Yonkers still fighting judge

NEW YORK — The leader of defiant Yonkers councilmen vowed to press ahead with his fight against court-ordered desegregation despite daily fines that will bankrupt the city in 17 days and the suspension of its ability to borrow money.

Moody's Investors Service suspended Yonkers' bond rating Thursday, deepening the city's financial peril, and U.S. District Judge Leonard Sand held a fourth councilman in contempt and ordered him to pay daily fines of $500.

Sand had delayed the hearing for that councilman, Vice Mayor Henry Spallone, until Thursday because he had no lawyer Tuesday when the judge held the city and three other councilmen in contempt and imposed the same fines for refusing to adopt a desegregation plan.

State unemployment declines

TALLAHASSEE — State economists say Florida's unemployment rate in July dropped to 4.3 percent, the lowest level since October 1973.

The state's jobless rate is down from 4.6 percent in June and from 5.4 percent in July 1987. The national unemployment rate in July was 5.4 percent.

Among the 11 most populated states, Florida tied with New York for the fourth-lowest jobless rate in the nation.

The worst unemployment last month was in Michigan, where 7.3 percent of the workers could not find jobs. The lowest rate in the nation was in North Carolina, with a 2.9 percent jobless figure.

Millions affected by tax bill

WASHINGTON — Millions of Americans ranging from farmers and contractors to free-lance artists and photographers would be affected by a miscellaneous tax bill overwhelmingly approved by the House.

The legislation, intended to correct drafting errors in the 1986 and 1987 tax laws, would close some corporate loopholes, extend some popular tax breaks and create a few new ones at the same time. It was adopted 380-25 Thursday.

The Senate Finance Committee approved a similar bill last week, but the full Senate has not yet acted on the issue.

Officials say Lotto jackpot could reach $27 million

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — State Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul says this week's Lotto jackpot could hit $27 million, but she will keep her estimate low to avoid giving the impression of inflating prize money to boost ticket sales.

"I'd rather say $22 million and pay $27 million than say $27 million and pay $26 million," Paul said Thursday after ticket sales, fueled by a $22 million jackpot, soared for the fourth day in a row.

"This Saturday, we could do $300-$400 a second," Paul said. "We'll probably pay more than $22 million. If this continues, we'll probably pay $26 million or $27 million."

Saturdays generally are the biggest ticket-buying day for lottery players.

Paul said the weekly sales total through 5 p.m. Thursday stood at about $7 million. Sales last week through Thursday totaled $2.8 million, she said.

Thursday proved to be another busy day for Lotto sales, with figures at 5 p.m. showing $2,307 million in sales, compared with last Thursday's total of $960,000.

Paul said tickets were being sold Thursday between 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. at the rate of $94,000 an hour, compared with $20,000 an hour a week ago on the same day.

Paul said it would be sometime Friday afternoon before she decided whether the $22 million Lotto jackpot will be raised again and that she would keep the estimate conservative.

The Lotto prize was bumped to $20 million Tuesday from $19 million after sales moved to $1,200 a minute, then increased again Wednesday and Thursday.

Last Saturday, a one-day record for sales was set when ticket buyers purchased $7.4 million in $1 tickets before sales stopped Saturday evening.

New type of airplane fails to impress Seminole sheriff

By SUSAN LOREN Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A new type of police airplane with a price tag of $125,000 and capable of cruising at 35 miles per hour was shown to law enforcement officials at the Sanford Airport Thursday, but Seminole County Sheriff John Polk wasn't impressed.

Polk said the craft would not serve the primary need for his department's airplane, which is the transport of prisoners.

The lightweight Austrian-made aircraft on display combines elements of a helicopter and an airplane and is designed to aid in air searches for speeding drivers. Polk said his department is not that heavily involved in such searches. He said it might be useful in surveillance, but not to a degree that would justify requesting one for his department.

County proposes intensive use for 414 acres

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County Planning and Zoning Commission members recommended changing 413.8 acres in the county to more intensive uses Wednesday night.

The commissioners will consider eight more land-use changes Aug. 10.

All of the proposals will be considered by the Seminole County Commission either Aug. 23 or Sept. 13. They will then be forwarded to the Florida Department of Community Affairs for 60 days for review and recommendation, then be returned to the county commission for two additional public hearings before taking effect in December.

Residents of the Sylvan Lake area were displeased about the board's approval of a proposal by Mark Arnold to build 354 homes on 334 acres northeast of Lake Sylvan. Because more than 50 percent of the land is either in Lake Sylvan or in wetlands, the homes would be concentrated at nearly three units per acre on the buildable land in an area that is now zoned to permit no more than one home per acre.

Two previous attempts by the Arnold family to build a high-density development on the land had been rebuffed by county commissioners.

"If you allow this proposal, it will affect the whole area," said Jack Thomas, a Lake Sylvan resident.

"One to the acre," said O.G. Owens, another lake-front resident. "Lake Sylvan is one of the cleanest lakes in Seminole County. The more houses you build around the lake, the more pollution you have in the lake."

The half dozen residents who sat through the five-hour meeting to protest the item were supported by zoning board member Frank Shelton, a Markham Woods area resident.

Board members approved the land change from one-unit-per-acre suburban estates to planned development. In a compromise, the board accepted member John Tracy's suggestion to reject the separate zoning request to target lots, and recommended allowing about two units per acre on the buildable land, one less per acre than requested.

Board members approved the land use change and the zoning change, with Shelton voting against both proposals.

Sanford city park plan faces nine-month delay

By WAYNE NIZE Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A planned city park, to be financed by donations and built by volunteer help, will be delayed for at least nine months, according to Scenic Improvement Board Chairman Martha Yancey.

The park concept was proposed by the Scenic Improvement Board (SIB) and was approved by the city commission in late May.

The park, which will be located between Eighth and Ninth Streets on Park Avenue, has been named Park on Park. It will feature a picnic area, playground and garden area.

The SIB was recently notified by renowned park architect Robert S. Leathers, of Ithaca, N.Y., that a design day could not be scheduled until the spring of 1989, which will delay construction of the playground equipment until the fall.

"I'm disappointed," said Yancey. "I was thinking we could start this year and be finished with it in the fall (of this year). Now, we will just have to wait."

Leathers has designed more than 400 parks nationwide with his unique concept of community involvement.

Once a design day is scheduled, Leathers visits all the schools in the area and meets with the children. He asks for their ideas as to the kind of playground equipment they would like.

He then designs the wooden playground equipment based on the ideas from the children.

Leathers requests that all of his parks be paid for with community donations and be built solely by volunteer labor with city help. His theory is that what belongs to the community is taken care of and provides a unified feeling of accomplishment. He has designed a similar park in Winter Park.

Over a year ago the Winter Park community raised approximately $40,000 to pay for the park and built it in four days. During the last two days of park construction over Sanford police and firefighters move Carolyn Rice Miller to an ambulance after she was injured in a collision on U.S. Highway 17-92 about 7:50 a.m. today. Miller, 44, of Sanford was driving the station wagon behind a truck which slowed to turn into a construction site. Sanford police said Miller stopped behind the truck and a car drove by Linda Tishler, 45, of Longwood, crashed into the rear of the wagon, pushing it into the truck. The drivers of both cars were treated at Central Florida Regional Hospital. The truck driver, Wayne Ducole of Louisiana was not injured.

Parks proposal shelved but not dead

TALLAHASSEE — The state is shelving plans to build hotels, restaurants and marinas at state parks, but might consider more modest forms of commercial development later.

"Generally, the development proposal was not very popular, so for now we have shelved the plans," DNR spokesman Randy Lewis said after opponents of the move appeared at a series of public hearings on the issue around the state.

Lewis said the department will consider seeking Cabinet authority to boost commercial ventures — possibly in partnership with private business — at some undetermined future date.

Such ventures would have to be compatible with the park environment, Lewis said, suggesting building bike paths and renting bikes as one possibility.

Lewis said the agency still plans to ask Gov. Bob Martinez and the Cabinet to authorize increased fees for park users, even though Commissioner of Education Betty Castor says she opposes the increases.

Anti-abortionists divided over tactics

TALLAHASSEE — Anti-abortion protesters planned to erect a "tomb of the unknown baby" this afternoon during a funeral service for what they said were 1,000 aborted fetuses culled from garbage cans and dumpsters.

The morning was devoted to sit-ins at the offices of Gov. Bob Martinez and Cabinet members as the protesters from as far away as Texas and Pennsylvania demanded the release from prison of activist Joan Andrews.

Protesters kicked off two days of demonstrations Thursday night with a rally at the state Capitol. Only 175 protesters showed up — far fewer than the projected 500 to 1,000.

Organizers said the protests could extend into Saturday with vigils and abortion clinic "rescue missions" calculated to inflame arrests and agitate for Andrews' freedom.

Andy Scholberg of the Pro-life Action Network in Chicago called Florida "the most un-American state in the country" for imprisoning Andrews, who drew a five-year sentence for leading three other activists in a 1986 assault on a Pensacola abortion clinic.

DeSillers asked to return assets

MIAMI — The curator of Ronnie DeSillers' estate has requested that his mother turn over assets she purchased with money donated in a nationwide drive to pay for her late son's liver transplants.

Court-appointed curator Karen Gievers requested an order from Dade County Circuit Judge Francis J. Christie to force Maria DeSillers to return assets she purchased with money from the boy's estate.

A spokeswoman in Christie's office Thursday said a hearing had not been scheduled on the matter.

Gievers said DeSillers still had items that were purchased with money from Ronnie's trust fund, and the items should be sold with the proceeds going back into the bank.

Christie ruled last week the $690,000 given by sympathetic donors, including $1,000 from President Reagan, should have been used to pay for the boy's three liver transplants, and after he died April 29, 1987 unused funds should have been spent on other ill children and not on DeSillers' expenses.

Eastern setback raises question of sale

MIAMI — A federal court order blocking Eastern Airlines from scaling back its operations in September may create havoc at the airline but it will not severely weaken the company's finances, analysts say.

"If they are unable to reduce their size, then you have a real problem," said Paul Karos, an airline analyst at First Boston Corp.

Karos noted that Eastern, which announced the cutbacks in July in an effort to stem financial losses, has not advertised those flights it expected to discontinue on Sept. 1 or taken any advanced bookings.

Although Eastern would have trouble finding passengers for those flights, the losses it would incur by maintaining the status quo would not strain corporate finances, at least not in the short term, another analyst said.

Anti-abortionist's probation revoked

PENSACOLA — A judge revoked the probation Thursday of an abortion opponent allegedly was seen in May near an abortion clinic with a man later convicted of planning to blow up the building.

John Burt, 49, who had planned to join other anti-abortionists in a rally in Tallahassee this week, was ordered to remain in the Escambia County Jail pending his sentencing Aug. 17.

Judge William Anderson revoked probation in a 15-minute hearing.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Discovery engine test up in air

CAPE CANAVERAL — Frustrated NASA engineers are testing a sluggish 1-inch fuel valve to find out why it derailed a critical main engine firing for the shuttle Discovery and whether the test can be rescheduled for Sunday.

The firing was aborted Thursday at 7:30 a.m. an instant before flight computers were to issue ignition commands at the T-minus 8.8-second mark in an otherwise smooth-running countdown.

The culprit was a small hydrogen "bleed valve" in main engine No. 2 that did not close before the engine start command as fast as the engine's control computer was programmed to expect.

Engineers are running tests to find out if the valve's performance could have been affected by exposure to supercold liquid hydrogen fuel at 423 degrees below zero. If so, software changes can be made that would permit the engine to operate, despite a slow-moving valve.

Under that scenario, the earliest Discovery could be ready for a second engine firing attempt would be Sunday at 7:30 a.m. — a full week behind schedule.

But if the valve suffers from a mechanical problem, it will have to be replaced at the launch pad, an option that would take at least a week and possibly longer to implement and one that almost certainly would have an impact on Discovery's eventual launch on the first post-Challenger flight.

"If we're lucky ... we could make Sunday morning at 7:30," said John "Tip" Talone, Discovery's processing manager.

He said two factors played a role in the decision to order a minimum three-day turnaround instead of a possible 48-hour slip for the engine test: stress on the work force and a need to reload launch pad fuel tanks with propellant.

"We've been through three countdowns here back-to-back and the people have been working pretty hard, with some disappointments," Talone said.

"We feel like it's time we stood down and let those guys take their people and plan their time such that they can all get some time off, go shake out the cobwebs and come back in fresh," he said.

The engine failure was the fourth delay in a row for Discovery's problem-plagued practice countdown and another blow to NASA's plans to launch the rebuilt spaceship in late September on the first post-Challenger shuttle mission, a flight already in danger of slipping into October.

Still to be resolved is an already-known leak in a steering rocket pod that engineers hope to repair at the launch pad by cutting a hole through Discovery's air payload bay bulkhead in order to reach a suspect fitting.

Thursday's test failure was an especially bitter pill for NASA engineers because it came at the end of an otherwise near-flawless countdown and fuel loading exercise, a welcome relief after two practice countdowns that were marred by a series of problems that pushed the engine firing five days behind schedule.

The unmanned test firing was to have lasted 22 seconds, subjecting Discovery and its myriad electrical, mechanical and hydraulic systems to the rigors of the launch environment for the first time since its last flight in August 1985.

Instead, the powerful engines never received ignition commands because of a small fuel valve in engine No. 2 that closed too slowly, setting off a computer alarm.

Smith: No abuse of records

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Secretary of State Jim Smith says making drivers licenses and motor vehicle registration information accessible by computer will not lead to widespread abuse of Florida's liberal public information laws.

Smith announced Thursday the state had contracted with CompuServe, Inc. to make Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles' computer records accessible through a computer telephone connection.

Beginning Thursday, anyone willing to pay CompuServe's $60 hourly fee can have access to those files 24 hours a day.

