellhorn picked off pinch-runner Jon Williams. After the second out was recorded King and Ferguson drew walks before Eckstein lined his game winner.

With the loss, Oviedo fell to 6-5 overall and 1-1 in the conference. The Lions played at University Saturday.

"Oviedo has a good team and played a tough game," said Powers. "They're one of the best teams in the conference. We made a couple of errors, and they didn't capitalize."

Seminole, now 2-0 in the conference, travels to DeLand Monday for a 3:30 p.m. contest at the high school. Oviedo will host Lake Howell Wednesday at 7 p.m.

Track

"I hated to see it rain," said Brauman. "We're just now getting to the time of the year where you have nice conditions at night that are ideal for running fast times. And we had stacked some relays where we thought we could run some fast times."

"We're at a point right now where we think we're ready to run some fast times." Before Brauman could find out if he was right, the rains came. In fact, not one of the 27 scheduled events (14 for boys, 13 for girls) was completed.

Of those started, Seminole's Andre Scott was leading the boys' long jump with a leap of 21 feet, 11 1/2 inches while teammate Bernard Sparrow was heading the discus with an effort of 171 feet, 8 inches.

According to Brauman, Sparrow's throw is a new Seminole school record, a new meet record by over 14 feet and the best throw in the state so far this season.

"Our field event people are getting very, very consistent," said Brauman. "Like Bernard, everyone is just about ready to explode."

If the Seminoles in the running events are able to compete at the same level as those in the field events, then the Tribe should be in the hunt for state honors at the end of the season. Brauman isn't making any rash predictions, but he did say that's what the Seminoles are shooting for.

"It's hard to say how we stack up state-wide," he said. "As far as last year's team is concerned, we're a little more experienced. Losing Kamill Hitchman (who moved to Miami) hurt. He was our best quarter-miler. We're working to fill that void. We hope to be able to put together a good mile relay."

Seminole's next opportunity to see just how good they are and might be will come next weekend, when the Tribe will compete in the Winter Park Elite Invitational next Saturday at Showalter Field.

"Only eight teams are invited (to the meet)," said Brauman. "One of them is St. Thomas Aquinas of Fort Lauderdale, the preseason favorite to win the Class 3A state meet. We'll be able to see how good they are and how good we are."

"Right now, we're very good in the field events. If we can continue to improve in the field events, then we have a pretty good shot to do some things at the end of the season, but that's a big if. If we can put together some relays and have a few individuals come along, who knows what we're capable of?"

Lemon

diet and regained most of the weight he lost.

Things he once took for granted now have more meaning. He can't have with a blade; he no longer goes out barefoot. These are major changes for a man whose trademark was a headfirst slide into first base.

"You know how wild I was. I have an enlarged spleen now," Lemon said, laughing. "If I tried sliding into first base today, I wouldn't get there."

But it isn't the action of baseball Lemon misses. He had all of that.

He played 1,988 big league games with the Chicago White Sox and the Tigers, and retired with a .273 lifetime average, 215 home runs and 884 RBIs.

In all that time, Lemon played the outfield about as well as it can be played. He was charged with only 82 errors. He played in three All-Star games and hit .294 in the 1984 World Series.

"Don't feel sorry for me," Lemon said. "I had a wonderful career. I had almost 20 years in professional baseball."

He misses being part of the group.

"I miss the guys," he said.

"It's like Magic Johnson said he'll miss the guys. That's so true. That's what I miss most."

Lemon, 37, isn't sure what he will do now. But he does know he'll enjoy life more.

"I appreciate everything so much more now," Lemon said, "especially kids and relationships. Being a professional athlete, it's so easy to think more of yourself than anyone else. It's easy to do, because the game is so competitive."

"But now I wish I had been able to do things for people. I wish I had handled it better when I left the club."

Before you go saltwater fishing, make sure you have your license

WHAT: Florida's Saltwater Fishing License.

WHO: Who needs one? Well, anyone who takes, attempts to take or possesses marine fish for non-commercial purposes. But there are exceptions. See the Fine Print below.

WHEN: Before you take, attempt to take, or possess marine fish for non-commercial purposes.

WHERE: Where can you get one? Any tax collector's office will sell you one and many bait and tackle shops in Florida offer them for sale, too.

WHY: The fees from Florida's Saltwater Fishing License are used to enhance the state's saltwater fisheries through improvement and restoration of fish habitats, research of marine life, increased law enforcement coverage and public education about our resources.

HOW: How much do they cost? Residents and non-residents pay different fees. Here is the fee structure:

Residents: 10-day license, $10; 1-year license, $12; 5-year license, $60.

