JEWISH RYE BREAD

- 2 packages active dry yeast
- 1 1/2 cups warm (105 to 115 degrees) water
- 2 cups medium rye flour
- 1 cup room temperature beer, measured after foam subsides
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 3 tablespoons caraway seed
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 6 1/2 cups (about) unbleached white flour
- 2 eggs
- 3 tablespoons vegetable shortening

In a medium mixing bowl stir 1 package of the yeast into the warm water until dissolved. Add the rye flour; stir together well although mixture does not have to be smooth. Cover bowl tightly with plastic wrap. Let stand at room temperature (68 to 72 degrees) for 3 days and 3 nights. This provides the "starter."

On the fourth day pour the starter into the large bowl of an electric mixer. Add the remaining yeast and the beer; stir together well. Stir in the sugar, 2 tablespoons of the caraway seed, the salt, 2 cups of the white flour and one of the eggs; beat at moderate speed until smooth—about 2 minutes. Add shortening; beat at high speed for 2 minutes. With a wooden spoon work in enough of the remaining white flour (about 4 cups) to make a soft dough.

Turn out on a lightly floured surface; knead, working in the remaining white flour (about 1/2 cup) until smooth and elastic—5 to 10 minutes. Place in a greased bowl; turn to grease top; cover with plastic wrap. Let rise in a warm draught place (about 80 degrees) until doubled—about one hour. Punch down dough.

Turn out onto a lightly floured surface. Cut into 3 equal parts. With a floured rolling pin roll out one part to a 12 by 18 inch rectangle; sprinkle with 1 teaspoon of the remaining caraway seed. Starting from the 8-inch side, roll up dough tightly and pinch "seam" to seal. Tuck ends under. Roll out and shape remaining two parts the same way. Place two of the loaves seam-side down well apart on a lightly greased large cookie sheet; place the other loaf on a lightly greased small cookie sheet. Cover and let rise as previously until doubled—about 45 minutes.

Slash top of each loaf diagonally in 3 or 4 equidistant places. In a small mixing bowl lightly beat remaining egg, with 1 tablespoon of water. With a pastry brush, brush tops and sides of loaves with the egg wash, being careful to add just a little at a time so it does not run down onto the pan. (Excess egg wash may be frozen and used another time.) Sprinkle loaves with extra caraway seed. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until browned and bread sounds hollow when tapped with fingers—35 to 45 minutes. Place on wire racks to cool; delicious served while still faintly warm.

To store overnight, place in a brown paper bag and fold over top several times, securing with paper clips. Plastic bags soften the crust. For longer storage, wrap appropriately and freeze.

Makes 3 loaves.

WARREN BEATTY'S COCONUT SOUFFLE

1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup flour
1 1/4 cups milk
1/4 cup sugar
1 egg (2 1/2 cc.) flaked coconut (about 1 cup)
1 Tsp. pure vanilla extract
2 eggs, separated
1/2 tsp. cream of tartar

In a medium-sized saucepan, melt butter. Add flour; cook and stir for 1 minute. Blend in milk and sugar. Cook, stir over medium heat until mixture boils and thickens. Remove from heat and stir in coconut and vanilla extract. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored.

In a yolk blend a little of the hot coconut mixture; return yolk mixture to sauce pan and blend. Beat egg whites until frothy. Add cream of tartar. Beat until stiff, but not dry. Stir a little of the egg white into the coconut mixture. Fold in remaining egg whites. Immediately pour into an ungreased 1 1/2-quart souffle dish. Bake in preheated 325-degree F. oven until puffy and golden, about 45 minutes. Serves 6.

Ford's Veto Of Unemployment Aid Bill Rejected
Congress Saves 90 Seminole Jobs

By ED PRICKETT
Herald Staff Writer

Congressional override of President Gerald Ford's veto of an unemployment aid bill, estimated $80,000 and the jobs of 90 Seminole County workers, Jim Bedsole said today.

Bedsole, director of the county's Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA), said today he was elated at Congressional action because the money is needed here to combat the over-rising unemployment rate.

"The Senate overrode Ford's veto of House Resolution 8069 Wednesday, making it still viable. The bill contains funding for on-the-job training programs, in Seminole County.

"Our unemployment rate is over 13 per cent and has been steadily increasing since July of 1974," Bedsole said.

"Without additional money, we can expect unemployment to continue," he added.

Bedsole said without the congressional override, layoffs would have begun in four or five months.

Bedsole said the bill also contains money slated for emergency health services and some other "very important functions" in this county.

In his veto message, Ford called the bill "inflationary." However, Bedsole said 17 Republicans in the Senate crossed over and joined Democrats to override the President's veto.

Bedsole said one reason unemployment here keeps rising is the tide of jobless workers that keeps coming in from other states.

These workers apply for CETA jobs and are accepted. Thus the Seminole County unemployment rate continues to hover at the 13 per cent mark.

Bedsole said this county should have some method of applying for CETA money given to other states. That money, he said, could be used to pay out-of-state workers who lead CETA jobs in Florida.

The CETA program pumps federal money into states in an effort to slow down rising unemployment. In Seminole County, that money is utilized to hire workers in cities, the county and in the school system.

The theory behind the program is that employers will realize a CETA worker's worth and continue his/her employment after federal funds are cut off.