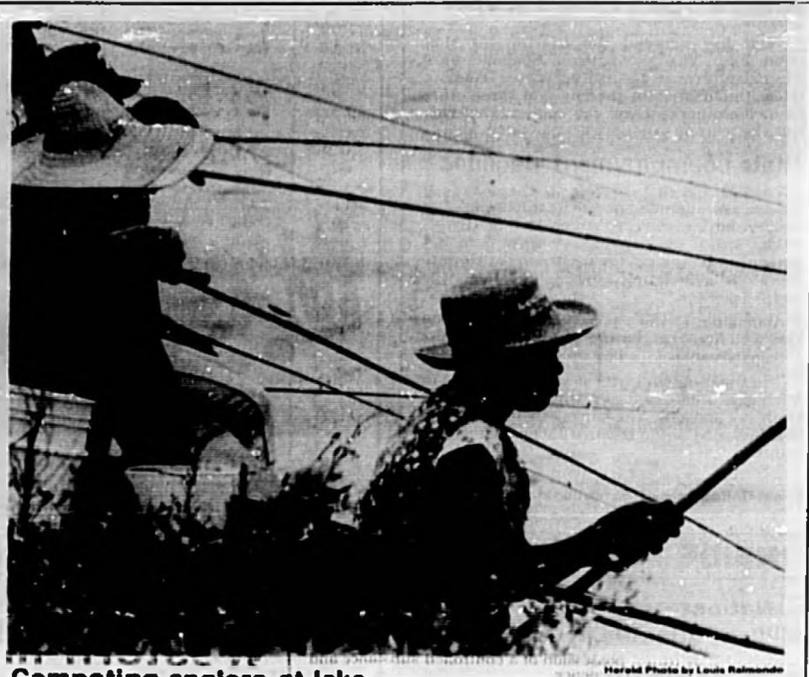

Anyone using the service will be able to obtain all the information listed on any Florida driver's license, including age, sex, home address, telephone number and social security number.

The user also will be able to obtain the license number, make age and prior ownership of any vehicle registered in the state.

Smith conceded that information could be abused by an obscene phone caller or a burglar seeking the address of a driver obviously leaving on vacation, for example, but said that information already is available to anyone willing to wait for a response via a standard written or telephone inquiry.

In addition, Smith said, using CompuServe will leave a computer record of the person requesting specific information.

"It's not to say there are not people out there who may be abusive, as there are in all aspects of our society, but the real thrust is that for the part of our society that needs this information in a rapid way, it can achieve it without the problems they have now," Smith said.

Competing anglers at lake

The "filling melody" of Garthwin's "Summertime" seems just right for anglers on the bank of Lake Monroe across from the Central Florida Regional Hospital Wednesday. The lyrics refer to catfish jumping and judging from the competing rods and lines, the fish don't stand a chance.

Six indicted in pilot-exam cheating case

United Press International

MIAMI — The indictment of six Air Force and reserve officers, charged with helping military pilots cheat on tests for commercial airline licenses, was needed to help ensure airline safety, a federal attorney says.

"The indictment is essential in ensuring that commercial passenger aviation remains safe, and is critical in protecting the integrity of the federal regulatory structure in the aviation area in general," said U.S. Attorney Dexter Lehtinen.

A federal grand jury indicted the six Thursday. The alleged scheme involved cheating by as many as 20 fighter pilots who took commercial aviation licensing examinations between December 1986 and June 1987, most of them at Homestead Air Force Base south of Miami, Lehtinen said.

But charges were only brought against those accused of devising the scheme and of trying to cover up their actions, he said.

"I think the public should be shocked at the willingness of fighter pilots to cheat in this fashion, but gratified that the Air Force itself provided much of the investigatory talent and ability to uncover the scandal," Lehtinen said.

Most of the pilots involved are still in the Air Force and it will be left up to the military to discipline them, he said. But two of the defendants are commercial airline flight engineers pilots and a third is a safety inspector for the Federal Aviation Administration.

The two accused masterminds of the scheme were identified as Air Force Reserve Maj. Charles Michael Chinn and Air Force Lt. Col. Edward King.

As a result of the indictment, Chinn will be suspended without pay from his job as an FAA safety inspector in Miami.

Dead man's possessions stolen

SANFORD — Police are investigating the theft of a heart attack victim's possessions after he died, according to a police report filed by the man's wife.

According to the report, on July 21 Bill Rivero died of a heart attack while at the Cumberland Farms convenience store, at 217 S. Park Ave. Rivero was transported to Central Florida Regional Hospital by Rural/Metro ambulance service.

According to Fran Rivero, the man's wife, she was given an envelop with her husband's personal possessions while at the hospital. Upon inspection of his wallet, she found $5. Fran Rivero told police there should have been at least $200 in the wallet and that a pocket knife her husband always carried was also not there. Also missing was a check book.

Man claims injury escaping intruder

Police found a man covered with cuts and blood at 103 Water Oak Court Thursday who told them he hurt himself trying to escape an intruder.

David Rozell, 30, told police he was in his living room when an unknown man entered the house. Rozell told police he broke out a window to escape.

The police report said Rozell was covered with cuts and blood and blood was all over the house. Windows in three rooms had been kicked out, according to the report.

Rozell refused medical treatment.

Arrested for attacking landlady

SANFORD — A man who allegedly forced his way into the apartment of his Sanford landlady and kicked her, then fought police and made sexual threats against the landlady's children remains jailed in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Phillip Wayne Mackey, 26, of 409 W. First St., was arrested at the home of his landlady's apartment at the same address Thursday. Sanford police booked him for burglary to an occupied dwelling, assault, battery and resisting arrest with violence.

In addition to the alleged attack on Rhonda Welker, the landlady, Mackey is accused of fighting police and making threats against Welker's children when he was being transported to jail.

Accused of assaulting girlfriend

LONGWOOD — A man who allegedly grabbed his girlfriend by the hair and threw her out of her car as he drove on Dog Track Road is in jail charged with aggravated battery.

Longwood police reported capturing Arthur James Schautzer, 33, of 217 Plaza Oreal, Casselberry, on Golden Days Avenue shortly after Carol L. Trier, 27, said she was attacked.

Trier, who said she and Schautzer were just driving along at about 11 p.m. Thursday when he attacked, suffered bruises and cuts on her arms and shoulders when she fell from the moving car, police said.

Schautzer is being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Accused of faking prescription

LONGWOOD — A man captured in a pharmacy after allegedly buying a prescription drug containing codeine with a fake prescription, allegedly ran from Longwood police and threw the drug in a pond before he was captured.

Jan Allen Pierce, 30, of Orlando, is accused of obtaining a prescription by fraud, possession of a controlled substance and destruction of physical evidence.

He allegedly called in a prescription to Aliberton's Pharmacy, U.S. Highway 17-92. By the time he arrived to pick up the drug, the pharmacist had called the doctor whose name was given for the order. The doctor confirmed he did not order the drug, a police report said. Police were called and Pierce was detained in the store until he ran from police and was recaptured outside, police said.

He was arrested at 10 a.m. Thursday and remains jailed in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Marijuana in sock results in arrest

GENEVA — A man who reportedly complained to Seminole County sheriff's deputies he had been attacked and beaten for a second time in Geneva removed his shoe and sock to show deputies an earlier injury to his foot.

The deputies reported seeing a bag of marijuana fall out of the sock the man removed and arrested him. Charles Dean Kane, 30, of 2801 Addie Arbor Run, Geneva, was booked for possession of marijuana Thursday night after being arrested at the Handy Way, 135 State Road 46, Geneva.

Deputies reported they responded to the scene because Kane wanted to report he had been beaten by several men in the parking lot of that store. The deputies said he did not appear to be injured. Kane reportedly volunteered to expose his foot to show an injury received earlier in a similar attack.

Bond was set at $500.

Giving aid leads to arrest

WINTER SPRINGS — A man who allegedly drove away from a scene where he was assisting a stranded motorist when a Seminole County sheriff's deputy arrived, was pursued by the deputy and arrested on a complaint of theft of the car he was driving.

The deputy reported spotting Shane Allan Terry, 24, of 2356 Palm Drive, Oviedo, on Belle Avenue, Winter Springs, at about 12:16 a.m. today. Terry, who was aiding a woman driver, fled. The deputy pursued him and determined the car he was driving had been reported stolen in Seminole County.

Terry was arrested on Seminola Boulevard and is being held without bond because he is on probation, a sheriff's report said.

Police make arrest in Tuesday shooting

SANFORD — A Sanford man has been arrested in connection with the shooting of a 13th Street store owner during a robbery Tuesday.

Sanford police report several anonymous telephone tips led them to suspect Willie George Church, 28, of 905 Bay Ave., who is accused in the 7:48 p.m. robbery during which Marcel Aguste was shot four times.

Church was booked on counts of attempted murder, armed robbery and use of a firearm in a felony. He was arrested at the police station about noon Thursday following questioning. He had reportedly been identified by Aguste in a police photo lineup as the shooter, who also had two accomplices in the robbery.

Aguste was robbed at Ideis Food Store, W. 13th Street. He lost $50 to the thieves and was shot several times before the suspects fled with his cash.

Sanford police report Aguste is in serious but stable condition in intensive care at Central Florida Regional Hospital.

Sanford police officer resigns after traffic stop

By WAYNE MIZE
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Sanford police officer Curt Schuster resigned from the force Wednesday in the face of an internal investigation.

Acting on a written report from the Winter Park police which detailed a high-speed chase and the running of a red-light by Schuster on July 27, Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriett instigated an investigation.

Schuster, who had been suspended with pay during the investigation, resigned Wednesday after learning Harriett had begun termination proceedings.

"A process to check into the allegations was underway at the time (of Schuster's resignation)," said Captain Charles Fagan, acting police chief while Harriett is on vacation. "In fact, if the allegations are true then he would have been terminated."

Schuster, a three-year undercover vice officer, could not be reached for comment.

According to Winter Park police reports, Schuster was driving an unmarked police sports car when he was stopped in Winter Park at 1 a.m. July 27.

Winter Park officer W.D. Clark Jr. said he saw a sports car traveling at a high speed west on Fairbanks Avenue, and run a red light at Orlando Avenue.

Clark chased Schuster north on Orlando Avenue to the city limits, where Schuster pulled into a parking lot.

Clark and Lt. John Fields both said they smelled alcohol on Schuster's breath.

Schuster was not cited by Clark, but was given a verbal warning.

However, before giving the warning, the Sanford police department was notified of the incident.

"They (Winter Park) telephoned Lt. Joe Dillard," said Fagan. "He told them to handle it as they would any citizen."

Department procedures prohibited Schuster from taking the sports car outside the city limits when off-duty, Fagan said.

The next day, Clark wrote Harriett describing the incident, prompting the internal investigation.

Winter Park Police Chief Jim Younger said officers have the right to make arrest decisions and that he supported Clark's verbal warning.

Longwood Christmas parade panel public hearing scheduled Aug. 15

By JANE CASSELLBERRY
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — The city commission has passed a first reading of a revised version of the proposed Christmas Parade Committee ordinance and a public hearing has been set for the Aug. 15 meeting.

Originally on the July 18 agenda, action on the ordinance was postponed until after a work session so that Mary Volkening, chairman of the existing Christmas Parade Committee, and committee members could comment on the ordinance and make suggestions.

Not having been advised or consulted on the proposed ordinance establishing rules and procedures for the committee, they were afraid the idea was politically motivated and questioned workability of some of its provisions.

A meeting between City Administrator Gene DeMarie, Volkening, and Parks and Recreation Director Bill Goebel resulted in a compromise ordinance given preliminary approval Monday night.

In other business, the commission approved Sept. 5 at 6:30 p.m. as the date they will sit as an equalization board regarding paving and drainage assessments for property owners adjacent to Lakeview Avenue between Church and Orange avenues.

The estimated cost of the paving project is $71,000. One of the property owners will receive credit for payment of the assessment in exchange for granting a necessary drainage easement to the city. Property owned by the Seminole County School Board will also be exempt.

The paving project was timed to coincide with completion of expansion work being done at Longwood Elementary School. DeMarie said he hopes the paving work will be done by the time school starts.

Commissioner Ted Poelking has asked DeMarie to look into consolidating the city's fire department with Seminole County Fire Department in order to save money. The fire department budget in the 1988-89 proposed budget is $959,855.

The last of the vacancies on the Parks and Recreation Advisory Committee, left when all but one of the committee members resigned, was filled by the appointment by Commissioner Rick Bullington of Nadine Tolos of Highland Hills.

Western fires reportedly beaten as tourists told parks are safe

United Press International

Wyoming's governor said tourists had no reason to be frightened away by wildfires that have charred nearly 150,000 acres of Yellowstone National Park as crews battled flames in three other Western states, including a blaze that forced 800 guests to evacuate a popular Oregon resort.

Firefighters had most of the nation's wildfires beaten Thursday and Arnold Harigan at the nation's firefighting headquarters in Boise, Idaho, said the plan was to send 400 crew members home for a rest while there was a lull in activity.

Wyoming Gov. Mike Sullivan said the fires in Yellowstone Park have blackened about 149,500 acres, only 7 percent of the park's 2.2 million acres, but tourism dropped by 20,000 people a day last week.

"Without minimizing the seriousness of the fires, I want to assure people that Yellowstone Park and all Wyoming tourist attractions remain open," he said. "You can visit Yellowstone and Grand Teton parks and all our other attractions without danger or fear."

Fire Information Officer Larry Blade said there were still about 2,060 firefighters and support personnel in the park Thursday and the cost of fighting the fires had reached an estimated $8.8 million.

A 50-acre forest fire sparked by a condominium blaze near Bend, Ore., forced the evacuation of 800 guests at a popular resort near the Deschutes National Forest. About 130 firefighters contained the blaze late Thursday but residents were kept away until it was completely under control. No injuries were reported.

Oregon officials temporarily banned burning of grass seed fields Thursday while investigating a smoke-caused 31-vehicle pileup on Interstate 5 that left seven people dead, including three children, and 38 injured. Nine of the injured remained in the hospital Thursday.

The chain-reaction collision near Albany occurred Wednesday afternoon when smoke from a wildfire, touched off by field burning, blew across the highway and reduced visibility to "zero."

In Yellowstone Park crews were concentrating their efforts on the 19,025-acre North Fork fire in the west-central portion of the park and the 16,600-acre Fan fire in the park's northwest corner.

The North Fork fire burned to within 4 miles of Old Faithful geyser last week, but Blade said it no longer poses a threat to the park's most famous attraction or the visitor facilities around it.

500 gallons of oil spill from pond

By WAYNE MIZE
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The Amtrak station, 600 Persimmon Ave., was the site of an estimated 500-gallon oil spill Wednesday morning.

According to City Fire Marshall Tom Martin, the spill occurred because of the heavy rains that fell on the city Tuesday.

Polly Kratman, an inspector for Seminole County Environmental Services, said the spill was contained and cleaned up Thursday.

The used oil from locomotives was contained in a concrete-block retention pond which, through a series of stages, filters out impurities so the oil can be sold and reused.

