Paulucci Donates 60,000 Pizzas To Home Town

By Rick Brunson
Herald Staff Writer

While the mercury hovered around 80 degrees Monday back at his Sanford home, frozen food mogul Jeno Paulucci stood in below-zero temperatures in Hibbing, Minn., passing out free pizzas to about 200 people in the economically depressed village.

It was part of Paulucci's effort to help relieve the hunger and hopelessness in the town where he grew up, according to Jim Tills, president of JFP Associates, a Paulucci company.

Tills said Paulucci donated 60,000 pizzas, valued at about $80,000, to the Arrowhead Economic Opportunity Agency, a food bank in northeastern Minnesota. The agency delivered the pizzas to 16 of its distribution centers, which will give 10 small pies to about 4,500 families.

The area, known as the Iron Range, was blighted by the last recession and has never recovered. Unemployment is high because the demand for steel, the mainstay of the area, is down. Some iron-ore plants have shut down and others have cut production back drastically, Tills said, and the 10,000 residents of Hibbing have been hit particularly hard.

"Those people are in quite desperate need.

Their food shelves are bare," he said.

Tills said Paulucci, whose father was an ore miner, hoped that the giveaway would inspire other Minnesota businesses to do the same. In 1981, Paulucci donated about $300,000 worth of food to food banks, with much of it going to northeastern Minnesota.

His sister, Elizabeth Helfrich, also of Sanford, said today "it was just like Jeno" to give away the food. Mrs. Helfrich wept as she received word of her brother's deed.

"I'm in tears right now. Hibbing really means a lot to both of us," she said.

Paulucci, chairman of Paulucci Enterprises, formerly based his pizza-making operations in Duluth, Minn. In early 1984, he moved it to Casselberry to be near his Sanford home. He still owns the house where he and his sister grew up in Hibbing.

Mrs. Helfrich, once a secretary and treasurer for Chun King, a Chinese food company formerly owned by Paulucci, first came to Sanford 28 years ago to buy celery for the company.

"I liked it so much I stayed and convinced my family to come here."

No Traffic Fatalities In Seminole

10 Die On State Roads

From Staff and Wire Reports

No traffic fatalities were reported in Seminole County by early today while the New Year holiday death toll in Florida reached 10 and nationwide climbed to 218, less than predicted.

Seminole County officials reported eight DUI arrests since Saturday. The official four-day holiday ends at midnight. During the four-day Christmas holiday 34 DUI arrests were made in Seminole County.

The National Safety Council predicted up to 450 people would die on the nation's roads this weekend, which started Friday at 6 p.m. During the Christmas holiday weekend, 540 deaths were reported, exceeding the NSC's prediction by 70.

According to United Press International, California topped the nation with 28 deaths; Texas followed with 23 deaths; Michigan had 11; Florida, Illinois and North Carolina 10 each; Kansas, Ohio and Tennessee 9 each.

Nationwide, hazardous road conditions caused by freezing rain and snow kept many New Year's revelers home.

Travelers' warnings for freezing rain or snow were posted in Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Kansas and Illinois. Winter storm watches were issued in Oklahoma, Michigan, New Hampshire and Maine.

With the turn of the year, laws in several states hiking drinking ages and instituting tougher drunken driving penalties went into effect.

Arizona, Nebraska and South Carolina toasted 1985 with higher drinking ages, and other laws being considered were bans on tavern "happy hours" modeled after the nation's first such law in Massachusetts, where open champagne bars of past years were prohibited this New Year's Eve.

Lawmakers said the new bills were a response to legislation signed by President Reagan July 17 to reduce federal highway aid to states that refuse to raise the minimum drinking age to 21.

The measure would affect Florida, 26 other states and the District of Columbia, which have not raised drinking ages. It also provides for increased federal highway funds to states with mandatory sentencing laws for persons convicted of drunken driving.

Proposals or plans to increase the drinking age to 21 are expected in Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Virginia, Connecticut, Hawaii, New Hampshire, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, and New York for 1985 legislative sessions.

Massachusetts' happy hour ban, which took effect Dec. 10, prohibits cut-rate prices and inducements to drink like beer-guzzling contests and events offering free drinks.

Proposals to clamp down on happy hours — or eliminate them entirely — come up for consideration this year in

The First Lady

Checking in to the maternity ward at Central Florida Regional Hospital at 9:35 a.m. today was the as yet unnamed daughter of Robert and Pearl Key of Altamonte Springs. The 7-pound, 9 1/2-ounce girl was the first child born in Seminole County in the new year. The couple said they had plenty of names in mind for a boy, but were caught short for a girl's name. The Keys have two other children, boys.

Paul's Skin Grafts Begin

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Doctors Monday removed dead skin tissue and began the first of many skin graft operations on Paul Jewel, the 11-year-old boy who was burned over 60 percent of his body Christmas Day after a booby-trapped air hose exploded.

Paul, of the Lockhart area near Orlando, was in "critical, but stable" condition following the surgery at Shriners Burns Institute in Cincinnati.

Skin used in the grafting was from cadavers, said institute spokesman Sandy Shackelford.

Similar operations are to continue over the next several weeks. Although the boy's body eventually will reject the cadaver skin, it will temporarily protect his body from infection until his own skin can be grafted.

Monday's skin grafting was the boy's first surgery since his right leg was amputated just below the knee Saturday. Doctors said there was so much dead tissue in the leg that it jeopardized his chances of survival.

The leg was nearly blown off by the explosion, which caused second- and third-degree burns over 60 percent of his body. The bomb, hidden in a coin-operated compressed air pump at an Orlando convenience store, exploded when the boy was airing up a bicycle tire.

"I'm pleased with Paul's progress and treatment," the boy's mother, Stida Alsept, said after Monday's surgery. "I'm also very touched by the outpouring of love from people for him."

Cuba Holds Gunman

Hijacked Jet Back Safely

NEW YORK (UPI) — The 198 passengers and crew of an American Airlines DC-10 hijacked to Cuba by a prisoner who outwitted his three guards ended their ordeal today with a safe landing at John F. Kennedy Airport.

Authorities said American Airlines flight 626 touched down at 1:58 a.m. — nearly eight hours after the jet was hijacked as it flew from St. Croix, Virgin Islands, to New York.

The passengers, none of whom were injured during the ordeal, were allowed to pick up their baggage and leave the facility after being briefly questioned by the FBI.

Most were composed as they left the American Airlines terminal, although one woman broke down and began to cry after she picked up her baggage.

The plane, carrying 185 passengers and 13 crewmembers, departed the Virgin Islands at 3:51 p.m. for a flight to Kennedy Airport.

It was about an hour from New York when the prisoner, identified as Ishmael Ali LaBeet, one of five blacks convicted in the 1972 slayings of eight people at the fashionable Fountain Valley golf course in St. Croix, overpowered and disarmed his guards and diverted the plane to Cuba. Authorities said the plane was diverted about 6:17 p.m., when it was in the vicinity of Charleston, S.C.

Roger Myers, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman in Atlanta, said the aircraft landed at Jose Marti Airport in Havana, Cuba, at about 8:28 p.m. Monday and was allowed to depart for New York at 11:13 p.m.

LaBeet, who had been sentenced to eight consecutive life terms and was in the Virgin Islands for proceedings in a civil suit, remained in the custody of authorities in Cuba.

Passengers aboard the plane said they first learned a hijack was in progress when they heard a commotion to the rear of the plane, turned around and saw a large black man with a beard pointing a gun on the three Virgin Island marshals who had been guarding him.

They said the prisoner was handcuffed when he was brought on the plane but that his guards removed his handcuffs after he sat down.

Bomb Rips D.C. Abortion Clinic

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An explosion ripped through an abortion clinic early today, causing extensive damage to the center's walls in the third attack on area abortion facilities in two months, police said.

The bomb exploded at 12:10 a.m. today at the Hillcrest Women's Surgical Center in the nation's capital, police said. No injuries were reported.

Authorities said there was no immediate link to the bombing and the Christmas Day bombings of three clinics in Pensacola.

At least two dozen abortion facilities were attacked across the nation in 1984.

Police said the walls of the Washington center were damaged

Pensacola bomber linked to 'secret' group, Story, 4B extensively and windows across the street from the center were blown out.

Subway Vigilante Faces Attempted Murder Charge

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — A former mugging victim who confessed to being the "Death Wish" vigilante was charged with the attempted murder of four teenagers he allegedly gunned down in a New York subway Dec. 22 for harassing him.

Bernhard Hugo Goetz, 38, of New York City, a self-employed engineer, was held on $500,000 bail until his arraignment Wednesday. He also was charged with unlawful possession of a weapon.

Goetz walked into the Concord police station about 12:30 p.m. Monday and said he was sought by New York authorities in the shooting of four youths on a New York subway train, Concord Police Chief David Walchak said.

Goetz made a statement to police on the shooting incident, but officials refused to disclose the contents of the statement or why he ended up in New Hampshire.

Police said Goetz was expected to be extradited later this week. New York Chief of Detectives Richard Nicastro said Goetz would waive formal extradition hearings in New Hampshire.

