

Kennedy's Power To Stay With Party

Magic Brushes Other Members Of Democrats

By Bruce Blossat
Washington Correspondent
ATLANTIC CITY (NEA)—The "Kennedy phenomenon" runs far beyond the lingering lament of Democrats and others against the irretrievable accident of history which struck down the late President last November.

It is a hard, enduring fact of political life in the Democratic party and the nation. It is a force to be reckoned with, perhaps for many years to come.

John F. Kennedy's brothers, Bobby and Ted, are, of course, its most powerful embodiment. But this curious magic brushes such others as his sister Eunice's husband, Sargent Shriver, and his former press secretary, Pierre Salinger.

All but Shriver have a strong prospect of holding high political office by early 1965. Ted, already senator from Massachusetts, is nearly unbeatable this fall. Attorney General Kennedy may well win a Senate seat from New York. Salinger is greatly favored to keep the seat from California he now has by appointment.

Shriver one day may enter the lists in Illinois as a candidate for governor.

In the view of some Democratic leaders attached to this group, there is more to the force, however, than just the sum of John Kennedy's family, his friends, and his close associates.

Sustaining the force, says one leader, is an all-pervading idea: That the new problems cascading down upon us in the turbulent 1960s demand fresh, youthful, vigorous and highly inventive assault.

Tough-minded men in the Kennedy wing of the party insist nevertheless that should both President Johnson and the "Kennedy group" win election this fall, the President will not — in 1965 and thereafter — find himself confronted by some sort of "Kennedy axis" bent on pushing him from the scene at the earliest practical moment.

The Kennedy group, trained in a hard school, is not given to careless judgments. A Johnson victorious in November could conceivably go on to another triumph in 1968 and a presidency lasting to January, 1973. Politicians eager to prosper at the polls will accommodate to that prospect.

To attempt serious undermining of the President's position would be to court disaster as potential wreckers. Tough though they may be, the Kennedy men know what rules they must at all costs observe.

Accommodation to Lyndon Johnson is one rule they dare not violate. They must learn to live with him for as short or as long a time as he sits in the White House.

Yet party professionals say the same strictures will lie upon the President in the event his tenure stretches beyond next January. He must then learn to live with the Kennedy group.

In the hands of those of that group who may hold office will be substantial power the President cannot control or strip away.

Their voices, perhaps more numerous later, may offer the nation different, more liberal political inclinations than those heard from Johnson. If effective, they could be a curb on him.

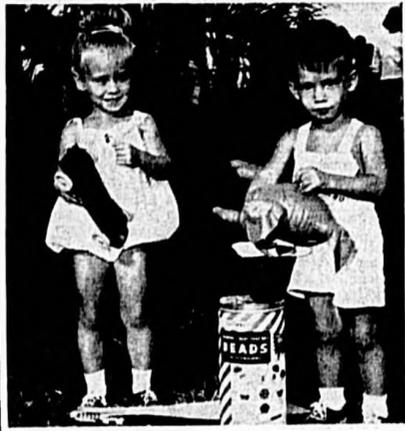

These are prospects the President clearly would have to accept if realism is to govern.

The Kennedy phenomenon cannot easily be crushed or shunted aside. Its steady substance lay beneath the surging emotional wave which broke over the 1964 convention on its closing night when Bobby Kennedy stood in the bright glare.

One party professional, young still, argues that Johnson could do no better than to accept this force for what it is, drawing on its strength wherever possible, giving it room to flourish as an identifiable entity which admittedly might gain party dominance when the opportunity develops.

ALSAC Officials Set Annual Fund Drive

By Donna Estes
State and local officials of ALSAC met with district area and platoon leaders of Central Florida last Wednesday evening at the Syrian Lebanon Building in Orlando to discuss and make plans for the teenagers march against leukemia scheduled for Sept. 13 from 1 until 5 p.m.

The march is held annually to solicit monies to maintain St. Jude's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. Two main functions of the hospital are endless research in childhood catastrophic diseases, particularly in leukemia and related diseases, and to provide the very best in diagnostic, out-patient and hospital care for its patients.

ALSAC is pledged to keep fund raising expenses to less than 10 per cent with the resulting more than 90 per cent of contributions being used to support the hospital.

Joseph F. Hatem, state director of ALSAC, in his talk at Wednesday's meeting, especially commended the 1,461

Dropouts Get New Training Course Offer

School dropouts who desire to continue their education by obtaining vocational training may do so, according to Joe Foy, manager of the Federal-State Employment Service, by taking advantage of a program being projected by the Central Florida Development Committee.

Foy said today that his office is assisting school officials in Seminole, Brevard, Lake, Orange, Volusia and Osceola counties in getting dropouts to obtain vocational training in the new Manpower Development Training Act program.

