Thousands Flee Homes As Deluge Continues

United Press International

The deluge in the West began its second week today with no end in sight to the wind, snow, rain and floods that have cut off towns, shut down roads, knocked out power and forced thousands of people to flee from their homes.

At least 15 people have been killed in flooding, mud slides, avalanches and high surf spawned by a series of storms that began Feb. 12. More than 8,000 people had fled from floods in northern and central California, and other evacuations were reported in Nevada and Colorado.

Heavy, wind-whipped rain soaked the northern and central California coast today, snow pelted the mountains to the east, and the National Weather Service said developing tropical storms were backed up deep into the Pacific Ocean.

"We're not going to see any end of this in the foreseeable future," said NWS forecaster Harry Gordon. "Even though the storms appear to be lessening, a change in the wind two degrees one way or the other could change all that, and ... with all the rain they've gotten so far, even a little is bad news."

Of the 15 deaths blamed on the storms, 13 were in California, including eight believed drowned, one presumed dead in a mud slide, one killed in a car crash, one killed in a small-plane crash in fog, one buried in an avalanche, and one crushed by wind-blown scaffolding. Avalanches also killed one skier in Wyoming and another in Utah.

In California, Gov. George Deukmejian issued emergency declarations for three counties Tuesday. Cargo helicopters rescued flood-victims, and police urged stranded residents to hang white sheets out their windows as distress signals.

Helicopters Tuesday airlifted 350 of the 480 people stranded in Guerneville, where 18.9 inches of rain pushed the Russian River 17 feet above flood stage. In nearby Monte Rio the water was so high, helicopters were unable to land.

Seventeen inches of rain in Napa lifted the Napa River 5 feet above flood stage, inundating 24 blocks and forcing 5,000 to 7,000 people to flee. City Manager David Flinigan said damages would run "in the millions of dollars."

There were also 50 evacuations in Santa Clara, 1,300 in Glenn County, 1,300 in San Joaquin County, 20 in Humboldt County and 600 in Solano County. A total of 65 families fled in Gilroy, San Mateo County and East Palo Alto.

The Pacific Gas & Electric Co. said blackouts affected 670,000 customers at one time or another but that power was restored quickly to most places.

A temporary dam at the site of the Auburn Dam project partially collapsed Tuesday, sending almost 60,000 acre-feet of water rushing down the American River into Folsom Reservoir.

Engineers said the rupture posed no serious threat because there was enough storage space behind the dam.

School Board Food Service Ruling Due

By Paul Schaefer
Herald Staff Writer

A decision is expected tonight on who will operate Seminole County schools' cafeteria service in the next academic year.

The School Board of Seminole County scheduled the special one-item meeting when it was obvious the topic needed more time than could be given in its regular session meeting last week.

The school board is weighing whether to retain control of the food service operation within the school system, or accept bids to contract the operation to an outside company.

After last week's meeting when a decision was initially expected, board member Bill Kroll accused school Superintendent Robert W. Hughes of organizing the large turn-out of school food service employees who do not want an outside company to run the operation. Hughes denied the charge. Kroll said he would organize students and parents to attend tonight's meeting in hopes of countering the food service group.

Kroll told the Evening Herald this morning the student-parent contingent at the meeting will probably not be as large as he hoped, because of limited organizational time.

Kroll contends the student-parent group will say new management is needed, in hopes it would provide better quality and variety of food. Hughes said it will be his recommendation that the system retain control of the food service operation for at least another year.

District Assistant Superintendent for Business and Finance Carey E. Ferrell reported to the board recently that the food service operation has made a dramatic financial turnaround during the 1985-86 year. His figures indicate the operation has gone from losing $250,000 during the 1984-85 year, to making a projected profit of $100,000 this school year.

Guards Spot Sewn-In Marijuana; Woman Joins Boyfriend In Jail

A Sanford woman who returned to the Seminole County jail to demand why clothing she brought to the jail for her boyfriend hadn't been handed over to him was given a reason. And it landed her in jail.

Sheriff's investigator John Butler reported the woman brought clothing to the jail Sunday for Raymond Bennett, 42, of 1208 Wynn St., who has been jailed since Feb. 6 on a grand theft and possession of stolen property charge.

The woman, reputed to be Bennett's girlfriend, had also been arrested on the same charges at the same time, but had been released on $2,000 bond, sheriff's records show.

Yankee Lake Alternate To Get Scrutiny

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford engineers are to begin studies this week to determine whether a 1,700-acre parcel lying off Lake Jesup can be used as a site for the city's wastewater disposal system. The Yankee Lake alternative was offered to the city for $1,615,000 on Tuesday by an Orlando realty firm.

Another alternative site, 145 acres offered by realtor/developer E. Everette Huskey for $4.4 million on Feb. 5, proved "too small, too expensive and too far away from Sanford," City Manager Frank Faison said today.

The Huskey property is located south of Yankee Lake, between the Longwood-Markham Woods Road and the Wekiva River.

Faison also said the Huskey site's proximity to the Wekiva River poses an environmental problem that might also exist at the Lake Jesup site.

Faison said wastewater spillover into water bodies is opposed by the state Department of Environmental Regulation, which has mandated the Sanford program and is providing partial funding for it. The Lake Jesup parcel has three miles of shoreline running south of State Road 46.

The site's purchase by the city, "depends on what kind of soil conditions our engineers find," according to Faison, who said the studies will determine the property's ability to absorb effluent through a land application system.

Under its DER mandated program, Sanford needs a site that can accommodate land disposal of 8.3 million daily gallons of effluent. The system Sanford hoped to build at Yankee Lake would have been able to handle approximately 7.2 million gallons of effluent a day.

The 2,867-acre property, however, is owned by Seminole County following Sanford's unsuccessful condemnation bid. The city has yet to determine whether it wishes to pursue ownership by launching another condemnation effort.

The county is conducting studies at Yankee Lake for a wetlands disposal system and expects to have the results early next month. Preliminary estimates by the county target a Yankee Lake wetlands system that could handle between 16 and 24 million gallons of effluent a day.

The county, however, may face difficulty in obtaining a DER permit to operate a wetlands system. The agency has already indicated that this manner of disposal would drain too much effluent into Yankee Lake.

No Question MIAs Alive, Team Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressional team returning from two days of talks with Vietnamese officials in Hanoi has brought back the first official evidence that some men listed as missing in action are alive in Southeast Asia.

The nine-man delegation, led by Rep. Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y., was to hold a news conference today to report on the trip, during which Vietnamese Deputy Foreign Minister Hoang Bich Son conceded, for the first time, that some Americans may be living in Vietnam by their own choice.

According to the delegation, however, the foreign minister claimed the Vietnamese government is not aware of any specific cases of U.S. servicemen remaining in Indochina.

Although several American groups have visited Vietnam, none has come back with clear evidence that any Americans are there.

However, Solomon told the NBC "Today" program, "There's no longer any question that there are live Americans in Vietnam. The question is: Who are they, how many of them are there?"

Solomon said they could be

Alaska Too 'Rough' For Mail-Order Bride To Be

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — Jill Bandoek went to a remote mining town three months ago in response to an ad for mail-order brides.

Tom Williams, who placed the newspaper ad, "Mail Order Brides Wanted," said, "All of us have a fantasy, and she was mine, but it's not a fantasy anymore."

Ms. Bandoek, 22, and Williams, 40, lived in Paystrecke, the 19th century-style mining town he is building 90 miles south of Anchorage and 5 miles from the nearest running water and electricity. But she found life too primitive and the weather too cold, so she left her man and headed home.

"It's pretty rough territory out there, and it seemed to get rougher," Ms. Bandoek said Tuesday. "The cold gets to you, waking up every day and it's 12 degrees inside and sometimes the fire goes out."

The couple went to a resort near Tokyo last month as the guests of a Japanese businessman, and they took part in a local wedding ceremony. But Williams said because they did not sign all the necessary papers, they were not legally married. They had planned a wedding this summer.

Both cited personal reasons for the mutual split. Ms. Bandoek also said she just could not get used to living in Paystrecke.

Williams has lived on his 18-acre mining claim for years. Last September he advertised for mail-order brides to boost the morale of his all-male work force building the old mining town.

Williams figures he can make more money mining tourist dollars at the site than mining for gold, which he said he still finds from time to time.

The ad and subsequent nationwide publicity attracted letters from all over the world — 3,600 at last count, Williams said. A handful of women came to Paystrecke, some turned it into a vacation then left, and just one remains.

Ms. Bandoek said, "I have no regrets. I made some good friends, and it's an experience I'll never forget."

Williams said, "I have regrets. The relationship was fast and passionate. You don't leave it gleefully. But we're not yelling and screaming at each other, saying, 'You get the cat, I'll take the dog.'"

"I think we rushed into something we shouldn't have rushed into."

Longwood Subdivision OK'd

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

After more than a year in the process, numerous concessions and an hour and a half discussion Monday night, developer Centex Homes of Florida, Inc., got unanimous approval by the Longwood City Commission of the final plat and plans for its Hidden Oak Estates subdivision.

The 44.3-acre site zoned R-1 single-family residential is located south of Longwood Hills Road, east of West Lake and will have 100 homes with the average price between $80,000 and $100,000.

The developer was praised by the commissioners for agreeing to put in a draw-down system independent of the stormwater system that will lower the level of 30-acre West Lake which has a 145-acre basin draining into it. Because the system will also relieve the flooding problem in surrounding developments, the city has agreed to pay up to half the cost, not to exceed $15,000.

City Planner Chris Nagle said, "Centex is not creating the problem so it would be unfair to ask them to bear the whole cost for the drainage."

Mayor Larry Goldberg said the $200 Centex has pledged to pay the city per house for parks will be deducted from the money the city will owe for its share of the draw-down system and later paid back to the parks department. Centex opted to pay the money rather than develop a city park for the public within the subdivision. A small park is planned for use of the residents. A flooding problem in the 4-acre park during the rainy season is expected to be alleviated by the draw-down system.

Nagle said the lake is now at its highest level since records have been kept — 62 feet — and the drainage mechanism and pipe when installed will maintain the lake level at 2 to 3 feet lower than at present. It is designed in the event of a 100-year storm to reduce it back to normal in seven days.

The stormwater off the streets will drain in three directions: one into East Lake; two into West Lake and one into Soldier's Creek.

Several subdivisions are already draining into West Lake and at previous hearings, residents around West Lake and Soldier's Creek had expressed concern that the proposed development would cause them flooding problems.

The developer first came to the city with a request for a Planned Unit Development on the property, which was denied due to lack of sewer capacity and was later rezoned from R-1A to R-1 on May 20. The preliminary plan was approved on July 22, 1985.

Even though City Attorney Gerald Korman said the city could not legally require Centex to do so, developer Andrew Hannigan agreed to put up a wooden fence along the back lot lines as houses

Jail Rape Trial Slated To Open Today

Trial for a Seminole County jail inmate accused with raping his cellmate is scheduled to open today.

Stephen William Bradley, 30, of Taft is charged with rape. He faces a sentence of life imprisonment, if convicted of the sexual battery charge. He is already serving 19 years on separate, unrelated charges.

Jury selection began Monday. The charge stems from an incident Jan. 25, 1985, while two men were being housed in a one-man cell at the Seminole County jail because of overcrowding.

According to court records, the victim said the assailant threatened him with a sharp object but he could not say what the object was because it was dark in the cell when he was attacked.

The victim was transported to Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford where he was examined by Dr. Sara Irrgang. The doctor reported that damage to the victim's tissue indicated he had been sodomized by having something forced into his body, a sheriff's report said.

Bradley was arrested at the jail about four hours after the alleged incident.

He was initially jailed Nov. 29, 1984, on a burglary charge after being caught inside a police officer's home going through the officer's wife's purse. The officer pursued Bradley and held him at gunpoint until other officer's arrived.

Another charge was logged against Bradley after the sodomy charge when a guard reported being struck by the inmate. The incident occurred in June as the man was being moved from one cell to another. The correction officer was injured only slightly and did not need medical attention.

In October, Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. sentenced Bradley, who has a dozen aliases and more than 20 previous offenses on his record, to 15 years for the burglary of the officer's home.

while she was inside the bar for about two hours, was arrested by Casselberry police after witnesses reported they were concerned for the safety of the children if the woman who was apparently intoxicated attempted to drive, police reported.

The children were asleep in the car when police approached the vehicle at about 2 a.m. Tuesday and the woman was in the driver's seat. She was reportedly uncooperative and grabbed her driver's license from a policeman a couple of times and shoved the officer, police said.

Police charged her with resisting arrest, battery on a police officer and disorderly conduct. The children were turned over to Florida Health and Rehabilitative Services, a police report said.

Jo Ellen Cramer, 27, of Orlando, was being held in the Seminole County jail in lieu of $1,000 bond.

STRONG ARM ROBBERIES
A thief who bought two pieces of candy and then demanded cash when the register was open at Cumberland Farms, 2550 State Road 434, Longwood, at about 10 p.m. Monday, got away with an undetermined amount of cash.

The store's clerk told Seminole County sheriff's deputies the man had a silver revolver in the waistband of his pants and he fled to the rear of the store on foot following the robbery.

Meanwhile, at the Eastern service station, State Road 436 at Lake Howell Road, Altamonte Springs, two boys reported when they drove up to the station their vehicle was approached by five to six men who intimidated them.

One of the suspects reached into the car and ripped a $180 gold chain from the neck of Gino David Vogt, 17, of 888 Little Bend Road, Altamonte Springs.

The men also allegedly took $4 from Vogt and his companion, Stephen Wade Fortna, 17, of 124 Sandalwood Way, Longwood, a sheriff's report said.

The incident occurred at 8:40 p.m. Monday, deputies said.

WIFE WITH BLACK EYES
A 35-year-old Sanford man who allegedly blackened both his wife's eyes has been charged with battery-spouse abuse.

Sanford police reported that when neighbors called them to 2442 Grandview Ave., because of a woman's screams, the suspect who answered the door said there was no problem and asked them to leave.

Police insisted on seeing the suspect's wife and the woman had two black eyes, police said. She was transported to Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, for treatment.

Michael Wayne Shaw, 35, was arrested at his home at 8:40 p.m. Monday and was released on $500 bond to appear in court Feb. 26.

BURGLARY ARREST
A man who allegedly burglarized the Tenneco, 1800 French Ave., Sanford, Monday, was arrested after Lake Avenue residents reported to police the suspect had left a bag containing eight cartons of cigarettes and some cash at their home. The man later reportedly returned for the money, but when police arrived at the home they found the cigarettes were marked with the store's stamp.

In the store burglary 20 cartons of cigarettes and $600 cash were stolen. The burglary was discovered at 6 a.m. Monday, Sanford police said.

Police located the suspect at his workplace where he reportedly had rolled coins, cigarettes and a pocketknife in his possession.

Brown DeLefeld, 32, of #76 Lake Monroe Terrace, Sanford, was charged with burglary and grand theft at Lowe's Truss Plant at 10:33 a.m. Monday. He has been released on $2,000 bond and is scheduled to appear in court March 10.

REFUSED TO LEAVE
A man who reportedly refused a manager's request to leave Jack's Place, 4225 U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry, at about 10:30 p.m. Monday, has been charged with trespassing after a warning and resisting arrest with violence.

Casselberry police said when they arrived at the bar an officer tried to escort the man outside. Police said he resisted and struggled with the policeman, hitting him in the eye with his elbow.

James Edward Neal, 25, no address listed, has been released on bond.

DUI ARRESTS
The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

Rex Paul Wasden, 29, of 747 E. Lake St., Longwood, was arrested at 1 a.m. Tuesday on State Road 434, Longwood, after his car failed to maintain a single lane. He was also charged with driving with a suspended license.

Lyle Addison Townsend III, 22, of Orlando, at 11:55 p.m. Monday after his car was clocked traveling more than 90 mph on Interstate 4, westbound, north of Longwood.

Sandy Lynn Wehrli, 37, of Yorkville, Fla., at 2:50 a.m. Tuesday on Wekiva Springs Road, Longwood, after her car, traveling at about 10 mph, was seen weaving on the roadway.

Sailor Gets Life In Murder Case; Appeal Expected

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — A sailor, spared the death penalty and sentenced to life in prison for killing a superior officer, says he hopes to prove on appeal that the slaying was not premeditated but an impulsive response to racial bigotry.

Petty Officer 3rd Class Mitchell Garraway, 21, showed no emotion when the jury foreman announced the sentence Tuesday for the murder of Lt. James Sterner, 35, of Woodbridge, N.J., who was knifed in the back aboard the USS Miller last summer.