The four teenage victims were shot and seriously injured Dec. 22 on a Manhattan subway. They had harassed the man and demanded $5 from him. The man then reportedly said, "I have five dollars for each of you," drew a pistol and fired.

The shootings set off a wave of controversy, with thousands of New Yorkers supporting the gunman as a hero like the Charles Bronson character in the movie "Death Wish."

Goetz had been assaulted on Jan. 21, 1981, on the Lower East Side by three youths who tried to rob his coat and ripped it, Nicastro said.

One person was arrested in the mugging but further details of the crime were not immediately available.

The subway gunman was believed armed with a silver .38-caliber revolver, police said.

The conductor of the train told police the man said he was not an officer and that he was not licensed to carry a gun, then jumped off the train and disappeared.

His four victims, all have arrest records and three were carrying sharpened screwdrivers, remained hospitalized Monday in good to critical condition. Doctors say one of them is paralyzed from the waist down.

On Monday, several members of the civilian crime patrol the Guardian Angels brought a souvenir screwdriver and $5 in quarters to one of the injured teenagers so he would not have to "beg, mug, borrow, or steal again," said the group's leader, Curtis Sliwa.

Bhopal Victims Haunt Union Carbide Workers

'What Can You Say To Them Now?'

By Dennis C. Milewski

DANBURY, Conn. (UPI) — Union Carbide hired a public relations firm to salvage its corporate image after the chemical disaster in Bhopal, India, but employees of the company say that won't help them face their friends and neighbors.

Since the deadly gas leak Dec. 3 at Union Carbide's Bhopal plant, there have been bomb threats and protests at the firm's world headquarters, which employs 3,000 people in suburban Danbury about 50 miles from New York City.

Employees of Union Carbide, a $15 billion firm perhaps best known for its "Eveready" batteries and "Glad" trash bags, say it is hard to deal with the death and suffering, the endless questions from family and friends.

"Some are ashamed of their company's role in the devastating accident, which claimed more than 2,500 lives and injured thousands more."

When asked what he would say to the people of Bhopal, one Union Carbide employee said, "I probably would be ashamed. It is so very sad. What can you say to them now?"

The young executive and two friends on their lunch hour appeared uncomfortable when asked by a reporter if they worked for Union Carbide.

"There is a hesitation," one worker finally said. He could not wait to tell his friends when he joined Union Carbide eight months earlier, but now "the reactions are different."

"It depends on who you talk to," said his co-worker, who has spent eight years with the company.

The third employee refused comment and all declined to identify themselves except to say they were "lower administration workers."

They sat alone at the dark bar, away from a noisy lunch-time crowd at Thursday's Restaurant near the huge company complex hidden by thick trees.

Attempts to talk to employees about the tragedy are difficult. Security has been tight since the accident and Union Carbide refuses to allow reporters past the field-stone gate.

There was a minute of silence after news of the deaths in India reached Danbury and reports that employees wept. Company flags flew at half-staff. Employees started their own relief funds for the victims and all Christmas and New Year's parties were canceled.

"It just didn't seem right to celebrate after such a calamity," said one of the workers.

"We are all concerned about the people of Bhopal. Whether it was Carbide's fault or not, the people deserve to be compensated and it should be substantial," he added.

"The image will go down for a while," one worker said. "The corporation is too big to go bankrupt. But if it turns out that Carbide messed up — then it will get a little shaky."

Party And Golf Completed: Reagan Turns To Foreign Affairs

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — With two days of golf and a black-tie New Year's Eve party behind him, President Reagan turned his full attention today to foreign affairs, particularly to dealings with the Soviet Union.

He was scheduled to meet today with Secretary of State George Shultz, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and national security adviser Robert McFarlane to reach final positions for the resumption of arms control talks with the Soviets next week.

Shultz will be going to Geneva, Switzerland, for two days of preliminary talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

He will meet with Reagan again Friday in Washington for what could be final marching orders.

Shultz was reported to have been arguing for a broad approach to the arms talks, hoping to offer Reagan's vaunted $26 billion "Star Wars" space defense system for the agenda.

Seat Belt Citations Issued

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Police began ticketing people for not wearing their seat belts today as New York became the first state in the country to fine people for not buckling up.

Several arrests were reported statewide, including a Vermont woman who was arrested at 12:15 a.m. in Whitehall, Washington County.

Betty Shufelt, 30, of Rutland, Vt., was stopped by state police on Route 4 and issued a ticket for seat belt violation, authorities said. Police said they did not know if Shufelt was the first to be charged under the seat belt law.

At the stroke of midnight, New York became the first state in the nation to fine motorists and front-seat passengers $50 for not wearing seat belts.

Federal Judge Stands By Order Blocking Refugees' Deportation

A federal judge is standing by his order to block the deportation of more than 2,700 undesirable Cuban refugees despite a Justice Department claim that the order threatens an agreement between Cuba and the United States.

U.S. District Judge Marvin Shoob said Monday he would not lift his Oct. 15 order that blocks the mass deportation of the Mariel boatlift Cubans. He said he blocked the mass deportation because each refugee was entitled to a hearing to determine if he is eligible for political asylum.

The Justice Department said the judge's refusal to lift the order threatens a deportation agreement reached Dec. 14 between Cuba and the United States. Under the agreement, the 2,700 refugees, 1,500 of whom are in a federal prison in Atlanta, would be returned to Cuba because the Immigration and Naturalization Service says they are either criminals or mentally unstable. In return for the deportation, the United States would resume processing of visas from Cubans.

The normal processing of visas from Cuban applicants was suspended following the Mariel boatlift in which 129,000 Cubans fled to Florida.

The Justice Department has appealed the ruling to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Union Raps Giveback Extension

MIAMI (UPI) — The leader of Eastern Airlines' largest union strongly criticized Chairman Frank Borman's announcement that he was extending wage cuts into 1985, saying Borman betrayed Eastern's employees and resurrected labor "warfare."

The move by Borman Monday to extend the 1984 Wage Investment Program came as a shock to Eastern employees, said Charles Bryan, president of Eastern's 16,000-member machinists' union.

The wage concessions were due to expire at midnight New Year's Eve, but Borman said in a company-wide letter Monday morning that the 18 to 22 percent pay cuts will be continued because the company can't afford the $22 million a month it would cost to reinstate the salaries.

Altamonte Police Subdue Burglary Suspect; Officer Punched In Face

An Altamonte Springs man who fought officers who found him inside a fenced construction site has been charged with battery to a police officer, burglary and grand theft.

According to a report by the Altamonte Springs police, they received a tip around 11:15 p.m. Sunday that a man was inside the site at Monterey North Apartments.

One officer reported that he saw a man, holding a large silver object, hop over a fence at the site then disappear. After notifying his partner that there was someone in the area, the officer located the man on the ground near a fence. A circuit breaker box, taken in the burglary, was next to him, the report shows.

The officer ordered the man to get up and face the fence. But as the man turned to lean on the fence, he punched the officer in the face breaking the officer's glasses.

The man, a plumber who is 6-foot-1 and weighs 195 pounds, then broke away from the officer's grip and fled only to be caught momentarily, and after a brief struggle placed under arrest.

In the second tussle, the same officer received a cut on the left elbow requiring four stitches.

Before the suspect was taken to jail he began to complain of nausea and said it was caused by drug use. He was transported to Florida Hospital — Altamonte where he was treated.

David Christian Lokey, 23, of 512 Boxelder, was being held in the Seminole County jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

A sheriff's deputy reported that he was conducting a traffic investigation about people racing near Dew Drop Cove, Casselberry. When he asked a man in the area who was racing with other drivers what his name was he said Joseph Vincent Derose. A Florida identification card the man had showed that was not his real name.

Arrested for obstruction with false information, driving without a driver's license and racing on the highway was Vincent Antony Ciabattoni, 31, of 517 Dew Drop Cove.

OBSCENE DISTURBANCE

An Altamonte Springs man who caused such a vocal disturbance that residents of five apartments gathered to watch him scream and holler was arrested for disorderly intoxication.

According to an Altamonte Springs police report, an officer responded to 725 Hidden Lake, in reference to a disturbance. The incident occurred at 1:01 a.m. Sunday.

At the address, the officer spoke with a woman who said a man she identified as her boyfriend had caused a disturbance but had left, the report shows. While the officer was talking with the woman, a man approached them and said, "Here I am, I'm the one." With that, the officer reported, the man started to call the woman vulgar names and hollered obscenities. The officer told him to quiet down, because a crowd was beginning to congregate, but the man continued his foul tirade.

Arrested for disorderly intoxication was Tony Collint, 21, of 844-D Orienta, Altamonte Springs.

STOP LEADS TO ARREST

A man whose Florida driver license was suspended six times was arrested after he was stopped for riding a motorcycle while not wearing headgear.

A deputy reported that he stopped the man for operating a motorcycle while not wearing a helmet. The incident occurred at 10:30 a.m. Sunday on Mullet Lake Park Road.

While the man had a valid New York state driver license, a computer check showed he had his Florida license suspended six times for failure to appear in court on traffic charges.

Arrested was Steven M. Davidson, 23, of Fredonia, N.Y. According to the arrest report, Davidson works in Sanford.

