Games to carry rating system

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

By Christmas shopping time, computer and video games are expected to carry ratings symbols alerting parents to any sex, violence or profanity in the hundreds of new games that come on the market each year.

Local retail merchants who deal with video games don't think the ratings will affect expected sales. Some however, believe the system will be.

Kids and parents support ratings

By APRYL KENISTON
Herald Staff Member

SANFORD - Sanford Middle School children and parents interviewed this morning generally supported the planned rating system for video games. Several commented on the amount of violence available on games for home use.

"Some of them are violent," said seventh grader Travis Witz. "I would pay attention to the."

SANFORD - Sanford African American Academy of Arts in association with SeQ Theatre & Repertory, Inc. will present a stage adaptation of James Weldon Johnson's 'Prodigal Son'.

There will be two performances: Saturday, July 30 at 7 p.m. and Sunday, July 31 at 6 p.m. Tickets for each performance will be $5. For information and tickets you can contact the academy at 324-1356 or SeQ at 855-5296 or stop by the Sanford African American Academy of Arts (formerly the Star Theater) at 1017 W. 13th St., Sanford. Organizers say this is a must-see performance!

The main characters in the "Prodigal Son":
● LaDonna Smith (bad angel) is 20 years old and was born in Portsmouth, Va. As a child Donna often acted out commercials in front of a mirror. She's always had an interest in acting, but as a member of the First Baptist Church in New Brunswick, New Jersey she began singing in the choir and at the local high school. Currently a resident of Lake Mary, she will be attending the University of Central Florida this fall.

● Selena Lee (good angel) is a native of Sanford. She is an active member of Greater New Mt. Zion Missionary Baptist Church and

Airport Authority police to fall under city jurisdiction

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - The Sanford Airport Authority police department is being transferred to city control. Three patrolmen will continue at their same airport jobs but be under Sanford police control.

The change, which becomes effective October 1, was approved during a recent Sanford City Commission meeting.

"It's a logical move," said police Chief Ralph Russell. "We carry their law enforcement certification and liability, but have not had direct control."

Russell says the officers will become direct employees of the city's police department, and may have their responsibilities vary at times, but basically continue operating as they have been at the Central Florida Regional Airport.

Regarding the salaries of the three officers, Russell said it will be based on the salary levels of the department, rather than the Airport Authority. "Actually, I believe all three of the officers will have a slight pay increase," he said.

The Airport Authority will assign the use of the existing 4-wheel drive Jeep vehicle, weapons and radios to the Sanford Police Department. Maintenance, fuel and repair costs will be taken over by Shooting probe Cop accused of firing at vice-principal

By J. MARK SAMPFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - An Orlando police officer was relieved of duty pending an internal investigation Thursday after he was accused of shooting at the vice-principal of Sanford Middle School.

William Wynn, 28, was put on leave with pay Thursday until an investigation is completed, said Orlando police spokesman Sgt. Mike Holloway. The investigation is expected to take about two weeks to complete, Holloway said. A criminal investigation is underway by Seminole County sheriff's investigators.

Holloway said Wynn has worked for the Orlando Police Department since July 1991.

Len Sutton, vice-principal of Sanford Middle, reported to Seminole County deputies Wednesday night he was walking through the front lawn of his Coolidge Street home shortly before 11 p.m. when Wynn drove up in a white Camaro.

Two indicted for conspiracy

ORLANDO — A federal grand jury has indicted an Iranian and a Briton on charges of scheming to smuggle 54 U.S. Army Stinger missiles, launchers and aircraft parts to Iran. Jamahid Shafii, 41, and Paul Murphy, 42, were arraigned in federal court Thursday and read the formal four-count indictment. They are being held without bond. Shafii, an Iranian living in Barnaby, England, and Murphy, of Orton Melbourne, England, were charged with conspiring to violate the U.S. Arms Export Control Act. They face prison sentences of up to 25 years and fines of $2.25 million. The two were arrested last Saturday in Orlando by undercover agents for the U.S. Customs Service.

Hastings reprimand recommended

MIAMI — U.S. Rep. Alcee Hastings should be reprimanded for failing to properly represent a client in a Boca Raton property dispute, a Florida Bar committee recommended. The bar's 14-member grievance committee for Dade County found Hastings violated the Bar's rules of conduct, Elena Evans of the Dade Bar said Thursday. She said the committee saw minor misconduct in Hastings' actions, which could result in a reprimand being entered in his file by the Bar's board of governors. Hastings, a former federal judge seeking re-election to Congress, did not return a telephone call Thursday from his Washington office. The grievance committee said Hastings represented Joy Donigan, of Boca Raton, last year. A convicted thief working as a paralegal brought the case to Hastings, the committee said in taking action Monday.

Casino ballot verification

CLEARWATER — With worthless signatures flowing in by the hundreds, weary election workers trying to verify names on casino ballot initiatives thought they'd seen it all. That was until they came across a petition for riverboat gambling signed by Ashley Foitz. Suspicious, elections officials called the number and found out Ashley is the cat owned by Jane and Arthur Foitz. "I have a signed petition from a cat," said Susan Phillips, Pinellas County's supervisor of elections. "Do you love it?" This is already an election year like no other. Never before have county and state elections staffs been as inundated with, quite literally, truckloads of petitions needing to be verified. Elections officials blame much of the problem of forgeries on the practice of paying people to collect signatures.

Air piracy sentencing postponed

MIAMI — A Haitian who claimed he commandeered a plane to Miami because he was a political activist marked for death actually was a messenger who didn't fear for his life, the prosecution said. Sentencing for Woody Marc Edouard was postponed Thursday until Sept. 13 to give defense attorneys time to study prosecution affidavits from people in Haiti, claiming Edouard was a street beggar who eventually became an errand runner for a travel agency. Edouard, 28, had been charged with air piracy in forcing a missionary plane from Miami to Miami Feb. 12, 1993. He pleaded guilty May 23 to interfering with a flight crew. Air piracy carries a mandatory minimum sentence of 20 years in prison. The sentence for the lesser charge would likely be eight to 10 years. Public defenders Paul Rashkind and Miguel Caridad asked U.S. District Judge Federico Moreno for leniency for Edouard because he openly supported exiled President Jean-Bertrand Aristide, Aristide, democratically elected, was overthrown in a 1991 military coup.

Caller claims to have kidnapped children

INVERNESS — Authorities were investigating a dozen reports of mothers getting calls at work from a man who claims he's kidnapped their children and wants to meet in a public place to talk about it. No kidnappings have actually been carried out, said Citrus County sheriff's spokeswoman Gail Tierney. But she said two of the women have gone to meet the man, who never showed up. During the calls, Tierney said, the man calls the women by name and describes their clothing to give them the feeling they're being watched. There could be more victims who have not come forward, the spokeswoman said. Authorities said women who get such calls should not go to a place to meet the man but instead verify the safety of their children and call police.

Widow sues Jamaica tourist board Husband killed by robbers while on vacation

By The Associated Press

ORLANDO — The widow of an Orlando man slain during a robbery in Jamaica is suing that country's tourist board, claiming it deliberately withheld information about crimes against tourists. The ads on TV, newspapers and magazines depict a serene, safe country, said Lisa Myers-Rayam, who is a news commentator for WESH-Channel 2 in Orlando.

Her husband, Lee Norris Rayam, 32, was fatally shot when two men burst into their rented villa in Jamaica's Runaway Bay and tried to rob them last month.

Planning a brief vacation, the Rayams were attracted to that area by the ads depicting beautiful sunsets and sparkling beaches. Lee Rayam was a poet and program director for the Metropolitan Orlando Urban League. He campaigned against violence.

The damage lawsuit filed in U.S. District Court in Miami says the Jamaica tourist board deliberately withheld information about rapes, murders and assaults and implied that Runaway Bay was safe.

The suit, asking for damages of more than $50,000, also names the two murder suspects and the owner of the villa, which said it had security personnel.

Mrs. Myers-Rayam's lawyer, James Dougherty, said Thursday the watchman was not on duty when the slaying took place.

The tourist board replied in a written statement that "Jamaica's current advertising accurately reflects the spirit and diversity of her people, and the Jamaica experience."

It went on to say that "In recognition of its responsibility to provide a safe environment for both its citizens and for visitors to the island, the government is improving security across the island."

Jamaica on Wednesday reported an 8.5 percent drop in tourism in the latest quarter compared to the same time last year. Hoteliers blamed criminal activity and harassment of tourists.