The defendant's mother hugged her son after the sentence was read.

Garraway, who is black, contended the white officer was racist and denied him a promotion for which he qualified.

Reagan Unveils Aid Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Armed with secret intelligence reports and warnings of "a new Cuba" in the Americas, President Reagan is embarked on a new high-stakes drive to topple the Nicaraguan government.

After weeks of news leaks and speculation, Reagan tipped his hand to congressional leaders Tuesday and outlined a plan to provide $100 million in aid to rebels battling the leftist Sandinista government.

His proposal for about $30 million in non-lethal humanitarian aid and the rest in covert military assistance — the first since the fall of 1984 — set the stage for a tough new test in Congress of the "Reagan Doctrine."

The $27 million in humanitarian assistance Reagan accepted last year to avert a major foreign policy defeat runs out March 31.

Today, Reagan arranged to lobby House members on the eve of a symbolic visit to the Caribbean island of Grenada, which stands as the clearest illustration to date of his vow to counter the spread of communist influence in this hemisphere.

Tylenol Mother: Ban Too Late

NEW YORK (UPI) — The mother of a woman poisoned this month by cyanide-laced Tylenol says Johnson & Johnson should have stopped making the capsules after tainted Tylenol killed seven people in 1982, and the chairman of the company says he agrees.

"In hindsight, which is 20-20, I wish we had never gone back to marketing these capsules (after the 1982 Chicago-area deaths)," chairman James E. Burke said Tuesday in a television interview with WABC-TV in New York.

The death of Diane Elsrth, 23, of Peekskill, N.Y., Feb. 8, and the discovery of a second bottle of cyanide-tainted Extra-Strength Tylenol in Bronxville, N.Y., last week, caused Johnson & Johnson Monday to drop its entire line of over-the-counter drugs in capsule form.

"It's just three years too late," Elsrth's mother, Felicia, said in a telephone interview from her home.

Prince Gives Gold To Tycoon

DALLAS (UPI) — Billionaire H. Ross Perot, who boasts of his roots as a "poor country boy," was presented a gold medallion at a gala celebrity-studded dinner by a man born to inherit the British crown.

Prince Charles said of Perot late Tuesday: "He's somebody who believes in the overriding importance of the individual."

The prince cited Perot for his business skill in building a worldwide computer empire and for his private crusades to free his company's employees from Iran during the 1979 revolution and to seek better treatment of prisoners of war during the Vietnam War.

Ex-Rockwell Medic Says Drug, Alcohol Abuse Impaired Shuttle Work

PALM DESERT, Calif. (UPI) — A former medical director at Rockwell International charged Tuesday that serious drug and alcohol abuse may have led to shoddy workmanship by employees who helped build four space shuttles, including the doomed Challenger.

Up to 10 percent of the workers throughout Rockwell and as many as 25 percent of the workers at its Palmdale facility were impaired by alcohol or drugs while manufacturing or assembling the shuttles, Dr. Howard Frankel said in an interview Tuesday.

"The next time you fly a plane, you'd better check the tires," Frankel said.

Frankel, in an earlier, copyright interview with radio station KNWZ in Palm Desert, said Sunday he could "go on and on" about drug abuse in the company.

There are stories "of psychotics hallucinating on the job, of alcoholics so stuporous that they couldn't even stand up straight, of people so drugged out from PCP, heroin, cocaine, marijuana, and yet were allowed to remain on the job, working on the shuttle, constructing the shuttle, because of pressure brought on by the union and the bowing under of management to this pressure," Frankel said.

A Rockwell spokesman, confirming Frankel had served as medical director of the company's space transportation system division, called the physician's statements "inaccurate" and "irresponsible."

Frankel, since leaving Rockwell, practices medicine part-time and is preparing to go into business for himself marketing Exec-Med medical travel kits for executives and athletes.

Rockwell manufactures the actual shuttle but plays no part in building the booster rockets. A malfunction in one of the rockets is suspected of causing last month's explosion that destroyed the Challenger and killed its seven crew members.

brought to him from job sites in alcoholic stupors or drug-induced comas before he resigned in 1983, blaming Rockwell's refusal to fire the employees.

"I was getting tired and demoralized having these people come back once, twice, three times, four times," he said in the interview first broadcast Sunday by KNWZ.

"We're not talking about manufacturing an umbrella, or a pad or pencil — something disposable you can throw away."

"We're talking about a piece of the American Pie, a piece of equipment that several people's lives depended upon."

Frankel said he is convinced the alcohol and drug problems were responsible for shoddy workmanship.

He added that officials from Rockwell, the United Auto Workers Union, NASA and the Air Force were all aware of the problems but let them continue. Company and union officials dismissed the accusations.

"We think that Dr. Frankel's allegations are inaccurate and recklessly irresponsible," Ed Kennedy, a Rockwell spokesman, told United Press International Monday night.

He refused to elaborate, except to say that each situation relating to the use of drugs and alcohol by an employee is "treated individually."

Officials of the UAW, which represents Rockwell employees, insisted that the incidents Frankel described were isolated and defended the company record, saying the company follows a strict process for screening applicants.

Fire Chief Warns Of Unauthorized Fundraising Calls

There have been several instances recently of persons without permission soliciting funds in the name of the Sanford Fire Department, Fire Chief Tom Hickson reported today.

Hickson said the people have presented themselves at least four times to local residents as soliciting fund on behalf of the department.

He said there is no authorized fundraising at this time.

Hickson said the department's only authorized fundraiser is an annual gospel sing at the Sanford Civic Center the day after Thanksgiving.

"prisoners of war ... Americans that just stayed over after the war, or ... deserters."

"We've received so many live sightings from so many different sources that there just cannot be any question but what they're there. Because of this new attitude of the Vietnamese government, we really believe that they are now."

"The Vietnamese government has shifted from a position of 'There are no Americans in Vietnam' to a position that, 'There are no Americans under their control,' to the final position of this week that, 'There are no Americans under their control, but there could be Americans there they are unaware of.'"

Solomon said the deputy foreign minister "said to me and to the press, openly: That there could be Americans in the mountains, in the caves, in areas beyond their control."

"That, to me, is a significant breakthrough," said Solomon. "And I think that it's going to lead to, eventually, at least the accountability of some of those Americans."

"We've seen this position change over the last 18 months," said Solomon, who attributed this to the fact that "the country is in economic chaos, and I think that the Vietnamese government is ... desperate to gain recognition or normalizations, something that is going to lead to their being able to improve their economy by acceptance by the rest of the free world."

"They can't do that unless they account for these POW-MIAs."

In a separate disclosure, sources with access to Defense Intelligence Agency documents have supplied United Press International with recent evidence that at least four Americans have been seen alive after the return of other U.S. prisoners of war.

The Defense Department lists 2,441 people as unaccounted for in the Vietnam War, but the vast majority are believed to have been killed in remote places, or died at sea.

One of the men reported being seen, Earl Clyde Weatherman, 39, of California, disappeared in September 1967 from Danang after escaping from the brig, where he had been confined for striking a Marine officer. He was later sighted, according to the documents, in a Viet Cong prison camp.

Robert Garwood, the Marine private who was convicted after the war of collaborating with his Vietnamese captors, has told informants that he participated in a sham "burial service" for Weatherman, designed by the camp guards to convince the other American POWs that a successful escape from the camp was impossible.

The phony execution and burial described by Garwood took place April 1, 1968, and Weatherman is now listed in Defense Department records as "killed in confinement." But several American prisoners reported spotting the red-haired, blue-eyed Marine alive after that date.

According to Defense Intelligence Agency sources, Weatherman, taking the Vietnamese name Be, was seen living in or near an internment camp called Yen Bai, northwest of Hanoi and worked at one time for a state-owned construction company.

Mike Bannetta, who has collected information and published a newsletter about MIAs, also is aware of some of the documents supporting the belief that Weatherman was alive and healthy as late as 1976.

Kroll, however, disputed the report, arguing he has figures from a food service company that works as an outside contractor for school systems, showing Seminole County school cafeterias could have made $228,344, after paying support and management fees of $220,000. Kroll has said more time is needed to study the situation, but has found little support from the other board members.

Ferrell's report cited a larger variety and higher quality of food was a main factor in increased student consumption of school food, generating the financial turnaround. Kroll says the reason for the turnaround is 2,000 new students in the school system, and an increase in the price of lunches.

An overflow crowd is expected at Wednesday night's meeting. Kroll suggested the meeting be held at a high school auditorium so everyone interested could attend. That move was rejected by the board, and the 7:30 p.m. meeting will be held at the county school board offices, Mellonville Avenue, Sanford.

Junior Members Might Mess Up

When it comes to the spread of nuclear weapons, two aspects tend to get all the attention: the growing nuclear stockpiles of the two superpowers and the threat of nuclear proliferation by regional powers such as Israel, Pakistan and South Africa. But there is another nuclear proliferation issue, the growing strategic arsenals of the junior members of the world's nuclear club — Great Britain, France and China.

These three forces are small in comparison to those of the superpowers. Even when they are combined, their strategic warhead total is only about 400 weapons compared to more than 20,000 warheads in the hands of the U.S. and the U.S.S.R.

What is critical, however, is that all three nations have major nuclear modernization programs. Both the British and the French are deploying multiple warheads on their submarine missiles and even China, with its weak industrial base, is deploying new ICBM and missile subs. The British nuclear capability, now available against 64 Soviet targets, will in 10 years or so be able to strike more than 500. The French are making a similar increase. These 1,000 new British and French nuclear warheads could have a direct impact on U.S.-Soviet arms control talks, particularly if each of the two superpowers manages to cut back its forces to 4,500 warheads as envisioned in the recent Gorbachev offer.

At the very least, the British and French nuclear expansions (not to mention the Chinese effort) have the potential to disturb seriously any U.S.-Soviet arms deal. While an arms pact is still possible, the negotiations — like a five-sided chess game — could become more complicated.

Guard Resources

The Rocky Mountain states have some of the world's most beautiful scenery. Nothing is more magnificent than Wyoming's Grand Tetons, the pure white glaciers of Montana, the snowy peaks of Colorado, Utah's Zion National Park, and Arizona's Grand Canyon.

Despite the encroachment of modern civilization, there are huge, unspoiled forests and clear, rushing streams in the Rockies. Hikers and horseback riders still can find precious places that remain unspoiled and unchanged.

But many of the streams that once nurtured large fish populations are no longer clean and clear. They are the victims of toxic waste that has seeped from hundreds of abandoned mines. They are a legacy of 19th- and early 20th-century mining booms.

In Colorado alone, according to that state's geologist, John Rold, 450 miles of streams no longer can support fish populations. In the older Eastern states, the situation is even worse because there are many more abandoned mines.

There is no easy way to clean up the old mines to prevent seepage. It will cost a lot of money to do the job. But it is an investment that the states and the nation must make if we are to have clean, beautiful and drinkable water for future generations.

A New Team Needed By The Democrats

By Steve Gerstel
WASHINGTON (UPI) — In choosing their starting five to go up against President Reagan and the annual State of the Union address, the Democrats would have been better off with basketball players from the University of North Carolina and Georgia Tech.

They could have fielded Brad Daugherty, Kenny Smith and Steve Hale of the Tar Heels and Mark Price and Bruce Dairymple of the Yellowjackets. With UNC's Dean Smith coaching them, Reagan would have taken a beating.

And that is just what happened to the president and his State of the Union address in parts of basketball-crazy Atlantic Coast Conference territory.

A number of broadcasters, forced to choose, opted to stay with one of those games of the year — top-ranked North Carolina against (then) second-ranked Georgia Tech — and their viewers should be eternally grateful.

Instead, the Democrats put together a team of Sen. George Mitchell of Maine, Rep. Thomas Daschle of South Dakota, Rep. William Gray of Pennsylvania, former Gov. Charles Robb of Virginia and Lt. Gov. Harriett Woods of Missouri.

Now that team has a nice geographic balance and includes the requisite woman and black — but there is not an All-American among them. As for charisma, there isn't any.

After eternal haggling with the networks, the Democrats and Republicans won equal or nearly equal time to respond to the president when the man in the White House was not a member of their party.

In all the years since, neither party has found the people or the program to stir any interest in the product. The Democrats, over the years, have tried virtually every conceivable combination to translate equal time into equal attention. Nothing has really worked.

Nor should it be expected to.

The country has only one president and only the president is empowered to give the citizenry an annual report on the state of the union. Add to that the pomp and ceremony associated with the event and the out party is a loser even before it gets to take the court.

Maybe it is time for the outs to cede back the time or, better yet, get the networks let them save it for some other day when they don't have to go one on one with the president.

The outs, for the last five years the Democrats, do much better when they let the networks barricade the Capitol's statuary hall and take willing captives for capsule reactions to the State of the Union address.

That way the Democrats would not get equal time — nowhere near — but the snap reactions would get the message across as well, if not better, and the cast would consist of better known personalities that the ones paraded in the official response.

Better still, the Democrats would sponsor next year's North Carolina-Georgia Tech basketball game.

ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Homeless Troubling America

An article in National Review magazine a couple of years ago referred to the "Bombayization" of New York City. By that, the author meant the emergence of the distressing phenomenon of homeless street people in the metropolis.

I was reminded of this recently on a snowy evening when I was returning to my hotel in Manhattan after attending the 30th anniversary gala of National Review. One of the homeless was lying in the snow outside the door of my hotel. Indeed any visitor to Manhattan soon becomes accustomed to the grim sight of people sleeping in the streets.

In this case, a call to the police emergency number brought a police car within minutes. The derelict man was carried to a public shelter for the night. The City of New York has adopted a policy of transporting all homeless people to shelters in cold weather.

Nevertheless, the situation remains a troubling one. It isn't confined to New York City. A number of large cities have a problem with "Bombayization," with a condition Americans in the past associated with poverty-stricken India, not with the richest country in the world.

Why is this happening, despite vast outlays on social services? Many answers are given to that question. Certainly, the problem is associated with the policy of releasing emotionally disturbed people from hospitals and dumping them in communities.

Overall, however, the problem of the homeless points up the growing complexity of life and the inability of some people to cope with it.

The complexity, impersonality, red tape, and isolation of human lives is most strongly marked in New York City and other large centers. While a great deal of assistance is offered by society, it's increasingly difficult to get through the bureaucratic maze, eligibility requirements, and general hassle. All the rules may be necessary, but some people in our society simply aren't equipped mentally and psychologically to do what is required. They are helpless, and some collapse on the street on a snowy night.

Even the stable, generally well-equipped middle class finds coping with life much more difficult than a generation ago.

Somehow or other, American society has to be made less demanding and stressful, less bureaucratic and complex. More and more people can't deal with the strain of life.

JEFFREY HART

Logic Lacking By Ivys

Any person of normal intelligence who thinks about it for five minutes reaches the conclusion that there are no quick or easy solutions to the problems of the Republic of South Africa. The history of that country and its demography pose dilemmas that would test the fabled wisdom of Solomon.

On the other hand, quick and easy solutions are exactly what are being proposed at our allegedly academic institutions, which are supposed to be devoted to analysis and reflection.

These thoughts are prompted by recent front-page events on the campuses, including Dartmouth, where I teach, and Princeton, and you name it.

At Dartmouth, the thoughtful analysts of the South African problem erected four plywood and board "shanties" in the middle of the campus and defied anyone to take them down. They were supposed to symbolize the poverty and political oppression now experienced by South Africa blacks. The proposed remedies for the poverty and oppression appeared in slogans painted on the walls of the shanties: Free Nelson Mandela, One Person One Vote.

Oh, That apparently represents sophisticated analysis at the Ivy League level. The person of ordinary intelligence, after that five minutes of reflection knows that all of this is junk thought. South Africa does not consist of a black "majority" and a white "minority." The blacks are comprised of a number of tribes, the Zulus being the most numerous, and the tribes have intermittent murderous intentions toward one another. They frequently go at it with axes and clubs. Of the thousands or so blacks who died in South Africa last year, almost all were killed by other blacks.

Suppose one could, with a wave of a magic wand, abolish the present system in that country — abolish white "minority" rule. What, conceivably, would replace it?

Tribal warfare, of course, and widespread slaughter. The rights of the numerous Asians residing in South Africa would be extinguished. They run much of the flourishing small business. There is a substantial Jewish minority in the country. They could forget it, and leave. The whites, of both British and Dutch descent, would be finished. Their property would be expropriated by Nelson Mandela and his friends of the African National Congress, which would run the country on a tribal-Marxist basis, without benefit of more elections than one. The real liberal slogan for South Africa should be "One Man, One Vote, Once."

