How new Watt-Wise Living™ homes save up to 25% on electricity.

EXAMPLE 1: The Higher-Efficiency Heat Pump.

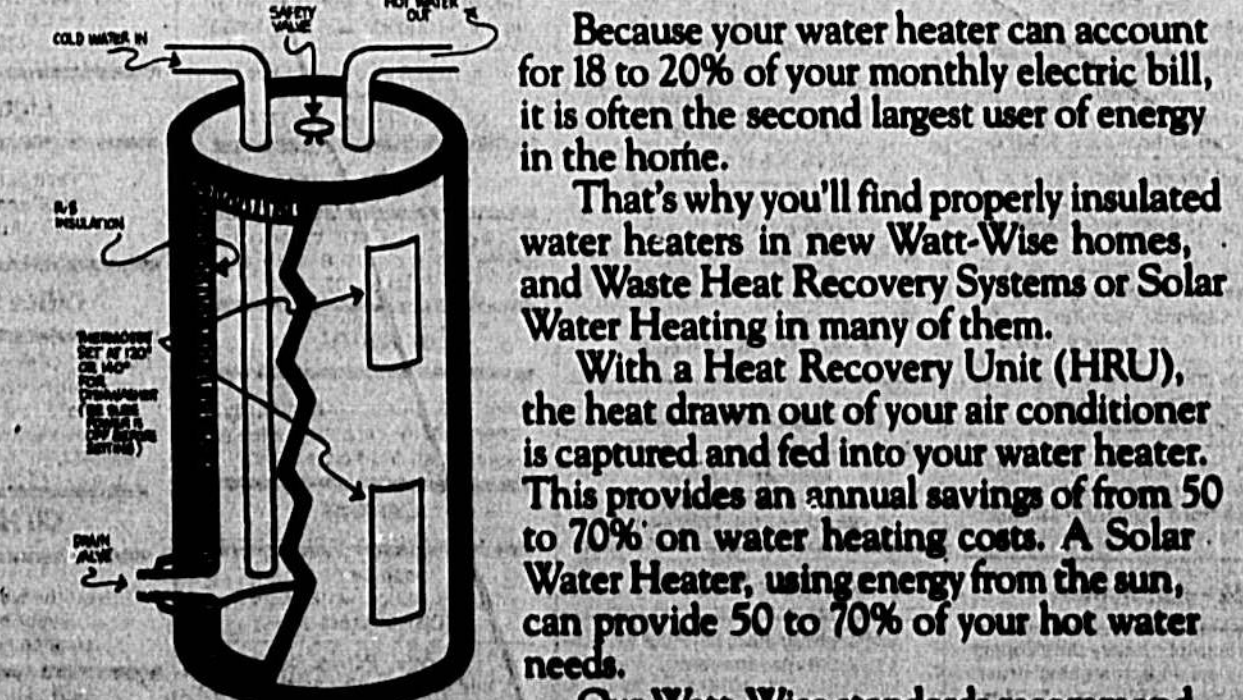

It's a device that heats your home when it's cold, cools your home when it's hot. It does everything a standard air conditioner can do, but costs a lot less to run. You see, in order to heat the average home, the standard air conditioner with electric strip heating has to actually heat all the air inside the house. And that takes quite a bit of electricity. But the higher-efficiency heat pump simply gathers the heat that's in the outside air and pumps it inside the house. In the summer, it gathers the heat that's inside the house and pumps it out. The result: lower electric bills, winter and summer. To meet FPL's recommended Watt-Wise™ standards, a heat pump must have a COP (heat rating) of 2.5 and an EER (cool rating) of 7.5. Of course, the higher the rating the lower your dollar number.

EXAMPLE 2: Insulation.

When you're running your air conditioner, you obviously don't want any outside heat coming in. And when you're heating your home, you don't want that heat to get away. That's why you'll find your new Watt-Wise home well insulated. Most experts estimate that a properly insulated home can substantially cut heating and cooling costs. Because of this, there are recommended standards for the insulation used in all areas of new Watt-Wise homes. They're based on R (resistance) values. And the higher the R value, the greater the resistance to heat flow. For ceilings, the Watt-Wise recommendation is R-19. For walls, it ranges from R-5 to R-11, depending on the placement and type of wall. Floor over a crawl space, R-19. Duct insulation, R-6. Entrance door, R-5.