"No monetary amount can be put on his life, but I just can't let them get away with this," Mrs. Myers-Rayam said. "We felt safe. Who thought something like that would happen?"

Judge allows viewing of crime scene photos

By The Associated Press

GAINESVILLE — Allowing gruesome photos of five slain college students to be viewed by the media and public strikes a balance between the public's right to know and the victims' families right to privacy, attorneys said.

"What cannot be described is the evil these pictures project," Will Irby, a spokesman for the State Attorney's Office, said Thursday.

Circuit Judge Stan R. Morris issued an order Wednesday allowing the media and public to look at the hundreds of photographs and videotapes taken by investigators in the August 1990 slayings. Morris' order, however, prohibits the removal or copying of the photographs for publication.

Irby said the ruling "gives balance" between the public's right to know and the family members' concerns about exploitation of the pictures of the nude and mutilated bodies.

The state attorney is reviewing the decision and its impact. Irby said. "After an initial reading, he is satisfied with the decision."

David Bralow, with Holland and Knight in Tampa, who represents several media organizations, said Morris' decision was appropriate.

"I think it is the right result for the right reason," said Bralow. Bralow, however, said he was concerned with the judge extending privacy rights to the families of murder victims. He said it marked the first time it had been done in Florida and could set a precedent.

Sandra Chance, assistant director of the Brechner Center for Freedom of Information at the University of Florida, said Morris carefully weighed all the issues before issuing his opinion.

"I think it is a well-reasoned decision that balances the public's right to know and the victims and the victims' families right to privacy," she said.

"This was more of an issue of the public's right to know rather than the media's right to publish," she said, adding that none of the media who sought access wanted to publish the grisly photographs.

The privacy issue, she said, was "uncharted waters."

The judge's order is in response to a request by the victims' families to seal the photographs from public scrutiny, which he denied.

Buddy Irby, clerk of the Circuit Court, said Thursday that several people, including media and the public, had made appointments to view the photographs, which are in nine large photo albums.

Irby said no one had asked to see the crime scene videotapes.

Former Sanford resident Bob Smith (standing) talks to Margaret Leston (seated, left) and her mother, Stella Porman while reminiscing about area landmarks. Smith said he remembers the area pictured (Memorial Park) as a sandshell. This is the first time Smith has been back to Sanford since he moved to Salt Lake City thirty years ago.

School board: controversial policy here to stay

By The Associated Press

TAVARES — The Lake County School Board is ignoring state education Commissioner Doug Jamerson's suggestion that the county reconsider its policy of teaching that America's culture is superior to all others.

Jamerson wrote board chairwoman Pat Hart last month, saying the county should "modify" the policy because it violates state law.

"That's his opinion," said board attorney Dick Langley.

"There are many other opinions out there. Jamerson's is no more weighty than the opinion of the woman in the supermarket."

"We are the Lake County School Board," Langley said. "We are not subject to what Commissioner Jamerson thinks. I think it's all a bunch of hokey."

Hart was on vacation Thursday and could not be reached for comment.

When chairman of the House Education Committee, Jamerson was the strongest proponent the state's multiculturalism act, which requires Florida schools to teach students about different cultures. The measure's preamble says children should be taught that no one culture is superior to any other.

It's the law, not the preamble, that counts, Langley argued.

Lake teaches its students about other cultures. What's generated debate is a policy passed 3-2 earlier this year that requires teachers to tell students that American brand of capitalism, patriotism, republicanism and other values "are superior to other foreign or historic cultures."

Jamerson expected a vitriolic response from the county, said spokesman John Van Gleason.

The education department will wait for a lawsuit filed by the Lake County Education Association to run its course before deciding on the next step, Gleason said.

The lawsuit wants the policy thrown out and charges it violates state laws and the First Amendment.

Vehicular burglary

Lorenzo Brundidge, 33, 2729 W. 23rd St., Sanford, was arrested on vehicular burglary and resisting arrested charges by Sanford police early Monday morning. A policeman reported seeing a man identified as Brundidge in a van parked at West Second Street at 2:41 a.m. The man ran before he was captured at Fourth Street and Cedar Avenue, the policeman reported.

Vending machine case

Brian Matthew Richard, 19, 380 Morning Glory Drive, Lake Mary, was arrested Wednesday night on vending machine theft charges. An Altamonte Springs policeman reported seeing Richard place a tool in the coin slot of a vending machine in front of an East Altamonte Drive grocery store and a moment later, seeing coins spilling out. Richard was held on charges of petit theft and theft from a coin-operated vending machine. Three juveniles, aged 16 and 17, were taken to the Juvenile Detention Center, said police spokesman Officer Stan Phipps.

Drunken driving charge

Garin Wallace Williamson, 25, 874 Lake Marion, Lake Mary, was arrested on a drunken driving charge by a Winter Springs policeman following a traffic stop on State Road 434.

Grand theft charges

Scott "Muddskipper" Davidson, 20, 198 Overstreet Ave., Longwood, was arrested on grand theft and auto burglary charges by Seminole County deputies Wednesday. An investigator reported four tires and rims and a car antenna were reported stolen in Casselberry June 30. A witness obtained a tag number from a suspicious vehicle in the area, which was registered to Davidson's vehicle. On July 1, the investigator reported interviewing Davidson and asked about the late-model tires and rims on his older-model vehicle. Davidson reported he got them from a person known only as "Stumpjumper." After the rims were identified by the victim, Davidson was arrested. Davidson was also charged with perjury during an official investigation.

Beer bottle is deadly missile

Antonio Deon Williams, 21, 1501 Southwest Road, Sanford, was arrested Wednesday on two counts of throwing a deadly missile into an occupied dwelling and one domestic violence charge of aggravated assault. A woman reported Williams threw a quart beer bottle into her residence at 5:30 a.m. Wednesday while the woman and her two children were inside. Four hours later, the woman reported Williams chased her with a pole and threw a rock into her residence.

Warrant arrests made

Wanted persons taken into custody:
 ● Christopher Glenn Enloe, 19, 401 Magnolia Ave., Sanford; on two violation of community control charges stemming from a conviction for vehicular burglary and attempted robbery.
 ● Terry Dale Pruitt, 37, 701 Holbrook Circle, Lake Mary; on a Brevard County probation violation charge for a worthless check conviction.
 ● Gregory Jeffery Williams, 39, 612 E. 11th St., Sanford; on a theft probation violation charge.
 ● Jason Ward Dunn, 22, 900 Paola Road, Lake Mary; on a drunken driving probation violation charge.

Reports to Seminole County deputies

● 300 block Sandtrap Cove near Longwood; a wallet containing $450 was reported taken from a 79-year-old woman's residence sometime between 10 a.m. July 22 and noon July 27.
Violence
 ● A Sanford woman report she was sexually assaulted by three men in Midway Saturday afternoon. The woman reported she and a friend were visiting relatives at 4:30 p.m. when they were approached by the men and invited to a Church Street residence. Once there, then men started making advances to her and forced her into a bedroom. There, they removed her clothing and took turns performing sexual acts on her while the other two held her down. The woman said she was then permitted to dress and leave at 5 p.m. The woman's friend reported she called out to her, but got no response.

Reports to Sanford police

Violence
 ● The clerk of the Lil Champ store, 7499 State Road 427, reported he was cut by a razor-wielding robber Wednesday night. The man reported a man entered the store at 9:11 p.m. and showing a razor-type knife, demanded money. The clerk reported he tossed a money bag containing an unknown amount of cash at the man, but the man swung the razor at him, cutting his arm. The attacker was described as hispanic, five feet, six inches tall, weighing 150 lbs., in his late 20s and wearing a baggie hooded sweatshirt and pants and sunglasses.

Burglaries and thefts
 ● 100 block Palm Springs Drive near Longwood; golf clubs and equipment valued at $865 reported taken sometime between 6 p.m. July 20 and 10 p.m. July 22.
 ● Big Tree Park near Longwood; amplifier valued at $950 reported taken from a vehicle sometime Sunday between 6 a.m. and 5:15 p.m.

● Lake Jennie Apartments; landscaping equipment valued at $879 reported taken sometime between 7 p.m. Friday and 8:30 a.m. Monday.

● Groveview Apartments; video tape recorder and answering machine valued at $450 reported taken sometime between 7 p.m. Sunday and 4 p.m. Monday.
 ● Cumberland Farms, 3100 S. Sanford Ave.; an unknown quantity of cigarettes reported taken sometime Tuesday between 1 a.m. and 4:58 a.m.