Non-residents: 3-day license, $5; 7-day license, $15; 1-year license, $30.

A fee of $1.50 is added if a license is purchased from a tax collector; $2 is added if it is purchased at another location. Applications for five-year license are available at a tax collector's office, a fee of $1 is charged for the applications.

VESSEL AND PIER FEES

FISHING FORECAST

Count on good speck action in the St. Johns River and Lake Jessup. Fish the shallows with Missouri minnows or small jigs for these tasty panfish. Bass fishing is on the upswing, with the average fish weighing in at around two pounds. When the water is dropping in the river, fish run-offs with small Rapala-type lures for sure action.

Sebastian Inlet snook are hitting live shrimp on the east side of the bridge. The first part of the incoming tide, or the outgoing tide seems to be the best. One-ounce jigs and medium-sized lures will also produce, but they must be fished slowly near the bottom.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports slow offshore action, with dirty water reaching out to 170 feet. One marlin was caught last weekend, but many anglers got skunked. Bottom fishing for grouper and snapper has been good in deep water — from 180 feet on out.

Inside the Port has been a little slow with only a few bluefish, sheepshead and flounder. Trout and redfish are active on the flats of the Banana and Indian rivers.

Sheepshead and bluefish are the big news at Ponce Inlet. The best action is along the north jetties, but some flounder, bluefish and redfish (season closed) are hitting at the south jetties.

Free tax counseling offered

Central and North Florida taxpayers can now get free tax assistance at nearly 700 volunteer tax assistance centers located throughout the area according to James J. Ryan, Internal Revenue Service Jacksonville district director.

This year IRS trained over 3,000 area volunteer tax assistants to prepare basic federal income tax returns. Volunteers assist elderly, handicapped, non-English speaking and other taxpayers who need help reporting their tax returns.

"Lower-income workers who may be eligible for the expanded Earned Income Credit will find the volunteer assistance centers helpful and convenient," Ryan said in a press release.

For information about VITA and TCE locations in their area and to verify the hours of operation, taxpayers should call IRS at 1-800-829-1040. Jacksonville taxpayers can call locally at 354-1760.

Volunteer sites are typically located in shopping malls, community centers, banks, post offices, libraries, churches and other such community locales. There are 685 centers located throughout 47 central and north Florida counties.

This is the 22nd year taxpayers have been able to get free help from volunteers through the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) and Tax Counseling for the Elderly (TCE) programs.

Regular Bahama flights on track

By NICK W. PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Regular tourist flights are still set to begin from the Central Florida Regional Airport to the Bahamas. "Plans are moving ahead right on schedule," said Airport Director Steve Cooke.

Gerald Bourne, president of Family Island Holidays of Longwood, briefed the members of the Sanford Airport Authority on the project during the regular meeting last week.

Bourne explained how Island Express Airline, a privately owned air service, is going to provide non-stop round-trip service between Sanford and the Family Islands in the Bahamas. "For the flights directly from Sanford to the Bahamas," he said, "We have two stops planned, in Marsh Harbour and Treasure Cay on Abaco."

Bourne, who is getting the flights and schedules established said, "We had originally announced we would start the regular flights by the end of this month, but with the paperwork that still has to be accomplished, I would feel more comfortable predicting a start around mid April."

"Another thing we are working on right now," he added, "is the obtaining of an additional aircraft to handle the flights."

The airline is also planning to provide daily round-trip air service to Fort Lauderdale, where passengers will be able to change to other Island Express aircraft, and head for additional ports in the Bahamas. These will include North Eleuthera, Governor's Harbour, Rock Sound, George Town, and Stella Maris.

In addition to the link-up with the Bahamas flights from Fort Lauderdale, Bourne said, "The flights can also be used for people on business or pleasure wishing to fly between Sanford and Fort Lauderdale."

Bourne explained, "Island Express, the airline which will handle these flights, still has to get the necessary permits from the Ministry of Transportation in the Bahamas before we can get these flights started."

He is very excited about the prospects of using the facilities at the Central Florida Regional Airport. "We are working on an agreement with Central Florida Air Maintenance at the airport, to handle the maintenance of our aircraft," Bourne said.

"I'm very happy about the prospects for these flights," he commented. "I had one man who arranges flights for about 30 separate families to the Bahamas, and he is very anxious for us to get this project underway, so I look forward to having a good response from the general public."

Standards for trade SCC topic

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Although the subject of the March 11 videoconference at Seminole Community College is meeting manufacturing standards for international trade, the information may foreshadow standards in the United States.

