Stay Mum, Attorney Tells Lake Mary Officials

Petsos Excused From Meeting

By Genie Lindberg Herald Staff Writer

Lake Mary city attorney Frank Kruppenbacher, speaking for Commissioner Buzz Petsos, who was charged Tuesday with burglarizing a business he once owned, told the commission that Petsos wished to be excused from the meeting so that the integrity of the commission would in no way be questioned. Petsos sat silently as Kruppenbacher advised the talk to the press about the Petsos commission of their options concerning the "unfortunate" incident involving Petsos. After unanimous commission approval of a motion to excuse Petsos from the meeting, Petsos. without saying a word, got up from his seat, walked down a aide aisle and exited the build-talk about it to the press.

Kruppenbacher said that it would be inappropriate for the commission to take action regarding the conduct of Petsos because there has not been an arraignment or formal charge at this time. Any action by the commission would be premature because the matter has just been turned over to the State Attorney's office, he said. "There's no need to jump into it tonight."

Petsos, under the city's charter, is entitled to a public hearing that would be advertised In one or more newspapers at least one week before it is scheduled, Kruppenbacher sald. The commission has the power to subpoens witnesses, administer oaths and require the production of evidence, according to the charter.

The governor has the authority to formally recommend Petsos' fate as a city commissioner. Kruppenhacher said, but unless the State Attorney has decided to charge Petsos with the crime, "I don't believe he (Petsos) can be removed at this point, unless the commission does it."

The governor's office will be notified of the matter by a letter See PETSOS, page 14A

City Officials Resist County On Road Plans Impact Fees, Schedule 'Unfair'

Officials from Casselberry and Winter Springs builted "Seminole County Commissioners over alleged unfairness and inequities in their proposed county-wide impact fees-road improvements plan. But county commission chairman Fred Streetman blasted right back. asking for cooperation and "positive auggestions."

Winter Springs Commissioner Martin Trencher criticized several features of the plan at a Wednesday night meeting between city and county officials. He said, of the $189 million worth of road improvements planned, a third is in Winter Springs where the

The latest proposal, to drop improvements to Lake Drive to hold down costs, also upset the Winter Springs commissioners. That would not "solve the problem at all," Trencher said. "Taking it away does not improve the traffic problem."

Commissioners from Winter Springs and Casselberry also questioned why the cities had no input into the consultants' development process of the road impact fees. Consultant Randy Young said he did not consult the cities, but County Administrator Ken Hooper said a 1983 road improvement study, on which the improvement

Reagan: I Would Not Go Down Same Road Again

By Ira R. Allen
WASHINGTON (UPI) — President

Reagan, buffeted by the Iran-Contra scandal all winter, emerged in his news conference on the eve of spring flashing the verve and wit that catapulted him to two terms as president.
Though he broke no new ground in the sage of how he came to sell arms to Iran in exchange for American hostages in Lebanon, the president rebounded at his 40th news conference — his first in four months — with an eagerness to take on all comers in the news media he partially blames for thwarting the deal.

Reagan, generally in command as he responded to 32 questions in the 34-minute nationally televised session Thursday night, made perhaps his most significant state-ment by saying he still believes in his intentions in selling weapons to "responsible people" in a govern-ment accused of sponsoring terrorism but, "I would not go down that same road again."

Reagan reiterated that only when the Tower Commission issued its report on the controversy Feb. 26 did he recognize his policy had "degenerated" into an arms-for-hostages deal — after months of denying that was the case:

"If I hadn't thought it was right in the beginning, we would never have started that," he said. "I still believe that if someone in my family was kidnapped and I went out and hired someone that I thought could get that person safely home, that would not be engaging in ransom of the victim."

Nonetheless. Reagan sought a fresh start for the first day of spring today, assuring the nation he is searching for more acceptable ways of freeing the eight Americans still captive in Lebanon, some held now for two years.

The president said he even would be grateful for the help of his predecessor, Jimmy Carter - the man he repeatedly attacked for an inability to gain prompt release of the 52 Americans held in Iran from 1979 to 1980. Carter, who has in turn criticized Reagan in the current crisis, is on a tour of the Middle

The 76-year-old president generally won praise from politicians in both parties for his performance Thursday night, in stark contrast to his defensive attitude and incomplete answers at his last news conference, Nov. 19.

Lawmakers Agree Reagan 'Cool, Calm And Collected'

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Lawmakers from both parties agree President Reagan helped mend his public image with "cool, calm and collected" comments about his worst political crisis, but at least one congressional critic finds Reagan's view of the fran-Contra scandal "puzzling." Republicans and Democrats on Capitol Hill generally reacted positively to Reagan's first news conference in four months Thursday night, with supporters hailing it as a turning point for his embattled presidency

"He had a lot of facts at his fingertips and he seemed to be prepared for it," said Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., a member of the select Senate panel investigating Reagan's covert sales of U.S. arms to Iran and the scheme to divert profits to Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

Heslin said in a telephone interview he thought Reagan "was very cool, calm and collected" but appeared "a little more positive" in answering questions about subjects other than the crisis that has shaken his administration.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R.Ore., assessed Reagan's performance as "creditable" and declared: "If no new revelations emerge, I would describe this as a turning point in this difficult period of the Reagan presidency.'

But Sen. Paul Simon, D-III., described Reagan as merely "well-briefed" and questioned his stand on the overall issue.

"It is puzzling and disappointing that the president still fails to acknowledge that his policy on Iran was wrong from the beginning," Simon said. "There is no excuse for sending arms to Iran."

Robert Strauss, the former Democratic National Committee chairman, said he thought the president "did quite well."

"He was not fumbling and he was accurate," Strauss told ABC News. "On the other hand, it was a dull press conference ... because there was no news."

Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, another member of the Senale investigating com-mittee, agreed Reagan "was relaxed. I think it will help him overall."

Mitchell said Reagan's only "serious" misstatement" was his assertion that the Iranian government and the kidnappers of American hostages have no ties. The hostages, Mitchell noted, have been supported financially by the frantans.

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas described the president as "responsive, forthcoming and in command of the facts." Dole said, "The critics who were looking for ammunition came up with

"I thought the president did very well." Simpson said on ABC. "He has been a little off balance with this thing. But today and tonight ... he was his old self.'

Former Sen. John Tower of Texas, the Republican Reagan loyalist who led the special presidential commission that reviewed the Iran-Contra operations, told CBS News that Reagan "certainly asserted himself well this evening and gave satisfactory answers to questions."

Tower joined those who criticized reporters, saying, "It's awfully difficult for the president to put it behind him when the press keeps playing it up."

Rep. Dick Cheney of Wyoming, top Republican on the House panel probing the scandal, said he has not seen "anything that would contradict the president's basic story. As a Republican, I'm delighted with his performance tonight."