COLOGNE CAPER

An Orlando man who tried to shoplift two bottles of cologne from an Altamonte Mall shop has been arrested for retail theft.

An Altamonte Springs police report shows that a woman at the Shoppers Drug Mart in the mall saw a man put two $21.50 bottles of Aramis cologne down the front of his pants.

An officer was called, the man stopped, and the cologne recovered.

Arrested for the fragment violation was Bobby Cox, 42, of Orlando. He was being held in lieu of $100 bond in the Seminole County jail.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Snow and freezing rain ushered in the New Year from New Mexico to New York, coating streets with sheets of ice suited for skating, not driving. Downtown parties were canceled, revelers stayed home and disabled cars littered roads. Four people were swept away Monday by Texas floods spawned by 8 inches of rain. Tornadoes caused $4 million in damage, injured 38 people and knocked out power to 20,000 others in Houston's suburbs, where outages continued today. Tornadoes touched down Monday in East Bernad, Crystal Beach, Manvel, Baytown, Sweeny, Laporte and Pasadena, where the world-famous "Gillye's" nightclub was hit. Pasadena police said the twister caused up to $4 million in damage and sent 38 people to hospitals. Heavy snow and high winds extended today from Kansas to Minnesota and east to Michigan. Freezing rain, sometimes mixed with snow and fog, framed the snow in the Rockies, the southern Plains, New York and New England. Floods swept through Hannibal, Mo., and flash flood watches and warnings were posted in northeast and north central New York, southern Missouri and southern and central Illinois. Forecasts of snow and rain in Tulsa, Okla., forced sponsors to cancel the annual "First Night" downtown celebration, which usually attracts up to 10,000 people. In Colorado, an accident alert was issued in the Denver area.

Numerous car crashes also were reported in the Midwest. But police in Iowa, Missouri and Illinois said they believed highway conditions had persuaded many celebrants to stay at home. In Texas, authorities searched today for a father and two daughters, ages 3 and 2, who were swept away by floodwaters. Jim Wulf, police chief in Sabin, drowned in the floods and his body has been recovered. Power was knocked out to the San Jacinto monument, the Battleship Texas and as many as 20,000 people in Pasadena and Deer Park, said Graham Painter, a Houston Lighting and Power Co. spokesman. Painter estimated several thousand people in Pasadena began the New Year without electricity.

The Commerce Department released parts of the 1985 edition of its annual "U.S. Economic Outlook," giving the past performance and prospects for the coming year of 350 American industries.

The main conclusion to be drawn from the report, said Lionel Olmer, undersecretary for international trade, is that, "Change is the only constant in our economy. The United States has an incredibly dynamic economy in which adjustment is a process from which no industry is exempt."

Of all the industries surveyed, 209 are manufacturing industries. The report said 177 of these are expected to increase their output in 1985, the rest to stay the same or decline. But in the majority of cases, growth rates are expected to be below the past year of rapid recession recovery.

All the broad service categories, including information processing, transportation, wholesale and retail trade, hotels, banking, education and health are expected to grow in 1985 and on through 1990.

Service industries, which range from high-tech research to hamburger stands, have grown from 64.6 percent of the gross national product in 1972 to 68.3 percent in 1983 and have been the biggest source of new jobs.

Industries projected to grow fastest in 1985 include many high-tech fields such as semiconductors and electronic computing equipment. Others such as space equipment and missiles reflect major government buying.

For some others, such as steel and other primary metals, relatively high percentage growth rates are somewhat misleading because they represent recovery from recent, very depressed levels.

How Much Freedom?

The clash of conflicting rights in a democratic society is chronic and, often enough, without any "solution" other than deft compromise. A case in point: The elusive balance between essential government secrecy, the rights of a free press, and the public's right to know what its elected representatives are doing.

This messy dilemma came up again recently when The Washington Post disclosed the classified purpose and a number of details of the next mission for the space shuttle Discovery. On Jan. 23, Discovery is to lift the Pentagon's newest and most sophisticated reconnaissance satellite into orbit over the Soviet Union. Part of the $300-million satellite's purpose is said to be monitoring Soviet missile tests to determine if the Soviet Union is abiding by terms of the SALT II treaty and other arms-control agreements with the United States.

An obviously angry Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger accused The Post of "the height of journalistic irresponsibility." And Mr. Weinberger suggested that publication had damaged national security. The Post's executive editor, Benjamin Bradlee, disputed that, saying that the newspaper had deleted details it knew the Pentagon considered sensitive. Mr. Bradlee described the article as nothing more than "a careful review of what is known about the upcoming shuttle launch."

It is difficult to know for certain whose version is closer to the truth. Most information about U.S. intelligence satellites, especially concerning their precise capabilities, has been very closely guarded. And for obvious reasons. The more the Soviets know about American "spy" satellites and their capabilities, for example, the easier it might be to disguise cheating on arms control agreements.

Conversely, it is probably also true that much of what The Post published would in time have been deduced by the Soviets once the satellite was in its fixed orbit, 22,300 miles above the Western regions of the Soviet Union.

Beyond the disputed specifics of this particular incident lies a much larger, more troubling issue. Who decides if the publication of classified information would, in fact, damage national security? Ceding unquestioned authority to government invites the sort of political abuse of the classification system experienced during the Johnson and Nixon administrations. But who elected Mr. Bradlee to decide how much the Soviets should be told about a satellite obviously important and perhaps critical to the security of 240 million Americans?

The Associated Press, NBC News, and Aviation Week & Space Technology magazine all knew details of Discovery's classified January mission. But each complied with a Pentagon request to withhold the story so long as others did likewise. Mr. Bradlee decided that The Washington Post need not comply. The First Amendment protects that decision and precludes the sort of prior restraint — i.e. censorship — inherent in Britain's Official Secrets Act.

Well and good. Britain is an admirable democracy, but its press is less free than many Americans imagine. Keeping the press free on this side of the Atlantic will be easier if that press is also consistently responsible. And given the world's obvious dangers, we think that press responsibility requires according the Pentagon the benefit of the doubt on classification matters absent any compelling reason to do otherwise.

Let 'Em Eat Peanut Butter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "USDA Seeks Comment on 1985 Peanut Program" reads a caption of an Agriculture Department news release.

When the government seeks anything, I comply. If it calls me to military service, I go. If it wants more taxes, I pay. So I have no hesitation about commenting on the 1985 peanut program.

Frankly, USDA, I regard what you call "the minimum Commodity Credit Corporation price" for 1985-crop additional peanuts as ill-advised.

I do wish, however, that the government occasionally would invite me to comment on something a bit more significant than peanuts. War and peace, maybe. I have some swell comments I have been saving up for those topics. Or perhaps the USDA might like me to comment on a new type of beetle trap.

These traps are baited with non-toxic oils laced with artificial sex scents. Amorous insects theoretically fall into them and suffocate.

My comment comes in the form of two questions: 1) What about beetles that have sexual hang-ups? In other words, beetles that don't respond to conventional lures? 2) Are special traps, equipped with sex counsellors or therapists, provided for them?

Another program I am prepared to comment on involves space trash.

Yes, USO fans, the high frontier is being littered with the residue of old rockets and other kinds of man-made debris. So an aerospace consultant has proposed converting a NASA satellite into an orbiting trash can with robot arms to clear away the clutter.

My comment here is to question whether that concept is adequate. If there really are upwards of 50,000 man-made objects, some as small as marbles, whirling through space as a threat to latter-day explorations, it may take more than an orbiting trash can to dispose of the rubbish.

Now back to the peanut program and why I consider it ill-advised:

You say, "The 1984 additional peanut support level was $185 a ton and the CCC sales price for export edible peanuts was $425 a ton."

Isn't keeping the support price of 1985-crop additional peanuts at the former level going to encourage a lot of farmers to grow additional peanuts in the hope of getting them accepted as "export edible?"

You don't have to be a peanut farmer, or an arithmetic student, to see there is a lot of difference between $185 and $425.

I say, let's design government programs that are more peanut wise and less spacey.

EDWARD J. WALSH

The Big (Liberal) Press

For years, conservatives have criticized harshly the persistent liberal bias of the major press. The major media's coverage of international news, from the Vietnam War to the Nicaraguan revolution to the U.S. incursion in Grenada in late 1983 has included articles and TV news reports that were viciously anti-American and fawningly pro-Soviet.

President Reagan's consistently high approval ratings with the public seemed for a while to have taught the press that leftwing liberalism is no longer convincing in the United States. There have been some recent signs that the editorial writers of the New York Times, the Washington Post, the Boston Globe, and the television networks were backpedaling.

Still, the fundamental world view of the major press is that America is obligated to spend its capital and energy in solving the world's problems.

That agenda is currently in dispute in the United States. But yet the Big Press is the Big Press. The flavor of its editorials and commentaries influence profoundly the nation's policies, domestic and foreign. And since access to the Big Press is the first step to influence, policymakers have to figure how to take that step.

In recent weeks, a few otherwise sensible conservatives have tried to have both access to the major press and immunity from the barrage of abuse they level at conservative views. New Gingrich of Georgia and Sen. Barry Goldwater have both fallen into this trap. Gingrich, a bright young man in the realm of economics, decided that his pro-business views on tax policy would get better play if he echoed liberal condemnations of the Reagan Administration's approach to South Africa.

