The new and better Texaco is an answer to these changed and changing conditions. In the tank, the new and better Texaco is a pure, non-doctored liquid; at the spark, a vapor that is so free of moisture that it can be truly described as dry. ### FRENCH WOMAN TO START FIRST AIR TAXI SERVICE

Has Her Own Plane In Which She Will Take Passengers Around Paris

PARIS, Dec. 1.—(INS)—A smart young French woman is going to be the first person to operate an air taxi, if the government allows it. Madame Maryse Bastie, clever French aviator, has been flying about the country for a number of years. She has her own little plane and of course her pilot's license. Since the French authorities have forbidden her to use the main air lines, she is thinking of "flying" passengers over short routes.

"My little aviator," she says, "can hop off and alight upon a small square of space and I don't see any difficulty in being able to get around the town as well as in a taxi. The day is not far off when people will save dollars by going short distances, such as Deauville, Tours, Cherbourg, etc., except by aviator."

New York has nothing on Paris when it comes to jams in the subway, according to the general manager of the "metro" system who has just announced that the French lines carry more than twice as many passengers per mile as the American.

The yearly number of people carried in Paris is 1,992,000,000, a daily average of 1,600,000. The New York system, with its very extensive lines, beats this number but London falls behind, with 110,000,000 passengers annually, as well as Berlin with 650,000,000.

The Paris underground is unquestionably the most convenient to use and takes one to any part of the city. At present it is considered that 20 more kilometers are required within the city limits, fifteen of which are already under construction.

Madrid can claim the sweetest-smelling subway system in the world, but this is probably because it is very small, new and very much used. It still needs many more lines before it can compete with the surface lines of other cities.

Not even the first cold and rainy days of early autumn are enough to discourage the painters who are to be seen in many of the little houses transferring to the heights, for he is painting a night scene with dark sky and little lights appearing up and down the river. He stands beneath a gas jet and it is not long before a crowd gathers around.

In about eight years, life will be better for the poor Parisian because, that is, if there are any houses left at that future date. If there aren't they will not be slipping around on slippery pavements and falling down into a bottomless pit every time it rains or snows in the city.

Non-slip pavements are going to replace the old kind of slippery asphalt which has been used up till now and make it safe for automobiles as well as for pedestrians.

such action. They often fall, too, to consider that the weapon or other items of material developed today, in the near future may be, if not out of date, at least greatly inferior to one then available, and that experts by no means are always in agreement as to the extent to which changes are advisable. Experimentation, frequently over a protracted period, is necessary before definite decisions are made.

"The essential material need of the Army, from the viewpoint of possible participation in war, is the development and improvement in time of peace of types of weapons and material—a continuous effort to assure, should emergency so demand, the availability for production of material of types of last-minute development and the existence of the guns, gauges, and other essential for the manufacture of such types. The War Department has been unrelaxing in its efforts toward this end."

and Sujevoz was "a very excellent program, authorized by Congress, is progressing satisfactorily," he said. While movement during the past four years of a considerable number of troops from posts lacking suitable quarters to permanent garrisons, has necessitated in some cases of dispersal of organizations with a resulting handicap to training efficiency, this condition is but temporary, Davis said.

Atotal appropriation of nearly $54,000,000 available for authorized makes provision for the procurement of 29,495 enlisted men and 1199 officers. On June 30, 1924, 40,000 members of the permanent establishment were being housed in tents or wooden barracks of war time construction, Davis pointed out.

Davis reviewed the non-military activities of the army and called attention to the aid it had rendered during the past fiscal year in cyclones, floods and other disasters that occurred in various parts of the country. Twenty-four of such emergencies were met.

"Floods, tornadoes, cyclones, typhoons, bursting dams, ice jams, coal mine disasters, explosions, forest fires, conflagrations and earthquakes," Davis said, "found the army prepared to render prompt and efficient service for the alleviation of suffering and the protection of life and property in communities in a great number of states and in Porto Rico and the Philippines Islands."

The National Guard, Davis reported, has attained "the highest plane of military effectiveness in the peace time history of this election, the national defense forces, equipped and trained thus during any period in the past."

