Looking Back At 1981...

Construction Of New Hospital Was Top Story Of Year

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

Construction of a new $26 million Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford topped Seminole County's list of the 10 most important area news stories in 1981, as determined by a poll of the Evening Herald news staff.

Construction began in mid-July and according to hospital administrator James Tesar, is expected to be completed by next June. The 226-bed hospital is being built at Mangoustine Avenue and U.S. Highway 17-92.

It will be owned and operated by Hospital Corporation of America (HCA), of Nashville, Tenn., and will replace the old facility at Seminole Memorial Hospital, purchased by HCA in March 1980. The two top floors will be occupied by patient rooms and other departments will be housed on the first floor.

The new facility will provide improved technology for patient diagnosis and treatment, greater patient comfort, improved food service and a cheerful atmosphere.

Named as the No. 2 news story was the solution to the problem of 3,264 barrels of hazardous chemical waste at the City Chemicals Inc. two-acre storage site in Sanford. The end of the year saw the removal of the drums by the company slightly ahead of schedule, with more than 25 percent of them already hauled away.

The city of Sanford and the state Department of Environmental Regulation had been trying for a year to get the court to force City Chemicals to close the facility and remove the drums since they were discovered at the site near Airport Boulevard and Jewett Lane. Workers began to move the barrels Nov. 23 and transport them to an approved U.S. Environmental Protection Agency landfill in South Carolina.

A final agreement reached by the DER, the city of Sanford and the Orlando-based chemical firm in Circuit Court in Sanford Nov. 12 gave the firm 26-weeks for the removal of the waste chemicals.

Third on the list of top 10 stories was the Nov. 6 sentencing of convicted murderer Robert Anthony Preston Jr. to die in the electric chair for the 1978 knife slaying of Altamonte Springs convenience-store clerk Earline Walker. Circuit Court Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. also sentenced the 23-year-old Forest City man to 15 years for robbery and life imprisonment for kidnapping in connection with the killing. In June the 12-member jury found Preston guilty of first-degree murder, and in a 7-5 vote recommended the death sentence. Davis denied the defense's request for a new trial following a hearing in September.

Preston has an automatic right of appeal to the Florida Supreme Court.

The demise of Auto-Train was the No. 4 story on the list of top 10. The financially troubled Auto-Train Corp., which filed for bankruptcy in September 1980, stopped making the 1,300-mile trip carrying passengers and their cars between Lorton, Va., and Sanford last April. About 400 persons, two-thirds local, lost their jobs as the result of the closing. The company had made its first run Dec. 1, 1971.

After months of running Auto-Train on a red-ink track, the final debt totaled $25 million. About $1 million was raised by selling Auto-Train's cars and related equipment at auction early in December.

Fifth on the story list was the opening of the new $14.5 million Lake Mary High School on Longwood-Lake Mary Road Aug. 31 to 1,000 students. The sixth, high school in Seminole County, the facility took 20 months to construct and has 250,000 square feet of area under roof.

Don Reynolds, former Seminole High School principal, is principal of the new school, which now houses 9th and 10th graders and will add the 11th and 12th grades this year and next.

Sixth on the list was the continuing story of former Lake Mary police officer David E. Higginbotham, 34, who was indicted by the county grand jury early in October in the theft of weapons from an evidence locker and their sale at a local auction house. As the year ended the Seminole-Brevard state attorney's office was expected to ask a judge to issue a writ for the arrest of Higginbotham in connection with the theft.

Higginbotham's troubles began Aug. 28, just a few days before his resignation was scheduled to take effect. He was shot in the leg by his own gun during a scuffle with suspects he encountered in an orange grove during a routine patrol, he said. An area search failed to turn up the alleged suspects. Since then Higginbotham has undergone surgery on his leg eight times. He was discharged from Florida Hospital-Altamonte Nov. 8.

Seventh on the list was the com-bin story of city elections in the county. Perhaps the most exciting was in Lake Mary, where 31 percent of the city's registered voters turned out for a Dec. 22 runoff election in which Councilmen Gene McDonald and Raymond Fox were reelected to their seats. Fox won over challenger W.L.

"Bill" Durrenberger by 26 votes, while McDonald won over Robert B. Stoddard, 245 to 181. Incumbent Vic Olvera won over Francis Mark for a second term on the council in Lake Mary's Dec. 8 elec-

...And Ringing In 1982

Year Begins With Champagne, Horns — And A Sober Note

United Press International

Americans rang in 1982 with champagne parties, fireworks and horn-toting at the "Crossroads of the World" — New York City's Times Square — and funeral parlor attendants in Los Angeles served coffee to sober up drivers with one too many under their belts.

Some Detroit residents kept a low profile at midnight New Year's Eve to escape stray gunfire stemming from the popular tradition in the city of firing guns to ring in the new year with a resounding bang.

"There's no way we could stop it unless we had a policeman standing at each house," said Police Chief William Hart. "There's a gun in almost every household, and everybody who has a gun shoots it at least once a year — on New Year's Eve."

In Fort Worth, Texas, about 4,000 people — a third of them military personnel who got free tickets — turned out for a star-studded celebration featuring comedian Bob Hope at Billy Bob's Texas, the world's largest county-western honky tonk.

The cafe's usual crowd in cowboy hats, boots and jeans was joined by revelers in mink, strapless dresses, luxedos and formal military uniforms and the usual $8 tickets went for as high as $250.

Undaunted by a drizzle, thousands of celebrants — along with thieves, 2,000 policemen and about 500 volunteer Guardian Angels on patrol — jammed Times Square, counting down the last seconds of 1981 and cheering and horn blowing as a large neon apple dropped from a flagpole atop the tower at One Times Square.

There were a number of arrests in the Times Square area, including two for robbery.

Fireworks lit up the cloudy sky over Central Park as rockets and huge sparklers were fired from three locations. Instead of drinking and dancing, the city's Road Runners Club opted for a 5-mile marathon that started at the Tavern-on-the-Green in Central Park at 12:01 a.m.

In the posh Manhattan club Regine's celebrants paid $600 for a champagne dinner for two. And Donny Osmond hosted a New Year's bash at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, where the $450 price included a filet mignon dinner, champagne, noisemakers and the possibility of being on network television.

Along the route of the New Year's Day Rose Parade in Pasadena, Calif., thousands bundled up in plastic sheets through the night against intermittent rain. But the showers didn't dampen the high spirits of the spectators awaiting the nationally televised display of flower-bedecked floats, beauty queens and celebrities.

Philadelphia braced for an estimated 500,000 spectators expected to watch the city's 12-hour-long 82nd annual New Year's Day Mummers parade of elbow-rocking, body-weaving comics and musicians.

Parade participants — many decked in spectacular capes crowned with huge variations of a feathered fan — entertained the crowd and try to win favor with judges who have about $315,000 in prize money to award.

And in the Los Angeles area, attendants at four funeral parlors run by Forest Lawn Mortuary gave New Year's Eve tipplers the chance of a lifetime, serving coffee to drivers who have had one too many for the road.

"The knowledge that we're here waiting for them may be a deterrent to people who drink and drive," said vice president Robert Wheeler.

New Year's Eve Was Quiet In County

By LEE DANCY
Herald Staff Writer

New Year's Eve revelry in Seminole County may have reached a frenzied pitch between midnight and 3 a.m., but all the hoopla accompanying the dawn of 1982 caused no traffic fatalities or serious accidents.

According to the Florida Highway Patrol's DeLand office, which serves Seminole County, there were no deaths related to traffic accidents in the county on Dec. 31 or by 9 a.m. today.

The two major hospitals serving Seminole County also reported a quiet evening. Seminole Memorial Hospital's emergency room treated only two auto-accident victims and Florida Hospital-Altamonte treated one.

Key Orr, nursing supervisor at Seminole

Memorial, said two accident victims were treated in the emergency room between midnight and 3 a.m. One of the two treated was released and the other received multiple injuries to the knees, nose and chest and was admitted in fair condition.

At Florida Hospital-Altamonte, the staff at the emergency room was braced for the worst. Two doctors, rather than one, were on duty, but only one traffic accident victim was treated, for a possible leg fracture and released, said Pat Horning, public-relations director for the hospital.

The Seminole County Correctional Facility admitted eight people on charges of driving while intoxicated. By 9 a.m. today five of the eight had bonded out of jail according to the Sheriff's Department.

Most of the persons admitted to the jail were males under the age of 21. Only one of the eight charged with driving while intoxicated was a woman, the Sheriff's Department official said.

Two 18-year-olds, 19-year-old, two 20-year-olds, one 29-year-old and one 73-year-old, all men, were arrested and jailed for driving while intoxicated. A 28-year-old woman was charged with the same offense and admitted.

Most of those jailed for drunk driving were admitted between midnight and 3 a.m., Sheriff's Department officials said.

There were no serious fires in the county during the period, either. According to the Public Safety Department's shift supervisor, "It was a quiet

Both Political Parties See A Good Year Ahead

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Leaders of the local Democratic and Republican parties see a good year in 1982. The GOP plans to retain its dominance of the Seminole County Commission and win the governor's mansion, while the Democrats are seeking new leadership and are involved in reorganizing and rebuilding.

"We have already begun the rebuilding process," said Troy Piland, chairman of the Seminole County Democratic Executive Committee, today. Piland, who is also mayor of Winter Springs and recently was elected second vice president of the Florida League of Cities, noted that the local committee will be electing new officers and he will not be a candidate for reelection to the chairman's slot.

Piland said he is doing too many other things, including his work with the Florida League of Cities and with various committees, to give the time necessary to the party.

"I made it clear to the committee some time ago that I would not be running for reelection to the chairmanship," he said. He added that at this point only Marvin Meltzer, a county businessman, appears to be moving toward the chairmanship.

"I think 1982 should be a good year for Democrats if things continue as they are," he said. "Reapportionment is heavy on everyone's mind and will be the biggest and probably the only thing to come out of Tallahassee this year. Reapportionment should bring some dramatic changes in Central Florida."

Meanwhile, Fred Streetman, Seminole County state Republican Committeeman, predicts the GOP will continue to grow in strength and in numbers. "Our two county commissioners will be up for election — Sandra Glenn and Bob Sturm — reelected by sizable margins. I think our state representative, Bobby Brantley, regardless of district boundary lines, will win reelection to the Florida House if he runs for reelection to that office, he said.

"It's almost too early to think about whether he will run for the Senate. There is no knowledge on anyone's part about how the district lines will be drawn," Streetman added.

"Continuing with local districting and looking at federal districting, I see U.S. Rep. Bill McCollum winning reelection to the Congress. Sen. Lawton Chiles (D-Lakeland) is as vulnerable, or more so, as he has ever been," he said.

Streetman said, however, that there hasn't been a Republican name mentioned as a candidate for Chiles' seat who has instant impact. "No one has been brought forward as a concrete candidate," he said. "One must remember that no one had ever heard of Lawton Chiles when he won his election either. Sometimes name recognition is not as significant as the type of race the challenger runs.

2 Freed On Bail In Drug Bust

By TENI YARBOROUGH

Two men arrested this week on drug-trafficking charges are free on $10,000 bond today from the Seminole County jail.

Bond was reduced from $25,000 after a lawyer argued it was too high, adding that the two men were unable to raise the money.

Johnny B. Jones, 46, of Cochran Road, Geneva, and Alex L. Tindall, 42, of Oviedo, were arrested Wednesday on charges of conspiracy to traffic in marijuana, quaaludes and cocaine.

A third man, Arthur Price, 38, of 2903 S. Park Ave., Sanford, had been arrested as a suspect in what police call a multi-million-dollar drug ring and was released from the county jail

Thursday after he posted $10,000 bond. Price was a former sheriff's deputy, resigning in 1979 to start an aircraft maintenance service at Sanford Airport. Since then he had served as a sheriff's reserve deputy until his suspension Dec. 9. Price is charged with aiding and abetting trafficking in marijuana.

The arrests were made following an eight-month investigation by the Seminole County drug task force, U.S. Customs, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement and Longwood police of an alleged drug operation working out of Seminole County.

Two other men, Fred J. McConeghy, 54, and Buford "Buddy" Higgs, 77, both of Oviedo, also were issued arrest warrants on Seminole County drug-trafficking charges in the crackdown Wednesday morning. The two men are currently housed in the Cass County jail in Fargo, N.D., following their arrest Dec. 20 for illegal delivery of cocaine in that state. Tindall also was arrested in the Fargo incident, but was released Monday after posting $100,000 bond.

The arrests of an additional six men suspected of involvement in the illicit drug operation are expected in the next few days, police said.

Also, an injunction was filed Thursday with the Circuit Court in Sanford by Sheriff John Poik, Longwood Police Chief Greg Manning and Sanford Police Chief Ben Butler to freeze Tindall's assets. Tindall, an Oviedo poultry farmer, owns Orange Valley Farms in Geneva.

In filing the injunction, Poik, Butler and Manning said they were afraid Tindall would dispose of his assets if they were not frozen, asserting "they were used or intended to be used" in illicit drug trafficking. No figures were given for Tindall's total assets.

However, in an affidavit filed with the injunction, Sanford Police Det. Tony Brooks gave some indication of the amount of money involved when he said Tindall allegedly spent a total of $50,000 Sept. 25 and Nov. 14 to rent aircraft to smuggle drugs into the U.S.