EXAMPLE 3: The Water Heater.

Because your water heater can account for 18 to 20% of your monthly electric bill, it is often the second largest user of energy in the home. That's why you'll find properly insulated water heaters in new Watt-Wise homes, and Waste Heat Recovery Systems or Solar Water Heating in many of them. With a Heat Recovery Unit (HRU), the heat drawn out of your air conditioner is captured and fed into your water heater. This provides an annual savings of from 50 to 70% on water heating costs. A Solar Water Heater, using energy from the sun, can provide 50 to 70% of your hot water needs. Our Watt-Wise standards recommend that the water heater is insulated to a value of at least R-8, (of course the higher the R value, the better the insulation.)

EXAMPLE 4: Glass.

The warm Florida sun can be blamed for almost half your cooling costs. Which means that 40 to 50% of the money you're spending on air conditioning is due to the fact that you have windows. To cut these costs, Watt-Wise homes offer practical suggestions on window treatments and the type of glass that should be used. Like reflective glass for unshaded windows facing east or west. And tinted glass for other windows exposed to the sun. In addition, your Watt-Wise home can have extended overhangs shading the exposed glass. To meet FPL's recommended Watt-Wise standards glass should be limited to the following percentages of floor space: clear, 11%; tinted, 13%; reflective, 13%; and shaded glass, 15%. (These figures apply to single-pane glass.)

The Watt-Wise Living package saves you more than it costs.

Ask your builder about the many other energy-saving standards we've set to certify a new home as being Watt-Wise. And ask him to show you how a proven Watt-Wise package can save you up to 25% on electricity. Or stop by our local FPL office and pick up a Watt-Wise Living information folder. A Watt-Wise Living home may cost a little more now, but in the long run it costs a whole lot less.

Boredom Breakaway

Some people who enjoy the benefits of jogging find the sport somewhat repetitious and boring. A new concept in fitness has come along, however, that just might solve that old ennui problem. And even if you enjoy jogging, the extra activity should prove beneficial.

It is called Parcourse, and it consists of a series of exercise stations located at regular intervals along a jogging trail. Seminole Community College recently completed a one-and-a-half-mile course with 18 stations.

Each station has an instructional sign which explains the exercise to be done, plus the necessary apparatus. Attention is paid to the entire body, including the respiratory, circulatory and muscular systems.

The first four stations consist of warm-up exercises. Five through 14 are conditioning exercises, while the final four help the body to cool down.

The course is located entirely on the SCC campus and is said to be free of traffic (and dogs as well). The surface is mostly grass, with some short stretches of sand and mulch.

The course begins and ends near the Health Building, which has drinking fountains, restrooms, shower and dressing facilities. The public is invited to use the course, as well as students and staff of SCC.

Taking Porno Films Home

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Christian's latest release is "Superwoman," starring a lady who calls herself Deseree Cousteau, (Warner Bros., which made and distributes "Superman" is now suing Christian because he has suddenly become one of their biggest customers for X-rated cassettes.)

So says Damon Christian, a good-looking young man who is one of the new leaders of the porno film industry. He theorizes that the wealthy Irish, no longer able to see porno films in local theaters, are now importing their own to view at home.

That is a coming trend everywhere, Christian says. He says that 50 percent of porno film business now comes from video cassettes for home showings.

He doesn't think he hurts anybody. Actually, he feels that soft core porno films do less harm than violence in films.

"And I think," he says, "that printed pornography is much worse than filmed pornography." Printed pornography falls into the hands of kids, 8 and 9 years old. And they just do not understand it.

"But we don't let children of that age in to see our films at all."

Christian began in Massachusetts working for the phone company, but got restless and decided to seek his fortune in California. En route, he was waylaid in Indianapolis, jailed in in the business since. He says he doesn't enjoy porno films personally, and there are tries to make his own an entertaining as possible. But, he admits, "you have to have sex in a sex film."