The pond, approximately 50 feet long, 30 feet wide and three feet high, was not covered, according to Martin, and the 5.3 inches of rain on Tuesday caused it to overflow. The spill covered a ground area approximately 100 feet long and 25 feet wide, said Martin.

He said no contamination occurred, but one storm grate was capped to prevent any possible leakage into the system.

Suspension of inspector is continuing

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The paid suspension of a county plumbing inspector will continue while county building officials investigate an unlicensed contracting job he accepted in Atamonic Springs in February.

The inspector, Emile Georgi, was suspended for two days Monday while county building officials investigate the incident.

Although Georgi said he did not need a state contractor's license to complete the $6,525 job because he merely organized several workers to do the work, state Department of Professional Regulation officials admonished him for doing the job, saying it needed a general contractor's license or certification from the state. In April he signed a state cease and desist order, agreeing to stop working without a license, but not admitting guilt.

Thinking because the work was done in a city and not under county inspection jurisdiction, Georgi — a plumbing inspector for nearly 16 years — said he didn't think he would have to notify department director Bill Culbertson of the work.

Deputy County Administrator Jim Bible said the county policy is that all outside work is to be reported to the department director regardless of whether it would be supervised by county inspectors.

Bible said he does not know how long the suspension will continue.

Generation lost on map

The term "lost generation," coined by Gertrude Stein during the 1920s, seems more appropriate to today's Americans, who are blissfully ignorant of the world in which they live. With no apology in Miss Stein, Gilbert M. Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society, whimsically pinned the label recently on those who scored so dimly on a geographical survey conducted by the society and the Gallup Organization.

There is nothing funny about Americans finishing sixth among residents from nine nations in a survey of geographical literacy. Worse still is the sorry fact that Americans aged 18 to 24 finished dead last when their answers were compared to their counterparts.

The results did not surprise educators in Seminole County. The problem of geographic illiteracy is recognized and the county is trying to do something about it.

Perhaps knowledge of geography hit its zenith in the schools during World War II when students followed the courses of action on all of the major continents. Every 6th grader knew the location of Tunis, Iwo Jima and Bastogne. You had to memorize the 48 states by their outline, and their position on the map. After that the names started changing. Many older adults have difficulties with all of the tiny nations of Africa and other areas that have changed since World War II but the generation which produced the baby boomers will be hard to beat in the geography category. However, the boomers have really busted.

Geography teachers in Seminole County say that one of the problems locally is that geography is only offered one year whereas other subjects, English being one, are repeated each year. The county coordinator for the discipline stated that Seminole County students scored 11 percentage points higher than the national average on a standardized test. However, the national average is 36 and our students scored 47. The question is whether the 47 figure is acceptable.

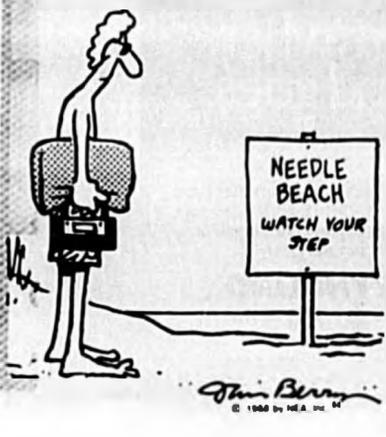

A portion of the survey did reveal good news. According to this week's Newsweek, 84 percent of the respondents in the United States were familiar with the potential dangers of the greenhouse effect, knew about the suspected hole in the ozone layer, and were aware of the controversy between the United States and Canada over acid rain. This very high percentage is astounding and speaks well of the focus of both educators and the news media on environmental issues.

We agree with Mr. Grosvenor's concerns over the abysmal American scores on geography but are encouraged by the attitude of Seminole County educators. It is, perhaps, doubly important for students in this county to maintain geographic awareness given the influx of new residents from throughout the world.

Exurban sprawl robs Atlanta

SANDY SPRINGS, Ga. (NEA) — The two copper-colored office buildings in this Atlanta suburb, one completed and the other still under construction, appear at first glance to be quite ordinary — but they are exceptional for several reasons.

First, the real estate firm that built them is headed by John C. Portman Jr., the architect-developer nationally known for his work in reviving the central business districts — not expanding the suburbs — of major cities throughout the country. Moreover, he is a local resident best known as the architect of Atlanta's skyline.

Second, the two buildings constitute the initial phase of an incredibly ambitious project that eventually will cost $1.2 billion, sprawl across 100 acres and include nine office towers, two hotels and a massive shopping mall.

The commitment to that Northpark Town Center complex by Portman Barry Investments Inc. is noteworthy. Until now, Portman's efforts have been concentrated on downtown projects stretching from New York to San Francisco.

His defection to the suburbs is part of a trend that has seen communities on the edges of many of the country's metropolitan areas transformed from places where people live to locations where they work.

Indeed, evidence suggests that the nation is building its urban future in clusters of high-rise office buildings miles away from established downtowns.

In some locations, that phenomenon is most evident near airports that years ago were built in exurban locations. Chicago's O'Hare, Washington's Dulles and Houston's Intercontinental now serve as magnets for development.

Elsewhere, the siting of soulless, sterile office complexes seems to defy logic. In the New York metropolitan area, for example, development stretches 70 miles from Princeton, N.J., on the southwest to Stamford, Conn., on the northeast.

But the traffic congestion, labor shortages and other problems that inspired many firms to flee the city often have followed them to the suburbs.

Moreover, much of the construction during the first half of the 1980s is attributable not to any clamor for office space from potential tenants but instead to the greed of doctors, dentists and other wealthy individuals seeking to take advantage of the tax shelters provided by real estate partnerships.

"Many properties in the outlying suburbs were built for the wrong reasons," says one knowledgeable observer.

Nowhere is the phenomenon more evident than here in the Atlanta area, where suburban sprawl has produced a metropolitan area that encompasses 18 counties and forms a rough circle 75 to 80 miles in diameter.

The search for office building locations often begins at Interstate 285, which encircles the city and is known locally as the Perimeter, then continues outward through two counties in every direction — although some companies have defied the trend.

Consider the Kitty factor

The secret to being elected president is a candidate's ability to convince voters that he is both Everyman and Superman.

His values must be as universal as the next-door neighbor's, but his leadership superior to everybody in the neighborhood.

So far, the latest poll shows voters comfortably embracing this political paradox in Michael Dukakis by 10 percentage points over George Bush.

That's ironic, because Bush seems to radiate more feeling than his rival.

Bush is a colie who gratefully licks your hand every time your body language conveys the impression that you're even thinking about patting his head.

Dukakis is a Boston terrier who warily circles your space before deigning to let you invade his, then contemptuously tolerates your pat.

As a group, men ignore the canine distinction. They support the two candidates with 46 percent for each. But women favor Dukakis by 17 points.

And that's where Bush could lose the election.

During the past few weeks, Dukakis has sent signals that he cares more than Bush about issues on which women place a higher premium — child care, human rights, drug addiction and the homeless.

If the distinction holds up until the November election, Kitty Dukakis can claim some of the credit.

The difference between her and Barbara Bush may be more style than substance, even though their candidate husbands are ideologically distant.

Barbara Bush, a queenly beautiful woman, carries herself with a grandmother's dignity and a young bride's enthusiasm.

As the nation's first lady, she would be a powerful advocate for education and a compassionate voice for governmental intervention for the helpless. She needs to be heard.

But in the two weeks since the Democrats left Atlanta in one piece and speaking in one tongue, the nation has been tantalized with "the Kitty factor."

Part of the magic flows from the youthful-sounding name, Kitty.

On the maternal Kitty Dukakis, its cuddliness wears well.

But this woman, who might be America's first Jewish first lady, has always worked at being what the Irish call her "own secretary of state."

Her opinions are held with decisiveness, but like any good secretary of state, she graciously defers to her president.

"Kitty lets Michael run his show, and he lets her run hers," explained a Dukakis aide.

A recent Newsweek picture demonstrated that reciprocity.

Kitty is holding a microphone, talking intently into it, her head bowed, concentrating on her message. But her other hand is resting lightly on her husband's shoulder.

Without the stamen of this unique marriage, the Kitty factor couldn't blossom.

These two really dig each other.

During the Wisconsin primary, a picture showed them grinning at each other with a fondness that lights up the American flag behind them.

They seem to be having a ball, cavorting in an American coming-of-age that can accept as a potential president a Spanish-speaking Greek married to a divorced Jew formerly strung out on amphetamines.

In 1988, you just can't get any more pluralistically hip than that.

But the Kitty factor is not unanimously welcomed.

Just as American Jews are ecstatic about her passionate support for Israel, American Arabs are distressed by that added tilt in the White House.

For conservatives, her greatest liability is an audacious liberalism that replicates her husband's.

Meanwhile, until the Republican coronation in New Orleans produces a Barbara factor, the Kitty factor may be the rain that helps end the eight-year Democratic drought.

LETTERS

Dear Editor:

A recent article by Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta ("Missile Project Close to Nunn's Heart") is completely misleading and largely false. Before addressing the errors, let me outline a number of key facts.

In the early 1980s, the Army, Navy and the Air Force each started separate cruise missile programs that were designed to attack enemy radars. A proposal to consolidate the programs into a single joint service program because of duplication and cost was first made by the House of Representatives in the spring of 1984. In the summer of 1984 the Senate agreed to the House proposal.

In November 1984, Department of Defense officials selected the Tacit Rainbow program as the joint service program because they concluded that it was the best program for meeting the requirements for each of the military departments. Since that decision was made, the military services and the Department of Defense have asked for money every year to continue development of Tacit Rainbow. The other cruise missile programs, including the Seek Spinner program cited in the Anderson/Van Atta article, were terminated by DoD, and DoD has not requested any money for these programs since 1985. In the summer of 1986, the Northrop Corporation decided to locate its plant to build Tacit Rainbow missiles in Georgia.

Now let me address some of the errors in the story.

First, Mr. Anderson and Mr. Van Atta call Tacit Rainbow "an Air Force missile program that the Air Force didn't want." The facts show just the opposite. The Tacit Rainbow program was started by the Air Force. DoD evaluated all three of the cruise missile programs under development in the Army, Navy and Air Force, and, with the agreement of the military services, selected the Air Force's Tacit Rainbow program as the single joint service program to perform this mission.

Second, the article implies that the Air Force would have terminated Tacit Rainbow and developed Seek Spinner if I had not forced them to fund it because it is being built in Georgia. Again, this is not supported by the facts. During the early 1980s I supported both Tacit Rainbow and Seek Spinner. In 1984 the House Armed Services Committee recommended consolidation of three programs into a single joint service program. The Senate Armed Services Committee agreed with that recommendation. The military services and the Defense Department then decided that Tacit Rainbow should be the services' joint cruise missile program. It was not until two years later that Northrop Corporation decided to locate a production facility in Georgia.

Third, the article implies that I am being parochial by defending Tacit Rainbow and that a better alternative, Seek Spinner, should be funded. Again, consider the facts. The Department of Defense and the Air Force selected Tacit Rainbow over Seek Spinner in November, 1984. The Defense Department requested funds to continue development of Tacit Rainbow in each of the last five years. I have never tried to increase funding for the program over the levels requested by the Defense Department.

In contrast, the Defense Department has not asked for any money for Seek Spinner since January, 1984. The Senate has not provided any funds for Seek Spinner under three different Chairmen of the Armed Services Committee — Senator John Tower, Senator Barry Goldwater, and myself. The House of Representatives has added funds for Seek Spinner to the Pentagon's budget each year since 1985 over the objections of the military services and the Department of Defense.

These serious errors could have been avoided had either Mr. Anderson or Mr. Van Atta talked to me or my staff prior to publication of the article. I regret that these errors must be corrected after the fact, but I hope that you will share this letter with your readers if your paper ran the original Anderson article.

Sincerely,
Sam Nunn

Market moderate, prices dip

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened lower today in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 7.47 Thursday, was down 7.29 to 2119.31 shortly after the market opened.

Declines outpaced advances 577-224 among the 1,240 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 8,840,500 shares.

Investors proved to be more apathetic than enthusiastic Thursday as they awaited the next round of unemployment data.

Before the market opened today, the Labor

Department reported that unemployment rose to 5.4 percent in July from 5.3 percent in June, but there was a slightly higher-than-expected increase of 233,000 non-farm payroll jobs.

Brad Weeks, senior vice president in charge of sales and trading at Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette, described Thursday's market as lackluster, noting that "with interest rates above 9 percent, bonds are more attractive than stocks right now."

But interest rates have reached their peak, said Weeks, who sees a rally on the horizon.

"I think the economy is in good shape and interest rates are under control," he said. "If you really look at interest rates and the stock market, they move in lockstep."

Dollar posts modest gain; gold, silver dip slightly

United Press International

The dollar posted modest gains in thin trading against key foreign currencies Friday as activity remained slow ahead of the release of U.S. unemployment data for July. Gold slipped overseas.

In early trading in the Far East, the U.S. currency was traded in a tight range against the yen and closed 0.37 yen higher Friday in Tokyo at 133.12 yen.

Dealers said they expected the dollar to be traded in a narrow range around 133 yen for at least the next week.

In Europe, the dollar began the day in Frankfurt at 1.8850 West German marks, up from 1.8780.

The dollar opened in Zurich at 1.5730 Swiss francs, up from 1.5680 and in Paris at 6.3545 French francs, up from 6.3375.

The U.S. currency started the day in Brussels at 39.98 Belgian francs up from 39.83 and in Milan at 1,390.50 lire up from 1,386.60.

In London the pound began trading at $1.7060 down from the previous day's rate of $1.7110.

London dealers credited the dollar's rise to expectations for the U.S. employment figures for July. They said the figures were expected to show a robust U.S. economy and underline the continuation of high interest rates.

High U.S. interest rates support the dollar.

In early New York trading, the dollar was sharply higher on the release of the U.S. unemployment data.

Traders said the market expected unemployment to be reported at 5.3 percent, with an accompanying 255,000 job increase in the amount of non-farm payroll jobs.

Dukakis says Bush's statements on disarmament plans 'nonsense'

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Presidential candidate Michael Dukakis, defending his military policies, dismisses as "nonsense" the contention by Vice President George Bush that his Democratic approach amounts to unilateral disarmament.

At the same time, brushing aside support by his own running mate for new aid to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels, Dukakis would like to turn the tables on Bush by pledging "this fiasco in Central America is going to end" if the Republican Party is turned out of the White House.