Beginning Sept. 8, classes in auto parts, appliance repair, small engine repair, air conditioning and refrigeration, mail service, clerk-typing, sales training and service station attendant will be offered by the MDTA organization in Orlando.

Students who are interested in continuing their school work but in a vocational field have been urged to participate. They may obtain additional information by contacting Foy at the local employment office, 200 S. French Ave.

Any young man or woman between the ages of 16 and 21," says Foy, "who has dropped out of school for a year or longer is eligible for the training the school will offer. It's a real chance for them to become skilled in one or more of the occupational trades which will be taught."

Other area officials present last week were Sheriff Dave Starr of Orange County, Mrs. Jim Hillman, general campaign chairman; Mrs. Rosette Lewis, secretary and Mrs. Lillian Metz, teenage march chairman.

Mrs. Sylvester Elgin, Seminole County district leader, who also attended the meeting is in need of area and platoon leaders and teenage volunteers. Anyone in the county wishing to work on the drive may contact her at her Longwood home or by calling 838-3044.

Mighty Titan In New Orbit Test For U. S.

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—An Air Force Titan-3A rocket, first of a new breed of big military space boosters, raced into the sky today on its maiden flight—an all-out orbital test.

The 124-foot Titan roared into life at 10 a. m. EST to open a 17-shot series designed to develop a powerful new workhorse for manned military space missions.

The black and white rocket, carrying a 3,750 pound lead satellite, thundered from its launch pad atop a transparent column of flame and began a 13 minute climb toward a 17,900-mile-an-hour orbit 115 miles high.

After a sweep around the globe, the Titan's third stage was to kick the dummy payload into a separate orbit.

The launch, postponed from yesterday because of a seven-hour bout with technical troubles, followed a 11 1/2 hours countdown today.

Star performer of the debut was the maneuverable top stage and its sophisticated guidance system, although the shot was a test of the whole Titan-3A system.

The rocket is the heart of a more powerful Titan-3C scheduled to hurl a two-man laboratory into a month long orbit in 1968. It also will orbit eight communications satellites on one launch in 1969 and could send military satellite inspection ships of the future into space.

The Titan-3C, set to fly in April, packs a million more pounds of thrust than the 1.5 million pound thrust Saturn-1 super rocket, now the world's most powerful known booster.

Both Titan-3 models, quick reaction rockets designed to be launched with only two minutes notice, are capable of a variety of manned and unmanned missions.

Viet Nam Boss Sees Quick Saigon Return

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI)—Premier Nguyen Khanh said today he hopes to be ready to return to Saigon and take up his duties in about two weeks.

Khanh met with Western newsmen at the resort city of Dalat where he has been convalescing in the wake of the riots and governmental upheaval which ended his one man rule last week and left at least 331 persons dead.

U. S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor visited Khanh at Dalat Monday and later issued a statement saying the prime minister hoped to return to Saigon in "the next few days."

But Khanh told the news-

School Tallies Set New Record

Peak Figures Due Next Week After Holiday

By Julian Stenstrom Associate Editor

It was still a record . . . despite the fact that Monday's enrollment for the 1964-65 school term was 724 less than Seminole County school officials had anticipated.

Walter Teague, administrative officer for the board, previously had estimated that 15,300 children would enter the county's 23 schools on the first day of the current term.

A tally this morning revealed the actual count was 14,576. The figure, however, was still 827 more than the 13,747 which entered school at this same time a year ago and is a record.

"Usually, we don't miss it that much," said Teague as he explained that it was probably because "we opened school this year a week before Labor Day and normally we don't open the doors until the day after Labor Day."

But Teague stuck by his guns—or his estimates—when he ventured the opinion that by next Tuesday morning, "We'll have no less than 15,000 pupils enrolled." He added, "And, we'll have 15,000 by Christmas."

R. T. Milwee, school superintendent, said this morning, "We had as smooth an opening day as we've ever had."

The largest enrollment was reported, as expected, by Sanford Junior High. The figure there was 1,337. Close behind the Sanford school was South 1,171—which, by the way, had the largest increase of any school over opening day figures for last year. The school registered 103 more that year than in 1963.

Crowds had 1,000, Seminole High 800, Pinecrest Elementary 921, Goldsboro Elementary 911, Lyman High 764, Lake Mary Elementary 731, Orlin 687, South Seminole Elementary 645, Bear Lake Elementary 614 and Altamonte Springs Elementary 604.

Midway Elementary had 508, Longwood Elementary 539, Westside Grammar 539, Southside Elementary 530, English Estates Elementary 424, Jackson Heights Elementary 369, Rosenwald Elementary 358, Monroe - Wilson Elementary 281, Hopper Elementary 281, Geneva Elementary 83 and Bookertown 76.