"Every film I do now," he says, "has to have more and more story. Our audiences are expanding enormously, and they are demanding better scripts."

Porno films are not expensive — he won't say how much "Superwoman" cost, except to say that it would have cost his competitors $200,000 and he didn't spend that much — and the returns can be fantastic.

"If the truth could be told," Christian says, "Deep Throat" has made around $300 million, although they won't admit it. I personally know a guy who walked out with $32 million from it."

He says that porno classic is still cleaning up.

Ah, Those Spinoffs

By ANNE THAYER
Back in the earlier days of network television, though there were just as many situation comedies and adventure series as now, spinoffs were rare enough to be landmarks.

For example, when "December Bride," starring the late Spring Byington seemed strong enough to last without its deadpan laughing neighbor, played by Harry Morgan, (now of "M.A.S.H.") the sub-theme was excised from the parent show and shaped into the "Pete and Gladys" series which had a respectable run.

This season's luckiest spinoff headline is Claude Akins in "The Misadventures of Sheriff Lobo," a featured character last in "BJ and the Bear." NBC heads figure they have a strong entry for Tuesday nights and they may be right.

Akins, who worked steadily for the first 20 years of his career for steady money but not big bucks, was an undiscovered treasure because his heavy-boned physique and knack for besting his villains landed him nothing but villain roles. That is until an earlier NBC series, "Movin' On," brought some of Akins' own sense of humor and blue-collar charisma to an appreciative public as Sonny

CLAUDE AKINS
The truck driver stuck with a Harvard dropout (Frank Converse) as his cohort.

Akins has everything to gain and nothing to lose. Should the new series not make it in the new sudden death rating game (early popularity or else) Lobo could be re-absorbed into the parent show.

It worked that way when a spinoff of the young assistant from James Garret's "Rockford Files" didn't prove strong enough to solo. And such a deal was promised to Norman Fell and Andrea Lindley last year when they were written out of "Three's Company" and into "The Ropers." They didn't need the insurance as things turned out. It was profits for everybody, especially the ABC network. Both series rate consistently among the ten most popular in the country. ABC's "Happy Days," too, has been a fertile ground for spinoffs. But perhaps with a shade of difference in that characters and elements that might develop into series are showcased in just an episode or two. If the response is good, it's off and away. And with two piloted on "Happy Days," "Laverne and Shirley" and "Mork and Mindy" again the trip to top ten was jetpropelled.

One of the oddest — and oddly charming — of the spinoff possibilities concerns CBS' "Alice." Linda Lavin and most of the cast are now considered so strong that dear Flo of the melted-butter diction may spin into a separate series according to recent rumor. Which would make a television star of Polly Holiday who plays Flo.

Now, if hearing the same rumor three times has any germ of truth to it, then the new cast member for "Alice" might be Diane Ladd. The irony being that Ms. Ladd was the original Flo in the movie, "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore," from which the CBS series was adapted. "Lou Grant," starring Ed Asner, of course, is the hardest and best of Mary Tyler Moore's spinoffs.

Good-Hearted Drama

NEW RELEASE
SEDUCTION OF JOE TYNAN, THE (R) — Alan Alda, Barbara Harris, Meryl Streep, Melvin Douglas, Rip Torn. (Drama) A liberal senator whose star is rising must weigh career and family commitments. Good-hearted but painfully predictable and trite outing. Alda, who writes as well as played title role, should avoid the typewriter in the future. GRADE: C (Handler)

GENERAL RELEASE
APOCALYPSE NOW (R) — Martin Sheen, Marlon Brando, Robert Duvall. (Drama) This is Francis Coppola's long-awaited and very expensive epic — and worth the wait and the cost. It is a study of the madness of war, and Coppola has created a procession of insane images of Vietnam and that terrible war to make his point. It is long and flawed, but must be rated an American classic. GRADE: A-plus

BREAKING AWAY (PG) — Dennis Christopher, Dennis Quaid, Daniel Stern, Jackie Earle Haley. (Romantic comedy) This American-made movie is the kind of film the French always do so well: warm, funny, a little romantic, tied up just right. It's set in Bloomingdale, Ind., a college town, the summer the local boys finally realize they don't mind being "townies." Briefly, it's the "Rocky" of bicycle racing — but so much better. A fine job by these four young actors. GRADE: A