Likewise, Sen. Goldwater earned liberal congratulations for himself and horselaughs for pro-defense conservatives by telling President Reagan that he should get rid of the MX missile.

History teaches that the liberal agenda, as advertised by the Big Press as compassionate and "moderate" usually produces U.S. weakness, Third World victimization, and Soviet successes. Conservatives, especially congressmen and senators should have learned that lesson by now. They should oppose that agenda, rather than support it by default, in exchange for seeing their names in print.

Democrats: Much Resolve For '85

WASHINGTON — For those expansive souls who dream of political power, 1984 was a contentious year of accusations and orations, of fatuity and futility.

Some politicians were catapulted to high office; others were driven from power. As the year faded, liberals were in decline and conservatives in ascendance. It is only fitting that the battered Democrats, many of them still sulking in their hideaways, be given the first word in 1985.

I had my reporter Jim Zians call all the prominent Democrats he could locate and find out what resolutions, if any, they had for 1985. Just how heartfelt some of their responses were, I'll leave up to you to decide. Here are the replies of those who have taken the pledge — any pledge:

— Rep. Morris K. Udall, Ariz.: "In recent years I have endorsed Ed Muskie, Mo Udall, Ted Kennedy and Walter Mondale for the presidency. In light of that record, I resolve to start in 1985 to campaign for George Bush, Jack Kemp and Howard Baker for president."

— Presidential candidate Walter Mondale: "To spend more time with my family."

— Vice presidential candidate

Geraldine Ferraro: "Here are my New Year's resolutions for 1985: Find a job, lose 10 campaign pounds, spend more time again with my family, speak out on the issues, work for the future of my country and my party — and make this the last time this year my name shows up in your column."

— House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill: "To make sure that President Reagan keeps his campaign promise on fairness."

— Senate Minority Leader Robert Byrd: "I resolve in the year ahead to help Senate Democrats chart new courses to meet today's challenges."

— Sen. Alan Cranston, Calif.: "My resolution is to help the Democratic Party — which is showing its age as the world's oldest political party — think young." On a personal note, the bald, 70-year-old fitness enthusiast said, "I resolve to stop spending so much time at the barber shop, to cut my work day down to 24 hours and my work week down to seven days, and to cut four seconds off my 60-yard dash, or get them to reduce it to 56 yards."

— Sen. Edward Kennedy, Mass.: "My wish for 1985 is for a bilateral, verifiable nuclear arms freeze."

— Democratic National Chairman Charles Manatt: "To continue revitalizing the world's most enduring political party with policies that respond to the broadest cross-section of Americans."

— Sen. Lawton Chiles, Fla.: "For the Democratic Party in 1985, I long for leadership reflecting the wisdom of Solomon, who found a way to deal with disagreeing factions (a mother and would-be mother) so that the best interests of the endangered party (the baby) were protected."

— Sen. John Glenn, Ohio: "I resolve to do everything I can to help the Democratic Party again become America's majority party. Philosophically, that means combining compassion with common sense to move my party toward a more centrist position. Politically, it means adjusting our programs without abandoning our principles."

— Rep. Steve Solarz, N.Y.: "In spite of our recent electoral reverse, I hope that the party resolves to coe being the party of peace and prosperity, that the party stands for what is good about the United States."

— Gov. Richard Lamm, Colo.:

ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Respect For The Truth

Public service in this country offers few rewards. Those who take up major appointments in the federal government generally find their tours of duty very expensive. Government salaries don't cover the tremendous expense of living in the nation's capital.

One of the worst drawbacks to public service is the torrent of abuse and denigration to which officeholders are subjected. I was reminded of that recently when I read that Senator-elect Albert Gore, Jr. called Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger the "worst Cabinet member in modern history." Mr. Gore, who had just returned from a visit to the Soviet Union, was angry with Secretary Weinberger for not proposing even deeper cuts in defense spending. Only days before, Mr. Weinberger had agreed to $8.7 billion in cuts, hardly a minuscule amount.

While a certain amount of partisanship is inevitable in political life, there should be some respect for the truth. Mr. Gore totally ignored the truth.

What has been Mr. Weinberger's record? It is a record of extraordinary accomplishment. When he took over his duties at the Pentagon, the U.S. defenses were at low ebb. Under President Jimmy Carter, America's armed forces experienced a terrible deterioration.

All that has been repaired under Mr. Weinberger's direction of the Defense Dept. The services have been strengthened. New weapons programs are in place. Morale has increased tremendously. The nuclear deterrent has been strengthened by the placement of cruise missiles in Europe.

One wonders whether Senator-elect Gore would dare compare Mr. Weinberger's record of success with the record of former Secretary of Defense Robert Strange McNamara in President Johnson's administration. Mr. McNamara's testimony in the Westmoreland libel case revealed that Mr. McNamara decided in late 1965, while he was Secretary of Defense, that the Vietnam War could not be won militarily. This confirms what Sen. Strom Thurmond said at the time, namely that Mr. McNamara was fighting a "no-win war."

A new "peace" campaign is in the works. The aim of this campaign is to stop America's rearmament. The unfair charge against Secretary Weinberger has to be seen in this light. Shame on Mr. Gore!

WASHINGTON WORLD

Movement's Children

By David Lawsky

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Disparate as they are, Ronald Reagan and Rosa Parks serve as reminders of the seminal role the civil rights movement, of all things, had in politics that were played out in 1984.

In a sense, Parks is the woman who started it all. She refused to move to the back of a bus in 1956, as blacks were then required to do in Alabama, touching off the Montgomery bus boycott led by the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. that led to the civil rights demonstrations of the next 10 years.

The civil rights movement spread to electoral politics at the 1964 Democratic National Convention when the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party challenged the seating of an all-white delegation. Sen. Hubert Humphrey, who wanted to be the vice presidential nominee on a ticket with President Johnson, worked out a compromise with the help of a young colleague, Walter Mondale.

While the Democrats were meeting in Atlantic City, students in Mississippi were in the middle of "freedom summer" to help integrate that state. The seriousness of their commitment was underscored by the murder of three civil rights workers there.

When some of the students returned to the University of California in the fall of 1964 they brought with them the tactics and commitment they had learned and led the first major student demonstrations of the 1960s, the Berkeley Free Speech Movement.

Californians, who had shown doubts about civil rights by approving an initiative to bar fair housing laws, were equally repelled by student protests. In 1966, a political newcomer ran for governor and promised to do what Gov. Edmund G. Brown Sr. could not: control the student rebellion. Voters bought it, electing Ronald Reagan as governor.

Reagan kept his commitment, calling out the National Guard to battle Berkeley students and regain "People's Park" in 1970. Police and guard weaponry killed one person and blinded another, but People's Park still exists.

Other liberation movements beyond those of the students drew their rhetoric and ideals from the black movement in the late '60s. Hispanics, Chinese, American Indians and, most successfully, women, began movements of their own.

The civil rights movement spawned the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Riots in Los Angeles and Detroit that followed were answered by the War on Poverty. But the war on poverty was soon overshadowed by the war in Vietnam and the Democrats were defeated in 1968. The election of Richard Nixon led to Watergate and the reaction to Watergate elected Jimmy Carter.

Against that background, Rosa Parks was suddenly in the news again after all these years. She was one of those arrested at South African Embassy protests in Washington.

Payne Holds Breath During Grade Check

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

The day of decision comes Wednesday for coach Bill Payne and his Seminole Community College Raiders. Don't check the schedule for any big game. Don't peruse the roster for a Georgetown transfer.

Wednesday's "G-Day" is much more important. That is the day that Payne checks the grades to see how many of his players will suit up Thursday night when the Raiders host Melbourne's Patrick Air Force Base. Tip-off is 7:30 p.m. at the SCC Health Center.

"Grades are always a question when you deal with junior college kids," said the third-year SCC coach Monday. "It's the 'Hold-Your-Breath Time' of the year."

Payne said he is mostly worried about his sophomores. "We have several that are borderline," he said. "I'm only worried about one freshman. All the other should be fine."

Although the semester may claim one or two Raiders, Payne is quick to defend SCC's attitude on academics. The school has one of the highest — if not the highest — graduation rate for basketball players among the nation and Payne said he knows why.

"Our kids take good classes," he said, implying that basket weaving and pumpkin cutting are not among the curriculum. "We don't just run them through here to keep them eligible. We don't just keep them for two years. We make them take good classes."

As strange as it may seem, however, a few academic casualties would probably help the Raiders more than hurt them. Payne said one of his biggest problems has been getting everybody playing time.

"That's my fault," Payne said. "I recruited too many kids of the same ability. When there's 12 minutes left and most teams are wondering what offensive they should run, we're worried about who we're going to play."

Payne, however, said since he has gone with the best seven or eight performers, the Raiders' game has improved. "I'm real happy with the way we have played the last four games," he said. "The playing time of some guys has been hurt because there are seven or eight guys who have been playing very well and doing the job. We've got to go with them."