Reserve strength "Of the organized reserves, the strength of which was put at 120,288, the enlisted personnel was 87,464, while the officers reserve totaled 114,824, the latter including 9,705 National Guard officers holding commissions in the reserve. Numerous considerations, Davis said, limit the practicality and desirability of increasing the strength of the enlisted reserve at the present time. It comprises chiefly, non-commissioned officers and specialists for key mobilization purposes."

"Our organized reserves," Davis declared, "are unlike those of any other world power. They are completely dissimilar to any other reserves contemplated for this country prior to the World War. Their development along effective lines has involved the solution of problems as great in magnitude as are the possibilities of the reserves themselves for the national security. We have been plowing virgin ground in our effort to develop the Organized Reserve; we have had but little to guide us from the book of past experience."

from the civil works executed by the Corps of Engineers have resulted in annual savings in transportation costs which exceed the total cost of all improvements.

Engineer Corps "It is a manifest economy to employ the Corps of Engineers on constructive works of peace. In war time the officers who have been trained on large river and harbor works have responded to the emergency demands for the highest engineering capacity. Thus the peace-time dividends from improved waterways are augmented by the war-time dividends from military engineering preparedness."

Progress Notes "The really remarkable progress which has marked Porto Rican development for the past three decades," Davis said, "justifies that highest hopes for the future of the island and its people." Davis found the Philippines in a state of prosperity under the wise administration of the new Government and was silent on the question of independence of the islands.

Of the civil activities of the Army Engineer Corps, Davis listed examination and surveys of waterways, flood control, improvement of rivers and harbors for navigation, and miscellaneous civil works.

MACHINE TO TEST MENTAL STATUS OF THRILL KILLER

Chief Defense Alienist Is Applying Metabolator To Students

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 1.—(INS)—An intricate machine is to determine the mental condition of George Harsh, student "thriller" who confessed he slew two men while Richard Gallaghy, his associate and fellow student, acted as a "lookout."

The machine known as the "metabolator" is being applied to Harsh in prison here by Dr. Frank E. Edge, chief defense alienist. Dr. Edge and a corps of consulting specialists hope to determine Harsh's present state of "basic metabolism," which they say may be responsible for his conduct.

Dr. Edge's metabolator, measuring the process of metabolism which provides energy for the body, reveals the condition of certain ductless glands, making a chart and thoroughly diagnosing their functioning.

By reading the tracings on the metabolator's charts, the specialists expect to have an accurate gauge of the physical and even the mental condition of the patient. The action recorded on the charts is termed "analysis for gauging human conduct."

The Harsh specialists may draw conclusions if the machine shows deficiency in the functioning of the glands that the erstwhile Oglethorpe University student was troubled by glandular conditions to become a hardy for the "fun" of it. They make it clear that they are not working on the case in an effort to prove him sane or insane—but merely to determine the true mental and physical condition of their patient.

The machine's tests are comparatively simple from the outside. The patient breathes for ten minutes through a rubber tube connected to an oxygen tank, the impurities of his exhalations are measured in a delicate balance, and the specialists are led to certain conclusions.

Harsh, on the fifth floor of Fulton prison tower here, is stigmatized quietly to the tests which may have some bearing on the outcome of his case. He sleeps peacefully beside the metabolator, awakens to undergo its examination, and returns to his cell to lead a quiet and apparently normal existence.

Other mechanical tests which are to result in further analysis of Harsh's physical and mental character are planned by Dr. Edge and his consultants.

DeSoto Beats Fast Train From Detroit To San Bernardino

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 1.—One hour and 34 minutes faster than the fastest express train was the driving time of two California youths who recently took delivery on two DeSoto Six Coupe de Luxe and piloted them from the factory in Detroit to their homes in San Bernardino.

The drivers were Floyd Harrington and H. L. Montgomery, both of San Bernardino. Their speedometer distance, including detours and travel about cities, was 3040 miles and their driving time between Detroit and San Bernardino was 69 hours and 34 minutes. Comparing their train time was 77 hours, 19 minutes. The fastest train time they could have made was 70 hours, 19 minutes.