Brooks also said Tindall received $500,000 cash from an illicit drug sale in Miami Nov. 10, 1980, and used the money to purchase his Geneva farm. No date has been set for a hearing on the injunction request.

Atlanta Murder Trial Could Start Next Week

ATLANTA (UPI) — Attorneys acted with surprising speed in picking 51 of the necessary 60 jury pool members, raising the possibility testimony will start next week in the trial of Wayne B. Williams, charged with killing two of Atlanta's 28 slain blacks.

Before dismissing the potential jurors for the holiday weekend Thursday, Superior Court Judge Clarence Cooper told them, "There's no doubt in the court's mind that we may be able to select a jury much sooner than anyone expected because of the progress we have made."

Allen Being Replaced?

WASHINGTON — National Security Advisor Richard Allen, who has been the center of controversy for taking gifts from a Japanese magazine for arranging an interview with First Lady Nancy Reagan, is losing his job, according to ABC News.

The network reported that Allen will be replaced by Deputy Secretary of State William Clark. No date was given for the change.

14 Holiday Fatalities

United Press International

A count by United Press International early today showed at least 14 traffic fatalities for the weekend that officially began Thursday at 6 p.m. local time and ends at midnight Sunday.

Pennsylvania and Indiana each reported four fatalities, Georgia three, New York two and Illinois one.

Tax Increase Seems Likely This Year

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The possibility of a major tax increase appears more likely in 1982 than in previous years, but legislators may put it off because of the elections.

A dozen tax increase plans — most of them spinoffs of a sales tax hike — are being debated informally, but Gov. Bob Graham, who seeks a second term next fall, no longer is taking the lead for higher taxes.

Cuban Denied Asylum

PORT CANAVERAL (UPI) — The Immigration and Naturalization Service has denied political asylum to a young woman who spent 18 months traveling from her native Cuba to the United States.

Twenty-year-old Clara Inez Moynelo Nunez sought asylum in the United States after an 18-month odyssey which brought her to the U.S. aboard the Oceania Freezer, a Greek freighter that she boarded in Argentina in November.

Officials are now deciding what to do with the young woman.

Burglars Hard At Work During Holidays

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

Several Seminole County residents, spending the holiday season out of town, are returning home to find their homes were burglarized in their absence.

Sanford police and sheriff's deputies said burglars hit at least two Longwood homes and one Sanford residence during the past week.

Burglars broke into the home of Robert Vance, 41, of 837 Cotter Dr., Longwood, after shattering a window with a flower pot. Once inside, the thieves stole a silver service and possibly other items.

A neighbor, who was taking care of Vance's house plants in his absence, discovered the burglary and notified sheriff's deputies. An inventory of all stolen items is being compiled.

A neighbor also told sheriff's deputies that burglars broke into the home of Donald Bembenek, of 1420 Tracy Dee Way, Longwood, ransacking the home and stealing an undetermined amount of jewelry.

Deputies said burglars entered the home through a ground level window, located near the front door. The window, concealed with bushes, was removed by the thieves after they cut out the screen and plastic stripping around the window pane.

A complete inventory of the missing items will be provided by Bembenek in a few days, deputies said.

In Sanford, burglars broke into the home of Ruth Tipton, 2318 Hartwell Ave., while she was out of town.

The theft was discovered by a friend of Ms. Tipton who was caring for her dog.

Police said the home was broken into via a bedroom window. Several pieces of jewelry and other items were discovered on the floor of the home, police added.

Ms. Tipton will provide police with a complete list of stolen articles in a few days.

THIEVES NET $9,500

Burglars robbed a Longwood man's home Thursday afternoon of an estimated $9,500 worth of property.

Eldred R. Davis, 39, of 435 Howard Ave., told sheriff's deputies someone entered his home about 12:30 p.m. through a downstairs bedroom window after shattering the glass with a flower pot.

Once inside, the thieves stole six guns, two fur coats, a jewelry box, leather jacket, a clock-radio, a microwave oven, some costume jewelry, a diamond necklace charm, a diamond watch and a diamond ring.

BURGLARS STEAL RINGS

Burglars broke into the home of a Casselberry woman sometime between Christmas and Tuesday and made off with about $2,200 worth of jewelry.

Jean L. Hanson, 28, of 811 Holly Hill Ave., told police someone cut the screen and unlocked a bedroom window to enter her home. Once inside, the thieves stole two diamond rings and several earrings from a jewelry box in the master bedroom.

THIRSTY BURGLAR

A thief broke into a south Seminole County man's home, at about 7:10 a.m. Thursday and stole an undetermined amount of old coins and small articles. He took time to consume a soft drink and left the bottle on the counter before fleeing.

Richard Lynch, 9502 Bear Lake Rd., Orlando, told sheriff's deputies someone broke into his home by removing a jalouse window pane from a rear door and unlocking the door.

A list of stolen items has not been prepared.

THIEVES STEAL WEAPONS

Burglars broke into the home of two Sanford men between 6 a.m. Monday and 8 p.m. Wednesday, stealing several weapons and some money, totaling about $1,130.

Bruce W. Taylor, 25, and Jay N. Osteen, 23, both of 2412 S. Oak Ave., told police someone broke into their home by prying open a kitchen window.

ROBBERS "PICKUP" GUNS

Using a concrete block to break the passenger window of a Sanford man's pickup truck, robbers broke into the vehicle Thursday and stole two weapons valued at about $459.

Cecil E. Carlton, 63, of 554 Plumosa Ave., told police someone broke into his vehicle which was parked in the carport at his home, and stole the weapons.

Two mayors were defeated in city elections in Altamonte Springs and Longwood. In Altamonte Springs, former police officer Ray Ambrose defeated incumbent Mayor Hugh Harling in the Nov. 3 election by only a three-vote margin. Dudley Bates and Cheney Colardo ran unopposed for District 1 and District 3 Altamonte Springs City Commission seats.

In Longwood's Dec. 1 election, Mayor John Hepp was defeated by Charles "Chick" Pappas in his bid for reelection. June Lormann was elected unopposed to her fifth consecutive term on the City Commission, and Steven Uskert was reelected over opponent John Crystal, 372-361.

Winners in Casselberry's Dec. 1 election were incumbent City Councilmen John Leighty and Tom Embree, and Mayor Owen Sheppard was reelected without opposition.

In Winter Springs, Mayor Troy Piland ran unopposed, as did Councilman Maureen Boyd, completing her first two years in office. In the only contested race, political newcomer Hurley Adkins won by 36 votes over incumbent Bill Jacobs in the Nov. 3 election.

In Oviedo, 42 percent of the city's registered went to the polls Sept. 8 to elect the first woman in the city's 100 year history, Donna Wilhelm-Hudson, a lawyer, and newcomer Ransford Pyle to the City Council. Two-term councilman Robert Whittier was elected mayor.

No. 8 on the list of stories was the granting of a 30-year lease by the County Commission on a three-acre county-owned site to the Humane Society of Seminole County for an animal shelter. The commission voted 3-2 on Oct. 6 to sign an amended lease agreement giving the site on the east side of U.S. Highway 17-92 at County Home Road to the society at $1 per year.

The society's animal shelter is currently located at Sanford Airport, but the Airport Authority has notified it that it will have to move because the property is needed for other purposes. The lease was opposed by Commissioners Bill Kirchhoff and Robert G. "Bud" Feather.

The society was in danger of losing its lease agreement with the county when a primary donor withdrew a $200,000 pledge when an Oct. 1 deadline was not met. According to the terms of the original contract, the society was to have adequate funds in hand to build the facility. That portion of the agreement was amended.

Ninth on the list was the planned shutdown of Qwip Systems in Altamonte Springs and layoffs of employees. Some 276 of Qwip's 465 employees were given two weeks' pay, plus severance pay, and laid off Dec. 1. Officials of the Exxon Corp. subsidiary said the 125,000-square-foot manufacturing facility will be closed in late February or early March. They said the remaining employees, except for 10 who were to be transferred to another plant, would be laid off in the next few weeks.

Rezoning's First Issue For Commission In '82

By LEE DANCY
Herald Staff Writer

A man owning a 2.2-acre tract of land on East Street off U.S. Highway 17-92 just west of the Longwood city line wants the land rezoned from residential to commercial.

The Seminole County Commission will consider the request along with three other rezoning requests at its public hearing portion of its regular meeting Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Jack H. and Robert Zinner, owners of the property lying in Commissioner Sandra Glenn's District 4, is requesting a specific amendment to the county land use plan from low density residential to commercial.

The Zimmers also want the property rezoned from the county's R-1 single family designation to C-2, retail commercial. All other property facing East St. is zoned residential, but it backs up to commercial property along Highway 17-92.

A second rezoning request the commission will consider comes from A.B. Wallace Jr., who owns 2.4 acres on State Road 46 at the intersection of Geneva Road. Wallace wants the land rezoned from C-2 retail commercial to C-3 general commercial and wholesale.

The land lies in Commissioner William Kirchhoff's District 5 south of the Geneva area. Wallace wants to use the land for a farm-leased store, according to the Seminole County Land Management Division's report.

James Nutt, who owns three adjoining 50-foot-by-127-foot lots on Mills Street south of State Road 427 and east of Nolan Road wants the land rezoned from R-1 single family to A-1 agriculture. The property is located south of Sanford and east of Lake Mary.

Property along Nutt's side of Mills Street is zoned residential, but land across the street is zoned agricultural. Nutt wants the land rezoned so he can park a mobile home there to replace a single family home destroyed by fire, according to land management division reports.

The fourth item on the commission's evening agenda will deal with a review of the preliminary site plan for Amerifirst Development's Deer Run Unit Seven. The property is located in Commissioner Barbara Christensen's District 1, south of Casselberry.

Lottery Winner Wasn't

HAMILTON, Ontario (UPI) — Brendan Foley entered the new year a poorer but wiser man. He learned wealth, like fame, can be a fleeting thing.

The 31-year-old unemployed crane operator was overjoyed when he checked the lottery numbers in a Toronto newspaper and found he had won $50,000.

In a burst of generosity, he gave away his stereo, his wife's car and his race-track winnings, only to discover the newspaper had inadvertently published the wrong number.

On Thursday, Foley was in hospital recovering from a suicide attempt and vowing to stay away from lotteries.

Foley said he was "pretty excited" when he saw the seven-digit Provincial Lottery number published in the Toronto Star last Saturday matched his ticket.

The next day, however, the Star published a correction of the winning number. It was different from the number on Foley's ticket by one digit.

Man Killed In Germany

The body of a Sanford serviceman killed Dec. 21 in Bavaria, West Germany in a service-connected automobile accident arrived home Thursday.

Staff Sgt. Harrison Henry II, 32, was stationed in Glenhausen with the U.S. Army assigned to the 133rd Armored Division. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Henry Sr. of Sanford. He was a member of Zion Hope Missionary Baptist Church, Sanford.

A native of Sanford, he was born August 23, 1949, and graduated from Crooms High School.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Antonio Henry; a daughter, Jasmine, and son, Christopher Harrison, all of Germany; two sisters, Mrs. Lavenia Lightbourne, Miami, and Laverne Henry, Sanford; four brothers, Eddie Jr., Rochester, N.Y., Sgt. Moses Henry, New Orleans, La., Sp-4 Donnie P. Henry, Munster, West Germany, and Melvin Henry, Sanford.

HARRISON HENRY II

Funeral services are scheduled for 3 p.m. Saturday at Zion Hope Missionary Baptist Church, E. 8th Street and Orange Avenue, with the Rev. J.L. Brooks officiating. Burial will be in Restlawn Cemetery with full military honors. Wilson-Eichelberger Mortuary, Sanford, is in charge of arrangements.

Pop Music's Popularity With Young Bodes Ill For American Culture

NEW YORK (UPI) — School children listening to the Beatles, Johnny Cash, Dvorak and Stephen Foster as part of a 1978-79 federal survey chose pop music as their favorite — a sign of growing deficiencies in cultural achievement, researchers say.

"As a society we value art and music and place importance on them, yet we provide very little opportunity for students to receive a formal, structured education in either area," said Roy H. Forbes, director of the National Assessment for Educational Progress in Denver, Colo. that designed the test.

Forbes said Tuesday that he expects the situation to worsen during the current era of tight school budgets accompanied by a tendency to cut music and art programs from school curricula, considered by some to be "frills."

The national studies were the second in the past decade to study art and music education and student achievement. Forbes said the results of the latest tests show cultural achievement among youngsters is declining.

Listening to the music tapes was only one section of the art and music achievement survey. In the art section, children were asked to design cereal boxes and necklaces as a measure of their creativity.

The music part of the survey found the Beatles' song "Come Together" was enjoyed by 93 percent of the 9-year-olds, 90 percent of the 13-year-olds, and 92 percent of the 17-year-olds.

That made pop music the continuing favorite among music forms sampled by the 95,000 kids from 1,500 schools questioned for the nationwide study.

In the art section, the necklace drawing exercise asked the children to fill the blank neck of a female figure with functional, integrated and imaginative jewelry. One student drew a choker with wings.

Acceptable necklaces were drawn by 24 percent of the 9-year-olds, 13.7 percent of the 13-year-olds.

evening. There also was nothing unusual to report in Longwood overnight, but an Evening Herald reporter found something unusual while checking with that city's Police Department.