The comments came on the first day of Dukakis's three-day campaign trip that today was to take him outside Los Angeles to Laguna Beach and then onward to Seattle before wrapping up Saturday in Denver and in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

The Democrat was responding to a strongly worded speech by Bush Thursday in Corpus Christi, Texas, in which the vice president charged that Dukakis would forfeit America's role as a world leader if elected and would turn his back on 40 years of U.S. foreign policy experience.

"His positions, if taken together, add up to a major departure from the post-war bipartisan consensus on foreign policy," said Bush, a former CIA director, envoy to China and U.N. ambassador who has frequently attacked the Massachusetts governor for being too inexperienced in global affairs.

"In my judgment," Bush told the American GI Forum, a mostly Hispanic veterans group, "they amount to a rejection of America's role as a world leader and a repudiation of the Truman Doctrine and the vision of John F. Kennedy."

Invoking the words of President Kennedy on the need to "oppose any foe to assure the survival and the success of liberty" was a particularly biting reference because Dukakis often compares himself to his fellow Bostonian.

At the airport in Meridian, Miss., before flying to Los Angeles, Dukakis dismissed the allegations from his rival.

"He knows better than that," the Democrat said. "That's nonsense. I want a strong America, but we've got to have strong conventional forces as well as a strong nuclear deterrent."

"We need a president who will invest in strong conventional forces. We're not getting that now and we wouldn't get it under Vice President Bush."

While acknowledging he opposes "Star Wars," the Strategic Defense Initiative, as well as the mobile MX missile and Midgeman missile, Dukakis argued, "We have a massive, survivable nuclear deterrent right now."

As president, he said, he would work to negotiate mutual nuclear and conventional armed forces reductions with the Soviet Union.

Later Thursday, Dukakis tried to pin Bush with a foreign policy jibe of his own, attempting to turn the tables when asked during a question-and-answer session with students at the University of California-Los Angeles why members of the Democratic Party in Congress are supporting new aid for the Contras.

Defense probe forces layoffs

PALATKA — A defense industry subcontractor under investigation by the federal government is suspending operations and laying off 80 employees because its biggest customer decided to take its business elsewhere.

Employees of Armetec Inc. got what could be their last paychecks Friday after Unlays Corp. suspended payments for the wiring harnesses being produced by the small company, located about 60 miles south of Jacksonville.

The Washington Post reported that federal investigators were probing whether Unlays had funneled money through Armetec to U.S. Rep. Bill Chappell, D-Fla. The reports said documents found at Armetec have been helpful in the investigation.

Paul also said Wednesday she was "not concerned" by an estimated $2.4 million in missing "Millionaire" lottery tickets.

Paul also said lottery retailers began receiving "Money Tree" tickets this week for a new game that will debut Aug. 14. She said one-tenth of the dealers will get the new tickets each day over the next 10 working days and that retailers already are selling tickets to the new game.

She said some lottery ticket retailers do not keep careful sales records and that could cost them money if they cannot account for the tickets.

Airplane

Orange County sheriff's deputies came to see a demonstration flight of the HI-23 Scanliner.

A primary feature of the small plane with a helicopter-type cockpit is the panoramic view it offers. The engine and propeller are mounted in the center of the craft so as to not obstruct vision. The maker says the cost of a Scanliner is 20 percent of the price of a helicopter with similar features and characteristics.

Air searches for speeders is nothing new. The Florida Highway Patrol routinely and effectively uses airplanes equipped with radar to clock the speeds of vehicles. The speed of violators is radiated to troopers working on the ground who then issue the drivers tickets.

The Scanliner can cruise at 35 mph, or it can glide from 1,000 feet up.

The 1,234 pound Scanliner is more fuel efficient than other aircraft, according to the manufacturer, who says the 24-foot-long craft can fly for six hours, or almost 1,000 miles without refueling. It reportedly can attain a speed of 124 mph with its modified Porsche engine.

There is no special training required to pilot the craft, which has an ignition like that of a car.

scheduled for Wednesday was withdrawn. Sid Roche wanted to build 596 homes on 1,258 acres generally west of the Lake Mary Boulevard-Markham Woods Road intersection, including a portion along the east banks of the Little Wekiva River.

Residents in the area opposed the proposal which would increase densities above the current one-unit-per-acre land uses in the area and threaten to pollute the Little Wekiva.

In a letter to county officials, a Roche representative said the company wants to review new state and regional Wekiva River area protection laws and how they might impact the proposal.

Board members also recommended approval of a land-use change sought by auto dealer Jimmy Bryan on 60.3 acres south of the County Road 427-U.S. Highway 17-92 intersection.

Bryan, who has a Toyota-BMW-Sterling dealership on U.S. 17-92 in Sanford, wants to build a four-dealership complex on 28 acres along U.S. 17-92 and 103 homes on 20 acres behind the dealerships, separated by a 100-foot tree buffer.

Board members approved the request.

IT'S TIME TO CONSIDER A NEW LIFESTYLE. Where Attention To Detail Has Not Been Overlooked!! 330-1300 RANDOLPH COURT APARTMENTS 90 HIDDEN LAKE DRIVE SANFORD, FLORIDA

Baker expected to leave Treasury today

WASHINGTON — President Reagan was expected to announce the resignation today of Treasury Secretary James Baker so the Republican could take over as campaign manager for Vice President George Bush.

White House aides were alerted to be prepared for the announcement "any time now," but probably after the stock markets closed at 4 p.m. EDT.

The betting was that Reagan would name New York investment banker Nicholas Brady, a close friend of Bush, to succeed Baker, another close friend who ran Bush's presidential campaign against Reagan in 1980.

Brady reportedly would be in line to remain in the Cabinet if Bush wins the presidency in November. Baker could be expected to become secretary of state, a job he apparently covets.

Harvard closes as East bakes in heat

Harvard University closed today for the first time because it is too hot, while Americans made runs on air conditioners and overburdened utilities warned of "brownouts" unless power demand lessens in the weeklong heat wave.

The city of Boston opened air-conditioned shelters for the elderly, complete with 25 cases of lemonade donated by actor Paul Newman, and officials made a public appeal for fans to distribute to the old and sick.

The Philadelphia Zoo dumped a half-ton of ice into pools used by Siberian tigers, polar bears and gorillas to keep the animals cool. On Rhode Island's beaches, not even the wave of medical garbage that washed up this summer could keep people away.

"With the heat this summer, all of our beaches and parks have seen a 10 percent increase from last year, if not more," said Steve Wright, superintendent of Rhode Island's state parks.

From the Midwest to the Northeast, the heat has broken 88 high-temperature records since Sunday. Records were set Thursday in nine cities, including Madison, Wis., and Traverse City, Mich., with 87 degrees, Grand Rapids, Mich., with 86, and Portland, Maine, with 93.

Utilities in Massachusetts and Rhode Island pleaded with customers to cut their use of electricity. Some warned they would impose "brownouts" — shutting off power in selected areas for periods of 80 to 90 minutes — if the public failed to trim consumption.

Speedy approval seen for drought aid

WASHINGTON — House and Senate negotiators predict speedy approval of their compromise $3.9 billion drought relief legislation, which gives extra help to farmers with the worst crop losses and boosts milk support prices by 50 cents.

The emergency package, on the fast track since its proposal in early July, needs only a final vote in the full House and Senate before reaching President Reagan, who endorsed the "core" bill used in writing the final plan. Officials of the Agriculture Department said they would recommend Reagan sign it.

"It will be on the floor as soon as possible," pledged House Agriculture Committee Chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, as negotiators ended their two-day session Thursday.

Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said the final measure "fulfilled our promise" of speedy help to suffering farmers.

Agriculture Department officials said farmers would begin receiving aid about 60 days after the legislation is signed.

The negotiators scrapped the Senate's proposal to broaden eligibility for livestock feed assistance programs to producers who buy feed rather than grow it. Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng said the proposal would cost $2 billion and would imperil the legislation.

Blaggi wins right to seek 11th term

NEW YORK — On the day of his second corruption conviction within a year, Rep. Mario Blaggi, D-N.Y., won the right to seek an 11th term, but legal expenses have largely drained his campaign treasury and he faces possible expulsion by Congress next month.

Blaggi, lauded with 28 citations for bravery as a New York City policeman but scorned as a "thug in a congressman's suit" during his trial, scheduled a news conference today to discuss his plans in light of his conviction Thursday.

Blaggi, 70, was found guilty in federal court in Manhattan of extorting an estimated $3.8 million in stock from Wedtech Corp. in return for his influence in helping the South Bronx machine shop obtain millions of dollars in defense contracts from the Pentagon.

Five co-defendants, including his son, were convicted along with Blaggi, who faces a maximum of 146 years in prison and a $7.4 million fine at his sentencing Nov. 18. He also must forfeit an additional $350,000 in profits from the scheme to be placed in escrow by the end of next week.

U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani called the Wedtech investigation "one of the most comprehensive and revealing" corruption probes ever.

From United Press International reports

House adopts miscellaneous tax bill

United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Millions of Americans ranging from farmers and ranchers to freelance artists and photographers would be affected by a miscellaneous tax bill overwhelmingly approved by the House.

The legislation, intended to correct drafting errors in the 1986 and 1987 tax laws, would close some corporate loopholes, extend some popular tax breaks and create a few new ones at the same time. It was adopted 390-25 Thursday.

The Senate Finance Committee approved a similar bill last week, but the full Senate has not yet acted on the issue.

House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., called the bill "a very important piece of legislation," noting that while it would create and extend about $7.1 billion worth of tax breaks through 1991, it would offset the revenue loss with new business taxes, resulting in no net impact on the federal deficit during the next four years.

Rep. William Archer, R-Texas, agreed the bipartisan measure "will accomplish a number of essential and desirable goals... on a revenue-neutral basis."

Some of the major provisions: —It restores the right of farmers, fishermen, construction companies and other off-highway users of diesel fuel to buy fuel without paying the highway user tax of 15 cents a gallon. Though they always have been exempt from the tax, changes in excise-duty procedures that took effect April 1, 1988, required the tax to be paid at the time of the sale and to be refunded later.

—It exempts freelance writers, artists and photographers from a 1986 law requiring deductions for business expenses to be deferred until income from the project is realized. A similar exemption would be provided for livestock producers, allowing them to deduct for expenses as they occur. However, the so-called h.c.f.e.r. tax exemption would not apply to corporations and certain partnerships and tax shelters engaged in livestock production.

—It extends through 1990 a provision allowing taxpayers to exclude from their taxable income any educational assistance provided by employers. The new rule, retroactive to the start of 1988, caps the amount of assistance eligible for the exclusion at $1,500 a year, down from $5,250, and it no longer would be available for graduate-level courses.

—It prohibits taxpayers who deduct for business use of a home telephone from including any part of the basic monthly service charge in that deduction.

—It extends for two years the authority for state and local governments to issue tax-exempt mortgage revenue bonds and credit certificates used to give reduced-rate mortgages for low- and middle-income first-time home buyers.

—It applies present rules permitting taxpayers to defer payment of capital gains tax on the sale of a home when the proceeds are used to buy a new home, even when one spouse dies before the new home is purchased.

—It reduces the tax advantages available from certain life insurance policies that provide very rapid buildup in cash value during the early years of the policy. Amounts borrowed against such policies issued after June 21 would be taxed like cash withdrawals rather than being tax-free as under current law.

Psychologist says politicians should be free to seek help

United Press International

WASHINGTON — U.S. leaders who refuse to seek psychological counseling may pose a greater threat to national security than decision-makers who get such help, the head of the American Psychological Association points out.

Dr. Bryant Welch, the APA's executive director, weighed in Thursday in the already waning rumors that Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis sought professional care during difficult times in his life.

Welch said he did not know whether Dukakis, Vice President George Bush or President Reagan had ever even thought about psychological counseling, but he noted, "All people, including elected officials, no matter how healthy, are psychologically unstable during times of personal crisis."

"These crises can involve the loss of a loved one, a serious physical illness or other traumatic event," Welch told a news conference.

If the emotional problems last longer than usual and go untreated, he warned, they "can have unrecognized but seriously deleterious and insidious impact on the objective decision-making capacity of the individual."

Dukakis, the three-term Massachusetts governor, released a medical history Wednesday to deny he ever received psychological counseling for emotional problems. The unsubstantiated rumors had centered on his reaction to his older brother's death in 1973 and his own gubernatorial re-election in 1978.

Reagan's public reference to Dukakis as an "invalid," a comment Wednesday that threw the issue into the spotlight, fueled the widespread attitude that seeking psychological care is a weakness, Welch complained.

"(Such bias) makes it impossible for key decision-makers, including the president whose finger is on the nuclear trigger, to receive appropriate and preventive psychological care in times of personal crisis," he said.

Depression, grief reactions and similar responses to personal crises are not uncommon, he stressed, and people who accept some counseling often are more psychologically healthy than those who have not.

About 25 percent of women and 11.5 percent of men suffer a bout of severe depression at some time during their lives, Welch said. President Lincoln suffered from depressive episodes and President Jackson underwent a severe grief reaction when his wife died, history shows.

Internees to get U.S. restitution

United Press International

WASHINGTON — More than 40 years later, a "monumental injustice" now can be redressed under a congressionally approved directive to pay restitution to Japanese-Americans sent to internment camps during World War II.

The House voted final approval of the legislation 257-156 Thursday and sent it to President Reagan, who is expected to sign it. The historic measure apologizes to the internees on behalf of the United States and provides for tax-free payments of $20,000 each to an estimated 62,000 still living.

It acknowledges "the fundamental injustice of the evacuation, relocation, and internment" of the 120,000 men, women and children — mostly West Coast residents of Japanese ancestry, in the months after the surprise Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941.

Reagan supported the final version of the bill approved by the Senate and urged quick passage in the House. In a letter to Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, the president said it "reaffirms America's commitment to the preservation of liberty and justice for all."

Prosecutor says Hertz penalties are a warning

United Press International

NEW YORK — A federal prosecutor says the $22.5 million in penalties that Hertz Corp. agreed to pay for swindling customers on car repairs is a warning to other companies in an industry where such practices are common.

Hertz, the largest rental car company in the world, pleaded guilty Thursday to federal charges of consumer fraud admitting it systematically overcharged customers. Insurance firms and third parties by $13.7 million for rental car repairs after collisions between January 1978 and the summer of 1985.

The company, in a 20-page plea agreement announced by U.S. Attorney Andrew Maloney in Brooklyn, agreed to pay $22.5 million in fines and penalties, including a $6.85 million fine.