Harrington and Montgomery arrived in Detroit on Sept. 16. At the Chrysler plant they saw their cars assembled and on Sept. 20 at 3:30 p. m. they left on the long return trip. Their route took them through Cincinnati, O., Indianapolis, Ind., St. Louis, Mo., Kansas City, Mo., Trinidad, Colo., Albuquerque, N. M., Flagstaff, Ariz., the Painted and Mojave deserts and other points to Southern California.

In the shimmering new cars they saw the final product of more than four years research and experimentation in the Chevrolet experimental laboratories, the General Motors research laboratories and General Motors production ground.

Tire Testing Fleet Of Goodrich Firm Coming To Florida

AKRON, O., Dec. 1.—About a third of the test cars comprising the tire testing fleet of The B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company left here on the morning of Oct. 12, for Gainesville, Fla., for the third year of winter tire testing on Florida highways. Other units of the fleet will join the first division in a few days.

Millions of miles are reeled off each year by the Goodrich tires fleet in the interest of better tires. Severe driving conditions are sought so that the testing may be done under circumstances that will demand the utmost in tires. Because winter driving on snow and ice in the northern states causes only negligible wear on tires, the Goodrich fleet seek the warmer climates. Tire engineers claim that speed, hot pavement, and hot weather contribute to the heat of internal friction in tires which makes a total combination for fastest tire wear.

Test cars are run on two 12 hour shifts, with only enough time between runs to oil and grease the cars thoroughly and check tire inflation. The greater mileage is made in the immediate vicinity of Gainesville. Some of the longer runs are made down through the central highlands as far as the beautiful little city of Clearwater.

Jersey Boy Takes 11,000 Mile Jaunt Within Three Weeks

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 1.—During his vacation this summer, Albert McMullan, one of the young set of Palmdale, Pa., was suddenly seized with a great desire to see America first without delay he translated the thought into action.

He bought a Plymouth roadster and on the same day began a cross-country tour of the United States, accompanied by his chum, Frank Ryan. One week later they were sight-seeing in Hollywood, Cal., and three weeks after that were back home, having traveled a total of 11,000 miles.

The first day they drove 370 miles. After that they never drove less than 484 miles a day. They followed the Old National Trail of Cal., and after a week of rest they sped along the Pacific Highway to enjoy the beauties of Mt. Ranier and the Columbia River. The return trip was over the Coast Highway and Yellowstone Trail.

"Not once was it necessary to put a wrench in any part of the Plymouth except to change three tires," McMullan says.

"Our gasoline average for the 11,000 miles was a little better than 23 miles per gallon."

"The transcontinental trip was a perfect vacation, though I don't suppose Frank and I took time enough to see all the scenery that we should."

Doctor Seeks Clue To Support Theory

BALTIMORE, Dec. 1.—(INS)—From the anti-evolution belt in Tennessee, Dr. Adolph P. Schultz, anthropologist at Johns Hopkins Medical School, is expecting an exhibit that will go far to prove the theory that somewhere in the world's back history men and apes were about the same.

Dr. Schultz said he had been advised that a few weeks ago a child was born in Knoxville with a tail that measured 7 inches. It was amputated by a physician, and Dr. Schultz said he had been promised it for study and research purposes.

Brake Inspection Advocated By Many Autoists Over U. S. Actress On Screen

MIDDLETON, Conn., Dec. 1.—Motorists who keep their brakes in the best condition are the strongest advocates of brake inspection. They do not experience brake failure and yet many times they worry about it more than the irresponsible driver.

This is the discovery made by a group of safety advocates, based upon an investigation to determine what class of car owner and driver is giving the most support to safety movement.

In explanation to this, the investigators point out that the careful motorist knows, better than anyone else, the menace of the "other fellow" who speeds over the highway with a defective braking system. Even if his own brakes are safe, the careful motorist realizes that this does not render him secure against the "irresponsible element."