● 400 block South Elliott Avenue; television and other belongings valued at $383 reported taken sometime between 10 p.m. Monday and 1:30 a.m. Tuesday while a woman was in the residence.

● Southern Self-Storage, 2904 S. French Ave.; a "large amount" of tools reported taken from a Snap-On Tool company truck sometime between 5:30 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. Wednesday.

● Trinity United Methodist Church, 526 Sanford Ave.; public address equipment valued at $300 reported taken sometime between July 22 and 2:47 p.m. Wednesday. Two large kitchen knives were left on a counter.

Other
 ● A Geneva woman filed a complaint against the federal government and National Aeronautics and Space Administration for the noise caused by the space shuttle's landing at 6:38 a.m. Saturday.

Simpson couldn't recall injury

By LINDA DEUTSCH
 AP Special Correspondent

LOS ANGELES — The day after his ex-wife and her friend were stabbed to death, O.J. Simpson told police he couldn't remember how he injured his left hand, according to grand jury testimony reported today by a legal newspaper.

The story in the Los Angeles Daily Journal came as Simpson's lawyers headed back to court, seeking records on everything from unsolved murders to dog bites.

Simpson's lifelong friend and former teammate, Al "A.C." Cowling, also faced a court hearing today. Prosecutors have postponed a decision on whether to charge him with helping Simpson attempt to flee murder charges.

Simpson has pleaded innocent to charges he murdered Nicole Brown Simpson, 35, and Ronald Goldman, 25, on June 12.

According to today's Journal story, Detective Phillip Vannatter told a grand jury that police noticed a large cut on the middle finger of Simpson's left hand when they spoke with him the day after the killings.

Simpson told police "he might have injured it sometime that evening while he was preparing for his trip" to Chicago, Vannatter said, according to a secret grand jury transcript read by a Journal reporter.

"His explanation was that he was very busy and he was rushing around and that he must have injured it, but he really didn't know how he had done that."

Simpson's lawyers said he cut his hand breaking a glass in a Chicago hotel room when he was informed of the murders. Simpson told police on June 13 that he probably injured his hand at his Brentwood estate and reinjured it in Chicago, Vannatter said.

On Thursday, samples of Simpson's blood were split for genetic testing, with 10 percent set aside. The defense hopes to use these "essentially" for independent tests. Prosecutors say they need the samples for additional tests. The defense also wants a wide range of information, including police reports of prowlers or burglaries near Ms. Simpson's condominium in 1994, computer matches of all unidentified fingerprints found at the crime scene, and police reports of similar unsolved murders in California in the past year.

Simpson's attorney Robert Shapiro even sought records of emergency room visits for cuts or dog bites during the 24 hours following the murders, on the chance that Ms. Simpson's dog may have bitten the killer.

Prosecutors have agreed only to supply the fingerprint information. They call the other requests too broad and unsubstantiated.

Cowling remained free on $250,000 bail today but a judge was expected to cancel the bail and order his money returned, said his attorney, Donald Re.

Re has said Cowling wasn't helping Simpson flee but rather trying to talk him out of suicide.

Cowling visited Simpson in jail for about two hours Thursday. He refused to comment afterward.

Choosing your neighborhood

People have a right to life, liberty and happiness. There is no doubt about this. In many cases, happiness includes peace and quiet, relaxation or comfortable living.

There are times however, when these freedoms appear to be taken away. No one wants to put up with the smells if they live near a pulp mill or garbage dump. No one wants the noise of large jetliners taking off from an airport. No one wants the sound of gunfire at all hours of the day and evening when there is a gun range near their home.

We could also look at heavy traffic passing a person's home on major roadways. This is unsafe for children, and uncomfortable for residents trying to enter or exit from their driveways.

If any of these situations sound familiar, it is not surprising.

There has been a situation in northern Seminole County in the past few years when a proposal to build a tire burning plant was rejected because citizens turned out to object. They didn't want the possibility of odors or additional traffic in their neighborhood.

People who are this concerned that they take appropriate action are to be commended.

On the other side of the coin however, are people who purposely move next to a facility with noise or odors, then make their complaints. They knew, or should have been told by their real estate agent, that these facilities are nearby.

The Central Florida Regional Airport is working hard to continue being a profitable operation. Yet there are people who know the airport was there, but moved into the neighborhood anyway. Some of these people are now trying to completely shut down the airport.

We suggest people looking for a home should take a closer look at the surrounding area. Buying because the price is low may be a sign that the home has been difficult to sell.

Also look at the potential for future developments around the proposed new home.

There are many excellent residential communities around Sanford, Lake Mary and Longwood where people can be relatively assured of a peaceful future. There are some places however, where selecting a home can only lead to troubles.

We urge people to be more selective in buying a home. We urge real estate agents to explain any potential problems before a sale is made.

After you move in, if someone tries to build a pulp plant next to your house, complain and fight it. It's the thing to do.

Clinton's health care bill: DOA

Like the apocryphal feline with nine lives, Bill Clinton will have escaped another political demise if any "reasonable facsimile" of his health care plan passes.

The prognosis isn't good. Right now the plan is in intensive care, hooked up to an IV and being administered oxygen every time a congressional opponent calls a press conference.

If one uses Clinton's qualifying phrase for welfare reform, "welfare as we know it," then health care reform, "as Clinton knows it," will not be enacted.

The entire health care debate has been reduced to a series of numbers -- 256, 218, 187, 90, 70 and 35. Algebra defines the politics of health care.

Because 187 Republicans are expected to unanimously oppose any Democratic version of the health plan, the House leadership is reduced to working only the 256 Democrats in order to get the majority of 218 to pass a bill.

But as that irreverent Gaelic wag, Mr. Dooley, once mused, "The Democratic party ain't on speakin' terms with itself."

Oh, they speak to each other all right, especially in bars and at bacchanalian activities.

But three groups of 90, 70 and 35 Democrats are united in their oppositions to a health plan that does not satisfy their various agendas. The group of 90 wants a "single-payer" plan modeled after the Canadian national health insurance program in which the federal government pays everybody's health bills. A second group of 70 Democrats will vote against any bill that does not include abortion services. And a third group of 35 Democrats will vote against the bill if it does cover abortion services.

Even the polls can't decide where the American people stand. Two Tuesdays ago, the USA Today/CNN/Gallup poll reported that 55 percent of Americans were opposed to health care reform. Last Wednesday, the New York Times/CBS News poll reported that 79 percent of the American people believe it is "very important" that Clinton's universal coverage plan is passed.

Business can't even get its economic act together. The Business Roundtable, comprised of leaders of 200 of the nation's largest businesses, opposes any system that would give any tax breaks or economic advantages to small businesses.

But like the tread of mighty armies, health care reform is an idea whose time has come.

It may surprise some of you -- as it did me -- to know that the American Civil Liberties Union defines health care as a civil liberty that should not be denied to anyone.

Responding to the success of the anti-abortion lobby in squelching debate on the merits of the full range of reproductive health services -- including abortion -- the ACLU contends that the Health Care Reform Bill of Rights is as indigenous to democracy as the rights to freedom of speech and assembly and freedom of religion.

What President Clinton has got to decide -- which he seems congenitally unable to do in the Bosnia and Haiti crises -- is precisely where he stands and how much he is prepared to give away in order to get a health care bill passed.

Algebra defines the politics of health care.

DONNA BRITT

Doing the violin thing her way

"I LOVE YOU, KAREN!"

The voice -- strong, clearly male -- wasn't supposed to be shouting that. It wasn't supposed to be shouting, period. This was, after all, a concert featuring popular composer-keyboardist Yanni. That means it was a New Age-fusion-neoclassical sort of shindig, where audience members are expected to signal their enjoyment with slight nods and subdued smiles.

If there was screaming, it was supposed to be for Yanni, the charismatic Greek artist with the distinctive pageboy. Not for some backup artist in the orchestra.

Or so I thought until I saw Karen Briggs perform here the other day.

She too, has live-wire hair -- Tootsie-Roll dreadlocks that bounce every which way as her head dips and sways over her violin. Did I mention the hips? The full, non-aerobized, black-woman hips that Briggs can't resist swaying naughtily -- for a violinist, anyway -- in the midst of her solo? Afterward, she looks thrilled and embarrassed, like an impleh second-grader relishing classmates' laughter while trying to look contrite.

No wonder some folks can't help screaming.

"I think I'm one of those adult children who craves attention," confesses Briggs, 30, whose hot-pink performance gown underscored the point. A soloist with Yanni's touring symphony for two years, Briggs enjoys feeling "some sort of power in manipulating how people respond to the violin ... whether they'll sit there like it's a symphony concert or whether they're going to make some noise."