CONCORDE; AIRPORT '79 THE (PG) — Alina Delon, Susan Blakely, George Kennedy and a cast of thousands. (Adventure) This time, it's the supersonic Concorde that's in trouble — one of its passengers is carrying a secret and the bad guy tries missiles, sabotage and everything else to bring it down. It's all exciting, but more sensible than earlier "Airport" films and this has some people you care about. GRADE: B

MOONRAKER (PG) — Roger Moore, Lois Chiles. Spy adventure. James Bond is back and that's about all you need to say. This one is the most illogical, ridiculous, witty and full of extraordinary gimmicks and special effects. Ignore the plot, just sit back and have a good time. GRADE: B

MORE AMERICAN GRAFFITI (PG) — Ron Howard, Cindy Williams, Candy Clark, Paul LeMat. (Comedy-drama) We re-visit most of the original "Graffiti" people several years later, to see what's happened to them. A

Aid With Alimony

What does an ex-wife do when her former spouse is behind in his alimony or child support payments? And what can an ex-husband do when he finds for some special reason that he cannot pay any or part of his court-ordered child support or alimony payments this month? The answer to both questions for residents of Seminole County used to be to hire an attorney, if one could be afforded, to champion your cause. One couldn't pay attorney's fees or was not eligible for help from Legal Aid, the answer often was to hope for the best.

It's all changed now with the creation by the Seminole County Commission on the urging of the circuit judges of the 18th Judicial Circuit — Seminole and Brevard Counties — of a domestic relations commissioner.

Persons with these problems now should call the domestic relations commissioner's (DRC) office in the old county jail at Sanford for an appointment to talk over the matter with a staff member, said Terence Ackert, DRC.

"The staff person will help the party fill out the proper documents and I will sit as a special master or hearing officer on the case and make my recommendations to the circuit court," Ackert said.

"It is no longer necessary to contact an attorney to gain enforcement of court orders in domestic relations," he said.

"If a man refuses to pay, we are here to seek enforcement. The court always retains jurisdiction to enforce," he said, adding by the same token if a gentleman has suffered some disability and wishes to alter his support payments, he can ask for that assistance through a hearing before me."

"The DRC was initiated so that either party could get into court. The service is offered fairly to all parties," he said.

Fees, generally amounting to $15 per case, are charged for the service. "That's far less than it takes to file a new lawsuit for enforcement," Ackert said.

"We can handle the problem speedily and effectively," Ackert said.

"The people who have utilized the office have expressed great satisfaction with the service rendered and are pleased the judges of the circuit and the county commission have enabled them to do something they never thought they could do — get into court when they can't afford a lawyer or get legal aid. I have not talked to one person who was not thrilled with the opportunity to resolve their problem," Ackert said.

The county commission allocated $40,000 for the operation of the DRC from May through September. Tentatively budgeted for the DRC operation in the 1979-1980 fiscal year is $39,553, said County Finance Director Jeff Eichberger.

Child support, alimony and maintenance payments through the Seminole County Clerk of the Circuit Court Arthur Beckwith's office is big business.

In May 2,453 cases with $212,847.43 in payments were channeled through Beckwith's office. The totals in June were 2,213 cases involving $194,609.76 and in July 2,136 cases involving $193,236.45. Records after that time have yet to be compiled.

Lake Mary: Should It Continue?

By DONNA ESTES
 Herald Staff Writer

The city of Lake Mary has existed as an incorporated municipality for six years. But do the people of that community wish it to continue to exist?

This is one of the questions left in the mind of Lake Mary Councilman Pat Southward since Tuesday's referendum when a property tax increase was denied by the voters.

She wanted to put the question on the city's December election ballot but got no support from colleagues on the city council.

"I said before the election I felt the tax increase amounted to a life and death issue. I still feel it does," she said Thursday night.

"As has been pointed out, the reasons for the outcome of the election can be debated," she said.