Commenting upon these findings an official of the Russell Manufacturing Company declares that it is important to keep conscientious drivers sold on the necessity of periodical inspection of car equipment, and pointed out that it is also important that the careless driver be educated to have his brakes inspected periodically. "Most people are careful," he says, "and we can keep our highways and streets safer by keeping the majority behind this movement, and by continually endeavoring to enlist the aid of all motorists in keeping brakes in proper condition."

In many cities compulsory brake inspection ordinances have been passed, making periodical brake inspection necessary, and the enforcement of this ordinance has invariably resulted in fewer accidents.

Buick Head Lauds Safety Campaigns Staged In Detroit

DETROIT, Dec. 1.—Praising Detroit newspapers and officials of the city for the safety campaigns which recently have been waged against speeders and reckless drivers here, E. T. Strong, president of the Buick Motor Co., has expressed the hope that a similar program might be carried out in every city, town and hamlet in the nation.

Messages are being sent to the more than 4,000 Buick dealers throughout the country, each of whom will be urged to get behind such a movement in his district.

The fact that some communities have accomplished so much in the humanitarian work of abolishing traffic casualties is concluding proof that a successful campaign everywhere. Strong declared, and the Buick Motor Co. pledges the fullest cooperation of its giant resources in working to this end.

"The automobile no longer is a luxury. It is a necessity, and much of its immense value to the world is being lost by those who use the streets as speedways and those who drive without due care in the crowded traffic of the present era."

That the problem is a big one, Strong is certain, but he is equally certain that with the proper cooperation of all concerned the streets and highways can be made safe and the value of the automobile for business and pleasure consequently increased.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Emerson, accompanied by Mr. Jewett, of New York, arrived this week to spend the winter at their home on Crystal Lake.

The last social on Friday evening under the auspices of the Lake Mary Improvement Society proved a most enjoyable affair, and a good sum was netted for the library fund. The committee in charge was Mrs. Roy Henderson, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Walter Flanders. The contest of the songs proved most amusing, and the prizes were won by Mrs. Robert Troy among the ladies and Frank Evans among the men. A quartet composed of Walter Flanders, Robert Troy, Homer Glendon, and Frank Evans, rendered "Study in Harmony," Roy Henderson and W. Hopkins rendered a duet. This was followed by singing of the hymns and the service was served. The Lake Mary Library was sponsored last year by the Lake Mary Improvement Society, and launched in the spring. Numerous contributions have been made, which have been acknowledged from time to time. These books are loaned without charge, and are in charge of Walter Flanders at the Training Shop. Winter tourists are especially invited to make use of the library, which although small, is found to be all good reading. ### The Work Of The P. T. A.

Those who know little of the work of the Parent-Teacher Association's work except what they read on the social pages of the daily newspapers, perhaps fail to realize the importance which this organization plays in the development and conduct of the community. It has been brought to our attention that there are some who look upon the P. T. A. as merely a gathering of parents and teachers for the sake of social diversion much on the order of the average afternoon tea.

But as one of their enthusiastic officers has suggested, the Parent-Teacher Association is the bridge connecting the home and school in the effort to produce one hundred per cent American citizens. The best citizen can only be obtained through the united efforts of parents and teachers working toward a common end.

Among the fundamentals on which the Parent-Teacher Associations base their program of citizenship training, as pointed out recently by the Lake County Leader, are the following:

- "Loyalty to home as expressed in personal service.
- "Reverence for law as instrument for general good.
- "A daily Bible lesson in every home, the breakfast hour being an excellent time.
- "One P. T. A. meeting each year given to value of spiritual training with able speaker.
- "Every child taught pledges of allegiance to flag and principles upon which our government is founded.
- "Sponsor supervised play-grounds for youth as protection against error during leisure.
- "Sponsor improvement clubs for boys and girls, agriculture clubs, home demonstration clubs, Boys Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Lone Scouts, Jewish Juniors, Woodcraft League, debating clubs, religious organizations for youth, glee clubs, orchestras, bands, and others equally constructive in happiness and training.
- "Teach privilege and responsibility of voting.
- "Place framed copies of Constitution in schools.
- "Emphasize Americanization of foreign born, using chambers of commerce, cadet recruiting offices, or any avenues of cooperation in providing schools of instruction. This is a profound responsibility.
- "Citizenship essays with prizes awarded for high merit.
- "Cooperation of home with public enterprises in fostering health as each individual's debt to state.
- "Foster a love for the out-of-doors, not alone for its contribution to health, but for its exalting mark upon the soul.
- "Enthroned the home in the minds of this generation as the highest institution of our civilization, and reveal divorce as a multiplier of domestic problems.
- "Impress upon the general public that private duty and public responsibility are complements challenging every individual to greatest effort."