Seahawks upend Phoenix, 21-7

SEATTLE — Dave Krieg passed for two quick touchdowns in the first quarter and Mark Moore ran a fumble back 81 yards for another Seattle score Thursday, pacing the Seahawks to a 21-7 victory over the Phoenix Cardinals in the NFL exhibition opener for both teams.

Krieg's scoring passes, which came just 13 seconds apart, were for six yards to fullback John L. Williams and for 26 yards to veteran wide receiver Steve Largent.

Phoenix, which on five occasions failed to score after penetrating Seattle's 25-yard line, got its only points of the night on a 15-yard touchdown run by rookie running back Tony Jordan with 1:46 to play in the second quarter. Jordan finished the game with 11 rushes for 90 yards.

Just seconds before the end of the first half, Phoenix drove to the Seattle 11, but a 28-yard field goal attempt by Jim Gallery went wide to the right.

Phoenix reserve quarterback Cliff Stoudt, who completed 13 of 27 passes for 117 yards, drove the Cardinals deep into Seattle territory three times in the second half, but each time Phoenix came up empty.

Johnson 4th at Olympic trials

United Press International

SALT LAKE CITY — Altamonte Springs' Brandy Johnson stands in fourth place after the compulsories at the U.S. Olympic Gymnastics Trials. The top six finishers qualify for the U.S. Olympic Team that will compete in Seoul, South Korea.

Johnson finished the compulsories with a score of 59.017 (all-around score includes carry-over points from U.S. Championships). She scored a 9.813 for second on vault; 9.925 for second on uneven parallel bars; 9.763 for fifth on balance beam; and 9.900 for third on floor exercise.

Phoebe Mills, the current U.S. national champion, retained her lead with a strong all-around performance in the compulsories.

Merely 5 feet and 90 pounds, the 15-year-old Mills capped her performance with a score of 9.975 on the balance beam and 9.95 on the floor exercise, receiving several perfect scores of 10 from the judges.

They were the highest scores Mills ever registered during compulsories, and she called her beam performance her best ever.

Mills, winner of the U.S. Championships at Houston three weeks ago, a competition which counted 40 percent toward the Trials, completed the night with a total of 59.539 points.

She was followed by Kelly Garrison-Steve of University of Oklahoma with 59.297 points and Hope Spivey of Allentown, Pa., with 59.063.

Garrison-Steve, at 21 the old lady of the team, scored a 9.938 on the floor exercise, including three 10's.

Seguso upsets No. 2 Connors

INDIANAPOLIS — Robert Seguso stunned second-seeded Jimmy Connors, 7-6 (7-3), 4-6, 7-6 (7-5), in a marathon match Thursday that highlighted a series of upsets at the U.S. Men's Harcourt Tennis Championships.

Third-seeded Brad Gilbert, sixth-seeded Aaron Krickstein and eighth-seeded Peter Lundgren also were eliminated in third round play at the Indianapolis Sports Center.

Top-seeded Boris Becker breezed to a 6-3, 6-4, triumph Thursday night over Rick Leach. John McEnroe, the No. 4 seed, struggled to defeat 11th-seed John Frawley, 6-7 (8-6), 6-2, 6-3, in the night's final match.

Seguso served 13 of his 24 aces in the first set of the match and won the sixth game of the set by serving four aces. The 15th seed smashed a backhand winner in the final point of the third-set tiebreaker to end the match, which lasted 2 hours and 36 minutes.

Howe tattooed at NBC Series

WICHITA, Kan. — Former major leaguer Steve Howe returned to baseball Thursday in a game at the National Baseball Congress World Series.

Howe was the starting pitcher for Madison, Wis., in its game against Nogales, Ariz. He was removed after pitching 3 1/3 innings and allowing seven runs on 11 hits.

Howe was a standout for the Los Angeles Dodgers before he was forced to leave baseball and enter a drug rehabilitation program.

He was brought back by the Texas Rangers against the wishes of the baseball commissioner, and was sent to the American League team's Oklahoma City farm team. He played a few games for the Rangers before they waived him.

Friday night's feature game will pit the Wichita Broncos against the Miami Lazers. The late-night game will be Kenai, Alaska, vs. Houston.

St. Jude; Towell, Fiori co-leaders

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Doug Towell and Ed Fiori, co-leaders going into today's second round of the $750,000 St. Jude Classic, do not have big-time reputations, but both have done very well on the pro golf tour.

Towell, who will be 39 later this month, has four victories and more than $1.4 million to show for his 14 years on the Tour. Fiori, a portly 5-foot-7, 190-pounder, has won three events and more than $1 million in three less years.

Towell, who finished second in last week's Buick Open to boost his earnings for this year to $168,426, notched six birdies Thursday in compiling a six-under par 66 and a share of the St. Jude lead with Fiori.

Altamonte takes state

Juniors go on to Southern region tourney

By DEAN SMITH
Special to the Herald

UNION PARK — The Altamonte Springs Junior All Stars clinched the State Junior Championship Thursday night with a heart-stopping 2-1 victory over South Brandon behind the pitching of Frank Harmer and the hitting of Mike Elliott and Marcus Bullock.

Altamonte now advances to the Southern Regional Tournament at Dr. Phillips Park in Wintermere, which is southwest of Orlando, Tuesday night at 7:30. Altamonte will open with the West Virginia state champion. The other game will be between the Texas champion and an as yet undetermined fourth team.

Coach Baird Lyons had great praise for Harmer. "Frank injured a muscle in his leg in the first inning and just gutted it out the rest of the game."

Harmer allowed nine hits, but only walked one and struck out four. He was in trouble in just about every inning but he kept making the big pitches and getting the outs when he needed to.

Lyons also had high praise for his team not cracking under pressure.

"This is the first time we were really pushed, we had tough games with Madison County in the sectional and Merritt Island the other night but by the seventh inning we were pretty relaxed and in control. Tonight we proved we could play well in a close game which should help us from here on out."

Altamonte's Frank Harmer loads up and fires in Thursday's game vs. South Brandon in the State Junior Tournament. Harmer, despite injuring a leg in the first inning, pitched a complete game and held South Brandon to one run in Altamonte's 2-1 victory. Altamonte now goes on to the Southern Regional Tournament.

Lyons also juggled his lineup, with mixed results. "We had been batting Pablo (Abreu) and Andrew (Thompson) first and second but Andrew is a pull hitter and Pablo was getting on and stealing second and then Andrew would pull it to third and Pablo could not advance, so we moved Scott (Johnston), who is a

Tigers rock Clemens, Bosox, 11-6

United Press International

DETROIT — Who can figure baseball? The hottest team in the game sends its two-time Cy Young award winner out to face a team averaging 2.4 runs over its previous 13 games — and he gets soundly beaten.

"When you jump off to a 3-0 lead, then they come back at you with your ace on the mound, you know you're in for a long night," Boston Manager Joe Morgan said Thursday night after the Detroit Tigers repulsed a challenge from the Boston Red Sox and Roger Clemens to retain first place with an 11-6 victory.

Pat Sheridan's tie-breaking two-run single in the sixth drove Clemens from the mound with his first road loss of the season and marked just the second time in 25 starts he has failed to reach the seventh.

"I was up," Clemens said after dropping to 15-6. "My stuff was everywhere. I just didn't make the pitches."

"He just didn't have it," Morgan said after tasting defeat for just the second time in his 21 games as manager of the Red Sox, who trail the Tigers by a game in the American League East.

"It's only one game. We've still got two months, this just happens to be a big series at an early stage."

Alan Trammell, hitting third in the lineup for the first time this season, drove in five runs with a pair of doubles to boost Detroit. The Tigers had scored just 31 runs in their previous 13 games.

"There's a lot of people around," Trammell said. "It's almost like a World Series, but it's not. It's a big series. And this is just one ball game. Last year against Toronto, that was a big series."

Matt Nokes opened the sixth with his third straight hit, a ground single up the middle, and Tom Brookens did the same. Jim Walewander sacrificed and Sheridan blooped a two-run single to short right just over the drawn-in infield to break a 5-5 tie.

Clemens, 15-6, is 10-1 on the road this season and 13-1 in his last 15 road starts over two years. He has lost just three times in his last 22 road decisions — all in Tiger Stadium.

Reliever Tom Bolton walked two batters in the seventh. Nokes sacrificed and Brookens was walked intentionally to load the bases. Pinch hitter Luis Salazar blooped a single to right to make it 8-5 and Trammell hit reliever John Trantwein's first pitch down the left field line for a three-run double.

"We're unpredictable," Trammell said. "I don't know how to describe this club. We're not scoring runs and we haven't scoring runs all year. But the most important thing is we've been winning ball games."

"Roger got behind on a lot of hitters. You could see, when he's falling behind on 3-4 batters in a row, that he's not at his best. You'd better get him then or you're liable not to get him at all."

Walt Terrell gave up 10 hits, four of them home runs, in 8 1/3 innings to raise his record to 6-8 in the first of five weekend games between the first and second-place teams in the AL East. Guillermo Hernandez got the final two outs.

"When it was 3-0," Terrell said after winning his third game in four starts, "I was kicking myself in the teeth for making a couple of bad pitches. They're not hitting what they're hitting because they don't take advantage of mistakes." Todd Benzing opened the sixth with his eighth home run, a shot off Terrell over the 370-foot mark in right center, to tie the score 5-5. Benzing hit another home run with two out and nobody on in the eighth to make it 11-6.

A's Stewart 1-hits Mariners

United Press International

OAKLAND, Calif. — Dave Stewart allowed one hit — a third-inning single by Jay Buhner — and retired 27 of 29 Seattle batters Thursday night to lead the Oakland Athletics to a 2-0 victory over the Mariners.

Stewart's one-hitter, a career best, was the second thrown in the majors this week. David Palmer of the Phillies one-hit St. Louis on Tuesday. Oakland improved record to 67-42, the best mark in the major leagues. No A's team has been 25 games over .500 since 1975.

Stewart, 14-10, fired his fifth straight complete game and 12th of the season to pass Roger Clemens for the American League lead in that category. Stewart is 4-0 with a 1.89 ERA in four starts against the Mariners this season, and he extended his personal winning streak against Seattle to seven games.

Stewart struck out seven and never reached a three-ball count until he walked Scott Bradley with one out in the eighth inning, breaking a string of 16 consecutive batters that he had retired. Buhner, a rookie acquired two weeks ago from the Yankees, grounded a single past shortstop Walt Weiss in the third for Seattle's hit.

Oakland center fielder Dave Henderson preserved Stewart's shutout with a brilliant catch of a Steve Balboni drive in the second inning. Balboni, who has seven home runs in his last 16 games, hit a blast to deep center field, but Henderson sped back and leaped above the outfield

Mike Moore, 4-13, carried a four-hit shutout into the seventh but still suffered his 12th loss in his last 13 decisions as a starter. Moore gave up a single to Ron Hassey leading off the Oakland seventh, and Carney Lansford forced Hassey at second.

Terry Steinbach, hitting .315 since earning All-Star Game MVP honors, then lined a 1-0 pitch over the head of third baseman Jim Presley and down the left field line. Steinbach's double — the only extra-base hit of the game — drove in Lansford. Pinch hitter Doug Jennings singled home Steinbach to give the A's a 2-0 lead.

Davis: From beer league back to bigs

United Press International

SAN FRANCISCO — Life at the top is often best appreciated by those who hit rock bottom.

Take Ron Davis. Once one of baseball's premier relievers, Davis found himself unwanted this spring. He spent April in Minnesota, pitching in a semi-pro league.

"You're sitting at home pitching in a beer league," said Davis, who pitched in the 1981 All-Star Game and World Series as a member of the Yankees. "You don't realize what you took for granted for eight or nine years. All of a sudden, it's not there, and you start really appreciating what you had."

After spending three successful years as the setup man for Goose Gossage in the Yankee bullpen, Davis blossomed in Minnesota. From 1982-85 Davis saved 100 games for the Twins.

However in 1986 he was a combined 2-8 with an 8.59 ERA for the Twins and Cubs. Chicago released him in 1987, and he spent a month in Albuquerque with the Los Angeles Dodgers' Pacific Coast League team. When the Dodgers let him go this spring, Davis thought he may have made his last major-league pitch.

"I called everybody after I got released from spring training," he said. "I thought that was it."

But Ed Lynch retired in May leaving a roster spot on San Francisco's Phoenix farm team in the PCL. Davis immediately left the beer league to pitch in, especially in Arizona, where there's no grass," said Davis.

"Anything hit on the ground is a base hit, and anything hit in the air is gone. It's an unforgiving league."

Nonetheless, Davis was 5-3 with a 2.97 ERA at Phoenix. On Aug. 2, the Giants promoted him to plug a hole on an injury-riddled pitching staff. Even though he may not hang around San Francisco long enough to visit Fisherman's Wharf, Davis plans on enjoying his stay in the big leagues.

"I'm just happy to get another chance," he said. "I'm just happy to be in any role. I'm excited to be on a winning team. I haven't been on a team that's over .500 since 1981."

While Davis was successful in Minnesota, he eventually fell out of favor with frugal owner Calvin Griffith. The high-priced reliever became the scapegoat on a rookie dominated team that never had a winning season during Davis' tenure.

"My salary was in the paper every day," he said. "I was 'Our $300,000 Relief Pitcher' on a team with 18 rookies in 1982. Those people were football fans; they were hockey fans. I'd go out and get (at least 22) saves four years in a row, and they acted like I was the worst relief pitcher in the world. Other relievers can screw up, too."

Davis got the last laugh when in 1987 when reliever Jeff Reardon struggled early in the season for the Twins. Reardon eventually found his form as the Twins won the World Series.

"I hadn't even been there in a year," he said. "But, the first time Reardon loses a couple of games, the headline is 'Davis is back.'"

Davis can laugh now. "I go back to do charity football games, and I still get booed," he said. "But it's in favor of me now, because that's what I'm known for. That's like clapping for me."

The Toronto Blue Jays placed outfielder Sil Campuzano on the 15-day disabled list because of a sprained ankle and promoted outfielder Lou Thornton from their Triple-A Syracuse affiliate.

Campuzano sprained his left ankle catching fly balls against the outfield wall before Wednesday's game against Minnesota. In 67 games with Toronto, Campuzano was hitting .212 with two homers and 12 RBIs.

To make room on the 15-day disabled list, catcher Pat Borders was transferred to the 21-day list.

Thornton played all of 1985 with Toronto and has split the last two seasons between Toronto and Syracuse. In 65 games this year with Syracuse, he was hitting .218 with four homers and 22 RBIs.

