Police Lay Siege To Inn; No Gunman Found

FBI Manhunt Now Nationwide

Scores of FBI agents and other law enforcement officers surrounded and sealed-off the Deltona Inn Friday afternoon after reports that a man there resembled fugitive Clarence Eugene Robinson, believed to be the man who shot and critically wounded two FBI agents Friday morning in Orange City. A four-hour, room-by-room search of the motel proved fruitless, however.

FBI spokesman Doug Jones said Saturday morning the search is nationwide now but could not confirm reports Robinson has become the FBI's most wanted criminal.

Robinson is being sought on murder, armed robbery, drug and bond jumping charges.

The search of the Deltona Inn, off Interstate 4 at the Enterprise exit four miles north of Sanford, was sparked when two motel maids said they saw a man fitting the description of Robinson.

Ultimately about 75 motel guests were evacuated from their rooms.

The two wounded agents remained in serious but stable condition Saturday in the intensive care unit of West Volusia Memorial Hospital in DeLand after undergoing surgery, Jones said.

The agents, Thomas J. Sobolewski of the Jacksonville FBI office, whose 40th birthday was Saturday, and Dennis Wicklein, 42, of the Ocala office, were reportedly investigating an Ocala bank robbery when, while walking toward Kitchens' Restaurant at the corner of U.S. Highway 17-92 and Birch Avenue, Orange City, Sobolewski spotted a man he believed to be Robinson.

A Seminole County law enforcement official said Sobolewski knew Robinson because he had once testified in court against him. Jones did not comment on that, but emphasized the agents were not in the Orange City area looking for Robinson.

'I Don't Want One Of Them Shooting Me'

Jayne Hines of Indianapolis, Ind., was staying at the Deltona Inn Friday getting ready to attend her mother's wedding Saturday. Although she wasn't the one getting married, she got the pre-nuptial jitters.

It wasn't because she was worried about the ceremony, however.

While she was in her room the Deltona Inn had been transformed into an armed camp.

At about noon she was called by the front desk and told to stay in the room because police were surrounding the motel in an attempt to capture a fugitive who shot two FBI agents that morning.

She said she had no intention to do anything but obey.

Buckle Up That Child; It's Law

By Diane Petryk
Herald Staff Writer
(First of two parts)

Are you likely to be ticketed by police if you have young children in your car unrestrained by safety seats or seat belts after July 1?

You betcha. That's when the state's new child restraint law goes into effect and police in Seminole County have indicated they don't plan to look the other way if they see violators.

The law requires that infants and children through age 3 be restrained in an approved safety seat or carrier properly fastened down and children 4 through 5 years be restrained by safety seat or seat belt.

Violation of the law carries a $15 fine. Local Florida Highway Patrol, Sanford, Seminole County and Lake Mary law enforcement spokesmen said officers will actively enforce the new law.

Will every violator get a ticket?

Sanford police spokesman Sgt. William Bernosky said the questions can't be answered "any more than you can answer the question do we write a ticket for everyone who runs a red light."

"Obviously there's going to be officer discretion involved. The law takes effect July 1. We're going to give people reasonable time to comply," he said.

But would he look the other way if he saw a child standing up unrestrained on a car seat? The answer was an emphatic, "No, sir!"

Condominium Planned

A luxury high-rise condominium complex is being planned for the Sanford lake front adjacent to Central Florida Regional Hospital. The condominium is a project of Sanford surgeon Dr. Kenneth Wing and Seattle developer Gary Warner. Dr. Wing said the 12-story building will contain approximately 80 units ranging in size from 1,000 to 2,000 square feet.

He estimated individual unit prices will range from $100,000 to $200,000. In addition to the condo units, the building will house a conference room, first floor shops and a 12th floor restaurant to be called "Top of Sanford." Residents of the new complex will also have available a swimming pool, jacuzzi, sauna and exercise rooms. "It will be luxury all the way," Dr. Wing said. Construction is planned to begin in 1984 with an expected opening in 1986. The building will be located on the corner of U.S. Highway 17-92 and Mangoustine Avenue, diagonally facing Lake Monroe. It will be called Hemisphere N.W.

Fireworks Funds Needed

4th Of July Fun Set

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford's Fort Mellon Park will be the site of the annual Fourth of July Family Day festivities to begin at 11 a.m. and continue throughout the day, culminating with a spectacular display of fireworks on the lakefront at dark.

The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, which together with the city of Sanford is co-sponsoring the event, held the first planning meeting of the July 4 committee this past week and Chamber President Jack Horner, chairman, said he was pleased with the response.

"There was a good turnout," he said, "and most of the clubs and organizations that participated in the past attended."

Among the groups which said they would have booths or concessions this year are the Sanford Lions Club, the Sanford-Seminole Jaycees and Jaycee Women, the Seminole County Humane Society, the Golden Age Games, Seminole High School Boosters, Seminole High School Cheerleaders, Sanford Woman's Club, Good Samaritan Home, Sanford Landing Apartments, Sanford Pilot Club, Fleet Reserve Association, and the chamber.

Each group having a fundraising activity at the festival agrees to donate a portion of the profits for the fireworks fund while retaining the rest for its own charitable projects, Horner said.

"This year's fireworks display will cost $3,000 so the chamber is actively seeking contributions to the special account from individuals, businesses, and organizations," he said. "We'll need help from everybody."

The first organization to contribute to the fireworks fund was the Over 50 Club of Sanford. Anyone interested in donating to the special fund may do so by sending a check designated to the Fourth of July Fireworks Fund to P.O. Drawer CC, Sanford, 32771.

Some of the special attractions to be going on during the day will include the Moon Walk, the dunking machine, a greased pig contest, the cake walk, live entertainment and food booths. There will also be an authentic Confederate encampment demonstrating Johnny Reb's daily activities such as cooking.

There will be live coverage of the event by Radio Station WWJZ. The General Sanford Museum and Library will be open for free tours during the day.

Any organization wishing to participate should call the chamber office at 322-2212 for further information and the date of the final planning meeting to be held prior to the event.

IN BRIEF

Tax Protester, Sheriff Die In Arkansas Gun Battle

WIMBODEN, Ark. (UPI) — The FBI expected positive identification of militant tax protester Gordon W. Kahl as the man who holed up in a concrete "bunker," killed a sheriff and was burned to death when officers set the hideout ablaze to flush him out.

Authorities recovered the charred body about four hours after Lawrence County Sheriff Gene Matthews was hit in the chest at 6 p.m. CDT Friday during the first charge on the house where Kahl took refuge.

The FBI refused to confirm Kahl's death, saying only "we have reason to believe he was in the house" in northeastern Arkansas owned by supporters of Kahl, who was wanted in North Dakota for the slayings of two U.S. marshals.

"We believed it was Gordon Kahl from the outset... and we believe it was his body in the house," said FBI agent Joe Hardage in Little Rock.

The body was to be taken to the state Medical Examiner's office in Little Rock today for positive identification, he said.

Ban Sex Discrimination

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, trying to boost the sagging popularity of his programs among women, is calling for women to enlist in a campaign against sexual discrimination.

"We in this administration are committed to eliminating, once and for all, all traces of unjust discrimination against women," the president pledged in a videotaped address shown Friday night at an Indianapolis conference of the Republican Women's Leadership Forum.

"We are making progress, but there is so much to be done," he said.

"Our struggle is only beginning, and I need your continued help if we are to reach our goals. When you return to your neighborhoods and communities, help us get our message out. Tell people of the progress we have made."

The president, with the taped remarks, proved he could be in two places at one time. As the speech was screened in Indiana, Reagan was relaxing at the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., following the exhausting economic summit meeting at Williamsburg, Va.

Car Sales Are Up 7.3%

DETROIT (UPI) — Domestic car sales rose nearly 20 percent during the end of May, thanks to buyer incentive programs.

Sales were up 7.3 percent for the entire month, compared to May 1982, according to industry figures released Friday.

Industry analysts said a near-20 percent boost over the last 10 days in May came because buyers wanted to take advantage of incentive programs set to expire May 31. The programs have since been renewed until the end of July.

General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co., American Motors Corp. and Volkswagen of America sold a total of 626,756 cars last month, up 7.3 percent from 584,074 in May 1982. They sold 251,748 cars in the May 21-31 period, up 19.4 percent from 210,883 in the comparable period last year.

Man Found Dead In Home

A man was found dead of a gunshot wound Saturday morning in a mobile home in the Lake Jessup area, according to Seminole County Sheriff's Department spokesman Capt. Jay Leman.

The victim was not identified pending notification of his family.

Leman said sheriff's deputies received a telephone call at 9:48 a.m. Saturday in reference to a shooting and upon arrival at the scene they found the man, dead of a gunshot wound to the head.

Spokesmen would not release the address of the mobile home where the shooting occurred or any other information at press time.

DOUBLE TROUBLE

When a Seminole County deputy was attempting to arrest Charles Robert McKenzie, 21, for trespass after a disturbance at the Fern Park Station nightclub parking lot a half hour after midnight Thursday, David Paul Lassonde, 20, of Orlando, barged into the fracas and got arrested too.

According to the deputy's report, McKenzie was resisting arrest with violence and as he was trying to handcuff him, Lassonde jumped in between them and grabbed the handcuffs.

"What the hell are you boys doing?" Lassonde reportedly said.

The arrest became a double affair.

Lassonde was charged with interfering with a police investigation.

McKenzie, who refused to give his address, was also charged with resisting arrest with violence and criminal mischief after causing approximately $300 damage to the patrol car door by allegedly kicking it.

The incident occurred after McKenzie had a fight with his girlfriend, the report said.

Both McKenzie and Lassonde were being held in lieu of $500 bond.

...Inn Resident Says She Was Scared

As she sat inside Room 141 and the minutes ticked away, she didn't peak out often to see the SWAT teams or the myriad of patrol cars surrounding the inn. But she heard the helicopter hovering above and she said she began to get more and more concerned.

She had been at the pool earlier, she said, when sheriff's officers were distributing pictures of the wanted man. She didn't think much about it then.

Her brother, John Porter, however, who was staying in room 132, called and told her a maid had told him she saw the man and he thought he did, too, while getting ice from the ice machine out back.

Then Jayne said, her mother called. She was at a nearby hairdressers.

"She told me to just stay in the room and do what police say," she said. "Well, I didn't have any intention of going out."

"But after about two hours I was getting worried."

"I was so nervous I didn't know what to do. I accidentally put the heat on in the room. Then I couldn't figure out why I was getting so hot."

Meanwhile, SWAT team members were progressing slowly in their room-by-room search of the 130-unit motel.

Finally, they got to Jayne's room.

"They called me on the phone and said 'walk straight out and don't move your hands,'" she said.

"Well, then I really got scared."

"I thought I was safer in there."

"I said: 'Do I have to?' They said: 'Yes.' I replied, 'Are you sure they know it's me?'"

"I didn't want one of them shooting me!" she exclaimed.

"I felt much safer between the beds."

Reluctant as she was, she obeyed. Thinking at the time, she said, how she had been cooped up in the room for three hours and was getting hungry.

She left the room, her heart almost in her throat.

She doesn't remember running, but she made a fast shuffling walk toward Deltona Boulevard, not stopping to go around the bushes at the edge of the inn's parking lot, but plowing right through them.

"I wasn't going to take time to go around," she said, out of breath but somewhat relieved to be across the road and out of the motel complex.

Upon reflection, she said it had been a disturbing welcome to Deltona, where she had arrived just that morning.

"But it'll be something to talk about at the wedding," she said. — Diane Petryk.

...Manhunt Is Now Nationwide

"It was a matter totally unrelated to Robinson," he said.

The man the agent suspected to be Robinson had just finished paying his bill for breakfast and had walked outside the restaurant.

When one of the agents reached for his identification, the suspect opened fire with a .45-caliber pistol he had concealed under a newspaper.

"As one of the agents reached for his I.D., he (Robinson) shot him in the stomach," said restaurant owner Don Kitchens. "Then the other agent started to tussling with him and he shot him..."

Sobolewski fell against newspaper vending machines at the restaurant entrance. Wicklein stumbled inside and fell by the cash register. Neither agent returned fire. Jones said Wicklein was shot in the stomach and Sobolewski was shot in the back and the leg.

At least seven customers were inside the restaurant when shooting started.

Waitress Lois Robinson, no relation to the subject, said one of the agents lurched into the restaurant, crying "Don't let me die! I know I'm going to die."

She said she cradled his head in her lap and told him repeatedly, "You'll be all right."

The gunman, meanwhile, fled south on U.S. Highway 17-92 in a 1980 white Oldsmobile Omega, apparently escaping a 300-square-mile police dragnet.

At one point officers changed their normal radio communications because they believed Robinson had a police scanner in his car.

Seminole County Sheriff John Polk said later he would like to know if the bullets taken from the wounded agents match those of the .45-caliber gun that killed James Haisell in Brunswick, Ga., in 1982.

Haisell was a witness against Terry Melvin Sims, who was convicted of killing Seminole County reserve deputy George Pfeil at the Longwood Village Pharmacy in 1977. Clarence Eugene Robinson, the fugitive, is believed to have been the mastermind of that robbery. He has masterminded drug store and other robberies for the past 20 years, police said.

Polk, on the scene at the Deltona Inn near the Seminole-Volusia county line Friday, watched intently as Seminole and Volusia SWAT team members combed the rooms.

"When they killed my deputy, they went to a motel," Polk said.

After Pfeil was gunned down, Robinson's gang were ensconced in an executive suite at the Howard Johnsons motel off I-4 on Lee Road, Polk said. "He may not even be here."

Those words proved prophetic when, after a more than four-hour search which began shortly after noon, the SWAT teams packed up and moved on — along with dozens of Florida Highway Patrol troopers, Seminole and Volusia county sheriff's deputies, at least a dozen police vehicles, plainclothes FBI agents and at least three ambulance crews and a police helicopter that circled overhead periodically.

Polk said about 25 Seminole County officers were on the scene, including 10 SWAT team members. In addition, eight deputies were involved in four roadblocks in Seminole County.

The roadblocks were called off at 3 p.m.

Speculating on why the wounded FBI agents did not draw their weapons before identifying themselves to a suspected dangerous fugitive, Polk said:

"You never know 'til you're there... Maybe he just thought the guy looked like Robinson."

Outside the Deltona Inn, which is located off I-4 near the junction of Enterprise Road and Deltona Boulevard, police kept reporters, television crews and other spectators on the far side of Deltona Boulevard, which runs in front of the motel. Although law enforcement officers were not allowing car access to Deltona Boulevard in front of the inn, a number of television vans were in place in front of the motel and persons were allowed to walk into the area. Reporters walked freely from one end of the motel to the other as long as they stayed on the far side of the road.