However, in some instances—particularly in the cities—off-funds have been quoted as saying that once CETA funds stop—so will the jobs the program once financed.

Chuluota Property Donated

CHULUOTA — Eighty-five-year-old Don A. Loftus, developer of modern day Chuluota, presented a deed for the Chuluota Community Building and surrounding property to Fire Chief Marvin Van Wormer, representing the Chuluota Volunteer Fireman's Association, in a ceremony Wednesday morning.

Confined to a wheel chair, Loftus, accompanied by his daughter Miss Noel Loftus and two nurses, stopped off on his trip from New York City to Miami for the presentation.

Built in 1925 for a school house, for many years the building has been used for community gatherings and in recent years has been used by the fire department volunteers and their auxiliary for meetings.

The Volunteer Firemen, in return, have kept the building in repair, painting and installing heat and air-conditioning in the meeting hall. The Seminole County Fire Department trailer, housing paid full-time firemen and communications equipment, is located on the property.

Several acres surrounding the building, to be renamed the Don A. Loftus Civic Center in honor of the donor, will be developed for use by the public.

Old Chuluota was the center of a major land development project in 1944, initiated by the Model Land Co., a Flagler System enterprise, to attract settlers to the Florida East Coast Line Railway.

Thousands of acres were cut up into 16-acre grove sites, but few people came to buy and the community lay dormant for many years.

In 1957 Loftus purchased land in the area and developed the modern Chuluota community. He spent many years here, living in the old Lake Katherine Inn, and told the group Wednesday, "Chuluota has always been my love."

A member of the original real estate firm, Wallace Lynch, still resides at Lake Katherine Chalet in Chuluota.

Instrumental in obtaining the deed for the building for the Volunteer Fireman's Association was Walter Succov, a member of the fire department who was employed to oversee the development when Loftus returned to the north.

Among those interested persons attending were Loftus' attorneys, Dwight Hostetter, Cleveland, Ohio; and Edwin Eagan of New York; Don Ryan, of California; Fred Kestler of Winter Park; representatives of Seminole County Fire Department and members of the Chuluota Fire Department and the auxiliary.

Also participating in the ceremony were fire department officers Ivan Eichler, president; Alfred Van Wormer, vice president; Deanna Van Wormer, secretary; and Helen Price, treasurer. Deanna and her mother-in-law, Shirley Van Wormer, are full-titled members of the volunteer firefighters.

Disease Of St. Johns Fish Reported To Be Spreading

By AUDIE MURPHY
Herald Staff Writer

A bacterial disease that attacks fish has spread into Lake Harney and Lake Jessup and is getting worse in the St. Johns River, according to a local adviser to the state's Department of Natural Resources.

Delbert J. Euga said today he estimates that 20 per cent of the fish caught yesterday by American Bass Fishermen tournament entrants at Lake Monroe are infected with the disease.

Euga said he hasn't had time to examine thoroughly the 75 pounds of fish caught by participants of the tournament, but added, "When I cut them open I think I know what I'll find."

The disease, aeromonas liquidiflora, causes open sores to appear on fish and slowly devours the infected fish.

Euga said he had a report that two catfish were seen yesterday, in Brevard County southeast of Lake Harney, swimming around with their bones exposed.

"They were infected so bad, their flesh was all gone, exposing their backbones," Euga said. "I don't know what was keeping them alive."

According to Euga, the disease appears in fish when a "stress condition," involving a build-up of bacteria in water, is present.

The St. Johns River system is now in such a stress condition, he said.

Euga said Jerry Banks, assistant chief of fisheries for the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, is scheduled to arrive in Sanford today to check on the spread of the disease.

Although Euga said the Florida Food and Drug Administration has begun an inquiry into the situation, he refused to speculate on whether commercial fishing in the river system will be halted by state or federal agencies.

"We don't believe there's any danger in eating the (infected) fish if they are cooked properly," Euga said, "but if someone were foolish enough to eat one raw..."

The Game and Fish Commission has been monitoring water conditions in area lakes and rivers, and those conditions "are not getting any better," Euga said.

"At first we thought warm water temperatures were aggravating the situation, but the water is pretty cold now," Euga said.

He said that infected fish specimens are being tested at a laboratory at Auburn University. "We're studying the laboratory and effects of the disease."

Police Believe Thieves Struck In Virginia

By BOB LLOYD

Sanford Police, FBI agents, Seaboard Coastline Railroad investigators and Lorton, Va., authorities today were conducting a joint investigation into the ransacking of at least 32 automobiles on the Auto-Train that arrived in Sanford about noon Wednesday.

Police said 14 ransacked cars belonging to Auto-Train passengers were processed by evidence technicians after auto carrier cars were opened and auto were found with trunks and doors open with personal property scattered about.

Detective Tom Bernosky said today that items valued in excess of $3,000 have been reported missing from automobiles on the train.

He said the thieves took only "small, easy to carry items," including cameras, electronic calculators, diamond rings and jewelry items, cash, and shoes.

Bernosky said items valued at $1,757 were reported missing from one auto.

"They passed up big furs and televisions," Bernosky said.

He said preliminary investigations lead police to believe the autos were ransacked after they were loaded on the train at Lorton and before the train started south to Florida.