From 1 to 4 p.m., local manufacturers may participate in a live conference with experts from the United States and England on meeting the "ISO 9000" standards. The standards were established in 1987 by a 90-nation committee called the International Organization for Standardization. The standards establish consistent quality control at companies and are audited by approved agencies.

The ISO 9000 standards have been established by the European Community and by the end of 1992, any product sold throughout Europe will meet those standards. The standards have also been adopted by Japan and other Asian countries.

But Glen Morgan, director of the SCC Business and Industry Support Center, said the standards are being adopted in this country by the U.S. Defense Department and the Food and Drug Administration.

"Years and years ago, people believed the metric system was going to take over," said Morgan. "Many people today think the ISO standards will go the way of the metric system, but it's not. Manufacturers are going to have to be more in tune with quality control."

Morgan said many small businesses start out with a local market in mind but then see an opportunity overseas or with the federal government after several years. Unless they meet the ISO 9000 standards, Morgan said they may be locked out from offering their products.

Registration is $125 per person and must be made by Friday (3-6). Space is limited to 30 persons and 15 of those have already been taken up by Siemens Stromberg-Carlson employees, Morgan said. Reservations are available by calling 323-1450, extension 640.

By SANDI TILWICK
Special to the Herald

SANFORD — Catching up with Becky Nash, Senior Primate Keeper at the Central Florida Zoological Park, is not always easy, particularly if you try to interview her on a day when the veterinarians are scheduled to visit.

Becky has been a primate keeper at the Zoo since 1984 but previously, both in Indiana and Florida she was a veterinary assistant. Not only does Becky, along with fellow keeper, Carol Scherbak, care for all of the primates, she is also in charge of ordering and keeping track of all of the medical supplies at the Zoo.

"I really enjoyed working with veterinarians," Becky says, "and since I had this background, once I began working at the Zoo, I volunteered to keep track of all the medical supplies and assist the veterinarians when they perform procedures."

The veterinarians who care for all of the animals at the Central Florida Zoological Park are from the University of Florida, College of Veterinary Medicine, in Gainesville. Whenever the veterinarians, along with the veterinary students who accompany them, come to the Zoo, Becky is busy making sure that all of the supplies and medications that they need are close at hand.

"Vet days are generally busy," says Becky, "but occasionally we have time for a little fun." Becky laughs as she recalls a practical joke that she and her co-workers played on one of the veterinarians.

"We made a strange looking 'worm' by blowing some banana out of a straw and then pretended that we had found it in one of the animal exhibits. We all acted very concerned about what it might be."

While the veterinarian was diligently trying to use all of his knowledge and training to determine the origin of this strange creature, one of Becky's co-workers grabbed the worm and ate it.

"The look on the faces of the veterinarians and the students was hysterical!"

Working at the Zoo is not all fun and games for Becky, but she and Carol do spend some of their busy day thinking up new activities for all of the primates in their care.

"Keeping primates stimulated is a challenge because they are so intelligent and inquisitive. We hide food and treats in a variety of ways so that they have to forage for it."

Becky enjoys watching how the different kinds of primates react to and manipulate different types of stimuli, such as bamboo, hay, insects they might catch, new types of food, etc. When asked which animals in the department she is the

Broadway dream came true

At 19, Jenny Gruby has seen her dream come true. Ever since she was knee high to a duckling, the pretty and talented dancer has set her sights on Broadway.

Since early January, after Jenny auditioned in New York, she has been a member of the high-stepping cast performing in "Will Rogers Follies" at the Palace Theater on Broadway.

Due to the injury of a cast dancer in late December, Jenny was called to come to New York to audition after she was spotted by the casting company last fall. She returned to Sanford to resume her dancing position at Walt Disney World and attend Seminole Community College.

She was informed several days later that she landed the role on New Year's Day and left later that day for the Big Apple. She learned the part in five days, and after the injured dancer returned, Jenny was retained in the cast.

What a break! Jenny's parents, Marsha and Jim Gruby, her sister, Jill, and her aunt and uncle from Tampa have already traveled to New York to see their shining star perform. Keith Carradine plays the starring role and Jenny is the youngest dancer in the cast.

"It's almost like it hasn't happened," Marsha said. "It happened so quickly."

For Marsha and Jim, their efforts are finally paying off. Marsha has been accompanying her daughters to dance classes and auditions in various parts of the country for many, many years. She has literally lived for her daughters' dancing while Jim has kept his nose to the grindstone to foot the bills.