Former Deltona Inn desk clerk Susan Bennington, who was at the motel at noon using the pool, said once police decided to search the premises, they cleared everyone away from the pool and guests and staff congregated in the lobby. She said she went behind the desk and with another clerk began calling rooms telling guests to stay inside their rooms until police sent officers to escort them out.

She said staff congregated in the motel lobby.

"All the maids, everyone," she said, "were all making sure everyone was accounted for. People were hugging each other when they saw each other, saying 'glad you're all right.'"

As one motel guest told the story, he had gone behind the motel to get ice from the ice machine when a maid approached him and said she had just seen Robinson climbing stairs to the second level of the motel. Law enforcement officials had been passing around a photo copy of a picture of the fugitive.

The guest, John Porter of Indianapolis, Ind., said one of the maids showed him a picture and when he was getting ice he saw a man fitting that description.

"He looked me straight in the eye," Porter said. "I just froze."

At one time about 50 people had been congregated in the motel lobby, Ms. Bennington said.

Gloria Alaim, one of the maids who said she saw a man resembling the fugitive, said the man acted suspicious and when she looked at him "he made a U-turn real quick."

At approximately 1:40 p.m. after SWAT team members had already begun evacuating motel rooms, two men in swim suits came running out of their room towards Deltona Boulevard.

Between four and eight SWAT team members approached each room in the 130-room inn in turn, with rifles and other weapons drawn. As reporters watched from across the street, they would stand, backs to the wall on both sides of a motel room door, with at least one other member crouched down. Upon swinging the door open suddenly, they would shout: "Sheriff's department!"

The procedure was repeated for about four hours.

Jones denied reports that agents discovered a man who resembled Robinson.

After agents completed a sweep of the upper and lower floors of the south wing of the motel, barriers to the lobby were eased and guests, reporters, staff and police began to mingle.

While the motel bar resumed serving drinks and popcorn and began preparing hors d'oeuvres at about 4 p.m., SWAT team members were still working the north wing of the complex, throwing open doors and shouting: "Sheriff's department!"

Jones said the FBI is following up numerous leads in their search for Robinson.

Prospects Good For Kids In Need Of Summer Jobs

NEW YORK (UPI) — Job prospects for youth this summer look brighter because of an improved economy and corporate planning but will not even put a dent in overall youth unemployment, a study covering 14 major cities showed.

Of 176 companies polled, more than 70 percent participated in summer job programs last year and most said they would do so again this year. The Conference Board, a non-profit economic research firm based in New York, said.

"It is possible that more youths will find jobs through corporate programs this summer, given earlier planning by project directors, a continuing economic upturn, and participation by more companies," wrote Dr. Leonard Lund and Nathan Weber, authors of the report.

"By themselves, however, corporate programs cannot solve the problem of youth unemployment," they said.

Despite growing participation, the survey — Summer Youth Employment: The Corporate Experience — concluded that the programs have made little headway in solving the massive youth unemployment problems in the nation.

Last summer, almost 31,000 youngsters were placed in private-sector jobs in 14 cities, and another 2,250 were placed through local community groups and agencies, largely through cash backings from companies.

But conservative estimates placed the unemployment figure for youths at about 2 million last August. Bureau of Labor statistics do not count those who have given up looking for a job or those over 19 years of age.

As of this past April, the youth unemployment rate was 23.4 percent, with some 1.89 million youngsters out of work, said the report.

The survey said most of the 31,000 jobs provided last year were low-skilled with minimum wage. Many programs this summer will try to match jobs with education, promising better jobs to students who excel in basic skills at school. So far only Boston has formalized such a program, the study said.

Prospects appear to be brightest in New York City: last year such programs put almost 15,800 youths to work. But that number would have to be tripled to effectively reduce the unemployment problem in New York, the study noted.

Restrain Child For Safety's Sake

If you intend to be transporting your children, your grandchildren or anybody else's children around in a motor vehicle after July 1, and haven't already obtained a crash-tested child safety seat, do so. Then make sure you use it.

Florida's child restraint law goes into effect July 1. But that's not the real reason you need a safety seat for kids you're driving around. The real reason is that conscientious use of child restraints give kids the best protection possible against serious injury, lifetime disability and death caused by automobile accidents.

According to the National Safety Council, 650 children under the age of four are killed each year in traffic accidents in the United States.

That's just a statistic.
Safety experts say 90 percent of those deaths — more than 600 — could be prevented by use of child safety seats.

That's just a statistic, too.

Unless it's your child who's saved.
The new Florida law requires separate child safety carriers be used for infants and children up to three years of age. For children four through five years of age a safety seat or seat belt may be used.

Failure to use any of the recommended devices anytime a child is riding in a car you're driving can result in a traffic citation carrying a fine of $15.

That's not much of a penalty when you consider the price the unrestrained child may pay in the event of an accident.

For every child killed in an auto accident, 10 are disabled for life and 1,000 are injured to some degree. Some of those injuries leave permanent damage. A blow to the head, for instance, can cause epilepsy.

Children are most often killed or injured in accidents when they become flying missiles or are crushed between the dash panel and an adult. That's why children should be restrained and should never be seated in the lap of an adult.

The Seminole County Sheriff's Department is reminding everyone this month before the new law takes effect, that child restraint use is the best survival insurance parents can buy for their children.

In 1982 Tennessee had six fatalities in the 0-4 age group; before their mandatory child restraint law went into effect in 1978, fatalities ranged from 25-30 annually.

With the cooperation of parents and others in the state, Florida can look forward to similar happy statistics.

A Hero's Death

It was only a coincidence that Navy Cmdr. Albert A. Schaufelberger, the first American military adviser to die in El Salvador, was murdered before the Memorial Day weekend. But his death at the hands of terrorists in San Salvador City reminds us all once again of the supreme sacrifice so many have made in the service of their country.

Cmdr. Schaufelberger was a career naval officer; a professional trained to fight and win.

The cause for which he gave his life in El Salvador, however, had more than simply a military dimension. Like all U.S. military advisers there, Cmdr. Schaufelberger was in El Salvador to help carry out a policy intended to bring peace, stability, and a measure of democracy to that war-torn country.

Appropriately enough, Cmdr. Schaufelberger's job was to teach Salvadorans how to defend their popularly elected government against Marxist guerrillas intent on imposing a dictatorship.

Defeating those guerrillas would go a long way toward ensuring the stability needed for peaceful change elsewhere in Central America.

By all accounts, Cmdr. Schaufelberger was enthusiastic about his work in El Salvador and dedicated to the cause he served. Our guess is that Al Schaufelberger would be the last to want his death to deter a continuing U.S. commitment in El Salvador.

All American military trainers and advisers in El Salvador are under orders to avoid combat.

It is a measure of how strictly those orders have been adhered to that the small U.S. advisory group has suffered only one battle-related casualty, a Special Forces sergeant slightly wounded by guerrilla fire while flying in a helicopter.

JEFFREY HART Bridge To Past, The Future

That there exists an enormous fund of goodwill and patriotic feelings in this country was demonstrated once again on May 24 when millions of New Yorkers celebrated the 100th birthday of the Brooklyn Bridge.

Every so often this groundswell of emotion breaks out on a massive scale.

It happened on our bicentennial in 1976, notable for its high spirits, quiet pride, and the magnificent parade of the "tall ships."

It happened when John Glenn returned from orbit to a cascade of cheers, tears and ticker tape.

And it happened again last week in lower Manhattan, as a reported four million people crowded into the area in a display notable for its orderliness and almost complete absence of drunkenness and rowdiness.

From the start, the Brooklyn Bridge has been a symbol of optimism, of man's creative capacity, and for the last six months at least New Yorkers who attended to the newspapers and magazines had received some education in the history of the bridge. They became acquainted with the name Washington Roebling, the designer of the span, whose own name so appropriately "bridges" the name of the first president and the ethnic composition of 19th-century America. Readers were educated in the artistic history of the bridge, the subject of poems and paintings from its very beginnings.

On Tuesday, the 24th, the festivities began at 9:30 a.m., and continued on for some people into the small hours of the following morning with private parties and rooftop dancing and champagne under the stars. A fireworks display turned the night sky pale.

The opening event, at 9:30, a gigantic parade that followed the same route as the parade 100 years ago, when President Chester A. Arthur led the citizenry across the new and then astonishing span. Tuesday's parade was led by 81-year-old Mary Roebling, granddaughter of the famous architect.

The parade included an elephant, which was cheered as the crowd moved down Broadway to Battery Park and to a clear view of the Statue of Liberty. Many people in the march had acquired horse-drawn carriages for the trip across the bridge. People wore 19th-century costumes. Some spectators recognized three old Brooklyn Dodger baseball players in the parade: Ralph Branca, Clem Labine and Cal Abrams. One began to feel the inevitability of Brooklyn once again having its own ball club.

Out on the old river, there was a yacht parade, and there were yacht parties at the marinas along the Hudson and East rivers.

Mayor Ed Koch has his faults, but he is a vintage New Yorker with his roots in the streets of lower Manhattan. Not since Fiorello LaGuardia has the city boasted a mayor who completely expresses its touch, skeptical, and joyful spirit. "This is a once in a lifetime event," said Koch as he marched through Brooklyn Heights wearing an old Brooklyn Dodger cap.

'Model' Clinic Struggles For Survival

WASHINGTON — Federal insistence on collecting money owed by a rural clinic in northern New Mexico threatens the existence of a facility that is sorely needed. And the effort could wind up costing the government far more than the debt it's going after.

La Clinica del Pueblo was established 12 years ago in Tierra Amarilla to meet the health needs of a predominantly elderly, Hispanic population in one of the nation's poorest areas. The nearest hospital is 75 miles away and its services are much more expensive.

For several years the salaries of La Clinica's two physicians and two dentists were advanced by the National Health Service Corps. Then the loans were quietly written off by the federal agency. But the Reagan administration called a halt to the waiver system and demanded payment of the debt. The clinic soon owed the government $102,000 and the debt is still accumulating. It simply hasn't got the money.

The irony of the situation is that La

Reporters attend many luncheons, banquets and other feasts in the line of duty. But no matter who picks up the tab, it's all in a day's work.

Rarely ever do we get to savor a meal set before us. Ever try to juggle a note pad and a slab of rare prime rib at the same time? Taking notes and snapping pictures come first with many a delicious meal returned to the kitchen nearly untouched.

Last Saturday afternoon the preacher called. "Have a nice evening," he said, as our conversation ended.

I explained to him that we were looking forward to going to a banquet. He chuckled as I told him that Brownie Troop 592 was having the end-of-the-awards ceremony and banquet — a spaghetti dinner that the first and second graders prepared.

Well, yes, we were invited guests. But all guests were asked to donate $2 to attend the impressive rites. We were thrilled and wouldn't have missed the big event for the world.

The cute troop of Brownies started off the year as orphans without a place to hang their little brown beanies. But Salvation Army captain Beverly Waters came to the rescue — with reservations — and allowed the deserving girls to use the Sanford facility as home port.

The Brownies had a good year — all 11 of them. And it was with enthusiasm that they gathered to cut up ingredients, cook and freeze the succulent sauce, made "from scratch" on Monday before the banquet and ceremony at the Salvation Army Saturday. The tables were neatly set for all the guests who began arriving before the appointed hour of 6 p.m.

Before departing we fed the cat the marvelous leftover shrimp from Friday night. That was one happy, fat cat.

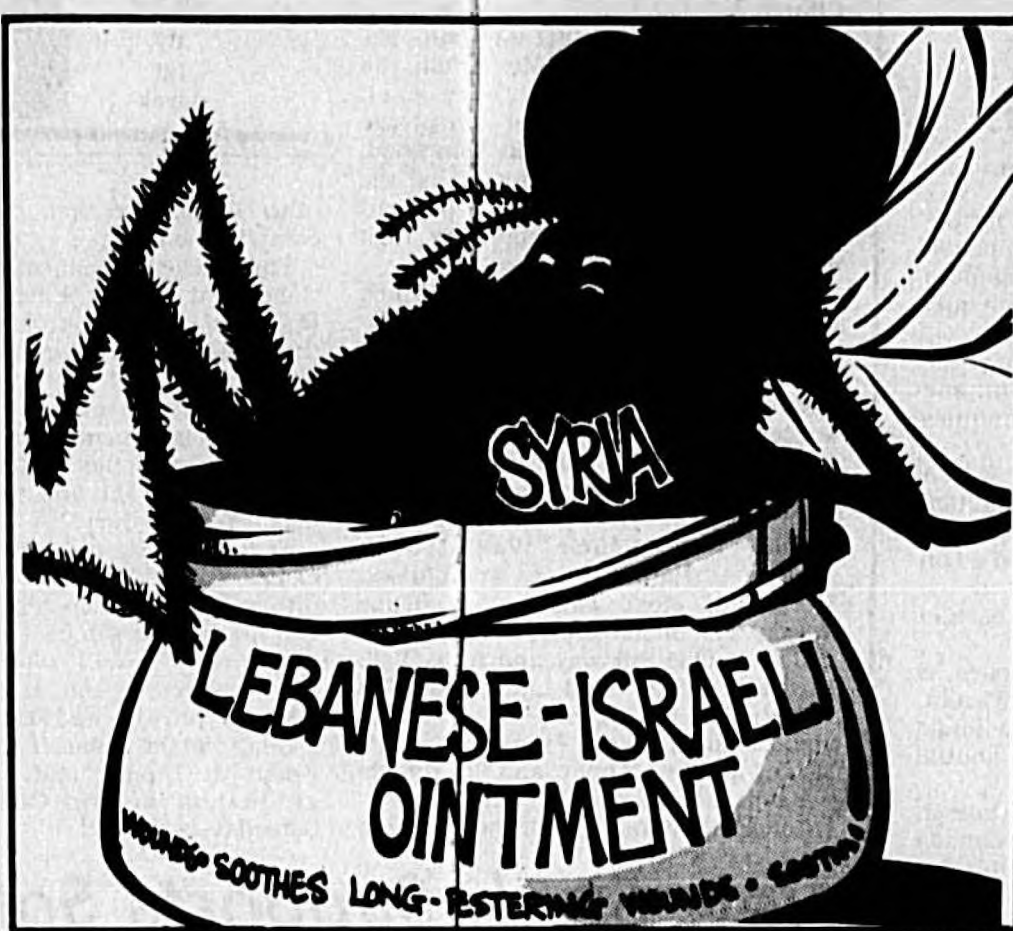

We arrived on time — hungry, naturally. We kept waiting. Dinner was obviously late. Then word reached us that the Brownies had overly-browned the sauce that they so diligently prepared. In fact, it was so brown that it was inedible. Nobody told the girls that too many cooks burn the sauce.

SA captain Michael Waters called the incident a "hallelujah breakdown." Good-naturedly, he pointed out that mistakes are learning experiences. And they happen to everybody.