"I think the president was clearly way ahead of where he's been previously," summed up Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass. "There was more evidence of a president able to deal with some subjects."

Cold Welcomes Spring In West

International

Wintry weather in the West heralded the start of spring today as a storm that dumped more than a foot of snow in Nevada pushed into the Rockles and the Plains, and a new snowstorm gathered strength in the Pacific.

A mixture of rain, freezing rain and snow iced the northern Plains and snow fell early today in Montana, Colorado, Wyoming, Utah and Arizona. Up to a foot of snow and winds gusting to 50 mph was forecast for parts of Colorado.

"Just an hour ago around 1:30 a.m. we had blizzard-like conditions." said Gunnison, Colo. police dispatcher Michelle Southwick. "It was really bad. The cold would cut right through you. We had what was called a 'white out.'" The West's chilly welcome to spring, which begins today at 10:53 p.m. EST, contrasted with fair weather to the east.

Scott Tansey of the National Weather Service in Kansas City, Mo., said today would be springlike in the East and unspringlike out West, more like winter." Tansey said a new weather disturbance, emerging from the Gulf of Alaska, threatened to keep it cold in the West with the third major storm this The new storm follows the one pushing into the Rockies and Plains and another earlier this week that dumped 30 inches of snow in Utah and hurled deadly tornadoes and caused flooding in the South.

The Alaskan storm was expected to bring very cold weather, rain and anow late today to Washington, Oregon, the Great Basin and Northern California, where winter storm watches were posted through Forecasters warned of winter storms today in Montana and the Dakotas, and posted travelers advisories for snow and hazardous road conditions in Nevada, Arizona, Montana, Wyoming and Colorado.

Livestock advisories were in effect through today for much of Wyoming and the Dakotas. and thunderstorms were forecast for Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma.

On Thursday, the storm dumped a foot or more of snow in higher elevations of Montana, Nevada, Utah and Northern California Thursday, creating what the National Weather Service called a "skiers' paradise."

"Right now it's powder and packed powder. People are loving it," said Barbara Altum of the Alta Ski Resort, about 20 miles southeast of Salt Lake City. "What we've heard (from skiers) so far is the skiing is terrific." However, the Utah Highway

Patrol in Cedar City reported "pretty bad" driving conditions in the state, with up to 10 inches of snow on Interstate Highway 70 and "a couple of semis off the road."

Fifteen inches of snow fell in Echo Summit at Lake Tahoe, Nev., and officials at Reno-Cannon International Airport canceled six incoming flights.

Other anow totals included 13 inches at Clear Creek, Utah, 11 inches at the Alta Ski Resort and a foot at Glacier Park, Mont. and Snow Camp, Calif.

Strong winds lashed Southern California and Arizona, with gusts howling to 54 mph at Winslow, Ariz., and 40 mph in Los Angeles.

Elsewhere, rainshowers reached from Louisiana and eastern Texas to Oklahoma and snow was scattered in northern New England.

Wage Gets Retroactive 1st Okay

The Longwood City Commission has given tentative approval to ordinances permitting the five members of the city's Land Planning Agency to each receive the $100 a month wage plus benefits which they have been receiving since Oct. 1, 1985, contrary to the city code and personnel policy.

Only an expense account is permitted under the city code. Commissioner Dave Gunter, who voted no in the 3-1 vote, said he did so because only Winter Springs and Lake Mary pay salaries for such boards and it isn't fair to pay the LPA members so much when members of other Longwood's volunteer boards don't even receive expenses. Winter Springs and Lake Mary pay $50 a month and $5 a meeting respectively. Seminole County pays mileage and the four other cities in Seminole County pay nothing for their land board members.

The city's other advisory boards include Code Enforcement, Adjustment, Parks and Recreation and the Historical Commission.

Deputy Mayor June Lormann said she supports the salary for the LPA because they put in many hours meeting two or three times a month.

A public hearing and final action are scheduled on the two ordinances for April 6. In other business, the commission:

 Voted to support legislative action that would permit Longwood to offer future employees an alternative retirement plan to the Florida Retirement System. Present employees would not be affected.

• Gave final approval in a 4.0 vote to an ordinance eliminating the requirement for individual water meters for each unit in a commercial ndustrial building

 Tentatively approved an ordinance setting policies used in governing the city's parks complexes and facilities. A public hearing was set for April 6.

Longwood Blocks Shopping Center Change

By Jane Casselberry Herald Staff Writer

The Longwood City Commission headed off a shopping center developer's revision to include a Firestone store by passing an ordinance, slipped in ahead of him on the evening's agenda, that changed what uses are allowed in Commercial C-3 zoning.

In a March 4 memo, Longwood City Attorney Ann Colby pointed out that under that zoning "all retail or service station or shops" and "all personal service or repair shops" are permitted uses and therefore the Firestone store could not be blocked without a prior change in the ordinance.

After the ordinance was changed in front of him, Frank Schrimsher, developer of the Plaza del Sol Shopping Center, withdrew his request at Monday night's commission meeting to revise the site plan for the center to build an eight-bay addition on the west end of the building for his tenant, Firestone Tire and Auto Service Center. The shopping center is nearing completion on State Road 434 at Harbor Isle Way.

The commission revised the ordinance on a 3-1 vote, with Commissioner Dave Gunter voting no. Commissioner Lynette Dennis was absent.

Gunter said he thought the developer got a bad deal. He said he did not think it was fair to shove the ordinance through ahead of Schrimsher forcing him to switch to an application for conditional use rather than voting for or against his request.

Schrimsher said Monday night, "The city planner has suggested the request be resubmitted as a conditional use and I will honor that request."

But now Schrimsher said he and Firestone are carefully considering whether or not it would be worth it to apply for a conditional use given the attitudes the commissioners expressed at the meeting.

"It is no small task to prepare the new documents," he said. "But unless we are able to secure the permit the lease is worth nothing."

The outlook for the developer getting a conditional use permit to allow the Firestone center may not be that easy.

"Let him reapply if he wants to, we can vote it down then just as well," said Commissioner Harvey Smerilson.

Phyllis Turner, 362 Harbor Isle Way, in active opposition to the shopping center in the past, said Harbor Isle residents have signed a petition opposing the site plan change and a resident of The Moorings said residents of her subdivision have also signed a petition

City Planner Chris Nagle, in a March 11 memo to the commission, recommended that the request for revision not be heard until the applicant applies for a conditional use permit because requested building modifications are requested for that land use.

Destructive Protectionism

Inasmuch as Japan will once again renew its quotas on auto exports to the United States on April 1, it's not surprising that pundits are noting the April-Fool's-Day connection. The Voluntary Restraint Agreement. driginally supposed to be temporary, is about to begin its seventh year after many vicissitudes.