Of course, in the abstract, what anyone would wish for South Africa is a federal republican system much like our own. This would involve majority rule in a constitutional framework, an independent judiciary, iron-clad rights for minorities. Under such a system, South Africa whites and Asians would have constitutional protections comparable to those of American blacks. Their lives and property would possess solid legal standing.

Even a fool knows that this is not going to happen in South Africa.

Americans do not need demagogic simplicities from the Ivy League campuses. Americans are not selling their stock in IBM, if they own any, and if Dartmouth and Princeton want to sell theirs, well, there are buyers.

SCIENCE WORLD

Migration Patterns Changing

By Gayle Young
UPI Science Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thousands of Canadian geese are opting to winter in the northern United States and may soon forget their age-old migration pattern to the Carolina marshes, according to a wildlife biologist.

The large gray and white birds have probably been flying from northern Canada to as far south as Florida since the glaciers receded millions of years ago, said Richard A. Malecki of the New York Cooperative Fish and Wildlife Research Unit at Cornell University who is studying the Canada goose species.

In the last 20 years, however, the birds' migration pattern has changed dramatically, he said.

"Only a small portion of the geese make it as far south as North Carolina and more and more are staying in northern areas of the U.S.," he said. "Since a lot of migration is learned by young geese from parents it is conceivable the old migration pattern may be lost if this keeps up."

An estimated 1 million geese will leave the sub-Arctic areas of Canada in September in earnest migration. But around upstate New York some geese will start falling out, attracted by cultivated grain fields, golf courses and suburban lawns that make a grueling flight thousands of miles south suddenly unsavory.

The migrating geese are also attracted by a subspecies of Canada goose that lives in Northeastern states all year long. These geese, whose picturesque ancestors were imported to grace the lawns of the wealthy, usually meander from inland farms to coastal communities in the fall, he said, enticing their Canadian cousins to drop in for the winter.

"Together they (the migrating and domestic geese) can be quite a handful," said Malecki. "They may look nice from a distance but their droppings cause a lot of problems."

Both species of Canada geese have been multiplying at a fantastic rate in the past few decades, according to biologists. After hunting season from October to January, an estimated 800,000 migrating geese will be left in eastern Atlantic states — two and a half times their population in 1950, said Malecki.

Overall figures on domestic Canadian geese are unavailable. But in Connecticut, for example, the population has increased from a few hundred at the turn of the century to 10,000 geese today, said Paul Merola, a wildlife biologist for the state.

JACK ANDERSON

Starving Haitian People Are Finally Free

By Jack Anderson
And Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — The American people can take satisfaction in their government's apparently crucial role in the ouster of Jean-Claude "Baby Doc" Duvalier, whose term as "president for life" of Haiti was abruptly cut short by his long-suffering people.

For years, we tirelessly exposed the brutality and corruption of the Duvaliers, father and son, who looted their impoverished nation under the spurious cover of a "revolution" that gave blacks political power over their mixed-race countrymen. We sent reporters to dig out the truth about Haiti, at considerable risk to themselves from the Duvaliers' dreaded security police, the blue-clad Ton-Tons Macoutes.

One of our reporters, Hal Bernton, posed as an itinerant student a decade ago and gathered appalling evidence of poverty in Haiti — wretched, life-threatening poverty that contrasted obscenely with the luxurious life of the Duvalier family and their cronies. (Our sources estimate that Baby Doc has more than $200 million squirreled away in Swiss banks, even after a lifetime of extravagant spending.)

Bernton hiked through the parched mountains to a remote village, where he lived with the people for more than a week. He saw naked children too weak from hunger to play, their hair discolored and their bellies bloated from starvation.

Those pitiable Haitian children weren't victims of an "act of God," like the drought-induced famines in Africa. They were the inevitable byproduct of a ruling family determined to suck out every dollar that found its way into Haiti.

When Haitian reporters tried to tell the world of their country's agony, they were beaten or murdered by the Ton-Tons Macoutes. Gassner Raymond was a courageous young reporter who dared to write a story critical of the Duvalier regime. His body was found in a ditch two weeks later.

Aid from the United States and other countries often did not reach the Haitians who needed it. It went instead to Duvalier and his insatiable cronies. "The spoils have included millions in indirect U.S. economic assistance, which have disappeared into the palace accounts," we reported in March 1981. The booty also included a $20 million emergency loan from the International Monetary Fund.

Baby Doc took good care of his family. His wife, Michelle, drew a $100,000 monthly salary for her duties as "Mrs. President." Her father, Ernest Bennett, also became wealthier during his son-in-law's reign. Not surprisingly, an auto dealership he owned was looted and burned during the celebration of Duvalier's downfall.

In 1984, as Haitian "boat people" were risking — and often losing — their lives trying to sneak into this country in flimsy, overloaded craft, we sent another reporter, the late Jock Hatfield, to Haiti.

He found that well-intended U.S. food shipments were winding up on the black market, with little attempt even to hide the corruption. At the downtown market in Port-au-Prince, Hatfield found stalls piled with bulgur wheat, dry milk and soybean oil from the United States. The wheat had been repackaged into plastic bags, but the oil and dry milk were being sold in their original containers bearing the warning in French and English: "Furnished by the people of the U.S.A. Not to be sold or exchanged."

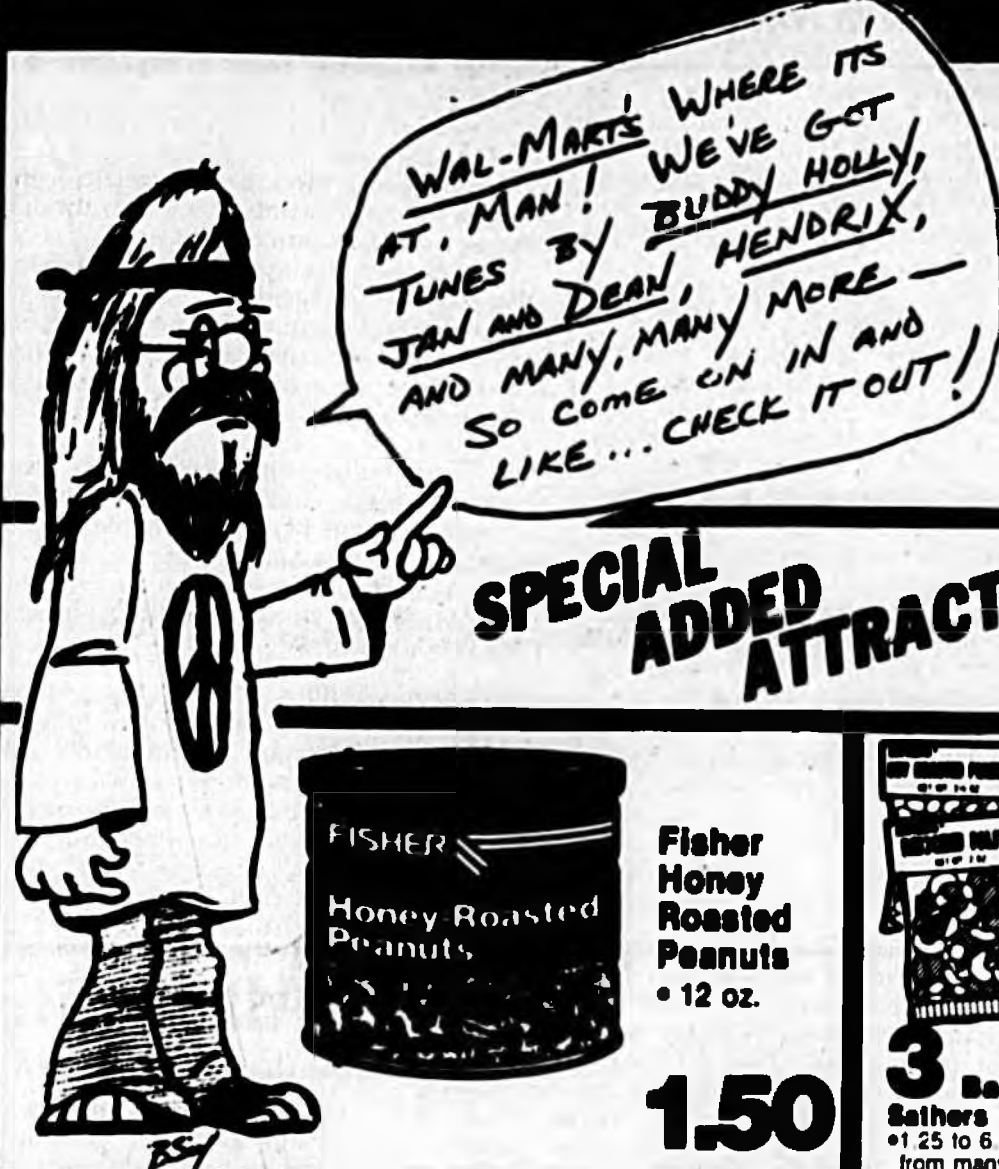

A few miles from this thriving black market, children were dying of malnutrition in unspeakable slums.

If Haiti is to pull itself out of the chasm of the Duvalier years, foreign aid and investment are needed. And this will require guarantees that future millions will not be siphoned off by corrupt officials in the Duvalier style.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Creationists Win Delay In Science Text Decision

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — "Scientific creationists" have temporarily blocked adoption of a list of 22 middle and high school biology text books, most of which they claim snub the Biblical account of the dawn of life.

Gov. Bob Graham and the Cabinet agreed Tuesday to wait another two weeks before voting on the disputed books. Education Commissioner Ralph Turlington noted the Cabinet routinely delays text book selections that generate controversy.

Creationist Jim Brady, a clerk in the Escambia County textbook depository in Pensacola, and ally Randy Brien of Tallahassee, said they are also searching for a lawmaker to introduce legislation to ban the teaching of evolution as fact rather than theory.

The Senate quickly killed a creationism bill six years ago and Brien conceded any bill offered during an election year — when lawmakers like to dodge controversy — would likely fail.

Turlington said he supports the selections by the state's Instructional Materials Councils. Graham was less certain, saying, "I'm in favor of letting a full range of ideas be available to students and let the students then be challenged to make up their own minds as to what is true."

Glass In Another Gerber Jar

MIAMI (UPI) — A Miami couple reported Tuesday they found slivers of glass in the Gerber fruit juice they were about to give their 5-month-old son.

The report came one day after the baby food company said there was no basis for "all the hoopla" surrounding similar reports in New York, and the same day a Georgia sheriff reported finding glass in a jar of Gerber bananas and peaches.

Dennis and Vicky Marton said Tuesday they found the glass in a 4.2-ounce bottle of Gerber cherry apple juice they had bought at a Publix grocery store Jan. 30. The bottle was marked with lot number 05V3, and was to have been sold by Oct. 16, 1987.

Dennis Marton said he "heard a grinding sound" as he opened the bottle Monday.

"I popped the lid off and I ran my finger around the lid and there was glass all over my finger," he said.

"The glass was like slivers, about a quarter-inch long, very thin. They could have very easily gone through the nipple of a bottle and that's what scared the daylight out of me," said Vicky Marton.

They reported the incident to the grocery store, the Gerber Baby Products Co., in Fremont, Mich., and Dade County health officials, Vicky Marton said.

Upon examining the rest of the baby food on their shelves, they found another jar of Gerber cherry apple juice also contained glass shards, she said.

Bundy: No Stay, Can Ask Again

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The U.S. Supreme Court has refused to block the scheduled March 4 execution of Theodore Bundy, convicted of murdering two Florida sorority sisters.

The Supreme Court did leave the door open to a further appeal if Bundy agrees to obtain an attorney, Bundy, a former law student, acted in his own defense in the appeal.

"Upon consideration of the application of the petitioner for a stay of execution of sentence of death, it is ordered that the application is denied without prejudice to permit the petitioner to obtain counsel and to file an application which complies with the rules of this court," said Justice Lewis Powell Tuesday in a one-sentence opinion.

Assistant Attorney General Gregory G. Costas argued that Bundy's request was "woefully inadequate." Bundy failed to meet the Supreme Court standard for request for a stay because it does not "provide a basis for concluding there is a substantial likelihood that the lower court's decision would be reversed."

County Snubs Gambling Ships

SHALIMAR, Fla. (UPI) — A group of ministers, warning that gambling is corruptive, are urging county commissioners to prohibit a casino cruise ship from operating out of the Gulf Coast port of Fort Walton Beach.

An overflow crowd that included 20 ministers attended Tuesday's meeting of the Okaloosa County Commission. After an hour of debate, commissioners voted 3-2 to have the county attorney draft an ordinance banning gambling vessels from docking in county waters.

"It (gambling) attracts organized crime, con-men, prostitution, and often leads to the corruption of public officials," said Dr. James Monroe, who presented the petition with some 2,000 signatures to the commission.

NASA Officials Face Critical Questioning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of the shuttle program says he might have had second thoughts about clearing Challenger for flight three weeks ago had he known of abnormal temperature indications on the rocket that later ruptured.

A team of technicians checking the shuttle for ice buildup before launch found indications from a heat scanner that two spots on the outside skin of the right booster rocket were 7 and 9 degrees F. — well below the readings on the other booster.

NASA engineers are now checking that instrument to see if the measurements were accurate because such infrared radiation scanners are notoriously difficult to calibrate.

The first critical questioning of NASA officials in a public forum in the wake of the shuttle explosion came at a hearing Tuesday opening Congress' own investigation into the disaster.

Jesse Moore, associate NASA administrator in charge of the shuttle program, said the low-temperature information was not reported to him or other shuttle managers. He said the technicians' job was to check for ice on the ship's external fuel tank or the launch pad equipment next to Challenger.

Is such a temperature reading something that would have caused "a high sense of alarm?" asked Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich.

"I believe I would have asked more questions about what the readings indicated, what were the differentials between the left booster reading and the right booster reading and so forth," Moore replied.

'...something has gone wrong with the absolute commitment to quality control and discipline that we've always come to associate with NASA.'

Former astronaut Neil Armstrong, vice chairman of the presidential commission looking into the accident, said one scenario under investigation is that a possible small leak of supercold propellants from the ship's external fuel tank might have frozen parts of the right booster.

That presumably would have stiffened the synthetic rubber rocket seals used to prevent 5,900-degree gases from escaping between joints in the solid fuel booster.

Another possibility the commission is focusing on is whether the 38-degree weather at launch time might have affected the critical seals. Never before had a shuttle flown in such cold weather.

Acting NASA administrator William Graham said engineers Morton Thiokol Inc., the company that built the boosters, expressed concern on launch eve about the effects of record cold on the rocket seals, but eventually approved flight plans.

"At the end of the process, Morton Thiokol provided a statement signed by a member of their senior management, who normally signs for them, recommending from their perspective the shuttle launch proceed," Graham said.

Armstrong, the first man on the moon, said the commission has not concluded that the seals failed.

Near the end of the three-hour hearing, Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., said it appeared to him that a variety of problems leading up to Challenger's flight suggested "something has gone wrong with the absolute commitment to quality control and discipline that we've always come to associate with NASA."

"Is that unfair to reach that conclusion?" he asked Graham.

"Well, Sen. Gore, there is no question whatsoever that accident should not have taken place," Graham replied.

"If history is any guide as we understand what caused the accident ... we will in fact eventually find there were a large number of events which occurred in sequence, virtually any one of which, had it been done differently, would have prevented the accident," he said.

In an opening statement, Sen. Ernest Hollins, D-Sc., said: "At this particular juncture, it seems like an avoidable accident rather than an unavoidable one."

Hollins asked Armstrong if he thought it would be safe to fly on a shuttle "knowing what you know now?"

Armstrong replied: "I'm reminded of a meeting with John Young, former colleague and current astronaut, immediately after the accident and he said: 'We're with you on this. None of us wants to go again until we really understand what happened and we've got it fixed.' That's the same way I feel at this point."

are built on a request by Janice Davis of Johnny Lane, whose property is bordered on two sides by Hidden Oak Estates. Mrs. Davis complained that with such a small park for them to use, residents will be attracted to her property and cut across it to get to businesses on County Road 427, thus increasing her liability risk and possibility of vandalism.

Mrs. Davis said it would take 2,000 feet of fence along the east and northeast boundaries of the subdivision which she estimated would cost $5,000.

Hannigan also agreed to allow access onto West Lake Boulevard from neighboring property. Centex has plans for a brick wall along the entrance which at the city's request will be decided to the homeowners association.