Within the hour, a fast trip to the nearby supermarket turned up "store-bought" sauce which the gracious Brownie hostesses served with pride as well as the dessert. You guessed it — Brownies.

When the fall season begins, Brownie Troop 592 will have a happy home. The Waters are so impressed with the girls that the Salvation Army will sponsor the troop, house them and help with leadership. Honest Injun.

Sexism In Academe

A certain day I spent in the traditional ivy-covered campus building is forever stamped in my memory.

It was a small graduate school class taught by Warren Guthrie, a professor at Case Western Reserve University.

I was bothered by the reading assignment. One author's viewpoint was the exact opposite of another's. "Who do you think is right?" I asked.

Dr. Guthrie studied me for a moment, then said, "What I think is not important. It's for you to decide who is right."

I was dumbstruck. No professor had ever challenged me to come to a conclusion before. No professor had ever expected me to pass judgment. It was an exhilarating turning point.

The incident came vividly to mind recently when I read the Association of American Colleges study entitled, "The Classroom Climate: A Chilly One for Women?" It is an extensive report based on volumes of research at more than 25 schools.

The question was: Are women and men treated equally in the college setting? The answer is no.

While certainly not a finger-pointing harangue against male-dominated faculties, the study nevertheless lays bare many conscious and unconscious remarks, attitudes and behaviors that squelch a woman's potential.

Here are some comments of women who were surveyed:

— "I was discussing my work in a public setting, when a professor came off and asked me if I had freckles all over my body."

— "I saw a slide show on computers which had female models in billis standing next to computers and the narration included comments such as 'look at those measurements,' etc."

Another incident reported in the study concerned a woman who earned high grades in a traditionally male field. Her professor announced to a male class that this represented an unusual achievement "for a woman." It was an indication, he said, that the woman student was probably not fully feminine, and that the males in the class were not truly masculine since they allowed a woman to beat them.

While these are blatant examples of sexism, other put-downs are more subtle, such as:

— Asking women students questions requiring factual answers while asking men questions requiring critical thinking and judgment.

— Calling more on male students, thus giving the impression that what men have to say or contribute is more important.

— Nominating men, but not equally competent women, for fellowships, awards and prizes.

— Cutting off or interrupting women students when they answer questions but not doing this to men.

— Calling men by last names but women by first names.

The study reports that married women, women in traditionally "male fields," and women returning at mid-life face even greater challenges from professors who are apt to doubt their commitment and motivation.

Now that the Association of American Colleges study has been out for a while, there are signs of positive fallout.

At the University of New Mexico, for example, directors of the women's center and women's studies, Kathryn Brooks and Helen Bannan, pooled a committee of 28 faculty members to evaluate the university's climate.

It was agreed there was discrimination against women, so a permanent committee has been proposed to come up with remedies.

"It won't be a grievance committee," said Ms. Brooks, "but rather a group to sensitize faculty and students to the problem and educate them in solutions."

According to the most recent census figures, enrollment of women in college is at an all-time high (108 women for every 100 men). We can't risk having half the nation's resources thwarted by negative college experiences.

I wish for every woman a professor like mine who said, in essence: "Learn to think for yourself — you have every reason to."

JULIAN BOND On The Motown Tapes

My friend Robinson approached me about three weeks ago. He seemed frightened. "I've got them all here," he said. "These are the real deal, the right stuff. No one else has this except you and me, and if you slip me a few big bills, it will only be you. These are the Motown Tapes!"

The Motown Tapes! I was thunderstruck. There had been rumors about their existence since before Cindy Birdsong joined the Supremes.

Backstage at countless grimy municipal auditoriums and in the dreary dressing rooms of a hundred Royal Casinos and Regal Ballrooms, I'd heard the whispers. There existed somewhere a half-dozen reels of vintage Motown material: ooh-oohs and doo-wops and back-beats and the sweet, urban, urbane soul that turned Detroit into Hitsville, U.S.A.

"Where'd you get these?" I snarled at Robinson, who had last been seen running a training school for Reagan negroes. "You seem to move from one hustle to another."

"You should talk," Robinson said. "How many grown men do you know who earn their living writing down stuff like this? I can't tell you where I got the Motown tapes. But take it from me; they're authentic, and they're worth a pretty penny. I came to you first because I know what a fool — I mean fan — you are."

"Thanks Robinson," I said. "But you've got to level with me. Where did these incendiary loops come from?"

"Well," Robinson said. "It's like this. I got them from a dealer in antiques I know. A man who shall remain nameless. He got them from a former janitor at the Motown Studios in Detroit, who salvaged them from the editing room floor. He stored them in his Keltorian for 20 years, and is only now offering them to discerning collectors of Afro-American musciana. That's why we've come to you."

"Wait a minute," I said. "How do I know these tapes are genuine?"

"They've got to be," Robinson said. "Where else can you get the original recording of the Supremes audition? Where else can you hear unreleased duets between Marvin Gaye and Tammi Terrell? Where else can you hear the uncensored version of the Temptations' 'My Girl'? Where else can you hear Little Stevie Wonder when he was really little Stevie Wonder?"

"I've got to be careful," I reminded Robinson. "Remember the phony Hitler diaries in early May and the phony Mussolini diaries a few years ago? The woods are full of hustlers eager to foist fakes on a gullible public."

"I tell you what I'll do," he finally said. "I'll throw in the prize of the Motown vault. A tape of Adam Ant singing an early duet with Linda Ronstadt. How's that?"

"You're crazy," I said to Robinson. "Neither Ronstadt nor Ant was ever part of the Motown stable. Your tapes are as phony as the Hitler scribbles. You've tried to rip me off!"

"Calm down," Robinson said. "Forget the tapes. I can offer you a chance to make it back on Ebony's list."

OUR READERS WRITE

States And Federal Governments Need To Build More Prisons

John Q. Public could be anybody. On any given day the morning paper will bring him word of shootings, savage slayings, and armed robberies, many not far from John's front door. The evening television news will feature the latest video tape from the scene of that day's most horrible occurrence and then follow up with an update report on the progress of police investigations into the previous day's crime.

It is no wonder that each night, before retiring, John Q. Public checks and double-checks to make sure that all doors are locked and dead-bolted, the windows are securely latched and barred, and no intruder could possibly break through the maze of anti-crime devices installed to protect his family and home. The John Q. Public family is safe, behind bars, for the evening.

Ironically, those John and his neighbors fear are free to roam the community and terrorize at will. John's friend, a sergeant on the police force, shrugs his shoulders saying, "We do what we can do," knowing full well that as soon as his men apprehend a suspect, the chances of that person being returned to the streets within a matter of days (if not hours) are excellent.

No one can argue against the need to preserve our system of justice by which one is innocent until proven guilty and is guaranteed a fair and speedy trial. These are cornerstones of our society. But this nation must do some deep soul-searching to determine if, in the administration of criminal justice, we have neglected to consider what is just for society.

This is not a new message. It's been told in countless forums, including a series of crime hearings I held as a member of the Senate Small Business Committee. The victims and cities change, but the stories are the same and the deep-rooted problem of revolving-door justice remains.

"Is there no justice?" John Q. Public wonders silently. He finds it difficult to understand why, in an orderly society governed by just laws, people dangerous to the community are not locked up. The radio news says the prisons are overcrowded. But John knows that whoever committed the hideous crimes he heard about five minutes earlier also belongs in jail. He knows that as long as that person is free, his family has been sentenced by the criminal justice system to live in fear.

In some states hardened criminals accused of having committed yet another violent crime are released pending trial because the only criteria the judge had to deny bail is the reasonable belief the accused will not show up for trial. The judge is not allowed to deny bail because the defendant has a history of violent crimes and there is evidence to indicate that he may have, in fact, committed the crime for which he is now charged. It seems to me that we need a form of preventive detention to ensure that this individual is not returned to the community and given an opportunity to commit more crimes or to terrorize those who might testify against him.

It is understandable why John Q. Public, having witnessed a mugging last year, was reluctant to volunteer any information about the crime, opting instead to tell the officer, "I didn't see anything; I don't want to get involved." But such action, or lack of it, may have made apprehending and convicting the culprit difficult, if not totally impossible.

There is also the very real possibility that the "mugger," if caught, may be convicted but never sent to prison, or sent but released early on parole. Prison overcrowding is no secret. But justice takes a strange turn when space considerations enter into the judge's determination of whether or not someone should be sent to jail for his crime. The same is true when a convict is released early to make room for a newly convicted felon.

We clearly need more prisons. But the states do not have the necessary funds to build them. Neither does the federal government. When you read between the lines, what is really being said is that there's not enough money to keep criminals off the streets. It makes one wonder if anyone is really worrying about what will happen to our neighbors. A consideration of maximum public safety seems to have been lost in our system of criminal justice.

What is needed is a partnership between the state and federal governments to build more prisons, with each sharing in the cost. I've proposed a bill that does this, but Congress has yet to act. The legislative process, a slow one at best, has bogged down a number of good ideas: preventive detention; a 13-year, no probation and no-prole sentence for armed robbery; stiffer penalties for drug trafficking; bail and sentencing reform. The list goes on.

But, when Washington does act, it can only deal with "federal crimes" and will be unable to provide all the answers. Penalties for the more prevalent "state crimes," like murder, rape, and burglary, are decided in state capitals across the nation, where there are equally long lists of anti-crime bills awaiting action.

It does not matter to John Q. Public whether his community is being victimized by a "state" or "federal" crime. What matters is that Congress, the state legislatures, and government officials on all levels overhaul the criminal justice system in such a way as to make sure that those who commit violent crimes are removed from society. This can be done, but not alone and not without constant prodding from the John Q. Publics of the world who must live, side by side, with the hard reality of crime.

If we are going to get anything accomplished, everyone will have to work together. Our efforts must be given top priority status, and there must be a realization that dollars spent to ensure that our families can live free from the fear of crime are a wise investment in the future of our communities.

Our families should not be imprisoned within the confines of our homes. This is supposed to be a "free" nation, and government has a clear responsibility to ensure domestic tranquility.

Bans On Pets Puts Hardship On The Elderly

Q. An elderly friend of mine lost her husband last year to cancer. She can no longer afford to maintain her house and is forced to seek subsidized housing for herself and her cat of 14 years. It appears that she will have to give up her cat, because she has yet to locate an apartment that will allow pets. I know that if she has to give up her cat it will just kill her — the cat is the only link to the family that she had.

The federal government helps pay for this housing. Why do they ban pets? Is there anything that can be done to allow the elderly to keep their pets?

A. Your friend's story — like many others making the rounds in Congress — probably will not have a happy ending. Many older Americans are having an increasingly hard time finding a place to rent if they own a pet.

"Blanket bans" on pets in rental housing, however, are coming under attack from some humane societies and advocates for the aging. They argue that scientific evidence shows that pets can significantly improve the quality of a handicapped or elderly person's life.

Doctors, psychologists and social workers studying the bond between humans and their companion animals continue to find that the presence of pets can: lower blood pressure; reduce the mortality rate of heart attack patients; alleviate serious depression; and reduce violent incidents, suicide attempts and medication needs in facilities for the criminally insane. Researchers have found that animals may help older people cope with their loss of dignity and self-esteem as well as maintain their sense of humor, all of which can lengthen a person's lifespan.

Legislation has been introduced in Congress by Rep. Mario Biaggi of New York, which would forbid federal funding for elderly and handicapped housing units that ban pets. The bill has received the support of the Humane Society, the White House Conference on Aging and the Delta Society, a non-profit association of animal and health professionals.

Supporters of "blanket bans" on pets argue that pets can and do create management problems, and that an apartment owner does not want to go to court every time a pet must be evicted. It is easier to ban all pets in the first place.

To make the tenancy acceptable for both the renter and landlord, Phyllis Wright, vice president for companion animals for the Humane Society of the United States, suggests neutering all dogs or cats because neutered animals will not attract other animals and tend to be cleaner and better behaved. She also recommends up-to-date vaccinations and current licenses, if required; extra, refundable deposits to guard against clawed curtains or spotted rugs; and references from previous landlords on the pet's behavior.

Q. A friend of mine, a man 65 years old, had an accident in which he broke his jaw. His doctor set the jaw bone, which healed just fine, and an oral surgeon repaired his gums and the nerves beneath. When my friend submitted his medical bills to Medicare, they notified him they would not pay any of his doctor's bills. Because an oral surgeon rather than an M.D. had worked on the nerves and gums, Medicare ruled this was "dental" work, and Medicare doesn't pay for dental work. My friend did have supplemental private health insurance, but his company gave him the same story as Medicare.

Now my friend has been told by his doctor that his back problems are due to the misalignment of his teeth and jaw and that he must see an oral surgeon again. Since Medicare and his private insurance probably wouldn't pay for the same reasons they refused to pay the first bill, he is neglecting the care he needs.

Is it true that Medicare will not pay for dental services, such as my friend received?

A. Medicare will not pay for routine dental examinations for dentures. However, Medicare will cover dental work by dentists or oral surgeons if the same work would have been covered if a doctor had done it. I would urge your friend to have his oral surgeon and doctor write letters to Medicare explaining that the work was not "dental," but rather medical, having to do with the repair of his nerve and gums. It is possible Medicare may pay for the bill.

REP. CLAUDE PEPPER is the ranking member of the House Select Committee on Aging.

Governor And Representatives Spending Too Much Of People's Money

Many times when we have a reasonable politician in office, we don't appreciate what they do for us until years later.

When Rubin Askew was governor of Florida, he had more respect for the taxpayer than most politicians. His first state budget was $2,829,000,000, after eight years in office the state budget was $6,163,000,000, an increase over a period of eight years of $3,334,000,000.

Now let's talk about a Florida governor that has reverted to the days of King Herod who ruled his people with an iron hand, and taxed them out of all their earnings but just enough to survive.

This governor is none other than our present governor Bob Graham. I will show you why I make this broad statement about our governor.

The first year Bob Graham was governor he raised the state budget by $1,667,000,000. After four years in office he has a proposed budget of $11,300,000,000. If the governor's proposed budget is passed, it will be an increase in the state budget of $5,137,000,000 in only four years. That is over one and a quarter billion dollars increase in the state budget each year the money hungry governor has been in office.

Our Honorable Governor Bob Graham didn't rob the taxpayer of Florida out of all these billions alone, he had the help of our hundred dollar an hour lawyers that we elect to represent us. If you elect someone to public office that robs you at home, what can you expect them to do in Tallahassee.

With all these billions, they had to rob all the citizens of Florida with an extra gas tax, that they claim they will build roads with. If you think you can do something about it, just try and see how far you get.

The cheapest thing our state representatives have ever done to the taxpayer, was to give each county the power to raise gas tax by four cents a gallon without a referendum. Our local con men to the taxpayer would raise it fifty cents a gallon, if you give them the power.