The Raiders are coming from a split in the Brevard Tournament where they finished second. In two superb performances, SCC belted Indian River and then had top-ranked Miami Dade North on the ropes before letting it slip away in overtime.

Payne's sophomore point guard came in for special praise after that one. "Mike Tolbert just had a tremendous game against North," gushed

J.C. Basketball

Payne. "He's playing like he did in the beginning of the year."

Tolbert is pressuring Mike Landell for his old job but Payne said if the grades allow all to play, he will start Landell, Linny Grace, Greg "Skywalker" Bates, Slim Johnson and Kenny Edwards.

Edwards, a 6-4 swingman, also burned up the gym at Cocoa. Kind of shy about putting it up, the George Gervin look-alike was coaxed out of his shell by Payne and assistant coach Dean Smith against Dade North.

"We've been trying to get him to shoot the ball all year," said Smith. "When we finally did look what happened." Edwards hit 11 of 15 floor attempts for a career-high 25 points.

The Raiders compiled a 9-5 mark during the first half of the season. Payne said he feels that his group "can play with anyone in the division," but he did place the Raiders below Daytona Beach, Lake City and Florida Junior College when ranking the Mid-Florida Conference.

"Right now, those three have to be the favorites," said Payne, whose Raiders qualified for the post-season tournament last year but were upset by Valencia, costing them a spot in the state tournament. "I still think the winner of the conference will lose two or three games, so everybody's got a chance."

As the former Seminole High coach looks at the 1984 season, he sees a quick start, a lag and a fast finish. "Everybody was excited at the beginning of the year and we really played well," said Payne. "Then, that Lake Sumter game really shook us up."

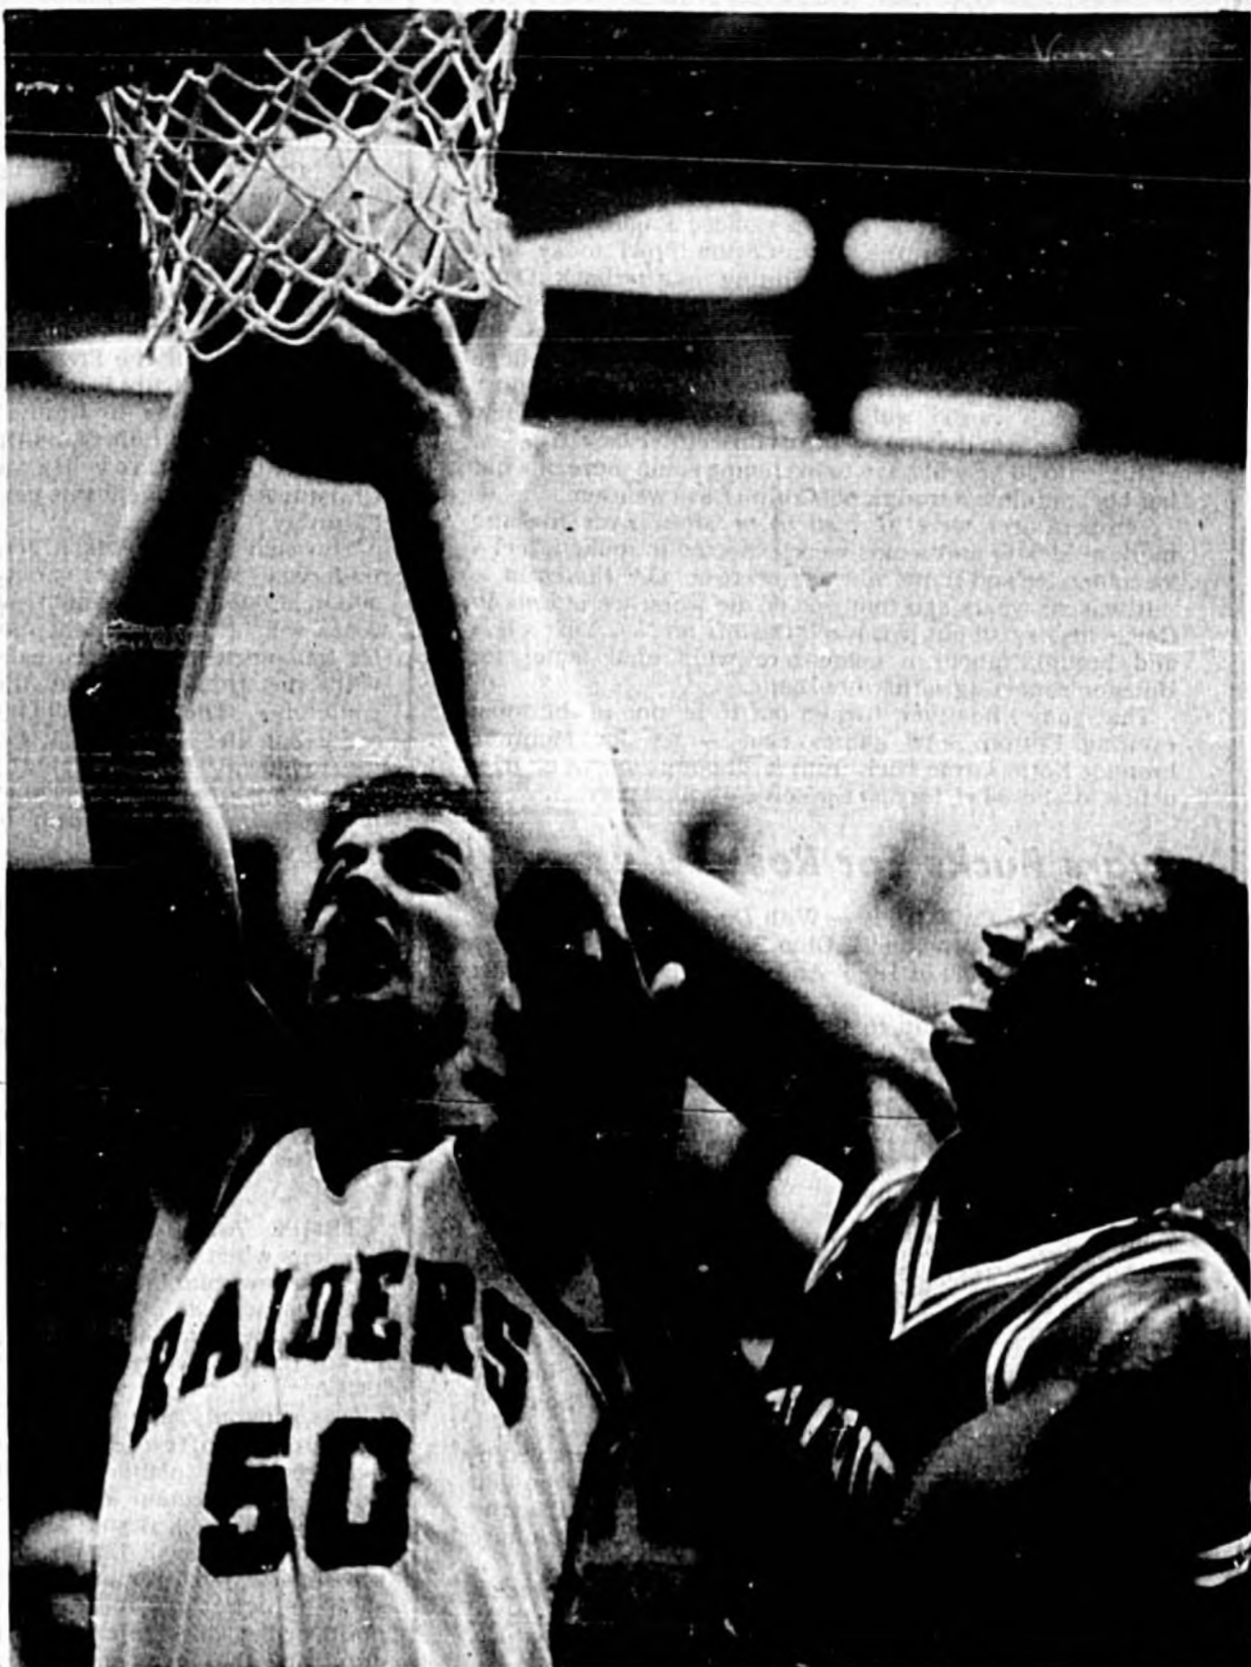

The Raiders lost on an incredible batted tip-in from the free throw line. It was the first time in the history of the school that SCC had ever lost to the Leesburg school.

"We floundered around for two weeks looking for something wrong," continued Payne. "There wasn't anything wrong. We were just playing badly."

Payne said the season turned around when the Raiders went to Tampa (Temple Terrace) for a game with Florida College. SCC lost and Payne said he pulled his team off the floor because the officials let the game get out of hand.

"We came out of that place fighting mad," he said. "I just pulled everybody together. We've haven't had a poor game since then. That's the best thing that could have happened to this team."

RAIDER RAP — Another good thing should happen Thursday when Sanford's Calvin "Kiki" Bryant becomes eligible. The former Seminole sophomore is a pure shooter and Payne said he will be a big help against the zones his team has been running confronting.