The final plans and plans for Nelson Court Subdivision submitted by Superior Construction did not fare as well. Located south of Bistline Avenue and west of East Street, the subdivision was unanimously rejected. Commissioner June Lormann made a motion to deny the project because some of the proposed building sites were flood prone. "There are still 18 things wrong with it even after it's been to the Land Planning Agency," she said.

However, Nagle pointed out that 14 of the items listed are just standard comments made on all projects. Phillip Hollis, engineer for the development, said he has no problem with any of the 18 comments except the one about it being flood prone. He said plans call for compensating storage to keep the lake from flooding and all of the building slabs are elevated well above the flood elevation. "We have followed good engineering practice," he said.

Falson said the city, while continuing to look at alternative sites for its waste disposal program, is also waiting to hear "how much" the county would charge Sanford to locate a land application system on a portion of the Yankee Lake property.

The city is also waiting for word on the county study and subsequent DER review.

According to the Lake Jesup principals, their site's proximity to Sanford makes it a viable parcel for annexation.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: The deluge in the West began its second week today with no end in sight to the wind, snow, rain and floods that have cut off towns, closed roads, knocked out power and forced thousands of people to flee from their homes. At least 15 people have been killed in flooding, mud slides, avalanches and high surf spawned by a series of storms that began Feb. 12. More than 8,000 people had fled from floods in northern and central California and other evacuations were reported in Nevada and Colorado. Heavy, wind-whipped rain soaked the northern and central California coast today, snow pelted the mountains to the east, and the National Weather Service said developing tropical storms were backed up deep into the Pacific Ocean. "We're not going to see any end of this in the foreseeable future," said NWS forecaster Harry Gordon. "Even though the storms appear to be lessening, a change in the wind two degrees one way or the other could change all that, and ... with all the rain they've gotten so far, even a little is bad news." Flash flood warnings were posted for the San Francisco Bay area, the lower Sacramento Valley and the northern Sierra Nevada.

Haiti's New Rulers Seize All Ex-President's Property

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — Haiti's new rulers announced the seizure of all of former President Jean-Claude Duvalier's property in an apparent bid to defuse protests over alleged links between members of the government and the old regime.

The move Tuesday came after troops used tear gas outside the National Palace to disperse demonstrators and thousands of people held demonstrations in two southern cities in anger against top officials who served under Duvalier.

Justice Minister Gerard Gourgue, in a televised address, said Tuesday the new government had seized and nationalized all of the property once owned by Duvalier, who fled Haiti on Feb. 7.

Gourgue also said people in whose names Duvalier had registered property must inform the government within 15 days, then may make ownership claims.

Contras Disclaim Fatal Ambush

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — U.S.-backed Contra rebels have charged the Sandinista government with trying to influence Congress against approving new U.S. aid for the guerrillas by fabricating a charge rebels launched an ambush that killed six civilians and wounded seven others.

The major Contra group, the Nicaraguan Democratic Force or FDN, said Tuesday over the clandestine Radio 15 de Septiembre none of its fighters were operating near the northern border city of Somotillo where the Sunday night ambush occurred.

The Contras — during the broadcast — accused the Sandinista government of trying to use the incident to influence Congress against approving new U.S. aid for the guerrillas.

Tutu Calms Angry Blacks

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Bishop Desmond Tutu calmed thousands of angry blacks in a riot-torn ghetto but said violence could break out again in the Johannesburg suburb of Alexandra, where at least 19 blacks have died in three days of rioting.

"I told them we are going to be free and we need to show the discipline of those who are going to be free," Tutu said of his speech to some 30,000 blacks gathered Tuesday in a stadium to protest police actions in Alexandra.

"I told them we are going to disperse in a peaceful and orderly fashion. I told them not to kill one another and not to discredit our noble cause," he said in a telephone interview after the incident.

Moslems Threaten Israeli Soldier

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Moslem fundamentalist guerrillas threatened to execute one of two captured Israeli soldiers today unless Israel pulled back its troops in southern Lebanon. Israeli troops have been searching for their comrades for two days.

Israel also faced a separate threat from a coalition of guerrilla groups — the Lebanese National Resistance — to mount a "continuous" artillery barrage on settlements in northern Israel unless the Israeli tank force withdrew from southern Lebanon. At least three guerrillas and one Israeli soldier have been killed in clashes.

Grenada Readies Hero's Welcome For Reagan

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (UPI) — Posters of a smiling President Reagan lined the streets of St. George's Tuesday as Grenada prepared to welcome the American leader Thursday on a visit to commemorate the 1983 U.S. invasion.

Reagan will start his first visit to the tiny Caribbean island twice the size of Washington, D.C., by flying into Port Salines Airport — which the United States spent $20 million to help finish last year.

At the time of the invasion, the Reagan administration charged the airport was built in the early 1980s by Cubans to help spread communism in the eastern Caribbean.

The Grenadian government of then Prime Minister Maurice Bishop, a close ally of Cuban President Fidel Castro, contended the facility was constructed to boost tourism.

In October 1983, after a radical faction assassinated the charismatic Bishop, several of his ministers and scores of his followers, Reagan sent in some 7,000 soldiers to overthrow the government.

The invasion cost the lives of 19 U.S. soldiers and 70 other people and ushered in a pro-American government. Many people in Grenada say they welcomed the move.

A national holiday was declared for Reagan's Thursday visit. Posters of the president were hung along many streets in the capital of St. George's, an old town of pastel green, pink and blue buildings that line the quiet sailboat-filled harbor and climb into the hills surrounding the volcanic island.

"Come welcome President Reagan to Grenada," the posters say, inviting Grenadians to a rally Reagan will attend in Queen's Park to conclude his five-hour visit.

It was difficult to find anyone who opposed the trip, from Prime Minister Herbert Blaize to fish sellers along the harbor in the country that still suffers from serious economic problems, including an unemployment rate that runs between 25 and 33 percent.

"Grenadians just like to say thanks," Blaize told a news conference Tuesday. "Our number one friend is now the United States."

Lossyn Joan, 51, dressed in a tattered dress, enthusiastically talked of Reagan's visit as she cut slices from a 10-foot long tuna she was selling at the pier.

"We welcome him here," she said. "He saved me from losing my life by the crazy revolutionaries."

At Queen's Park, intense preparations were underway to spruce up the facility for Reagan's visit. A new coat of green paint has been applied to the 6-foot high metal fence that surrounds the park, about the size of two football fields.

White hunting was prepared to be hung around the stands, which were also getting a new coat of paint. On one platform, two dozen school children practiced a dance waving multi-colored wreaths.

Reagan will unveil a plaque at Port Salines Airport and visit St. George's University School of Medicine, where American students were evacuated by the U.S. troops during the invasion. A wreath will be laid at a memorial to the troops who died.

The U.S. leader also will meet with Blaize and prime ministers from other English-speaking Caribbean island nations, most of whom supported the U.S. move.

Blaize said the initiative for the trip came from the White House, which indicated Reagan would like to visit and meet Caribbean leaders.

"But I'm the one who decided to invite," Blaize said.

Greek Women Vigilantes Aim To Punish Rapists Laws Are Too Lenient, They Say

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — Greek feminists, battling a national male mind-set that winks at the crime of rape, increasingly are turning to vigilante packs to punish attackers turned loose by police.

The assaults on men are a response to laws that until recently made rape a crime against society — on the same criminal level as indecent exposure — rather than a crime against an individual.

George Varvaras, a 27-year-old medical student, was recently attacked by women vigilantes. He had earlier been released by police even though two women had filed rape charges against him.

He said he was at home when his doorbell rang.

"Suddenly one, two, 10 rushed in like mantas. They surrounded me, put a pillowcase over my head, forced me to bed, stripped me and beat me," he said.

The vigilantes threw bright orange flowers in his lap before leaving, saying, "Repeat this and we will kill you like a dog."

In ancient Greek law it was held that if a man "debauches a woman ... it is permitted to kill him." In modern Greece, however, feminists say penalties for rape are "grossly inadequate." They charge that today's laws are no more than a reflection of attitudes "in a male-oriented society."

"Women report rapes to the police, but often nothing is done," said Ami Bacouri, a journalist who interviewed three of the feminist vigilantes.

Last year, women from Vrachati ignored their husbands, left their children and took to the dirt tracks of their small mountain village to chant the name of a shopkeeper accused of rape.

"Such incidents reflect the powerlessness Greek women feel when faced with the issue of rape," Bacouri said.

An informal study by the women's magazine Pantheon showed that most rape victims do not report the crime — citing "shame" as the reason.

Of 80 cases brought before the courts in 1983, "only 14 men were found guilty," the magazine said.

"A defense attorney can ask for women to be excluded from the jury in a rape trial," said Maria Panga, a lawyer specializing in women's issues.

"A rape victim is blamed for the crime at all levels of society, from policemen to judges to the victim's family."

Though the majority of Greeks have moved from villages to the cities in the past two decades, society still clings to a set of values toward women that survive from village life.

Youth Athletic, Recreational Programs Sought In Sanford

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford and the Seminole County school system may soon combine forces to offer city youngsters a network of community recreation programs. The city hopes to run organized athletic programs "at as many schools in Sanford as possible," according to Parks and Recreation Director Jim Jernigan.

At Monday's joint meeting of the Sanford City Commission and the Seminole County School Board, Jernigan asked the board to formally endorse evening, summer and weekend use of school playgrounds and gymnasiums for city sponsored recreation programs.

If he had board approval in hand, Jernigan said, "It would make the right kind of difference" when he approaches Sanford school principals for permission to use the facilities.

The expanded use of school gyms and playgrounds was contained in a report submitted to the city commission in December by its Youth Advisory Committee.

The city's three recreation facilities are insufficient in terms of "reaching the needs of our youngsters," Jernigan said. "We've grown in the last 25 years, but haven't kept up with the services we should be offering our young people."

"You can help us reach out to them," he told the board members.

The statement was well received and the board agreed to formally address the endorsement at an upcoming meeting.

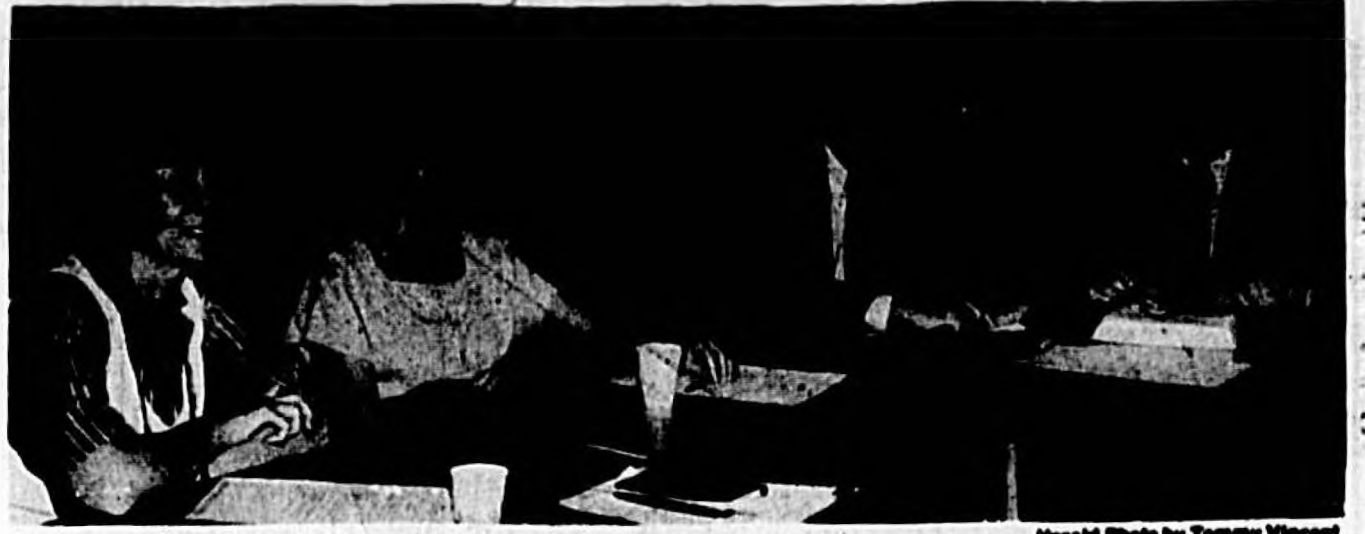

The joint session also saw preliminary discussion of the city's interest in obtaining excess school board property on French Avenue, across from the Middle School. The open field may be transformed into a city park if board members and commissions can come to a mutually equitable agreement.

Possibilities raised Monday included the board's selling the land to Sanford or trading it for a parcel of city property. Also, the board said it would consider giving the back portion of the property to Sanford if the city would agree to rezone the remaining French Avenue frontage for commercial use. This parcel would then be sold by the board.

City staff will survey the site and report back to commissioners before June 1. The commission and the board will then renew discussion of the acquisition proposals.

In addition to the French Avenue lot, staff will also look into the city's possible acquisition of seven other excess school board properties in Sanford. The largest of these is some 10 acres adjacent to the Crooms High School on 13th Street.

After asking the commission if it wanted to obtain the Crooms property, the board also requested city assistance in cleaning up its surrounding 13th Street area. Commissioners said they would call upon 13th Street businesses and the Scenic Improvement Board to work together to implement the rehabilitation and subsequent maintenance. Commissioners also pointed out that 13th Street will be one of the first roads revitalized under a project to begin this summer.

The city commission also said it was amenable to helping the board acquire Memorial Station for the Hamilton Elementary School. According to Jernigan, the city leases the Mellonville Avenue field to Les Rinker for a $1 a year, although Rinker is also financially committed to the city for the $40,000 light system it installed at the stadium.

In discussing the eight years remaining on Rinker's lease and his financial obligation to Sanford, Jernigan said, "I know he feels he has a lot tied up in the stadium, but I also think he can be bought."

"I don't think he's entrenched there," Jernigan said. "But he would want something to offset his expenses."

Rinker operates baseball clinics at the field, Jernigan said.

City staff will contact Rinker in an attempt to work out an agreement regarding his relinquishing the lease.

Gunter, Insurance Industry Trade Charges

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter and industry representatives Tuesday escalated a growing war of words, with insurance lobbyists charging Gunter's legislative package would unfairly regulate them while doing nothing to curb rising rates and Gunter challenging the value of the industry's top priority.

"There is nothing in his proposal to reduce losses, and losses are the prime motivator of premiums," insurance lobbyist Buddy McCue charged at a morning news conference. "Even if (Gunter) had unlimited authority, premiums would continue to escalate to keep up with losses."

McCue repeated the industry's demand for repeal of joint and several liability, the legal doctrine that allows judges to hold any defendant in a multiple defendant suit responsible for all damages awarded. That, McCue said, encourages lawyers to go after the defendant most able to pay a large settlement — the insurance company.

Abolishing joint and several, McCue said, would bring premium rates down, though he said it was impossible how quickly or how much.

"To me, that is a false claim," Gunter said when told of McCue's remarks. "The testimony I have heard so far has not convinced me going away with joint and several liability would lower rates. And there's nothing in the tort reform bills I have seen that would guarantee any benefits they do accrue would go back to decreased rates for the consumer."

McCue noted that 1985 was the worst year in history for insurance companies, with nationwide losses of $5.5 billion. The industry caused some of those losses by offering unrealistic bargain rates, McCue said, but most of the blame lay on joint and several liability and huge damage settlements. In Florida alone, McCue said, there have been 218 awards of $1 million or more in the last 10 years.

"If something is not done to pull these down, we're going to see a continued escalation of in the cost of insurance," McCue said. He called for caps on punitive and noneconomic damages.

Gunter challenged McCue's $5.5 billion figure, saying industry loss estimates did not include mitigating factors such as tax credits, capital gains and premiums paid to policy holders.

"They have not made as much as they have in the past, but there is a strong industry, and they need strong oversight," Gunter said.

Gunter and McCue also disagreed over Gunter's request for authority to review and reject insurance rates. McCue said existing law already gives Gunter all the regulatory power he needs, while Gunter said a loophole in the law left him with little real authority.

Hawkins May Need Major Surgery

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., appeared in public for the first time after 10 days in the hospital Monday and announced she may have to undergo major surgery to correct chronic neck pain.

Hawkins spoke with reporters briefly at the end of a Senate committee hearing in Fort Lauderdale on the alleged environmental hazards of a proposed petroleum pipeline that was boycotted by all Democratic members of the panel.

