Public education is a question which vitally concerns the national government, as well as every state, city and district, and includes within its scope all classes and races.

In the United States twenty millions of children, or one-fifth of the entire population are enrolled in the public schools.

The salaries paid to teachers each year amount to more than two hundred million dollars, and the total expenditure on public schools exceeds four hundred million dollars. Besides this enormous annual expenditure there is a permanent investment in public school buildings amounting to over nine hundred million dollars.

This requires the levying of heavy 'general" tax which is levied on the inspection in the schools. citizen of the states as a whole, and a "local" or self imposed tax levied by each city or town. Four fifths of the school taxes are of this kind. That this additional burden is cheerfully borne is ample evidence that the people realize the extreme importance of the proper education of children. Not only do the people give willingly of their income, but many of the hest and most influential citizens give their services freely in acting as directors for the management of these institutions. To make this great expenditure for education effective, there must be GOOD TEACHING, and children physically adapted to take advantage of the education offered.

90,359 Ford Cars in Two Months

In the last two months the Ford Motor Company has produced the enormous total of 90,359 cars, this including 43,849 cars in March and 46,510 cars in April. This not only insures the completion of the production of 300,000 Ford cars, between August 1914 and August 1915, barring the totaly unforseen, and the rebating of all Ford purchasers within that period, but it means that the goal will undoubtedly be reached before the promised time, August first. In fact the three hundred thousand cars will probably leave the Ford assembly early in July and the production pace will continue almost unabated, so tremendous is the demand this year the world over for Ford cars.

Then on August first will begin the task of rebating about $15. 000,000 to Ford purchasers in accordance with the terms of the Ford profit-sharing announcement. Each of the 300,000 or more Ford purchasers will be mailed, of course, an individual check, probably of $50. The postage alone on this huge mail means at least $6,000.

If there were let it be said again that no American of seasoned sense on board thought for an instant that the ship was in danger of a torpedo from any German craft unless the missile were fired as the result of gross error Some Americans in America may think differently about the matter. It would so seem to one who had to take leave of some friends more or less fearful One American on board said to another when midway between Queenstown and Liverpool, the place of reputed greatest danger, that there was more worry on shore over the ship than there was on its deck. SELLING THE GOODS

You can have the goods but you with our growers who wish to obfruits and vegetables. Some time since we called attention to the fact that California advertised their fruits in all the large magazines and in local papers and created a demand for their fruits and vegetables where Florida was remiss in this duty. Our growers right now should investigate California's system of growing and marketing their fruits and vegetables and they will find that advertising is the greatest secret of their success. The following from the Jacksonville Metropolis is along the same line:

There is beginning to dawn a complete realization of the lack of cooperation and unanimity of purpose in marketing all that Florida produces, and particularly the citrus crop of the state.

Florida has been going ahead for and doing little to increase the demand for the fruit. On the other hand California with a thoroughly organized cooperative plan has been increasing the demand for her citrus fruits, getting new markets, invading our markets and increasing sales to meet the increased fruit production of that state.

Instance, where it has come into con- to put us away in decency." tact or competition with California fruit, has had the preference, on account of the flavor and sweetness of the fruit, and a larger percentage of juice. These are the selling points in connection with the oranges and grapefruits. These are the points to be impressed on the public mind.

California cannot compete with in the middle west, the east and New England states. Fruit selling operative plan that would protect the grower, and give him his full postmaster at the banking point that of the California grower, and any part of his postal savings by the cost of production and packing in each instance, should be about the wayes of the ocean bearing on their crests certain death, Charles Frohman caimly asked those around him. "Why fear death? It is the most beautiful adventure in life."

Most men fear death, all men fear material dissolution. Whether our thoughts and beliefs are immutably fixed on a future life of safety and happiness or not, we shrink from the pain, the loneliness, the uncertainty of going alone out of this life, which we know, into that other of which. we know nothing. It may be merea companion and companion and a companion and a companion and a companion and a companion and the comp must cease, or it may be the lack of vision of what is before us, that makes man dread and fear the last

> But in the great moments when the actual crisis comes there seems to a proper formality whereby the be a clearing up of the vision, not a numbing of the feelings and sensibilities, but a certainty that where life is soon to go out in struggle and The ceremony is not vital, and the pain and torture, which is the fight particular form it takes is of small nature makes against dissolution, there is a life that is to persist and is to exist under conditions that are wider and better than those with which we are now acquainted.

The cheerful spirit that could stand in a group, doomed like himself to certain and speedy death, and say that the adventure was a beautiful one, that death was not to be feared, was contained in a high and purposeful soul. What he said in the great crisis, might well be said by all of us. We might well so consider the approaching end of all things for us, that we could say that, after all, the ending was the most beautiful of all the adventures in which we had anticipated.

We do not know, we cannot know, what awaits us on the other side of that thin veil we call death. Within the soul of every man is the demand for more life, wider life, better life, and the faith that springs up within us is the assurance to the believing that there is a beautiful life beyond. and that the going through the gates. of death is merely the adventure that hads to more beautiful things. which the Teye hath not seen," nor the ear heard "

Horse chestnuts can be grown in a bottly of water. Use a bottle with a neck wide enough to hold the chestnut, adding water to just touch the nut and stand it in a window. Roots will form, followed by a stem and leaves. If the water is constantly supplied the tree can grow for years in the bottle.

This disease of the wheat is very similar in general appearance to that of the oats, but its life history is somewhat different. It spreads from diseased to healthy plants at time of flowering and penetrates the young grains. The fact that it is carried within the grain instead of on the outside and that it is impossible to distinguish the Magazines Periodicals healthy from the diseased grains, makes the formalin treatment unsatisfactory. By far the most satisfactory and economical method of preventing the disease is to secure seed from uninfected fields, but when it is desirable to maintain a particular strain of seed a modification of the Jensen hot water treatment can be used. This method as devised by Freeman and Johnson is as follows: Clean the seed thoroughly and sonk for five to seven hours in water at 63 to 72 degrees F. Put the grain in loose bags or wire bankets holding about one-half peck each for further treatment. Use two gaivanised from tube, holding from twenty to forty gallons, filled with water. Tub No. 1 should be kept at a temperature ranging from 110 to 120 degrees F., and tub No. 2 at about 120 to 129 degrees F. Plunge each bag or basket into tub No. 1 for one minute and then into tub No. 2 for ten minutes, keeping the grain well stirred during the entire time. Two men can treat about one bushel of grain per hour. The seed can be drieston a barn floor, but if the weather is cool it should be protected from front.

The slowness of the hot water treat ment makes it impracticable to treat any considerable amount of grain. However, the grower will find it practicable to treat a small amount of seed which can be shown in a separate field and the crop used for seed a second year. Such a field should be at a considerable distance from wheat known to be infected or should be separated by a woodland or other wind break to prevent infection by means of apores carried by the wind.