"Kiki has look good playing with the second team in practice," said Payne. "I'm anxious to get him in there and see what he can do." Bryant graduated from Seminole two years ago, but sat out last year with "basketball burnout." Now, all he wants to do is burn out the nets, according to Payne.

Nailbiting Time For Top Ranked Brigham Young Sooners, Huskies

Shoot For Top Spot

MIAMI (UPI) — Oklahoma's Barry Switzer and Washington's Don James would rather let the ratings decide the national championship than have a playoff game with top-ranked Brigham Young.

The coaches of, respectively, No. 2 Oklahoma and No. 3 Washington believe the winner of tonight's Orange Bowl has a chance to unseat BYU in the final rankings, which will be released Wednesday.

"I have never advocated or supported a national championship playoff," Switzer said Monday. "I've never seen a system for the national championship playoff that I like. I don't want to disrupt the bowl games."

"I'm also against a playoff system," James said. "So I have to accept the present system, which is a voting system with the UPI Coaches and AP writers."

Switzer, James and BYU

Orange Bowl

Coches LaVell Edwards are all on UPI's 42-man Board of Coaches.

Switzer hopes all the national title talk won't distract the Sooners tonight.

"I am concerned about the interest created by 'who is No. 1?'" Switzer said. "We were in the same situation here in 1977. Nobody is talking about playing Washington, a fine football team."

"It was like that in 1977 and we got our butts whipped by an 18-point underdog. I'll take a one-point victory and don't give a damn about the polls."

Oklahoma came into the Orange Bowl ranked second in 1977, expecting to move up after Notre Dame upset top-ranked Texas in that afternoon's Cotton Bowl. But Arkansas shocked the Sooners 31-6, paving the way for Notre Dame to win the national title.

There is much speculation about what type of victory is needed to lift the Orange Bowl winner over Brigham Young, which held a 24-point lead in the last ratings and defeated Michigan 24-17 Dec. 21 in the Holiday Bowl.

A blowout Tuesday night would help the winner in the ratings, but that is unlikely in a matchup of two strong defensive teams. Offense often impresses observers more, and neither Orange Bowl team can match BYU's nation-leading attack.

But James thinks votes can be won with defense.

"I think if it's good football, that should be taken into account," he said. "You can get some really easy scores in this game and I don't think that necessarily makes you a better team."

Besides, James said he isn't taking a low-scoring game for granted.

Upset Minded LSU Battles Cornhuskers

Sugar Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Although tonight's Sugar Bowl doesn't have the acclaim of some of its recent predecessors, Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne thinks it may be one of this year's better bowl matchups.

No. 4 Nebraska, bidding to finish in the top 3 nationally for the third year in a row, goes into tonight's Sugar Bowl game against No. 12 LSU as a solid favorite. Nebraska can count on its 15th consecutive top-10 finish.

The Cornhuskers haven't been national champions since 1971, losing their best shot last year when Miami beat them 31-30 in the Orange Bowl.

Nebraska, 9-2, was No. 1 and apparently headed for another title shootout in tonight's Orange Bowl before a 17-7 loss to Oklahoma in the final regular-season game sidetracked the Sugar Bowl express. The Cornhuskers' other loss was a 17-9 upset at Syracuse.

Osborne notes that in four previous meetings with LSU, in which Nebraska has a 3-0-1 record, the biggest point spread was only five points — the Cornhuskers winning 17-12 when they first met 14 years ago in the Orange Bowl.

"I've always had a great deal of respect for LSU football," said Osborne. "We've never lost to them, but every game has been very close and most of them we had to come from behind."

Last time, two years ago in the Orange Bowl, the heavily-favored Cornhuskers had to rally for a 21-20 victory over the Bengals.

"There's been a lot said about us not making it back to the Orange Bowl this year and not having a shot at the national championship," said Osborne.

Collins: Charity Nights Don't Effect Public's Wagering, Payoffs

By Phil 'Boomer' Denis
Special to the Herald

LONGWOOD — When Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club chairman of the board Jerry Collins was serving his constituents four terms in the Florida Legislature, one of his favorite projects was to make dog-gone certain a bill he introduced to allow the pari-mutuel wagering industry to have scholarship and charity performances passed.

Collins, as he has been in numerous ventures, got the bill passed back in 1949 and the various tracks had the option of sponsoring charity and scholarship nights since 1950.

Since that time, nearly $16 million dollars have been raised in Florida, thanks to those early efforts of Collins.

"The idea behind all of this was to put something back in the community like we like to do," Collins was saying the other afternoon from his office at SOKC. "And this is a way for us to help people, especially our younger people who will be our future leaders in this country."

"I made the bill for charities and scholarships permissive, not mandatory, but you can see a lot of these people at the different tracks have adopted my ideas. Not only in Florida, but all over the country."

With those continuing thoughts in mind, Collins has once again scheduled five charity and scholarship programs for this season at the Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club.

It all gets underway tonight when the State Board of Regents Scholarship Program will be the beneficiary. On Jan. 8 it will be numerous charitable organizations throughout Central Florida that will receive the proceeds from the evening's performance.

Seminole Community College will be the recipient on Jan. 15, followed by Lake Sumter in Leesburg, Brevard Community College in Cocoa and Orlando's Valencia Community College on Jan. 22 and the University of Central Florida of Orlando on Jan. 29.

"These are five of the evenings of which I am most proud," said Collins, "because that's when we really can help one another out. On those nights, the charities and schools will be receiving all the profits from every thing.

Pari-mutuels

"And it won't effect the public's wagering and payoffs at all. That's one of the misconceptions we've tried and tried to explain for many years. The method of wagering and payoffs isn't effected in any way, so we hope the people will especially help us support all of these fine programs on these special nights."

"This is the best thing we've done for racing, the opportunity to pay our part to the communities. This is the best relationship we have with the public, so you can be sure we'll continue to participate in full force."

In 1983-84, SOKC did $1,400,000 dollars of business on charity and scholarship nights, with a percentage going to be special programs.

Keeping in mind that the charity and scholarship performances are permissive and not mandatory, Collins is somewhat bothered by the fact that some racing establishments have done away with the special projects.

Stressing the point, Collins illustrates that in 1974, $949,801 was collected statewide, compared to a disappointing $172,776 last year.

"When we hit that peak, we were really on the way," Collins said "But since that time, some people have done away with it. And, I strongly say that's not right. If tracks, the dogs, horses and jai-alai would participate, their business would increase. I'm telling you, it happened before and look at what some people are doing right now."

"That's why we're hoping to do more, much more this year. I'm going to keep after them, you can bet on that."

"That way, if they all participate and we raise this money that's needed to help the people and the communities, we won't have things happen like happened this year at (University of) Florida. Maybe there wouldn't be all those violations if they had more money for the scholarships and charities.

"That's what we're working for. And we're going to continue doing it. I won't let up as long as we're in this business."

RECORDS, RECORDS, RECORDS — SOKC's beginning of its 50th anniversary celebration last Wednesday night was indeed a cause for celebration as SOKC established records for both attendance (8,834) and pari-mutuel wagering handle ($560,981) for one performance.

The 50th anniversary opening highlight occurred in the Grade A 5-16ths of a mile 12th race when Zodiac Kennel's "Crime Pays" did just that after making a strong finish and paying off backers to the tune of 15-1 odds.

As for the overall upcoming season which runs through May 2, Collins projects the pari-mutuel windows will handle in excess of $60 million "in a cakewalk" including charities and scholarships. That's up from $56 million-plus during 1983-84.

IN BRIEF

Flutie Loads Up For Finale, BC Faces Houston In Cotton

DALLAS (UPI) — The Boston College Eagles meet the Houston Cougars in the 49th Cotton Bowl today and although Heisman Trophy winning quarterback Doug Flutie has shown he can work wonders on the football field, he cannot do much about the weather.

Flutie, who during his four years at Boston College became the first passer in NCAA history to throw for more than 10,000 yards, will be trying to throw for a few hundred more in the Eagles' third consecutive bowl trip.

But to do so he will have to overcome some more of what has become almost traditional Cotton Bowl weather.

Temperatures were forecast to be around the freezing mark at kickoff and winds were expected to make it feel a lot colder. Ice and snow, however, were not in the forecast.

It was six years ago that one of the worst ice storms in Dallas history all but paralyzed the city on New Year's Eve and brought about a below-zero wind chill factor for Houston's meeting with Notre Dame.

That game, however, turned out to be one of the most exciting Cotton Bowl games ever — as Joe Montana brought Notre Dame back from a 22-point, fourth-quarter deficit to a 35-34 victory on the contest's final play.

Byars Bucks For Rosy Future

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — With Doug Flutie graduating and likely to be pro-bound, Ohio State's Keith Byars may own college football in 1985. And his reign could well start today.

Byars, the runnerup to Flutie in the Heisman Trophy balloting, will try to make an early statement in the Rose Bowl as the fifth-ranked Buckeyes face No. 14 Southern California. Kickoff is 5 p.m. EST.

Game time will not come too soon for Byars, who led the nation in rushing and scoring. He's tired of talking about the Heisman — and finishing second-best.

"I don't want to be rude, but can we get off the Heisman subject, he asked. "I'm not embarrassed by it, but it's over. "And I don't get a vote. My vote is 11 games of good football."