Southside, Pinecrest, Longwood and Geneva reported less enrollment than they did a year ago.

Parents Attack Limiting Of School Bus Ride Zone

By Dottie Austin City Editor

A delegation of irate parents, objecting to the elimination of courtesy bus rides for Southside School children, and the changing of opening hours from 9 a. m. to 8 a. m. met with School Superintendent R. T. Milwee, Monday in his office.

Complaints of the parents present included the facts that there are no sidewalks on Coler Ave. or Sanford Ave., nor on several other streets where children would have to travel, that traffic is heavy on these roads, that water stands on the road on rainy days, that unleashed dogs chase the children and that a mile and a half or two miles is too far for six and seven year old children to walk.

The parents also noted that the new opening hours would put the children out on the road at a very early hour, which would be more objectionable in wintertime, and in addition conflicts with the time that many people are going to work.

Milwee told parents he sympathized with the problems but under state laws the school board is not required to extend "the courtesy rides" to children inside the two mile zone unless they have the means to have buses available. Overcrowding of buses is also prohibited, with a limit of 80 children to a bus being enforced.

Parents noted several new buses have been bought this year, but this was offset, Milwee said, by the fact that several old buses have been retired from use and the school population has greatly increased.

Milwee told parents the board makes policies, which he is responsible for executing, but he would talk to the board members, ask them to note the routes which would have to be traveled by the walking children and the congestion of bicycles and cars around the school.

"We recognize your problems, and we hope that you will recognize ours," Milwee said.

In relation to the change of hours, parents asked if school opened at 9 a. m. whether a bus would then be available. The answer to this was "no."

Milwee later suggested some compromise might be worked out, and advised parents to return at 1 p. m. Sept. 10 when they could meet with the school board.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev today was reported preparing a diplomatic offensive to improve relations with West Germany in advance of his planned trip there.

Khrushchev is visiting Czechoslovakia. He held a surprise meeting near Prague Monday with the foreign ministers of Bulgaria, Hungary, and Poland, in talks paralleling those he had with Czech President Antonin Novotny.

Czech sources said the division of Germany was high on the agenda.

It was noted that the foreign minister of Communist East Germany was not present. Romania, which has been following an increasingly independent course, also was not represented.

Khrushchev has been invited to pay his first visit to West Germany next year. The invitation was extended by West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard. Although Khrushchev has not yet responded, he was assumed to have sought out the invitation through his son-in-law, Alexei Adzhubel, who visited Erhard at the time it was extended.

Pet Owners Receive Warning Of Need For Innoculations

"All pet dogs and cats should be vaccinated against rabies for the protection of the family, the community and the pet," Dr. Frank Leone, county health officer, said today.

"Although the prevalence of this deadly disease has been greatly reduced," he added, "it continues to be a threat. The possibility always exists that unvaccinated pets may be bitten by a stray dog, cat or wild animal which has had the disease."

"Animals such as stray dogs, skunks, squirrels, foxes and racoons are among the most frequent spreaders of the disease. Recently," he said, "bats have been found to be an important source of infection. In the United States more than 100 attacks on people by rabid bats have been reported.

"Children should be taught to avoid stray animals and not to feed squirrels or other animals by hand in camping areas, preserves or parks. Campers, hunters and fishermen should be cautious of con-

Johnson Calls Demo Aides To Legislative Study

By William J. Eaton United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson, fresh from a post-convention weekend at his Texas ranch, called in Democratic congressional leaders today to discuss prospects of his legislative program.

Johnson said the measure is "one of the cornerstones of Johnson's 'war on poverty' program was enacted Monday night when the President signed a measure extending food stamp program, which is aimed at improving the diet of the poor.

The President signed the bill immediately upon his return from Texas, less than two hours before the midnight deadline. If he had not signed it the bill would have died automatically by "pocket veto."

Johnson said the measure is "one of the many sensible and needed steps we have taken to apply the power of America's new abundance to the task of building a better life for every American."

Congress already has approved most of the "must" items Johnson had put on his legislative shopping list. These include the civil rights, anti-poverty, mass transit, food stamp, federal pay raise, excise tax extension, and debt limit increase bills.

But there are at least four big items left on the lawmakers' agenda: The Social Security benefits increase bill, with its medicare amendment; the Senate's $3.3 billion foreign aid authorization bill; an effort to delay Supreme Court-ordered reapportionment of state legislatures, and the $1 billion Appalachia bill. Johnson touched on these and other programs in a speech by telephone from his Texas ranch yesterday to the International Plasterers and Masons Union convention in Philadelphia.

"Let those of us who are well-fed, well-clothed and well-housed, never forget and never overlook those who live on the outskirts of hope," he said.