In an effort to contact the Longwood police, the reporter was given the number 331-6111 by information. That number was dialed three times and allowed to ring 20 times per call. The first two calls went unanswered, but the third was answered by a maintenance man.

The maintenance man gave the reporter an emergency number to call: 339-1297. The reporter, out of curiosity, dialed information again and asked for an emergency police number for Longwood, but the only number on file, according to the operator, was the 331-6111 number.

When the reporter called the 339-1297 number, the Seminole County emergency dispatcher was reached, and she explained that all emergency Longwood calls are funneled through that department as a result of a pact between both agencies entered into last May.

However, she couldn't explain why the emergency number was not listed with information.

The dispatcher, Mrs. Janita Smith, told the reporter all was relatively quiet overnight, and added she would leave a note for the Longwood police chief to bring the telephone-number problem to his attention.

'Patriotic' House Fire

BIDDEFORD, Maine (UPI) — Dorothy and Philip Rogers followed President Reagan's patriotic lead and put a lighted candle in their window as a sign of solidarity with Polish workers. It burned their house down.

"We don't want to talk about it," said Mrs. Rogers, whose family escaped unharmed but pet dog and cat perished when the candle on a window sill ignited the porch and exploding aerosol cans ignited the house which was gutted.

"I don't want to even think of what would have happened," Deputy Fire Chief Raymond Gayne said of the blaze that erupted at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

With Help Like This...

ODELL, Ill. (UPI) — A man was run over and killed by an ambulance that had been called to aid him, county officials say.

Coroner Keith Von Qualen said James Ritchie, 30, was lying on a rural road southeast of Odell Thursday awaiting aid when the ambulance arrived, skidded on the snow-slick pavement and ran over him.

Ritchie also may have been hit by a pickup truck that was following the ambulance, the coroner said.

A Livingston County sheriff's spokeswoman said it still had not been determined why Ritchie initially needed medical help.

There's Trouble Between Friends

The last six months have been witness to a succession of events that has brought American-Israeli relations to perhaps their lowest ebb since President Eisenhower condemned the Anglo-French-Israeli attack on Egypt in 1956.

Last June, Israel employed American-made F-16s and F-15s for a surprise strike that demolished the Iraqi nuclear reactor under construction near Baghdad. In July, American-made Israeli jets struck again, this time in a raid aimed at Palestine Liberation Organization headquarters in Beirut. Some 300 civilians were killed by the bombing.

And recently, Israel effectively annexed Syrian territory on the Golan Heights occupied by the Israeli army during the 1967 war.

Each of these profoundly controversial actions was taken by the government of Prime Minister Menachem Begin without consulting Washington. Each caught the United States by surprise and, with the possible exception of the Baghdad raid, complicated a Middle East peace process already facing monumental difficulties.

Moreover, the latter two incidents especially embarrassed Egypt and further eroded prospects for a Reagan administration priority: Creation of a regional, anti-Soviet alliance linking Israel, moderate Arab countries, and the United States. No wonder, then, that an American administration presided over by the most overtly pro-Israeli president since the founding of the Jewish state finds itself increasingly at odds with the Begin government.

The U.S.-Israeli relationship plummeted to a new low when Washington suspended a strategic cooperation agreement signed by both governments only three weeks before. The administration also deferred plans to purchase $300 million in arms from Israel's fledgling armaments industry.

Both actions were expressly intended to penalize the Begin government for its annexation of the Golan Heights.

Mr. Begin responded with what can only be called an unprecedented tirade during which he told U.S. Ambassador to Israel Samuel Lewis that he viewed the strategic agreement as effectively canceled. Mr. Begin also hinted broadly that U.S. differences with his government were motivated in part by covert anti-Semitism.

Surveying the wreckage, several observations seem self-evident. The immediate need is for a cooling off period during which both governments stop talking in public. Appropriately, Secretary of State Haig and other administration spokesmen declined to respond in kind to Mr. Begin's remarkably intemperate remarks.

Once tempers cool on both sides, it will be time for some straight, but private, talk between two governments whose shared interests should far outweigh their differences.

The Begin government, understandably nervous over what it sees as Washington's continuing tilt towards Arab interests—the AWACS sale to Saudi Arabia and the faint praise accorded the Saudi peace formula—will require reassurances of continued American support.

The Reagan administration was prepared to offer just that. Indeed, this very reassurance was an obvious goal of the memorandum of strategic cooperation signed Nov. 30.

What the Begin government must understand is that alliances require consultation and cooperation. American support for Israel does not, and cannot, entail a blank check for ill-considered Israeli actions that undermine U.S. policy objectives throughout the Middle East. Washington's suspension of the strategic cooperation agreement was meant to make that point once and for all.

Israel's survival if fully consistent—indeed, it is integral—with the broader scope of American policy in the Middle East. It now remains for the administration to persuade Mr. Begin of that fact, and for the Begin government to begin conducting itself accordingly.

That achieved, it will be time once again to discuss a measure of strategic cooperation that can benefit Israel, the United States, and the cause of stability and peace in the Middle East.

BERRY'S WORLD

Hey, give me a break! I don't like being led back to fiscal sanity any more than you do.

By LEE DANCY

Thieves are thoroughly unpredictable. If a burglar decides to plunder your home or automobile, nothing is sacred. The unwelcome, sticky-fingered little parasite may steal your most precious keepsake or lift some item with absolutely no value.

An example of distorted thief-logic appeared in the Dec. 28 issue of The Evening Herald's police reports.

A Sanford man was victim of a very weird burglar. Steve Dunkle, 33, 2800 Narcissus Drive told Seminole County Sheriff's deputies someone broke into his home through the front door and stole five pairs of pants, three pairs of underwear, five animal pelts, a glass penguin bank and a rifle.

Now I can understand why the creep who robbed Mr. Dunkle might want a rifle. He or she could probably sell it for a reasonable price.

That thieving individual might have some use for Mr. Dunkle's glass penguin bank, especially if it was filled with money. The animal pelts could also be valuable.

What I don't understand is why the nitwit burglar went to the trouble to steal Dunkle's clothes.

When I went to Europe while in high school, one of my friends was foolish enough to wash out his Levis and hang them up outdoors in Salzburg, Austria. Any kind of blue jeans in Europe are expensive and hard to find, but a pair of genuine American Levis hung on a clothesline is more tempting to Austrian youth than carbohydrates to a Weight Watchers flunkie.

My friend lost three pair of his favorite jeans to some Levis-starved Austrian thief.

Maybe Mr. Dunkle's stolen trousers were those expensive designer jeans into which so many American youth try to stuff themselves. I can just see the idiot burglar standing in front of a mirror in the house he just illegally entered trying on pants to see if they fit before he stole them.

What thoroughly boggles me, however, is stealing the poor man's underwear. Now you know that is one desperate thief.

I have no idea of the street value for three pairs of used Jockey shorts, but it could not match the embarrassment the thief would have experienced had he been "caught with the goods".

My car was recently burglarized by what I have concluded was a juvenile thief. I stupidly left my car unlocked overnight and awoke to the consequences.

When I plunked myself down in the driver's seat I could tell something was wrong. All of the junk in my backseat had been rearranged.

I immediately checked for my most valuable possessions. My tape deck was still in the dashboard and the sunglasses I paid $40 for were intact.

It's a good thing, too. Without music and my sunglasses I would have been forced to call in sick to work.

The seven 90-minute cassettes were still in their case, sitting on the front seat. Obviously the youngster did not have one of those portable noise boxes you see so many juvenile delinquents hauling around.

After I completed inventory there were two items missing, the little digital clock I mounted on my dashboard and my tire pressure gauge.

The digital clock is worth $12 at best, the tire gauge, say $2.50. What the dummy thief left in my car was worth at least $75.

Set Here, Flexible Abroad

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — President Reagan is starting the new year with a determination to stick to his economic policies and a new severe strain in relations with the Soviets.

Reagan has given himself high marks in his report card for his first year in office. But the real judgment call will come in his mid-term exam.

He said in a recent interview, "I have a very good feeling about the year passed and thus, a hope for the year to come."

"I think we have had a most successful year," he added, emphasizing his accomplishments in cutting federal spending and taxes.

Reagan and his economic advisors are hanging their future hopes on a turnaround in the economy by late spring. There has been a tendency since Reagan took office to wait and see and "to give him a chance," an opportunity not always afforded some of his predecessors.

But more skeptical outside economists doubt that he can meet his own self-imposed deadline for a new start on the road to prosperity.

Reagan's optimism is based on a decline in inflation and the fact that a new 10 percent tax cut will go into effect July 1. The results of these two factors, he said, will give industry a boost and provide jobs for the unemployed.

But there are one million more persons out of work since Reagan took office and a widespread recession has hit the country. In some areas like Detroit, Reagan concedes that the state of the economy can be called a "depression."

Reagan said that the answer to unemployment "is not a quick fix with some jerry-built programs." Instead, he said, "what is needed is a stimulant to the private sector which provides the bulk of the jobs."

So confident is Reagan that his economic recovery program will work, he also told his interviewers that even if unemployment goes even higher, he has no intention of switching gears and proposing government job training and other programs to ease the plight of the jobless as other presidents have done.

On foreign policy, however, Reagan appears to be ready to be more flexible.

Even though he has ordered some severe economic sanctions against the Soviets, who he blames for the military crackdown in Poland, Reagan has left the door open for a continuing dialogue with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev and has said that a summit meeting is likely in 1982.

Reagan came into office as a hard-liner, calling the Soviets cheats and liars under Marxist doctrine. Nevertheless he has taken a cautious position to avoid confrontation and catastrophe. Although he has been prodded by some strong conservative elements among his supporters, he has realized that as president there are limits to what he can do.

For what appears to be the first time in his political career, Reagan has become much more philosophical in terms of the needs for compromise. When asked about his intention to hold a summit meeting at some point with Brezhnev, Reagan said "I think we're in the world together and it doesn't mean you can't talk and try to resolve your differences."

Your Hangover Came From Safer Beer

WASHINGTON — For beer drinkers who switched to champagne or worse last night and were regretting it this morning, I have some good news: Your favorite beverage is less likely to cause cancer than it was a couple of new years ago.

If you didn't realize there was any such danger, it's not surprising. This is hardly the kind of information the beer industry puts in its ubiquitous TV commercials.

But back in 1978, scientists in Germany, where beer is considered the staff of life in liquid form, discovered that a potent carcinogen called nitrosodimethylamine (NDMA) was formed during the drying of green malt, a key ingredient of beer. The substance is also found — at lower, safe levels — in dry milk, whey, soy bean products and certain foods.

Anti-Union, Pro-Labor

By LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The practice of labor law on behalf of management is turning from conflict to prevention, says a New York law firm that has pioneered the trend.

Jackson, Lewis, Schnitzler & Krupman now has seven offices and 80 lawyers coast to coast and hundreds of clients on annual retainer. For years, it has considered itself unique, two of the partners, Robert Lewis and William A. Krupman, told United Press International, "but now we are being copied and that shows we are on the right track," Lewis added.

Most of the firm's efforts are aimed at preventing unionization of the clients' workers but they insist they are not engaged in old-fashioned "union busting" and say the unions concede this.

"What we are really doing is persuading employers to do more for their workers than they can hope for from the unions," Krupman said.

About 70 percent of the firm's clients now are non-union firms. For the other 30 percent, the firm engages in conventional negotiation with the unions but at the same time seeks to get management to follow policies that will prevent strikes by keeping the workers satisfied, and giving them better opportunities.

This naturally involves a lot of educational work in such fields as affirmative action, age and sex discrimination, comparability (equal pay for different jobs) and even sexual harassment on the job.

"In fact, we have to be nearly as much management consultants as lawyers," Lewis said. He and Krupman also have written a book entitled "Winning NLRB Elections" (Practising Law Institute) that lays out paths management should pursue to make work more meaningful and improve advancement

Memory Lane With Amnesia

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One of the toughest jobs around is compiling the year-end reviews that traditionally grace the public prints at this season.

Probably the greatest challenge was faced by the White House aides who prepared a "report card" on President Reagan's first year in office.

Their task was made extra difficult by being so unseasonable. The appraisal they came up with would have been much more appropriate as a Valentine.

Another prime example of the research and mental exertion that go into year-end ratings may be found in Omni magazine's list of "The Worst Scientific Achievements" in 1981. It included:

—A new diet book reputedly devoid of "one single scientific fact."

—A geologist's prediction that Peru would be hit by three large earthquakes.

—The invention of "a portable pop-up nuclear shelter that fits inside a valise."

Putting together lists of this sort is a heavy responsibility, I can tell you. That much I know from my participation in the selection of the year's 10 "most forgettable" news stories. By the time I had finished recalling to mind the long parade of forgettable events that were reported during the year, my memory box was worn clean down to the ganglions.

Adding to the tension was the anticipated sense of failure that comes from submitting nominations that don't make the top 10. Or, as the case might be, don't even survive the first cut. When the envelopes were opened, the winners were:

1. Nancy Reagan's chinaware acquisitions.

2. Ronald Reagan's 30-day California vacation.

3. Alexander Haig's "I'm in charge" declaration the day Reagan was shot.

4. David Stockman's "Trojan horse" interview.

5. Bo Derek's acting career.

6. Brooke Shields' acting career.

7. George Steinbrenner's close elevator encounter with a Los Angeles baseball fan.

8. Investment analyst Joseph Granville's stock market predictions.

9. "Spider Dan" Goodwin and other skyscraper climbers.