Bernosky said also that at least four of the carriers, with eight autos each, were entered but the carriers were scattered through the long train leading doors can't be opened from the inside, Bernosky said, and it isn't possible to go from one level to the other after the train cars are secured.

Two Mobile Homes Are Guttled By Fire

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

CASSELBERRY — Two mobile homes were destroyed by fire Wednesday within less than 18 hours in the same neighborhood.

Brian Peine Sr., 20, his wife Sharon and their five-month-old son barely escaped with their lives through a 14 by 14 inch bathroom window after flames engulfed the inside of their mobile home on 17th Holiday Drive.

Peine's brother-in-law, Jerry Wilson, sleeping in a bedroom in the opposite end of the home, was awakened by the 2 a.m. fire and ran outside where he shouted to awaken the family and helped them out the window.

Details and tides on Page 5-A.

Around 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, on the next street over from the Peines, fire gutted the mobile home owned by Mrs. Ruth Jennings at 1751 1/2 Lake Drive. Mrs. Jennings was away at the time of the fire.

It only took a matter of minutes for the Peine home to be completely destroyed by the blaze. Having just moved in over the weekend, there was no insurance on the home nor on its contents. The family had their home, belongings and a car owned by Wilson.

Peine needed nine stitches in his wrist for a laceration received when he broke out the window and was treated for smoke inhalation.

Unemployed for two months, Peine had just obtained a job only Tuesday morning.

The fire is thought by Casselberry Fire Chief Mark Walker to have been caused by a smoldering cigarette between the couch cushions.

The Peine family is staying with his mother at 208 Avalone St., Apopka, where the neighbors have started a drive for cash and clothing to aid the family. The Red Cross and Seventh-day Adventist Churches have also come to their assistance.

Casselberry Fire Department responded in both instances. Although they were able to extinguish the second fire, most of the interior and furnishings were a total loss and in several places the fire had burned through the metal sides of the mobile home.

Longwood Official Wounded

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Longwood Public Safety Director Douglas Keller was listed in fair condition at Florida Hospital North today after accidentally shooting himself in the left thumb, police said.

Sgt. Greg Manning, who investigated the incident, said that Keller underwent surgery Wednesday evening to have a pin placed in the thumb.

Manning said Keller's revolver, which has a trigger adapter, caught on the safety director's shoulder holster as Keller was preparing to put the holster on and return to work at about 6 p.m.

"It (the gun) went off and hit his thumb," Manning said. The police sergeant said after the incident he (Manning) tried to place the gun in the holster four times and two of the four times the pistol went off.

Manning said it is expected Keller will be released from the hospital Friday.

No Surprises In Ford's Talk

Those who have studied the administration probably were not surprised at the lack of surprises in President Ford's State of the Union message. Indeed, the administration went to some lengths apparently to assure American people in advance that there would be little drama in the speech.

The purpose of the address, according to those around President Ford, was to exhibit vision, firmness and authority—to re-establish Mr. Ford as a decisive leader.

While that may be too ambitious a goal for a single speech, there is no doubt that Mr. Ford kept his feet firmly in the path that he has followed during the year and a half that he has been in office. He has told Congress again that he is determined to do all that he can to cap the federal spending gusher and reduce the grasp of the federal establishment.

In reality, even if Mr. Ford's program is adopted, the reduction in federal pervasiveness will be negligible at best. The 1974 billion budget that he proposes is about $15 billion higher than current spending—and $43 billion more than the federal government will take in in revenues.

Nevertheless, if put in the perspective of just this decade, which has seen budget deficits of $176 billion, Mr. Ford's program is as revolutionary as the Bicentennial frame that he put around his State of the Union message. He proposes to halt the yeasty annual state-federal budget increases. There is considerable evidence that Mr. Ford's philosophy is consonant with the wishes of American people who have let their leaders know in many ways that they have had their fill of increasingly bigger and more extravagant government.

If we are not mistaken, this is the message that has gained popularity for such governors as Jerry Brown of California and Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts, liberal Democrats who also propose belt tightening and who insist that government does not have all the answers.

Indeed, even the majority in Congress appeared to get the message briefly last August when they agreed that spending cuts would be considered if taxes were to be lowered.

The majority in Congress soon made it plain that Democrats plan to continue pushing for the federal deficit and engaged the federal bureaucracy. The immediate clash of wills which the administration will come over the $36.2-billion HEW and labor appropriation, a $6.2-billion public works proposal and a $1.2-billion appropriation to create public service jobs. All are expansionary and inflationary.

Leadership charisma and popularity are ephemeral terms. Whether President Ford displayed them forcefully in his State of the Union message will be a matter of subjective debate for months to come.

There is no doubt, however, that he gave Americans a real choice in the months ahead—a chance to slip a halter on the federal beast, instead of holding on to his tail and hoping for the best.

Hiding No Help

When a self-styled clairvoyant predicted that Adelaide, Australia, would be destroyed by an earthquake and tidal wave, some residents of that city tied in four while others made a "fatal" day a festive one by hosting a few.

The seer was wrong, Adelaide did not perish. But before the rest of the world dismisses the incident with amused scorn it might ponder whether or not the Adelaide syndrome infects many of us to a degree.

An earthquake and tidal wave pale compared to many of the potential disasters facing the world, such as hunger, exhaustion of resources and inflation. It takes only a look about us to see how many are running from the problems, and how many are hiding.