Regulating Marriage

As a means of making marriage less of a lottery, Dr. Bernard Hollander, president of the English Ethnological Society, has suggested scientific mating through selection of the participants by a committee of marital experts. Shall the cold voice of science strive to dictate to the passion of love? This question, Dr. Hollander answers emphatically in the affirmative. In the same breath, the noted English medico admits that success of his plan cannot be guaranteed, but attempts to justify it with the statement that "we know enough at least to rob this most popular of all lotteries of its worst lottery characteristics."

If we interpret correctly the Doctor's plan it is the old eugenics scheme with some innovations. In his denial that marriage is a sacred institution we detect a desire to commercialize wedlock and divest it of any semblance of love. He further emphasizes that fact with the proposal that a committee of experts supervise marriage. Who would qualify as the experts and who would determine what qualifications are necessary to become an expert in this particular is something the good Doctor fails to explain.

In the beginning, we concur with him that matrimony has been abused to such an extent that it has become somewhat of a lottery, but we insist that to make it an even greater gamble, as his plan would certainly do, is no solution to the problem. Marriage, in its broadest conception, was never intended to be that practical. If it had, the institution would have fallen thousands of years ago and today would be completely forgotten.

Granting, however, for the sake of argument, that Dr. Hollander's plan is workable insofar as to mate couples successfully, we see other defects. If the scheme should be enforced, it would have to be enforced by law and in view of that fact the government would have some voice in the appointment of the experts. Wherein the selections would more than likely become the reward for political favors and incompetents would sooner or later be placed on the commission. Under the circumstances, there would be all kinds of opportunities for graft and corruption. The results are apparent.

All in all, then, we would say the Doctor's suggestion is impractical. If we thought for a minute he was convinced of its merits, we would pity him for his stupidity, but we fear he has an ulterior motive. The whole thing sounds like a fantastic but successful publicity stunt.

BISHOP CANNON SHOULD be welcomed back, and not on his own terms, either. If he is a real Democrat, as he claims to be, he will come back and join the party in its opposition to the Republican party, now that the forces he was supposed to be fighting have been repulsed. But if he seeks to come back as a dictator, a churchly champion of righteousness, Virginia Democracy should hoist him clear out of the state that has long boasted of its statute of religious freedom. Virginia Democracy should not compromise with the forces that joined forces with the Republican party, in the effort to redeem the state. Treat the bolters alike, yes; urge them to come back. But don't modify Democracy to gain votes.—Crawford's Weekly, Norton, Va.

A FISH STORY

It is up and lake today, you know, Marryland, is a fisherman's party and happens to be one of the charter members of the National Fishing Club. Just now he is at Panama City, on St. Andrew's Bay, for his annual trout with Florida's salt water fish—and is fishing with water from inland of Tampa Bay. To the ordinary fisherman this is no vacation, but Mr. Marryland says not.

My country, 'tis of thee, Sweet land of liberty...

If this isn't Rush Bryan Owen's country, we want to know whose country it is. The old claim that, because she married an Englishman, she is not constitutionally qualified yet for office as a citizen of the United States has been resurrected. The motives of those who raise this technicality are purely political and reflect credit on them. The law on which they depend was never a fair one and has been repealed. It is more than doubtful that it can be capitalized against the will of the people of Florida.

Even if it could be, those who invoke it are doing so under circumstances which impeach their own patriotism, since the letter of the law is which they refer to is contra to the whole spirit of our constitution and country in Ruth Bryan Owen's case. That a woman whose father was William Jennings Bryan and who represents in herself all that is finest in American culture and ideals and understanding should be denied the very brightest badge of American citizenship is straining a technicality to its most elastic and ludicrous limits.