Outfielder George Bell set a Toronto Blue Jays record for futility Wednesday night. His two errors gave him 15 for the season, surpassing Rick Bossett's 1979 team-record total of 13.

'Basebrawl' is alive and kicking

By MIKE TULLY
UPI sports writer

NEW YORK — At least that brawl in Pittsburgh proves baseball teams still know how to fight against each other instead of among themselves.

The Expos and Pirates really went at it Wednesday night, spilling into Three Rivers Stadium's nether regions in a scene hockey fans will recognize. You should have seen the umpires dash in there. They may have created another category for grading umpires. You know: Balls and strikes, good, judgment, fair. Knowledge of rules, needs work. Gets under the stands to break up brawls, excellent. A+

Most of the time this year, clubs have hammered each other instead of the foe. The Royals, Red Sox, and Blue Jays could all use a heavy bag instead of a rosin bag. Discard has even touched the Minnesota clubhouse. You'd think a World Series would ensure domestic tranquility for at least a year. Instead, Steve Lombardozi and Dan Gladden have worked on their slugging percentage.

The Royals, showing versatility worthy of the majors, can disagree either in the air or on the ground. Willie Wilson and George Brett went at it on a plane. Bo Jackson and Kevin Seltzer made plenty of contact outside the batting cage.

"What we say in here, should stay in here."

— Clubhouse creed

As for Boston, Manager Joe Morgan took The $150,000 Stand against slugger Jim Rice. Rice wound up with a three-day suspension, and Morgan eventually earned a $150,000 raise and a contract for next season. In Toronto, the differences between Manager Jimmy Williams and George Bell have matured into antagonism.

This can really hurt. You hate to squabble in public, even if you're crooked up with the same 30 people from February to October. The clubhouse creed says, "What we say in here, should stay in here." We all know that spouses fight once in a while. The secret is not to do it at the church picnic, where everyone can see and remember.

But strife happens all the time, and it need not ruin a season. The Oakland A's never loved each other, but they won three straight World Series from 1972-74. Owner Charlie Finley even called a meeting after Reggie Jackson and Bill North turned the clubhouse into a boxing ring. Said Finley: "I reminded them of Abraham Lincoln who said, 'United we stand, divided we fall.' There probably wasn't a dry eye in the house."

The 1978 Yankees won a World Series only after firing a manager who insulted the owner. The same year, the Dodgers reached the Series less than three months after Steve Garvey and Don Sutton brawled in the clubhouse.

"We've got a lot of love and respect for each other," Dodgers Manager Tom Lasorda said at the time. "I fought with my brother one time and I love him very much."

If love equals punching someone's lights out, the Expos and Pirates should head for a honeymoon any day now. So should the Cardinals and Giants, who scuffled at second base July 23 when Will Clark slid into Jose Oquendo. Two years before that, another St. Louis brawl put Giants starter Mike Krukow on the disabled list with bruised ribs.

Not many brawls could rival what took place Aug. 22, 1965, as the pennant race entered the stretch. San Francisco right-hander Juan Marichal went after Dodgers catcher John Roseboro with a bat, drawing a nine-day suspension.

No one can judge how much the Giants missed this future Hall of Famer, but Los Angeles edged out San Francisco by two games for the pennant, then swept the World Series from the Yankees.

drop Frank down to the number five spot in the order because he was pitching."

The strategy looked good as Johnston had three hits in his first three at bats, but for the first time in the tournament Abreu failed to reach base.

Altamonte scored the first run of the game in the bottom of the first. With one out Johnston and Thompson got hits and Elliott walked to load the bases. Johnston was forced at the plate when Harmer grounded to short for two outs. But Bullock hit a grounder to deep short and Harmer beat the throw to second for an infield hit with Thompson scoring.

South Brandon threatened in the second, third and fifth innings. In the second they had two on with one out but Harmer got a grounder out and a pop up. In the third Harmer picked a runner off second to end that inning. In the fifth they left two on again. But Altamonte kept hanging tough.

Altamonte finally got an insurance run in the fifth when Elliott led off with his second home run of the tournament, a shot deep over the left field fence, to give them a 2-0 lead.

It was important as South Brandon tried to come back in the sixth. Adam Brick led off with a double to left center and Matt Dubose singled him to third. Brick scored when Bullock, who had saved numerous runs with great stops earlier in the game, finally missed one. Keynon Campbell singled Dubose to third and stole second. Joey Tanner hit a grounder to Nakia Roberts at third. Dubose broke on the hit and Roberts threw to Bullock who ran Dubose all the way back to third before flipping the ball to Roberts, who tagged out Dubose and kept Campbell on second. The play ended up being very important as, with two outs, Anthony Copper singled to left, but since Campbell was on second, instead of third he could not score. Harmer then struck out Mike McCandless to end the inning.

But Altamonte did not have the Championship yet as South Brandon made another run at it in the seventh. Robby Lentz reached on an error to lead off the inning. Aaron Highsmith struck out, but Adam Brick got his second hit, moving Lentz to second. Dubose forced Brick at second but Lentz moved to third. Harmer then struck out Campbell on three pitches and Altamonte had their Championship.

Altamonte proved to be an equal opportunity opponent in this tournament as they let all three of the other teams take a shot at them, but no one was quite up to the task. Altamonte also proved in this tournament that they could do more than just hit as they won the tournament with pitching and defense and never giving up even when things got tough.

Brian Dangel takes his lead off first base.

Hernandez ready to start

NEW YORK — Keith Hernandez, out six weeks with a hamstring injury, said Thursday he will start at first base for the New York Mets in the opener of an important four-game series against the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Mets begin their four-game set Friday night at Pittsburgh, New York, which lost 4-3 Thursday to the Chicago Cubs, entered the day leading the second-place Pirates by four games.

The Mets are expected to make the move of taking Hernandez off the disabled list and sending utility infielder Keith Miller to Triple-A Tidewater sometime before Friday's game.

Hernandez has been on the disabled list just twice in his career, both this year with the right hamstring injury. He was originally placed on the DL June 13 then reinjured himself running the bases and was put on the DL again June 24.

"I couldn't do anything for three weeks and very little for two weeks," he said of the second injury. "There's no pain not even in getting quick starts out of the batter's box."

MEDINAH, Ill. — Walter Zembriski and 1983 Senior Open champion Billy Casper shot 3-under-par 69s Thursday, two of only three sub-par rounds, to share the first-round lead in the 1988 U.S. Senior Open championship at Medinah Country Club.

United Press International

One of the racing papers, Grand National Scene, asked some of the drivers what their opinion of racing back to the starting line after a yellow flag comes out is.

Senior Open

Arnold Palmer, the 1981 Senior Open champion, was at 1-under until the par-4 15th hole, when he took a quadruple-bogey 8. His second shot went against the fence behind the green, and he had to hit his third shot parallel to the fence because he had no other shot.

Senior Open

Five-time British Open champion Peter Thomson was at 2-under before bogeying 16 and 17 and finished at even-par 72.

Incision takes time to heal after surgery

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

(C) 1988, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN

DEAR DR. GOTT: Six months ago, I had a C-section. I've lost all my pregnancy weight and can do 100 to 200 situps at a time. However, is it normal for the incision to itch all the time and hurt when it is scratched?

DEAR READER: Yes, you should. Early cataracts produce the symptoms you describe. Before passing off these symptoms, make sure that you are examined by a qualified ophthalmologist.

DEAR READER: During a Caesarian section, the surgeon has to use absorbable sutures to close the abdominal wound. These stitches can cause irritation and itching until they have been "digested" by the body. The process can take up to a year to complete. I think that you are OK to wait another six months before becoming concerned; however, you should check with your gynecologist just to be on the safe side.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm told that one can only get pregnant during a 12-hour time period during the month. Is this true? If so, when?

DEAR READER: A woman is fertile during the interval between ovulation and the time the egg passes down the Fallopian tube. Conception usually occurs as the ovum enters the tube. The period of fertility varies somewhat from woman to woman, usually 12 to 24 hours. Sperm can live for at least three days in a woman's body, thus, the fertile period begins two days before ovulation and occurs about two weeks before a menstrual period. By taking a basal temperature, a woman can determine the day of ovulation: her temperature will rise about 0.6 degrees F at that time. However, this method of contraception can be tricky; a woman should use it only after being adequately trained by a physician or family planning clinic.

DEAR DR. GOTT: When I drive at night the lights all look like big stars, then like circles when I get closer. My eye doctor isn't concerned. Should I be?

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

My friend Peter Nagy has helped in my effort to win the Barry Crane Top 500 a contest in which tournament players try to win the most masterpoints in a calendar year. When we won a team-of-four at a Chicago regional in late February, Peter had several hands similar to today's, which was played in a match in March at the North American Championships.

Nagy was South. When his partner took out the double of three hearts to four clubs and later our bid hearts, Peter thought there would be a good play for slam. But it was still touch and go. Eventually Peter decided to play for three heart ruffs in dummy, using the diamond suit for transportation, and then get rid of his last heart either by ruffing in dummy or by throwing it on the fourth diamond. So he ruffed the 10 of hearts, played a diamond back to his ace and ruffed another heart. Now a diamond back to his king was ruffed by West, who returned the queen of clubs. Peter had to hope that that was West's last club. He won the ace of clubs, cashed the jack of diamonds (smiling to himself when West could not ruff), ruffed a heart and shed his last heart on dummy's queen of diamonds. Playing ace of spades and ruffing a spade back to his hand let him draw East's last trump, and he had 12 tricks.

I think I'll do fine in the Top 500 race this year, particularly if I can play with Peter Nagy instead of against him. James Jacoby's books, "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Phoenix Books (C) 1988, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

What the day will bring...

By Bernice Bede Osol

YOUR BIRTHDAY

August 6, 1988

Trends will play significant roles in your affairs in the year ahead. If you put friendships above your material desires, things in general should work out quite smoothly for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have now won over to your banner a person who will start taking a more active role in supporting your position before others. This input will be helpful. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) When involved in competitive developments today draw upon your inner strengths. You have a reservoir of power that will give you an edge over the opposition.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll be capable of juggling several situations simultaneously — doing a good job on each.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Something that hasn't been turning as smoothly as you like can be reorganized to your satisfaction today. It's time for you to step in and assume a more direct control of this matter.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Conditions are such today that you may be able to profit materially through a person with whom you have strong emotional bonds. It could be a family member.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Situations that you personally in charge and control today have excellent chances for success. Try to do the lion's share yourself instead of delegating authority.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Persistence and follow through are your most reliable allies today. Don't let anything deter you from your objectives, especially if it's a business or financial matter.

Pots hold life on Margaret Amato's Sanford patio. Annuals in barrels and pots are on the wagon at Contemporary Gardens garden center in Lake Mary.

In absence of lawn, cultivate in containers

One doesn't have to own a large home on an acre lot to enjoy gardening. A balcony or patio of a condominium or small areas around a trailer offer plenty of room for container gardening.

The popularity of raising plants in containers has increased tremendously in recent years. Container gardening is adaptable and versatile. Practically all plants can be grown in a pot, box, can or jar—at least temporarily. Plants in containers can be moved indoors during cold spells or simply for use as an interior decoration. Pot gardening makes it possible to have plants you couldn't otherwise grow outdoors for an indefinite period.

A container plant is much more dramatic than the same plant when massed with other plants. A container creates a special setting for a plant and thus accentuates its qualities.

It is almost impossible for container gardening to be boring. Plants can be rotated to create all types of effects. Seasonal flowering plants can be brought on stage when they are at their maximum beauty and then removed to be replaced with another plant.

For example, imagine how lovely your patio could be with spring bulbs and azaleas, followed by summer annuals like marigolds and salvia, then fall flowering mums and finally Christmas poinsettias. This is what can be done with container gardening. Following are basic points to be considered in container gardening.

Select a container of the right size and shape for the growth characteristics and appearance of your plant. The container is half the picture. A handsome plant deserves a handsome planter and vice versa.

GARDENING

CELESTE WHITE

The container can be practically anything—from a tea kettle or antique urn to a terra cotta pot, clay pot, wooden box, clay tile or even a crate in a rock or an old log. Fine ceramic and redwood containers can be purchased but handmade containers are always the best since they represent one's own talent. Even an old mailbox with cascading petunias draping down from the opening is a most suitable container. Let your imagination be your guide.

Use a porous fast-draining soil mix such as half peat and half coarse sand. Plants need good drainage for growth so use a porous mix rather than a clay mix.

For drainage, make sure the containers have holes in the bottoms. If holes are not present and can't be bored in the container, be very careful with watering. Too much water is almost always worse than too little water.

Plants grown in pots or boxes need to be fertilized regularly during the growing season. Watering can readily leach nutrients from containers, so fertilize often.

Most plants need potting fresh soil mix when their roots fill the container.

This "root bound" condition requires repotting or root pruning.

Most container plants can be brought indoors for varying periods of time and should be rotated to increase their usefulness.

Suitable plants are practically unlimited. Foliage plants such as palms, bamboo and philodendrons, make excellent container plants, but don't omit flowering plants such as annuals, perennials and bulbs. Herbs, hanging basket plants, ferns and fruit trees are other choices. Also try flowering shrubs and trees like azaleas, bougainvillea, crape myrtle, gardenias, roses and others. Your imagination is your only limitation in container gardening.

22-year mock marriage now like cage to woman

DEAR ABBY: For the last 22 years, X and I have been living together as man and wife. Please don't go into shock, but we have four sons. They are 19, 16, 13 and 11 years old. Absolutely no one knows that X and I are not married.

This has bothered me for 22 years, but every time I bring it up, I get more excuses than you can imagine. He won't get married in the state we live in because his friends and family might see it in the newspaper. We can't go out of state for so many reasons you wouldn't believe. We've had our share of ups and downs just like married couples—the only difference is that they are married and we're not. We are living in a state that does not recognize common law marriages.

I've thought so many times of leaving him, but I couldn't support the three younger boys alone. If I'm on disability, I've been told many times that he will not support them by himself. I left him once and had to come back because I couldn't support them myself.

The longer this goes on, the more upset I get. I just don't know what to do anymore. Nothing jars this man. Talking to him is like talking to a brick wall. I hope you or your readers have a suggestion for me.

LIVING IN SIN IN ARKANSAS

DEAR LIVING: After living with a man for 22 years and bearing four of his children, you are entitled to certain rights. Get in touch with your local Legal Aid office, a women's rights group or your Family Services Association and find out what your rights are. You cannot force a man to marry you, but it will give you peace of mind to know to what you are legally entitled.