Like thousands of African American artists succeeding in genres other than pop, jazz, blues, R&B and rap -- the traditional "black" slots -- Briggs has for years been making a noteworthy noise. She has challenged stereotypes with her playing -- deemed "breathtaking" in a recent Washington Post review -- since she was a Portsmouth, Va., teen.

She'd moved to Virginia from her New York City birthplace at age 13 because her parents thought it would be a better place to bring up children. "Of course I felt like a victim in the matter," she says. Not surprisingly for a child whose father, grandfather, great-grandfather and great-great-grandfather were musicians, Briggs found solace in the school orchestra. Her music teacher Jerlene Harding, who showed junior high schoolers that band didn't have to be boring.

"Not only did she give us Bach and Beethoven, but Barry White and The Spinners, what we listened to on the radio," says Briggs. "We did gospel, jazz, classical, classic pop."

So why did Briggs choose the violin?

"It was the lightest instrument to carry -- I had a long way to walk to school."

She started loving the violin when she realized she had "God-given capabilities ... a natural sense of intonation ... I remember the sounds of notes. ... If you dropped a spoon or a plate, I'd identify it."

It's heartbreaking, she says, that school budget cuts in many places have destroyed the programs that gave her the opportunity to play. Briggs' long-term goal: "To teach what I've learned ... pass on the information."

After years of playing distinctively -- and winning on TV's "Showtime at the Apollo" four weeks straight -- she met Yanni through singer Patrice Rushen, whose husband is the Grammy-nominated composer's road manager.

What's best about playing with Yanni, whom she describes as "very Greek, very proud of it," is the "validation."

"I didn't know in the beginning that there were people who played outside the tradition. I was five years into it before I picked up an album by (jazz violinist) Noel Pointer. ... Some orchestras want someone who will put on a uniform and play like everyone else. I never could."

While some of Yanni's compositions are musically notated she says, "a lot of times, he just explains it." That's fine with Briggs, whose style blends free-spirited soul with a technician's exactness, resulting in a sort of prim abandonment when she plays.

Her whole life springs from the strings. As an African American growing up in New York, "I was exposed to many cultures ... and I represent them all when I perform. ... There's country and western in there, the Midwest, the Latino, the funk, the jazz ... and dance. I'm always dancing."

Recently, Briggs -- who's single despite admirers like the fan who sent her both chocolate roses and real ones -- awoke to find her whole house dancing. But surely this flexible woman didn't let a little thing like the Jan. 17 Los Angeles earthquake get to her?

Absolutely. "I'm moving! Right after this tour," she says. "I'm not going to argue with God. ... If he's going to have earthquakes, fine. I'm just not going to be there."

Where she will be is near a stage where she can do the violin thing her way. Frankly, she says, "I wouldn't be caught doing anything else."

No wonder some folks can't help screaming.

Treated sewage is radioactive

WASHINGTON -- North Korea may pose the biggest threat to nuclear proliferation worldwide, but many Americans may have a nuclear menace in their own neighborhoods.

Government regulators have been monitoring radioactive sludge and ash from sewage treatment plants -- which get recycled and used in baseball diamonds, bricks and garden fertilizer. The radioactive material is all legally released and, where it has been detected, it shows up in concentrated amounts.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission maintains that the ash from sewage treatment plants poses "no health or safety risks to treatment plant workers or to the public." But a recent General Accounting Office investigation found that "the full extent of the radioactive contamination of sewage sludge, ash and related by-products nationwide is unknown."

Most of the radioactive material comes from waste generated by hospitals, manufacturers and laundries that these industries are simply allowed to flush away. GAO investigators say these practices have contaminated at least nine sewage treatment plants in the last decade. Neither NRC nor the Environmental Protection Agency require regular testing for radioactive contamination of sewage treatment plants that receive radioactive material. Of the 1,100 NRC licenses permitted to discharge radioactive waste through their sewage, only 15 have ever been inspected to ensure environmental compliance.

NRC has assumed that the radioactive material from these sources would disperse through the large amounts of water processed by sewage treatment plants. Instead, the contaminants settle into the sludge left over after the treatment process, and they are further concentrated when the sludge is burned to ash. A 1991 NRC report concluded that the radioactive contamination of sewage treatment plants "may not be trivial" and required further study.

Twenty-one sewage treatment plants contacted by the GAO investigators were "generally" unaware of the radiation risk, and half were reusing the ash for fertilization, recreational or construction purposes. Ash from sewage treatment plants is a primary ingredient in the lawn and garden fertilizer milorganite.

"Potentially contaminated sewage sludge and ash can find its way into unregulated landfills, on farmer's fields, or even in our backyard garden as fertilizer," says Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, chairman of the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee. "Sewage treatment plant workers could be exposed to low levels of radioactivity over a period of years.... It is our responsibility to fully explore this situation."

In sludge and ash at Cleveland's Southerly sewage treatment plant in 1991, NRC investigators found cobalt-60, a radioactive material commonly used to treat cancer patients, at levels 20 times higher than normal. "The most likely source of the radioactive material found," GAO's investigators wrote, "was an NRC licensee that discharged waste into the sewer lines that are connected to the treatment plant." Discharges from the licensee did not exceed NRC limits, according to the investigators.

Customers of the Southerly plant have already paid nearly $1.5 million for a security fence around the contaminated material and on-site cleanup and containment. If NRC or the state government requires off-site disposal of the material, cleanup costs could top $3 billion.

Many Americans may have a nuclear menace in their own neighborhoods.

helpful to parents. "This is definitely going to be helpful to parents," said the Rev. Jim Cornell of the First Baptist Church in Sanford. "For anyone who has family values, this will be a big help in determining the level of the various games. It's like movie ratings where parent's recommend their children not go to those with severe violence or sex ratings."

Rev. Cornell suggested however, that the various ratings be clearly identified, rather than some of the confusion caused by certain movie rating systems.

David Mayr, a manager at the Lake Mary Kmart store, said the rating system may help quality tapes easier. "People who come in to purchase games will be much more able to identify them," he said, "but I don't believe it is going to make any difference in who buys what kind of video game."

Mayr said most people who are not familiar with specific types of video games will ask the clerk for information. "Our clerks have a good knowledge of the various games, and generally help people in making their purchases."

Theresa Trotter, manager of the Sanford Wal-Mart store agreed that the labeling will not make any changes. "It may be of help to parents who buy video games for the younger children," she said. Regarding older children and adults however, she indicated that the labeling will make the tapes easier to identify for those who may be looking for violence.

Store and shop owners have no choice in the labeling. The identification system is being set up by the computer game and video game industry itself, under pressure from Congress and the public.

Details of the ratings systems, made available in advance to The Associated Press, were being unveiled today at a hearing of the Senate Government Affairs regulation and information subcommittee.

Computer games come on floppy disks or CD-ROMs — compact discs that look like music CDs — that are inserted into a computer. Video games include both those played on TV sets and portable devices.

Ratings symbols for the computer games industry depict game content in three areas: violence, sex and strong language. Product labels list each category, accompanied by an icon.

Violence is depicted by a bomb, nudity or sex by an eye peeping through a hand and strong language by an exclamation point.

The degree of the potentially offensive content is given a rating of 1 to 4, with 1 being the most benign. This appears on the label as a thermometer.

Labels also carry a description of the content in each of the three categories. For instance, a 2 rating for violent content, would say "destruction of living things." A 4 rating would say "wanton or gratuitous violence; torture; sex crimes."

Video games would also be labeled for age appropriateness. The categories are: early childhood, 3 and up; kids to adults, 6 and up; teen, 13 and up; mature, 17 and up; and adults only, 18 and older. A game labeled "mature," for instance, would carry an "M."

Content descriptions cover four areas: violence, sex, language and "other," which could, for instance, say that the game depicted gambling. A game featuring mobsters gunning down people, would carry the tag: "realistic violence."

Both systems also identify games with no offensive content.

"I think parents will get a very clear picture of the product they are picking up at a store and whether they want to buy it or not based on the label," said Arthur Pober, coordinator of the video games ratings system.

Pober said the video games industry organized focus groups, composed of consumers, to test different ratings symbols.

"We tried to combine a very understandable icon with reliable information about content," he said.

About 2,000 new computer and video games come on the market each year. Neither industry has plans to go back and rate existing games, but individual companies may choose to do so.

The Software Publishers Association, the leading trade group of the personal computer software industry, said 3,000 companies are backing its computer games ratings system.