"While we work to maintain peace in the world, let us not forget that here at home we are locked in battle against poverty, ignorance and disease."

He urged a medicare program saying "we want our citizens who enjoy a longer life to know that the savings of their productive years will not be wiped away by hospital costs in their later years."

"We have the wisdom and will to build a great society in America," Johnson said.

"On Valor's Side" is the title of a new book about a Marine's own story of Parris Island and Guadalcanal.

The book, fast becoming a top seller—perhaps maybe a best seller, was written by a former Sanford youngster, Grady Gallant, who graduated from Seminole High School in the late 1930's.

Grady is now a staff writer for the Chattanooga News-Free Press. His book was published by Doubleday. He's the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Gallant of Lake Markham.

E. S. Douglas provides the word that the adult high school program will open at Seminole High in Sanford on Sept. 8. Registration, says Douglas, will begin at 7 p.m. The school provides courses for credit toward obtaining a high school diploma.

The Red Cross and Civil Defense teams worked a total of 250 manhours during the approach, visit and aftermath of Hurricane Cleo. The estimate was made by A. B. (Tommy) Peterson, ARC disaster director, and he says the figure is of "key personnel" only. Many, many others devoted all the time necessary to cope with the impending trouble, Peterson added.

There were 256 persons sheltered in six strategic spots in the county and of these 175 received one meal and 50 were served two meals when they decided to ride out the night in the shelter even after the all-clear was sounded.

The list of volunteers, the director said, is impressive and ranged from Navy and National Guard members to local Boy Scouts. "Everyone co-operated fully," said Peterson as he reviewed the situation and, way in the back of his mind, began planning for the next crisis.

The cost to the Red Cross is estimated at between $150 and $500. Some of the supplies will be preserved for future use should the need arise.

Democrats Due Approval From Union Officials

By William J. Eaton
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The AFL-CIO high command convenes today to place a union label on the national Democratic ticket and try to line up rains and tie members against Barry M. Goldwater.
An endorsement of Lyndon B. Johnson for president and a condemnation of GOP presidential nominee Goldwater were certain to be approved. Council and the General Board of the 13 million member labor organization.
Union sources doubted there would be even a simple dissenting vote when the General Board, composed of representatives from every AFL-CIO union, is asked to approve Johnson's candidacy for a four-year term.
In another politically sensitive area, the AFL-CIO scheduled a conference Wednesday of 300 union leaders to discuss ways to bring about full compliance with the new civil rights law.

AFL-CIO sources indicated that part of this program would be aimed at explaining that the law does not mean Negroes will displace white workers. Such a fear is said to assist in part for a "black list" sentiment against the administration among some union members in northern cities.

Roland Lyons Funeral Today

Funeral services for Roland C. Lyons, 72, of Rt. 1, Matt Land, who died Saturday, were scheduled for 2 p.m. today at Casselberry Community Methodist Church with the Rev. Delmas Copeland officiating. Burial was to take place in Palm Cemetery, with Winter Park Masonic Lodge 232 conducting graveside services.
Born in Covington, Ky., Mr. Lyons moved here in 1947 from Portsmouth, Va. He was a member of Community Methodist Church of Casselberry, of the Old Glory American Legion Post 183 of Altamonte Springs and of Crescent Masonic Lodge 32, F. & AM, Cecilio, W. Va.

Smathers Calls For Probe Of 'Cane Handling

WASHINGTON (UPI)—reasured by the Weather Bureau that Cleo would pass about 20 miles offshore and to changes the U. S. Weather Bureau misinformed Miami about hurricane Cleo's power and direction.
Smathers said Monday that many Miamians said they went to bed Wednesday night stands "the measuring equipment essential for determining the strength of hurricanes was blown away by the storm" early Thursday.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters, which represents about 200 capital stock property insurance companies, said Monday the insurance companies expect to pay out $65 million for property damage caused by Cleo and the Corps of Engineers said South Florida caught only part of Cleo's full force.

The Board of Underwriters said the $65 million figure does not include damage to automobiles or boats.
The Corps of Engineers said South Floridians got "only a taste" of Cleo's force because the storm's "weak" side touched land at low tide.
If Cleo had come ashore at high tide between Goulds and Perrine, south of Miami, damage would have been two or three times as great, the engineers said.