Land Sales Probed

Tallahassee (AP)
—One of Gov. Reubin Askew's former law partners says he represents the implication he was the "pioneer of political power."
Florida attorney Jack Fraumhofer Tuesday said he had never used Askew's name in an attempt to gain special favors from the Land Sales Division.

The division, which has come under heavy fire during two days of hearings, was scheduled to meet today for more scrutiny today

Scheduled to testify today was former Sen. Edmond Gong of Miami, chairman of the Land Sales Advisory Board, and Secretary Donald Rumsfeld displayed it to the House Armed Services Committee. The map did not identify those ports and airfields that the United States and other NATO members have access to.

However, committee investigators charged that Graf had used his position to secure land division approval for a first-mortgage offering.

The sale was the only one specifically approved by the division and it came after repeated warnings of problems with first-mortgages, committee investigators said.

In fact, at the time of the approval, the division knew that the basic requirements of the $1 million mortgage were not met, $1 million from person buying 130 mortgages for which there was no land available to back the notes, investigators said.

Apopka Man Leads Bass Field Into Second Round

By BOB ORRELL
Herald Orlando Correspondent

Old weather didn't bother Jim Kremer, of Apopka, in the first round of the $40,000 American Bass Fishermen tournament held in Sanford Wednesday.

Kremer jumped into the first lead with a total catch of fish weighing 15 pounds, 10 ounces.

Commissioner, checked each fish to determine if any bacterial disease was evident. Some 25 fish were isolated for further study by biologists of the department.

The tournament continues through Friday with prizes to be awarded at the final banquet at Lake Monroe Inn. The tournament champion will receive $5,000 plus a boat and motor. Some adjustment will be made in second place prizes because entries fell short of the anticipated 200 according to George Oates, President of American Bass Fishermen, Inc.

At day's end, the dock stands welcome sight

Teenage Farmhand Told Smoking Is Unfeminine

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 14. Almost 15. My parents won't let me smoke. My brother got to smoke when he was 15, but when I ask my parents if I can smoke, they say, "No, it's not feminine."

Abby, I milk cows, bale hay, and even clean cows gutters, and you sure can't say THAT'S feminine.

All my girl friends get to smoke in front of their parents, so why don't they let me run my own life?

MYSELF: Because they don't want you to run it in a way that may be damaging to your health. I'm with them. The best advice I can give to non-smokers is "DON'T START!"

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were invited to a dinner party at the home of a very high-class, prominent society leader who has a reputation for entertaining beautifully.

My husband's widowed sister came to town unexpectedly, so I phoned my hostess and asked if she could bring our houseguest. She asked, "Is your houseguest a male or female?"

Dear Abby

I said, "She's my husband's sister."

And would you believe this so-called high-class society lady replied, "That's too bad. We already have three extra women. If you could bring a man, I'd be delighted, but we don't need any more women."

SPEECHLESS: No, Dear Abby. I couldn't help but smile when I read your comment about people who run ads in the classified section to meet a partner. Agreed, they must be desperately lonely, and they do run the risk of meeting some creepy characters that way, but did you know that this practice is entirely accepted in Europe, especially in Germany? Believe me, I have run into creepy characters in the U.S.A. and Canada in distinguished public places where a lady would think she is safe from creeps. I also know that many Europeans have found decent companions by placing ads in newspapers or going through a marriage agency.

The adage "different countries, different customs" still holds true, so please don't condemn that custom altogether. For some, it works.

T.L.K.: Many tried to defend the practice of advertising in a newspaper for companionship, and even marriage. But those who wrote were invariably winners. I'd like to hear from some losers.

For Taste Treat

Take A Second Look At Plain Old Beans

There are many ways to serve canned beans using creamed or leftover meats to make delicious taste treats. You can even use your regular meats such as chops to create a new and different dish. Here are a few ideas you might want to try.

Combine canned beans with 6 to 8 sliced parboiled salt pork, sliced luncheon meat or ham. Put into a casserole, alternating layers of beans and meat. Top with buttered crumbs. Bake in a 375 degree oven for 30 to 35 minutes or until heated through.

Chop and saute 1 onion and 1 clove garlic in 4 tablespoons oil. In a casserole, place canned beans with the onion, garlic any leftover turkey or chicken and some chopped fresh parsley. Pour over this 1/4 cup red wine, or 1/4 cup sherry or vermouth. Top with buttered crumbs. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 30 to 35 minutes.

Place in a casserole baked beans (from the can), sliced Canadian bacon, a sliced onion, 2 teaspoons dry mustard, 1 tablespoon French mustard, 2 cloves chopped garlic and 1/4 cup sherry or vermouth. Bake in a 375 degree oven for 35 minutes.

For Heart Ailments Jog Slowly, Says Doctor

HONOLULU (AP) — The trouble with a lot of joggers, says Dr. Jack Scalf, is that they run too fast.

Americans have bought millions of copies of books that offer fitness in six miles of running a week or 30 minutes a week of no-sweat exercise. Now comes Dr. Scalf with this prescription:

Don't run so fast that you're out of breath to talk. Run with a smooth, rolling motion from heel to toe, not on the toes like a track star. Don't worry about how fast you're going.