"I am in good health and good spirits," Hawkins said. "But the good news is that I don't have cancer."

She insisted that the treatment and tests

she underwent at Duke University Medical Center in Durham, N.C. last week were limited to the chronic pain in her neck and back relating to injuries she suffered in 1982 and in 1960.

Hawkins said, however, that she might have to undergo further testing to see if she needs major surgery to correct the problem.

State Board Commends Local Community College

Seminole Community College was recently recognized by resolution of the State Board of Community Colleges for 20 years of service to the community.

The resolution, signed by Wendell W. Williams, state board chairman, was recently presented to the SCC Board of Trustees by SCC President Dr. Earl Weldon.

The document notes that the state board approved the establishment of the Seminole County college on July 20, 1965, and the first classes at SCC were held in the fall term of 1966.

Also noted was the tremendous growth of the college since opening with 733 students the first year. A total of more than 20,000 students are now enrolled at the campus, 5,000 of whom are full time.

The resolution credits the college as being "truly a comprehensive community college providing lower division baccalaureate instruction, voca-ational degree and non-degree instruction, adult basic and secondary instruction, continuing education, community services, and student support services," and that the "college facilities have expanded to meet the needs of the district."

The document resolved to recognize the facility on its 20th anniversary, and expressed the state board's "appreciation to the many people, past and present, responsible for the delivery of Seminole Community services."

The state board also used the resolution to "express its admiration of the thousands and thousands of SCC students past and present, whose disciplined pursuit of education benefited themselves and the community," and wished the college "many years of continuing quality service to the people of its district and to the State of Florida."

SCC Scholarship Increased

Seminole Community College's Board of Trustees scholarship is planned to increase from $300 to $650 for the 1986-87 school year, according to a recent discussion between Dr. James Sawyer and the college's trustees. Dr. Sawyer is acting as a liaison between the Financial Aid Committee and the board, to discuss the committee's preliminary report.

The recipient, however, should be a graduate of a Seminole County high school, not just a county resident, the trustees agreed. Graduates of public or private high schools within the county will be considered.

Applicants' rank-in-class will not be a criterion, since county schools no longer record class rank. Instead, grade point averages will be reviewed.

Dr. Sawyer said he would relay the trustees' wishes to the committee.

Peterson's 20 Carry Howell By Lake Mary

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

Todd Peterson poured in a career-high 20 points, including 9 of 13 shooting from the floor, to lead Lake Howell's Silver Hawks to a 49-48 upset victory over Lake Mary's Rams Tuesday night in Seminole Athletic Conference action at Lake Mary High.

The Silver Hawks, 8-16 overall and 3-6 in the SAC, conclude the regular season Friday at home against Lake Brantley. Lake Mary, which now stands at 9-12 and 5-4, is scheduled to close out the regular season Thursday at home against Lyman but either the time or day of the game may be changed since Lake Mary's girls are scheduled to open the district tournament at home Thursday night.

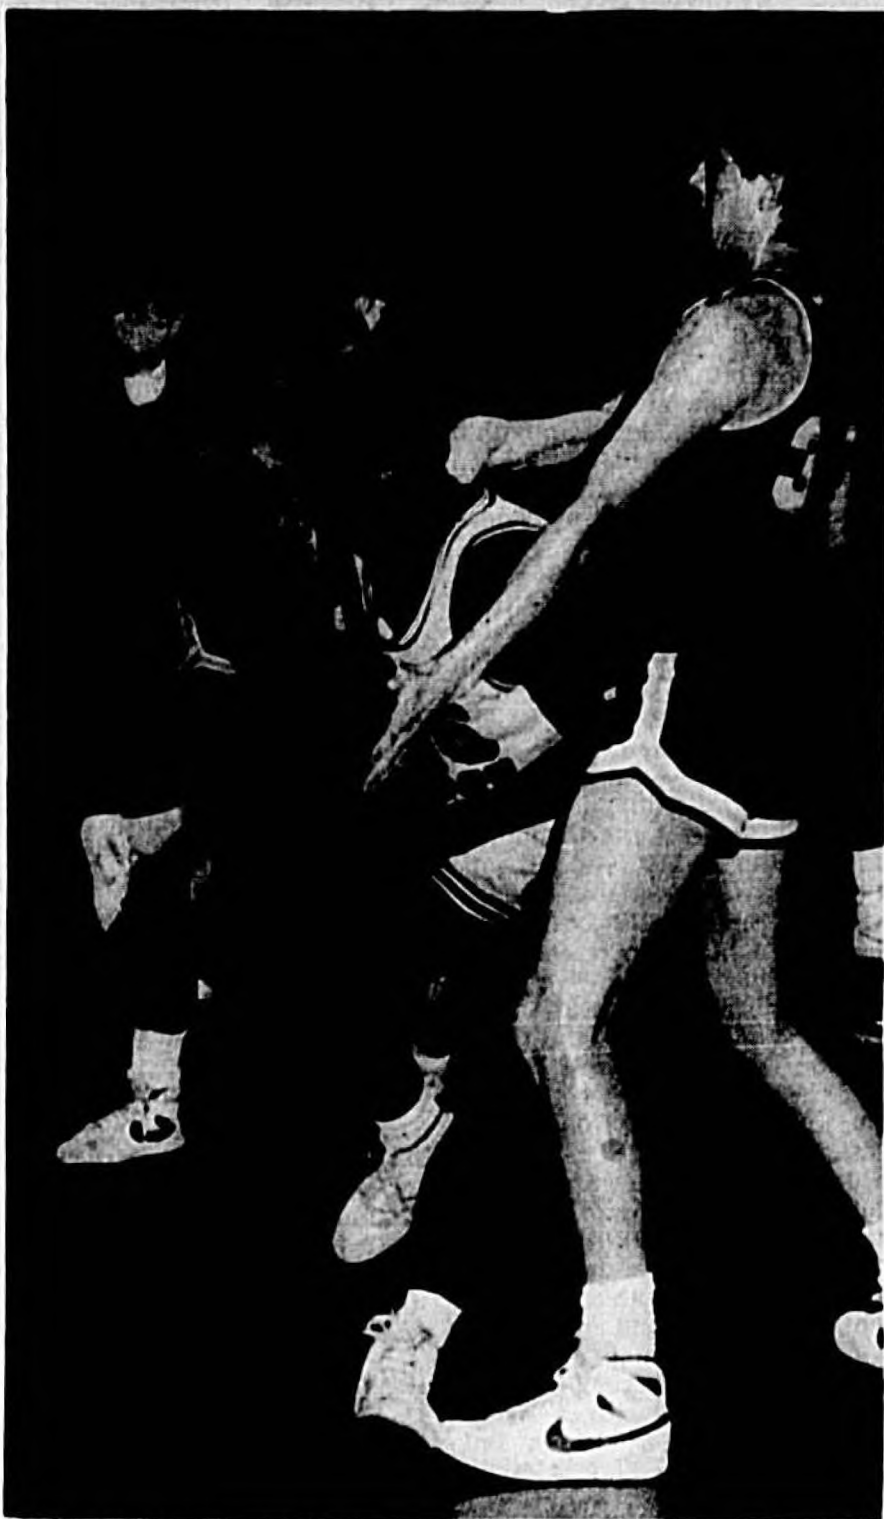

"We got back to what we do best. We were patient offensively," Lake Howell coach Greg Robinson said. "We turned the ball over few times and controlled the tempo."

Peterson had the hot hand all night for the Hawks, scoring 10 points in each half. Robinson said all but one of Peterson's nine field goals came from long range. Peterson also hit 2 of 3 from the free throw line.

Behind Peterson for Lake Howell, John Lowe tossed in 12 points and Terry Gammons added four of his six points late in the fourth quarter.

Ray Hartsfield kept Lake Mary within striking distance with 19 points but was the only Ram to score in double figures. Oscar Merthie added nine points and Terry "The Cat" Miller six.

Lake Howell held a three-point lead, 22-19, at halftime, and stretched it to seven, 37-30, after three quarters. The Rams rallied to tie the score at 44-44 with Lake Mary's Oscar Merthie, left, draws a Lake Howell sandwich en route to the basket.

1:40 left to play but Gammons then hit a bank shot to give Lake Howell the lead for good.

"John (Lowe) and Mark Schnitker did a great job handling the ball and handling Lake Mary's pressure," Robinson said. "And Todd (Peterson) just had a great night shooting the ball."

LAKE HOWELL (49) — Lowe 12, Schnitker 3, Hicks 4, Johnson 2, Clarke 2, Peterson 20, Gammons 4. Totals: 18 13 21 49.

LAKE MARY (44) — Hartsfield 19, Cerniejewski 4, McKinnon 4, Merthie 9, Napoli 4, Miller 4. Totals: 19 8 13 44.

Halftime — Lake Howell 22, Lake Mary 19. Fouls — Lake Howell 14, Lake Mary 15. Fouled out — None. Technical — None.

Raines: $1.5 Million

Tim: If I Can't Live On That I Can't Live

Tim Raines and the Montreal Expos split the difference Tuesday afternoon, agreeing on a one-year contract for $1.5 million for the 1986 major league baseball season.

Raines and Montreal were set to go to arbitration Thursday in New York, but both sides compromised to reach the settlement. Raines wanted $1.7 million and the Expos were offering $1.3 million.

Raines won the largest arbitration settlement ever last year at $1.2 million and he said Wednesday morning that he didn't think Montreal wanted to go to arbitration after the year he had in 1985.

Raines batted a career-high .320, stole 70 bases and scored 115 runs. He also was named to the All-Star team for the fifth consecutive year. His 70 steals gave him 70-plus for five years, the first time it has ever been accomplished.

Raines said he was satisfied with the figure. "If I can't live on that I can't live," he said of the $1.5 million. "It will also open the door for a long-term contract next year."

Raines said he hoped to sign a three-year contract next year, somewhere in the range of Fernando Valenzuela. Valenzuela recently received $5.8 million for three years from Los Angeles.

Baseline Pays For Bucs

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

DAYTONA BEACH — Traveling salesmen and basketball players have a lot in common. The salesmen want to get his foot in the door. The basketball player wants to get his foot on the baseline.

Each is the first step to success.

Daytona Beach Mainland's Bucs would have made great traveling salesmen Tuesday night. Not only did the Bucs get a foot on the baseline, they got a leg, an arm and the rest of the body, too.

All of which led to the ball in the basket 10-12 times on-baseline moves as the Bucs slipped past Seminole, 74-66, in District 4A-9 basketball before 235 fans at Mainland High School Tuesday night.

"I never thought we'd beat Seminole twice in one year," Mainland coach Dick Toth said about his 18-5 club. "It's a big rivalry and I can't remember beating them twice in one season."

The second one was easier than the first but the same young man made both possible.

Basketball

Mike Polite, Mainland's silky-smooth junior, was the culprit both times.

On the first occasion, Polite tipped in a rebound at the buzzer for a one-point victory. This time, the 6-7 center scored 22 points, hauled down 17 rebounds and handed out five assists.

Polite went the baseline route a couple of times but his biggest contribution was just hanging around the paint which allowed the Mainland's smaller salesmen free entry to the baseline.

"When I post up high on the box, it opens things up," he said.

Toth agreed and said he knew the baseline was a bargain. "We knew we could beat them on the baseline from the previous time," he said. "When the people push up on Mike (Polite), it gives us the openings. We got an awful lot of cheap baskets."

Much to the chagrin of Seminole coach Bill Klein who bit his tongue rather than comment, Klein also appeared displeased with the officiating.

John McNamara, Klein's assistant, though, was available. "Defense? What defense?" McNamara said about the 14-8 Seminoles. "There was none."

Polite started slowly but closed in a rush to offset an explosive first quarter by Jerry "Stick" Parker. Parker had nine points and his three-point play gave the "Noles a 13-12 lead.

Seminole, which solved the Mainland press the first time it was applied, turned it over four of its last five possessions. Meanwhile, Polite and Brian Morris combined for six points for a 21-15 lead after one quarter.

The second quarter was all Seminole and mainly Rod Henderson. The "Noles hit 10 of 11 floor shots and Henderson scored nine consecutive points to give the Tribe a 28-23 lead while Mainland went three minutes without scoring.

"We've never seen Henderson at his best," Toth said. "He was very good tonight but he can play better than that, too. Last year, he had two subpar games for him but that kid can light it up."

Raiders, Daytona To Ring Bell For Round 3 Tonight

The meaningless of the regular season will become very clear to Bill Payne or Ray Rideour tonight. Two hours after the 9 p.m. tipoff between Payne's Seminole Community College Raiders and Rideour's Daytona Beach Community College Scots, the season ends for one coach.

Such is life in Division II's

Mid-Florida Conference.

It doesn't matter that Payne's Raiders are 25-6 and ranked No. 1 in the state poll. It doesn't matter that Rideour's Scots are 24-8 and ranked No. 7 in the poll.

What matters is they had the misfortune of playing in the same conference as Florida Junior College, FJC, ranked No.

Basketball

3, safely tucked away its bid to the state tournament with a 12-2 conference record. Seminole and Daytona came up short. Daytona wasn't as short as Seminole, though. The Raiders second-place finish secured the homecourt advantage tonight.

They join Santa Fe and Lake City as the Division II Playoff Tournament narrows to four teams. Santa Fe, which ousted Central Florida, and Lake City, which did the same to Valencia, open tonight's action at 7. The survivors battle Thursday at 7:30 p.m. Thursday's winner earns a trip to state.

Seminole and Daytona are about as evenly matched as possible. They each won on their homecourt this season. Seminole took the Jan. 15 collision while Daytona came back to win the Feb. 5 clash. Round 3, the final round for these two clubs, rings into action tonight.

Each game centered around the play of the men in the pivot — SCC's 6-8 freshman Vance Hall and Daytona's 6-4 sophomore Terry Givens. Hall exploded in the second half as SCC won the first. Givens did the same as the Scots took the second.

Hardwick's FTs Clip Oviedo In Overtime

By Chuck Burgess
Special to the Herald

ALAMONTE SPRINGS — Dave Hardwick hit a pair of clutch free throws with 30 seconds to play and Donny Palmer put the game away with two more as the Lake Brantley Patriots tamed the Oviedo Lions, 63-58, in overtime in prep basketball at Lake Brantley High School Tuesday night in front of 201 exuberant fans.

With the score tied at 53 apiece, Darren Leva hit a jumper to start off the overtime period. Oviedo's Garth Bolton answered with a jumper just inside the paint and was fouled by Leva. Bolton hit the free throw to put the Lions up, 56-55 with 1:56 remaining.

With 1:37 left in the overtime period, Palmer sank a bucket from 15-feet to put the Pats up by one. The Lions drove to the other end, but couldn't convert the field goal. Brent Bell of Lake Brantley took the ball down the other end and was fouled by Terry Campbell with 48 seconds remaining.

"I was a little nervous going into the overtime period," Patriot coach Steve Jucker said. "(Wade) Wittig fouled out with about 1:10 left in the fourth period and I had to put in three guards. We really played great in the overtime."

Bell sank both ends of the one and the Lions' Campbell hit a jumper with 33 seconds remaining to pull the Lions to within one. Unfortunately for the Lions, the Patriots put in a stall game and the hapless Lions had to foul.

Hardwick, who only hit five points on the night, was the victim and was sent to the line to try the one and one. Hardwick was successful and the Lions were once again down by three.

Basketball

"Dave (Hardwick) didn't score that many points tonight, but he sure hit the crucial free throws," Jucker said. "He does what he has to in the thick of things and that makes him a good ball player."

The Lions once again took the ball to the other end of the floor, but Allen Unroe's shot was blocked by Leva and Palmer took the ball down before he was fouled with two seconds remaining.

"Donny started his first game of the year for us tonight," Jucker said. "He really filled in nicely and has been playing better and better each game. He was the key to the entire game."

Palmer's key locked the door on the Lions when he converted both free throws which put the Pats up by five. The Lions tried one desperation shot, but the game had been over for quite some time already.

The win for the Pats put them at 11-12 on the season and 4-5 in the Seminole Athletic Conference. The Lions dropped to 9-16 overall and 1-8 in the SAC. The Lions travel to Seminole to tangle with the Seminoles on Friday and the Patriots take on the Silver Hawks.

The Patriots did manage to win the game, but what they didn't do was manage to stop Unroe. Unroe, who leads the county in scoring with 14.8 points per game, hit a game-high 30 points.

"We just couldn't stop Unroe," Jucker said. "He's starting to get a lot of confidence in his shot and he couldn't miss tonight if he tried."