The junior speedster is going for "good game" No. 12 today.

"The main reason I came to Ohio State was for the opportunity to go to the Rose Bowl," Byars said. "So now I want to make the most of it."

"I grew up thinking the best college football is played in the Rose Bowl. I wanted to be part of it then. I've been told as long as I can remember that the Rose Bowl is the granddaddy, that it's like no other bowl game. I'm out here to see that, to see what it's all about."

Byars has had little but the game on his mind for weeks. In fact, he vowed to pass up tourist trips to such places as Universal Studios and Disneyland because "I don't like Mickey Mouse. I'm here to win a football game."

Diehard Virginia Eats Peach

ATLANTA (UPI) — Fighting off the urge to gamble, Virginia Coach George Welsh settled for the "sure" field goal and his defense made it pay off with a 27-24 Peach Bowl victory over Purdue.

With the game tied 24-24 midway through the fourth quarter Monday, the Cavaliers faced a fourth down with less than a yard to go for a touchdown. Welsh's first instinct was to take a chance on the six points.

"Then, with a few more seconds to think about it, I felt we didn't want to come away without putting points on the board," he explained. "And with the score tied, if we got the almost-sure three points, it would put the pressure on them."

Virginia took a delay penalty to get a better angle and junior Kenny Stadlin kicked a 22-yard field goal with 7:17 left to play. Still, cornerback Ray Daly had to pick off a Jim Everett pass at the Cavaliers' 15-yard line to stifle the last Purdue threat with 4:56 remaining.

"When you get a chance to go ahead, you've got to go ahead and make them beat you," said Welsh. "Daly's interception was the key, obviously."

It was the third interception by the Cavaliers and second by Daly, the game's outstanding defensive player. Virginia, playing in its first bowl game ever, also recovered a fumble as it shut down the potent Purdue passing game after trailing 24-14 at intermission.

"I said before the game that turnovers would be the difference and they were," said Purdue Coach Leon Burnett. "If we played each other 10 times, we'd probably split five and five."

Everett, who completed 22 of 42 passes for 253 yards, put the Bollermakers ahead with touchdown tosses of 23 yards to Steve Griffin, 17 yards to Jeff Price and 12 yards to Marty Scott. Purdue also got a 24-yard Mike Rendina field goal in building the 10-point halftime edge.

Five Star Race Resumes Wednesday

By Chris Pister
Herald Sports Writer

The race for the Five Star Conference title for girls basketball resumes this week with the key matchup being Seminole against DeLand Thursday night at Seminole High.

Seminole, the fourth-ranked team in the state (4A), stands at 10-2 overall and is tied with Lake Brantley for the Five Star lead at 3-0. The Lady Seminoles lost a heartbreaker to Orlando Evans in the championship game of the Lady Hawk Christmas Tournament this past Saturday.

Thursday's game, which gets underway with junior varsity action at 6 followed by varsity at 7:45, will be an important one for DeLand if it is to keep pace with the frontrunners in the conference. The Lady Bulldogs are 2-1 in the Five Star after a loss to Lake Brantley. Should the Bulldogs fall two games behind it would be hard for them to catch up.

The Lady Patriots will look to stay unbeaten in conference play Wednesday when they host Daytona Beach Mainland's Lady Bucs. Action at Lake Brantley High starts at 6:15 with the junior varsity game followed by the varsity at 8.

Lake Brantley, 9-2 overall and 3-0 in the conference, received clutch performances from its starting five in its upset of DeLand at DeLand. Senior center Kirsten Dellinger, a transfer from Pennsylvania, is coming off three outstanding games in the Lady Hawk Tournament where Lake Brantley won the consolation title after losing to Seminole by two points in the first round.

Senior forward Michelle Brown was one of the top all-around players in the Lady Hawk while junior point guard Sherry "Ice" Asplen displayed fine ballhandling skills along with her deadly outside shot. Senior guard Kim Lubenow also shot well from the outside and senior forward Cammie Trwaddell provided inside strength.

The first week of 1985 will be a busy one for the Lady Patriots. After Wednesday's game, Brantley travels to Apopka for a 6 p.m. game Thursday and to Orlando Friday night at 7 for a non-conference battle with Colonial.

Lake Mary's Lady Rams also engage in a pair of Five Star Conference games this week. The Rams, 5-5 overall and 2-1 in the conference, host Apopka Wednesday at 6:15 and travel to Daytona Beach Friday (4:45) to take on Seabreeze.

Lake Mary may be considered a dark horse in the conference race but they could be contenders with consistency. The Lady Rams are also hoping to get senior sharpshooter Andrea Fenning back to make their chances even better. Fenning is recovering from a knee injury that has kept her out for the early part of the season.

Lyman's Lady Greyhounds, 1-8 overall and 0-5 in the Five Star, look to snap a seven-game losing streak Friday when the host Mainland at 6:30. Junior forward Kim Forsyth has carried most of the offensive load for Lyman but point guard LaTanya Johnson is starting to come around.

Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks, 4-7 overall and 1-3 in the Five Star, look for their second conference win Thursday when they host Spruce Creek at 8 (varsity only). Patti Rae is the Lady Hawks' leading scorer as she hit for double figures in both Lake Howell's games in the Lady Hawk tourney. Jolee Johnson has been the Hawks most versatile player in the early going of the season as she is among the team leaders in scoring, rebounds, assists and steals.

Kirsten Dellinger
...Top notch transfer

Lake Howell's junior varsity goes up against Oviedo Thursday at 6 at Lake Howell High.

Oviedo's Lady Lions, 2-9 overall, open Orange Belt Conference play Thursday at 8 as they host Bishop Moore's Lady Hornets. Leading the way for the Lions is senior center Mary Lokers who is among Seminole County's leaders in scoring and rebounds and junior point guard Natalie Barth, one of the leaders in assists. Oviedo's conference chances got a boost with the return from knee surgery of junior guard-forward Stephanie Nelson, one of the most versatile players in the county.

UCLA Gears Up For Hurricanes, Kosar

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) — What happens when a resistible force meets a movable object?

The answer to that may determine the outcome of today's Fiesta Bowl between Miami and UCLA.

It is generally agreed that the Hurricane offense, which averaged 30.5 points a game under the direction of sophomore quarterback Bernie Kosar, will continue to light up the scoreboard. What remains to be seen is whether the much-maligned UCLA offense can duplicate that feat against a slumping Miami defense.

Fiesta Bowl

The UCLA offense has never been able to shift into high gear this season, scoring just 25 more points than their opponents. The 15th-ranked Bruins have also scored four fewer touchdowns than their opponents and given up more points than they scored through nine games. Placekicker John Lee accounted for 44 percent of UCLA's scoring.

"The key to our football game probably rests somewhere in the area of trying to match some of Miami's offensive power with our own," said Bruin Coach Terry Donahue. "We have to match some of that output and produce some first downs, yardage and points of our own if UCLA is going to stay close and make it a competitive game."

"I don't think you can go in and ask your defense to make it a low-scoring game and say, 'Hey, we're going to play it 7-6 or 10-7 and expect to win.'"

Lee, a second-team All-America who set a new NCAA standard for most field goals in the season and tied the record for most field goals in a game, said the only objective is to beat the 13th-ranked Hurricanes.

"We'll do whatever it takes to win," he said. "It doesn't really matter. If we need 11 field goals, we'll take that."

Meanwhile, Miami Coach Jimmy Johnson still hasn't figured out what caused his defense to give up 89 points in two games. But linebacker Bruce Fleming blames a lapse in concentration.

"We know we have more potential than what we showed the last two ballgames," Fleming said. "We're not changing much at all."

200 Entries Expected For Asphalt World Series

By John Darveau
Special to the Herald

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — The official entry list for the Feb. 8-16, 19th Annual World Series of Asphalt Stock Car Racing at New Smyrna Speedway now includes 135 drivers from all over the United States and Canada and a grand total of well over 200 entries is expected to be reached by race time.

Two of the most recent entries came from drivers who made it to the winner's circle during the 1984 Series.

Mike Eddy of Midland, Mich. won two features, scored four top five finishes and ended up third in the late model point standings behind champion Dick Trickle and speedway regular David Rogers.

Chargin' Charlie Jarzombek of Baiting Hollow, N.Y., who drove the Ernie Wilsberg Cavalier, was among the fastest and most consistent open wheel entries. He took one feature win and finished second to Richie Evans on the first three nights of the Series.

Wiseco Pistons Inc. of Mentor, Ohio became the first firm to join the World Series contingency program, with Kendall Oil, the Skoal brand of U.S. Tobacco and the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company also participating.

For more info, write the speedway at P.O. Box 1097, New Smyrna Beach, Fl. or call (904) 427-4129.

In Saturday's action, current track champion LeRoy Porter drove the Lewis Green Firebird to victory in the second annual "Red Eye" 100 Late Model Championship on Saturday night.

Fastest qualifier and pole sitter Jack Cook, whose crew had the new car dialed-in perfectly, turned fast time and led for the first ten laps, with 1984 ALL-PRO rookie of the year Daniel Keene right on his back bumper.