The catch? Do that for at least an hour three times a week.

Scalf, a 46-year-old cardiologist who himself runs two hours three times a week, has signed up 1,300 persons of all ages who follow his regimen in an informal organization called the Honolulu Marathon Clinic.

In addition, he leads about 200 heart attack victims through an hour of calisthenics and gentle jogging three times weekly.

Hundreds of his followers, including some of the heart patients, compete in the annual 26-mile Honolulu Marathon. The reward? Says Scalf: "We are saying that once someone gets into marathon condition the possibility of heart disease is so remote as to be negligible. We're dealing in what we think might be absolute protection."

Three years ago Scalf began working with heart attack victims. Based on national statistics — 37 per cent of those who survive a heart attack die within five years — more than 60 of the patients in Scalf's cardiac rehabilitation program should be dead by now.

"In our program, among those who die, we have had zero deaths and zero heart attacks in three years," Scalf says.

Most doctors recommend exercise, but few recommend the dosage that Scalf says is essential.

Seafood Offers Cooks Variety And Economy

By NANCY BOOTH Herald Correspondent

Seafood, according to nutritionists, is one of the highest sources of protein in our diet. For some reason, a food that is found in abundance in our oceans, lakes and rivers is served seldom at our American table.

This is strange, because if you compare the price of seafood with that of meat, it is often the better buy.

Many Americans also tend to serve a limited variety of fish or shellfish. They seem to stick to what they know and like, instead of experimenting with the wide variety of seafood available.

The most popular seafoods in the United States seem to be lobster, shrimp and fillet of sole. You can add just a few other varieties, depending on your geographic location.

Bostonians serve a lot of cod. Chesapeake Bay residents eat crab and Southerners thrive on catfish.

Try including one seafood meal a week in your budget. You will find, if you shop carefully, you not only save money, but surprise your family with a different culinary treat that may awaken their taste buds to something new and delicious.

Fresh seafood is naturally the best. But, if that is not available, there are many frozen varieties from which to choose. Do a little price comparing at the small fish markets and larger supermarkets. This can result in a savings to your food budget and give a boost to your imagination. Watch the sales and buy in volume when an item goes on special. Since seafood is seasonal, this can help you to serve your family favorites more often and at the reduced price. Seafood freezes well and loses very little flavor in the process. As a hint... once defrosted, cook the seafood as soon as possible so it will retain its color and juices.

Our family loves the native rock shrimp. It is plentiful and quite inexpensive this time of year. Buy 20 or more pounds at a time. Together with my neighbor, we take a day to sit and clean the shrimp. We then boil it, bag it, and freeze it in individual packets. It is ready at a moment's notice to prepare as shrimp creole, shrimp lobster sauce, in a cocktail and many other ways. By sharing the unpleasant job of cleaning the shrimp with someone, it becomes a pleasant chore.

For those of you who enjoy the exotic, try this recipe.

John T. Lynch No Ordinary Businessman

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The businessman on the phone has a multimillion dollar problem. Foreign terrorists have kidnapped one of his top executives and are demanding a huge sum for his release.

It may sound like a scene from a movie, but it's not. The drama has been played out frequently at the offices of the John T. Lynch Co., an international private investigation firm headquartered here.

That first phone call to Lynch will probably cost the businessman $15,000. From then on, says the company's president, John T. Lynch, "the fee would run in $50,000 multiples and would never be less than $100,000."

Those are stiff rates, but Lynch, a former FBI man who founded the company 22 years ago, claims a 100 per cent batting average in kidnapping cases.

"The most important element is the safe return of the victim," said Lynch. "That's what they're paying me for."

In addition to large corporations, Lynch's clients have included sheiks and shahs, princes and presidents. He won't discuss individual cases except to say "You've read about them in the newspapers," but the fact that James R. Hoffa's family consulted him after the labor leader's disappearance gives some idea of his stature.

"Most of the hostage-kidnaping cases we handle are outside the United States," said Lynch, since domestic abductions come under the jurisdiction of the FBI.

In the case of a foreign kidnaping, Lynch's first move is to send a man to the scene.

"He's the one who evaluates the field situation and then gets back to us on what he needs in the way of talent," Lynch said.

There's a lot of talent to draw from. Among Lynch's more than 40 employees are investigators trained in "photography, telephotography, electronics, microelectronics, sound, defensive driving, surveillance and all the cave-dropping equipment," Lynch said. His staff is primarily composed of what Lynch calls "Ex-men — ex-FBI, IRS or CIA."

Lynch said that kidnappings are likely to increase both here and abroad.

"It's a very profitable business," he said. "Where else could you get $5 million or $10 million, in one case $10 million, in a few hours tax free? There's no other occupation that pays so well — outside the U.S. Inside the U.S. I wouldn't be a nickel on a kidnaping being successful because of the FBI."

Lynch said his men have come face to face with organized crime and, although none have ever been shot, some have been threatened.

"We get them out of the geographical area," he said. "They require 24-hour protection."

Lynch said banking executives are particularly vulnerable to kidnapers.

"It's like Willie Sutton said ... he robs banks because that's where the money is. It's the same with the kidnaper, he takes the banker's family because he knows he's going to get his money quickly," said Lynch.