Unroe also led the Lions with

USFL Ponders Future

NEW YORK (UPI) — To play or not to play in 1986 will be the hot topic Wednesday at a gathering of the remaining U.S. Football League owners.

If the USFL decides to suspend play this fall, as proposed by Baltimore Stars owner Myles Tannenbaum, league stars such as Herschel Walker and Jim Kelly are expected to jump to the NFL.

USFL Commissioner Harry

Usher's office lists the agenda for Wednesday's meeting as thus: updates on the league's $1.32 billion antitrust suit against the NFL, its television strategies and the proposed merger between Walker's New Jersey Generals and Kelly's Houston Gamblers; rules changes including a new overtime procedure, and final arrangements for this season's championship game in Jacksonville.

Winter Park Throws Frustrate Lyman, 3-2

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

Stop using throw-ins as a weapon.

Lyman's Greyhounds would have liked to say that to Winter Park's Wildcats Tuesday night in the 4A-5 Region playoff at Winter Park's Ward Park. Or, at least the 'Hounds would have liked to defend the long throw-in better.

Winter Park scored two goals off throw-ins and got a third and winning goal from Tampa Leto transfer Todd Smith with three minutes left to play as the Wildcats pulled out a 3-2 victory to end the second-ranked 'Hounds season at 18-2-6.

"That was the problem with our game," Lyman coach Ray Sandidge said of the throw-ins. "We failed to clear out the throw-in twice. It's amazing to me how we could defend it so well against Lake Brantley, which has a kid that throws it in a lot farther, and let it happen twice tonight."

Another factor Tuesday night was Lyman's inability to capitalize on its early opportunities.

"We were all over them right off the bat," Sandidge said. "We had some real good chances and had three corner kicks in the first 10 minutes but it just didn't go our way."

Winter Park took a 1-0 lead 15 minutes into the game and it came on the Wildcats' first offensive opportunity. On a long throw in, Smith, playing his first game after transferring from top-ranked Leto, blasted a shot that Lyman keeper Kelly Walden knocked away. But Todd Raburn put in the loose ball for the game's first score.

Lyman battled back to tie it with eight minutes left in the half when Matt Hughes dribbled through three defenders and fired a shot inside the far post.

The 'Hounds had a chance to take the lead late in the first half when Todd Luke took hard shot that the Winter Park keeper knocked down. The ball bounced out to Aki Toda but he couldn't get a shot as a Winter Park defender tapped it away.

The early going of the second half was a back and forth struggle, but the Greyhounds took a 2-1 lead with 20 minutes left to play on a goal by Pat Howard off an assist from Brian Ocacek.

"It was a great goal," Sandidge said. "Brian (Ocacek) took the ball down and served it to the near post where Pat (Howard) was running on and he stuck it in the corner."

Winter Park put in the tying goal with 16 minutes remaining, as Nhan Lee scored off a long throw in.

"Two of our defenders collided with each other so Kelly (Walden) had to come out of the goal and the kid (Lee) headed the ball by him," Sandidge said.

The score remained tied at 2-2 until Smith got a ball at the top of the penalty box with three minutes left and launched a shot into the right corner to give the 'Cats a 3-2 win which they held onto for the region title.

"The second half we had most of the play but they got the goals," Sandidge said. "That's really the only statistic that counts."

"It was pretty disappointing," added Sandidge. "We felt we had a team that could do well in state. The kids weren't satisfied with losing at this point."

Pernfors Makes Giant Leap At Memphis Open

Mike Pernfors made a giant leap forward a couple of weeks ago in Memphis. Playing in the U.S. Indoor Championships, Pernfors defeated Frenchman Thierry Tulane in the first round.

Larry Castle
TENNIS ANYONE?

Tulane is ranked No. 24 in the world and is on the French Davis Cup Team. In the next round Pernfors defeated Sammy Giammalva. Giammalva is currently ranked No. 30 in the world. In the semifinals, the former Seminole Community College standout met No. 8 Kevin Curren. Curren is, of course, the Wimbledon runner-up and considered absolutely one of the finest players in the world. Pernfors beat him in straight sets to reach the semifinals.

In the semis, Pernfors played countryman Stefan Edberg. It was a great match and Pernfors was actually serving for the match at 6-4, 5-4. Edberg was not to be denied, though, and pulled off some great shots to take the second set. In the third it was all Edberg as he won going away, 6-1.

This was by far the best tournament that Mike Pernfors has had as a pro. He won a lot of money. In fact his earnings for the year are approaching $50,000. More importantly in the long run, though, is the fact that he will earn a lot of computer points and move way up in the world rankings. He should be in the 30's or 40's after the great showing in Memphis. Pernfors is on his way now. He has made it as a pro tennis player. Most of us who followed his college career knew he would.

Several area players who are playing college tennis are doing well. Bernadette Peters, who played at Lake Mary High last year, is at Birmingham Southern. She is on a full scholarship and is playing quite well. Mark Viner, also a Lake Mary High grad, is also on scholarship at the same school and is also doing quite well.

John and David Holt, of Sanford, are on the team at Jefferson State Junior College in Birmingham, Ala. John is playing No. 2 and No. 3 singles and No. 1 doubles. David is playing No. 3 doubles and No. 7 singles.

Lloyd 'Toys' With Phelps

BOCA RATON (UPI) — Chris Evert Lloyd, a sleeping giant playing what she admitted was at best average tennis, awoke to smash Terry Phelps.

The top-seeded Evert Lloyd put what she termed a week of "mediocre" play behind her Tuesday to rout Phelps 6-2, 6-0 to secure a semifinal berth in the $1.8 million Lipton International Players Championships.

"I felt she was toying with me, hitting to the corners," Phelps said. "I got frustrated."

Evert Lloyd, ranked second in the world, needed only 50 minutes to rip Phelps of Larchmont, N.Y. Evert Lloyd yielded just six points in seven service games and broke Phelps, No. 27 in the world, five times.

Evert Lloyd faces Kathy Rinaldi in the semifinals Thursday. Rinaldi, the ninth seed, beat No. 14 Carling Bassett 7-6 (7-5), 6-2 Tuesday in their quarterfinal.

No. 2 Steffi Graf, a West Germany baseliner, faces 6-foot-2 Helena Sukova.

Festive Menu Heralds Arrival Of Spring

Over a century ago, the English poet Percy Bysshe Shelley wrote, "If winter comes, can spring be far behind?" And today, what more delicious way to lift spirits out of the doldrums than with party fare that welcomes the new season — perhaps even before it arrives.

The menu suggested here is inspired by several different cultures, while taking advantage of the best and freshest home-grown ingredients. It's also delightfully adaptable — to festive brunch, dinner or supper — and each of the dishes is surprisingly simple to put together, requiring little kitchen time to produce impressive results.

A refreshing variation on classic rollatini, Chicken Breasts Primavera has a special filling based on ripe avocados. Fortunately, this highly versatile golden-green fruit is now available year-round, adding a taste of springtime to almost any meal. And here's another secret: both filling ingredients and chicken breasts are sauteed in pure, delicate olive oil, giving a distinctive touch of flavor and light, pleasing fragrance.

An unusual twist on that perennial favorite, pasta, Rainbow Tortellini is deceptively easy to prepare — you can even whip it up quickly for unexpected guests. Double or triple the quantity and it's an ideal buffet dish, or serve as a luncheon centerpiece.

Spring is synonymous with salads, and this sprightly Garden Bouquet combines a variety of greens with artichoke hearts and the nutty, mellow goodness of avocados. There's an avocado bonus in the dressing — which deserves nothing less than pure Italian olive oil.

Since salads should also be synonymous with healthy eating, it's important that avocados are loaded with nutrients — Vitamins A, C and E in addition to hefty doses of potassium, magnesium and phosphorus. And although you're probably aware by now that — despite the diabolic myth — neither avocados nor olive oil contains even the tiniest bit of cholesterol, did you know that each is also very high in monounsaturated fats, considered by many leading nutritionists to be more beneficial than polyunsaturates alone?

Round out the meal with an attractive Ambrosia Bread Ring. And crown it with elegant glasses of Tea Nectar, garnished with mint sprigs or lemon slices — or, for a drink that's also a dessert, small scoops of lemon sherbet.

A beverage that's popular with just about everybody, tea — all by itself — complements an almost limitless number of foods and, of course, makes an ideal base for party punches galore — enhancing rather than masking other flavors.

CHICKEN BREASTS PRIMAVERA

4 whole chicken breasts, skinned, boned and halved
 ¼ cup pine nuts (or coarsely chopped slivered almonds)
 ¼ cup sliced green onions
 ¼ cup olive oil
 2 cups chopped fresh spinach or 1 package (10 ounces) frozen chopped spinach, thawed and well-drained

1 small clove garlic, minced
 ¼ teaspoon thyme, crushed
 ½ teaspoon salt
 ¼ teaspoon pepper

1 medium avocado, seeded, peeled and chopped
 1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
 1½ cups chicken broth or stock

2 tablespoons flour
 ½ cup dry white wine
 1 medium avocado, seeded, peeled and mashed

(Green onions and parsley, for garnish)

Place chicken breasts between 2 sheets of waxed paper and pound until thin, about ¼-inch. Set aside.

In skillet, brown pine nuts and cook onion until just tender in 2 tablespoons olive oil. Add spinach, garlic, thyme, salt and pepper. Cook, stirring, just until spinach is slightly wilted. Remove from heat. Fold in chopped avocado. Spread mixture on chicken breasts. Roll up, jelly-roll fashion; fasten with toothpicks.

Seasonal delights from several cultures inspire surprises for spring.

In skillet, brown chicken in remaining olive oil. Add mushrooms and chicken broth. Cover and simmer 10 minutes, until chicken is tender. Blend flour and wine. Add to sauce and cook, stirring, until thickened and smooth. Blend in avocado.

To serve, slice chicken. Arrange on platter and spoon sauce over all. If desired, garnish with green onion curls and parsley. Makes 8 servings.

RAINBOW TORTELLINI

3 tablespoons olive oil
 1½ cups heavy cream

½ cup grated Parmesan cheese

6 slices prosciutto, cut into strips

1 medium tomato, coarsely chopped

4 cups hot cooked tortellini or fusilli pasta

1 medium avocado, seeded, peeled, quartered and sliced

2 tablespoons chopped parsley

In saucepan, combine olive oil, cream and cheese. Simmer, stirring often, until slightly thickened. Add prosciutto and tomato. Heat through.

In bowl, combine sauce with tortellini, avocado and parsley.

Toas to blend. Makes 8 servings.

GARDEN BOUQUET SALAD

1 large bunch arugula, rinsed and patted dry or

1 bunch leaf lettuce, broken into large pieces

1 large bunch watercress, rinsed and dried

4 heads Belgian endive

1 medium avocado, seeded, peeled and cut into strips lengthwise

Bachelors No Longer First To Be Inducted

DEAR ABBY: Your fans have recently pointed out the advantages and disadvantages of bachelorhood. In a response to "Proud Bachelor," you said, "And let's not forget that bachelorhood has its privileges. In time of war, they get to go first."

Although this was true at one time, it is no longer true. The Selective Service System has also changed with the times in an effort to deliver manpower needed by the Department of Defense in an emergency in the time required, and to do so with equity. We believe we have accomplished this.

Prior to the reforms of the early '70s, there were many inequities — student, occupational, paternity deferments. All these have been eliminated. In a future emergency, who would go will be determined by random selection based upon birth date.

The Selective Service also instituted other changes to assure a fair and just system of selection. The changes include board members who are trained and representative of the public they serve, and an organized alternative service for conscientious objectors.

Peacetime registration has made it possible to mobilize our manpower in an emergency at least six weeks faster than if registration did not exist. Since the president reinstated Selective Service registration in 1980, over 15.3 million young men, or over 99 percent of our draft-eligible population, have registered.

So, Abby, whether a man is married or not doesn't matter. Each one of the 15.3 million men who has made that trip to the post office to register with Selective Service deserves our thanks.

THOMAS K. TURNAGE,
DIRECTOR,
SELECTIVE SERVICE
SYSTEM,
WASHINGTON, D.C.

DEAR MR. TURNAGE: And you have my thanks for the update as well as the information concerning the changes in the Selective Service system. I found especially informative the reasons for deterrents, postponements and exemptions. I am sharing them with my readers.

Dear Abby

—Conscientious objectors perform service to the nation in a manner consistent with their moral, ethical or religious opposition to participation in war in any form. Depending upon the nature of his beliefs, a conscientious objector serves either in a non-combatant capacity in the armed forces or in a civilian job contributing to the national interest.

—Ministers may be exempted from service.

—Ministerial students are deferred from service until they complete their studies.

—Surviving sons or brothers in a family where the father, mother, brother or sister died as a result of U.S. military service, or is in a captured or missing in action status, are exempt from service in peacetime.

—Hardship deferments are available for men whose induction would result in hardship to persons who depend upon them for support.

—Members of reserve components (including the National Guard and advanced-level ROTC cadets who have already signed a Reserve contract) are eligible for a separate classification and perform their military service in the National Guard or the Reserves.

—Certain elected officials are exempt from service as long as they continue to hold office.

—Veterans generally are exempt from service in peacetime.

—Dual nationals may be exempted from U.S. military service if their other country of nationality has a treaty or agreement with the United States providing for such an exemption.

leaves. In salad bowl, just before serving, combine greens, avocado and artichokes.

In small bowl, combine mashed avocado, egg yolk, mustard, vinegar, garlic, pepper and sauce. Blend well. Gradually whisk in olive oil, pouring in a thin stream.

Pour dressing over salad; toss to blend. Serve immediately. If desired, sprinkle with toasted sesame seed. Makes 8 servings.

TEA NECTAR

4 cups hot strong brewed tea
1 can (12 ounces) apricot nectar
½ cup lemon juice
½ cup orange juice
¼ cup light brown sugar
Lemon slices
Mint sprigs
Combine hot tea with nectar, juices and sugar. Cover and let stand 10 minutes, to blend flavors. To serve hot, reheat gently but do not boil. To serve cold, chill thoroughly and pour over ice. Garnish with lemon or mint. If desired, garnish cold tea with lemon sherbet. Makes 8 servings.

Perfect Hot Tea

● Bring freshly drawn cold water to a full, rolling boil.
● Meanwhile, fill your teapot with hot water and let stand to heat it.

● Empty the teapot and put in one teabag or one teaspoon of loose tea per serving.

● Pour the boiling water (about 5½ ounces of water per serving) over tea.

● Cover and let stand 3-5 minutes. Remove teabags or strain.

● Serve plain or with lemon or milk (not cream) and sugar to taste.

Art Show Dedicated To Late President

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

More than 200 art lovers turned out Sunday afternoon to view the work of 21 competing local artists at the Sanford-Seminole Art Association 27th annual Members Exhibit and tea held at the Sanford Civic Center.

The show was dedicated the late Robert Garcia, who was association president at the time of his recent death. An exhibit of some of his paintings was featured.

Judged as "Best of Show" was a photograph by Joyce Mikkola.

Awards of Distinction went to Bettye Reagan for a pastel painting of the new Magnolia Mall and downtown Sanford; Helen Hickey for a pastel portrait of her daughter; and Florence Woodruff, painting, Award of Merit recipients were Phyllis Graham, association president, painting; Ida Wall, painting, and Sandra Russell, basket.

Honorable mention went to Faye Siler, Dorothea Strosnider, Ada Johnson, Marion Schweickert, Ruby Brown, Ashby Jones, Jean Winters, and Claire O'Connor.

There was a tie for the award for the most votes for the people's favorite cast by visitors to the show. Winners were Helen Hickey for her pastel painting of an old man with a beard, and Ruby Brown for her watercolor.

Judge for the show was William L. Long, who has a master of Fine Arts degree in drawing and painting. He has been an instructor at Brevard, Volusia, and Daytona Beach Community Colleges and is presently teaching from his studio in Orlando.

According to the show rules, the judge can only award one prize per artist.

Fish Great To Cook In Microwave, But Attention Required

Fish and seafood are often served during the Lenten season, and we are very fortunate in that we have some of the very best available to us.

Fish microwaves beautifully because of its high moisture content. It cooks very fast and retains its moisture as well as its nutritive value. Because it is delicate it can over cook quickly. Fish is done as soon as it becomes opaque and the center flakes easily with a fork. Over cooking causes fish to become dry and chewy. If you use frozen fish be sure it is completely defrosted before cooking.