10. The solution to Rubik's cube.

Frankly, I thought I had one of the most sieve-like minds anywhere. But I was chagrined to discover that most of the events I had blotted from memory were also-rans. My nominations for "most forgettable" included:

1. Richard Nixon's Middle East tour after the Sadat funeral.

2. Arguments some senators raised against the sale of AWACS to Saudi Arabia shortly before they voted to approve the transaction.

3. The House Democratic alternative to Reagan's economic program.

4. All victory statements issued by the air controllers' union.

5. Everything said and done by the vice president.

Although I'm trying to be philosophical about it, the poor showing of these selections was pretty mortifying. It proves, I suppose, that where oblivion is concerned, quantity counts for more than quality.

9. "Spider Dan" Goodwin and other skyscraper climbers.

10. The solution to Rubik's cube.

Frankly, I thought I had one of the most sieve-like minds anywhere. But I was chagrined to discover that most of the events I had blotted from memory were also-rans. My nominations for "most forgettable" included:

1. Richard Nixon's Middle East tour after the Sadat funeral.

2. Arguments some senators raised against the sale of AWACS to Saudi Arabia shortly before they voted to approve the transaction.

3. The House Democratic alternative to Reagan's economic program.

4. All victory statements issued by the air controllers' union.

5. Everything said and done by the vice president.

Although I'm trying to be philosophical about it, the poor showing of these selections was pretty mortifying. It proves, I suppose, that where oblivion is concerned, quantity counts for more than quality.

Hey, give me a break! I don't like being led back to fiscal sanity any more than you do.

In And Around Winter Springs

Contest Winners All In The Family

The Tusawilla Homeowners Association will meet Jan. 7, at 8 p.m. in the New Life Fellowship Church, at Lake and Tusawilla Road.

A representative from Florida Power will be speaking on how to conserve electricity.

And the winners of the Tusawilla Pioneer Garden Club Christmas decoration contest were Chuck and Ann Lickteig, 918 Arabian Ave.

Mr. and Mrs. Lickteig decorated their two-story home in an array of colorful lights. It was a family project in which their two teenage sons participated also.

The next meeting of the Garden Club will be held at the Ben Franklin Home Accent Shop, University Square Shopping Center, 15-A and University Boulevard, on Jan. 12. The meeting will be on flower arranging with Connie Gill demonstrating.

Irma Lewis and Charlesline Clark will be the hostesses for the January meeting. Car pools will be formed at 9:30 a.m. in front of Mary Carlson's house, 602 S. Pinto Court.

Plaudits to the Winter Springs Fire Department, for their contribution to the Christmas spirit to the residents of Winter Springs.

For those who missed it, our Fire Department drove through our streets playing Christmas music from their truck. Then, for the delight of our children, they had Santa Claus perched on top of a fire engine. Santa threw candy to the children who came out to see him.

For all of you who want to know the identity of Santa and Son appearing in the Herald on Christmas Eve, read on.

Who else could pull off getting on a plane dressed like Santa but Lt. Bear Baila, US Navy?

Mrs. Joyce Baila said that on their way to board the plane, kids were running up and the grown-ups were waving and getting a laugh from the baby being dressed like Santa.

The flight attendants seemed to think he was only coming on the plane to wave at the passengers. They appeared delighted to find out he was a passenger.

It was announced to the passengers that only with "this airline would Santa consider flying."

When Joyce's brother, Bob, picked them up at the airport in Baltimore, Md., he wasn't expecting Santa. Joyce's mother knew they were arriving, but they kept it a secret from her father.

When Mr. Peter Kuhn walked into the room and saw Santa holding a baby Santa, he recognized Cubby at once. Grandpas can't be fooled.

Besides visiting Joyce's parents, the Bailsas visited Mr. and Mrs. John Baila, Bear's parents, in California, Md.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Moore of DeBary, were the houseguests of their son Curt and his family, for the Christmas holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. C.H. Gatrell of Cape Coral spent the holiday with my family.

To all of you, may you have a wonderful New Year. May all your dreams and hopes be fulfilled. May you all give to others your most important possession — love. Happy New Year!

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS RAY FOGGIN

Cindy Morris, T.R. Foggin Exchange Vows

Cindy Jean Morris and Thomas Ray Foggin were married Dec. 12, at 1:30 p.m., at the First Baptist Church of Sweetwater, Longwood.

Performing the double ring ceremony were the Rev. Doug Triplett, Orlando; Dr. Harwood Steele, Jacksonville; and Dr. Jay T. Cosmato, Sanford.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Morris, 1204 W. 20th St., Sanford. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Foggin, also of Sanford.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a formal gown with a modified Queen Anne neckline and full lace sleeves. Crystal pleating edged the skirt and flowing chapel train. Her veil of illusion was attached to a picture hat.

Glenda Alderman attended the bride as maid of honor. She wore a long sleeved pink gown and carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Bridesmaids were Dawn Weekly, Sanford; Diane McElmurry and Jan Reed, Altamonte Springs; and Margie Kindred, niece, Auburndale. Their gowns and flowers were similar to the honor attendant's.

Chris Richey, Pensacola, served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Lane Trawick, Orlando; and Will Billingsley, Daryl Edgemon and Billy Thompson, all of Sanford.

Michele Buckley, niece, Oviedo, was the flower girl. Ring bearer was Andy Simonds, Casselberry.

Following the reception in the church social hall, the newlyweds departed on a wedding trip to Beech Mountain, North Carolina.

The couple are making their home at Master Cove Apartments, Sanford. The bridegroom is employed at Stromberg-Carlson, Lake Mary. The bride is office manager for Dr. Lawrence Keiley, Casselberry.

Woman Tried Zinc To Help Cure Stink

DEAR ABBY: A woman signed "Smells Bad in Kentucky" was desperate to find what caused her body odor. She insisted she bathed and changed her clothes daily (underwear too), practiced good dental hygiene and used deodorants, etc.

I also had a body odor I couldn't explain. No deodorants or perfume helped. Then I read in a health book, "Think Zinc. Don't Stink!" I asked my doctor, and he said, "Take 30 mg. of zinc daily. It can't hurt and it might help."

Well, I tried it, and now I don't stink anymore. Sign me

THINK ZINC: You were wise to consult a doctor. And if the first doctor doesn't help, don't give up. See another. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to see a doctor about unexplainable body odor was excellent. Our 9-year-old son developed a nauseating body odor that no amount of bathing helped. His room reeked of this stench, although he bathed twice a day and wore freshly laundered clothing. We were living in California at the time and went from doctor to doctor. None could find a thing wrong with the boy. (They advised, "Bathe often.") Our son was the target of teasing and humiliation from his brother and sister as well as his playmates. A month-long vacation with him in the car was more than any of us could stand. We rode with all the windows down. After three years of living with this problem, we moved to Texas. We took him to another doctor who immediately suspected the cause. A simple urine test proved that our son had a low-grade kidney infection, which he most likely had had for three years. He was placed on antibiotics and within two weeks the offensive body odor disappeared! This was 13 years ago and he's smelled good ever since.

JERRY'S MOM

DEAR ABBY: I need your advice concerning a rather sticky situation. I have been employed here as a secretary for nearly three years and must leave this job because my husband and I are moving out of state.

Since I am working up a resume in order to get another secretarial job in my new location, I asked my current employer for a letter of recommendation to use as a reference.

He said, "Go ahead and write a letter of recommendation and I will sign it." Abby, I would feel foolish writing a letter of recommendation for myself, but since he asked me to do it, I suppose I must. My problem: Should I write myself a glowing recommendation? (My boss has told me the many times that I am an excellent secretary and he is pleased with my work.) Or should I be modest and restrained in order to avoid the appearance of tooting my own horn?

I value your advice.

FEELING FOOLISH

DEAR FEELING: Go ahead and write yourself a glowing recommendation. (You'd be foolish not to.)

DEAR ABBY: I seem powerless to control a distressing speech habit of injecting "you know" in between words, thoughts and sentences. I didn't realize it was so bad until my husband called my attention to it. I notice that a lot of other people have the same bad habit, and I've become very conscious of all the "you knows" lately. It's common among radio and television personalities, people in sports, the educated and uneducated alike.

Why this epidemic, Abby? And what can be done about it? Sign me . . .

YOU KNOW

DEAR YOU KNOW: It's a sloppy speech habit that was learned and can be "unlearned." Ask your husband (and friends) to call your attention to every "you know" you utter. At first it will be awkward and frustrating. But it will make you aware of this habit every time you open your mouth to speak, and after a while all the useless "you knows" will be eliminated from your speech.

ORGANIZATIONS HELP SISTER PROJECT

SISTER President Vivian Buck, right, reviews checks received to help with the beautification of the Sanford lakefront. Ruth Swinney, center, and Corinne Campbell note that the Disabled American Veterans, Chapter 30, Sanford Woman's Club, Sanford, Seminole Art Association, Junior Woman's Club and Knights of Columbus are the donors. These funds will go toward the first phase which is the sprinkler system. Other civic groups are encouraged to contribute to this beautification program initially funded by SISTER.

Nominations Sought For Service Awards

Jaycee Week, the annual anniversary observance of the U.S. Jaycees, starts Jan. 17. A highlight of Sanford-Seminole Jaycees' events will be the presentation of a Distinguished Service Award and five other awards to local citizens in the area.

The Sanford-Seminole Jaycees each year honor six of Sanford's outstanding young men and women for the past year. Awards are given to those of Jaycee age (18-35) who have excelled in one of the six different fields.

These areas are: (1) Outstanding Young Religious Leader, (2) Outstanding Young Educator, (3) Outstanding Young Law Enforcement Officer, (4) Good Government, (5) Outstanding Humanitarian and (6) the Distinguished Service Award, which is presented to the person who exhibits most meritorious service to his family, community, and nation and is the highest award presented by the Sanford-Seminole Jaycees.

The names of young men and women of all fields of endeavor may be submitted by an individual, organization, association, or institution. Send a resume-type letter listing all pertinent information and achievements to DSA, Sanford Jaycees, PO Box 1943, Sanford, FL, 32771. The deadline is Jan. 13th, according to George Currie, president.

Warm Up With Trout Chowder

Cold winter weather dictates hot robust meals. Soups, chowders and stews have long been a routine part of cold weather dining because of their nutritious and filling qualities. The Florida Department of Natural Resources offers as a suggestion Sea Trout Chowder. A meal in itself, the chowder is served with crusty fresh-baked bread for a real "down-home" flavor that is unmistakable. Sea Trout is caught all along the Gulf and Atlantic coast from October through February with December and January being the peak months.

SEA TROUT CHOWDER
 1 pound Sea Trout fillets
 1/4 cup chopped bacon
 2 tablespoons bacon drippings
 2 garlic cloves, finely chopped
 1 can (1 pound 12 ounces) stewed tomatoes
 2 cans (8 ounces each) tomato sauce
 2 cups water
 2 cups potatoes O'Brien mix
 1/4 teaspoon thyme

Liquid hot pepper sauce to taste
 1/4 cup dry soy sauce
 1/4 cup dry Vermouth (optional)
 Thaw fish if frozen. Cut fillets into one-inch pieces. Fry bacon until crisp, reserving 2 tablespoons bacon drippings. Add garlic and cook with reserved bacon drippings until tender. Add all remaining ingredients except Vermouth. Cover and simmer 30 minutes. Add fish and Vermouth, if desired. Cook an additional 10 minutes. Sprinkle with parsley. Makes 6 servings.

Tasty Soup Meals

Meals that are quick to prepare, but are more than a peanut butter sandwich, may come right out of the can. One example is a three bean chowder that combines a soup, tuna, green beans and quick-cooking rice, plus seasonings, for a hearty meal that takes little more than 10 minutes from stove to table. Serve with fruit or a salad.

Another time-saving meal is fisherman's linguine, again using a soup as a base for a sauce to top the linguine that includes chunks of whitefish.

THREE BEAN CHOWDER
 2 cans (19 ounces each) chunky 3-bean vegetable soup
 1 can (about 7 ounces) tuna, drained and flaked
 1 cup quick-cooking rice, uncooked
 1 can (about 8 ounces) cut green beans, drained
 2 teaspoons lemon juice
 1/4 teaspoon hot pepper sauce

In a saucepan, combine ingredients. Bring to boil; reduce heat. Cover; simmer 10 minutes or until done. Stir occasionally. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 6 cups, 6 servings.

FISHERMAN'S LINGUINE
 1 cup green pepper, cut in 1-inch squares
 2 large cloves garlic, minced
 1/4 teaspoon basil leaves, crushed
 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 2 cans (19 ounces each) chunky Mediterranean vegetable soup
 1-3 cup ripe olives, cut in half
 1/4 cup water
 2 tablespoons cornstarch

cut in 1-inch pieces
 cooked linguine
 In a saucepan, cook pepper with garlic and basil in butter until tender. Add soup and olives. Mix water and cornstarch, add to soup mixture. Cook, stirring until thickened. Add fish. Cook 5 minutes more or until done. Stir gently now and then. Serve over linguine. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 6 cups, 6 servings.

Shopping Tips For Singles

Thirty-one percent of America's over-65 population lives alone. A major factor in enabling these single seniors to live independently is their ability to shop for and prepare well-balanced meals. This includes stretching dollars at the supermarket, getting the greatest nutritional value for the money, and selecting the best food buys.