DEAR ABBY: I have a question that only you can answer. I recently had a christening for my daughter and was told by my husband's family (specifically my mother-in-law) that the gifts were supposed to be opened. She said everyone opens gifts at a christening.

Well, I didn't think it was appropriate since it wasn't a shower for me. It was for my daughter. Anyway, I didn't open the gifts and my mother-in-law was very angry. As she left, she was still commenting on how wrong I was.

I understand there aren't any set rules on this subject, but I would like to hear your opinion, Was?

RIGHT OR WRONG?

DEAR RIGHT: I think you were wrong. Since usually only family and very close friends attend a christening, it would have given the occasion a festive air to have opened the baby's gifts. Guests enjoy seeing what others have brought and showing what they have selected.

WORLD BRIEFS

Aquino rejects latest Marcos offer

MANILA, Philippines — President Corason Aquino rejected a new bid by exiled ruler Ferdinand Marcos to return home and bury his mother who died three months ago.

Aquino also said she had asked her brother-in-law, Ricardo Lopa, to explain allegations that he had taken over 35 companies owned by Benjamin Romualdez, Marcos's brother-in-law, who is suspected of illegally obtaining his assets.

"My relatives will not be given any special favors," Aquino said, according to press secretary Todorico Benigno.

Benigno also quoted Aquino as saying under no circumstances will Marcos be allowed to return to the Philippines. He said the "tragedy" of the Marcos family's refusal to bury the former ruler's mother, Josefa, was "intended to pressure" the Aquino government into granting the ex-president permission to fly home.

"She will never allow Marcos to come back," Benigno said. Mrs. Marcos died May 4 at the age of 95. Her remains await burial in the Marcos hometown of Batac, Ilocos Norte, 240 miles north of Manila.

Soviets plan more troop withdrawals

KABUL, Afghanistan — Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze paid a surprise visit to Kabul as Moscow faced the prospect of losing a key southern city to Afghan rebel forces in order to meet a withdrawal deadline.

A Western diplomat said Thursday that Soviet troops based in the city of Kandahar, surrounded by the U.S.-backed rebels, will be among some 25,000 troops to be pulled out over the next 11 days from across southern and western Afghanistan to meet a deadline under the Geneva peace accord.

The diplomat said the withdrawal from Kandahar will "be a significant test" of the Kabul regime's ability to hold a major urban center once the Soviets withdraw.

The Afghan government has rushed reinforcements to the area to meet an expected escalation of attacks by Moslem rebels after the Soviet withdrawal, the diplomat said on condition of anonymity.

Hussein draws Palestinian criticism

JERUSALEM — Palestinians chastised King Hussein of Jordan for scrapping the salaries of an estimated 21,000 West Bank residents, but Israeli sources said the measures may be no more than the ruler shrewdly watching his cards.

The question is whether the Palestine Liberation Organization, at odds with Jordan over Palestinian loyalties in the West Bank, is able to take over where Jordan pulls out.

"The key word here is brinkmanship," one Israeli source said. "King Hussein is really exhibiting superb brinkmanship. ... He is the most durable ruler on the face of this earth today. With him being so shrewd, and with all the ups and downs, it would be hasty to jump to conclusions on what is happening. ... Anything may happen here," the source said.

Jordan Radio announced Thursday that Amman would no longer pay the salaries for the West Bank workers beginning Aug. 16. But under the plan many of the Palestinians would receive pensions — in many cases a significant portion of their current salaries.

Two more die in latest IRA offensive

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Suspected IRA gunmen killed two construction men working on a border police station, bringing to six the number of people killed in a four-day offensive aimed at forcing British troops out of Northern Ireland.

The two men were shot Thursday by gunmen in camouflage uniforms near the town of Belleek, a mile from the border with the Irish Republic, after they left a frontier police station where both were doing construction work, police said.

"There was a quick burst of gunfire, maybe 14 or 15 shots in quick succession," said a woman who heard the shooting. "Then there was a pause followed by one or two shots."

No group immediately claimed responsibility for the killings. But police said the attack had the hallmarks of the Irish Republican Army, which routinely targets security force personnel and workers who supply goods or services to police stations.

The IRA is fighting to end British rule in the mainly Protestant province and unite it with the predominantly Catholic Irish Republic.

The deaths of the construction workers, who police said were both in their 60s, brought to six the number of people killed in attacks in a 4-day-old IRA offensive that has included the bombing of a British army base in London, in which one soldier died.

Vietnamese refugees end hunger strike

HONG KONG — Nearly 3,000 Vietnamese refugees ended a hunger strike today after Hanoi and Hong Kong ended talks on their possible repatriation from the British colony.

"I think they wanted a bit of publicity so that the world knows about their unwillingness to go back to Vietnam," said Assistant Secretary of Security Carrie Yau.

She said officials managed to persuade the so-called "boat people" to end their food strike in time for lunch today.

The hunger strike by 2,700 boat people, including children whose parents refused to feed them, began Thursday as a joint British-Hong Kong delegation ended repatriation talks with Vietnamese officials in Hanoi.

The hunger strikers were among nearly 7,000 boat people who arrived in Hong Kong after June 16 when a new policy went into effect to screen out political refugees from economic migrants, who would be repatriated.

The aim of the screening policy was to stem the worst refugee crisis in Hong Kong since 1979 when 69,000 boat people arrived. More than 14,000 Vietnamese have arrived in the financial entrepot this year, compared to only 3,395 last year.

Before the new screening began, Vietnam said it would only accept repatriation on a case-by-case basis. But Hanoi softened its stance last month and initiated talks with Hong Kong.

The Hong Kong delegation told reporters in Hanoi that the talks were "useful" but there was no apparent breakthrough on key issues.

South Africa peace talks end

GENEVA — Angola, Cuba and South Africa met today to wrap up a fourth round of U.S.-mediated talks on ending the 13-year-old Angola conflict and establishing independence for Namibia.

Today's session was agreed on Thursday, when this round of talks was to have ended, in order to tackle a backlog of work, officials said.

"Negotiations are on track and the full agenda of issues is under discussion," American spokesman Arthur Skop said Thursday on behalf of Chester Crocker, assistant secretary of state for African affairs and chief mediator.

"We are engaged in a serious negotiating process," South African delegation leader Neil van Heerden, director general of the Foreign Ministry in Pretoria, told reporters.

The southern Africa peace talks this week followed previous rounds in London, Cairo and New York.

On July 20, the participating nations accepted 14 basic principles that addressed the withdrawal of 50,000 Cuban troops from Angola and the pullout of South African forces from neighboring Namibia.

From United Press International reports

U.N. chief growing impatient with Iraq

United Press International

UNITED NATIONS — The head of a U.N. team sent to the Persian Gulf is briefing Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar on a report considered critical to setting a cease-fire date in the war between Iran and Iraq.

Perez de Cuellar spent most of Thursday hearing the report from Norwegian Lt. Gen. Martin Vadset, chief of the Jerusalem-based U.N. Truce Supervision Organization and head of a 10-member technical team sent to Baghdad and Tehran for six days of talks with military and government officials.

Vadset said a second session today was needed to complete the presentation before Perez de Cuellar briefs the 15-member Security Council on what he has learned.

"We have been working hard all day," Vadset said as he left the United Nations headquarters Thursday. "It is a rather comprehensive report. Tomorrow I should be ready with all the remaining details, and the report should be finalized."

Perez de Cuellar, who earlier said Vadset's report would play a key role in determining a cease-fire date, expressed some impatience Thursday with the pace of negotiations and indicated that Iraq had been slow to respond to his requests for comments.

After a meeting Thursday with Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati, Perez de Cuellar said Tehran's reaction to some of his suggestions on a possible cease-fire timetable had been "constructive."

"Unfortunately, from the Iraqi side, I haven't so far had the comments I had asked for," Perez de Cuellar said.

The U.N. chief met with Velayati Thursday for the seventh time since peace talks began July 26. He did not meet with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz, with whom he has held only three rounds of talks.

Perez de Cuellar has imposed a news blackout on the negotiations. U.N. observers said the move may have stemmed from a hardening of Iraq's position after Perez de Cuellar made remarks implying that he would announce a unilateral cease-fire date.

Diplomatic sources said the Iraqi foreign minister was still balking at the cease-fire plan because he wanted direct talks with Iran first. Iran wants a cease-fire before such talks.

Iraq has charged that Iran is not truly interested in ending the war, but merely wants a respite to recover from a series of devastating battlefield setbacks in recent months and prepare for more fighting.

Vadset, whose team spent three days in each of the two gulf capitals before returning to New York Wednesday, said he is "realistic" about the prospects for a truce.

His report deals with technical aspects of the proposed cease-fire, such as the number of U.N. observers and their stationing.

Floods recede, corpses polluting water

United Press International

BEIJING — A second scorching heat wave gripped parts of central China today as flood waters receded in eastern Zhejiang Province, where authorities warned that hundreds of human and animal corpses are polluting water supplies.

At least 256 people died and more than 300 are missing and presumed dead in the violent floods that tore through Zhejiang, already baked by a heat wave last month that claimed more than 1,400 lives in southern China, provincial officials said.

The Chinese are blaming the weather-related calamities on the current Year of the Dragon, traditionally associated with death and disaster. Mao Tse-tung died in the last Year of the Dragon in 1976.

A blistering heat wave hit the city of Wuhan, capital of central Hubei Province, on Thursday, sending temperatures soaring to 104 degrees for the second time in a month and ending a brief, weeklong respite from the torrid weather, the Xinhua News Agency said.

City residents sought relief from the scorching temperatures, which were expected to last for several days, by sleeping out in the streets and on rooftops. Xinhua said Wuhan was hit by a 25-day heat wave in July in which at least 22 people died.

Zhejiang officials have described recent torrential rains and subsequent flooding as the worst since the founding of communist China in 1949.

But a spokesman for the Zhejiang Foreign Affairs Bureau said the floodwaters were receding, and some troops and special work teams were beginning the task of clearing up after the rains that drenched the province last week.

He said water supplies had been contaminated by the decomposing bodies of humans and animals, adding that wells were being chemically treated to make water potable. Special medical and public health teams have been dispatched to help prevent the spread of epidemic disease.

As much as 24 inches of rain fell during eight hours in some of the hardest-hit areas, spawning floods that caused an estimated $215 million in damage to crops, buildings and bridges, the Zhejiang Water Conservancy Bureau said.

More than 40 million people have been affected by drought and flood.

Wicker

Ho, whose grandfather developed his family's wicker business, said the old wicker is generally the best, but there are high quality new pieces on the market.

The shopper has to carefully evaluate the construction of new wicker pieces to determine quality and value. Some modern makers, he said, cut corners and use paper instead of plant fiber for the weave. In shoddy wicker, he said, the pieces are poorly braced and often have plywood-supported bottoms.

An old wicker chair may cost hundreds of dollars more than a new, bringing with it the aura of an "antique" and a sense of history. When the furnishings of the old Ormond Beach Hotel were auctioned last year, wicker collectors had a field day snapping up the collectible furnishings.

But if an old wicker piece is in poor condition, the cost of repairs may be more than the chair is worth, since reweaving must be done by hand. Wicker worshippers may buy and love a wicker piece even in a damaged state, as long as the damage doesn't destroy the function or beauty of the piece.

As the surviving old pieces show, wicker can endure, but a key to survival is selection of wicker that is tightly woven. Older pieces were usually built on solid wood frames, rather than bamboo and the reed used was generally smoother than that seen in today's pieces.

Painted wicker should have a smooth, uniform finish of two coats of latex enamel. Before painting, a wicker piece should be sealed with a sealer to keep the paint from seeping into the porous fibers and chipping off the surface.

Wicker with a natural finish should be sprayed with a protective lacquer to make care easier.

Dust should not be allowed to build up on wicker, so furnishings must be wiped occasionally with solution of water and mild household detergent.

Rattan pieces may be cleaned with lemon oil, but burl (palm) pieces should not be polished or waxed. So it's important to know the fiber content of wicker furniture.

In selecting older wicker pieces, those that have not been painted generally retain the greatest value, along with those that are part of a set. The price of old wicker varies depending on location and availability, but prices for chairs in good condition generally range from about $300 to $600, or more.

From a spangled dress to a network show

"This is like one of those dreams where you're offered this incredible job and you don't have to go through these horrible auditions for it 12 times," says comedian Rita Rudner, cohost of the NBC summer series "Funny People," airing Wednesdays.

Rudner didn't have to go through a horrible audition even once. She'd previously worked with George Schlatter, the show's creator, and he simply called her up and offered her the job.

Blake Clark

"It's so great," she says. "I started out as a dancer, doing Broadway shows. One day, I was on stage in 'Annie' and I suddenly thought, 'I don't want to do this anymore. It's too crowded. I want to do something that's not crowded.' At the time, women's comedy wasn't too crowded, so I started doing it."

Rudner immediately challenged the stereotype of the loud, brassy, Joan Rivers-school of tough women comedians. "I was scared performing, but no one ever hated me or threw things at me," she says. "It was like they were saying, 'Aw, look at that nice girl trying to be funny.' I would call up my friends and say, 'Is this a joke? Is this funny?' But people didn't understand a quiet female comedian. So I bought a spangled dress. I figured that if they didn't understand me, they'd understand the dress. They weren't used to women who weren't large and ugly."

"I didn't deliberately go against the grain," she continues. "I'd like to be louder, but it doesn't sound right coming from me."

As a cohost of "Funny People," Rudner gets plenty of chances to be whatever she wants. "Because of the writers' strike, we're writing our own material," she says. "I interviewed the Fat Boys for a twist contest, and I just ran around, asking everyone if my questions were interesting. Then Blake (Clark, one of the cohosts) wrote up this profile of me, and I'm doing one of him. We ask whatever we want."

Rudner, whose previous credits include an HBO "Women of the Night" special and appearances on "The Tonight Show," still concentrates on material for her own routines as well.

Comedian Rita Rudner co-hosts NBC's "Funny People," the series that looks at comedians and ordinary people who happen to be funny. It airs on Wednesdays.

Betty White: lobbying for furry co-stars

NEW YORK — "The Golden Girls" has played host to a pig, a piano playing chicken and some ferrets masquerading as minks — and there's nothing Betty White likes better than a furry co-star.

Most actors flinch at playing opposite four-legged scene stealers, but White lobbies to have them on the show. "I've tried to lobby to have I tried," White said in an interview, cuddling a small dog with which she would later pose for pictures as a boost for an animal charity.