Stormy Scenes To Help State Lure Tourists

By Mrs. Frank White
The Florida Development Commission unveiled its fall and winter advertising campaign Monday when the commission received a $1,320 rebate check from the Wall Street Journal.
The check represented savings from a cooperative advertising discount program and was part of $200,000 in savings that have been distributed under the program, a commission spokesman said.
Florida's tourist promotion campaign this year and next will also include a contest and a "fall sale" idea promoting inexpensive Florida vacation packages.
Louis Benito of Tampa, who handles the state's tourist program, said one million copies of a 37-page catalog of package vacations will be distributed throughout the country.
Santa Claus will act as a Florida salesman during the holiday promotion campaign, which will show a picture of the jolly old gent floating in the Florida Surf on an inner tube and with the slogan "Look who's in Florida."

Late registrations among Florida's young men turning 18 seriously hamper Selective Service operations aimed at helping them and the National State Selective Service Director, Colonel Harold C. Wall said recently.

You'll Be Seeing Red

This is the Year of the Redhead. Now this may not be as important to scientists as the International Geophysical Year or the Year of the Quiet Sun. But to non-scientists, of whom there are quite a few, it's an interesting piece of news.

The red hot flash comes from the hairdressers of the nation. And if you men don't think what they say goes—straight to milady's head—just take a look at your wife or girl friend in a few months.

The hairdressers have decreed that red hair will be the thing this fall and winter. Not a "hot" red, mind you, but a "cool" red. A "cool" red is red with brown tones in it.

Why this rush to redheads? Well, because red hair will snap up the black that women will be wearing this coming season. And because it will be a change from blondes and brunettes.

And, doggone it, because there's just something about a redhead. Or hadn't you noticed?

Where Will We Put 'Em?

Bad news. It is not only our increasing NUMBERS that we have to worry about. It's our increasing SIZE as well.

It has been reported before that Junior is generally taller than his dad. Today's GI averages an inch and a quarter taller and 20 pounds heavier than the Doughboy of World War I.

It's not just a male phenomenon. Susie is also taller than her mother. Whatever the reason for this growth—nutrition or a combination of things—it shows no signs of stopping.

While the population explosion has been pretty obvious, the consequences of this trend to bigness have not yet become too apparent to the general public, though the designers of bus seats, automobiles and wearing apparel have long been aware of it.

As with any other kind of change, someone stands to cash in on it.

Bedding makers are good candidates for this fortunate category.

For years they have been campaigning for bigger beds and now report that it is paying off in sales. The old-fashioned double bed is doomed, they say.

In its place is the super double bed—either "queen size" or "king size." The one is six inches wider and 10 inches longer than a standard double bed; the other is no less than two feet wider and 10 inches longer.

This is all well and good, but where does it end? Bigger beds, or at least, bigger people, require bigger houses; bigger houses require more land and lumber and other materials, and so on and so on. Eventually there's going to be a squeeze somewhere.

One begins to suspect that the Lilliputians were really glad to get rid of Gulliver.

Salute To Slide Rule

We Americans are great ones to honor people.

We hold special days and nights and dinners in tribute to.

We erect fountains and statues and monuments in memory of.

We name bridges and highways and dams and theaters and zoos and hospitals and museums to keep ever in memory.

We create parks and malls and bridge paths and wooded vales as living memorials to.

We even name automobiles and ships after.

Almost everyone of distinction has been recognized. Everyone, that is, except the statistician.

This is a strange oversight, indeed, in view of the fact that we couldn't maintain our amazing level of miscellaneous knowledge for five minutes if the statistical whizzes weren't constantly breaking down everything into little bitsy facts or fragments thereof. Including the oddest things.

Do you need to know, for example, how much lint is included in all the dust, dirt and refuse accumulated in New York City in a year? Some statistician has it for you. Why, no one knows. But he has it.

The statistician reaches his peak in baseball. It's not enough for the fan to know a player's batting or fielding average. The figure friends can tell you exactly what any left-handed hitter you may name is hitting against any right-handed pitcher, or any combination of vice versa.

They know to a split second how long it takes a right-handed or left-handed batter to get to first base if (a) he has been out late the night before or (b) if he has gone to bed real early. (It makes a difference, they say.)

No matter what bit of odd-ball information you may want, you can bet that some foresighted, paint-taking statistical genius has dug it up for you—even before you ever dreamed you would ever want it. Or even if you don't want it.

So how about everybody chipping in to erect the biggest doggone slide rule anyone has ever seen as a national shrine to the unsung hero who provides all the impressive facts and percentages we toss around as though we invented them?

It figures, doesn't it?

Thought For Today

No man can sincerely try to help another without helping himself.—J. B. Webster.

Lyle C. Wilson Says:

Your Niche In History

United Press International

Much more than the composition of the legislatures of the 50 states is involved in the Supreme Court's one-man-one-vote ruling which now is being disputed in Congress.

The one-man-one-vote rule would apply equally to the election and allotment of presidential electors among presidential candidates. Any citizen could file suit in federal court demanding for himself or others common justice in conformity with the Supreme Court's one-man-one-vote. It is a wonder that some common man has not already done just that because the little guy who files the suit surely will reap some fame for himself and a foot note niche in U. S. history.