At that point, an errant lapped car crowded Cook. The pair make contact and Cook hit the wall. Keene then took over the point till lap 35, when he was sidelined by mechanical problems.

Porter, who had been challenging Keene since lap 11, found himself in the lead on lap 36. At half way, Greg Froemming seemed ready to take the leader. But Porter soon pulled away and went on to win.

Froemming was second, followed by Jimmy Sills, Buzzy Berry and Bruce Lawrence who went down a lap after being helped into a spin.

Mark Sills scored his second Thundercar win in a row, with Howard Bragg, Jeff Blehr, Tommy Patterson and consistent "Granny" Tatroe rounding out the top five.

Street Stock State Champion Bill Kinley took another win, besting Lance Smith, Ben Booth, Ted Mitchem and Timmy Todd.

The top five Four Cylinder finishers were Bobby Sears, Richard Newton, Billy Hooven, Curtis Miller and Bill Martin.

Walker Leads 'Cats Past No. 11 Kansas

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Kansas had managed just one victory in the previous 16 meetings with Kentucky but, with Kansas ranked No. 11 nationally this season, this time figured to be different.

It wasn't. The Jayhawks led by 6 points with five minutes remaining, but Kentucky's Kenny Walker keyed a 10-2 run and the Wildcats went on to a 92-89 victory at Freedom Hall. Walker scored a career-high 36-points and hit two free throws with five seconds left to seal the victory.

"I don't think we'll play against many players better than Walker," Kansas Coach Larry Brown said. "Kentucky came out much hungrier and more aggressive."

Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall agreed. "What can you say, I can't believe he played like that for 38 minutes," Hall said. "It was a super game."

The victory, the Wildcats' third straight, improved their record to 4-4. Kansas fell to 8-2 and had a six game winning streak snapped.

In other games, Washington defeated Lamar 64-59, Pacific downed Montana St. 73-70, and Southern U. beat Texas-El Paso 84-75.

At Seattle, Clay Damon's 17-foot jumper broke a 55-55 tie with 2:31 left to give Washington its victory over Lamar. Damon's basket came after forward Paul Fortier, who led the Huskies with 18 points, tied the score. The victory was Washington's 17th straight at home and raised the Huskies' record to 8-2. Lamar fell to 4-6 for the season.

At Stockton, Calif., Andy Franklin equaled his career-high with 27 points and the University of Pacific withstood a late rally to defeat Montana State. The triumph improved the Tigers' record to 4-5 while the Bobcats fell to 3-8 with their fifth loss in a row.

At El Paso, Texas, Byron Gabriel scored 27 points and James Lee had 22, helping Southern University to an upset of UTEP. The Jaguars, 7-2, surged to a 40-27 lead at halftime. UTEP pulled within 71-67 late in the game but could get no closer.

Blair Insurance Agency owner Genie Blair and son Steve, office manager.

Personalized Service At Blair Insurance

Steve Blair, office manager of the Blair Insurance Agency, says the agency's business philosophy goes out on every letter — "Personalized service is our business."

"Our clients are like a family to us," Blair says. That personal touch, combined with the agency's 30 years of experience is what makes the Blair Agency a solid insurance agency its customers can depend on.

Blair has 18 different companies they deal with, he said, enabling the agency to shop around for the best deals, tailored to the needs of their customers.

The agency was founded by Blair's mother, Genie Blair, in Sanford 27 years ago and she remains actively involved in all aspects of its operation. Considered an expert in the insurance field, Mrs. Blair was for a time the only woman licensed in both real estate and insurance in the state early in her career in Sanford.

The Blair Agency with offices at 2510A Oak Ave., Sanford, sells personal injury protection insurance, but recommends liability insurance as well.

Blair said PIP, as it is commonly called, is cheaper insurance but is "self-centered protection which provides nothing for your fellow man."

Liability, which he said provides better coverage for all concerned in an accident situation, is made more affordable at the Blair Agency.

Blair said he also specializes in helping drivers who have trouble getting insurance due to too many tickets or accidents.

"Let me have all the bad drivers in Sanford," he says. "I will help them out."

But drivers with tough records aren't the only ones who will benefit from Blair Agency services. Drivers with stainless histories will like the services and the savings they get at the agency, Blair said.

"They will like dealing with the Blair Agency staff, which is trained and educated to give their clients the best service. And because the agency isn't a high volume agency, Blair says it treats each customer in a special way."

"If I service my accounts honestly and properly, I don't have to worry about money. Being honest is my profit in the community. You're not going to find anybody more honest from 9 to 5 than right here," he says.

Call Blair at 323-7710 or 323-3866 and compare.

Walking Is Fine, But Work Other Muscles, Too

DEAR DR. LAMB — How much exercise should a normal, healthy person do each day? I realize that a person should start with a little and gradually add more, but when should there be leveling off?

Walking is a favorite with me. I am a 45-year-old female and each day I try to walk four to five miles, which takes approximately an hour to an hour and 10 minutes. When I first started, I walked a short distance on flat areas, then added distance and some rather steep hills. How much more distance should I add? Are the hills good or bad? Would it be better if I jogged instead of walked? I really do not wish to build up my leg muscles. I only want to keep them firm.

My upper arms are not so firm. What exercise do you recommend for flabby upper arms? DEAR READER — Congratulations for developing a good walking program. If everyone walked four miles a day, we would have far fewer medical problems. There is no definite answer as to how far you should walk. For most people, four miles a day should be adequate. However, if a person is able to walk farther and wants to lose excess body fat, then the longer the distance, the greater the benefits. How much you should do depends a lot on your goals.

Walking will not build up the trunk muscles or the arm and shoulder muscles. While you get a lot of benefits, including eliminating excess body fat, you cannot strengthen, firm or enlarge muscles you don't use.

Add exercises that use the rest of your body, using small weights or any device that enables you to work your muscles against resistance. Stretching exercises, to maintain your flexibility, should also be a part of your program.

Your leg muscles will not get any larger if you walk still farther. Muscle size depends on contracting against resistance. Repeating the same exercise over and over, as in walking, just increases the muscle's endurance capacity, not its size or strength.

The hills are fine, since you gradually trained to be able to walk up them. That does make one work harder than does walking on the level. That effort will increase the size and strength of the muscles over the front of your thigh, but once you have walked these hills for awhile, there will be no further increase.

You can work your heart a little harder by jogging, but unless that is your goal, it has few advantages over walking. Most people can walk so much longer than they can jog that a long walk is usually more effective in using calories. Jogging a mile will usually use about one-and-one-half times as many calories as walking the same mile. Therefore, walking four miles is more effective in using calories than jogging two-and-a-half miles, and a lot more people can walk four miles than can jog two-and-a-half miles.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby Just to see how your declarer play is going to be in the new year, use your thumbs to cover the East and West cards. Partner's jump to three spades was a limit raise, not completely forcing, but since your hand was worth a sound opening bid, you were happy to bid the game.

The contract is certainly OK and probably hinges upon a heart finesse, but let's see how the defense develops.

The opening lead is the king of diamonds, which holds the trick. Next comes the queen of diamonds, which is overtaken by East with the ace, making your jack good. Now the six of hearts is led by East. What's your pleasure?

If you went up with the heart ace and tried to ditch dummy's other heart on the jack of diamonds, go right to the foot of the class. As you can see if your thumbs have now gotten weary, West started with K-Q doubleton of diamonds and will trump your jack with the lowly six of spades. Subsequently you will have to lose a heart and your contract.

There is really no reason to assume a silly mistake on the part of the opponents. West could certainly have led a small card in diamonds to his partner at trick two if he had one.

Credit East with a good defensive play. He gave you, the declarer, an option in the play that can result in your going set in a contract that will almost always be made when the king of hearts is in the East hand.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY JANUARY 2, 1985

This coming year you are likely to do things on a much grander scale than you have in the past. This will be true of both your business and social interests.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Even though you may be in a gregarious mood today, being at a gathering where there is someone present you don't like could spoil your fun. Your Astro-Graph predictions for the new year can help guide you to happier tomorrows. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your luck and good looks will carry you only so far today, so don't rely too heavily upon them to achieve your aims. You must put out effort.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today, if you discuss something you believe in with an associate whose outlook is limited and negative, it will instill self-doubts in you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Beware of tendencies today to let opportune developments slip through your fingers, either because of your own carelessness or that of an associate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Disagreements will not be resolved today if you close your mind to the other guy's point of view. Remember there are two sides to every coin.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your productivity will suffer and your workload will increase today if you do not use the proper tools and methods where your tasks are concerned.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone you're quite fond of may be a bit temperamental and difficult to get along with today.

Use your charm and humor to smooth over the rough spots.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may be deprived of success today if you lack consistency. Don't call it quits just because the going gets a little tough.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Monitor your conversation carefully today so that you don't unintentionally say something harsh that could offend your listeners. Think before you speak.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Prudence is required today if you hope to get proper mileage out of the resources you have on hand. Avoid temptations to splurge.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You may have to deal with someone who is rather disagreeable today. Don't let his nasty attitude affect yours.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try to schedule your most difficult jobs as early as possible today. Toward the afternoon you may not be as perky or efficient.