Newspaper Editorial On The NEA Is Appreciated

Thank you for the "Block-Busting" editorial, NEA: Problem Or Solution?" It deserves Three Cheers and a Tiger for the courage that it took to call the people's attention to the fact that the NEA could be either of these, a problem or solution.

It is a fact that ever since they came out with their Summary Report of the Bicentennial Program-Quote: "When we break with the past or take even a small step toward a new idea for the future, we are on totally untried ground. The risk for ourselves and our responsibilities to future generations are awesome. It is with this sobering awareness that we act about to change the course of American education for the 21st century by embracing the ideals of Global Community, the equality and inter-dependence of all peoples and nations, and education as a tool to bring about world peace.

The establishment of the Department of Education by President Carter as a payoff for the NEA's support was the camel's nose into the tent of education and thus giving the NEA the power to raid the taxpayer's pocketbook, under the guise of giving the people a better quality of education. The result has been as has been called to the people's attention, ad nauseum.

For money to improve the present 'Education Stitchation' we could have returned to local control of the funds that are now expended on the Department of Education. $10 billion plus. This should never go to Washington, but remain in the taxpayer's pocketbook to be collected and expended, under local control to improve the quality of the ideology and proficiency of the teachers in our schools, not used to promote the idea of One World Government, by making the U.S. -US- a nation of mediocrities.

I urge you to go back and rerun your editorial of 2/22/79 and urge President Reagan to remove that burr under the saddle of education, the D.O.E. *D.O.E.- DE-LENDA EST*.

President Reagan should have no fear of doing this as the NEA membership came within 2 percentage points of voting for Reagan over Carter, giving the former President a paltry 44 percent of the teacher/member vote. This according to 'Fingerprints' in Our Age, the official paper of the National Alliance of Senior Citizens.

"Freedom is not free. Eternal vigilance is the price."

Blood Bank Appreciates Newspaper Help

The Board of Directors of Central Florida Blood Bank wish to extend our gratitude to the Evening Herald for the newspaper coverage of Central Florida Blood Bank's Seminole County Branch and volunteer blood donors.

We appreciate the articles and photographs depicting the need for blood and the importance of giving because more than 250 pints are needed on an average daily basis. Presently, there is no substitute for blood. The only source is from people.

On behalf of the Central Florida Blood Bank, the staff, and the patients we serve in 26 health care facilities located in seven Central Florida counties, please accept our sincere thanks for the Evening Herald's continued interest and support of our organization and the needs of our community.

Paper Thanked

We of the Lorelei Synchronized Swim Team wish to take this time to thank you for your article in the Sanford Herald. The barbecue fundraising dinner held on April 9 at the Longwood Recreational Center was a huge success due to the generosity of the local media. Again, we thank you.

Mary Rose, coach
Sanford

I'm not too big on writing letters to editors, but I think you are to be congratulated for editorializing not only on local affairs, but also on national and international situations.

Some time ago you wrote about the fact that the two staunchest friends the United States had — the Shah of Iran, and Gen. Samozia — has been cast aside; and we've now seen the consequences of these actions.

Your recent editorial on the Catholic bishops' stand on the United States use of nuclear weapons was also very timely and thought provoking. So that there will be no misunderstanding, I should like to reiterate that this bishops' letter is not a teaching of the Catholic Church. It is the stated position of the bishops who, as men of God, feel all war is wrong — but they have gone even further in stating the U.S. would be morally wrong in initiating a "first strike." Strange, but the letter did not say nuclear weapons were wrong for everyone — including the U.S.S.R. One of the bishops, a former chaplain with the 82nd Airborne, tried in vain to halt the publication of the letter. He was ignored by these men who seem to be getting rather far afield from their chores of ministering to the spiritual needs of their people.

As another sidelight, I contributed for a number of years to an organization called "The Christophers." A Catholic priest who had done intensive studies on communism determined that communism infiltrated countries through four "spheres of influence" — Communications (All the so-called media), Labor-Management, Government, and Education. This priest founded the Christophers to encourage Christ-bearers to take good into these four fields to combat the bad being brought in through the communist influence. Father Keller died a few years ago. The Christophers are still active, but their whole thrust now is toward "social consciousness" — the plight of developing nations, etc. Needless to say, I no longer contribute.

Keep up the good work; our values and morals are being eroded so rapidly that many people aren't even aware of what is happening — it's good that you continue to remind them.

Bomber Group Sets Reunion

The 397th Bomb Group with its 598th, 597th, 596th, 595th Bomb Squadrons will hold its sixth reunion Sept. 30 through Oct. 2, 1983, at the Holiday Inn, Tampa International Airport, Tampa.

Former members of this WW II 9th Air Force B-26 Marauder group are asked to contact the 397th Bomb Group Association, Nevin F. Price, secretary, P.O. Box 1786, Rockville, Maryland 20850. Phone: 301 460-4488.

This reunion will commemorate the Battle of the Bulge (Dec. 1944-Jan. 1945) and received a Distinguished Unit Citation for a mission on 23 December 1944 when the group withstood heavy flak and fighter attack to sever a railway bridge at Eller, Germany, a vital link in the enemy's supply line across the Moselle River. ## Battle For State Authority

By Sajid Riavi

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Lebanon's government rules in fits and starts, what with rival alien armies and militias vying for similar authority on chunks of its soil. But you can't say it isn't trying.

The row with Syria over the troop withdrawal agreement with Israel summed up a bit too starkly President Amin Gemayel's difficulties in trying to do his own thing.

His other attempts to enforce Lebanon's will on the runaway Syrian, Israeli, Christian, Moslem, Druze, Palestinian "provinces" have been subtle and failed. Some 70 percent of the country is under one foreign occupation or another.

So it boils down to Beirut, where Lebanese government rules at its best.

Israel's invasion a year ago rekindled international sympathy for Lebanon's need to manage its own territory if not the foreign troops — 40,000 Syrians, 30,000 Israelis, 10,000 Palestinians, 400 Iranians.

For almost six years, alien or rebellious militias had ridden roughshod over state authority right into Beirut. That stopped when the Israelis took over.

But the Lebanon-Israel agreement, controversial from the start, once again provoked the sectarian fights it was designed to curb with an extension of Lebanese government authority all over Lebanon.

Gemayel appealed to factional leaders to hold fire while he concentrated on the more essential task of ejecting the foreigners — Israelis, Syrians, Palestinians and Iranians. It was the umpteenth appeal.

BUSINESS IN BRIEF

Five Seminars Planned For Small Businessmen

The Small Business Development Center, University of Central Florida, is sponsoring five seminars on the fundamentals of accounting for small business owners/managers.

Each of the five industry groups, retailing, restaurant, manufacturing, construction and professional/service, will be represented in individual seminars conducted by a certified public accounting firm with expertise in that particular area.

These seminars will be conducted starting June 14 from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. at the John Young Science Center Auditorium, 810 E. Rollins St. The course fee is $25.

For further information persons may call the UCF Small Business Development Center at 275-2796.

Gregory Attends Market

Renewing the commitment to being the "Store of First Choice," Eugene Gregory of Gregory Lumber True Value Hardware of 500 Maple St. in Sanford recently attended the 71st semi-annual Red Carpet Market and Convention held in Chicago.

With sights set on the upcoming fall and holiday seasons, Gregory placed orders with many of the 1,400 manufacturers whose displays covered the 175,000 square feet of floor space at the general offices of Cotter and Company, the 100 percent member-owned wholesaler to True Value Hardware Stores and Home Centers. Gregory and fellow True Value members took part in product knowledge seminars and merchandising demonstrations to round out their market activities. The most apparent activity was the increased buying of True Value's exclusive lines.

Marvel Represents IC

IC Industries, a manufacturer of micro-circuit testing and probing systems, has appointed Marvel Inc. as their advertising agency of record.

IC Industries markets equipment nationally and is considered the technological leader in the design and production of test probes, fixtures and systems.

A spokesman for the company said, "Marvel Inc. brings a business-to-business marketing expertise to our operation that we have not had in the past." Initial projects include new collateral materials, direct mail programs and space advertising in select trade publications.

S-C Promotes Howie

Stromberg-Carlson Corporation of Lake Mary has named Benton Howie manager of compensation and Garth Shoemaker manager of staffing in its human resources organization.

Previously a compensation specialist, Howie is responsible for domestic and international compensation and classification administration. He reports to Judith A. French, director of compensation benefits and management relations.

Shoemaker is responsible for all staffing and affirmative action programs and reports to Linda M. Metcalf, director of human resources staffing and development. Previously, he had been an industrial relations administrator.

and David Farr; and chamber welcoming committee members Becky Courson, Joyce Farr and Teri Bourque. Vaughn recently opened the new Mister Donut at 3755 S. Orlando Dr. (U.S. Highway 17-92).

Cryogenic Generator Available

By LeRoy Pope
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — After three decades of research and development, General Electric Co. says it has proved the commercial feasibility of power generators operating at cryogenic temperature — around minus 452 degrees F.

Dr. P. Augustin Rios and Edwin B. Hicks of GE told United Press International the company has just completed the first full-load test of a cryogenic generator capable of providing electricity for a community of 20,000 persons. They said the dynamo produced twice as much electricity as a conventional generator of the same size.

The saving in fuel was a modest 0.45 percent, but in large size generators that's enough to be significant, they said. The big saving, though, is in the vast amount of power that is not lost through electrical resistance as it would be in a conventional generator.

At these ultra-low temperatures, the niobium-titanium alloy used in the fiber windings of the modular field of the generator become superconductive — they offer virtually zero resistance to the flow of electricity. That makes it possible to cut the size of the dynamo about in half.

Although the principles have been known for years and achieving the cryogenic environment by means of liquid helium refrigeration is simple, designing a practical cryogenic generator and getting the bugs out of it was a huge job.

A number of other cryogenic generating development projects are underway, including one by Westinghouse in the United States, one by the Siemens group in Germany and similar ventures in France, Britain, Japan and the Soviet Union.

The cryogenic generator can be fitted right into a conventional power plant alongside ordinary generators. It is turned by a conventional steam or gas turbine. But Rios and Hicks said there is no reason to believe it will be adopted rapidly despite its proven advantages. "There simply isn't sufficient present demand for new or replacement generating capacity," they said.

It also is possible to improve greatly the efficiency of large electric motors by operating them at cryogenic temperatures, since motors and generators are more or less opposite faces of the same coin. Much research and laboratory development work is going on in this area.

Empire Extends 9.75% Mortgage Rate

Empire of America FSA has announced that its 9.75 percent Adjustable Rate Mortgage Program will be extended for 30 days — through June 30.

Paul A. Willax, president and chief executive officer of Empire of America, said the Big E's continued offering of this unusually low rate is based on "overwhelming response" from consumers and realtors alike. More than $500 million in ARM applications were received by Big E branches in less than three months with more than $60 million in the Florida Division, signifying tremendous consumer acceptance of the ARM product.

The adjustable rate mortgage plan is offered in communities in New York State, Michigan, Florida and Texas, where the Big E has branch offices.

"We are receiving daily reports about the tremendous boost the ARM program is providing to the real estate and home construction industries," Willax said.

He continued: "Our decision to continue this program for an additional 30 days is based upon our total commitment to further stimulate the economy of our local communities and to meet the needs of our customers."

Phones Need Vacations

When leaving Central Florida for the summer, customers can call Southern Bell to put their telephone on vacation.

"Special savings from vacation service are available from Southern Bell for customers who are going away for more than two but less than nine months," says Southern Bell Manager Larry Strickler.

"The discounted rate is $4.80 per month, a big savings over the regular monthly rate. Also, the charge to restore service upon returning is only $17, considerably less than full connection charges.

In addition to the savings, putting a telephone on vacation rather than disconnecting it guarantees retention of the same phone number and keeping a listing in the telephone directory.

Seasonal customers who connect and disconnect their phones have different numbers every year and usually do not appear in the directory because their numbers change so frequently. Also, when a phone is on vacation, a system can refer callers who dial the Central Florida number to another number where that customer can be reached."

A call to the business office is all that's necessary to restore full service when customers return. If that call is made ahead of time, the phone will be ready for use upon arrival. According to Strickler, the telephone should be off vacation and ready for use within one business day after calling the business office in Sanford at 322-6701.

Seminole Sewing

Dennis Courson likes to do things in a big way. A ribbon cutting at a new Sanford business is no exception. He recently took scissors in hand to welcome the new Seminole Sewing and Vacuum center at 3820 Orlando Drive in the Market Place Shopping Center at U.S. Highway 17-92 and Lake

Lower Medical Costs Offered By Doctors

By Toni Cardarella

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — In an effort to ease skyrocketing health care costs, almost 100 private-practice physicians have formed a corporation to offer medical services at lower rates to employee organizations.

The corporation, called Preferred Health Professionals, is the first "preferred provider organization" (PPO) in the Midwest and one of only a handful of major non-profit groups of its kind in the country.

A PPO basically is a voluntary organization of providers — physicians and one or more hospitals — who offer prenegotiated services to groups of individuals who have a common employer or labor-management welfare trust.

About 90 doctors at Baptist Medical Center, representing almost every medical specialty, already have agreed to participate in Preferred Health Professionals; more than half the doctors on the 230 active-member medical staff are expected to join. The group recently began presenting its innovative health delivery plan to area business, industry and labor-management representatives.

"We're in a time where medicine is in a big area of change and flux. We know that the federal involvement in medicine has never been smaller, and the costs are so great it's just horrendous," said Dr. Dale Smith, president of the PHP.

"Finding some way of cutting costs without cutting the quality is really something all physicians are interested in doing."

The PHP offers to employees in the group that signs with the plan prenegotiated and reduced rates for physician services, discounts on billed charges for hospital care at the medical center, and an effective utilization review policy to contain costs.

"We are concerned as everybody else is about health care costs," said Dennis L. McClatchey, vice president of the south Kansas City hospital. "We are interested in coming up with a system to do something about it."

The PHP is not an insurance plan but normally is offered alongside an existing business or labor-management health benefit plan. Employees can elect to continue with their existing medical relationships or choose the PHP plan.

"It's a total free-choice system to go to the providers," said Gary Jenkins of Martin Segal Co., a Denver consulting firm assisting the medical center and participating staff in the development of PHP. "It is not an arbitrary discount offered to employees," he noted.

Mountain Medical Affiliates in Denver, now in its fourth year, is considered one of the most successful preferred provider organizations in the country and was organized with the help of Martin Segal Co., Jenkins said.

If chosen, the preferred providers offer employees breaks in co-payment and deductibles and in turn, the company, fund or insurer promises prompt payment and increased patient volume, said P.J. Whalen, director of communication services for the hospital.