The Interactive Digital Software Association, responsible for the video games rating system, represents makers of both game devices and cartridges and other software.

Both industry groups are working with retailers to get them to carry posters and pamphlets about the ratings criteria. Wal-Mart Stores Inc., Toys R Us Inc. and Babbage's Inc. have said they will carry only rated games.

Information from Associated Press is contained in this report.

Cops say clerk confessed to two store robberies

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — City police arrested a convenience store clerk for grand theft and making a false police report Thursday night after they said the clerk confessed he took money during two alleged robberies.

James J. Moir Jr., 51, 714 Baywood Drive, Sanford faces two counts of grand theft and two counts of making false police reports, according to Sanford Police Commander Dennis Whitmire.

Moir was working as the clerk at the Lil' Champ Store, 7499 N. County Road 427 on the evenings of June 25 and July 27 when he reported he was robbed by different men of undetermined amounts of cash.

Moir claimed he was threatened with a pistol in the first incident and cut on the arm in the second.

Whitmire said investigator Terry Mullins questioned Moir after learning the store security camera was not activated in either incident.

In addition, Sanford police investigator Arthur Barnes was sitting at a nearby traffic signal at the time Moir claimed the suspect in the second robbery was running from the store. Barnes did not see anyone leave the store, Whitmire said.

After being read his rights, and being questioned about facts in the case, Whitmire said Moir confessed to cutting himself. He told police took the money to help his family. Moir will be 52 on Sunday.

ratings. I'd look for the ones that were less violent."

Seventh grader Brandon Bates agreed. "I would pay attention and look for what I like, but it's a pretty good idea."

Walter Millie, a sixth grader said, "My grandma likes to check video games that I buy. A lot of the games are too violent and the kids might try to do this to other kids."

Several adults expressed caution, but agreed that the rating system may be helpful.

"I hope they do it fairly," said Justino Rolon. "Some of them are really bad. I would look for the rating."

Jimmy Singletary said, "I would probably use the rating system to tell what kind of game it was."

"I think that because there's such violence on TV and children are de-sensitized, ratings are only as good as the people who are rating them," observed Allen Cooper.

Jaye Harden commented not only on buying video games, but what she sees as her overall responsibility. "As a parent, I love to monitor what my kids watch, what they do, and where they go," she said.

Sanford Middle School Principal Bill Moore commented, "The industry needs to help parents out. I think it's an excellent idea. I think the parents have to accept the responsibility of monitoring and previewing what their kids are doing."

The new rating system, imposed by the video and cassette game companies themselves, is expected to be in use within a few months, in time for the beginning of holiday shopping.

Sutton reported Wynn ordered him to stay away from his girlfriend. Wanting to avoid a confrontation, Sutton said he kept walking towards the front door of his home, but reported Wynn threatened to "bust a cap." Sutton said he continued to walk towards the front door of his home when he heard a gunshot and felt something strike his leg.

Investigators report finding a spent 9 mm shell casing in the roadway in front of Sutton's home. There was also what investigators believe, was a bullet impact point by Sutton's door, with bits of lead and brick fragments on the ground underneath. Investigators don't know what hit Sutton's leg, but reported it did not need medical treatment.

Sutton told a sheriff's investigator he was acquainted with the woman and had recently given her a card. Sutton reported he considered the woman a friend.

Officers

In addition to their regular duties, the officers will also handle needed services in Checkpoint Security Screening for commercial airline passenger services.

With the change in police supervision from the airport to the city, the Airport Authority will pay the city $35,578.75 every quarter during the fiscal year beginning on October 1st.

The amount is to be examined and updated annually in March.

Although the three patrolmen will be under the command and control of the police department, while at locations within the airport operations area, and during any airfield emergencies, airport management will have general control and directive responsibility for the men, through the on-duty police commander.

Top reasons to hate your boss

By LARRY McSHANE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — This is all you need to know about the "drabs" in the United States of America: She "draws childish pictures of people she fires, tapes them to their empty chair and makes fun of them."

An entry like this made it easy to select the 1994 winner in Jim Miller's second annual hunt for the country's most despicable boss. Miller, who wrote the management how-to book "The Corporate Coach," invited American workers to tell him about their bosses.

Boy, did they. After sifting through 1,028 entries, the winner emerged — an employee who remains an underling of her cruel leader and is understandably writing anonymously.

"I think she's the worst boss in the world, I really do," said the winner, who is surreptitiously seeking a new job. "I didn't get everything down that I'd like to say — just the most important about what a rotten person she is."

Some of her boss' attributes, which were listed in a Top 21 format when a Top 10 proved insufficient:

- "She has the tongue of a viper, dripping with venom."
- "Fires people on Christmas Eve."
- "Waits until people are due raises, then fires them."

For enduring her job beneath Ms. Scrooge, the winning entrant has earned a trip for two to Hawaii worth $6,000. "This is the best thing in the world, for me to just laugh with people about her," the winner said by telephone.

Miller also selected the best boss in America from a much smaller pool of entries (the worst-boss folks outnumbered the best-boss bunch 4-1).

The best boss — Arthur Dunn, who works for Motorola in Massachusetts — was described as a patient listener, fair, farighted, intelligent ... you get the idea.

The employee who nominated him, Jim Limperick of Seekonk, Mass., also collected a two-week Hawaiian vacation.

Senate explores suicide of White House lawyer

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Senate is kicking off its Whitewater hearings by exploring a topic that was taboo for the House: the suicide of White House lawyer Vincent Foster.

After opening statements today, the Senate Banking Committee is hearing from police and forensic experts who ruled that Foster — who handled Whitewater legal matters for the president — took his own life.

The House Banking Committee conducted its second Whitewater hearing Thursday. It produced little new information, but was extraordinary for the 10 top White House aides who sat together at the witness table.

Over a span of 12 hours, Republicans insinuated these top-echelon officials — and an earlier witness, former White House Counsel Bernard Nussbaum — acted improperly once they learned that President Clinton's former land venture was under investigation.

Counselor to the President Mack McLarty summed up their response: "Nothing happened."

The House committee is confining its hearings to the way White House and Treasury Department officials reacted to the Resolution Trust Corp. investigation from last fall through this March.

The House panel, on a party-line vote Tuesday, heeded the appeal from Foster's family to let the suicide question rest. The family called for an end to the "mean-spirited partisanship" of some Republicans and talk show hosts who questioned the findings.

David Carle, spokesman for the Senate committee's Democrats, said, "The committee felt bound by the Senate resolution, which explicitly told it to look into this aspect."

Foster was found dead of a gunshot wound

July 20, 1993, in a Virginia park outside Washington.

Even though there was a bipartisan decision to review the matter, Republicans — because of the attacks on the findings — face the greater danger of political backlash if the public thinks that consideration of this matter is unseemly.

During Tuesday's House hearing, Republicans attacked on a broad front.

They insinuated that White House lawyers were worried that they broke the law by passing on to the president the information they received from Treasury Department officials about the RTC investigation.

The lawyers were so concerned, the Republicans said, that they launched a frantic research effort.

White House associate counsel Neil Eggleston, who conducted the research, said he was only being cautious.

"What I was trying to do, was to be a good staff person and protect my president and make sure, ... go the extra mile" to guard against any improper actions, he said. Eggleston said that he found nothing wrong in informing Clinton about an RTC request for a criminal investigation — and that the president had to know in order to deal with press leaks about the probe.

Republicans read to Harold Ickes, Clinton's deputy chief of staff, items from a Treasury Department official's diary that said White House officials pressured the man in ultimate charge of the probe not to remove himself from the investigation.

That man, Roger C. Altman, was an old friend of Clinton and was wrestling with the recusal last February.

"I'm saying, do you believe that there was substantial pressure, as I do, put on him not to recuse himself?" asked Rep. Doug Bereuter, R-Neb.

Drug manufacturer ordered to recall lots of drugs, halt others

By The Associated Press

NEWARK, N.J. — Biocraft Laboratories Inc., one of the nation's largest manufacturers of generic drugs, agreed Thursday to recall the lots of nine drugs and stop making five others.

Under a consent decree filed in federal court, the company will stop making the drugs — antibiotics, heart medications, and others — until an outside expert certifies they are being made in accordance with Federal Drug Administration guidelines.

Biocraft also must have an expert certify all its remaining drugs. If Biocraft does not meet any requirements, it will have to stop making the drug in question, the U.S. Justice Department said.

The agreement resolves a complaint filed by the Justice Department on July 21 accusing Biocraft of violating federal standards for testing, record-keeping, manufacturing and quality control.