The following tips are from a series of leaflets, developed and distributed by IIT Continental Baking Company, covering the topics of nutrition and health for the elderly.

Try to plan your menus for a week in advance. Include snacks: dried fruits, cheese, nuts and puddings are nourishing choices. Read the food section of your newspaper for store specials, coupons and flyers. But use coupons only when you need them. Don't buy unnecessary things. Think about your store layout, jot down aisle numbers and what's in them. Then, make up a shopping list in the same order as the items located in the store, saving you time once you are there...but always use a shopping list.

Dish Up Classic Green Bean Bake

Nothing is more American than volunteering. This practical custom of neighbor-helping-neighbor has been a continuing thread in the fabric of American life since earliest colonial times. Years ago, when someone needed a new barn, the whole community came to build it — and celebrated afterward with feasting and fun. Often, burning dishes of steaming and hearty food played an important part in getting the job done.

Second, it uses a simple technique to achieve great results. It's so easy to open a can of Campbell's cream of mushroom soup and combine it with green beans and French fried onions. Clever cooks have been relying on this trick for decades. Serve it with meat loaf, ham, pot roast, chicken, turkey or fish — and capture the spirit of community caring and sharing.

CLASSIC GREEN BEAN BAKE
 1 can (10 3/4 oz.) condensed cream of mushroom soup
 1/2 cup milk
 1 tsp. soy sauce
 dash pepper
 2 pkgs. (9 oz. ea.) frozen green beans, cooked and drained
 1 can (3 1/2 oz.) French fried onions
 In 1 1/2 quart casserole, stir soup, milk, soy sauce and pepper until smooth; mix in green beans and 1/2 can onions. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 25 minutes; stir. Top with remaining onions. Bake 5 minutes more. Makes about 4 cups.

Good Eating Guide

By GAYNOR MADIMON
 Special to the Herald
 It's time to prepare our lists of good resolutions for 1982. Here we will pay particular attention to developing and maintaining good eating habits during the new year. So we refer you to "Nutrition and Your Health, Dietary Guidelines for Americans," an exceptionally clear guide to better eating. You can get a copy by sending a post-card request to: Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20540.

The pamphlet stresses these seven points:
 Eat a variety of foods. Meals should typically include one or more servings from each of the four food groups: milk and milk products; vegetables and fruits; meat, fish and poultry; bread, pasta and other starchy foods.

Match the foods on your menu will provide you with most of the nutrients that your body needs. Maintain ideal weight. This requires determination to cut down food intake until your weight is normal. Avoid too much fat, saturated fat and cholesterol. You need not eliminate these substances from your diet unless you are advised to do so by your doctor. But do avoid extra fat on steaks, chops and other meat. Go easy on foods — eggs, for example — that contain large amounts of cholesterol. Eat foods with adequate starch and fiber. Whole-wheat bread and rolls, rice and potatoes should have an important place in your diet. You also need roughage supplied by grains, vegetables and fruits. Avoid too much sodium (salt). A good habit is to "rinse" to put the salt shaker on the dinner table.

...Tips

 Ask your store or local senior citizens' center for help in managing large loads of groceries. Or contact a friend and shop together. You can chip in for large quantities and divide them at home. Save money, too!

Buy meat in quantity, cut it, wrap and freeze in single servings.

Buy frozen vegetables in bags. Take out only what you need, keep the rest frozen.

Simply seasonings for multi-uses. Chop an onion all at once and freeze extra in a small plastic bag for use at a later time.

Store frozen foods in your home freezer immediately after buying. Avoid thawing at room temperature. If you do, make sure they're in airtight sealed packages, and cook immediately.

Overcrowded refrigerators don't allow air to circulate around foods for efficient storage. Use up foods promptly, or plan for leftovers. Wash out your refrigerator regularly.

When shopping for food, make sure that packages are whole and in good shape. Avoid dented cans, ripped or battered frozen food packages, or sticky jars. Above all, do not use food from swollen cans.

Freeze bread as the best way to keep it from getting stale; take out only the slices you need and close up the bread wrapper securely.

Heisman Preview?

Walker-Marino Bowl Battle Spices Sugar

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Friday night's Georgia-Pitt matchup in the Sugar Bowl could be a preview of next year's battle for the Heisman Trophy.

Georgia tailback Herschel Walker, complaining he may have joined the college ranks two years too early after losing out last year to George Rogers and this year to Marcus Allen, is going to have Pitt quarterback Dan Marino to contend with in 1982.

It's been a while since a quarterback has won the Heisman, but if Marino improves on this past season's performance — when he threw for 2,615 yards and a nation-leading 34 touchdowns — Walker won't have a cakewalk.

"There's no doubt everyone will have their eyes on Herschel Walker and Dan Marino," said Georgia quarterback Buck Belue. "It probably will be a duel between those two because in big games you have big players. But, there will be some other big plays, too. In big games, you never know what is going to happen."

Until Pitt, then ranked No. 1, lost to Penn State, 48-14, in its final regular-season game, the Sugar Bowl game between the Panthers, now No. 8, and the 2nd-ranked Bulldogs was billed as a showdown for the national championship.

Now, for a national champion to emerge from the Sugar Bowl for the third straight year, Georgia not only must beat Pitt (the game is rated a tossup) but favored Nebraska must knock off top-ranked Clemson in the Orange Bowl which starts at the same time (8 p.m. EST) on New Year's night.

"We are pleased to have an opportunity very few teams have at this stage of the season," says Georgia Coach Vince Dooley. "But, we have a great task before us playing a very talented Pittsburgh team. They lead the country in defense and their offense, in our estimation, is the best we have seen in recent years."

"They're best for four reasons," Dooley added. "First, there's Marino. His stats speak for themselves. He's big and that enables him to see well. He reads defenses well, checks at the line of scrimmage well, and has a rifle arm. What makes him really good is the protection he gets from his offensive line. He's got two receivers with great speed plus he's got a tailback (Hryan Thomas) who has rushed for over 1,000 yards."

Pitt Coach Jackie Sherrill is just as worried about Herschel Walker as Dooley is about Dan Marino.

"You can't stop Walker," says Sherrill. "You just have to concede Walker's yardage (the two-time All-America sophomore averaged 172 per game this past season). You can't double team him because Georgia is a diversified, multiple offense team."

"Also," said Sherrill, "Georgia is the best at rushing the passer I've ever seen. Some matchups to watch are how well we protect the passer and how well we can contain Belue (rather than Walker)."

Thomas agrees that Pitt can't afford to concentrate solely on Walker, but he said Georgia "is going to be in for a shock if they key on Marino."

"We've got a better balanced offense than a lot of people give us credit for,"

said the running back. "I got more than 1,000 yards and our fullback got nearly 700 so we can't all pass. We're going to try to put Georgia in a defensive situation where, hopefully, we can get some mismatches."

Thomas says the biggest thing concerning the Pitt offense "is that Georgia does a lot of things on defense we are not used to."

Although Pitt, 10-1 like Georgia, has no shot at the national championship after losing to Penn State, the Panthers to a man will tell you they are taking the Sugar Bowl very seriously.

"This game is very important because of what happened to us in our Penn State game," said offensive lineman Rob Fada. "We have to prove that game was a fluke."

"Our players worked harder for this one than for any bowl game in the last five years," said Sherrill. "The attitude following the loss to Penn State doesn't worry me. Our players are not losers. Winning is an attitude, a habit, a philosophy."

Pitt center Emil Boures says he's surprised the Panthers fell all the way from first to eighth after losing to Penn State. "This is a championship within itself if we beat Georgia," said Boures. "It leads into next year. The Sugar Bowl is like our national championship."

Last time Pitt played in the Sugar Bowl, Jan. 1, 1977, the Panthers did win the national championship and they had to beat Georgia to do it. Georgia's last previous Sugar Bowl appearance was one year ago when the Bulldogs beat Notre Dame and nailed down the national championship for themselves.

What goes up...must come down. At least that's what Lake Brantley's Rhonda Vazquez (left) hopes for as she and Apoka's Evelyn Rivera wait for the descent of the basketball in Wednesday's fifth place game in the Lady Hawk Tournament at Lake Howell. Apoka beat the Patriots, but Evans won the championship by besting Winter Park. Coach Ron Merthie's Seminole whipped Edgewater for third place.

Gators Fall To Peaces

Peach

ATLANTA (UPI) — Florida quarterback Wayne Peace was groping for answers in a dejected locker room on why the Gators had suffered such a disappointing ending to a successful season.

"I just thought the game was terrible," said Peace minutes after the Gators were humiliated by West Virginia 27-6 Thursday in the Peach Bowl.

"We can play much better," he continued. "We just didn't execute. We didn't run the ball worth a flip and we didn't throw it well. There's not much else you can do on offense."

Peace, constantly harassed by West Virginia defenders, completed only six of 13 passes for 47 yards and had two intercepted. The Gators were held to minus 20 yards on the ground.

"We felt that we could run on them and establish our ground game which would open things that much more for our passing," said Peace. "We not only didn't establish the running game, we didn't establish anything."

"It must have been more frustrating for Wayne than for any of us," said tight end Chris Faulkner, who scored Florida's only touchdown on a 22-yard pass from reserve quarterback Bob Hewko in the final minutes.

"When we were open, Wayne was usually running for his life," said Faulkner. "We just didn't give him much protection today but I'm sure we have to credit the West Virginia defense for much of that."

Gator Coach Charley Pell had a simple explanation.

"Of Coach Charley didn't have them ready to play," he said. "West Virginia was better prepared. Our early turnovers gave them momentum. They were an awfully hungry team and they got excited and got the momentum." Peace insisted the Gators, now 7-5, didn't underestimate the Mountaineers (9-3), although Florida was a touchdown favorite.

"We saw lots and lots of film on them and knew going into the game that they were a good ballclub," he said. "We felt that we could run on them and establish our ground game which would open up things that much more for our passing."

"We not only didn't establish the running game, we didn't establish anything," said Peace.

Pell said he would not let the defeat spoil the rest of the season.

"I cannot and will not let 2 1/2 hours of disappointment spoil the many good things that happened this year," he said. "Our staff worked hundreds and hundreds of hours preparing during the season and I'm still proud of what we accomplished."

WHAT GOES UP...

Bulldogs Ring Kansas Bell, 10-0

Hall Of Fame

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Mississippi State Coach Emory Bellard says his team failed to "ring the bell quite enough" but he'll settle for the Bulldogs' 10-0 victory Thursday over Kansas in the Hall of Fame Bowl.

"I think we did a lot of things well," said Bellard, whose team finished 8-4 and was third in the Southeastern Conference.

"I would have liked to have seen us run up and down the field a little more and we didn't ring the bell quite enough, but I'm happy."

Although the game lasted more than three hours, it was really over in the first 12 seconds.

Kansas, also 8-4, fumbled the opening kickoff and All-SEC safety Rob Festure recovered. Mississippi

State quarterback John Bond, named the game's most valuable player, then scored the game's only touchdown on a 37-yard keeper.

Kansas Coach Don Fambrough said his team could not recover from the fumble.

"They stunned us from the beginning and intimidated us," he said. "We didn't have all our weapons out there."

The Bulldogs, making their first back-to-back appearance in post-season play, also got a 22-yard field goal from Dana Moore in the second quarter.

Although Moore missed two field goals — both 39-yarders — he set the most impressive record of the fifth annual football classic with a 74-yard punt.

The Bulldogs, getting their first shutout since a 48-0 rout of Marshall in 1979, held Kansas to 35 yards rushing and 171 passing.

"I couldn't be happier with our team," said Bellard. "Our players worked hard to get here and have continued to make a commitment to win. I think they are a quality bunch of young men."

Kansas, playing without its No. 1 quarterback Frank Seurer, had trouble moving the ball against a Bulldog defense led by defensive player of the game Johnnie Cooks, and Glen Collins. State sacked Kansas quarterback Steve Smith and freshman Mike Frederick seven times for a total of 56 yards.

Festure thwarted Kansas' most serious offensive threat of the first half by intercepting a Smith pass at State's 26. The Bulldogs drove to the Kansas 14 in the third quarter, but failed to pick up a first down on a fourth-and-1.

State cornerback Kenneth Johnson ended another Kansas drive by intercepting a Smith bomb on the State 3-yard line in the final seconds of the game.

"Nobody saddles up and runs on Mississippi State," said Fambrough. "They played just like we thought they would. They had a good defense, good kicking game and they took advantage of the opportunities that were given to them."

"I would compare their defense to Nebraska and Missouri in our conference."

Woolfolk, Carter Ramble Wolverines Past UCLA

Bluebonnet

HOUSTON (UPI) — Butch Woolfolk rambled for 186 yards and Anthony Carter caught 127 yards worth of passes Thursday night to help the Michigan Wolverines cap an otherwise disappointing season with a 33-14 victory over UCLA in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Senior tailback Woolfolk busted 1 yard for a touchdown, junior wide receiver Carter fled 50 yards with a pass for a touchdown, quarterback Steve Smith ran 9 yards for a score, and B.J. Bickey added a last-second touchdown on a 5-yard run.

Alli Haji-Sheikh kicked field goals of 24 and 47 yards in the first-ever post-season game between Big Ten and PAC-10 teams outside the Rose Bowl.