"It's a private-sector response to the cost-containment arena without any legislative support," Whalen said.

Supporters of the PHP are quick to note the difference between the preferred provider organization models and the health maintenance organization (HMO) plans, such as Prime Health and Blue Cross' Total Health.

Under the PHP plan, there is no prepayment for future services, no monthly premium as in the HMO system.

The doctors control the PHP plan, with fees negotiated by them not the hospital, but there are benefits for the hospital.

W.L. Gracey Rides To National Fame

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

About nine months ago, 10-year-old W.L. Gracey got his first look at B.M.X. (bicycle moto-cross) racing. He liked what he saw and thought he might like to give it a try. It didn't take long for the 70 pound fourth grader at Sanford's Southside Elementary School to get the hang of bicycle racing and, after only eight months of racing, Gracey has become one of the top B.M.X. racers in the nation in his age bracket.

In fact, in the last eight months, Gracey has finished in first place in 37 out of the 41 races he has entered and, last weekend at the Bayfront Center in St. Petersburg, he won the State Championship and, in the process, beat last year's World Champion in his age group.

"He's continuously practicing," W.L.'s mother Cindy Gracey said. "Right from the moment he gets off the school bus."

"He runs at least a mile a day, and does numerous exercises to build up his leg muscles," W.L.'s father Billy Gracey said. "In the nine months W.L. has been racing, he has won over 50 trophies. Some of them are five to six feet tall."

Every day, when school lets out, W.L. hops on his bike and practices for the weekend. He usually participates in races on both Saturday and Sunday and the closest track that holds races is at Gordon Barnett Park in Orlando (Pine Castle). W.L. is a member of the National Bicycle League and the National Pedal Sports Association, both groups sponsor the races the W.L. competes in. When he isn't racing or practicing, W.L. plays baseball for Flagship Bank of the Sanford Little American League and does a lot of fishing.

Since getting involved in B.M.X. racing, Gracey has been all over the state and has won the most prestigious races in his age bracket. He has won two Grand National races, finished 2nd in the Pan Am International race and won the number one plate for this year for the N.P.S.A. state season as a nine-year old. At the present time, Gracey leads the United States in points in B.M.X. racing. The racer with the highest point total at the end of the season gets to go to the World Open in Holland.

To be a successful moto-cross bicycle racer, it takes a lot of practice, stamina — and money. The bicycle W.L. uses to compete cost over $800. And, the bike weighs only nine pounds while a standard bicycle can weigh from 20-35 pounds.

"You need to have the lightest bike possible," Billy Gracey said. Billy along with his wife Cindy, Mr. and Mrs. L.H. Tripp and Mrs. Ann Gracey (W.L.'s grandparents) are W.L.'s sponsors. They take care of his traveling expenses, uniforms and bicycle.

Although you don't hear much about the sport, moto-cross bicycle racing is increasing in popularity and tracks are springing up all over the nation. The sport can also be very rewarding and pay off in big dividends if the racer sticks with it. Professional B.M.X. racers make as much as $75,000 to $100,000 a year and you have to be 16 years old to turn pro.

"They have tracks in Ocoee and DeLand and a lot of smaller towns than Sanford," Billy Gracey said. "I'd really like to see Sanford get a track. B.M.X. racing is starting to become a very popular sport."

Right now, W.L. has his eyes set on being National Champion and advancing to the World Open in Holland. This Saturday and Sunday, W.L. will be racing at Barnett Park where he has finished in the W column 27 times, and in the L column zero times.

When asked if he had to choose between B.M.X. and baseball, there wasn't a moment's hesitation from W.L. "B.M.X.," he said. And why not? At 10 years old, he already one of the best in the nation.

Seminole Rehires Beathard

Roger Beathard, who resigned as Lake Mary football coach last year, will return to Seminole this fall as social studies teacher and football coach, Principal Wayne Epps said Friday.

Beathard coached football at Seminole for eight years before taking the head coaching job at Lake Mary when the school opened two years ago. The Rams went 1-9 last fall playing their first varsity schedule. After Beathard's resignation, he was replaced by Harry Nelson.

Playing Ball Is Privilege — Not A Right For Kids

Rotary manager Ed Korgan made one of his best moves of the year last Wednesday when he benched five of his stars (?) because they wouldn't run a few laps. Korgan was contemplating another move Friday — giving up the team.

It seems some of Korgan's players came to a practice last week, but felt they were too good to practice. Rotary won the first-half championship in the Junior League, which assures it of a spot in the post-season playoffs. In the second half, the stars have floundered somewhat, losing three and winning two.

The guys who didn't need practice were instructed to run five laps before Wednesday's game against Knights of Columbus, the first-place team. The players, who can have run any number of the laps then and finished the rest later, balked at the idea.

Korgan, with those five on the bench, didn't have enough reserves to field nine players so he had to forfeit the game.

This move, understandably, ticked off Moose manager Bill Dube, whose team is second in the pennant race, and needs somebody to knock off KOC so his club has a chance of making the playoffs.

Managing a Little League baseball team is supposed to be fun. As you know, it doesn't pay anything but satisfaction. Korgan wasn't getting much fun or satisfaction during the second half. A manager, even the most kind-hearted, can only put up with so much abuse before he asks himself, "What am I doing this for?" After all, if you're in it for the kids, and the kids don't respect you — then there's not much sense being in it.

It seems that these young men are a little misguided. I know several of them, and I've always thought of them to be good kids. Of course, I knew them a couple years ago as Little Major Leaguers. As we know, a change comes over kids when they go through the 13-14 age stage. They get pimples. They tend to show off a little more. They find it hard to listen to authority. They start to think they know a little more than they do. Sometimes a lot more. Sometimes they even think they know how to manage a baseball team.

What you guys should remember, though, is that playing baseball is a privilege — not a right. There is a difference which you probably know if you paid attention in Civics class. Nobody owes you the right to play baseball. And if you continue to act in your misguided manner, you may no longer have that right.

The baseball program in Sanford in on shakey ground. Forfeits and player ejections have become normal. The league is disorganized, ill-supervised and lacking of players, according to some league coaches and umpires. You guys don't help it any when you act in your immature manner.

There have been some pretty good ball players that have come through this organization. Names like Raines, Brown and Wiggins. Several of them signed contracts with major-league teams. A lot of them were a lot better players than you guys.

They didn't go through a season shooting off their mouths at umpires. They didn't worry about stuff like that. They didn't have time for that. They just loved to play. Maybe it's time you guys did a little soul-searching and see if you still love to play.

Because if things don't come around, you might not have a place to play. And when you don't have a place to play, you try to find other things to do. Some times, these things are not legal. If you do too many of these illegal things, they give you a number. But this number is a little longer than that one you got on your back now. Sometimes it stretches all the way to Ralford. Think about it.

Knights of Columbus erupted for five runs in the eighth inning Friday night and held off a rally by Kiwanis en route to a 12-10 extra-inning victory in Sanford Junior League action at Chase Park. KOC now stands at 6-0 in the second half, one game ahead of Moose, while Kiwanis fell to 3-3.

Kiwanis got off to a early 1-0 lead in the first inning, but KOC exploded for six runs in the top of the third to take a 6-1 lead. Curtis Rudolph led off the inning with a single and Leonard Lucas followed with a walk. Rudolph and Lucas both scored on a double off the bat of Stuart Gordon and Gordon scored on a single by Todd Revels. Consecutive singles by Shelton Slater and J.D. Paul brought home two more runs and Paul scored the sixth run on a wild pitch.

Kiwanis scored once in the bottom of the third to cut KOC's lead to 6-2. With two outs, Arthur Hersey singled, stole second, advanced to third on a wild pitch and scored on a single by Dwayne Willis.

Knights of Columbus held a 7-2 lead going into the bottom of the seventh inning when Kiwanis rallied for five runs to tie the game at 7-7 and sent it into extra frames. Dexter Debose drew a walk to lead off the inning for Kiwanis and Peter Courlas followed with a single to put runners on the corners. Hersey then drilled a single to chase home Debose and Willis roped a single to knock in Courlas. Both Hersey and Willis scored on KOC miscues. Still with nobody out, Reggie Bellamy drew a walk, stole both second and third, and scored the tying run on Craig Brown's RBI groundout.

KOC responded with five runs in the top of the eighth to take a 12-7 lead. Lucas led off with a single, stole both second and third, and scored on an error on a pick off attempt. With one out, Stuart Gordon drew a walk and stole both second and third and Revels walked to put runners of first and third. Slater then rapped a single to knock in Gordon and J.D. Paul followed with a double to chase home pinch runner Eric Williams and Slater. Paul came around to score on a two-out single by Alonzo Galtney.

Kiwanis didn't give up though, and rallied for three runs in the bottom of the eighth. Courlas walked to lead off, stole both second and third, and scored on a single by Willis. Willis scored on a double off the bat of Bellamy, who scored on a single by Walter Hopson to cut KOC's lead to 12-10. Willie Grayson then drew a walk and stole second to put runners on second and third with just one out. Brown then stepped up representing the winning run. However, KOC pitcher Lucas, in relief of Revels, rose to the occasion and struck out Brown and Eddie Evans to preserve the victory for the Knights.

In Friday night's first game, Moose scored a Junior League season-high of 32 runs in a 32-1 shellacking of Elks. Terry "The Cat" Miller hurled a two-hitter and hit for the cycle (single, double, triple and home run) going 5 for 5 at the plate, as Moose improved to 5-1 in the second half and stayed one game behind KOC.

Moose opened up its arsenal and exploded for 14 runs in the top of the first inning. Key hits included a double and a triple by Miller, a pair of singles by David Goldstick, a double by John Lewis and a singles by Keith Denton and Oscar Merthie. Moose also took advantage of eight walks in the inning.

Moose had 19 hits for the game and capitalized on 11 Elks errors. Among his five hits, Miller had one single, two doubles, a triple and his seventh home run of the season. On the mound, Miller struck out 10 and walked just two. Steven Warren's second-inning single and fourth-inning triple were the only two hits for Elks who fell to 1-4 for the second half.

In Sanford Pee Wee League action at Fort Mellon Park, Butch's Chevron took advantage of nine walks and nine wild pitches en route to a 13-9 victory over McRoberts Tires. Butch's Chevron had five hits for the game including a pair of singles by Tyrone Williams, a triple by Jimmy Carraway, a double by Lorne Jones and a single by Billy Farrance. McRoberts Tires got three hits for the game including a home run off the bat of Adrian Cooper, a triple by Demetris Miller and a single by Joe Webster.

Kokomo Tools held off a late Gracey Construction rally en route to a 11-9 victory Gracey Construction and had only one for the game off winning pitcher Corey Bennett. Gracey Construction benefitted from 12 walks and seven passed balls. Matt Wilk's triple was the only hit for Gracey Construction. Kokomo Tools came up with four hits for the game including a triple and a single by Al Brown, a triple by Bennett and a double by Lawrence McIntyre.

Faulkner's second-inning single was the only hit off Cox who struck out 11 hitters, including the last seven in a row.

James Jackson and Travis Pickens had two singles apiece for Flagship Bank while Cox added a double.

Evert Avoids Falling Seeds; Texas Rolls In Series

PARIS (UPI) — The $1.1 million French Open tennis championships has echoed to the sound of falling seeds but four-time women's champion Chris Evert Lloyd had no intention of joining that list when she faced unranked Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia in Saturday's final.

Pre-tournament forecasts were for the second-seeded Evert to face defending champion and top-seeded Martina Navratilova in the final, but the latter and No. 4 seed Tracy Austin were eliminated in the quarterfinals.

Evert, 28, had suffered unexpected semifinal defeats at Roland Garros the two previous years but took the opportunity of avenging both of them. She ousted 1981 champion Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia in the quarterfinal and then bested third-seeded compatriot Andrea Jaeger, last year's runner-up, in the semifinals.

Jausovec's progress has been less impressive. She advanced to the final without meeting a seeded player.

On paper, at least, Lloyd was favored over Jausovec on the strength of a 13-0 career mark against the Yugoslavain.

But Jausovec, 26, whose career has been hampered by a succession of injuries, has a distinguished clay court record. She captured all the European clay titles between 1976 and 1978, including the French Open in 1977, and rose as high as sixth in the world rankings.

Evert, who is making her sixth appearance in the final — she lost her first in 1973 against Australian Margaret Court — has the flare for the big occasion ... and the additional incentive of a $1 million bonus that will go to the player holding all four Grand Slam titles simultaneously.

Evert already has won the U.S. and Australian Opens and a victory today will give her the chance to gain the lucrative bonus at Wimbledon.

"If I win here, then I hope I can really get fired up for Wimbledon," Evert commented before meeting Jausovec. "But it will be tough for me to get motivated as I am not playing a big name. I don't want to jump the gun though. It is a huge thrill and it has been my goal all year."

The men's event, in which the world's top four players all were defeated in the quarterfinals, returned to normalcy Friday as defending champion and fifth-seeded Mats Wilander of Sweden and sixth-seeded Frenchman Yannick Noah both advanced to Sunday's final.

Wilander needed 4 hours and 44 minutes to fend off the challenge of eighth-seeded Jose Higueras of Spain, who was ousted in the semifinals for the second straight year.

Sports Roundup

(3-7), 6-3, 6-0.

Noah breezed through his match against compatriot Christophe Roger-Vasselin in one hour and 22 minutes, winning 6-3, 6-0, 6-0.

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Top-ranked Texas routed James Madison in a 12-0 whitewash and third-rated Oklahoma State downed second-seeded Stanford 3-1 Friday night the 37th annual College World Series' opening games.

Texas coach Cliff Gustafson said James Madison, in the series for the first time and ranked at the bottom of the eight-team field, "had to be nervous."

"They wouldn't be human if they weren't," Gustafson said. "I was nervous. The day I stop being nervous at the College World Series is the day I get out of coaching."

James Madison coach Brad Babcock said his team "never made a threat" in suffering the shutout.

"If we would of had a little more intensity we could have stayed close," Babcock said. "We just couldn't throw strikes."

Texas junior Calvin Schiraldi tossed a five-hitter and allowed only two of the Dukes' runners to reach third base, while Mike Trendt scored a tournament record-tying four runs in the romp.

Trent laid down three bunt singles and drew a walk to set up his performance that equaled that of 13 other players in previous College World Series.

Texas exploded for eight runs in the eighth inning, sending 13 batters to the plate and utilizing two walks, an error, a wild pitch and a balk to break open the game.

A trio of James Madison pitchers yielded nine walks during the game.

Big Eight champion Oklahoma State played errorless ball in the nightcap victory over Stanford that included a two-run homer by Tim Knapp and a bases empty circuit trip by Peter Incavaglia.

Stanford scored its run on a homer by Erick Hardgrave.