The drugs lots being recalled include commonly prescribed antibiotics: liquid amoxicillin for humans and for veterinary use, amoxicillin chewable tablets, cephalixin and liquid ampicillin.

A night production manager at Biocraft, based in Fair Lawn, N.J., said no one would be available to comment before Friday morning.

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

No-Tap at Bowl America

SANFORD — The weekly No-Tap Tournament at Bowl America-Sanford is tonight at 9:30 p.m. Strikes are awarded when a bowler knocks down nine or 10 pins. Play is handicapped as follows: bowlers with averages under 140 begin with strikes in the first three frames; 140-159, strikes in the first two frames; 160-179, a strike in the first frame; 180 and over, no strikes. All players bowl three games of qualifying, the top 50 percent bowling a fourth game to decide the cash winners (hopefully down to six places), including the top three bowlers who will compete in a TV-style roll-off for the top money. The entry fee is $15, which will include two strikepots that will be awarded. For more information, call 322-7542.

Last day for YMCA basketball

LAKE MARY — The Seminole Family YMCA is will be accepting registrations through July 30 for its adult 3-on-3 basketball league. The league will play on Sunday nights from Aug. 7 through Oct. 2 in Seminole County high school gyms. There will be a single-elimination tournament at the end of the season. Players may sign as a team ($160) or as individuals ($37.50 for YMCA members, $47.50 for non-members) and be assigned to a team. Rosters are limited to six players. For more information or to register, stop by the YMCA, 665 Longwood-Lake Mary Road, or call Mike Aldrich, 321-8944.

Oviedo LL fall registration

OVIDEO — The final day of Fall Ball registration will be held tomorrow, July 30, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the King Street concession stand. The 10-game season will run from August 29 through October 8. For more info call John Hickey at 677-4485.

Oviedo Little League meeting

OVIDEO — The annual awards meeting and election will be held on Sunday, August 7, at the Oviedo High School auditorium. The awards presentation will be at 2 p.m. with the business meeting and election at 5 p.m. Please attend to congratulate the 1994 Top Teams and All-Stars; and to participate in the election of your next Board of Directors. If you cannot attend the election and would like an absentee ballot, please call John Hickey at 677-4485 prior to July 30.

SYFA registration available

SANFORD — The Sanford Youth Football Association will be registering boys and girls for its football and cheerleading programs every Saturday through August 6 at the lot on U.S. 17-92 across from the Sanford Middle School. Registration will be available between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. each Saturday. Boys and girls between the ages of 7 and 15 are eligible. For info, call Tommie Thompson, 321-2012.

Girls' softball clinic

SANFORD — The Sanford Recreation & Parks Department announces a weekly softball clinic open to girls ages eight to 16 on Saturdays from June 18 through August 6 from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. at Lakeside Field in Fort Mellon Park. Cost is $10 and will focus on the fundamentals; such as fielding, batting and pitching. For more information, call 330-5697.

O'Cube edge Suns

ORLANDO — Scott Tedder's sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth inning gave the Orlando Cubs a 3-2 win over the Jacksonville Suns. The ninth inning began with singles by Pedro Valdes and Rudy Gomes. The runners moved up on a Chris Petersen sacrifice. Brant Brown was intentionally walked to load the bases; Tedder then hit his game-winning sacrifice fly.

Rogers hurls perfect game

ARLINGTON, Texas — Kenny Rogers pitched the 12th perfect game in modern major-league history, saved by a diving catch in the ninth inning Thursday night in the Texas Rangers' 4-0 victory over the California Angels. Rogers (11-6), who became a full-time starter last season, was helped when center fielder Rusty Greer made a diving catch in right-center on Rex Hudler's leadoff liner in the ninth. Rogers is the first left-hander to pitch a perfect game in the American League. It was the first perfect game since Dennis Martinez did it for Montreal exactly three years ago against LA. The last perfect game in the AL was by Mike Witt for the Angels against Texas on Sept. 30, 1984, the last day of the season.

Double your pleasure Seminole Pony stars advance to Regional finals

From Staff Reports

MARIETTA, GA. — Just one more win and the Seminole PONY Baseball Pony Division All-Stars can return to Florida.

The 14 year old All-Star team had an excellent day Thursday, winning a doubleheader to complete a sweep of all three Georgia teams entered in the Southeastern Regional Tournament at Marietta, Georgia.

Seminole finished off a 10-3 victory over Paulding County (Ga.) that was suspended by rain in the sixth inning on Tuesday and then knocked off perennial favorite, East Cobb (Ga.) 9-4 to remain the only undefeated team left in the double elimination event.

East Cobb will play the survivor of a game Thursday night between Paulding and Douglasville (Ga.) at 5 p.m. tonight with the winner then playing Seminole for the championship at 8:30 p.m. tonight. A loss by Seminole would force a winner-take-all game at a time to be announced on Sunday.

Should Seminole win the tournament they would return to Tampa for the next level of the tournament.

Jeff Monaco picked up his second victory of the tournament in the win over Paulding County, going the first three innings, allowing just two runs on one hit and striking out five. Scott Ferrell worked the final four innings for the save, giving up one run on no hits and striking out seven.

Seminole scored in the first with its speed as Jeremy Frost struck out but reached safely on a passed ball, stole both second and third and scored on a wild pitch.

Speed again killed Paulding in the second inning as Donald Taylor and Monaco both walked, pulled off a double steal and Taylor scored on a wild pitch.

The Seminole bats came alive in the third inning as Scott Hillinski and Mike Sine singled, advanced on a double steal and scored on a three-run home run by Frost.

Frost also keyed the fifth inning as he singled, stole two bases and scored on a single by Matt McCarthy.

In the sixth inning, Taylor reached on an error and Ferrell walked. Hillinski scored Taylor with a single and Ferrell and Hillinski scored on Frost's double.

The final run came in the seventh inning on a double by McCarthy and a single by Ferrell.

Frost finished the night 3-for-4 with a home run, a double, two runs scored and drove in five. McCarthy and Ferrell were both 2-for-2, while Hillinski was 2-for-4 and Fine 1-for-3.

The victory in the late game, which didn't start until 9:30 p.m., was different than any of Seminole other wins, as it was the first time the local squad had been held under 10 runs in any game since All-Star play started.

In fact, Seminole trailed 3-0 in the second inning before getting the offense going and scoring the runs in three different innings.

In the third inning, Taylor walked, Hillinski singled and Ferrell ripped a two-run double. Ben Knapp followed with an RBI single to tie the game.

In the fifth, Hillinski walked and scored on a Frost double. Frost stole third and scored on a sacrifice fly by Knapp. Alex Gonzales then doubled and scored on a single by McCarthy.

In the seventh inning Frost was hit by a pitch and scored all the way from first as Knapp's single to left got past the East Cobb outfielder. Knapp stole third and scored as Gonzales reached safely when the East Cobb short stop tried to nail Knapp at the plate. Nick Melassus and Oamr Serrano both walked to load the bases and Gonzales scored on a wild pitch.

Knapp ended the second game 3-for-3, while McCarthy was 2-for-3, Hillinski and Gonzales were both 2-for-4. Frost 1-for-2 and Ferrell 1-for-3.

Frost worked the first three innings, allowing three runs and striking out six. Knapp worked the next three innings to get the win as he gave up no runs and struck out three. Monaco hurled the last inning, striking out two while giving up a run.

Seminole Animal Supply Bullets catcher Teddy Koller had himself a big Pat Torre League Tournament last weekend both behind the plate and at the plate. The rising senior at Lyman High School hopes to keep up his strong play for the Bullets in the NABF Regional Tournament at Apopka High School starting today.

Bullets, Mudcats in NABF Regional

APOPKA — The Lake Mary Mudcats and Seminole Animal Supply Bullets opened play in the NABF (North American Baseball Federation) Regional Tournament at Apopka High School today.

The Mudcats and Bullets finished in a tie for the League Tournament title, earning both teams a spot in the double-elimination event.

The Mudcats opened play against Orlando Dr. Phillips at 11 a.m., while the Bullets played host Apopka at 2 p.m.

Orlando Boone got the first round bye in the five team field.

The tournament is scheduled to run through Sunday or Monday, with the winner going to the NABF World Series in Apopka next week.

HAINES CITY — Art Wilson of Heathrow, birdied the par-5 18th hole on the West course at the Grenelefe Golf & Tennis Resort to edge Jim Slattery of Belleair, 142-143.