Mrs. Southward said the election results can be interpreted as a vote against the council, a vote against the police department or a vote against the continued existence of the city. "I suspect the sentiment for de-incorporation is still strong," she said, asking City Attorney Gary Massey to look into how the council could put the question on the ballot.

"Six years ago (when the community was incorporated) the people of Lake Mary were proud and wanted self-determination. Today it is very unclear whether the people are willing to pay for pride and self-determination. I would like to know whether the people want to continue the city," Mrs. Southward said.

Councilman Harry Terry, senior member of the council, having served since the incorporation, "wholeheartedly disagreed" with Mrs. Southward's position.

He said the people know that if the city were dissolved, the property acquired by the city during the past six years no longer would be owned by Lake Mary as an entity but would become county property. He added that the people in the unincorporated area of the county are paying nearly as much for fire protection alone as city taxpayers are paying for all city property taxes.

In the 1978-1980 fiscal year, people in the unincorporated area of Lake Mary will be paying $2.72 per $1,000 assessed valuation of real property for fire protection, while Lake Mary residents will be paying $2.84 per $1,000 assessed valuation for all city services.

"I would vote for continued incorporation," said Mrs. Southward on Thursday night. "But what about all the folks who are not here tonight?"

"It wasn't elected to disestablish the city," said Councilman Cliff Nelson. "The people were saying they want us to run the city more efficiently with no more property taxes, with fewer luxuries and less frills."

"If this city is to exist with the constant fear of a referendum on the recall of the city charter, God help us," Councilman Bert Perinichief said.

"If you want an answer you don't agree with, ask the people," Nelson said.

The city was incorporated by an act of the Florida Legislature with a ratifying approval by more than 50 percent of Lake Mary's voters in August, 1973. Less than a year later, on July 31, 1974, the people in a special referendum petitioned for voted on the issue of dissolving the city.

At that time, 554 voted to dissolve the city and 247 voted against, but the issue failed.

The old city records include a letter from the secretary of state certifying the election failed. A two-thirds vote of the people is necessary to dissolve a city.

Slightly less than half voted for de-incorporation.

The council during the hours it pored away at the budget Thursday night discussed several times philosophically what the voters were saying when they turned down a property tax increase.

Noting the city had advertised an alternative budget and sent (See LAKE MARY, Page 2A)

Drunks, Beware!

Drunks beware! Stay out of Sanford if you are driving under the influence (DUI) because the Sanford police department in the next few weeks is going to start an intensive program to take drunk drivers off the highway.

The Sanford City Commission this week at the request of Police Chief Ben Butler authorized the purchase of a new breathalyzer, a computer which analyzes blood alcohol by breath tests.

The city police officers for the past two years have been using a breathalyzer in DUI cases at the Seminole County Sheriff's Department.

And, according to what Butler told the city commission, "our officers have indicated they dread making DUI arrests because of the hassle they go through in obtaining a breathalyzer test."

In a report to the city commission, Butler said a recent survey of Seminole County police departments revealed that all municipal police agencies with the exception of Lake Mary and Sanford own and maintain breathalyzers.

He said up until October, 1977, a breathalyzer was kept at the Sanford Police Department. At that time it was moved to the Seminole County jail. The relocation was brought about by the Sheriff's Department claiming its instrument, Butler said.

The equipment had been placed in the police department's facilities before then because of a state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services requirement that the breathalyzer be kept in a secure place. "It was decided that the Sanford Police Department would do so until such time as an area could be created by the sheriff's department," Butler said.

Butler said the relocation of the breathalyzer forced the city police to share not only with the Sheriff's Department but also with the Florida Highway Patrol. "This has resulted in officers being off the road for extended periods of time while waiting their turn to have a breath test administered."

"I feel that a breathalyzer is a necessary police tool to combat the dangerous offense of DUI," Butler said.

The chief said the acquisition by the police department of the breathalyzer would allow police officers to more efficiently and rapidly process violators, thereby returning the officers to patrol duties; encourage officers to arrest violators which would ultimately reduce accident rates, injuries, fatalities and property damage through successful detection, apprehension and processing of drunk drivers and the department would once again become a self-supported agency requiring minimal outside agency assistance.

Butler estimated cost of acquiring the breathalyzer at between $2,000 and $2,300.