Although his firm makes a lot of money from kidnappings, Lynch said the company stresses prevention and offers a special seminar "designed for top executives who must travel and those in the banking field." He tells an executive to cut down on risks by "not announcing to the world what his itinerary is and by not going into high-crime areas."

If an executive has received a kidnaping threat, or is fearful of an attempt, Lynch also will provide around-the-clock protection for a fee of about $2,500 a week.

"That would include protection of the wife and kids," he said. "We'd drive the kids to school and provide a residence watch while the family is sleeping."

In addition to kidnaping cases, Lynch's company also concentrates on tracking down embezzlers. A typical embezzler, he said, "is a corporate officer in a position of trust who has access to millions of dollars and dips in up to his elbows."

In such cases, Lynch said, his men begin a "methodical pursuit" of the embezzler, tracing him wherever he may flee.

Brazil is a traditional haven for embezzlers, Lynch said, since there is no extradition treaty between the Latin-American country and the United States. But once there, Lynch said, criminals "are held while by corrupt officials. There are cases of officials confiscating private airplanes by planting five pounds of heroin. They say: 'Oh, senior, we must confiscate this $2 million plane carrying contraband.' The guy comes back with whatever he's got in his suitcase."

Lynch's other cases have included a variety of white collar crime, usually involving fraud, and patent infringements. He said his investigators have broken up multimillion-dollar drug smuggling rings, where criminals were bringing in drugs under false labels.

Lynch, who describes himself as being in his "mid-50s," says he became a private eye after 10 years with the FBI.

"I decided Hoover (J. Edgar Hoover, the late FBI director) was never going to quit, so I'd never get his job," he said.

SEEDCO Goal: To Provide Employment

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles which explore SEEDCO, its director, Horace Orr, and the philosophy and operations of the organization and what it means to Seminole County.)

Analysis

Franklin D. Roosevelt once wrote: "The test of progress is not what we add to the abundance of those who have much, it is whether we do enough for those who have too little."

In Seminole County, a black man named Horace Orr has a dream.

Orr's dream is to apply Roosevelt's philosophy to the economic situation and, somehow, provide jobs for the underprivileged and in the process get as many low-income persons as possible off the welfare rolls.

To accomplish this Orr has teamed up with a non-profit corporation which grew out of legislation pushed by the late Senator Robert Kennedy, and others, designed to do just what Orr hopes for — get poor people off welfare and into productive employment.

And, in the process, Orr hopes to give these low-income and poverty-level persons a taste of the American Dream as it was envisioned by all peoples who came to this nation in search of freedom and a decent living wage.

Orr has teamed up with the Seminole Employment Economic Development Corporation (SEEDCO), a non-profit firm operating with federal grants.

As SEEDCO's $23,300-a-year director, Orr, since 1970, has directed his energies creating corporations that can be managed, someday, by former low-income residents and eventually provide a training ground for welfare level persons unable to find jobs in the private sector.

"What we are trying to do is put people into that American system so they can participate and appreciate that system. That's the concept of the Community Development Corporation (CDC)," Orr says.

Now, Orr's success or failure depends, in part, on whether a person believes in the theory of his mission — to create corporations which will in turn provide welfare recipients with job skills and the knowledge that they are participating in the economic growth of this country.

According to the legislation which created SEEDCO, the organization's purpose is "directed to the solution of the critical problems existing in particular communities or neighborhoods ... having large concentrations of low-income persons."

SEEDCO's goal according to legislation is to have an "appreciable impact in such communities toward dependency, chronic unemployment and rising community tensions."

Orr will tell you that, theoretically, a nation must either "shoot" those persons unable, for one reason or another, to compete economically, place them on the welfare rolls — or provide jobs for them.

That's where SEEDCO comes in. Established in 1970, SEEDCO now monitors eight "ventures" or corporations, that are seeking to earn profits so that, someday, they can be used as training grounds for low-income persons.

SEEDCO, Orr says has received $4,150,000 in grant money. The money came from the federal government and what hasn't been spent is on deposit, Orr says, in Seminole County banks.

SEEDCO — if you include 103 jobs recently made possible by a $829,000 federal grant — is responsible for paychecks for about 398 Seminole Countians.

Of that number, Orr estimates 295 are employed directly by SEEDCO — or one of its "ventures."

$1 1/2 Million Suit Filed In Fatal Car-Train Crash

By BOB LLOYD
Herald Staff Writer

The mother of a Casselberry man killed in a September 1974 car-train collision has filed a $1 1/2 million damage suit in circuit court against Seaboard Coastline Railroad and engineer M. M. Launt.

Winter Park Attorney Joe B. Weeks filed the civil action for Mrs. Margaret H. Hayes, of Evansville, Ind., administratrix of the estate of John Phillip Hayes. Hayes was 37 years old when his car was struck by a south-bound passenger train at a railroad crossing on SR-47 just south of Lyman Road, Longwood, during the noon hour on Sept. 25, 1974.

Florida Highway Patrol troopers said the car was pushed 2,800 feet to Charlotte St. after the collision before the train could be stopped.

Mrs. Hayes' lawsuit, on behalf of the estate and Hayes' three minor children, claims the railroad and engineer were negligent in operation of the train and/or in maintaining the railroad crossing and in failing to furnish adequate signaling in advance of the train traversing the crossing, so as to give the operator of a car time to avoid placing his vehicle on the tracks.