In the beginning, the United States requested the quotas in order to help correct the disastrous trade imbalance between the two countries. Nowadays, Washington no longer officially requests the quotas because the Japanese are happy to establish them anyway.

And Japanese automakers have cleverly manipulated the U.S. auto quotas to their own good advantage. Their collusion in restraint of trade is such that they would be indicted if they were American automakers.

The U.S. consumer, of course, has been yietimized almost without even realizing it. The Brookings Institution estimates that the control of the contro sumers more than $100,000 for each job saved in the domestic auto industry. Using the quota as a shield, the Japanese have selectively shipped their more-expensive models, loaded with options, to the U.S. market. They also have limited the evailability of their cars. Altogether, the Japanese strategy has driven up prices by approximately $2,500 per car.

U.S. automakers, following the Japanese had, have raised their own prices by approximately $1,000 per car. This year Ford and Chrysler have insisted on renewed duotas, while General Motors president Roger Smith does not. He says his firm will compete ith the Japanese in the marketplace.

Meanwhile, U.S. Rep. Dale E. Kildee, I)-Mich., insists that the Japanese quotas are not sufficiently restrictive, that the 2.3 non Japanese imports snould be limited to 85 million vehicles.

Here is a classic example of how protectionism in the increasingly interdependent stibal village has burt the U.S. consumers with fewer case and higher prices. This even wille the protected industries have relaxed behind the shield and become less competitive than before the import restrictions.

Ireland's Hope

The governments of Ireland and the United Kingdom have reason to be encouraged by a ace initiative that has emerged in Northern reland. It is a power-sharing proposal offered by the tough, paramilitary Protestant Ulster Defense Association. In effect, the initiative strengthens the Anglo-Irish Accord.

The militants apparently realize that they lack the power to destroy the accord in the way that Protestant groups were able to torpedo a power-sharing plan in Ulster in 1974. The current accord has survived two years and is gradually forming a basis for cooperation under the auspices of London and Dublin.

The Ulster Defense Association calls its plan "Common Sense." It calls for powersharing in an autonomous Ulster state. It proposes that Protestant and Catholic political parties in Ulater jointly draft a constitution and laws for the new state. The decument assumes that Protestant politicans, representing the majority of the population, would head the government but proposes that Catholics be guaranteed by law important Cabinet posts.

That such a proposal is put forth by what amounts to vigilante groups is one of the more encouraging developments in Ulster in recent years. Opinion polls in recent years have indicated support for power-sharing among both Catholics and Protestants. The w proposals encourage the hope that the o sides, so long divided by misunderstandand hate, may eventually reach an commodation.

Two Networks Of Deceit Still Operate in both the lawlessness of Irangate and Jonathan Pollard's betrayal of America by spying for Israel, there is an endless trail of disquieting similarities.

Bashers Hit Big Business

WASHINGTON (NEA) -Entrepreneur T. Boone Pickens Jr. cites "the growing abuses of entrenched corporate management" to explain why "profits plunged 17 percent" among the country's 500 largest companies between 1980

Deputy Treasury Secretary Richard G. Darman criticizes "largescale corporate America's tendency to be like the government bureaucracy that corporate executives love to malign - bloated, risk-averse. inefficient and unimaginative."

The nation's Catholic bishops note that "the desire to maximize profits" on the part of multinational corporations and financial institutions "has often tempted these transnational enterprises to behavior that increases inequality."

in recent months, maj tions and the executives who control them have become increasingly popular targets for a wide range of critics — a trend likely to spill over into the political arena during next year's campaigns.

Under President Reagan's leadership, "big government" has been the institution people loved to hate during the past six years. With Reagan's influence and the "conservative revolution" he led both on the wane, "big business" is reclaiming the dubious honor of being the most widely disliked.

But the corporate community has brought much of the grief upon itself by condoning abuses and excesses ranging from illegal "in-sider trading" to unjustified multimillion-dollar "golden parachutes" for fired executives.

"Far too many executives," says Pickens, focus their energy and attention not upon improving corporate performance but instead upon attaining personal benefits in the form of "the four Ps - pay. perquisites, power and prestige."

Darman agrees. In a speech late last year, he complained that "some high-priced private managers seem to spend less time developing their (companies') research and development budgets than they spend reviewing golf scores."

Criticism of the business community is hardly unprecedented, but the source of the contemporary discontent is unusual. When a corporate board chairman, a senior official in Reagan's Treasury Department and the country's Catholic bishops are all outspoken on the same subject, it's time to listen.

Deaths Up Asthma

By Charles S. Taylor ATLANTA (UPI) — Specialists in the treatment of childhood asthma are seeing an increase in the death rate from the disease but are not sure of its cause. Although a death to 2 percent in childhood asthma has long been recognized, there has been a growing number of fatal outcomes in recent years, particularly in the 10 to 14 age

A difference in reporting may account for some of the increase, said Dr. David Tinkleman, an Atlanta asthma specialist for 12 years who has treated an estimated 2,000 juvenile asthma patients.

Some cases that formerly were diagnosed as bronchitis or pneumonia now are recognized as asthma, he said. But other factors pushing up the death toll "really aren't known," Tinkleman said in an interview. "Even with more powerful medications, the rate of death has increased," Tinkleman said.

"These numbers are going up," he said, noting that an entire symposium recently was devoted to the problem.

In a fatal asthma attack, the lungs close down. Tinkleman said. There is increased production of mucus and victims are unable to breathe oxygen into their lungs or expel carbon dioxide. "Some children die at home before they can get to an emergency room. Sometimes they die in a matter of an hour," said Tinkleman.

Tinkleman and researchers at the National Jewish Center for Immunology and Respiratory Medicine in Denver said recent research has identified 14 predictors of asthma death that they hope will help to save lives.

Ten of the predictors are psychological and just four are physiological, an indication of the new importance researchers place on the psychological aspects of the disease. Many hinge on hospitalization, which is necessary in severe

The psychological predictors are: disregard of wheezing and other cived asthma sym self-care while hospitalized, patient-staff conflict, parent-staff conflict, patient-parent conflict, use of asthma to manipulate others, emotional disturbance, depressive symptoms, history of emotionalbehavorial reactions to separation or loss, and family dysfunction.

Physiological factors are: a history of seizures associated with asthma attacks, use of inhaled beclomethasone diproprionate (a steroid), reductions of more than 50 percent in prednisone dose during hospitalization, and wheezing over stress linked to anticipation of being discharged from the hospital the next week.

Prednisone is one of the many drugs used to treat asthma.