Jill, a sophomore at Seminole High School, has also had a taste of professional dancing. She danced last summer at Opryland and again last Christmas. She recently choreographed a piece for Deatiny, an award-winning SWS ensemble headed for Washington, D.C., along with Pizzazz, to perform in national competition.

Marsha said Jenny is adjusting well to New York except for the cold weather. She lucked out in locating an apartment with a family friend. When she's not dancing in the Follies, Jenny attends classes, auditions, models, takes voice lessons and visits museums.

Birthdays celebrated

It was party time on Sunday, Feb. 23, when three local men were honored on their birthdays. Vergie Mosley was hostess for the celebration at her home 2448 Oak Ave.

Guests of honor were: Vergie's husband, Earl, who turned 88 on Feb. 23; Al Perkins, who was 80 on Feb. 18; and Myron Gates who turned 81 on Feb. 24. The guests of honor are all members of the Sanford Shuffleboard Club.

About 30 friends gathered on the carpet for the celebration and later were served a buffet, picnic-style, on the grounds. They were toasted with champagne and sang the "Happy Birthday" song after blowing out the candles on the birthday cake which was decorated to resemble a shuffleboard court.

Earl moved from Mt. Airy, N.C. to Sanford in 1941 where he owned and operated Mosley's Garage. Al has been a Sanford resident since 1978. He moved to Florida from Lisbon Falls where he was employed by General Electric. Myron has been living here since 1977. He was a railroad conductor in Liverpool, N.Y.

A special guest was Earl's sister, Kate Jackson, from Mt. Airy.

Leap year wedding

It's leap year and what a way to start married life.

But that's when Colleen McFadden and Michael John Hill decided to become Mr. and Mrs. They were married Feb. 29 at the First United Methodist Church.

The arrival of the bridegroom's aunt and uncle, Kathleen and Dick Phillips, from Letchworth, England, came as quite a surprise to the bridal couple.

Joneses wed 50 years

Congratulations to Joyce and C.O. "Dick" Jones who were married 50 years Feb. 28. The couple exchanged vows at the home of Joyce's mother, Kathleen Adams, on 18th Street. Joyce is a native daughter and the couple have lived in Sanford

Spring signals interest in new clothes

Spring must be in the air because I seem to be getting many questions in our office regarding new clothes. With money as tight as it is, it is important to understand fibers and labels so clothes can last as long as possible.

Colorfastness problems

Dye crocking
You may describe it as "dye rub off", but technically the loss of dye due to abrasion or rubbing is called dye crocking. It may be seen because of the stain it leaves on another garment or the skin. It also may leave a lighter, discolored or streaked area on the offending garment. Dye crocking can occur in any type of wearing apparel. The most susceptible fabrics to crocking are denims and corduroys, with cottons, linens, and polyesters also likely to crock. Surface prints that do not thoroughly penetrate the fabric are the worst offenders.

Before buying a printed gar-

CONSUMER FOCUS

BARBARA HUGHES/GREGG

ment, examine the reverse side to determine the degree of dye or print penetration. The reverse side will usually be lighter or less distinct. If there is poor dye penetration, examine the garment at points of wear such as folded edges, pockets, seam edges, collar and cuffs. If there is any color loss, it may be due to dye crocking.

To determine if a fabric or garment will dye crock, rub a white cotton or linen hanky on an unexposed area such as the hem or a seam allowance. If any color or dye appears on the hanky, then the dye will crock onto other garments or the skin.

Washable silk

Washable silk is now fashion. Contrary to popular belief, silk isn't a fragile fiber. Before nylon was manufactured, it was used for hot air balloons and parachutes. How tough or how delicate silk fabric is depends on how the yarn is handled, how the fabric is woven, dyed, and finished.

Many of today's silk garments are labeled washable. And they really are. Just follow the instructions on water temperature, etc. Be aware that some color bleeding will occur, so wash separately and do not let stand in the water very long. The most popular washables have texture rather than a smooth, shiny surface.

Any silk is damaged by perspiration and sunlight. You should always hang garments in a closet and keep the door closed. When traveling by car always cover the garment to prevent sun damage. And, don't wait until later to clean silk garments. They should be washed or dry cleaned as soon as they are soiled. Allowing soiled clothing to hang in the closet means perspiration is continuing to weaken the fibers and spots are becoming permanent stains.

'Rainspots' in rayon

Many of today's rayon fabrics contain dyes and sizings that water spot when they come in contact with any type of moisture, even raindrops. Many consumers are asking how to remove these rainspots. If the garment care label says dryclean only, the consumer is out of luck as drycleaning will have little or no effect on removing water spots. Water spot removal requires considerable amounts of moisture; in some cases the only alternative is to launder the article.