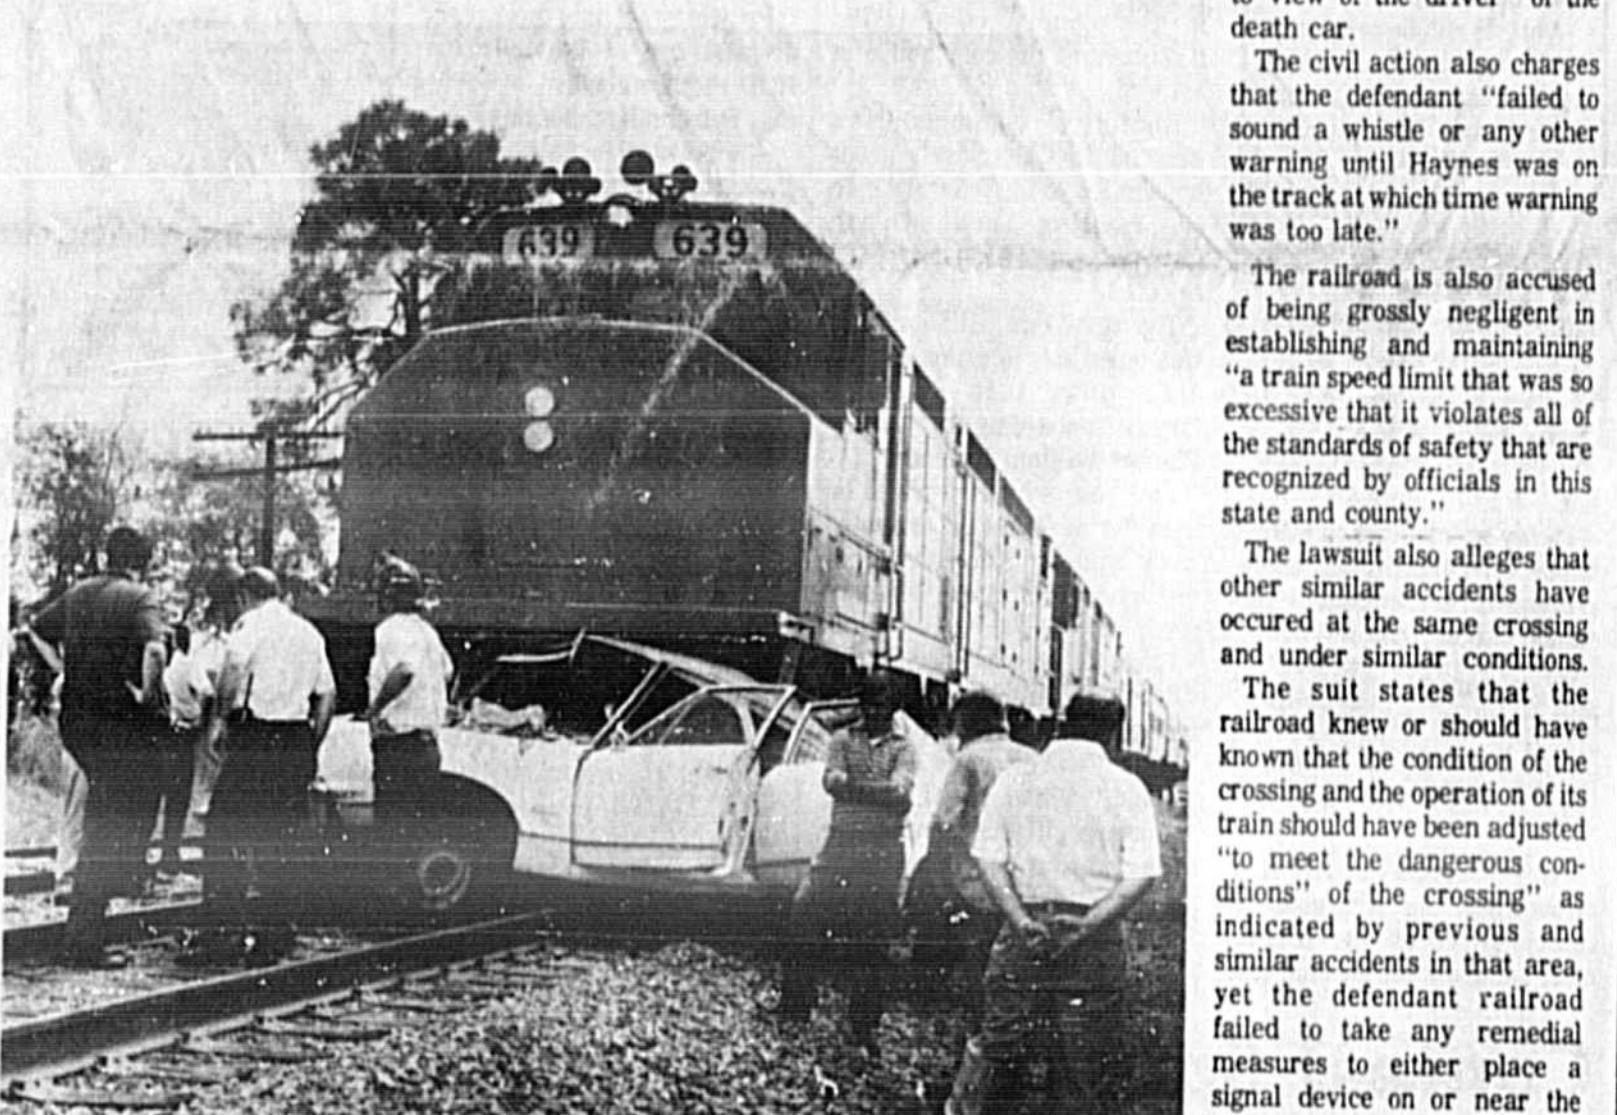

The lawsuit claims the railroad negligently maintained the crossing "by permitting substantial obstruction to view of the driver" of the death car.