Almost any fish could be used for this simple recipe for micro-baked fish.

MICRO-BAKED HADDOCK
1 pound haddock
Salt & pepper
Grated lemon peel, to taste
2 tablespoons lemon pieces
2 tablespoons chopped green onion

1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon seasoned salt
1/2 cup mayonnaise

Arrange fish in baking dish with the thickest portions to the outside. Mix remaining ingredients and spread on fish. Microwave uncovered on 100% power 5-7 minutes or until fish flakes easily with a fork. Sprinkle with paprika and garnish with parsley and lemon peel.

Micro-baking fish is the healthy way to prepare this protein food that is recommended by the American Heart Association. Fish itself is low in fat and in its preparation in the microwave we can eliminate additional fat.

PIQUANT RED SNAPPER
Sauce can be made and stored until needed.

1/2 cup chopped onion
1 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup green pepper
2 tablespoons corn oil margarine
1 cup canned tomatoes, crushed

1/2 cup red wine
1 tablespoon catsup
1 teaspoon chili powder
1/2 lemon, sliced
1 bay leaf

1 clove garlic, minced
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of red pepper
1-1/2-1-3/4 lb. whole red snapper

Melt margarine in a 4+ cup glass measure on 100% power for 45 seconds. Stir in onions, celery, and green pepper. Microwave on 100% power 5 minutes or until tender. Add all remaining ingredients except fish. Microwave for 3 minutes to blend flavors. Set aside.

Place fish in a 12 x 7 glass baking dish. Cover with plastic wrap and vent. Microwave on 100% power 5 minutes. Carefully turn fish over and pour on hot piquant sauce. Replace wrap. Microwave on 100% power for 7 minutes or until fish flakes near center. Let stand for 5 minutes before serving.

Hallbut and salmon are marketed in steak form, having even thickness, makes an ideal condition for microwaving.

Try this easy preparation.
MICRO-BAKED SALMON STEAKS

4 (1 inch thick) salmon steaks
2 tablespoons butter or other fat

2 tablespoons lemon juice
Salt and pepper
Paprika
1 small onion

Melt butter on 100% power about 30 seconds. Add lemon juice, salt and pepper. Pour over salmon. Top with onion slices and paprika. Microwave on 100% power 5-6 minutes or until fish flakes with fork. Let stand five minutes. Serve with lemon wedge. If butter cannot be used for dietary reasons, another animal fat can be used.

Flounder is frequently reasonably priced and is available at our local fresh seafood markets.

FLOUNDER PARMESAN
1 lb. fillet or flounder
1 oz. cup sour cream
2 tablespoons grated parmesan cheese

1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated onion
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash of hot pepper sauce
Paprika - parsley

Cut fish into serving portions. Arrange pieces with thickest part to the outside of the container. Mix remaining ingredients except paprika and parsley. Spread mixture on fish. Sprinkle with paprika. Microwave on 100% power 5-7 minutes or until thickest part of fish flakes easily with a fork. Let stand 5 minutes. Garnish with chopped parsley.

Micro-hint: fish odors are not usually a problem in a microwave oven because the cooking is short and the splatters if they do occur, do not bake on; however, if your microwave oven does need freshening, place a half lemon in a custard cup. Microwave on 100% for 1-2 minutes. Wiping the interior of the oven with a damp cloth with a small amount of baking soda also freshens. If you like vegetables with your fish this combination is tasty as well as colorful.

FISH WITH ZUCCHINI AND RED PEPPER

1/4 cup minced celery
1/2 cup onion
1/2 cup shredded zucchini
1 tablespoon parsley flakes
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon black pepper
1 pound fish fillets
1 small sweet red pepper, cut in thin strips onion, zucchini, parsley flakes, lemon juice and black pepper. Set aside. Place fish fillets in a 12 x 8 inch baking dish. Top with vegetable mixture. Cover with wax paper. Microwave on 50% power* 10-15 minutes, or until fish flakes easily with fork; rearrange the fillets once during cooking. Let stand, covered, 2-3 minutes.

*The vegetables added to the fish is the reason for the reduced power setting and additional cooking time.

Women's History Week In March

The American Association of University Women has proclaimed March 2-8, 1986 as Women's History Week. The Florida Division of the American Association of University Women has been in existence for 57 years and has branches in 61 cities with a membership of over 7,000 and growing.

Nationally, AAUW is going into its second century and it continues as an organization that promotes equality for women, education and self-development over the life span and positive societal changes.

The American Association of University Women supports the advancement of women, involvement in community issues, life-long learning and serves as a means for women to be effective in arenas where crucial issues are being decided.

Locally, the Seminole County AAUW branch will examine the issue of "Women's work, Women's Worth" on March 6, at 7 p.m. in the Eastmonte Civic Center, Altamonte Springs. Panelists Christine Crosby, co-publisher of Who's Who and Why of Successful Florida Women and Nancy Weber, a prominent attorney in the Orlando area who was recently named Professional Women of the Year by the Women's Executive Council of Downtown Orlando, Inc., will examine a successful women's perceptions of themselves, their feelings of worth and their sources of career motivation.

Resource Available For Consumer Advice

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm confused about the claims and counterclaims made by "experts" on subjects such as megavitamin therapy, food additives and consumer safety. Do you know of a factual resource that could help me separate fact from fiction?

DEAR READER — Yes, I do. Dr. Stephen Barrett is a nationally acclaimed opponent of health fraud. He is a practicing psychiatrist, editor, author and adviser to the American Council on Health and Science. Dr. Barrett publishes the Nutrition Forum, a monthly newsletter that is a clear, up-to-date and concise analysis of quackery and bogus health claims. The publication is available by subscription for $30 per year. You may order it by writing George F. Stickley Co., 210 West Washington Square, Philadelphia, PA 19106. Credit-card orders may be placed by calling 215-922-7126. This is an extremely valuable and factual resource that I recommend to every consumer who is concerned about nutrition information. Dr. Barrett addresses subjects from A (anti-quackery) to Z (zinc and the common cold).

DEAR DR. GOTT — What is stenosis of the esophagus, and what treatments are available?

DEAR READER — Esophageal stenosis means that there is a constriction somewhere along the course of the esophagus, from the throat to the stomach. Stenosis simply means "narrowing."

Some forms of stenosis are congenital, which means that babies are born with them. Surgical correction is usually necessary.

In adults, stenosis is more likely to be produced by irritation, such as the chronic burning of gastric acid. In this instance, antacids may help ease the symptoms, but procedures to dilate the narrowed esophagus are usually necessary.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My friend gave me some pills for dieting she calls 20/20s. I call them diet pills, but she calls them "speed." Who is right, and what harm can they do? They are bought over-the-counter, so I assume they are legal.

DEAR READER — I am not familiar with the product you mention: it is not listed in the Physician's Desk Reference for Non-Prescription Drugs, and none of my local pharmacists have heard of it.

The term "speed" refers to amphetamine derivatives; these are available by prescription only for specific medical indications. Your friend's diet pills may contain caffeine, which can cause jitteriness and some stimulation. As an over-the-counter medicine, 20/20s cannot legally contain "speed" or any other potent compound.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Is a singleton honor adequate support for partner's suit? Yes, but only when you know that the suit is long and strong. Here South made a strong cue-bid over East's opening spade bid and then bid his diamonds at the four-level. North felt very comfortable raising diamonds with the singleton queen. South optimistically carried on to six. South was lucky — North had the right cards, provided declarer played them in the right way.

Spades were led and continued, declarer trumping with a high diamond. Apparently the slam depended upon the heart suit splitting 3-3, unless there was a way to improve that chance of success. Since East had six spades (he would hardly have bid at the three-level with only a five-card suit), there was little chance that he would have four or more hearts. At the same time, for his opening bid East almost surely held the club ace. However, he might not hold the club queen. So declarer played a diamond to dummy's queen and called for the club king. East naturally covered with the ace, which was ruffed. Now declarer ran his remaining diamonds, leaving the club jack and the Q-7-4 of hearts in dummy. West, who could not keep all four of his hearts and still hold the club queen, was forced to release a small heart on South's last diamond. That was enough to make declarer's last little heart a winner, after the three high honors were played.

This play is called a transfer squeeze since the primary control in clubs must be transferred from East to West, who also has to guard the heart suit.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY FEBRUARY 20, 1986

Conditions for the year ahead look hopeful. Before you celebrate your next birthday anniversary, several wishes will be fulfilled.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll be lucky at this time with ventures or enterprises you originate or have a free hand in directing. Put your talents to work. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Most of the time when we are given financial tips by "insiders," they are of little value. But information passed on to you today could be worth investigating.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today you are apt to derive greater enjoyment from activities that are more verbal than physical. A good gabfest with friends will fill the bill.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're still in a strong trend where your material affairs are concerned. Something that starts out rather small could turn into something quite grand.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) That news you've been hoping for on a matter outside your immediate control is forthcoming. Today could be the day.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Lady Luck has something special in mind for you today. It could be participation in a situation where another is already reaping big benefits.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You are now entering a cycle where you could be more fortunate than usual in a partnership. Look for opportunities to form alliances.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Act

in accordance with your thoughts today. When you conceive bright ideas on ways to advance your ambitions and aspirations, swing into action.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Think win today if you are participating in any type of competitive involvement, regardless if it's sports, games, romance or business.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Important changes you implement today will have far-reaching favorable effects. Move things around if it can better your lot in life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Companions will find you a delightful person to associate with today. Your efforts will be concentrated on doing what you can to please those around you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Continue to keep a weather eye peeled for economic and career opportunities. Something big could develop for you, but you'll have to spot it.

North Carolina Hamlet's Denizens Return This Spring

By Vernon Scott
UPI Hollywood reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Mayberry, N.C., one of TV's most popular fictional towns, will bustle with life once again this spring as most of the original denizens of that hamlet return for a two-hour special. First broadcast as "The Andy Griffith Show," the series ran from 1960 to 1968. In 1968 it became "Mayberry R.F.D." and continued until 1971. The folksy, down-home show was strong enough to lose major cast members several times but manage to succeed all the same. Griffith played sheriff Andy Taylor with an added Don

Knotts as his hilarious deputy Barney Fife and his lovable son Opie played by Ron Howard. Mayberry was peopled by warm-hearted dillards — Jim Nabors as Gomer and George Lindsey as Goober — and such comfortable other townfolk as Frances Bavier as Aunt Bee. Howard McNear as Floyd the barber and Jack Dodson as Mr. Fix-it. Many predicted the series would fold when Nabors and the moronic Gomer departed to star in his own sitcom, "Gomer Pyle U.S.M.C." But the ratings remained high. A year later doom was forecast for the show when Knotts decamped, but Lindsey as the bungling garage mechanic, Goober, picked up the slack. When Griffith finally said goodbye it was assumed the show would collapse. But it continued to prosper for another three seasons with Ken Berry taking over as the star in the role of Sam Jones, another widower with a small son, with most of the supporting cast intact. "Return to Mayberry" will not include Berry but will have other members of the "Mayberry R.F.D." cast who also appeared on "The Andy Griffith Show."

An enthusiastic Griffith bubbled with excitement about reprising his role and getting together with the old cast. "Everyone is back except Frances (Bavier) who isn't feeling well," he said. "And, of course, Howard (McNear) and Paul (Hartman) are gone now. It's been about 18 years since we all worked together. It's amazing how everything fit right back together. I never had a better time working on a project in my life."

Of his career in recent years, Griffith said, "I couldn't get arrested for about seven years. Now I've had four major TV roles in a row. It began with 'Trial of Innocence' playing a psychotic judge. "Then I did 'Matlock,' which has been retitled 'Diary of a Perfect Murder.' It's a TV movie and pilot for a series. It goes on the air March 3. Then in April I'll be on the air in 'Adult Children of Alcoholics.' Of course, 'Mayberry' is the fourth and the most enjoyable."

"The story line has Andy coming back to town to visit Opie and his wife while she has her first baby. The office of sheriff is open and Barney Fife is electioneering for the job. "I don't think 'Mayberry' could ever become a series again because it's hard to get this cast together for the long haul. Ron has his own career as a director now. "I'll tell you one thing, this script is as fine a motion picture comedy script as I've ever seen. And I'm proud to be doing it."

Shock Waves From Shuttle Disaster Expand

By William Harwood
UPI Science Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — With the shuttle program suspended indefinitely, the United States is left with a dwindling supply of already-booked expendable rockets to carry an impossible load of scientific, commercial and military satellites.

The space agency's three remaining shuttles could be grounded for as long as two years, some experts say, because of the Challenger explosion. Not counting scientific payloads, 11 military and commercial satellites had been scheduled for shuttle launch in 1986 along with some 21 on tap for 1987.

And those figures do not include payloads on seven classified military shuttle flights planned over the next two years.

The shuttle disaster means unavoidably lengthy delays and in hindsight emphasizes the pitfalls of relying on a single space transportation system for the vast majority of commercial and scientific payloads.

The problem is especially acute for the Department of Defense, which is placing an ever increasing emphasis on military space operations and has long argued for secondary launch vehicles to maintain assured access to space.

In the military arena, eight unmanned Air Force Titan 34Ds and 15 Atlas boosters remain on hand for launch along with a variety of smaller boosters.

"We've got to look at the impact in two different ways," said an Air Force official who asked not to be identified.

"The most immediate impact is how long is the shuttle fleet down? If it's a six-month grounding, that immediate impact is more manageable than if it's a two-year grounding. If it's two years, we're just in a world of hurt."

The Defense Department already had won White House approval for buying an expendable launcher capable of carrying payloads as heavy as those carried by the shuttle.

Last year after an industry competition, the Air Force was authorized to purchase 10 upgraded Titan 34D-7s for satellite launchings at the rate of two per year beginning in 1988, all from the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station.

The Titan 34D launcher uses a two-stage liquid-fueled Titan rocket, a pair of 5 1/2-segment solid rocket boosters and a third stage. The Titan 34D-7 is basically the same vehicle but it uses seven solid propellant fuel segments for each booster and can thus carry much heavier payloads into orbit.

The Air Force also gained approval to refurbish 13 aging two-stage Titan 2 ICBMs to launch lighter military payloads. Six will be used for Air Force weather satellites, six for classified payloads and one for a Navy oceanographic satellite.

But a presidential directive signed a year ago stipulated that the Department of Defense must continue to rely on NASA's space shuttle as its primary space launch vehicle and to use at least one third of the available shuttle missions per year.

Under the directive, the Defense Department agreed to pay for eight shuttle flights a year when the shuttle reached a two-mission-a-month rate at the end of the decade.

That rate cannot be achieved with just three space shuttles. The Titan 34D-7s will not be ready for launch until late 1988 and the refurbished Titan 2s will not be available until 1989. And while the Titan 34D production line is still open, it would take about three years for a new order to be filled.

"Regardless of how long the orbiters are grounded, we're looking at a transition period where we just will not be able to attenuate through new vehicles, either new orbiters or new ELV's (expendable launch vehicles), the backlog that's going to build up," the Air Force official said.

According to the most recent shuttle manifest, released in November, 11 shuttle flights were booked through 1988 by the Defense Department to carry classified payloads into orbit.

In addition, 14 military navigation satellites were scheduled for launch on commercial flights featuring mixed scientific and commercial payloads and the president's Strategic Defense Initiative, or "Star Wars" program, had planned to book two flights a year starting in 1987.

The Air Force official said even assuming a six-month delay for the resumption of shuttle flights following the Challenger disaster, by 1988 there will be a backlog of up to two dozen missions.

"So you're looking at some very tough decisions in both the near term and the long term," he said. "We need to be more robust, we need more vehicles, we need more types of vehicles so that when we suffer a grounding in one aspect of our space program we are not totally dependent on relying that vehicle."

A case in point is the Titan program. The last launch of a Titan 34D was Aug. 28, 1985, at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. One of the liquid-fueled Titan-2 engines shut down prematurely causing the loss of a defense satellite.

Aviation Week & Space Technology magazine reported the satellite was an Air Force-Central Intelligence Agency reconnaissance spacecraft. The loss of booster and satellite represented $150 million and the program was grounded for four months for an accident review.

The French Ariane rocket also was grounded four months following a third stage failure last September that resulted in the loss of two satellites.

NASA's expendable rocket programs are quickly winding down as the result of a planned phase-out in favor of the space shuttle.

Only four Delta rockets remain on the books. Three are scheduled for launch in 1986 to carry two weather satellites into orbit and to ferry a Star Wars payload into space. The final NASA Delta launch is set for August 1987 to launch another Star Wars payload.