The 14 predictors of asthma death were formulated after Dr. David Strunk and others at the National Jewish Center observed that some children who had behavorial problems during hospitalization had fatal episodes after they went home. They launched a study of asthamatic children who had been at the hospital between 1973 and

WASHINGTON WORLD Howard Baker's

New Role By Steve Gerstel

WASHINGTON (UPI) - For most of the last two years, there was a vague feeling that Howard Baker had slipped out of the political orbit, perhaps even never to return.

There were sightings, certainly: An interview, a trip to lowa, a stop in New Hampshire, pledges of support for a presidential campaign from key people in key states.

As the tempo of presidential politics increased in February, there were even signals that Baker was very close to making a decision — to run or not to run for the 1988 Republican presidential nomination. But for the most part, the popular former Senate Republican leader was not the topic of conversation among political junkies, a role reserved in these early days for the likes of George Bush, Robert Dole, Jack Kemp and sometimes even Pat Robertson.

Although he logged a respectable third — behind Bush and Dole whenever a poll was conducted, there was a pervasive feeling that Baker either would not run or, if he ran, would not win the nomination. By not seeking re-election in 1984. Baker not only relinquished the post of Senate Republican leader but also the limelight that accompanied him. He left to prepare for a run at the presidency, yet strangely there was a great doubt that he would enter the race.

Baker, according to his own account, had just about decided to enter the presidential sweepstakes and was gathering the family for a final reading when President Reagan spared him the decision.

There was no hesistancy when Baker was asked by Reagan to become White House chief of staff and there was no hesistancy when Baker told reporters that his acceptance ended any plans he had to run for the nomination in 1988.

He is too young, at 61, to be considered an elder statesman. What he is, and what the Republicans and Democrats both need, is man who commands respect on the basis of who he is and what he has done.

But this assignment should only be the first in Baker's new career. It is almost impossible to believe that if a Republican is elected president in the fall of 1988, he would not find a post at the highest level for this

In Mexico, Politics Can Mean Prison

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — He used to be president of one of the world's biggest companies, a friend of Vice President George Bush and a contender for the presidency of Mexico. But now 66-year-old Jorge Diaz Serrano is marking his 43rd month in Mexico City's Reclusurio Sur federal prison awaiting trial on corruption charges.

The spectacular fall of Diaz Serrano does not appear to have broken him. He maintains his innocence. with carnestness and pride, even with an occasional touch of wry humor. "If you're a politician. you're bound to have problems of this sort," Diaz Serrano observed as if he were entertaining a guest in a three-star restaurant and the problem was a lukewarm cup of Diaz Serrano's main argument to Dale Van Atta, who recently talked his way into the prison to interview. him, was an interesting one. Simply to steal a lot more than the $34 million in "illicit profit" he is accused of making as head of PEMEX, the state-owned oil company.

"I handled $45 billion in export and never touched a cent," he explained. "But I could have."

How? "Simple, simple, my dear Watson." Diaz Serrano replied expansively. He could have stolen $300 million a month "without signing any paper," he said.

Acknowledged as the architect of Mexico's short-lived oil boom, Diaz Serrano had already made a fortune in bil contracting when his friend, President Jose Lopez Portillo, asked him to run PEMEX in 1976. Lopez Portillo fired him on June 6, 1981, for dropping the price of Mexican oil without consulting the president.

During his tenure at PEMEX, Diaz

Serrano was emerging as a likely choice to succeed Lopez Portillo, his close friend and weekly tennia partner. Instead, he was sacked from PEMEX and shipped off to Moscow as ambassador. He returned later to become a senator from his home state of Sonora.

Lopez Portillo's successor, President Miguel de la Madrid, ran on an anti-corruption platform, and not long after he took office he had Diaz Serrano arrested. By most accounts, the former oil minister was simply the most convenient sacrificial lamb to lend substance to the new president's campaign promise.

Diaz Serrano knows it, he explained, because a Belgian businessman who offered to prove there was no fraud in the deal for which Diaz Serrano was jalled was told by a high Mexican official that it didn't matter. "He told him that this was a political problem of Jorge Diaz concerned about it," Dias Serrano seld.

This is not to say that there wasn't widespread thievery during Diaz Serrano's tenure at PEMEX. In 1979 alone, for example, 317 million barrels of oil, worth more than $5 billion, simply disappeared from the books. Diaz Serrano suggested that the oil had, for the most part, "evaporated" or otherwise been lost in the refining process.

One point Diaz Serrano is fervent about is denying that he was ever a business partner of Bush, as has been widely reported. He doesn't want Bush hurt by association with him - and vice versa. In a country where the CIA is anathema, Bush is usually referred to as "ex-CIA chief

County Crafts Dropout Reduction Program

By Genie Lindberg Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County School Board plans to reduce the number of school dropouts in the district through innovative and comprehensive educational programs that identify and address the needs of all potential dropouts, a board report says.

The dropout rate in Seminole County high schools last year was 7.7 percent. Marion Dailey, superintendent for instructional services, said. However, she said that if all those who indicated they would attend adult high school did attend, the county dropout rate would have been 4.1 percent.

The report was prepared for submission to the state Department of Education this year as required by the Dropout Prevention Act of 1986. The Florida Dropout Prevention Center, located at the University of Miami's School of Education, was established by the state legislature last year along with the Dropout Prevention Act, Dr. Nancy Peck, the center's director

Raines Has Will To Play, Still Waits For The Where

By Sam Cook Herald Sports Editor

Tim Raines, maintaining he will play "somewhere" this season, confirmed his agents met with the Houston Astros Thursday but he still does not have a contract for the 1987 season. Opening Day is 17 days

Raines, who went the freeagent route after six all-star scasons in Montreal culminated with a National League batting title last year, indicated something may happen soon, although he is now taking a cautious approach.

"I hope something happens this weekend," Raines said Friday morning. "But after all that has taken place, I am taking nothing for granted."

Raines said agent Tom Reich huddled with Astro general manager Dick Wagner Thursday night, but nothing was hammered out. Raines wants close to what he received last year ($1.5 million), but said he would take less. Houston reported offered a one-year, $1 million deal.

For Seminole, Joyce pitched a six-hitter, struck out eight and walked only two but the Tribe could muster only four hits offensively and dropped a 2-0 decision to Spruce Creek's Hawks at Port Orange.

Saturday afternoon at Spruce Creek High, Seminole High sends five experienced lifters and hopes for its best finish ever at the Class 4A State Weightlifting Championships.

In what is probably the most underpublicized high school sport, the Tribe has been in the top eight in the state the past three years.

Seminole is coming off its first Seminole Athletic Conference title and the five competitors for coach Dave Mosure's team going to state include seniors Dwayn Willis, Chris Smith and Rick Kelley and juniors Steve Warren and Bernard Burke.