Oklahoma State coach Gary Ward said out of the ballpark was "about the only place we could hit the ball where they wouldn't catch it."

"Stanford has a great defensive ball club," Ward said. "This is a place where you like to play a little different than the power game. All of the balls that went out were well-hit."

Stanford coach Mark Marquess added, "I thought it was a great game by both teams."

"The keys were our inability to get the big hit," Marquess said. "We certainly had the scoring opportunities."

hit the home run," Marquess said. "And that's exactly what happened tonight."

Tonight's schedule has fifth-ranked Michigan against seventh-seeded Maine in the opener and No. 4 Arizona State facing No. 6 Alabama in the nightcap.

BETHESDA, Md. (UPI) — Scott Simpson and Tom Kite played precise golf while George Burns scattered golf balls around Congressional Country Club. Being precise, as one might expect, was better.

Simpson bunched four birdies into his first six holes and fired his second-straight 4-under par 68 for 136 and a 2-shot led over Kite after two rounds of the $400,000 Kemper Open.

Kite, who played his final nine holes in an afternoon rain, shot 70-138. Burns, the first-round leader after humbling Congressional Thursday with a course-record 64, skied to a 77 Friday but remained the only golfer within three shots of Kite.

"It's a surprise to see two guys ahead by such a gap," said Kite. "But there are a few others at three, two or one under. Someone could make up six or eight shots on this course, so the gap is far from insurmountable."

"This is so rare because the talent is so close on the tour. The norm is to have a three-man playoff on Sunday, have the finish run into the (NBA) basketball game and have CBS cut us off (of television)."

CBS cut to an NBA playoff game on May 15 missing the finish of Jim Colbert's six-hole playoff victory over Fuzzy Zoeller in the Colonial National Invitation tournament at Fort Worth, Texas.

Fred Couples and Jack Renner matched 1-under 71s Friday to tie at 142 with Taiwan's Tze-Chung Chen, who skidded to a 73. Joe Inman, who won the 1976 Kemper Open at Charlotte, N.C., is at 69-143, tied with Buddy Gardner, 72-143.

Only 15 players broke par over Congressional's 7,173 yards Friday, five fewer than Thursday. The cut came at 150 with 82 players surviving, the second-largest final two-day field of the year.

Simpson and Kite both hit 15 greens while Burns hit just 11 and generally played the opposite of extreme of Thursday's record round.

Kite's found his final nine greens slowed by the rain, but made two birdies. Simpson, playing in the morning under sunny skies, finished with 12 straight pars to clinch his 23rd straight tour paycheck.

The two-time NCAA champion birdied the par five 10th from a green-side bunker with a slippy, twisting 4-foot putt. He tapped in from one foot on No. 11 after nearly flying a 6-iron into the cup before making a 15-footer at the 13th and a 10 footer at the 15th.

"After that, I just made a bunch of pars," said Simpson. "I had some birdie chances on my second nine, but I didn't make any putts. Of course, at 8-under, I've got plenty of patience."

Simpson, whose only tour victory came in the 1980 Western Open, is 47th on the money list with $62,803 after finishing 24th last year winning $146,903.

Two-time defending champion Craig Stadler, Simpson's roommate for three years at the University of Southern California, started the day even but ran into problems in the rain and is at 75-147.

To outside observers, Simpson and Stadler would have been an "odd couple" at USC. Simpson is quiet, almost shy, while Stadler is known as out-going, gregarious.

"Actually, we aren't that much different away from the golf course," said Simpson. "Craig is calmer off the course than he appears and I've had my bad moments."

"It's just that people don't see all of either of us. Craig's reputation probably is worse than he deserves and mine is probably better than I deserve."

Kite left himself only 8 feet for birdie on the fourth hole but found the sand at the fifth for his only bogey. In the rain, however, he rolled in a 25-foot birdie putt at No. 11 and a 10 footer at No. 16.

"Everything I said about Friday's round, just reverse it for today," said Kite, who scrambled to a 68 Thursday. "I hit 15 greens and missed two others by less than three inches. To think I shot two shots higher (than Thursday) is a mystery."

"From tee to green, I played the best I've played in months," added Kite. "This is more like '80, '81 and '82."

Camp, Bedrosian Shackle Cards; Koosman Blanks K.C.

ATLANTA (UPI) — Atlanta pitcher Rick Camp says St. Louis is going through a slump much like the Braves did last year before they rallied near the end of the season, only to lose to the Cardinals in the playoffs.

Camp, now 5-4, combined with Steve Bedrosian for an eight-hitter Friday night as the Braves defeated St. Louis 5-3 for their fourth straight victory and a perfect five-game record against the Cards this season.

"They're a great club — they're just going through a slump right now," said Camp, who gave up only four hits over six innings before Bedrosian took the mound to fire a four-hitter over the final three frames for his seventh save.

"Every good club goes through a slump. We went through one last year and we lost 19 out of 21," he said. "The Cardinals are going through one right now and are going to break out of it soon. It's just a matter of time."

Camp himself has been going through a slump of sorts, especially when he gave up six runs to Pittsburgh last month. But Camp, who has now won two in a row, writes it off as just getting the bad breaks.

"It was just a period that I think every pitcher goes through," he said. "You have bad luck, make a bad pitch and they hit a home run, whereas sometimes you make a bad pitch and they hit a foul ball."

With the score tied 1-1, Atlanta moved ahead 5-1 with four runs in the third inning off starter and loser Dave LaPoint, who said he was having trouble throwing anything across the plate.

"It's nothing to lose sleep over," said LaPoint, now 4-2. "I didn't have any control at all. None of the three (pitches) were going over the plate. It's one of those things that will happen once in a while."

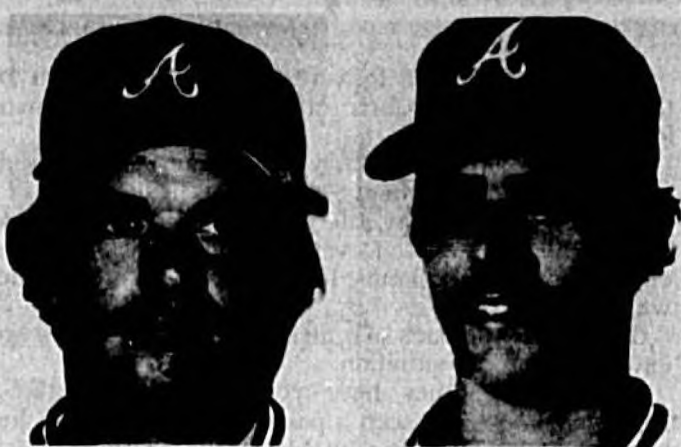

LaPoint walked Claudell Washington and Glenn Hubbard to start the inning, followed by Dale Murphy with an RBI single to center. Bob Horner then shot an RBI double to left and Terry Harper followed with a run-scoring ground out. Chris Chambliss topped the inning with an RBI single to right that put LaPoint out of the game.

Chambliss went through a slump earlier in the season, which has dropped his batting average to .255. But he has now hit safely in seven of the last nine games and says it's good to be back on top of the ball.

"I feel a lot better and I'm swinging at the right pitches now. I've been trying to do that all year," he said. "I had a real good start, but then I really went down — as low as I've ever been — so I'm just happy to get back in and contribute again."

The Braves took a 1-0 lead in the first on a sacrifice fly by Murphy, but St. Louis tied it up in the second when Willie McGee led off with a ground-rule double, took third on a flyout by Keith Hernandez and scored on a groundout by Darrell Porter.

The Cardinals added two more runs in the eighth off Bedrosian when Ken Oberkfell led off with a single and went to second on an error by left fielder Harper. One out later, George Hendrick belied a 1-0 pitch into the left field seats for his eighth home run.

Cubs 9, Pirates 3

At Chicago, Larry Bowa had a three-run triple and Bill Buckner a three-run homer in an eight-run seventh to lead the Cubs in a game delayed 54 minutes by darkness and rain. Chicago passed Pittsburgh in the NL East with its third straight victory while the Pirates dropped their fourth in a row.

Reds 3, Astros 1

At Cincinnati, left-hander Joe Price pitched a four-hitter and Dann Bilardello drove in two runs with a pair of doubles to pace the Reds. Price, 4-2, struck out six and walked two in his third complete game of the season. Joe Nickro, 3-5, took the loss.

Padres 6, Phillies 5

At San Diego, Kurt Bevacqua's bloop single to right scored Steve Garvey with the tie-breaking run and triggered a three-run eighth to hand Philadelphia its fifth straight loss. Gary Lucas, who entered in the eighth, took credit for the win to put his record at 2-3. Ed Farmer, 0-3, was the loser.

Expos 9, Giants 2

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Montreal has won three straight games and Expos catcher Gary Carter hopes this success will start of a streak that will put his team in first place in the NL East.

Al Oliver and Warren Cromartie each drove in three runs Friday night in leading the second-place Expos to a 9-2 win over the San Francisco Giants.

"We're too good a team not to be a contender," Carter said. "We need a winning streak to get back in the race, and maybe this is it. We won five in a row early in the season and then lost four. We need to do better than that."

Bill Gullickson scattered eight hits and struck out six in improving his record to 5-6. It was his fourth complete game of the season.

"I was keeping them off balance with my breaking pitcher," the right-hander said. "I felt good all the way." Gullickson lost his bid for a shutout in the fourth inning when rookie Brad Wellman hit a two-run homer — his first of the season.

Andre Dawson homered off loser Mike Krukow, 3-3, in the third and Cromartie added his second homer of the year — a two-run shot in the sixth.

"I was trying to go with the pitch and didn't expect to hit a home run," Cromartie said.

The Expos scored twice in the first when Oliver doubled in Bryan Little and Dawson.

Montreal added four insurance runs in the ninth. Tim Lincecum doubled, Little was safe on a bunt single and an error by shortstop Darrell Evans on a ground ball by Dawson allowed Raines to score. Oliver singled to score Little, Carter singled in Dawson and Cromartie's sacrifice fly delivered Oliver.

It was only the second time since May 1 that the Giants lost two straight games. San Francisco manager Frank Robinson praised the Expos.

"They have one of the best lineups in baseball," Robinson said. "There aren't any easy outs."

Montreal's Tim Lincecum returned to the lineup after missing three games with a double in four at bats. Raines was sidelined with a pulled hamstring muscle.

White Sox 2, Royals 0

If only the Chicago White Sox could transplant Jerry Koosman's brain into Floyd Bannister's body.

Then you'd have a pitcher who could strike out the world.

While Bannister, the White Sox' million dollar investment, is having problems finding his winning form, the 39-year-old Koosman continues to outsmart American League hitters.

Koosman became the first member of the Chicago White Sox' staff to pitch a shutout Friday night by stopping the Kansas City Royals, 2-0. It was his 31st career shutout.

"I still felt strong at the end," said Koosman, who did not walk anyone but hit a batter and struck out three. "I want to keep it going. I like the starting rotation much better than the bullpen."

Koosman, 4-0, had a strong fastball that kept the Royals off stride and discovered his curveball in the late innings.

"I found it accidentally warming up in the seventh," Koosman said.

Kansas City manager Dick Howser said Koosman's performance did not surprise him.

"He's always pitched well against Kansas City. I don't know if it's him or if it's us," Howser said. "Give him credit. We're a good fastball hitting team and he was quick tonight."

Keith Creel, 0-1, making his first start of the season after being recalled from Omaha on Tuesday, wound up pitching one of Kansas City's best games of the season by limiting Chicago to only four hits.

However, one of the hits was Ron Kittle's 13th home run, a shot into the left field stands.

"I was looking for something in," said Kittle, who tied California's Doug DeCinces for the American League lead in homers. "But I don't think I hit it as hard as a single I had last night."

Greg Luzinski also drove in his 1,000th career RBI with a single in the first inning in helping the White Sox to their seventh victory in their last eight games.

Mariners 5, Yankees 0

At New York, rookie left-hander Matt Young pitched a two-hitter and Ricky Nelson slammed a three-run homer in helping the Mariners snap a four-game losing streak. Young, 7-3, walked two and struck out a career high eight in tossing his second shutout and second complete game.

Angels 3, Brewers 0

At Milwaukee, Fred Lynn homered and Reggie Jackson had a two-run single to support Ken Forsch's six-hit pitching and lead the Angels to victory. Forsch, 4-3, walked one and struck out two in posting his third complete game of the year. It was the first time Milwaukee was shut out since July 8, 1982.

Red Sox 6, Twins 3

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd didn't have his glasses or his good curveball, but he had enough to pick up his first major league victory.

The 23-year-old right-hander averted the Minnesota Twins on seven hits in a six-inning stint Friday night to lead the Boston Red Sox to a 6-3 victory.

Boyd's only trouble came in the third, when he walked Bobby Mitchell with two outs and the Twins followed with three straight singles to score two runs.

Jim Rice belted his 11th homer of the season for the Sox' final run while Wade Boggs kept Boston ahead, driving in a pair of runs with his third single of the game in the seventh inning.

Orioles 3, Blue Jays 2

At Baltimore, pinch hitter John Shelby drew a bases loaded walk from reliever Joey McLaughlin in the ninth inning to give the Orioles their victory. Rick Dempsey and Aurelio Rodriguez singled to start the inning and Al Bumbry walked to load the bases before Shelby, batting for Lenn Sakata, coaxed another walk to force in the winning run. Tippy Martinez, 3-1, was the winner.

Tigers 12, Rangers 1

At Arlington, Texas, Enos Cabell drove in three runs with three doubles and a single and Alan Trammell hit his second homer to spark an 18-hit attack that lifted the Tigers to victory. The Tigers pounded out eight extra-base hits, including seven doubles, in support of Jack Morris, 4-5, who worked the first seven innings.

Bamberger Tires Of Mets' Flounder, Decides To Go For New Fishing Hole

United Press International
Tired of watching the New York Mets flounder, George Bamberger has gone fishing.

Bamberger, a nice guy who grew tired of finishing last, made the announcement in a hastily called news conference Friday night before the Mets beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-2 under new manager Frank Howard.

"It was my own decision," said Bamberger. "You have two alternatives as a manager. One is to go about the job the best you can, and it eats you up if you don't do well. The other way is to go about the job and say you don't care what happens. The first was my way of looking at the job."

When "Bambi" resigned, the Mets were 16-30, 10 1/2 games out of first place in the NL East. As teams often do, they rallied under the new manager for an initial victory.

The Mets got six-hit pitching from Ed Lynch over seven innings to snap a four-game losing streak. Lynch, 4-2, benefited from a 10-hit attack and did not allow a runner as far as second base until the seventh. Doug Slak pitched the final two innings to notch his fifth save.

But the franchise has not had a winning record since 1978 and has finished in last place in four of the last six seasons.