The civil action also charges that the defendant "failed to sound a whistle or any other warning until Hayes was on the track at which time warning was too late."

The railroad is also accused of being grossly negligent in establishing and maintaining "a train speed limit that was so excessive that it violates all of the standards of safety that are recognized by officials in this state and country."

The lawsuit also alleges that other similar accidents have occurred at the same crossing and under similar conditions.

The suit states that the railroad knew or should have known that the condition of the crossing and the operation of its train should have been adjusted "to meet the dangerous conditions" of the crossing "as indicated by previous and similar accidents in that area, yet the defendant railroad failed to take any remedial measures to either place a signal device on near the crossing, guard arms at the crossing, removal of trees and brush which obstruct visual acuity, or slow down train speed."

September 1974 train-car crash at SR-47 crossing killed John Phillip Hayes, 37, of Casselberry.

Contest Sponsor Upset

By AUDIE MURPHY
Herald Staff Writer

The sponsor of a fishing tournament now in progress at Lake Meador is unhappy with Sanford and the St. Johns River.

"The St. Johns River is dead," George Oates, president of The American Bass Fisherman, Inc., said. "People are talking about the problem, but nobody is doing anything."

Oates said the tournament participants would be "spreading the word" about the area and what do we get? No participation, no cooperation. Do you think we will be back?"

But the executive manager of the Greater Sanford Area Chamber of Commerce, when told about Oates' remarks, commented, "The fact is, we didn't ask them (the tournament promoters) to come here."

"They (the promoters) have gotten all the facilities," Jack Horner said. "The only thing they haven't received is money."

Horner explained that when the tournament was in the planning stages, he had been approached by a representative of American Bass Fisherman, Inc., who solicited a contribution of $2,500 from the chamber.

"Jack Rathnell (manager of the Morris Harbour Marina) and I met with them, and told them that we had no funds to

County Committee Sets Activities

Men who dread the chore of shaving in the morning now have an excuse to abandon the task altogether — at least until July 4.

At Thursday night's meeting of the Bicentennial Chamber of Commerce, a beard-and-mustache growing contest was announced, with judging to take place on July 4.

Clarence Bauer announced at the meeting that trophies will be presented to those who produce the best beards and it's all in the spirit of the Bicentennial celebration. All that's required to enter is a $2 fee.

Also at Thursday night's meeting, which was held at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce building, Committee Chairman Jack Horner gave a presentation on "This Year's Bicentennial."

Confirming Horner's philosophy, Lyman High School Principal Marshall Moser introduced Miss Laura Taulbee, secretary of the school's Bicentennial Committee, who said Lyman students are planning a Centennial Park, a two-to-four-year project at the school. The county Bicentennial

Bicentennial 'Whisker' Contest Planned

Committee decided to seek a grant from the state to assist the project.

To spread the word about committee activities, the committee also decided to distribute a news bulletin, to be written by Jan Freeman.

One project likely to draw plenty of attention in the area is a sale of Bicentennial souvenirs, which will be held at the U.S. Bank of Sanford on Monday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Another attention-getting project was reported on by Ernie Horrell. He said the Bicentennial Wagon Train is scheduled to leave Polk City on Saturday and other wagons will join the train at Umatilla on February 4.

On the subject of history, reproductions of old-time celery vases were displayed at Thursday night's meeting. The vases, displayed by Oviedo committee spokesman Paul Minkler, are going on sale in that community, and will be on sale in Sanford on Monday.

In other activities, Dora Lee Russell reported on the Ballet to be held at the Civic Center, Feb. 21 and 22. Mrs. Reubin Askew, wife of Florida's Governor, will be a special guest at that event.

Mrs. Alfreda Wallace gave a

Couple Awaits Eviction Ruling

"We're fighting and we'll continue to fight," Hart said.

Morton Rosenblum, the Hart's attorney, said it is expected a Judge Hall will rule today on a motion to dismiss the petition for eviction.

If the judge does not grant the dismissal, Rosenblum said another hearing will probably be scheduled to give the Harts an opportunity to answer the eviction petition.

The Harts were notified early this month that the lease of the oil company-owned service station would not be renewed.

Mrs. Hart said at the time that Alford, an officer in the distribution company set

42,000 Register

More than 42,000 but less than 45,000 Seminole County voters will be eligible to cast ballots in the second presidential preferential primary in Florida history March 9, said Camilla Bruce, supervisor of elections, today.

Mrs. Bruce, whose office is in the process of tabulating each number today, said in the recent purge of the voter rolls the 2,341 mailed out were returned to her as undeliverable.