The Cooperative Extension Service is open to all regardless of race, color, creed or national origin.

Miss Minnie says goodbye after 31 years in county schools

Retirement celebration for Minnie Thomas was given by the staff of Hopper Center of the Seminole County schools. "This is Your Life" was the theme of the luncheon held in "Miss Minnie's" honor, as she is called by her co-workers.

Hopper Center staff members and friends gave words of reflections of the past, present and future of this wonderful, lovable, Christian-hearted woman who carries a smile wherever she goes. Tributes to this lover of people saw her staff, family and friends enjoy an afternoon of love shared with "Miss Minnie."

This dedicated worker has given 31 years of service to the Seminole County schools. It is a true saying that "time is not measured by years that you live, but by the deeds that you do and the joy that you give." Miss Minnie shares her talents wherever she can. Her love of mankind can be seen in her everyday life. She often gave prayers to the Master for his kindness and goodness to her. Her Christian community work sees her sharing her great talents — talking about the Lord, and her ability to make food

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY March 8, 1992

Don't be afraid to dream in the year ahead. Dreams can become hopes, hopes can become aspirations and aspirations can become ambitions which you'll have the power to fulfill.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) An idealistic relationship you've been hoping for could come into being in this cycle. It will be with an individual with whom you'll have a remarkable affinity.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Persistence and imagination are the tools required today in order to gratify your ambitions. Fortunately, you'll be heavily endowed with both, making success likely.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your strength lies in your philosophical approach to life today. This will enable you to see things as part of the whole and not in limited or restricted dimensions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There is a strong possibility you might get involved in a joint endeavor with an individual whose interests and ideas are in harmony with yours. Chance will play a hand in forming this arrangement.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Even if you have to modify your position, it's vital today that you maintain a cordial relationship with an individual who is important to your present plans.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could be quite fortunate in this cycle profiting from situations initiated by others. What you have to contribute is an ingredient that was previously lacking.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you associate with people who are of a creative bent today, it will serve to stimulate your own imagination; it is probable you'll come up with some bright ideas yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Take adequate time to think things through from every angle today. The more intensely you dwell on a particular matter, the greater your awareness of its ramifications is.

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY March 9, 1992

Both tangible and intangible benefits can be gained in the year ahead by bringing your ideas to market. Don't think of your conceptions as things of little value.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Just because someone is not in complete accord with your opinions today does not mean this individual should be considered an adversary. Instead, try to learn from this person's objections. Major changes are ahead for Pisces in the coming year. Send for Pisces' Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you're foolishly generous with the wrong person today, you might feel like a patsy later on. Be careful in situations where you feel pressured to make concessions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you attempt to do too many things simultaneously, partial success might be the best you can hope for today. Reduce your objectives so you'll be more effective.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Guard against the inclination today to make unreasonable demands of loved ones. If they are unable to comply with your expectations, your feelings could be hurt.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Playing favorites when dealing with friends today could create unnecessary complications. Someone might end up feeling slighted, and this may jeopardize the relationship.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may get involved in a development today where you'll feel you have to take measures to protect your interests at the expense of another. This critical situation must be handled skillfully.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Face to face, associates may appear to agree with your ideas today, but behind your back they might express adverse opinions. Be careful in whom you place your trust.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Every player likes to win as many tricks as possible. However, this greed can prove costly when overtricks are relatively unimportant. One problem is that duplicate players spend most of their time competing for matchpoints in pairs tournaments, in which making overtricks is the name of the game. But when they play in an occasional team event, it is hard for them to resist the temptation of trying for overtricks, even if their contract is jeopardized.

Today's hand is a good example. After a Stayman auction, West led the club six, choosing a high spot-card because he had no honor in the suit. The declarer thought that the lead was fourth-highest away from the king, so he played dummy's club two. He was in for a rude shock.

East knew that the club six couldn't be fourth-highest, because that would give West Q-J-9-8 of clubs, from which he would lead the queen, not the six. East won trick one with the club king and switched to the heart eight; Jack, king, five. West returned the heart two, South winning with the 10. Now South attacked spades, but East won with the ace and returned the heart four. West scored two more heart tricks to defeat the game.

In a matchpoint event, South's line would be reasonable. However, when making his contract was of primary importance, he should have played differently. He had five top tricks. If he had just won the first trick with dummy's club ace and led a spade, he would have had nine guaranteed tricks: three spades, four diamonds, one club and either a second club or a heart, depending on the defense.