"Physically, I feel fine and feel no effects from the heart operations I've undergone," said Bamberger. "But I feel that the present situation is too much of a strain. I had the choice to go home and go fishing, and that's the one I took."

"The manager has to suffer when the team doesn't do well, and I don't want to suffer any more. I feel exhausted."

A native of Staten Island, N.Y.,

Bamberger was named manager of the Mets in 1981 after recovering from a heart ailment which resulted in bypass surgery in the spring of 1980.

Howard, an imposing 6-foot-8, managed the San Diego Padres in the 1981 strike-plagued season. The Padres were 23-33 in the first half of the year and finished last. They also finished last in the second half with an 18-36 record.

"I didn't want to see George leave the Mets," Howard said. "I knew he was thinking of leaving and I spent the last 10 days asking him to stay. If you can't play for George Bamberger, you can't play for anyone. He's one of the most compassionate and knowledgeable men I've ever known."

Howard was a minor league instructor for Milwaukee in 1975 and was a Brewer coach from 1976 through 1980. He joined the Mets as a coach last year and spent the last several weeks coaching at first base.

... Buckle Up Children; It's The Law

seat that blue light goes on, that car is pulled over and they (the driver) can be cited for it.

"If an officer stops a driver and says, 'Ma'am, where is your child's safety seat?' and she says 'I don't have one' and he says 'Are you going to get one?' and she says 'Hell, no. I don't believe in them and they violate my constitutional rights,' what do you think that officer is going to do?"

Bernosky said he earnestly believes in the importance of the child restraint law.

"It's so tragic to walk up to a minor fender bender and see a mother holding a child with a smashed-in face and know in your heart if the child had been restrained there would have been no one injured in the accident," he said. "Only the child gets injured in this type of accident. They can't protect themselves."

"In a 30 mile-per-hour crash a child is thrown forward with a force up to 30 times his weight. That's equivalent to throwing the child off a three-story building. Yes, I'm in favor of this law."

"Oh, God, how tragic it is when a police officer has to drive up to an accident where no one is hurt but a child.

It breaks your heart. They don't know why they've been hurt," he continued. "Why their teeth have been driven up through their bottom lip..."

"Why their tongue is nearly cut in half..."

"Why there's blood dripping down their face..."

"It infuriates me."

Bernosky said he was called to the scene of one accident where a woman who had been in the wreck kept saying: "Where's my baby, where's my baby?"

Police thought she might have been hysterical and there had been no baby in the car. At first.

"You know where I got that baby?" Bernosky asked. "Rolled up under the dash."

If the baby had been in a proper restraining carrier, he said, it would have been comfortably sitting on the seat, probably unaware an accident had even taken place.

"I feel tremendous compassion for the child," Bernosky said. "And absolute anger over the stupidity of the parents."

And if you think a child being thrown into a windshield or dash at 30 times his weight isn't bad enough, consider the child who may be sitting on an adult's lap at the time of a crash.

The child is thrown forward, Bernosky said, and is then crushed by the force of the adult being thrown forward.

"That's where you get your cracked skulls and crushed chests," he said.

An adult lap, highway safety experts say, can act as a catapult in the event of even a minor crash, and the child sitting there will most likely be thrown through the windshield.

Children in the back of a pick-up truck are also in an extremely perilous situation.

"How many times have you driven down (U.S. Highway) 17-92 and seen a passel of kids riding in the back of a pick-up?" Bernosky asks.

"What happens if that truck swerves or rolls over?"

"Who's going to get hurt or killed?"

"It's a good law. We will enforce it," Bernosky said.

Lake Mary Police Chief Harry Benson agreed.

"Children can't protect themselves," he said. "They don't know better. This (the new law) has been needed for a long time."

Benson said Lake Mary police will enforce the new state law, as they are required to do.

The difficulty with this legislation, he explained, is that you can't stop a car and look for something. You have to see if there's a restraint in use or not, he said.

"But a child standing on a seat is definitely a violation and we can and will stop them (the driver) for it," he said. "We won't have any big campaign, but our men will be instructed to take action when they can."

While Seminole County deputies have not yet received an explicit directive on the restraint law, Special Operations Commander Lt. Dean Taylor said it will be enforced.

"We're still assessing it," he said. "But as with any new law, we're responsible for it. If we see a violation we'll have to enforce it."

The Florida Highway Patrol takes a similar attitude, but as with the other law enforcement agencies, each individual case will be up to the discretion of the officer involved.

A Born Composer

Teacher Mixes Math And Poetry With Music For Classroom Harmony

By Katherine Burkett
Special To The Herald

Aspiring song writer and elementary school teacher, Elsa Caskey, fills her days to the brim. She helps with school productions, arranges music for dance groups and theatrical productions and is a composer.

This native of DeLand attributes her early interest in music to her talented parents.

Her father played with the London Symphony and did back-up for people like Rosemary Clooney and the Ames Brothers. Her mother performed with Tampa's Opera Company. "There were always musicians in the house, and I picked up a lot," she said.

Although attracted to the flute and brass and string instruments, Elsa began studying the piano as her first instrument at her father's urging. He felt it was the best instrument on which to learn the basics of music.

She concentrated on the piano until she joined the DeLand High School marching band. "I was a member of the chorus. Then my father took it over and I had to leave. I was forced to join the band. I couldn't exactly push my piano down the street, so I took up the trumpet," she said.

Her father's high school choral group, The Modernaires, was the first group to perform the arrangements that Elsa was experimentally arranging.

Elsa attended Stetson University's music program like her father before her. She majored in trumpet, but also worked toward an elementary teachers' certificate in order to support herself after graduation.

Although teaching has put the bread on her table, musical activities have filled at least as much of her time.

Soon after college, Elsa teamed up with a young singer. Both were asked to go to California and work as back-up for popular easy-listening groups. The singer signed with John Davidson, but health problems prevented Elsa from leaving town.

Elsa has entertained groups at Lake Buena Vista's convention center with her singing and playing. She does a lot of taping for dance studios and would like to develop a taping service. She said that she can remix a recording to make it suit the needs of the group more.

"A lot of times, the original recording is not quite what is wanted. Pre-recorded music can sound really dead. I can bring out the drum or emphasize something else to give it the same excitement as live music," she said.

In 1976, Elsa was approached by Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole to provide the musical score for an original dance-drama, "River Gold," depicting 200 years along the St. Johns River. She researched and arranged the music for this bicentennial extravaganza featuring a cast of 78. The award-winning production was televised several times and received national acclaim.

Since that time, she has done arrangements and special compositions for other Ballet Guild shows, including Americana, and Gospel Truth.

Most recently, her original composition Elsa's

Elsa Caskey arranges musical score for productions

Theme was performed by eight of the Ballet Guild dancers in Sensational Invitational. This performance celebrated the 15th anniversary of the guild and was dedicated to Florida's first lady Adele Graham.

Elsa performed the original piece live at the two performances. "It was really long. I had to soak my hands in ice water afterwards," she said.

Elsa teaches math and the language arts at Volusia County's Starke Elementary. The classes are arranged so that each student may work at his own pace and her policy of positive reinforcement helps make learning pleasant for her kids.

Tokens redeemable for objects at a classroom store are awarded for progress at a child's individual pace. "One kid may get a token for getting the answer to a five-step problem, and the kid next to him for finding the right page," she said.

The idea behind the tokens is to get the child interested in learning. After he realizes some success, his curiosity will be sparked and prerequisites for getting a token can rise.

Elsa has also used her musical talents to motivate her classes. During her first year teaching, she was having trouble interesting her children in such poets as Stevenson. Her answer - to put the poems to popular music.

She recorded her class singing the soul versions of the poetry and helped them put together a slide show illustrating each line from the poems.

"It blossomed into a real production - the kids were ready to take it on the road," she said.

The success of the project surpassed her expectations. "Two years later I had kids who already knew the poems from their older brothers and sisters," she said.

Elsa said that she would like for her kids to see how school subjects are used in the real world - even in a business as different as music.

"I'd love to take the kids through a recording studio and show them how math is used. It's amazing how much I use numbers. In mixing music, you have to know the frequencies of different instruments so that you can use the machine to emphasize them or tone them down," she said.

Elsa's goal is to be able to earn a living composing, preferably her favorite kind of music, easy listening.

Her most recent step toward that goal is the entrance of two songs in the American Song Festival, a contest which can boast as past winners such successful song writers as Barry Manilow and Glen Campbell.

Her two entries are the country and western "Whispering Lies" and the easy listening "Make Believe." The tape she is sending the judges, called a "demo," features Elsa's instrumentals and an aspiring song writer's vocals.

This summer, Elsa expects to be working with the Talent Store, a business that promotes young actors and actresses. She has been asked to write the music for a summer production featuring the talented children. If all goes well, they may also cut a children's record.

She also hopes to spend some of her summer attending music writers' workshops in Opreyland. She stressed the importance of interaction between composers, saying "It's important to have someone to bounce ideas off of."

Elsa sees music composition as a craft. "It's a skill that you have to work at and work at. And frankly, I'm getting better at it," she said.

Museum Exhibit

The Timucuan Trace

By Doris Dietrich
PEOPLE Editor

Who knows where the Timucuan Indians came from when they settled in Central Florida some 2,000 years ago?

But they were here. In fact, they were in Sanford. Mr. and Mrs. A.B. (Tommy) Peterson Jr., both historians, had the proof to surface practically in their back door.

About two years ago, a 21-foot long and 20-inch wide canoe was discovered on the Peterson property in the Loch Lowe Lake area near Sanford. The canoe was sent to Gainesville and Tallahassee where it was carbonated by state archaeologists and underwent preservation treatment.

Claimed as one of the oldest and rarest canoes in the area, this 1,500-year-old Timucuan dugout will be one of the highlights of an exhibit, "The Timucuan Trace," scheduled to open at the General Henry Shelton Sanford Museum-Library on Sunday, June 19.

Enthusiastic about the "exciting exhibit," museum curator Mildred M. Caskey talks about transportation 2,000 years ago in comparison to the facility and comfort of today's travel.

Back then, Mrs. Caskey says that transportation required considerable ingenuity, to say nothing of time, patience, creativity and bravery.

In telling some of the background of the dugout, Mrs. Caskey says the canoe "is a fine example of the craftsmanship of the Timucuan Indians who were known to be expert canoe makers who carried on a thriving trade with Cuba."

Mrs. Caskey continues, "Examples of their lifestyles, their well-organized compounds and governmental policies have been set up as a part of the exhibit, together with graphic illustrations, artifacts and informative literature to make this one of the museum's most interesting and educational exhibits to date."

Bernard Kessler, Mel Shotwell, Pat Seville, Risdon Barber and Jone Porter paint mural for canoe background.

The museum-library is proud of its participation in the inter-action of Sanford-Seminole's growing Historical Preservation Movement, Mrs. Caskey says, as well as the cooperation of colleges and area museums in an exchange of both services and artifacts.

Fine examples are the extended loans of Timucuan artifacts from the Florida State Museum, Gainesville, the Daytona Museum and the DeLand Museum - all contributors to The Timucuan Trace.

Of special interest in providing an authentic background for the 1,500-year-old dugout will be a large mural depicting the wooded shoreline of the St. John's River.

The colorful work of art was executed under the direction of Grady Kimsey of the Seminole Community College Art Department and the SCC Art Club and will remain a permanent part of the East Room exhibit area, Mrs. Caskey says. The museum-library supplied the canvas and paints for the mural, but the artists supplied the talent, gratis, Mrs. Caskey adds.

Dr. Genevieve Richardson designed the Timucuan exhibit, and has been assisted in assembling and mounting the work by Mr. and Mrs. A.B. Peterson Jr., Miss Patricia Bardin, Mrs. John T. Johnson, Mrs. Donald Moore, Mrs. Corinne Campbell, Mrs. Ruth Swinney, Mrs. Joyce Mikkola, Jim Jernigan, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Yancey and Mrs. Jack Hurner.

Others assisting with a reception are Mrs. Boots Walker, Mrs. Grace O'Brien and Mrs. Edna Boyette.

Pair Treasures Friends' Presence, Not Presents

DEAR ABBY: Last year you ran an invitation to an anniversary party asking guests to please write a little piece recalling a fond memory of the honorees rather than bring a gift. We hope to celebrate our golden wedding anniversary this summer and we honestly do not want any gifts!

Please run it soon before our children go hog wild! Thank you, and God bless you.

Dear Abby

MRS. A.G. IN BINGHAMTON, N.Y.
DEAR MRS. G: I'm glad you asked. Every day my mail brings me requests for this item. I have had to mimeograph it to meet the demand.

I am not complaining. The many responses I have received from grateful readers who have used this invitation more than compensate for the work involved.

"The children of Iver and Helen Dahl invite you to celebrate with them the 50th wedding anniversary of their parents. A reception will be held May 7, at 2 p.m., at the Elmhurst Country Club.

"We request your help in compiling a book which recalls memories from our parents' first 50 years of marriage. On the enclosed sheet, we ask that you write one memory or experience that you have shared with them and return it to us by April 26. We believe that the loving memories they have shared with you, their friends, would be the most treasured gift they could receive; therefore, we request that no other gift be sent."

DEAR ABBY: About 10 years ago, when I was a newlywed, after noticing how much my husband admired ladies with large breasts, I went to a plastic surgeon and had mine enlarged (silicone implants).

About a year later my breasts started to harden. Today they are as hard as rocks, and I am divorced and lonely. I am so embarrassed because of my breasts that I avoid any relationship that might lead to intimacy.

Abby, can this situation be corrected? If so, please tell me how.

WANTS TO LOVE AGAIN

DEAR WANTS: Go back to the plastic surgeon who performed the operation and see what he has to say. If you cannot return to the original doctor (or do not want to), consult with a board-certified plastic surgeon and get his opinion.

Your original implants may have to be replaced, but my experts say your present situation can be corrected.

DEAR ABBY: You asked your readers to tell you the difference between a lady and a tramp. I'm not sure I know what a lady is, but I do know that a tramp is not the same as a bum. Not in England, anyway.

In 1932, Al Jolson starred in a film titled, "Hallelujah, I'm a Bum." When it was shown in England, the title was changed to, "Hallelujah, I'm a Tramp."

The reason: In England a "bum" is slang for "derriere," which is French for "tuchis," which is Yiddish for "fanny," which is slang for backside.

In And Around Lake Mary

Students Bring Customs Of Ancient Rome To Life

Students at Lake Mary High School threw a special party on May 31 in the school lunchroom.

Teacher Kathy Stroschein, along with students from her Latin 1 and 2 class had been learning about the language and customs of ancient Rome and decided to have a Roman Banquet and show off what they had learned.

The party began at 7:30 p.m. with students arriving at the school in authentic Roman costumes that they made. While reclining on couches, the students nibbled on figs, nuts, grapes, meats, cheese and honey comb. Students entertained with Latin songs and staged gladiatorial combats and dancing.