In the last three years. Seminole has come in eighth place once, seventh once and finished third once. Volusia County has been the home of the state championship trophy since the meet began in 1975. Spruce Creek has won the title seven times, including the last three years, while DeLand has claimed five state crowns, including the first four. Spruce Creek will once again be the favorite in '87.

Leading the way for the Seminoles is heavyweight Smith who won the SAC title and looks to challenge for the top position

"Chris (Smith) has got a chance to win it." Mosure said. "He's going to have to jerk 300

Smith will be competing in his second state meet and hopes to go one place higher than last year. A year ago. Smith finished second in the state with a total of 660 pounds (380 bench, 280 clean and jerk).

"I think a total of about 750 will win it this year," Smith said.
"My best is 685 (390 bench, 295 clean and jerk) but last week I benched 415 in practice and my clean and jerk has gone up, too."

For Seminole to match its best state performance or do better, all five lifters must come through with personal bests. Smith said the team can do better than last year's seventh place finish.

"We were seventh with three guys last year so I think we can get around fifth this year," Smith said.

6-3. Thursday night to move into the quarternhals of the $315,000. Paine Webben Tennis Classic.
The aggressive Rostagno. 21, dominated the 27-year-old Gomez, ranked ninth in the world, breaking the Ecuadorean's serve five times. Comes was later fined $350 for, hitting a ball into the stands.

Earlier Thursday, top seed, Jimmy Connors advanced to the quarterfinals with a 6-2, 7-8 (7-2) triumph over 23-year-old Greg Holmes. Paul Annacone of Bridgehampton, N.Y., edged vet-eran Eliot Teltacher 4-8, 6-3, 6-3 and South Africa's Christo van Renaburg crushed American Scott Davis 6-0, 6-1.

Gomez complained bitterly, about the scheduling require; ments which force players to commit to a specific schedule up to 18 months in advance.

"The system is so bad. At the moment i just don't feel like playing tennis, but I just have to play because I start getting fines," said the second seeded Gomez, echoing sentiments expressed earlier Thursday by Connors. "They make you play and there is no way to know that far ahead you'll be able to play or be mentally ready to play."

Rostugno, who has raised his world ranking 380 places in 155 months, came out on top on an exchange of service breaks in the second set. After four confi secutive breaks made the score 3-3, the Brentwood, Calif., resi dent held his serve and scored the critical break in the eighth game before serving out the match.

DALLAS (UPI) — Top-seeded

Chris Evert Lloyd says she is grateful for her "sloppy" first round-match of the $250,000 Virginia Slims of Dallas - it made her quarterfinal game against unseeded Carling Bassett casier.

Evert Lloyd, playing her third tournament since the U.S. Open last September, lost only one game Thursday to defeat the 19-year-old from Canada in straight sets. 6-0. 6-1.

"I think the first-round match helped tonight," Evert Lloyd said. "When I play aloppy, I come back."

Evert Lloyd, 32, was able to avoid an upset Tuesday night at the hands of 17-year-old Bulgar-ian Katerina Maleeva, younger sister of fourth-seeded Manuela Maleeva, 2-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Evert Lloyd looked sluggish and a bit frazzled in quickly losing the opening set against the unseeded Maleeva.

Baker, Wynn and Cash also made up three-fourths of the record-breaking 440 relay team and sophomore Adrian Hillsman was on the anchor as the Lady 'Noles finished with a time of 49.1. Hillsman also came through with a superb performance in the 330 hurdles as she took second with a time of 46.6 which currently ranks second in the county behind Webster.

"We found out tonight that Adrian (Hillsman) can be a real plus for us in the 330 hurdles." Blake said. "This is the first time she's run them in a meet this year and she ran a very competi-

Also breaking records in Thursday's meet for the girls were Lyman discus thrower Eileen Costello (131-7) and Oak Ridge 110 hurdler Barbara Moore (14.9). Moore was the only one of Oak Ridge's top people to compete in Thursday's meet as the Lady Pioneers are gearing up for Saturday's Bob Hayes In-

While Seminole won most of its individual and relay races by wide margins, the closest race of the girls meet came in the 440 dash where Lake Brantley junior Lisa Frizzell and Lake Mary freshman Allison Snell locked up came down to the last 100 yards where Frizzell had enough stamina left to outlast Snell.

"We've been running right with each other the last two meets." Frizzell said of her duels with Snell. "I'm hoping to go under 60 by the next meet and with some more speed work I think I have a chance to qualify for state."

Lake Howell's second place finish was led by first places by Kim Hammontree in the high jump and Martha Fonseca in the two mile and seconds by Lisa Samocki in the mile and 880 and Mary Fonseca in the two mile.

Hammontree, a senior, equalled her career best and cleared her season's best by going over at 5-3. Martha Fonseca, also a senior, ran a 12:02.3 to win the two mile and sister Mary was second.

Senior Tonya Lawson had a strong meet for Lake Mary as she won the long jump with a personal best 17-9 and finished second in the 220 with a season's best 26.7. For Oviedo, sophomore high jumper Suzanne Hughes equalled her personal record with a second-place leap of 5-2 while senior Kelly Price placed second in the long jump (17-71/2). third in the 330 hurdles (season's best 48.0) and fifth in the 110 hurdles (16.1).

Record setters for the Seminole High boys included both the 440 and mile relay teams, freshman Lewis Butler in the triple jump with a leap of 45-10 and senior Earic Martin in the 440 dash (prelim time of

Three other records bit the dust Thursday as Lake Brantley's Bucky Chambers broke the shot put mark with a heave of 54-91/2. Lake Howell's Jeff VanBuskirk established a new mark in the 880 with a time of 1:59.9 and Lake Mary's Brad Smith broke ex-Lake Mary runner Derek Tangeman's record in the two mile with a 9:49.3.

'I'm going out a little faster in the first mile and doing better workouts in practice." Smith said. "My goal is to get into the 9:30s and place at state.'

Another Lake Mary athlete, who had a good night was sophomore Erwin Edwards who won the high point trophy in the boys meet with 15 points. Edwards won the long jump. (20-2), was second in the 220 (22.9) and fourth in the 440

Along with Chambers' record in the shot, Lake Brantley got an outstanding meet from sprinter Clint Johnson who won the 100 meters in 11.0 and took third in the 220 (23.2).

IN BRIEF

Flames Skate Past Edmonton, Secure Hold On Second Place

United Press International

The Calgary Flames seem more concerned about avoiding third place than overtaking the Edmonton Oilers for the Smythe Division lead.

The Flames won for the 16th time in their last 19 games Thursday night by defeating the Oilers 5-4. Edmonton has the NHL's best record, 45-21-5, but has lost to Calgary in five of six meetings this season.