The citizen presumably would win. And the present system of allotting each state's electoral votes on a winner take-all basis would be sunk without a trace.

The importance of his in that some members of Congress have been trying for years to reform the electoral college. Their proposal would cut racial, labor and religious pressure groups down to a size commensurate with their numbers. It would deprive big American cities of their present overwhelming influence in shaping presidential platforms, in the selection of presidential candidates and in the election of presidents.

As things now stand, a popular vote majority of one in New York State is sufficient to give the winner all 43 of New York's electoral votes. Racial, labor and religious pressure groups tend to concentrate in the great cities. New York has been described as an area typical of bloc vote control. There is a great bloc or pressure group concentration in three great New York cities, New York City, Buffalo and Rochester. One, two or more such concentrations largely determine the presidential vote in 11 other states. They are: Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Missouri, Wisconsin, Maryland and Minnesota.

These 11 states plus New York represent 260 electoral votes, just eight shy of enough to win the White House this year. Sen. Karl E. Mundt, (R-S. D.), Sen. Thurston B. Morton, (R-Ky.), and other propose to reduce electoral college inequalities by means of a constitutional amendment.

It would provide for election to the electoral college from presidential districts in each state, these conforming roughly to existing congressional districts and in the identical number. Each state also would choose two electors at large. Thus each state would have in the electoral college then as now as many votes as it had representatives and senators in Congress.

If that system had been in effect in 1960, Richard M. Nixon would have been elected with an electoral vote of 282, according to calculations of the American Good Government Society of Washington, D. C. John F. Kennedy in 1960 won all 18 electoral votes of New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Texas and Michigan. Under the proposed system, it is calculated that Nixon would have won in New York 19, Pennsylvania 15, Illinois 14, Texas 8, and Michigan 10. He also would have shared the electoral vote in several other states. Kennedy would have gained at Nixon's expense in an even dozen states, but it would not have been enough.

The Mundt-Morton system help the Republican party and hurt the Democratic party, which is strong in the great urban centers. But that is of no matter if the winner-take-all system is, in fact, unconstitutional. Some little guy should bring suit.

DeGaulle In Good Spot

By Joseph W. Grigg

United Press International

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle of France is in the position of being able to say "I told you so."

It is even more gratifying for him to be able to say so to the United States.

What put him in this mood was the latest upheaval in South Viet Nam, climaxed by resignation of Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh from the presidency.

For De Gaulle this confirmed what he has been saying for a year—that the Vietnam situation is in a hopeless mess, that there is not the remotest prospect of military victory and that the United States would do well to get out.

The way out proposed by De Gaulle is a new Geneva conference attended by the major powers, including Communist China, and by the states of former Indochina. Its aim would be neutralization of Southeast Asia.

Repeatedly

De Gaulle first proposed this in August, 1963. He has been repeating it at intervals ever since.

He argues that the United States can not hope to win a guerrilla — type war against Communists in Southeast Asia.

The fact France failed to do so 10 years ago with an army of 400,000 men in Indochina is conclusive proof for him.

Continuation of the present war in South Viet Nam, De Gaulle argues, constitutes a chronic risk to peace between the great powers. He points to the recent Gulf of Tonkin crisis involving United States warships as a case in point.

In these circumstances, De Gaulle asserts, neutralization is the only answer—that is, complete removal of Southeast Asia from the East — West power struggle.

Easy On Details

Just how this could be achieved De Gaulle was not explained. French officials are busy about details of how an agreement could be reached after a conference is called.

But the French were far from impressed by the arguments of former U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge on his mission to explain American policy in Southeast Asia to the Europeans.

Lodge agreed with the French that the ultimate solution must be political. But he insisted it would be fatal to call a conference with the Communists now. He argued this could only result in subject surrender by the West, followed by the swift loss of all Southeast Asia to communism.

Dr. Crane's Worry Clinic

Joan wonders how it would be possible for her to fall ardently in love with a stranger. Yet love can be developed out of original casual acquaintance if both parties simply follow the precise formula for developing romance. Scrapbook this case and its follow-up tomorrow.

CASE T-462: Joan J., aged 24, is a school teacher.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I met a school principal through the Scientific Marriage Foundation.

"He lives in a city about 100 miles away, and we have written to each other for several weeks.

"I'll admit his letters are very interesting and the snapshot he sent me reveals that he is nice looking.

"But I don't love him at all, for I haven't even met him in person.

"So how could I ever fall in love with him?"

"Isn't the old saying true which states that marriages are made in heaven?"

Love Chemistry

If you go through the proper motion, you will soon begin to feel the corresponding emotion!