"The first year we did the show, the girls supposedly were going to raise minks — they were really ferrets. They wouldn't breed and we're all anti-fur in the script and couldn't bear to have anything happen to them so we decided to keep them as pets.

"The second year there was a show with a wonderful performing dog, and last year we did a show with a 600-pound pig. She just came in like a member of the cast, made no mistakes and hit her mark every time.

Then there was the piano playing chicken.

"They humor me about once a season."

White — darling ditzy Rose on "Golden Girls" and a demon TV game show player — says her late husband, Allen Louden, used to kid her that television was her lobby and animals were her career.

She comes by it naturally. "I was an only child," she said, "and I think my parents were a little disappointed that I didn't have a leg on each corner."

Her family moved from Chicago to California when she was about a year old and she grew up during the depression in Los Angeles.

The family always had pets, usually three dogs — never exotic animals — but sometimes things got out of hand.

Was Marsha Mason in 'Cinderella Liberty'?

Q. Some of the best acting I've seen was in the movie "Cinderella Liberty," with James Caan. I've been unable to convince the in-laws that the actress in this film was Marsha Mason. Looking for proof. — B. W., Payson, Utah.

A. Consider it proved. Marsha Mason was, indeed, the leading lady of that fine movie.

Q. When we were watching the Wayne Newton USO tour, we were wondering how old Wayne is and at what age did he begin his career. I know he was very young, maybe nine years old — C.J., Antell, Neb.

A. It's hard to believe, but old Wayne is 46 now. He and his brother, Jerry, began singing around Roanoke, Va., when Jerry was 11 or 12 and Wayne was seven or eight.

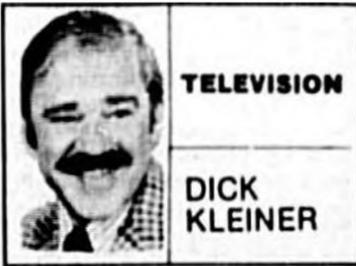

Q. I think that Kiefer Sutherland, the son of Donald, is wonderful! What has he done prior to "The Lost Boys" and "Stand By Me"? — J.M., Seneca, S.C.

A. When Kiefer was 10, he had a small role in "Max Dugan Returns," with Jason Robards. "Stand By Me" was his first major part. That has been followed by, in order: "At Close Range," "The Bay Boy," "The Lost Boys," "The Killing Time," "Crazy Moon," "Promised Land" and "Bright Lights, Big City." Coming up is "1969." He's been a busy boy.

Q. I collect professional and real names. I have over 4,000, but I can't find the real names of Nipsey Russell, Loni Anderson, J.D. Cannon and L.Q. Jones. Can you help me with those? — Mrs. M.D., Mannington, W.Va.

A. Three out of four. OK? I can't find Nipsey Russell's real name, either. Loni Anderson's real name is Loni Anderson. J.D. Cannon is Jack Cannon. L.Q. Jones was born J.E. McQueen.

Q. Whatever happened to Melvin Miller of "The Millionaire"? Is he living or dead? And was that a true story? If so, who was the man giving out the millions and does he still do that? Is he living or dead? — J.H., Savannah, Ga.

TELEVISION

A. No, that old TV series about a man giving away a million dollars every week was pure fairy tale. So the millionaire was fictional. Marvin — not Melvin — Miller, who starred in that TV show, died in 1985.

Q. In the film "No Way Out," was the actor, Will Patton, who played Scott, the same actor who played Hutch, the hit man on "General Hospital" a few years ago? My friends think I'm crazy, but I say the same actor played both roles? — B.B., Lonaconin, Md.

A. Your friends may have a point. Rick Moses played Hutch.

Q. Who was Emily McLaughlin's husband? She is on "General Hospital." I remember reading several years ago of how distressed she was over his death, but I can't remember who he was. — M.W.K., Savannah, Ga.

A. Emily McLaughlin is the widow of Jeffrey Hunter. She is also the ex-wife of Robert Lansing.

Q. Where is "A Year in the Life" filmed? And are most of the cast from the Washington state area? — Unsigned, Taylor, Pa.

A. While they did do some location work around Seattle, the bulk of the show is filmed on a Hollywood soundstage. There is nobody in the regular cast from the state of Washington. Incidentally, NBC is dropping that show.

Q. I would like some information on Don Johnson's shoes, the ones he wears on "Miami Vice." I heard they cost $400. Could that be true? — M.R., Bergholz, Ohio.

A. He wears imported Italian shoes, and imported Italian shoes can be very costly. Some of them cost more than $400. Johnson's wardrobe is all imported, so his shoes must match. Upon my sole.

Dear Dick: Tell me, who plays the beautiful horn on the "Highway to Heaven" and "Dynasty" theme songs? It could be the same person. Am I right? — Mrs. V.H., LaVale, Md.

Dear Mrs. V.H.: Could be, but we'll probably never know. Recording music for TV shows is a process that is rigorously controlled by the musicians' union. They provide studio musicians who record the music. The union requires that it be re-recorded every year. So, the musicians who do the recordings are whoever is around and available at the time. All are pros, of course. Studio musicians, by and large, are expert and interchangeable.

Hollywood-New York system

HOLLYWOOD — It is almost impossible for a creative mind to beat the Hollywood-New York system of churning out entertainment as though it were an assembly line and making products conform to preconceived notions of mediocrity.

The major studios and networks are filled with executives more interested in internal politics and making profitable deals than turning out a great motion picture or stimulating TV shows.

But writer-humorist Jean Shepherd, a native of Indiana, is one of those rare exceptions who makes films for both TV and the screen on his own terms, without playing the political game or sacrificing his principles.

Public television and independent movie production have been his salvation.

Articulate, tough-minded and independent, Shepherd is probably best known for his series of three PBS-TV movies and a feature picture about the Parker family. A fourth film will air on cable TV this month. All are based on his books.

His book "In God We Trust, All Others Pay Cash," became the film "A Christmas Story." "Wanda Hickey's Night of Golden Memories" was the basis for "Phantom of the Open Hearth," and "The Ferrari in the Bedroom" became "The Star-Crossed Romance of Josephine Cosnowski."

Another Parker family book was "The Great American Fourth of July and Other Disasters."

Save for the first two films, which starred the late James Broderick as the father, the pictures have each featured different actors and actresses — something the networks and other filmmakers would never countenance.

Says Shepherd, "I've deliberately not used the same performers. Characters are more important than actors. My characters are quirky and eccentric, in other words real human beings. A good script should rise higher than the actors."

The stars of his new 90-minute cable film, "Ollie Hopnoodle's Haven of Bliss," are James Sikking, who played S.W.A.T. team leader Hunter on "Hill Street Blues," and Dorothy Lyman. The film is about the Parker family's search for the perfect summer vacation.

"Ollie Hopnoodle" was jointly financed by PBS and The Disney Channel, where it will make its debut this month. It will be broadcast five times this month and four in September.

Shepherd's series is written without a thought to chronology.

"I'm writing essentially a fable, which doesn't have a specific time frame," he said. "My stories are set in what I call the generic immediate past — from the '40s to the '60s."

"America is hooked on time — about when and where things happen. Well, I say that colors the audience's view."

"I don't use contemporary cars in my films and the wardrobe must be able to be purchased through a Sears catalogue or it's wrong for my pictures. I avoid fads. I want viewers to put the stories in their own time frame."

Shepherd's work is as far from the slick, sleek and predictable TV shows as one can imagine. His appeal is to middle America.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES

Mike is getting very close in April, who voiced her worry that her little brother, Julia, will get involved in a street gang like Emilio did. On their honeymoon in the Orient, Patch and Kayla took in a hot deal too. Then, after his moon disappeared, Diana introduced Roman to his former karate instructor, Chao. Chao thinks that this Roman is an impostor. After the producer announced that Emilio desired Adrienne, he and Emilio fought. Emilio was arrested, but Adrienne helped him and saved his job. Carrie took a shine to Emilio's brother, Julio. Angelica rivaled Victor's suggestion that she marry him and let him raise her child as a Kirishitan. Kimberly and Shaw agreed to remarry. Patch and Kayla brought Hump to Salem when they couldn't find his mother. Abbe finally arrested Chao, who nearly killed two staffers.

GENERAL HOSPITAL

Collette had her own place a month near a diamond exhibit that will be viewed by dignitaries visiting the Port Charles Arts Festival. A handicapped man gave Prunella an itinerary for the visiting dignitaries. Prunella ditched Samantha, who was following her. Then she changed the real Apu's name for a fake gem when in case she was watching the diamond exhibit. Colton and Felicia were captured by Collette's thugs, but later escaped. Colton and Felicia told Prunella about the lynch planted at the diamond exhibit, and Prunella told Robert and Sean. Robert was warned to learn that Gregory is the person who wants to buy her broochstone. Steve warned Alan not to let his position as assistant chief of staff go to this head. Anna and Fran sorted the records that Marty had kept on the Jerome and the Carter cruise families.

Wicker craze survives century

Suitable in 'mint julep setting'

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

Airy-woven wicker furniture is traditionally part of the "mint julep" setting of the South and especially semi-tropic Florida.

But in this less formal age, wicker is moving from the veranda into the decor of homes even above the Mason Dixon Line.

Traditional, romantic, Victorian designs and competitive pricing are elevating the status of wicker into serious home furnishings. There's also a new look to some contemporary wicker, which breaks tradition with dark green and deep red or pastel coloring. Longwood wicker importer and dealer Harris Lo, said "white washed wicker," which produces a finish similar to that of acid washed denim fabric, is the latest addition to the wicker line.

Traditional wicker is either natural tan, or painted white. That tradition is enduring.

Since the ancient Egyptians first wrapped coarse fibers around a frame to create baskets and coffins as early as 4000 B.C. many types of fibers have been woven into wicker furniture. But today most new wicker is commonly made from palm or rattan and is imported from tropical nations such as the Philippines, or perhaps from China.

New wicker doesn't dominate the field. Much old wicker from the turn of the century survives and is revived through cleaning, repainting or re-weaving, if needed, to serve again.

The American craze for wicker developed about 1850. Cyrus Wakefield opened an American wicker factory in 1855 and wicker maintained popularity until the 1930s. There is a revival of interest in wicker, both old and new.

Devereux Etinger said she was shopping for wicker for her new beachfront home, because, "It's a Florida style and it goes with beach things. And the price is right," Etinger said, contemporary wicker, except for designer label designs, is generally less expensive than comparable furniture made of other materials. She said she selects her wicker based on "how solid it looks and how well it is finished off."

If the right wicker pieces are selected, she said, "People can't ruin it. I think the Chinese probably finish their wicker better and make a better quality product."

White House party

By JOAN HANAUER UPI Feature Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The last "In Performance At the White House" of the Reagan administration will be a whopper.

It might even include a cameo appearance by that veteran performer, Ronald Reagan.

Titled "Chorus Lines" and taped on the White House lawn, it will feature some of the great chorus songs of the Broadway theater, from George M. Cohan to "There Is Nothing Like a Dame." The show will air on PBS Aug. 10 at 9 p.m. Eastern time (check local listings).

"President Reagan likes a real rattle-raising tune so I think he'll love the show," said Oscar- and Tony-winner Marvin Hamlisch, who will return as music director and master of ceremonies.

The stars this time will be Shirley Jones, Lee Roy Reams and Stubby Kaye — among many more.

"This is the last in the Reagan series and the first time we're going outdoors," Hamlisch said, relaxing in the piano-dominated living room of his New York apartment before taking off for Washington and rehearsals.

"Up until now we've been indoors, in the East Room of the White House, and it's been nice because the mood has been very relaxed and lovely. But it also has meant keeping the shows on the quiet side and keeping the band down to 10 or less.

"This one is a logistical nightmare. We have a choir of 90 people from the Morgan State University Choir, which is a fantastic all-black choir and they are incredible.

"We have a band of about 65 people who are basically from the Marines, and from the Army, Navy and Air Force we have about 10 each, which is 30 extra singers.

"And there are the dancers and singers of 'A Chorus Line.'" Hamlisch reeled off the featured songs, starting with "Jubilant T. Cornpone" from the Broadway hit "Lil Abner."

Moving right along will be "There Is Nothing Like a Dame" from "South Pacific," a George M. Cohan routine, "You'd Never Walk Alone" and "If I Loved You" from "Carousel." "Til There Was You" from "The Music Man," "Sit Down, You're Rocking The Boat" from "Guys and Dolls," "I'm On My Way" from "Porgy & Bess" and the title song from "Oklahoma."

For the first time in the two years that Hamlisch has been orchestrating the White House show, one of his songs will be performed — "One" from "A Chorus Line." "I felt I would be taking advantage of my position by putting in one of my songs," Hamlisch said. "I felt 'Uh-oh, it's pushy.' But in this show it really works."

Then there is the matter of the performing Reagans.

"We don't give them hard things to do," said Hamlisch, who also staged the six previous shows.

Mostly it is Mrs. Reagan who is asked to perform.

"I'm not going to give her 40 minutes of work," he said. "It's a 15- or 30-second bit. She has danced with Pearl Bailey and she sang to the president on the first show — 'Our Love Is Here To Stay.'"

Hamlisch said he has a "very cute ending" that he at first was going to ask the first lady to do.

"But now we are talking about maybe the president taking part," he said. "A lot depends on how his day has gone. I don't think you want to ask him to do much if we've had a disastrous day in foreign policy. If things have been good, chances are he'll be in a good mood."

Hamlisch has some concern about the weather — there's no air-conditioning on the White House lawn, which might be warm for the performance and the guests-gripping-on-the-sidewalk-hot-for-rehearsals.

"There's a lot of Banlon shirts going to bite the dust on this one," Hamlisch said. "A lot of Polos will be down the tube."

Rain, of course, presents the ultimate problem and few performers really want to sing in it.

Hamlisch has enjoyed enormously working with the Reagans, with perks such as being invited to the White House to view the fireworks on the Fourth of July.

"The ice cream is the best in the world," he said. "It's major, major. On July Fourth there were a lot of kids there and Mrs. Reagan had strawberry ice cream and cookies for them. She could see in my eyes that basically I'm a child at heart and she said, 'Okay, Marvin, we'll get you some.'"

"So I ate with the 5-year-olds and I did not feel in any way wrong about it."

Looking ahead to the post-Reagan years, he said:

"We are ready to do songs with the word Bush in it or an entire Greek masterpiece. As for Jesse, the Morgan State University Choir knows some fabulous spirituals."