The rivalry between the two teams has become one of the NHL's best, escalating last season when Calgary eliminated the Oilers from the Stanley Cup playoffs in seven games.

This season, the Flames haven't fared as well against the rest of the league as they have when playing the Oilers. Calgary is in second place in the Smythe, seven points behind Edmonton and — more importantly to one Flame—six ahead of third-place Winnipeg. Unless Calgary passes Edmonton, the Jets and Flames are destined to meet in the opening round of the playoffs, with the home-ice edge going to the second-place team.

In other games, Boston ripped Minnesota 6-2, Los Angeles tripped Philadelphia 5-2 and the New York Islanders nipped Detroit 5-4.

Iowa State Takes NCAA Lead

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) - lowa State is doing its best to frustrate cross-state rival lowa's quest for NCAA

Iowa State grabbed the lead after two rounds in the NCAA wrestling championships at the University of Maryland Thursday. The Cyclones still have a long way to go to prevent lows from winning an unprecedented 10th straight NCAA title.

lowa State, powered by second-round pins by 126-pounder Bill Kelly and 158-pounder Stewart Carter, advanced six wrestlers into today's quarterfinals and posted a two-round total of 32.75 points. Only 4.75 points separate the first four teams. Oklahoma State, which led by .75 after the completion of the first round earlier Thursday, dropped to second place with 32.0, while Penn State moved up a notch to third at 30.75 and lowa fell one spot to fourth at 28.0.

Replay Gets Another Chance

KAANAPALI, Hawaii (UPI) - NFL owners have given instant replay a second life — barely.

A proposal to extend the use of instant replay to next season garnered just the 21 votes it needed for passage Thursday. Seven teams - Cincinnati, the New York Giants, the New York Jets, Pittsburgh, New England, St. Louis and Kansas City — opposed using replay in the 1987 scason.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle backed the proposal and did some last-minute lobbying with the owners.

"I didn't twist any arms," the commissioner said. "I just told two or three owners before the meeting that I was for it. I told them now that the antitrust suit (USFL suit) was out of the way I was going to be more involved with it this year. I told them I thought we could do a better job for them this year."

Gilder Warns Mast: 'Look Out'

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Veteran Bob Gilder issued a friendly warning to Dick Mast, who emerged from a 144-man field to grab the first-round lead in the $500,000

"Look out, I'm right behind you," Gilder said Thursday at Lakewood Country Club after firing a 7-under-par 65, Mast, an Ohio native now living in Orlando, Fla., shot an 8-under-par 64 and narrowly missed holing a 7-iron for an eagle on the par-4, 410-yard fourth hole. He later sank a 35-foot birdie putt on the par-3 13th — one of his eight birdies in the round. Mast, who has not won yet on the PGA tour, one-putted 10 greens.

Ben Crenshaw and Brian Claar were two shots off the pace at 66.

Father: Bosworth Is With Team

NORMAN, Okia. (UPI) — Brian Bosworth's father says the Okiahoma linebacker is currently practicing with the Sooners and called "erroneous" a report his son had been thrown off the team.

The Norman Transcript Thursday quoted Sconers Coach Barry Switzer as saying Bosworth, a two-time winner of the Butkus Award as the nation's top linebacker, will not return to Oklahoma for his senior season.

"Bosworth has been gone since the Orange Bowle it. humors me to see the attention he gets. He's gone. He's history." Switzer was quoted in the Transcript.

But Foster Bosworth in Irving, Texas, called the Transcript's report "totally erroneous.

Stewart Donates Bay Hill Check

ORLANDO (UPI) — In memory of his father, Payne Stewart has given to cancer charity the $108,000 winner's check from last weekend's Herts Bay Hill Classic, the knickered golfer's first PGA victory in three years.

"I'd like to tell you a little bit about my father," Stewart said in announcing the donation Thursday. "He was an important part of my life and of the lives of my mother and

Jordan Dazzles Clippers

United Press International Michael Jordan worked another of his NBA miracles Thursday night. He sold out the Los Angeles Sports Arena.

Jordan scored 40 points -reaching that plateau for the 30th time this season — to help the Chicago Bulls halt a sixgame losing streak with a 114-97 victory over the Los Angeles Clippers.

That was something, but selling out a Clippers games is stupendous. Jordan's charisma and breathtaking dunks brought 15,371 out to watch the Clippers, the worst team in the NBA with an 11-53 record. The Clippers, who were averaging 7,518 fans entering the game, played before their first sellout crowd in over two years.

"He is the show," said Clippers coach Don Chaney. "There is not doubt about it, he is the one the people come out to see."

Los Angeles, which has lost three straight games and nine of its last 10, was led by Quintin Dailey, who came off the bench to score 18 of his 22 points after intermission. Gene Banks added 24 points for the Bulls while Benoit Benjamin contributed 20 for the Clippers. Chicago, leading 83-73 with nine minutes remaining, sealed the victory when Jordan scored 11 points in a 22-12 run that produced a 105-85 bulge with 2:38 to play. The league's lead-ing scorer, averaging over 37 points a game, had 14 points in the final period.

Jordan scored 16 points and Banks added 12 as Chicago built a 50-46 halftime lead. Jordan added 10 and Banks had 8 more in the third period, and the Bulls' advantage grew to a 79-68 entering the final period.

"Everybody was expecting for me to do everything," said Jordan. "I sat back and let the game come to me instead of chasing it.'

Bullets 110, Sonics 106

At Landover, Md., Jay Vincent scored a season-high 29 points to help the Bullets withstand a Seattle rally. Jeff Malone finished with 24 points for Washington. Xavier McDaniel mushed with 20 points for Scattle. Knicks 111, Pacers 105 (OT) At New York, Trent Tucker recorded 6 of his 22 points in overtime and Gerald Wilkins scored a game-high 34 points to lead the Knicks. Patrick Ewing left the game when he slipped on an apparent wet spot on the floor and suffered a sprained left knee. John Long had 24 points for the

Pacers. Mavericks 105, Kings 104

At Sacramento, Calif., James Donaldson and Rolando Blackman converted 2 free throws apiece in the last minute to help the Mavericks to the victory. Mark Aguirre scored a game-high 28 points and Blackman finished with 24 for Dallas. Reggie Theus led Sacramento with 18 points.

Warriors 125, Blazers 124 At Oakland, Calif., Sleepy Floyd scored 24 points, including a free throw with 45 seconds to play, for Golden State, Joe Barry Carroll led the Warriors with 31 points. Kiki Vandeweghe and Clyde Drexler scored 25 points apiece for the Trail Blazers.