UCLA's quarterback Tom Ramsey passed 17 yards to Jo Jo Townsell and 9 yards to Tim Wrightman for touchdowns, but the Bruins of the PAC-10 never threatened to take the lead after a miserable first half, and ended their season with a 7-4-1 record.

Michigan, 9-3, had started the season as a popular choice to win the national championship but the Wolverines were stunned on opening day by Wisconsin and were beaten twice more by Big Ten teams.

The Wolverines' defense, which was led by hard-hitting tackle Winfred Carraway and linebacker Ben Needham, smothered the Bruins in the first 20 minutes, and rose up to preserve a 10-0 halftime lead in the final minutes of the second quarter with two defensive stands.

The Wolverines, who gave up only four first downs in the first half, held the Bruins without a first down as UCLA began a possession at the Michigan 16-yard line minutes before half time. UCLA was forced to try a field goal and Norm Johnson's 32-yard try was wide left.

Minutes earlier Michigan linebacker Paul Girgish intercepted a fluttering Ramsey pass to stop UCLA deep in Michigan territory. On the play, linebacker Mike Lenirande drove a Bruins' blocker into Ramsey as he threw.

Woolfolk, who was voted the game's outstanding offensive player, came close to breaking the Bluebonnet Bowl record of 202 rushing yards set by Colorado's Charlie Davis in 1972. Woolfolk got his 186 yards Thursday on 27 carries.

Haji-Sheikh's first field goal, a 24-yarder with 3:59 to play in the first quarter, opened the scoring and Michigan padded its lead to 10-0 three minutes later when Carter outran cornerback Mike Durden on a post pattern to haul in a 50-yard scoring pass.

The second quarter was scoreless as Michigan hurt itself offensively by setting a Bluebonnet Bowl record with 118 yards of penalties in the first half.

No other team in the bowl's history had been flagged with more than 84 yards in a game.

Michigan went for a two-point conversion with the score 19-7 early in the fourth quarter but Carter was stopped short.

Needham was voted the game's outstanding defensive player.

NFL Favorites Still Falling

The year of the upset continues in the NFL, as both favored teams lost in the WILD CARD PLAYOFFS. Both the GIANTS and BUFFALO will continue to be underdogs as they face SAN FRANCISCO and CINCINNATI, respectively, in the DIVISION PLAYOFFS next Sunday. The BILLS and GIANTS each expect to repeat OAKLAND'S unique wild card performance of last year and take the SUPERBOWL, but the oddsmakers still don't believe it. Neither do I.

I picked CINCINNATI to be the new SUPERBOWL CHAMPS many weeks back, and nothing has happened recently to change my mind. In these sudden death playoff games, however, my mind is frequently changed by the shocking final score.

Saturday at 1 p.m., DALLAS will host TAMPA BAY in the first NFC SEMI-FINAL game, followed by the AFC SEMI-FINAL at 5 p.m. when SAN DIEGO meets MIAMI in the Orange Bowl. Then, at 1 p.m. Sunday, the AFC WILD CARD BUFFALO BILLS visit the CINCINNATI BENGALS, and later on the NFC WILD CARD NEW YORK GIANTS play at SAN FRANCISCO. The winners of these games will play off the following week to determine the CONFERENCE CHAMPIONSHIPS and SUPERBOWL contenders.

For these playoff games, I have added a new dimension to the predictions by giving a percentage probability of that prediction becoming reality. Like the weather guessers around the nation, I became tired of predicting rain or shine, only to have people bitch when I miss and forget the times I hit.

These probabilities are based on the known outcome of many previous games over the past several years when the team statistics were nearly identical with those of the present matches. These percentages have the decided advantage of making me statistically correct 100 percent of the time, which is a great asset when dealing with skeptics and sore-head losers.

In addition, these percentages give you an excellent indication of the true betting odds for a particular contest because they are based on statistical facts and not distorted to take advantage of the betting public. Used wisely, they can help you beat the point spread a high percentage of the time.

Finally, these percentage win probabilities underscore the simple fact that in football, no team can be predicted as a 100 percent winner or loser, particularly in these days of parity. The Gods favor all persons equally, but when it comes to professional football, the Gods do seem to favor those teams with 300 pound linemen and red hot defenses a lot more equally than they do the other teams.

AFC PLAYOFF

CLIFFHANGER OF THE WEEK

SAN DIEGO (10-6) AT MIAMI (11-4-1)

The first big post-season hurdle for the DOLPHINS shapes up to be a battle between defenses. The DOLPHIN defense started out the season as a world beater, allowing only 27 points the first three games, but suddenly became ineffective for the next eight games.

Had it not been for a rampaging, desperate offense with many big plays working at the right time, they could not have survived that middle half of the season. Even so, they lost four of those nine games and tied one. Then, suddenly, when it was most needed in Game 12, the defense returned to the DOLPHIN game and they were undefeated in four of those last five critical contests. The MIAMI defense was restructured in mid-season, and the Shula magic had worked once again.

Cliff Nelson

The CHARGERS never had much of a defense this season, depending almost entirely upon their awesome, record-breaking ability to outscore opponents in game after game. But their offense lost some of its effectiveness in the middle half of the season, where they lost six games. Like the DOLPHINS, they came back with a greatly improved defense to win three of their last four games and edge into the playoffs ahead of DENVER.

Statistically, the CHARGERS index out 11 points higher than the DOLPHINS, have a 13 point better offense away from home, and an overall 8 point better offense. They have a minus 8 point home field advantage, which will help them in MIAMI. In four games with common opponents, they have won all four, while the DOLPHINS have won two and lost two.

The DOLPHINS have an 8 point better defense, and have improved an average of 3 points per game over the last three games.

In summary, the DOLPHINS appear to now have a well balanced and effective defense and offense that complement each other beautifully.

The CHARGERS have the best offense in the NFL, one that has averaged 33 points per game over the last five season contests. Their defense, although still poor, has improved considerably, allowing only 20 points per game over the last five games as compared with 26 points per game in the first eleven.

There are definite upset indicators for this game, which is probably why the oddsmakers around the country are giving the nod to the DOLPHINS. My basic formula gives the win to the CHARGERS, but the upset indicators simply cannot be ignored. My statistics give MIAMI a 64 percent chance of upsetting SAN DIEGO in this game, and the upset formula has MIAMI winning by one point. Predicted Final Score: MIAMI 25, SAN DIEGO 24.

TAMPA BAY (9-7) AT DALLAS (12-4)

Sudden death has reared its skull and crossbones spectre once again for the BUCS, this time against the most formidable opponent of the season. They faced sudden death against DETROIT, overcome the odds, and survived. If they can beat the COWBOYS at DALLAS they will truly be the miracle team of the NFL for this and any other year.

Nobody gives the underdog BUCS much of a chance against the COWBOYS, including the DALLAS players themselves—which may be the best reason why the BUCS could possibly win. They will be pointing desperately toward this game, and COWBOY complacency might just let the BUCS in the back door.

After all, the underdog BILLS and GIANTS both won, and for the past several years statistical favorites have lost more playoff games than they have won.

The COWBOYS index out 6 points higher than the BUCS, have a 5 point better defense at home, a 6 point better offense at home, and an overall 3 point better offense. They have outscored the BUCS over common enemies by 4 points per game, but are playing lower than predictions by 2 points a game over the last three games.

The BUCS have improved over the last three games and are playing 4 points better than predictions. The most impressive statistic that the BUCS must overcome is the fantastic COWBOY winning streak in DALLAS.

The COWBOYS just don't lose in front of their home town fans, at least for the past 18 games. If the BUCS can just erase this picture of COWBOY invulnerability from their minds, it will sure help them.

Every formula gives the win to DALLAS by 5 points with an 86 percent win probability. Predicted Final Score: DALLAS 21, TAMPA BAY 16.

BUFFALO (10-6) AT CINCINNATI (12-4)

The BILLS played over their heads last week to upset the JETS at home.

Part of the victory was due to super playing, particularly their aggressiveness in taking advantage of every break, but their victory was still sweet to every man on the team. The BILLS were obviously better prepared for the game, and were completely dominant throughout the first half.

The BILLS had better be super prepared for this game, because the BENGALS have the edge in nearly every statistic. The BENGALS index out 9 points better, have a 4 point better defense at home, and a 5 point better overall offense. They have won over common opponents this season by an average of 3 points, but have been playing 9 points below predictions for the past three games.

The BILLS have been playing above predictions by 4 points per game, but are still clearly the underdogs in this match.

The formula gives the win to CINCINNATI by 4 points, and there are no upset indicators. The win probability for the BENGALS is 71 percent. Predicted Final Score: CINCINNATI 24, BUFFALO 19.

NFC PLAYOFF

CLIFFHANGER OF THE WEEK

NEW YORK GIANTS (9-7) AT SAN FRANCISCO (13-3)

The GIANTS proved to be a power in the playoffs last Sunday as they upset the EAGLES in a game that was very similar to the earlier AFC match between the BILLS and JETS. The worst offense in the NFL surprised everybody as the GIANTS' Rob Carpenter ran 161 yards for the day to weather the second half comeback by the EAGLES.

The 49ers—like the EAGLES—have the edge in nearly every statistic. They index out 7 points better than the GIANTS, have a 2 point better defense at home, and a 3 point better offense both at home and away. Their home field advantage of 3 points is matched by the GIANTS' negative 4 point advantage. Against common enemies, the score is dead even, and both teams have performed better than predicted by about 10 points per game for the past three games.

Although the 49ers won over the GIANTS at SAN FRANCISCO on 29 November by 7 points, the GIANTS have improved since then and they have much more to play for in this game. These two teams are more nearly even than the teams of any other play off game.

There are upset indicators, and this game could go either way. All formulas give the win to SAN FRANCISCO by less than a touchdown, the most probable difference being 3 points. The 49er win probability is 56 percent. Predicted Final Score: SAN FRANCISCO 20, NEW YORK GIANTS 17.

Gospel Music Makes It In The Big Time

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Clap your hands, stomp your feet and sing out the praises of the Lord!

We are in what music people feel is the beginning of a surge of gospel music that will, in short order, take over the music business in a big way. Knowledgeable people predict that gospel music — already big and growing fast — will become the most important thing in music within four or five years, and they see gospel music series on television and gospel music coming in movies.

According to Peter Grosslight and Marshall Resnick of Regency Artists — one of the biggest talent agencies with a strong gospel department headed by Resnick — the current surge of gospel music began simultaneously with the current born-again Christian movement.

"The two go hand in hand," says Resnick. Of course, gospel music isn't as new as the born-again push. But a new type of gospel music has emerged, so that today there are two distinct kinds of gospel music flourishing.

There is the traditional sort, pioneered mostly by black artists such as the late Mahalia Jackson, and still sung widely today. But the newer, younger artists — white as well as black — are singing contemporary gospel music. This is more rock flavored, but with the gospel message.

"The traditionalists won't listen to us," says Reba Rambo, who, with her husband-partner, Dony McGuire, is a leader in the field of contemporary gospel music. "We're too modern for them, too new. We don't only sing about blood and the cross, like the traditional gospel singers do."

In fact, sometimes it is hard to pin a gospel label on a song that is contemporary gospel, because it often seems to be just another love song. (Traditionalists claim that that is deliberate deception, and thus contemporary gospel isn't gospel at all.)

Songs like Andre Crouch's "Here Comes the Son" (It could just as easily be "Sun" as "Son") and Reba and Dony's "I Won't Last a Day Without Your Love" are technically gospel, yet appeal to a wide audience who doesn't even recognize its religious message.

Reba and Dony say they feel gospel should be interpreted from its dictionary definition — "glad tidings" — and Reba says, therefore, "any song that is positive and upbeat can be considered to be gospel music."

Whatever the distinction, the field is booming. The only variety show on TV today — Barbara Mandrell's, on NBC — has a gospel segment every week. When Reba and Dony appeared in person recently at Knott's Berry Farm, near Los Angeles, they drew a crowd estimated at better than 18,000 people.

And many of the old-line recording stars are turning to gospel. Bob Dylan has a gospel album. B.J. Thomas is totally gospel today, even going so far as to stop his in-person performances in the middle to give his own Christian testimony. Dion (of Dion and the Belmonts) is a recent born-again convert to the music, as are Maria Muldaur, and Don Peck (of the rock group America).

"More and more radio stations," says Resnick, "are now exclusively gospel. Record sales of gospel are growing, although they are still behind pop artists."

REBA RAMBO is one of the new contemporary gospel singers, whose love songs often don't sound like gospel at all. "The traditionalists won't listen to us," she says. "We're too modern for them, too new. We don't only sing about blood and the cross, like the traditional gospel singers do."

The Haitian Refugees: A Problem Still Unresolved

MIAMI (UPI) — They are the Caribbean's "boat people," poverty stricken Haitians who crowd aboard leaky sailboats for a dangerous journey they hope will lead to a better life.

In Haiti, they eagerly listen to tales of jobs, prosperity and freedom in America. But for those that made the 800-mile trek and survived, their hopes and dreams have turned to fear and despair.

Those who are caught — and many aren't — are whisked from the beaches where their boats land to prison-like refugee camps where they are held until their legal status can be resolved.

The plight of the freedom-hungry refugees came into full focus in late October when the bodies of 33 Haitians washed up along exclusive, condominium-lined Hillsboro Beach. The refugees drowned when their rickety boat capsized in rough surf about 60 yards from shore.