That's an axiom of psychology.

It works just as precisely as other laws of chemistry and physics.

For example, if you take a piece of wire; then bend it into a loop and twirl it in your hand, an electric current will instantly flow through that wire.

You will not get an electrical shock, for the current is so slight in a single loop of wire.

But a dynamo is simply composed of thousands of loops of wire, and from that dynamo comes the current to run a factory or light an entire town.

In your high school physics laboratory you can prove the fact that even one loop of wire will create an electrical current.

Furthermore the electrical current will flow, whether you are a Greek or Russian, an African, Chinese or Caucasian.

Electricity will be created as soon as the proper situation arises on which it depends.

For God Almighty thus surrounded our globe with invisible lines of force that run from the North Pole to the South Pole.

Cutting them with a loop of wire automatically and inexorably starts an electrical current.

Well, we have psychological laws which God Almighty also established.

And one of those psychological maxims states that if a boy and girl are thrown into personal contact and if they even go through the proper motions of romance, soon romance will develop.

Love is as elemental and inexorable as the electrical current that results from twirling a loop of wire.

Many of you teenagers disbelieve this psychological law, but ALWAYS works, if you follow the precise prescription.

I have won wagers with many older students who also disbelieved, even when they were in graduate school at Northwestern University.

For love can be developed out of original casual contacts. It can also turn to ashes, yet be revived anew if the parties involved will follow psychological rules.

Divorces develop because couples fail to distinguish between true love vs. sexual infatuation, and thus rush into selfish unions.

In both true love and physical infatuation, you feel excited, ecstatic, with butterflies in your stomach. Your pulse pounds and you may feel trembly all over.

Thus, those physical findings cannot be trusted! So you must use your brain to rule your heart. See tomorrow's follow-up.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Letters To The Editor

Editor, Herald:

The pathetic picture of a starving boxer dog in The Sanford Herald several days ago should strongly emphasize to the people of Seminole County the great need for a Humane Society in this area.

Last week a group of interested people met to form such a society and we sincerely hope more and more compassionate citizens will join in this much needed project. The aims of such an organization, as presented to the group by a representative of the Florida State Humane Society, Mrs. Ruth Guttlick of Pensacola, are as follows:

1. The education of children and adults as to the proper care and handling of animals.
2. A shelter for the care of abandoned, unwanted and injured animals.
3. Placement in good homes of animals from this shelter provided they are in good health and will receive good care.
4. And last, but by no means least, the vigilant observation for mistreatment of animals in this county.

This organization hopes by hard work, fund raising projects and voluntary donations to accomplish the above aims and we need the moral and physical support of all interested citizens, young and old, to see that our animal population is offered everything possible in human kindness which they rightfully deserve.

Watch The Herald for the announcement of our next meeting. We extend an invitation to all.

Editor, Herald:

I am writing to express the importance I place on a charity drive the second week in September. But it is not an ordinary drive because it will be carried on by the teenagers of our community.

On Sept. 13 there will be the Teenagers March on Leukemia, beginning at 1 p.m.

This march gives the teenagers of today an opportunity to show those who think of us as delinquents just what we can accomplish. This, along with the fact that money collected by teenage volunteers with official kits and ALSAC (aiding Leukemia Stricken American Children) identification, will allow the St. Jude Hospital of Mercy for those less fortunate than us physically and financially, without consideration of race or creed, to continue operation in Memphis, Tenn.

It was all begun by a promise comedian Danny Thomas made to God, and today is carried on by the Teenagers March.

So neighbors, give from your hearts, and teenagers please volunteer! In the Casselberry area teenagers may call 338-6046 if you are willing to help.

We who are healthy have much for which to thank God.

Phone Manners Check Urged Of Subscribers

By Dottie Austin
City Editor

"How are your telephone manners?" asks Robert Shedden, local manager of the Southern Bell Telephone Company.

"Our telephone manners are habits, either good or bad, and often create an image of our business or of ourselves," said Shedden.

"The habit of speaking clearly into the transmitter with a smile in our voice creates an image we want people to have of us and is a good way to make friends and influence people," he noted.

"Test yourself using the outline below. After you have to take your score by working on any weak points, place your test in the come-up file for 30 days and then test yourself again. You may be surprised at the improvement," he suggests.

Here is the quiz prepared by the Telephone Company. Give yourself five points for each "yes", two points for a "sometimes" and zero for a "no".

Do you answer promptly with a smile?

Do you greet the caller pleasantly?

Do you identify yourself properly?

Do you explain waits?

When the caller asks for your boss, never ask "who is calling, please"?

Do you ask questions tactfully?

Do you take the message accurately?

Do you always have a pad and pencil handy?