Special guests were students from Lyman and Seminole High schools who purchased tickets to the feast. About 170 students took part in the Roman dinner.

The Lake Mary High students raised money to purchase the food by selling candy during the year.

According to Kathy Stroschein, this banquet followed a "Slave Day" at the school when students in her Latin class were school slaves for the day. The "slaves" had to carry other students' books and sing Latin songs on command.

The final meeting this year of the Lake Mary Woman's Club was held on May 26 at Big Tree Park. The members had a picnic lunch and a tour of the neighboring daylily gardens.

Midge Giddons, former District VII Director of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs, served as installing officer. New officers Betty Lindmeier, Delores Lash, Lillian Megonegal, Avis Ray and Jerry Keeth all received orchid corsages.

The beautifully decorated box lunches that the members brought were then auctioned off by Delores Lash.

Frances Willis of Seminole Drive had a wonderful surprise recently.

Karen Warner

Her aunt and uncle, Raymond and Laura Robinson, from Martinez, Ga., showed up for a surprise visit.

Frances, who had not seen her aunt and uncle for over a year, was able to take time off from her busy job with the Seminole County Sheriff's Department.

The Robinsons, after resting from their long drive to Florida, accompanied Frances to Disney World, but spent most of their vacation time resting on Florida beaches.

Raymond is currently a manager at White's Department store in Martinez, while Laura is a supervisor at Krogers Department store. This was Laura's first visit to sunny Florida and she loves it, she said.

Get well wishes are extended to Gwen Barber of Van Buren Street in Lake Mary. Gwen awoke last Saturday morning with chest pains, and was thought to have had a heart attack. Fortunately it was not. Doctors discovered that Gwen had pneumonia and placed her in CCU at Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford. Get well quickly, Gwen.

Late birthday wishes are sent to DeLores Lash, J.F. McLoughlin, Patti Lash and Lillian Burke.

On June 6, a special anniversary will be celebrated by Walter and Katherine Lippincott of Lake Mary. Family members will gather and celebrate the couple's 61st anniversary with cake and refreshments.

The Lake Mary CIA recently met and made plans for the July Fourth celebration.

According to Cindy Brown, CIA secretary, tickets are now on sale for the delicious barbecue dinners that will be sold during the festivities held at Crystal Lake Beach.

Ticket price is $3.50 and includes a half chicken, baked beans and fresh corn. Tickets can be purchased from Lippincott's Ink Spot, Cafe Sorrento or any CIA director.

On June 8 the CIA will hold a special meeting at city hall to recruit volunteers, receive suggestions on planning and set up duty schedules for the celebrations.

The public is invited to attend and give any suggestions on how to make the day a great success, as well as any one wishing to volunteer. The meeting will start at 7:30 p.m.

Lake Mary residents are reminded to cast their vote in picking the official city tree. A special ballot will appear on the water bills. Choices are: bottle brush, crape myrtle, dogwood, loblolly bay, and palatka holly.

Recently the Lake Mary Extension Homemakers held its 13th annual achievement day at the Ag center.

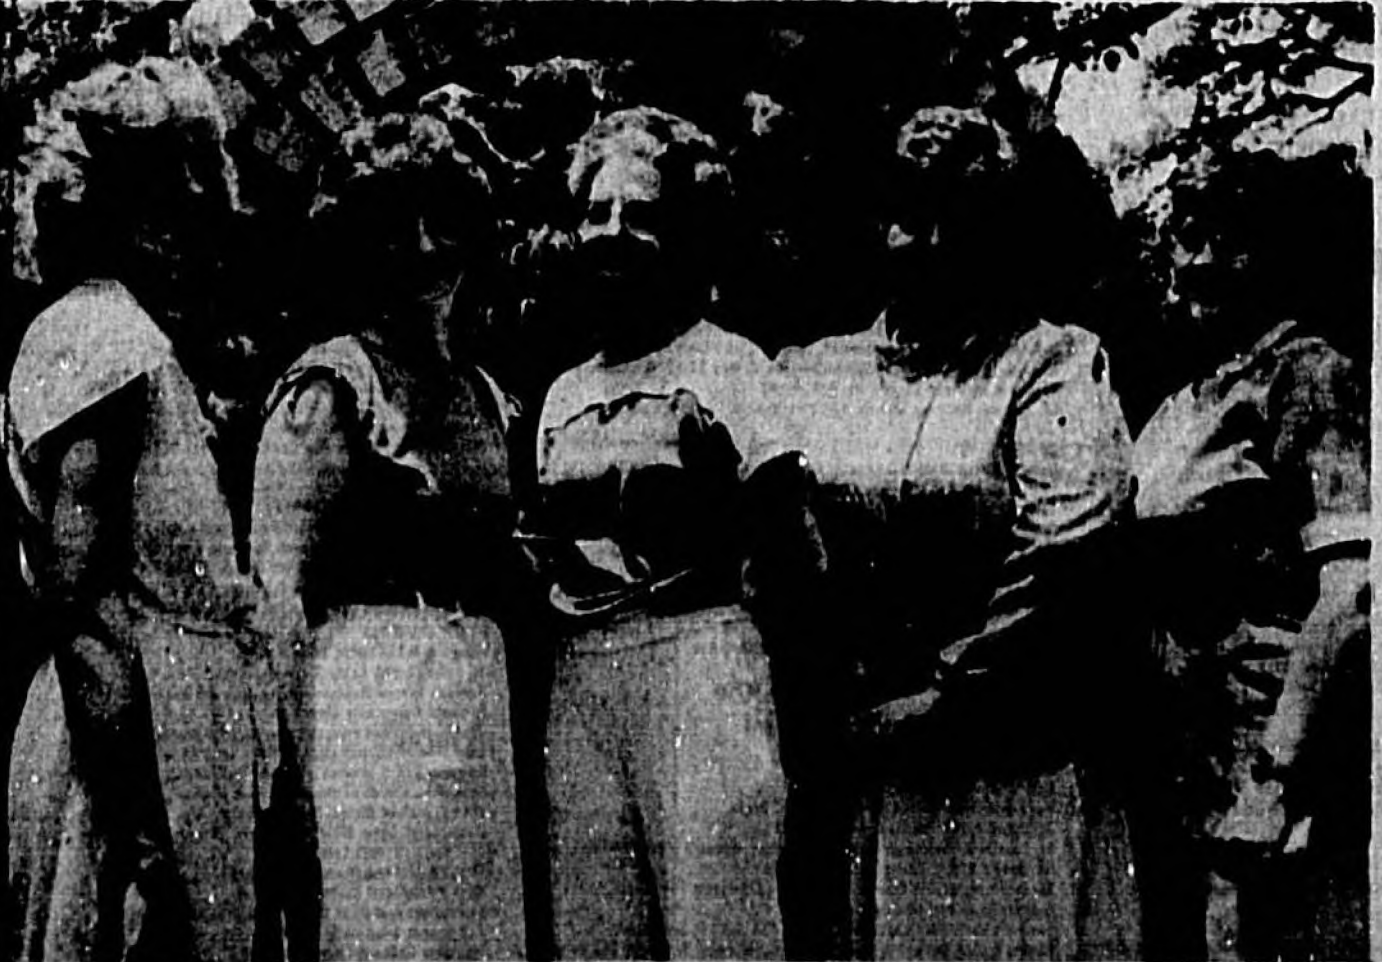

Four Lake Mary members winning ribbons in the cultural arts and crafts are: Nancy Fisher, who took first place in counted cross stitches, second place in needlepoint and second place in quilting.

Jackie Lockwood took first place in crewel, first place in pillow making and second place in counted cross stitch.

Lillian Allison won second place in artificial centerpieces, while Dorathea Bibeau took third place in the clothing category.

The homemakers will hold an awards luncheon on June 16 at the Holiday Inn at the Sanford Marina at 11 a.m.

The King Is Retired Long Live The King

I was asked by Jane Casselberry, our Religion editor, to write something about retirement. After 42 years in the pastoral ministry, I am now retiring from an appointed church.

Retirement is an inevitable event for anyone who lives to a good old age and everyone should prepare for it. The secret of a happy retirement is not only to retire from something, but to retire to something.

Without preparing for retirement, this is what you will most likely face: the sudden shattering of long-standing habits and routines; the sense of not being needed and wanted; the terrible feeling of purposelessness. If you are not prepared for retirement, you go to bed with the thought: "What will I do tomorrow?"

Retirement can begin a new era, a new life of productive activity, joy and satisfaction — the years of new adventure. This is a period of life to which we look forward, wondering what we will do. No one need worry about this. If mind and heart are centered on trying to be useful and helpful to others.

There are certain things that will make a helpful, happy retirement. First, there is an underlying faith. When you approach this time in life, whether you have a strong faith makes all the difference in the world. To endure, St. Paul put it this way: "... that you may be strengthened with might by His Spirit in the inner man."

Second, something to do and something to be that will make a person useful to others and himself. How can any of us live in one place for a period of time and not apply ourselves to some good and useful purpose in the community? Besides being endlessly absorbing, these things give us a rare joy.

One of the appalling things about an unprepared retirement is the way it suddenly throws away an accumulation of wisdom and experience. There are so many things that older people can and should do with their knowledge.

People with physical limitations may not be able to do much after retirement; but it is so much more important to be something than it is to do something. In old age, we can all be something that people will remember long after we are gone.

Problem Of Aged Parents' Care

After much soul-searching, a husband and wife of my acquaintance have decided to put her mother in a nursing home.

The elderly woman, at 83, had become too much of a burden on the younger couple who are in their late 50s. I suppose, to be honest, one would have to add that she was also interfering with their personal and social life. They liked to take month-long vacations once or twice a year. But what to do with Mother?

Did this couple make the right decision? Many would say they did not.

A denominational magazine which polled its readers on their attitudes toward nursing homes for the aged discovered that 80 percent feel that "the Christian thing to do is to keep the old folks at home;" 76 percent say it is better for an old person to "receive less professional family attention in home than to receive the best of medical care in a nursing home;" and 56 percent believe it would be better to "hire a full-time, live-in nurse than to take the elderly away from their families."

Have middle-aged children jettisoned their elders for the sake of their greater mobility and convenience? Here are some of the comments of the magazine's readers:

"Far too many people in their pursuit of pleasure simply put the elderly out of sight."

"They don't produce so we get rid of them in a very polite way."

"As a Protestant minister, I visit nursing homes several times a week. I can only say that being with one's family even under adverse circumstances would seem much better than being confined to a nursing home."

Another reader noted that "uniform programs, routines and procedures found in nursing homes are depersonalizing. The elderly should be spared such a fate."

There were readers who disagreed. They felt that a

Saints
And Sinners
George Plagens

chronically ill person causes stress and tension which could have a harmful effect upon a family. Some said it is unfair to expect the middle-aged children to "jump to the tune" of aged parents who often become more demanding and critical.

My own interviews with clergymen who visit nursing homes brought forth these comments:

"There are a lot of people in nursing homes who shouldn't be there and a lot who should be there."

"Not meeting our responsibilities is part of the spirit of the times but 'dumping' unwanted old people in nursing homes is not as common as some people think. It kills your pocketbook to put someone in a nursing home today. Most people can't afford to do it just because it would be more convenient."

"Rather than bringing nursing home patients back to their homes, I would like to see more volunteers — from churches, for example — come to visit them in nursing homes. Outside the family, people are slow to visit nursing home patients."

"I hear few complaints from patients in nursing homes. They seem content and happy. When they first arrive, there is a strong desire to go home but that feeling subsides."

Many of these clergymen are sympathetic of families who find it difficult to keep the old people at home.

Barbara Riddle Is First Woman Clergy Delegate

For the first time in its history, the Florida United Methodist Annual Conference has elected a clergy woman as a member of the General Conference delegation.

The Rev. Barbara Williams Riddle, pastor of the Tuskawilla United Methodist Church, Casselberry, was elected one of the clergy delegates to represent the Florida Annual Conference at the General Conference of the denomination to be held May 1-11, 1984 in Baltimore, Md. Mrs. Riddle has been a member of the Florida Conference for nine years.

Dr. Ethel M. Gray of Hastings, lay leader of the Florida Conference, will lead the delegation.

Also elected at the 141st session of the Florida Annual Conference held May 23-27 in Lakeland were delegates to the Southeastern Jurisdictional Conference scheduled for July 12-16, 1984 at Lake Junaluska, N.C. Named from this area were Marlene J. Anderson, lay delegate, and Edward L. Dinkins Jr., Enterprise, clergy delegate.

Sixty laypersons and clergy (plus 18 alternates) were elected to the two conferences.

The Florida Annual Conference accepted a total 1984 budget of $10,202,981 to be used in the ministry and outreach of the United Methodist Church.

Three women and 16 men were ordained as elders (full connection) in the United Methodist Church. Twenty-nine men and women were ordained as deacons (probationary members) and one man as an associate member.

The Florida area reported membership for 1982 of 334,773, an increase of 2,568 over the previous year. Attendance at worship and church school also increased and baptism and professions of faith showed gains of from six to seven percent. With the addition of Ft. Myers and Leesburg districts Florida Conference now includes a total of 14 districts.

The Florida Annual Conference voted to invite the 1992 General Conference to meet in Orlando. This resolution will be to the General Conference for consideration.

A resolution on sexuality in the ordained ministry was approved by a majority and will be sent as a petition to the 1984 General Conference as a proposed new section in the Discipline, and if accepted would become a law of the church.

The resolution reads: "While such persons set apart by the church for the ministry of the Word, Sacrament and Order are subject to all frailties of the human condition and pressures of society, they are required to maintain the highest standards represented by the practice of fidelity in marriage and chastity in singleness. Since the practice of homosexuality is incompatible with Christian teaching, professing and/or practicing homosexuals are not to be accepted as candidates, ordained as ministers, or appointed to serve in The United Methodist Church."

The conference closed with the announcement of ministerial appointments by Bishop Earl G. Hunt Jr. on Friday.

Couple Named Baptist Missionaries

The Rev. and Mrs. J. David Cochran were among 81 people named missionaries by the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board May 24 at First Baptist Church, Richmond, Va.

Born in Portsmouth, Va., Cochran is the son of Geneva G. Cochran of Lake Mary, and the late Glenn R. Cochran. While growing up he lived in Lake Mary and in Hampton, Va. He considers Lake Mary his hometown.

He received the associate of arts degree from Seminole Community College, Sanford; the bachelor of arts degree from Florida Technological University, Orlando; and the master of divinity degree from Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary, Wake Forest, N.C.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. David Cochran

He has worked as a teacher in Winter Springs. He has also served as pastor of Moore's Swamp Baptist Church, Elberton, Va.