Wilson, 28, an assistant professional at the Country Club of Heathrow, birdied the par-5 18th hole on the West course at the Grenelefe Golf & Tennis Resort to edge Jim Slattery of Belleair, 142-143.

Slattery birdied the eighth and ninth holes to lead Wilson by a stroke at the turn, but scrambled throughout the back nine with eight pars and a bogey when he the green at the par-3 13th hole.

Wilson qualifies to represent the North Florida PGA in the Titleist Foot Joy Assistant Professional Championship in December at PGA in LaQuinta, California.

"I really played well both days," Wilson said. "Just perfect tee to green. Yesterday, I didn't make as many puts and had three bogies and two birdies. Today, I didn't have a bogey."

He sank a 15-foot birdie putt at the third hole, "to get things going," and chipped to within inches for a birdie at the par-5 eighth.

Longwood Bambino's open play in Southeastern Regional tonight

*By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer*

GAINESVILLE — After an almost two-week layoff, the state champion Longwood Babe Ruth Baseball Bambino All-Stars will open play in the Bambino Major A Southeastern Regional Baseball Tournament at Westside Park in Gainesville tonight.

The 11-12 year old squad ran through the state tournament at Candyland Park with a perfect 5-0 record and is confident they can take that next step toward the national tournament despite getting a tough draw.

If Longwood is to win the tournament they are going to have to win three games in less than 27 hours.

Today at Westside Park there will be three games played before the Opening Ceremonies, where all of the flags from the different states and other activities take place, are conducted at 6 p.m. Longwood will then take on host Gainesville in the showcase game at 7 p.m.

If Longwood wins, they will turn around and play the first game Saturday morning at 9 a.m. against Meridian, Mississippi, which got a first round bye when the team from Savannah, Georgia dropped out.

The winner of that game will then come back to play at 8 p.m. Saturday evening.

With the absence of Georgia, there are nine teams in the double-elimination event. The other teams are: Nashville, Tennessee; Winchester, Virginia; Raleigh, North Carolina (East NC); Asheville, North Carolina (West NC); Tanner, Alabama; and Greenville, SC.

The Longwood team is managed by John Melillo and coached by Jose Rosado and Andy Westervelt.

Making up the team are: Kyle Bono, Ryan Bono, Jeffrey Epperson, Kevin Graves, Jeffrey Halbert, Michael Kalin, Matthew Main, Kevin Melillo, Ricardo Montalvo, Michael Paganolaki, Jose Luis Rosado, Christopher Westervelt and John (J.T.) Williamson.

The team will also have the thrill of spending the tournament at the home of University of Florida head basketball coach Lon Kruger, who has volunteered to have his residence serve as a host family for the event.

Players set date for baseball strike

*By RONALD BLUM
AP Sports Writer*

NEW YORK — Baseball players will go on strike two weeks from today unless owners drop their demand for a salary cap and agree to a new labor contract.

"At this point, I feel there's definitely going to be a strike," San Francisco Giants pitcher Rich Monteleone said Thursday after he joined 30 other members of the union's executive board in a unanimous vote to set the Aug. 12 date for a walkout.

A work stoppage would be baseball's eighth in 22 years and would threaten the final 52 days of the regular season, the new expanded playoffs and the World Series. It also would threaten the owners' postseason television money, which they estimate at $140 million.

"A strike is a last resort," union head Donald Fehr said after the board met in a 90-minute telephone conference call. "No one wants to play ball more than the players do. But the owners continue to insist on a salary cap. ... The owners have made it clear that they are prepared to unilaterally implement a salary cap without the players' consent after the season ends. This leaves the players no other choice."

Baseball, coming off record revenue of $1.8 billion last season and with an average player salary of $1.2 million this year, is stuck in a three-way confrontation among large-market clubs, small-market teams and the players.

Small-market owners say they need large-market clubs to share more revenue, and all owners voted unanimously to tie increased revenue sharing to a salary cap, which management is threatening to impose after the season. Players say a cap would destroy free agency by inhibiting player movement.

"This is not a fight of the players' making," Fehr said. "They really don't have much choice in the matter and it is terribly unfortunate."

When asked how long a confrontation could last, Fehr said "as long as it takes."

IN BRIEF

Carol Greenfield as "Queen Aggravain" and Margie Davidson as "A Lady in Waiting."

Local costumer wins award

The National Costumers Association held its annual national convention in Tampa, July 9-15. At the Showcase Competition, more than 50 firms from all over the United States and Canada competed for excellence in seven categories of costuming. A Second Image, of Sanford, was awarded the Judges Award in the Theatre category, an esteemed honor of the convention, for the entry entitled "Queen Aggravain and A Lady in Waiting."

Margie Davidson has been the owner and operator of A Second Image for almost fifteen years, but this is the first time the store has ever been involved in a competition. A Second Image, which started out as a consignment shop, is the largest costume shop in Seminole County and has supplied costumes to productions put on by the University of Central Florida and Lake Brantley High School.

Bazaar benefits Hospice

Crafters' Bazaar of Goldenrod sixth annual benefit for Hospice of Central Florida is still accepting reservations for booth spaces for the pre-holiday selling fair on September 24. Proceeds from craft sales go to the individual crafters. Booth space and rental fees are donated to Hospice of Central Florida provide physical, emotional and spiritual care for patients and families facing a terminal illness. Rental fee for a ten by ten foot space is $40, with exhibitors providing their own display set-ups. The bazaar is open to original art and craft work only, no commercial food vendors or resale spaces accepted. The outdoor event, held on Aloma Avenue one block east of State Road 436, has raised approximately $27,000 for the patients of Hospice of Central Florida over the past five years. Crafters who would like an application to participate are asked to send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Crafters' Bazaar, Attn: L. Ryan, P.O. Box 492, Goldenrod, Fla., 32733-0492. For further information, please call 678-9080.

Don't let food poisoning spoil outings

Cookouts are a frequent and honored tradition of summer — a time for family and friends to gather, socialize and have fun. But summer outings can be ruined if safe food handling and preparation techniques aren't observed. Hot summer temperatures can help foodborne bacteria multiply at a rapid pace — spoiling food and causing illness.

Outbreaks of food poisoning that caused illness and death in other parts of the country underscore the importance of proper food handling. When left unrefrigerated, many foods can become contaminated with bacteria that produce the dangerous toxins that cause food poisoning. These bacteria are undetectable by sight, smell or taste and thrive on foods that are left out for very long — especially at warmer, summer temperatures. The Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services shares the following advice:

Meat, poultry, fish and eggs should never be eaten raw. These foods should be maintained in a refrigerator at a temperature below 40 degrees Fahrenheit and cooked thoroughly before eating. A cooking temperature of 160 degrees is advised. When cooking, use a meat thermometer or follow these tips:

- Poultry: Cook it until the meat is white, and don't eat it if you see blood or pink meat.
- Hamburger: Again, watch for traces of pink in the center, or blood in the juices.
- Steaks: Can be safely cooked medium. That's because harmful bacteria in beef are found on the surface of the steak, not in the interior like in ground meats.
- Fish: Cook until it flakes easily and is no longer translucent in the center.

● Eggs: Cook eggs and egg dishes thoroughly. Don't even sample anything containing raw eggs such as uncooked dough and cake batter.

Other tips for safe food handling, preparation and storage:

- Keep foods cold, below 40 degrees Fahrenheit, or hot, above 140 degrees Fahrenheit. Foods left out between those temperatures for more than two hours should be discarded.
 - Keep cooked foods separate from raw foods. Cross-contamination of foods could occur if bacteria-harboring raw food comes in contact with cooked foods. Wash hands, utensils, cutting boards and countertops after preparing or handling raw meats.
- Foodborne illness symptoms are much like those of the flu, which include headache, diarrhea, vomiting, abdominal cramps and fever. These signs may not appear until several hours to several days after eating a contaminated food. Food poisoning can be especially harmful for children, older adults, pregnant women and those with chronic illnesses.

Subtle reminder to settle that old debt

DEAR ABBY: My parents, who are what I would call "comfortably well off" financially, lent me $2,000 interest-free. According to our agreement, I was supposed to have paid off this loan three years ago. However, some unforeseen things have happened, and I still have every intention of repaying them, but I don't know when this will be.

My parents have always sent me $200 for my birthday. This year they sent me only a card and explained that now I owe them only $1,800. What do you think?

MISS NO NAME

DEAR NO NAME: The $2,000 was not a gift — it was a loan. The fact that your parents deducted $200 for your birthday — and reminded you that you then owed them $1,800 — was their way of subtly telling you that the debt remains outstanding.