He cited statistics showing that during the 1976 calendar year, there were 87 accidents in Sanford attributable to DUI, with 40 injuries, three fatalities and property damage valued at $94,700. During the first six months of 1978, he said, there were 47 accidents attributable to DUI with 24 injuries, no deaths and $4,215 in property damage.

In all of 1978 there were 59 DUI arrests, he said, and 31 in 1979 during the first six months.

DUI is an all-encompassing charge which includes driving under the influence of not only alcohol but also drugs or other substances that could affect a driver's ability to function. It replaces the former charge of driving while intoxicated (DWI), which usually referred to intoxication with alcoholic beverages.

You Never Know When You'll Meet A Bobcat Or Two

By JANE CASELLEBERRY
 Herald Staff Writer

Once scorned by the fur industry the pelt of bobcat, a Florida native well ensconced in the backwoods and swamps of Seminole County, is much in demand causing some biologists concern about the future of North America's smallest native wild cat.

Ed Posey, curator at the Central Florida Zoo near Sanford, says there is probably not much of a decline in bobcat population in this state at present, but if there were no restrictions, it could become a problem. "There is a point where you harvest more than is safe but don't realize it until it is too late," he added.

In Seminole, Posey pointed out, the bobcats are probably more threatened by destruction of their habitat by construction of new developments than they are by trappers and hunters.

Posey said there are two Florida bobcats officially living at the zoo, but many more living in the wild in the zoo park area. "We have seen five or six at one time," he said.

When far from old-timers, most newcomers to central Florida probably never have encountered a bobcat outside a zoo. "They are primarily solitary and nocturnal animals in the environment," he said. "They have their place in the environment and sometimes we don't realize the contribution a species makes to nature. You can never really tell until they are gone."

With homes being built in or adjacent to the natural habitat of the bobcat, residents may be startled to find one in their yard.

"The bobcats have the ability to co-exist," said Posey. "That's when the problem arises. I had a call several months ago from a woman in the Sanford area concerned because a bobcat had established its den under the steps of her front porch."

"Unless they are sick or have young, an unprovoked attack on humans by a bobcat is highly unlikely, but when they have young, they are more likely to stand their ground."

"Don't try to feed or corner them to make a pet; it doesn't work," Posey added. "The longer they stay around, the more at ease and the harder to get rid of they will become."

In five years between 1971 and 1978 the average price brought by a bobcat pelt in some areas jumped from $4 to $48.50, and a single pelt has sold for as much as $400. In the 1976-77 trapping season, more than 100,000 bobcats were taken in the United States, according to the National Wildlife Federation.

During the same year, according to the Florida Game Commission, 13,439 bobcats were harvested commercially in the state. The state bobcat population has not been officially estimated, but because of the big increases in trapping, the quota that could be safely harvested in the state was set at 7,500 in the 1977-78 season.

Protected as a mammal, the bobcat is technically not a game animal, but legally can be harvested in the state by trapping, snaring or hunting with a gun from Dec. 1 to March 1. A commercial trapping license is required.

All pelts used commercially must be tagged appropriately and a permit is necessary to export them out of the country.

Why the sudden demand for the pelt of the cat, classified as a varmint in some states?

In 1978, an international treaty — the Convention on International Trade and Endangered Species (CITES) — banned all commercial trade in the fur of big spotted cats. With their old supply cut off, the once-scorned bobcat pelt, which is tan to reddish brown, looked quite attractive to European furriers.

Some biologists began to worry about the bobcat population, but information was scarce. In 1977, ESSA (the Endangered Species Scientific Authority), which was established to direct U.S. compliance with CITES, proposed all exports of bobcat fur be banned. In the face of loud protests from some state and game agencies, ESSA backed down, but did place the cat on Appendix II of CITES. This means ESSA must review the bobcat population and management status for each state before exports of pelts are allowed.

The controversial cat will be the subject of a research conference sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation and ESSA, October 18-19, at the Smithsonian research center in Front Royal, Va. More than 40 experts will meet to discuss methods and techniques for assessing the population status and management (See YOU NEVER, Page 2A)