Likewise, the agency's Atlas-Centaur program is scheduled to come to an end in early 1987 after three more flights, each to launch Navy communications satellites.

Transpace Carriers Inc., after years of struggle, hopes to complete financing in the next few weeks that will allow Delta production lines to reopen for commercial operations.

Even if all goes well, however, the first such launch is not expected before May 1987 and even though the Challenger disaster represents potential new demand, company officials say not much can be done to increase projected flight rates.

"Unfortunately, based on production rate and launch rate, our projected optimal launch rate cannot accommodate much more than what our business plan calls for," said Rick Endres, director of corporate development.

"We feel that we can do maybe one more launch a year than what we predicted our business plans for."

Current plans, based on market projections and construction rates, would support two Delta launches in 1987, four in 1988, seven in 1989, 10 in 1990 and 14 in 1991.

Endres said the government's authorization in 1982 of private marketing of Deltas and Atlas-Centaurs "speaks to the fact that we have any option at all of assured access to space."

"There was a tremendous amount of pressure at the time to deactivate these things and just go with that shuttle."

General Dynamics' Convair Division, the company that builds the unmanned Atlas-Centaur rockets, also is gearing up for commercial operations and the production line is still open.

"We have been authorized by NASA to market the launch vehicle commercially and we are continuing to do that," said spokesman Jack Isabel. "We haven't been successful in selling any up to this point in time but we are continuing those efforts."

"We believe that our capability, our manufacturing capability for Atlas-Centaur, is probably around 10 a year. As far as launch capabilities go we think that launch capability for Atlas-Centaur could probably exceed 10 a year."

But Isabel said it would take two years to build and launch a new Atlas-Centaur and that estimate was based on using spare parts already available. Building a new rocket from scratch would take up to 30 months.

Arianespace, the European company that markets the Ariane rocket in direct competition with the American space shuttle, is in much the same position when it comes to capitalizing on what appears to be an expanding market.

Arianespace is projecting seven launches a year through 1988 and 1989, although the company has the capacity to increase that by one per year.

"We anticipate possible interest from people scheduled to be launched by the shuttle within the next year or two," said Douglas Heydon, general manager of U.S. operations for Arianespace.

"We have studied what the possibilities are for us to make launch slots available and they are limited."

Heydon said there is one clear opening for one payload in May 1987.

"What we believe is likely to happen is that schedule adjustments of other customers presently manifested in the latter part of 1987 will probably open places for two other satellite launches."

In answer to whether any shuttle customers had contacted Arianespace, Heydon said: "We've had what I would characterize as inquiries and questions of interest expressed by a variety of firms who are presently manifested on the shuttle. I think it is probably fair to say everyone is scratching their heads."

Expendable Launch Schedule

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Here is a schedule for the final seven major expendable rocket launchings planned by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration from the Kennedy Space Center.

The list does not include dates for military Titan 34D boosters because those launchings are classified. It also does not include launchings of Atlas rockets from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. All dates subject to change:

1986

- May 1: Delta No. 178; payload: GOES-G weather satellite. Customer: National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA).
- May 22: Atlas Centaur No. 66; payload: FLTSATCOM communications satellite. Customer: U.S. Navy.

1987

- April 23: Atlas Centaur No. 68 (final NASA launch in Atlas Centaur program); payload: FLTSATCOM communications satellite. Customer: U.S. Navy.
- August: Delta No. 181 (final NASA launch in Delta program); payload: classified. Customer: Strategic Defense Initiative Organization.
- communications satellite. Customer: U.S. Navy.
- Aug. 14: Delta No. 180; payload: classified. Customer: Strategic Defense Initiative Organization.
- Oct. 9: Delta No. 179; payload: GOES-H weather satellite. Customer: NOAA.
- Nov. 6: Atlas Centaur No. 67; payload: FLTSATCOM communications satellite. Customer: U.S. Navy.

Congress Considering Directions For Future Of The Space Program

By Bill Wood

ORLANDO (UPI) — The government is looking both toward advanced technology and returning to unmanned spacecraft in the wake of the shuttle disaster, a senior analyst with the Congressional Office of Technology Assessment said Tuesday.

"I haven't talked with all the major players real recently, but I know there is a lot of interest in replacing the shuttle," said Ray Williamson.

"And I also know some people are giving thought to going to expendable launchers and saving some of that (shuttle) money for the future."

Williamson's agency, based in Washington, D.C., provides major analyses of technology upon request from either house of Congress. Studies range from health and energy issues to international security and space.

"The members are waiting to see what results this presidential commission on the shuttle disaster turns up, because the decision that will be facing the members fairly soon is whether to purchase a replacement orbiter for the Challenger," he said.

"At issue there is: if we spend the $2 billion or so and take the two to four years to build a replacement shuttle, could we spend that money better by doing some research on an advanced system beyond the shuttle, preparing ourselves for the latter part of this century and into the next century?"

"Should we spend a fair amount of money on a so-called space plane that would take off horizontally, go up to space and then land again? That's very much of interest today in the administration and in Congress," Williamson said.

Williamson said the option of using unmanned Titan, Delta and Atlas Centaur rockets — instead of the shuttle — to send satellites and other cargo into space would eliminate danger to humans and free up money for advancing technology.

"NASA phased out using the Deltas or the Atlas Centaurs when it declared the space shuttle operational," Williamson said. "However, if the recent event didn't demonstrate it, earlier looks at the shuttle program would tell you it wasn't genuinely operational."

"There were always an awful lot of changes in each vehicle, and they're still refining and trying to make the shuttle into something truly operational," he said.

Moreover, Williamson said, Congress does not want to delay construction of a space station in order to rebuild the shuttle fleet.

"Some members are very concerned that

'Before any decision can be made, we need more information about what went wrong this time. It may not be a matter of just fixing this problem.'

continued spending on the shuttle will force the space station project off into even the more distant future," he said.

"Before any decision can be made, we need more information about what went wrong this time. It may not be a matter of just fixing this problem," Williamson said.

"NASA's decision making is getting scrutiny today that it hasn't had in a long time. Maybe that whole system needs to be improved. It's a potential for looking more deeply into how we manage our civilian space program."

Williamson was in Orlando for a speech Tuesday night at the University of Central Florida.

Keogh Awarded Florida 'Seafood Chef' Title

Chef Keith Keogh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Keogh, Lake Mary, was awarded the "Governor's Cup for Seafood Excellence" and the title, 1986 Florida Seafood Chef of the Year in ceremonies held Feb. 5, at the American Culinary Federation, St. Augustine.

Keith Keogh, who is the Executive Chef of Walt Disney World's Epcot Center, won by preparing his original Florida seafood recipe, "Seafood Roll Lighthouse Key". Lieutenant Governor Wayne Mixon presented The Governor's Cup, a specially struck gold medallion and a $500 cash prize to Chef Keogh.

The five finalists were all winners, having been chosen by the Board of Directors of the American Culinary Federation for original creative recipes. The finalists other than Chef Keogh were: Chef Scott Hansen, Daytona Hilton, preparing Pompano Daytona; Chef Robert Hilsky, St. Petersburg, Fresh Florida Stone Crab Souffle; Chef Frederick Lucardie, Rusty Pelican, Tampa, Black Grouper Lemon Grass en Papillote; and Chef Paul Palermo, La Grillage, St. Augustine, creating Grilled Marinated Grouper with Florida Sea Urchins Sauce.

Judges for this culinary competition were Mr. Klaus Friedenrich, Executive Vice-President, U.S. Chef's Open; Mr. Herman Rusch, Ambassador-at-Large, American Culinary Federation; and Mr. Baron H. Galand, President American Culinary Federation.

This event was presented on behalf of the State of Florida, Department of Natural Resources, Bureau of Seafood Marketing and Extension Services in the nation's oldest city as a salute to Florida seafood. The Second Annual Governor's Cup for Seafood Excellence was hosted by The American Culinary Federation and sponsored by Gulf and South Atlantic Fisheries Development Foundation.

As Florida's Seafood Chef of the Year, Chef Keogh will represent Florida and Governor Bob Graham in the Seafood

Superbowl to be held March 5, at the School of Hospitality Administration, Florida State University. The States participating in this event will be Florida, Louisiana, South Carolina, Alabama, North Carolina, New Jersey and Virginia.

Calorie-counters don't have to suffer when it comes to desserts.

Two Heavenly Desserts Prove Dieters Can Have Treats And Figure, Too

One of the best kept secrets of those slim-hipped wonders we want to resemble next spring is that they manage to eat a great variety of foods yet most often end their meals with a deliciously satisfying sweet. Not for them the agony of "not another bite." Desserts are as important as the main course. By carefully choosing recipes when you're looking forward to an out-of-this-world mealtime finale, you won't gobble more than you should and can still enjoy sweet treats.

GRAPEFRUIT IN THE SNOW

1/2 cup water
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
10 packets (1 gram each) low-calorie sweetener, divided
1 cup Florida grapefruit juice
2 egg whites
1 large Florida pink grapefruit, peeled, sectioned, cut in pieces
In medium saucepan combine water, gelatin and 6 packets sweetener. Let stand 1 minute. Stir over medium heat, until gelatin is dissolved, about 1 minute. Remove from heat; stir in grapefruit juice. Chill until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. In small mixing bowl beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in remaining 4 packets of sweetener; continue beating until stiff. Fold whites into gelatin mixture. Fold in half the grapefruit pieces. Arrange remaining grapefruit's pieces in four serving dishes. Spoon gelatin mixture over grapefruit pieces. Chill 1 hour or until firm.

GRAPEFRUIT-PINEAPPLE TORTE

1/2 cup graham cracker crumbs, divided
1/2 cup Florida grapefruit juice
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
2 packets (1 gram each) low-calorie sweetener
1 can (8 ounces) crushed pineapple in its own juice
2 small pink Florida grapefruit
1 cup vanilla yogurt
Sprinkle 2 tablespoons graham cracker crumbs evenly in bottom of an 8-inch springform pan. In small saucepan combine grapefruit juice, gelatin and sweetener. Let stand 1 minute. Stir over medium heat until gelatin is dissolved, about 1 minute. Remove from heat. Drain juice from pineapple; reserve. Peel and section grapefruit over a bowl to collect the juice. Reserve 10 grapefruit sections for garnish; cut remainder into small pieces. Drain juice from grapefruit sections; add to pineapple juice. (You should have 1/2 cup; add more grapefruit juice if necessary.) Stir juices and yogurt into gelatin mixture. Chill until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Fold in cut-up grapefruit pieces. Spoon grapefruit mixture into prepared pan. Garnish top with reserved sections. Chill several hours, until set. Remove sides of pan. Pat remaining 2 tablespoons crumbs around the side of the torte.

Yield: 6 servings (111 calories per serving).

Carrot-Walnut Cake is an excellent dessert as well as a favorite munch at breakfast time.

Attractive Centerpiece Was Created For Eating

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Carrot cakes come in all guises. They are fun for youngsters to make and serve as special treats when given as hostess gifts.

A walnut-carrot cake made in a bundt pan makes an attractive — and delicious — centerpiece. Icing is optional on this cake, which serves as a dessert, a brunch snack or a breakfast accompaniment to ham and eggs.

CARROT-WALNUT CAKE

2 cups flour

2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon ground clove
4 eggs, separated
2 cups sugar
1 cup peanut oil
1 1/2 cups grated carrots
1 cup chopped walnuts

1/3 cup hot water

Combine flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg and clove; set aside. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form; set aside.

Combine sugar and oil, beating until well mixed. Add egg yolks, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add carrots and peanuts.

Alternately beat in flour mixture and water, beginning and ending with flour. Gently fold in egg whites. Turn into a greased and floured 12-cup bundt pan or miniature bundt pan tin. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 55 minutes or until done.

Cool in pan for 10 minutes. Remove from pan; let cool on wire rack. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 1 cake.

Specialties Reflect New Respect For Wine

By John DeMers
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — In a quiet revolution, winemakers and chefs are finally learning to set aside their suspicions and work together on pleasing the diner with their combined product.

The following recipes were created by chef Gunter Preuss, who, with his wife Evelyn, owns Le Versailles in New Orleans.

The restaurant was recently the site of an evening with California winemaker Robert Stemmler. In addition to promoting his wines, Stemmler and Preuss teamed up to stress the importance of such cooperation.

"Virtually every fine dish is cooked with some sort of wine," said the German-born Preuss.

In our type of cuisine, it's about 50-50 red to white. Our fish is all cooked in white wine, and most meats have sauces finished with red wine.

"Whenever you recommend a menu, you have to have this relationship in mind right off the bat."

BOUILLABaisse

For 6 servings:
4 medium carrots, sliced
2 onions, sliced
6 stalks celery, sliced
2 leeks, white parts only, sliced
2 fennel roots (optional), sliced
Butter
2 tablespoons tomato paste
1 cup brandy
2 cups white wine
3 tomatoes, peeled and seeded
1/2 teaspoon garlic, finely chopped
Pinch presoaked saffron
3 quarts fish broth, homemade or commercial
1 pound shrimp
1 pound skinless fish fillets, cut in 1-inch pieces
6 freshly shucked oysters
3 medium lobster tails, shelled and cut
Mussels in shell (optional)
Lump crabmeat, chopped
Parsley for garnish
Sauté the carrots, onions, celery, leeks and fennel until glazy-looking, then add the tomato paste and saute. Flame with brandy and extinguish with white wine. Add the tomatoes, garlic and saffron, then add the fish broth and cook until the vegetables are done.

Separately saute in butter the shrimp, fish, oysters, lobster meat and mussels. Fill up the pot with prepared fish broth and cook until fish is done. Reduce heat and cook an additional 10 minutes.

Correct seasoning and wine to taste. Top with fresh lump crabmeat and chopped parsley. Serve with garlic croutons.

REDFISH CHARDONNAY

Per serving:
2 ounces chardonnay
1/2 tsp shallots, finely chopped
1 tsp carrots, julienned
1 tsp celery, julienned
1 tsp leek, julienned
1 mushroom cap, stem removed
4 ounce redfish fillet (see note below)

2 ounces cream
Salt to taste
White pepper to taste
1/2 lemon, juiced
2 ounces lump crabmeat
1 ounce butter
1/2 ounce chardonnay

Note: If redfish is unavailable in your area, bass or pompano can be substituted.

In a saute pan, combine the chardonnay, shallots, carrots, celery, leek and mushroom cap. Add the fillet and poach over low heat for 8 to 10 minutes, until the flesh is firm but not dry. Remove the fish from the pan and set on a dinner plate. Hold warm.

Increase the heat and reduce the poaching liquid by half. Add the cream and reduce by half again. Season to taste with salt, white pepper and lemon juice.

Reduce to a simmer and add the crabmeat, tossing until it is heated through. Finish the sauce by swirling in butter and splashing in the final chardonnay. Serve the sauce immediately over the warm fish.

QUAILS IN CRANBERRY PINOT NOIR SAUCE

Per serving:
1 1/2 Tablespoons butter, divided
1/2 teaspoon French shallots, finely chopped
1/2 teaspoon green onions, finely chopped
1/4 teaspoon tarragon
3 Tablespoons bread crumbs
Salt to taste
White pepper to taste
2 1/2-ounce quails, boneless
2 slices bacon
1/2 Tablespoons whole cranberries, fresh or frozen
1 ounce brandy
1/4 cup pinot noir
1/2 cup brown sauce, homemade or prepared
1/2 Tbsp French shallots, finely chopped

In a saute pan, melt 1 tablespoon of butter, then add the shallots, green onion and tarragon. Sauté for 1 minute. Incorporate the bread crumbs into this mixture, taking care to distribute the butter and bread crumbs evenly.

Season to taste with salt and white pepper. Transfer the stuffing to another container and cool in refrigerator.

To prepare the quail, preheat oven to 350 degrees. The boneless quails should already be split down the back — if they are not, make them so. Spread the quails out, flesh-side down.

Spread the chilled stuffing onto the interior of the boneless quails, then shape the birds into their original shape. With the legs sticking upwards, wrap the quails with bacon and secure with toothpicks. Roast in pan in 350-degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes.

Remove the quails from the oven and pour excess oil out of the pan, then add cranberries and stir them into the pan drippings. Deglaze and flambé by adding brandy. Extinguish the flame with pinot noir.

Add the brown sauce and final dash of shallots, simmering an additional 5 minutes. Finish the sauce by swirling in 1/2 tablespoon of butter. Arrange the quails legs-up on the plate and spoon sauce over them.