Florida Gov. Bob Graham called the incident "a human tragedy which has been waiting to happen." It came, ironically, after the Reagan Administration introduced a tough interdiction program to halt Florida-bound boats carrying illegal aliens.

The 30 refugees who survived were taken to the troubled former North detention facility, a federal encampment on the edge of the Everglades in south Dade County.

Most of the 8,000 who arrived in south Florida in 1981 lived at a camp at one time or another until they were either sent back to Haiti, shipped to another facility or escaped.

The camp now houses nearly 600 Haitian men and women, and it too has been the scene of serious trouble. Last week, a riot broke out when demonstrators outside the camp rushed the front gate.

While police and camp guard repelled them with tear gas, 150 Haitian men scaled barbed-wire fences and fled into the swamps of the Everglades. One hundred remain at large.

And that was not the first sign of trouble.

Another riot rocked the camp in September when a mob of about 1,000 refugees demanding freedom rushed the fences and gates. About 100 escaped briefly, but were recaptured.

Another escape of about 40 refugees came in November — this one was successful — apparently triggered by the jailing of three Haitians who leaped from an airplane that was to fly them to a detention camp in Fort Allen, Puerto Rico.

More than 100 escaped from the camp in 1981 and were never recaptured. Officially speculate — but were never able to confirm — that the aliens were helped in their efforts by outsiders and quickly absorbed into Miami's growing "Little Haiti" community.

The mass exodus from the tiny island nation has encouraged a lucrative smuggling trade. Some Haitians claim to have paid freighter captains anywhere from $500 to $2,500 per person for the voyage to the United States.

State officials contend that many Haitians are brought close to south Florida in "mother ships" then ferried ashore in smaller boats under the cover of darkness.

Immigration officials began a crackdown on refugee smuggling in February. In May, federal authorities captured 92 refugees who traveled to a dock on the Miami River in the cargo holds of two freighters. Officials found a total of $23,000 in cash on board the two boats. The U.S. Attorney's office indicted the two captains and their 20 crewmen.

More frequently, however, Haitian refugees were found by the U.S. Coast Guard crowded into old wooden sailboats adrift off the Florida coast, forced to endure the voyage with boats captains that were often cruel, inept sailors.

Federal investigators in October looked into claims that two Haitian women were thrown overboard as a sacrifice to voodoo gods by a "priest" and an "executioner" during a three-week voyage.

Two boat captains pleaded innocent to conspiracy and smuggling charges stemming from a July voyage in which 96 of 250 refugees were starved, strangled, thrown overboard or hacked to death with machetes because they could not pay for food while aboard the boat, christened the "Jesusa."

To make the trip, refugees often sell their belongings or borrow the money to pay for the trip. Most of the boats leave from Port-de-Paix, Haiti, a dirt road town on Haiti's north coast where emaciated children wander the streets.

Once inside the United States, most Haitians claim political asylum, saying they came to escape poverty and the terror of Jean Claude Duvalier, Haiti's president for life. Haitian community leaders say the real problem is the attitude of the U.S. government — it supports the Duvalier regime and thus does not recognize that oppression and persecution exist in Haiti.

On Sept. 29, President Reagan issued an interdiction order — the first of its kind — that the American government took to curb the flow of illegal aliens.

The 378-foot Coast Guard cutter Chase, homeported in Boston, began Haitian patrol in the Windward Passage in early October. Cutters stopped and searched boats on the high seas suspected of smuggling illegal Haitian immigrants to the United States. Five boats have been turned back.

Vern Jervis, Immigration and Naturalization Service spokesman in Washington, said the new policy to enforce immigration laws has been effective.

"Since August, the number of Haitians arriving illegally in this country by boat has declined dramatically from a year ago," Jervis said. About 1,900 refugees have arrived in south Florida in the past four months, compared to 6,900 during the same four months last year.

"We believe the interdiction and the detention policies and the fact that these policies have filtered back to Haiti have been factors in this reversal," Jervis said.

Jervis said 343 Haitians have been sent back after withdrawing their applications for asylum. Currently there are 5,453 asylum applications pending, and in 1981, 44 were denied and six were approved.

Paul LaTortue, treasurer of the Inter-Regional council of Haitian refugees in Puerto Rico, said the Coast Guard policy amounts to piracy and will not solve the problem.

He said 15 of every 100 Haitian babies die before reaching age one. Plagued by malnutrition and disease, those that survive face a life expectancy of only 52 years. The illiteracy rate on the island is 75 percent.

What lures people from Haiti is the ease of getting to Miami and the ability to postpone deportation by claiming political asylum.

'Pigging Out' Dangerous

CHICAGO (UPI) — The common practice on college campuses of "pigging out" — overeating and then purging the system to avoid weight gains — can pose severe health hazards, a medical journal reports.

Ancient Romans also followed the habit, clinically described as bulimia, which is an eating disorder that primarily affects women and teenage girls who gorge themselves, then purge their systems by vomiting or using enemas.

The dangerous practice is far more common than generally recognized, Dr. Alexander R. Lucas of the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., wrote in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, released today.

Enlargement of the salivary glands, erosion of dental enamel and menstrual irregularities are symptoms of the disorder, said Lucas, a psychiatrist.

Inducing vomiting by gagging can lead to abrasion and callus formation of the knuckles.

Use of laxatives and diuretics may lead to changes in bowel habits and dehydration. All can result in muscle weakness and possible renal and cardiovascular failure, Lucas said.

"There is no doubt that innumerable women control their weight at their desired level through fasting, vomiting or purging ... to compensate for overeating," said Lucas, who attributes the disorder to society's premium for thinness in women.

Bulimia is less common in men, he said, because obesity is more acceptable to them. Some women who indulge in the gorge-purge syndrome may have underlying emotional disturbances or conflicts about their feminine role, he said.

No medication has proved helpful in solving the disorder. But Lucas said education regarding a reasonable caloric intake, regular meals and the determination to cut down on food all seem to help.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Attacks Caused By More Than Stress

DEAR DR. LAMB — You often stress the importance of diet, not smoking and exercise as ways to prevent heart attacks. I have read that the real cause of heart attacks is stress. If you have the right personality factors and escape stress you are not likely to have heart attacks.

DEAR READER — Stress is an important factor in heart disease but usually because it increases the risk factors we have positively identified as related to fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries that cause heart attacks and strokes.

Personality typing is hard to do. There is one school of thought that people who are type A personalities are much more likely to have heart attacks than type B personalities. Supposedly the type A person is a go-getter, with his engines at full throttle while the type B person is, to use your term, "laid back."

The obvious error in that thinking is that heart attacks in living people were not even diagnosed until 1908. Now, we did have a few achievers before then. Certainly the type A personality is not something that has just developed in the past 100 years.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-1, Behavior Patterns, Psychological Factors, Stress and Heart Disease, to give you more information. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Those people in other cultures with low rates of heart attacks also eat less, eat far less saturated fat and are lean and active people. As a group they do not smoke cigarettes. As they develop our habits they also develop heart disease. Things are just not as simple as whether one is relaxed or stressed.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In one of your columns you spoke of niacin as one of the B vitamins. You said it can cause flushing. My question is how do you ask for niacin? Is it known as B-6 or B anything? Or is it just called niacin?

DEAR READER — Niacin belongs to the B complex vitamin group but it is not called B anything. Niacin is really a general term that includes both nicotinic acid and nicotinamide which may be regarded as having the same action. This vitamin is essential to health. It is part of a co-enzyme system that enables normal metabolism within your cells, really part of the energy system that runs your cells.

If you don't have enough you can develop pellagra. This is a serious disease that includes a skin rash and in severe forms can even cause nervous system disorders, including personality changes. I hasten to add that in our modern society mental disorders are seldom due to niacin deficiency.

In large amounts nicotinic acid, but not nicotinamide, can cause flushing and even liver damage. No one should take large amounts of nicotinic acid with doctor's supervision.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

January 2, 1982

Stick-to-itiveness is extremely important over the coming months. In areas where you persevere success is likely, even though it may not arrive as quickly as you'd like.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Challenge or competition usually brings out your better qualities, but this may not be the case today. Your reactions could be ungraceful. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in each of the seasons following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 4089, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An associate with opposing views might be walking around with a chip on his or her shoulder today. It isn't worth trying to knock it off.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be careful in money matters today, especially those in which friends are involved. Unless arrangements are handled properly, someone could end up angry.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Handle yourself tactfully today, or you could alienate individuals whose support you may need. Make allies, not enemies.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Beware of tendencies today to create unnecessary problems for yourself, as well as for co-workers. Acting impulsively may cause complications where none need exist.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you're involved in any type of competitive games or sports today with friends, try to keep betting out of it. Losses could evoke hard feelings.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Being too insistent to have everyone do things your way today could cause them to do just the opposite. Find a middle ground upon which all agree.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today, try to avoid one with whom you've had cross words recently. The wound hasn't quite healed. What once occurred before could happen again.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be extremely careful today in business and commercial ventures. Do nothing impulsively. Mistakes could prove to be expensive.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Both you and your mate could be a trifle more temperamental than usual today, so be careful that you don't do anything, or bring up issues, which might provoke an argument.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Normally you perform rather well under pressure, but today could be an exception. Try not to take on more than you can manage with ease.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't let yourself be placed in a position today where peer pressure could cause you to do something which may not serve your best interests.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Table with bridge hand details: NORTH 1-4-82, WEST ♠ 9 5, SOUTH ♠ A K 4, etc.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Mary (Mrs. Emory) Clement was one of the best woman players of the early 1930s. Mary preferred rubber bridge to duplicate. She died in 1938, so that her only real tournament success was to finish second in the 1935 national mixed teams.

Mary was a mild overbidder who compensated by really excellent dummy play. She worked squeezes, coups and end plays without ever admitting she knew what she was doing. Here is a hand from a rubber bridge game at Hal Sims' residence in Deal, N.J.

East won the first trick with the ace of hearts and led back the queen of diamonds. Mary took her ace. Her first thought was to concede down one and get on to the next hand. Then she saw a chance.

She drew trumps with two leads and ruffed a heart, cashed the ace and king of spades and ruffed a spade. Now she ruffed dummy's last heart with her next to last trump and led her last spade in order to discard one of dummy's two remaining diamonds. East, who had been dealt just one diamond, was forced to lead a heart. Mary ruffed with her last trump and discarded dummy's last diamond to make the last two tricks with dummy's trumps.

"Was that some sort of end play?" asked Mary while East fumed and spluttered.

Western Boots All The Fashion Rage

By LEE DANCY
Herald Staff Writer

If you're keenly attuned to current fashion trends, you're doubtless aware that the Old West is enjoying a new sartorial interest. It seems everyone wants to be a cowboy. And what could be more important to this cowboy chic than a pair of boots?

Acquiring a cowboy hat, plaid shirt with mother of pearl snap buttons and "double V" stitching on the shoulders plus blue jeans is only half the battle. To be a true cowboy, a pair of fancy western boots is mandatory, according to Don Knight, owner of a downtown Sanford bootery.

Florida's semi-tropical climate would seem to inhibit the popularity of the heavy, calf-high footwear. Not so, Knight says. Style dictates popularity, not comfort.

Style currently demands western boots accompany the "cowboy look". Knight says the demand for boots is so high, in fact, he can't get enough necessary supplies.

"The nation's largest bootmaker is making 50,000 pairs per day, seven days a week," Knight says, "and I still can't get the boots I want."

One of the problems is the public's demand for variety. Knight says bootmakers are sporting so many different designs, colors and styles of western footwear, "it's hard to get just a pair of plain boots."

Styles range from boots with sharp-pointed toes, known as "roach killers," to semi-roach killers and round toed boots. Some western boots come adorned with exotic stitching and two-toned shades of leather, he says.

Two popular colors in western boots are "banana," and "burnt apple". The shade of banana-colored boots is essentially self explanatory. Burnt apple resembles an antique brown, Knight says.

Price tags for western boots can go up to $5,000 or more. A quality pair of well made western boots will cost around $80, Knight says.

High quality construction is a must in any kind of footwear, including boots. Except for boot soles, leather is the key material to consider, Knight says.

Boots made entirely from leather will be softer, more comfortable and cooler. All leather soles, however, will not be as durable as man-made substances, Knight says.

Be certain boot soles are sewed on, rather than glued, he says, adding that if a half-sole repair job is ever needed, it is much easier to accomplish with synthetic soles.

In Sanford, young people are the predominant consumers of western boots. Demand for the heavy duty footwear cuts across age barriers, however.

"I had a 65-year-old lady come in the other day and buy a pair of cowboy boots," Knight says.

To be assured of quality when buying cowboy boots, Knight cautions shoppers to consider four factors — design, materials, workmanship and price.

Design is a matter of taste in western boots. If you do not want sharply pointed toes, avoid them for "semi-roach killers". The same rule applies to heel height, color and stitching — buy what you like.

The primary material in any cowboy boot should be leather. The most durable soles are made from synthetic materials, not leather, Knight says.

Mrs. Dorien Murray of Altamonte Springs carefully scrutinizes a pair of western boots at a downtown Sanford shoe store. According to local shoe merchants, western boots are so Judging workmanship demands close inspection. Stitching is an important factor. Make certain the stitching is even and not too close to the seam. Check the finish on the leather and general proportion of the boot.