Gardening

Beware Of Common Garden, Landscape Plants Containing Poisons

Many gardeners and homeowners, especially those coming south to live, are not aware that some of our common garden and landscape plants contain highly poisonous substances. Most of these plants have such an unpleasant taste that it is not likely anyone would want to chew them very long, much less swallow them. This usually applies to adults, but children are something else. They may eat small amounts of anything, especially if a dare is involved. Even a tiny tot in a playpen may reach out and pull in anything that is within reach.

Concerned parents should teach their children as soon as possible not to put anything in their mouths except food. Smart adults, too, should refrain from chewing on leaves and twigs of plants as they walk through a garden or woods. Collecting and eating wild mushrooms, unless you positively know they are edible, is dangerous business in the south. And, unfortunately, there are no guides available for identification of edible wild mushrooms for our area.

Skin irritation or dermatitis is the most common form of plant poisoning. It is caused by contact with plants you may not be aware of. If such a problem arises, you should make an effort to remember which plant caused the difficulty and avoid it in the future. Not everyone is susceptible to all or any such plants, so those who are generally susceptible know to avoid the problem plants.

One of the most common poisonous plants you'll find, especially in the outlying areas is poison-ivy. This noxious, blistering weed is a real problem for many people. If you're allergic to this one, and you think you can avoid it by staying home, you may be sadly mistaken.

If your home is on a wooded lot, or in a recently developed area, you could easily have a problem with poison-ivy. Remember the old saying, "leaflets three — let it be." Generally, poison-ivy is found in wooded areas, climbing trees. It is also found in abundance as a ground plant, growing about a foot high.

If you're allergic to poison-ivy, you'll know it.

You don't have to touch their fur, and when you pet them - you get a good case of polson-lvy.

If you find poison by growing in your land-scape, don't try to pull it out by hand. First, you may get a good itch from it, and second, you may be propagating the plants as you break off the roots. The best control is to spray with a herbicide, such as Amitrole, Kleenup, Roundup or ammonium sulfamate. These can be sprayed on the bark of trees where poison-ivy is growing without affecting the trees. Avoid getting it on the foliage of desirable plants, though.

Carolina-jessamine, sometimes known as yellow-jessamine or yellow-jasmine, is another plant that can cause severe dermatitis in some folks. It is a common climbing vine, rather pretty, with fragrant yellow blooms. But, it is poisonous. It's genus is Gelsemium, which tells you something, as it contains an alkaloid, gelsemine. This alkaloid depresses and paralyzes nerve endings, and severe poisoning can result in respiratory arrest.

A more common plant, widely grown in our area, is the oleander. Because all parts of the plant are poisonous, this is one to avoid. One leaf is reported to be sufficient to kill an adult human. And, the dry leaves are almost as poisonous as the green ones. Children may be poisoned by carrying flowers around in their mouths. Many unsuspecting individuals have been poisoned by making hot-dog sticks from the straight stems at picnics. Inhaling smoke from burning oleander stems has caused poisoning, also. And, simply handling the plants with bare hands can cause dermatitis in susceptible individuals. Is it worth planting in your landscape?

A relative of the oleander, and the Confederate jasmine, too, is the yellow allamanda. In spite of its beautiful flowers, the allamanda is potsonous. The bark, leaves, seeds and juice have been used for their cathartic effect.

The tropical mango is another plant that is botanically related to poison-ivy. And, folks susceptible to poison-ivy would do well to avoid mangos. You may develop a dermatitis from handling any part of the plant. Cooking the fruit destroys the causal material that causes irrita-

The best advice is to learn which plants may cause problems, and teach your children not to put any plant parts. seeds, or flowers into their mouths - stick to the meat and potatoes and fresh veggies from the garden!

Happy gardening!

Ex-Serviceman Blames Tattoo For Testing Positive For AIDS

DEAR ABBY: The last year of my military duty I decided to have a tatoo on my upper arm. I now have a civilian job and have been in it for the last two years.

I was recently tested for AIDS, and I tested positive! I am not a homosexual, I am not a drug abuser, I have never had a blood transfusion and, although this may be hard to believe, I have has agreed, so when the time never had sex without a con-

UNCERTAIN FUTURE

DEAR UNCERTAIN: It's commendable of you to want to warn others. I consulted Dr. Arnold Klein, an eminent dermatologist and a director of the American Foundation for AIDS Research. He said, "It is important to known WHEN you were tested, also if confirmatory testing was done to be sure your reaction was not a false positive. Although it's theoretically feasible to transmit AIDS from a very shallow needle puncture. the incidence on record is rare."

Since you are in none of the high risk groups, you should repeat the tests, and if you are indeed positive, then see your physician to determine the status of your immune system and to what extent the virus has affected your body. Then determine what you must do to protect yourself and keep from spreading the virus. Your physician will instruct you.

DEAR ABBY: My sister-in-law (I'll call her Charlotte), 41, and her husband have four lovely boys (ages 10, 8, 6 and 3). Last October they flew to Sidney, Australia, for an "in vitro fertilization" of a baby girl. (It's a rather new process whereby the male and female chromosomes can be identified and separated, and the parents can select the sex they want. They did this because they didn't want another boy.)

However, she has made one exception - our 7-year-old daughter, whom she has asked to be the flower girl in the wedding. We accepted. The catch is that we also have a 4-year-old daughter whom my sister is specifically not inviting.

Naturally, we objected. We told her that we were not about to hurt the feelings of our younger daughter, and if she can't go to the wedding, none of us (including our older daughter) will attend. My sister insists that we are being insensitive to her feelings and her rights as the bride-to-be.

package was based, did involve all the cities. And the cities will have a voice on a Technical Advisory Committee in the future.

Concerning the timetable for construction, Hooper said a computerized model was made projecting futtire population growth to the year 2005. Also. county commissioner Sandra Gienn added, the county already has much of the right of way for Lake Mary Boulevard, whereas work on some of the southerly roads would involve "totally new construction," necessitating a longer work time.

Mrs. Glenn said part of the reason for not involving the cities in the decision-making process was, "We'd probably still be talking about it."

Winter Springs Mayor John Torcaso had more to say.

He said he believed that only charter counties had the right to impose a county-wide impact fee - but he was told by impact fees legal counsel Bob Nabors that it's a legal issue and the county's opinion would probably prevail.

Mayor Torcaso also wanted to know why Red Bug Lake Road and Tuskawilla Road "which are 80 percent over capacity" had to wait so many years for construction. "And why didn't the county go to the cities for information first?"

"I didn't think that was the right way to go about it," he said.

But the loudest verbal assault came from Casselberry City Council member Andrea Dennison. She spoke about the need for more east-west routes in the county, pleading that one of them, Lake Drive, should not be dropped from the list of improvements.