Amid our recent wonder about the difference between calling the War of 1861-65 the "Civil War" and calling it the "War Between the States," Miss Ruby Thornberry, director for the Florida division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, puts us properly in our place. "The very fact that the definition of 'civil war' is a 'war between two factions of the same country' is why we are trying to have the expression 'War Between the States' take its place," she writes. "It is a well-known fact that the Southern states seceded and formed a government of their own, and the war was a conflict between two governments. Therefore, 'Civil War' is a misnomer."

Checked out, we have only the timid suggestion to make that "Civil War" is at least a shorter and handier expression than "War Between the States." But we will never argue with a Daughter of the Confederacy, particularly with so gracious a one as Miss Thornberry, and for us henceforth it shall be "War between the States," whether we happen to be writing on space rates or not.

This column's thought about the possibilities of overnight trips between Jacksonville and New York, suggested by Mender's sight and a half hour flight to Jacksonville from New York, meets a stern rebuke from Editor Swartz of the Pensacola Journal. The idea of going to New York to see some famously wicked play Saturday night and returning in time for repentance at church on Sunday morning may be all right for frivolous Jacksonville, but not for sober Pensacolians. "Over here," he says, "we are making plans to fly to Chicago for a game of golf and a conference with men interested in the American Riviera or to New York for a meeting with bankers, and financiers about Greater Pensacola."

This is quite all right. But the place to find bankers and financiers in New York or Chicago or elsewhere is in the baldheaded rows at famously wicked plays. Pensacolians, to avoid embarrassment, should plan their serial arrivals for the morning. And not too early at that.

Having beaten Washington and Lee worse than Princeton did, and Georgia worse than Yale did, the Glorious Gators have done more than their share in creating the new "Big Three" whose stamping ground will be the South.

WOOD MAKES FINE BOARD CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

Proposals that wood may be used as a food do not mean that one may stop along the highway and munch on a few pine boughs nor attempt to appease his hunger by taking a bite out of a handy hickory tree. The German chemist who has announced that wood for nourishment is a possibility of the future makes it clear that some chemical processes are necessary before trees may be served up in salads, sauces or sandwiches. For the present, therefore, no boy need be disturbed over any prospect of being sent to the shed to cut up a portion of wood for dinner.

BEST PEOPLE JACKSONVILLE JOURNAL

Governor Alvin T. Fuller of Massachusetts, about to retire from office, sounds this warning to his departmental heads: "The greatest danger that confronts Massachusetts, in my humble opinion, is the result of avarice on the part of our 'best people' who want something more than they are really entitled to. It is the ambition which the conservatives pass to the radicals that provides, for their growth."

The Bay State executive has spoken every word to the point. "Middle-class avarice" is a truly inspired phrase. The "best people" should be the best citizens, but they too often are not. In their public duties such as voting and jury service they are often considerably less faithful than the more ordinary citizens. And contributing less in these respects to their government, they are at the same time inclined to demand more of that government in the form of privileged denied the ordinary citizen.

It may or may not be true that the divilification can rise higher than its mean or average members. But it is certainly true that it can rise no higher than its "best people." And there are two kinds of "best people." There are those whose advantages in birth, education and wealth determine them upon a leadership in public duty and loyalty, upon the setting of an example for others to follow, upon the recognition that their advantages impose obligations upon these best people.

Britain Will Make New Try For Long Distance Air Mark

LONDON, Dec. 1.—(INS)—Britain is to make a new attack on the air distance record in an airplane that could fly non-stop from London to India.

The machine is the new Fairy, Napier monoplane, and it will attempt to beat both the duration and distance records.

Already the machine has undergone "try-out tests" that is to say the controls have been tried by making fast runs across the North-Sea coast.

After the test flights have been made, the machine will be headed over to the Royal Air Force for full load tests. It will then be flown by Squadron Leader James Willmore and will be based at Cranwell.

The intention is to attempt to beat the record set by the Fairy in 1924, and to make a new attempt for the start of a machine in the category of a long distance plane. Flight of 10,000 miles.