Price generally reflects the quality of the other three popular, it is difficult to keep stores stocked with the popular styles. Western boots come in various shades, styles and leathers. Prices range from $60 to $5,000.

factors. If high quality leather was used, careful stitching done and if the boot has a designer label, it is going to cost more.

Designer labels aside, the general rule in boot buying is, you get what you pay for, Knight says.

James Brolin Stars At Moment's Notice

James Brolin took on the starring role of the defense attorney in "The Ambush Murders," airing Tuesday, Jan. 5, literally on a moment's notice. He stepped into the role after another actor, who had been playing the part for several days, became ill. For Brolin, it was a personal challenge.

"I wanted to prove I could do it," he said. "I have always tried to make it a rule to have several weeks of preparation and study before tackling a role. To go in cold and have to get pages of legalese dialogue letter-perfect at first reading was a challenge I wanted to meet for my own satisfaction."

Brolin plays the defender at the third trial of a drawn-out case against an outspoken black activist, portrayed by Dorian Harewood, who is accused of the murders of two white policemen. This fictionalized version of a true story is written by Tony Kaden and based on the book of the same title by Ben Bradlee Jr.

"We were extremely lucky to get an actor of Jim Brolin's caliber at short notice to take on the role of Paul Marshall," the producer, David Goldsmith, said. "It really was due to a combination of events. Brolin had just had a picture commitment delayed because of the then-impending director's strike, we became bold because of our need to finish 'Murders' before the start of the strike. Brolin was looking for an acting challenge and our casting director, Judith Holstra, had the inspiration to visualize him adding something special to the part. She was right."

Brolin once said that he was the last guy in the world who should be an actor. "I couldn't give a book report in school," he said.

He originally was persuaded to try acting by producer Bill Castle, whom he met while working as a laborer on Castle's home. He was put under contract by 20th Century-Fox Studios, one of the last of the "studio system" actors.

That was 20 years ago, and his career has had its highs and lows, fits and starts ever since. He gained his first big success as Dr. Kiley in the long-lived "Marcus Welby" television series and his greatest movie prominence as George Lutz in "The Amityville Horror."

"I've been successful one step at a time," he said. "I went through the whole sensationalism of stardom with 'Welby,' but I wasn't fond of those years. I'm not a tap dancer and never was.

I'd really like to become a film producer, able to entertain and still say something about the real world."

Gloria Loring Isn't The Singing Sister

By DICK KLEINER

DEAR DICK: Sometime back, I heard a singer on TV and I thought they said she was either a sister or half-sister to Barbra Streisand or Liza Minnelli. I thought they said her name was Gloria Loring. I was wondering if that is the same Gloria Loring who is now on "Days of Our Lives." LOIS GRIM, Fairview, Okla.

Gloria Loring is a singer, and she is on "Days of Our Lives" these days of our lives, but she is no relation to either Barbra or Liza. Both of those stars do have half-sisters who sing, however, so you probably heard either Barbra's half-sister, Roslyn Kind, or Liza's half-sister, Lorna Luft.

DEAR DICK: Will Barbra Streisand be doing a PBS special? If so, can you please tell me when it will be aired? MARK NYE, Vancouver, Wash.

It's news to the people at PBS. They say that they have heard nothing about Barbra doing anything for them. They'd love it, of course, but there's nothing like that in the works.

DEAR DICK: I recently read D.H. Lawrence's novel, "Women in Love," and, although I never saw the movie, I remember hearing about it. Could you please tell me who was in it and whether it has been on TV or might be on TV soon. JOHANNA L. CROWELL, Princeton, N.J.

Glenda Jackson and Jennie Linden were the "Women in Love," and Alan Bates and Oliver Reed were the men they were in love with. Miss Jackson won an Oscar for her work in that movie. Yes, it has been on TV — in fact, it had been playing on Bravo, a pay cable TV service, several times during the month of December. But it might appear again somewhere, so keep a close eye on your late night TV schedules.

DEAR DICK: Our whole family loves "The Facts of Life" on NBC, especially Lisa Whelchel, who plays Blair. Could you tell us where she is from and how she got her start in show business? My daughter says she thinks she remembers seeing her on "The New Mickey Mouse Club" as one of the mousketeers. Laurie Rachlin, Camarillo, Calif.

Your daughter has a good memory for faces and Lisas. Yes, she was a mousketeer. Even before that, she had done a lot of amateur theatricals, which is how she got started. She comes from Fort Worth, Texas, originally.

DEAR DICK: Can we expect to see "Yankee Doodle,"

Ask Dick Kleiner

starring James Cagney, on TV in the near future or at all? It hasn't been on in years. S.K. Palatine, Ill.

You left out the film's last name. It is "Yankee Doodle Dandy" and it was made in 1942, and not many 40-year-old films are shown on network TV. It could pop up on some late show, but the odds are against it.

DEAR DICK: My husband and I recently watched ABC's "Whatever Became Of...?" and enjoyed it. One conflict: I said I wondered why it wasn't mentioned that Mickey Dolenz of The Monkees was a child star on the '50' in "Circus Boy." My husband insists it was not Mickey Dolenz in "Circus Boy." CURIOUS GEORGE AND GEORGETTE, Royal Oak, Mich.

You are both right. Mickey Dolenz was Corky in "Circus Boy," but at the time he was calling himself Mickey Braddock.

DEAR DICK: I have a bet on this question. Who played Uncle Fester on "The Addams Family"? My mother says it was James Coco but I disagree. AMY LUCE, Woodland, Wash.

Your disagreement is well taken. It was Jackie Coogan.

DEAR DICK: I would like to know if Ron Carey, of "Barney Miller," went to high school in Redding, Calif., during the years 1966 or 1967. ANITA LLOYD, Riddle, Ore.

No, he didn't. All of Carey's schooling took place in New Jersey, where he grew up.

DEAR DICK: Please tell me what happened to Mike Douglas. He is not on TV any more with his regular program. MRS. LOUISE WILSON, Santa Cruz, Calif.

Mike switched over from doing a talk show to hosting an entertainment hour. Your local station may have dropped it, or may have scheduled it at a different hour. Check with your local stations to find out. But Mike is still working away.

Actors Lend Names For Good Causes

By RUTH THOMPSON

When it comes to aiding good causes, the mere lending of a celebrity name to a newspaper advertisement often can do some good.

But many performers give of their personal efforts, as well. For sheer enthusiasm and hard sell, current honors go to croaky-voiced, humorous, attractive Susan Saint James, long the co-star of Rock Hudson on "McMillan and Wife" and this season, on NBC, the star of "The Kid from Nowhere" (Jan. 4), in which she plays the mother of a retarded child who finds a sense of achievement through the project called the Special Olympics.

In truth, as well as fiction, the Special Olympics — competitions tailored to train and give a sense of achievement to retarded and handicapped youngsters — is a cause she champions.

She explained at a press conference last month that she was pressured by one of her bosses a few years ago to make a personal appearance at a local (athletic) meet.

That one encounter with the Olympics project, conceived and fostered by siblings and in-laws of the late President John Kennedy, became her continuing stand-up-and-cheer personal commitment.

Susan continued, "I have custody of my two children only on weekends — and no way I want that taken away. So I take my kids with me to the meets around the country. And we fly coach because this is at my personal expense."

Other performers in "The Kid from Nowhere" are also avid supporters of the Special Olympics, Susan added. Loretta Swit of "M-A-S-H" is one, as is the script's writer, Judy Farrell, the wife of Mike Farrell, who plays Alan Alda's sidekick, B.J. Hunnicutt, on "M-A-S-H."

Farrell, who once said that as a child he had been abused, also endorses causes to aid battered children.

UNICEF, to aid children the world over who lack both sufficient food and medical attention, has long had a powerful champion in comedian Danny Kaye, who pilots his own plane to remote places to entertain the children and raise funds.

A year ago the National Council on Alcoholism's Celebrity Golf Tournament in Las Vegas had a willing volunteer host in Gordon MacRae.

But health causes are not the only attractions for celebrity support.

'Fame' Coming To Television

"Fame," a new one-hour series based on the Oscar-winning movie of the same name, and featuring three of the film's stars, will continue the story of the students at the New York High School for Performing Arts, beginning Jan. 7.

Starring as students in "Fame" are Lee Curreri, who continues his movie role as Bruno; Erica Gimpel; Carlo Imperator; Valerie Landsburg; P.R. Paul; Gene Anthony Ray, who was in the movie as Leroy, dancer supreme; and Lori Singer.

Starring as teachers are Debbie Allen; Albert Hague, reprising his movie role of Shorofsky, music teacher; and Carol Mayo Jenkins.

"The Surrogate," starring Susan Dey, Paul LeMat, Edward Herrmann and Cassie Yates, is now in production for future broadcast on CBS.

The film draws upon the current controversial issue of surrogate parenting and dramatizes the story of a family-oriented married woman who undertakes a surrogate pregnancy for another woman and encounters severe family and social disapproval.

Susan Dey made her feature-film debut in "First Love" and also stars in the current release "Looker." Paul LeMat won critical acclaim for his role as Melvin in the film "Melvin and Howard."

Edward Herrmann won a Tony award for his work in "Mrs. Warren's Profession" at Lincoln Center. Cassie Yates starred in the mini-series "Rich Man, Poor Man," among many other television appearances. Her films include "FM" and "F.I.S.T."

After five months of filming in the People's Republic of China, the cast and crew of NBC's "Marco Polo" are heading back to Rome, Italy, for the final two weeks of principal photography on the epic mini-series, which stars Ken Marshall in the title role.

Starting at the Great Wall outside of Peking on July 13, the production company of several hundred Italian technicians, Chinese associates and an international array of actors, moved on to location sites in Inner Mongolia, Chengde, Peking and Kweilin in South China.

American actors filming in China were Leonard Nimoy, Kathryn Dowling, James Hong and Beaulah Quo. Other stars in the eight-hour drama, which recreates the travels and adventures of the young 13th-century Venetian, are Anne Bancroft, Sir John Gielgud, John Houseman, Burt Lancaster, Tony Lo Bianco, Ian McShane and Sada Thompson.

Willie Aames is the new host for "We're Movin'." Group W Productions' syndicated weekly half-hour magazine series for and about young people, starting this month.

Aames, well known as Tommy Bradford on the series "Eight Is Enough," succeeds Scott Baio, who served as host for the first 12 episodes of "We're Movin'."

Ryan At Farrah's Party The Simons' New Love;

By CINDY ADAMS
 NEW YORK — Neil Simon and Marsha Mason have found a new love: Italian food. Saturday night they were seen at one Italian restaurant and Sunday they were seen at another across the street... Ryan O'Neal, not the type to play secondary roles — such as the patient escort — came with his lady friend Farrah Fawcett to a Farrah shampoo party, sighing, "I'll do anything for my woman — even this"... The Kirk Douglasses were seen at "Nicholas Nickleby," where nobody sees much of anything besides the stage.

 All MacGraw: "Men complain they have to take out the garbage. They should remember that we women were the ones who had to cook that garbage"... Richard Burton: "Now that I'm on the wagon I find people who drink very boring. I'm not even crazy about myself"... Ilie Nastase: "As the IRS sees us, America is the land of untold wealth"... Myrna Loy: "Diamonds are a girl's best friend and a dog is a man's best friend which will give you a quick idea of which one's the smarter"...

Walter Matthau: "Me, I'm a gambler but my luck is so bad that even when I cheat I can't win."
 Wayne Rogers, of "House Calls," invested in the new Anne Bancroft-Max Von Sydow play, "Duet for One"... George Segal and his estranged wife, Marian, aren't so estranged. They're working together on his newie, "The Neighbor," filming in Canada. He stars. She edits... Four of L.A.'s beloved Dodgers recorded a "We Are the Champions" single. So far, no advance orders from the Yanks...

Entertainment and DINING GUIDE

Cavalier: A Perfect Place To Dine

Escape to the Cavalier Motor Inn, 3200 S. Orlando Drive and U.S. Highway 17-92 in Sanford and enjoy the music of "Solar Wind" performing nightly in the Buccaneer Lounge from 9 p.m. until 2 a.m. weeknights and Saturday. "Rainbow" will be featured beginning Jan. 4th.

Happy hours in the tropical paradise lounge begin at 11 a.m. through 8:30 p.m., with 85-cent drinks. A wide variety of hot and cold hors d'oeuvres are also served during happy hours.

From 9 p.m. until closing, let yourself go and get up and dance to the sounds of "Solar Wind." Just relax and enjoy. In addition, the Cavalier Restaurant overlooking placid Lake Ada is the perfect setting for the perfect meal. Take your pick from a wide variety of reasonably priced, exquisitely prepared entrees.

Take advantage of meal specials including the seafood buffet, served Friday and Saturday from 5 p.m. until 9 p.m., for only $5.95 and try the barbeque buffet on Thursday, 5 p.m. until 9 p.m., also for $5.95.

Breakfast specials start at $1.90 and the perfect business lunch is served from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m., weekdays — all you can eat.

Feel free to ask about our meeting rooms and banquet facilities — just right for that important conference or special party.

And, if you need lodging, what better place to relax and get a good night's rest than in one of the Cavalier Motor Inn's 100 spacious guest rooms. Whether you need a single bedroom or a spacious double bed efficiency, the Cavalier Motor Inn can accommodate you at affordable prices.