"The county receives parimutuel funds and spends them on the Port of Sanford." she said. She then asked why the money was not used where it is generated (the south end of the county) to pay for the road work needed there (According to Port of Sanford Director Dennis Dolgner, the Port mas not received county funds since 1983), "Let's get it (the funds) back home where it belongs." Ms. Dennison said. "By dropping the road you're not solving the problem: you're only dropping the cost." She added that the road counts on Seminola Boulevard were taken in the spring "when the dog track was not open" and thus, lower numbers were generated.

She accused Streetman of trying to placate her with too many "I thinks" and "I believes."

"What do you know?" she demanded. "We need something other than litigation to make sure our concerns are met. As it stands now, the county will make the decision, and that's scary. We want to do something together here."

Streetman replied: "I Know that there will be a technical committee with input from the cities, and I know that everybody's not going to be happy. But this board is never going to turn a deaf car to you."

He added, however, the final decision must remain with the county commission.

Cindy Kaehler, commissioner of Winter Springs, joined others in voicing the opinion that the same impact fee rate should be charged county-wide.

"Why change the rates in each district? We are to pay a higher fee and not see the changes for 15-20 years," she said.

She was told that district fees are fairer because certain areas will be getting more benefit. And a standards-driven system in which fees would all be the same doesn't "lay the cards on the table" and tell the people exactly which roads are going to be fixed: It also doesn't guarantee there will be enough money raised for each of the project.

But the arguments pursued that Volusia. Lake and Orange. counties all have a standardsdriven system (rather than improvements-driven) and pay the same rate county-wide. County officials stressed that Seminole will be ahead of its time if it takes the newer approach.

Commissioner Barbara Christensen, who strongly opposed some of the features of the ordinance as it stood last week and wanted more input from Casselberry and Winter Springs. was not at the meeting Wednesday night.

Here is one of the options the consultant Randy Young presented to the cities for their consideration:

• The north district pay $445 per new home or equivalent commercial space, with inclusion of improvements to Lake Drive, or $433 without those improvements:

• The east district (including Oviedo) pay $529, with Lake Drive included, or $514 without

• The south-central district (including Winter Springs and Casselberry) pay $788 with Lake Drive included, or $575 without

• The west district (including Longwood and Altamonte Springs) pay $572 with Lake Drive, or $556 without it.

Another option for Winter Springs and Casselberry would be for the county to allow them to pay the $572 rate for a year to see what the necessary level would be.

No final decisions have been

Retired General Outlines Arms Sales Profits Diversion Scheme

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Retired Army Maj. Gen. John Singlaub claims he sought contributions from two foreign governments for the Nicaraguan rebels and said he could hide the donations by overcharging the governments on an arms deal and diverting the profits to the Contras, the Washington Post said today.

The plan by Singlaub, a staunch Contra supporter, is similar to the scheme that eventually became the Iran arms-Contra ald scandal.

Singlaub led a private campaign to raise funds for the Contras from 1984 to 1988 — when Congress outlawed direct U.S. involvement in military aid for the rebels.

The retired Army general told the Post he discussed his plan with Lt. Col. Oliver North, who then was a National Security Council aide. North later was fired for his role in the Iran-Contra affair.

Students Protest Campus Racism

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) - As many as 100 students today continued an overnight sit-in protesting racism at the University of Michigan, which in a surprise move granted an honorary degree to South African activist Nelson Mandels.

The peaceful alt-in began with 100 to 150 students Thursday in the school's administration building and between 70 and 100 students were allowed to stay overnight on the building's floor, officials said. No arrests were made.

University regents were scheduled to meet in the building today, but a protester, who declined to give his name, said the demonstration would continue until administrators act on increasing black enrollment and promoting minority educators.

"Peltergeist III" HOLLYWOOD (UPI)

- "Poltergeist III" will begin filming at MGM Rubinstein, the tiny actress who played a psychic in the first two films, returning as co-star.

The second of the horror film sequels will be shot entirely on location in Chicago with post-production work scheduled for Hollywood.

Heather O'Rourke also will star in "Poltergeist III," which was written by Gary Sherman and Brian Taggert. Sherman will also direct the film.

enny Is The Source For Their Thoughts

Dear Dick: Please tell me if Joe Penny, who played the groom in "Blood Vows," is the same person as Aidan Quinn, who played the son, thris, on the recent "All My Sons." They look masingly similar. - P.B., Kalamasoo, Mich.

CONTRACTOR STANDARD PLANTS OF THE PARTY.

Dear Dick: I saw Joe Penny in "Blood Vows: The Story of a Mafia Wife," and thought he was arrific. Could you please tell me more about i=? - K.P., Knozville, Tenn.

Dear K.P.: Lots of letters about Joe, and he descrives the attention - he's one of the nicest stars around. Joe Penny and Aidan Quinn are two different gentlemen. Penny, who was one of the stars of "Riptide," is the son of an Air Force man. He was born in London; where his father was stationed at the time. Penny grew up all over -Florida, Texas, Georgia, Mississippi; and, eventually, Southern California. He began acting as a teenager. And he has had a slow, but steady rise.

Dear Dick: I have a dinner for four bet on the following question and I hope your answer is in my favor. Are Karen Valentine (Room 222) and Sally Field (aka Gidget) sisters? My friend claims they have the same father. I say no. -

Ask Dick Kleiner

M.S., Santa Paule, Calif.

Dear M.S.: May I suggest the broccoll souffle? You win. The two are totally unrelated.

Dear Dick: While recently watching "Super Password," I noticed an actress by the name of Ann Dusenberry. Since this is my maiden name and, needless to say, an unusual name, I am curious to know her background. - Mrs. J.M., Houston.

Dear Mrs. J.M: Ann came from Tucson, originally, and went to Occidental College. She began acting in college and continued afterwards. On TV, she was a regular in the short-lived "Little Womeh" series. She is a bright and talented young actress.

Dear Dick: My husband loved to see Red

Skelton in his skits on TV. I am wendering if he made any movies. Are any of them available on video cassette? — Mrs. J.A.K., Burton, W. Va.

Dear Mrs. J.A.K.: Skelton made many movies. Among the best were "Whistling in the Dark," "DuBarry Was a Lady," "Merton of the Movies" and "The Yellow Cab Man." And literally dozens more. You would have to check on their VCR availability at your local video store.

Dear Dick: Lindsay Wagner - "The Bionic Woman" — bears an incredible resemblance to Anne Bancroft. Are they related in any way? -

P.E.P., Pottaville, Pa.

Dear P.E.P.: I see no resemblance whatsoever and they are unrelated.

Dear Dick: Could you please tell me which western series the actor who pertrays Adam Chandler in "All My Children" performed in years ago? Nebedy else can figure it out but you. — L.Q., Dumas, Texas.

Dear L.Q.: Thank you for them kind words. Adam Chandler is played by David Canary, who used to be