Do not let this debt go unpaid any longer. Any affordable amount paid promptly every month would be acceptable. Set up a payment schedule with your parents, and stick to it.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a police officer, and I have a message for women: Please don't pity me, or ask me how I cope, or tell me what a brave woman I am to be married to a cop.

Yes, I know it's a dangerous job, but I try not to think about it. When he goes out the door, I know I may never see him again, but I just kiss him and ask him to pick up a quart of milk on his way home.

And yes, I'm aware of how good a uniform makes a man look and I know I must trust him when women answer the door wearing little or nothing. I also know that young girls get crushes on cops and leave not-so-subtle messages on squad cars.

It's not easy being married to a police officer, but I don't need your pity. I'm proud to be an officer's wife.

LORI GONZALES, WIFE OF DETECTIVE GONZALES, SAN ANTONIO

DEAR LORI: Thanks for a great letter. I'm sure your husband is also proud to be married to a woman like you.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

CONFIDENTIAL TO "ONLY A HOUSEWIFE": What do you mean, "only"?

The job of a housewife is an executive position. In your home, you are the director of health, education and welfare, the secretary of the treasury, the head of entertainment and public relations, and chairman of the house rules committee. And you'd have to be married to a millionaire to be paid what you're really worth!

Use guidelines to assess behavior

DEAR MARY: My son started first grade recently. He had a hard time during kindergarten because he wouldn't listen to his teacher and she said he was always bothering other kids. I know he's a smart little boy, but I've already gotten a note from this year's teacher saying that he's not getting his work done and not following directions. I want him to have a good year because I'm afraid he's going to hate school if he keeps getting in trouble all the time. Last year there was some talk of putting him on medication to increase his attention span and help him settle down. I was absolutely opposed to it then because I thought he just needed to grow up a little. But now, here we go again! I hate the thought of drugging my son, but I know we can't let him have another year like last year. I feel trapped and don't know which way to turn. Can you give me some suggestions?

MOM AGAINST DRUGS
DEAR AGAINST DRUGS: I don't think any parent wants to have their child on drugs, but sometimes we must choose between the lesser of two evils.

DRUG COUNSELOR

MARY BALK

While many professionals are opposed to medication to alter a child's mood, activity, or behavior, my opinion is that if the medication is necessary for appropriate functioning, and carefully monitored, it is probably in the child's best interest to have it. Below is a list of behavior patterns that might help you assess your son's need for medication. Answer each question as honestly as you can. If you find you're answering "yes" to more than a few, it may be appropriate to think about reaching out for help.

or — 1. When there are noises or people moving around the room, does your child have trouble sticking to what he's doing?

or — 2. Does your child have trouble keeping his mind on things he enjoys doing, such as watching TV?

or — 3. Does your child often leave things unfinished, like starting a game and then running off to do something else?

or — 4. Do you, your spouse, or his teachers often complain that he is not listening to you/them?

or — 5. Is your child impulsive, does he often act before he thinks?

or — 6. Does your child climb on things that are not meant for climbing?

or — 7. Are you or others always telling your child to stop fidgeting?

or — 8. When your child gets angry, does he seem to be out of control or in a rage?

or — 9. Does your child often talk too much and too loudly?

or — 10. Is your child unresponsive to discipline?

"It Might Rain..."

"Remember to take your umbrella. It might rain."
"But Mom, the sun is shining!"
"Take it just the same, dear...we never know."
Almost invariably, it rained. No, Mom didn't have ESP. It was WISDOM. That umbrella was there when you needed it. Mom knew what was ahead.
Our Heavenly Father knows what is ahead. He has warned us in Matthew 5:45 that it "rains on the just and the unjust." This is part of life. Yet, God's Word also assures us in Proverbs 30:5, "He is a shield to those that put their trust in Him."
Worship this Sabbath in the shelter of God's sanctuary. There may be rain in your life; that we don't know...but the promise of His protection will shield you. That we know.

How to understand leukemia prognosis

MEDICINE
PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a co-worker who has chronic leukemia. Would you comment on the different types and expected life span?

DEAR READER: For practical purposes, leukemia -- cancer of the white blood cells -- is divided into acute and chronic forms; either type of blood cell (lymphocytes or myelocytes) can be affected. Thus, a patient can have either acute or chronic lymphocytic leukemia or acute or chronic myelocytic leukemia.

In general, the acute forms are much more dangerously aggressive, causing rapidly progressing illness and death, unless treated.

On the other hand, chronic leukemia is less serious. For example, the affliction may be discovered by accident during a blood test in a person who is free of symptoms.

Nonetheless, chronic leukemia must be treated or it -- like acute leukemia -- will progress to death, albeit at a somewhat slower rate than its acute counterpart.

Symptoms of leukemia include fatigue, weakness, weight loss, pallor, fever, easy bruising, and swollen glands.

The diagnosis is made by blood tests and examination of the bone marrow.

Most cases of chronic leukemia can be successfully treated with drugs, such as hydroxyurea; radiation therapy and steroids may be required.

Although some types of chronic myelocytic leukemia may be fatal within three or four years, some patients live much longer. Chronic lymphocytic leukemia has a more favorable prognosis, with some patients living as long as 20 years.

The cause of acute and chronic leukemia is unknown. Some studies have suggested a genetic disposition. Massive exposure to radiation (such as occurred during the Chernobyl incident) usually leads to a particularly vicious type of leukemia. A few authorities suspect that strange virus infections may produce the disorder.

During the past two decades, the most striking benefits in cancer therapy have been in the treatment of leukemia, especially in children. While therapy for most cancers has not affected the death rate -- or changed it only slightly -- treatment for leukemia has been revolutionary.

TRUMP

By Phillip Alder
"Who can control fate?" asks the eponymous Othello. Well, declarer should try to control his fate. When playing in a suit contract, he must fight hard to retain trump control. South didn't manage to do so in today's deal.

Against four spades, West led a low heart. South won with the ace and cashed dummy's two top trumps. West's diamond discard was a severe blow. Declarer played off his three top clubs, discarding dummy's remaining heart, and ruffed his heart two in the dummy. Finally, South attacked diamonds, but East won with the ace, drew trumps and played a heart. West's hand was high: three down.

True, if the spades had broken 3-2, South would have won an overtrick, but how should South have played?

The right line is to cash only one top trump. South continues by cashing his three club winners, discarding dummy's heart, and leading a diamond. Here everything is under control. East can never do better than win one diamond trick and two spade tricks.

There is one danger. If East wins the first diamond trick with the ace, gives West a diamond ruff and he, West, leads back the outstanding club, declarer has a guess. If West started with three trumps, South must ruff high in the dummy and play another spade. If East started with three trumps, South must ruff low in the dummy. However, this is a highly unlikely scenario, making it right to cash only one top trump, not two.

It is unfortunate when declarer hasn't controlled trumps but must confess that the enemy's trumps controlled him. NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 30, 1994

Considerable travel is indicated for the year ahead. Your excursions might be of short duration, but each should be fun and offer interesting probabilities.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) Don't attempt to implement changes today that play against the will of the majority in your peer group. If you do, you might end up being a lonely orator. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

VIROO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A skillful manipulator might try to use you as a scapegoat today by putting phrases and comments in your mouth that he/she personally authored. Don't be a patsy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Usually your innovations are pretty good time- and step-savers, but today you'd be wise to stick to traditional procedures. Save your untested ideas for another day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There's a chance you may take fun activities a trifle too seriously today. If you participate in a social sport, don't make winning a matter of life and death.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This is not a good day to discuss budgets or allowances with your mate or family members. Instead of resolving issues, you might create more ill will and problems.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Co-workers could be very difficult to get along with today if they feel you are foisting assignments on them you should attend to yourself. Don't pass the buck.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Think twice today before additionally funding an endeavor that has thus far proven to be a loser. Look around for something that offers better possibilities.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be careful today regarding the persons you bring home, especially if someone is at odds with a member of your family. Unpleasantness could result.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your image is rather fragile today, so don't behave in a manner that could give someone who doesn't think of you in friendly terms additional reasons to demean you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Usually you have reasonably good judgment in practical matters. Today, however, you might let someone whose information base is not as solid as yours call the shots for you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today, in business matters that could affect others as well as yourself, you must be careful not to operate on your own in areas where you did not solicit their support.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Persons who were not in accord with your ideas to begin with could grow in resentment if you try to force your opinions on them. Don't awaken any additional opposition today. Copyright 1994 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