Do you check the number and be sure it is correct before dialing?

Do you allow time to answer?

Do you ask if it is convenient to talk?

Do you speak in a natural tone?

Do you visualize the person?

Do you say "thank you" and "you're welcome", "please" and "I'll be glad to"??

Do you listen attentively? ?

Do you use the customer's name?

Do you speak directly into the transmitter?

Do you apologize for mistakes and never put the blame on "they"?

Do you end the call properly?

Do you replace receiver gently and follow through on commitments made?

If you score 90 to 100, mark yourself Excellent; 80 to 90 gives you a score of Very Good; 70 to 79, Fair; below 70 - tsk! tsk! tsk!

Arabs Plotting War Strategy

CAIRO (UPI) — Foreign ministers of 13 Arab countries today reviewed their joint military preparations for possible war with Israel over diversion of the Jordan River.

The Arab nations have repelled to Israel's Jordan diversion project with a project of their own for siphoning river waters before they reach Israeli territory.

The foreign ministers opened their meeting Monday with calls for concerted Arab action to "liberate Arab lands from imperialism and Zionism." Their meeting is the curtain-raiser to an Arab summit conference to start Saturday in Alexandria.

Since 1948, opposition to Israel has been the main force for unity in the chronically disunited Arab world. The official Arab position is that Palestine is an Arab country and that the Israelis are illegally occupying it.

The Arabs held a summit meeting last January. At that time they agreed on a joint military command in any war with Israel and drew up preliminary plans for the Jordan diversion project.

Allamonte PTA Board Approves Project, Budget

By Julia Barton

The executive board of the Allamonte Springs Elementary PTA, meeting last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Louise Korshus, president, approved the budget and project for the year to be presented at tonight's general membership meeting.

It was announced that all meetings of the board will be held at the school.

All committees have been assigned and are ready for work. DeBary Legion Post To Meet

By Mrs. Frank White

Commander William G. Williams of DeBary's Herbert D. Gibb American Legion Post 259 urgently requests that all members attend the first meeting of the 1964-65 year which is scheduled this Thursday at 7:30 p. m. at the Community Center.

Important coming events will be discussed, committee chairmen named and Dr. Luther Tarbell, first vice commander in charge of membership, will present plans of the membership drive and prizes to be offered.

Richard Laine, who represented the post at Boys State in Tallahassee this summer, will make his report.

The post and auxiliary invite the public to inspect the new auxiliary meeting room at the center which has been decorated with a color scheme of mint green. A conference table, with seating room for approximately 40 persons, and another air conditioning unit have been donated by Mr. and Mrs. Arne Erickson and drapes for the room are being made.

DeBary Aids Family In Need During Threat Of Hurricane

By Mrs. Frank White

Impending threat of Hurricane Cleo last Wednesday brought to the attention of DeBary residents and organizations the serious plight of Mrs. Clarence E. Coyer and her seven children who had been making their home in an abandoned shack near a fishing camp on the St. Johns River.

There was no plumbing in the building and it is assumed that Mrs. Coyer, who is expecting another child within a few weeks, secured drinking water for her family from the nearby camp.

They were taken to the DeBary Fire Hall where they received food and dry clothing and were given shelter throughout the hurricane.

The local Freezette supplied milk for the family; medical provided by members of the fire department, were prepared by Harrison Benninger and clothing and other aids came from the American Legion, the VFW, the DeBary Business and Professional Women's Club and the Baptist Church and from many residents of the community. Cots, blankets and clean linens also were provided by families of the volunteer firemen.

By Friday ample clothing had been secured for all the children and sufficient funds had been donated to send the family by bus to Columbus, Ohio, where Mrs. Coyer's father and brother live.

Officials of the various organizations have publicly expressed their deep appreciation to members of their groups and to residents of DeBary for their generous assistance in helping Mrs. Coyer and her children in their time of distress.

Drysdale Fans 12 To Set New Major League Strikeout Record

Has Fanned Over 200 For 5th Season

By George C. Langford
UPI Sports Writer

If Don Drysdale isn't bubbling with joy today over his new strikeout record, it's understandable.

Lonesome Don, the only healthy member of the Los Angeles Dodgers' "big three" pitching staff, struck out 18 St. Louis Cardinals Monday night in hurling a 12-3 victory, his 15th.

His strikeouts boosted his season total to 201, the fifth season he has passed the 200 mark, thus breaking Christy Mathewson's National League record of four 200-plus strikeout years for a career.

But the record was tempered by the news at game time that his strikeout sidekick, Sandy Koufax, has been advised by doctors not to pitch again this season.

Dr. Robert Kerlan, the Dodgers' team doctor, said X-rays showed that Koufax would not require surgery for his left arm, injured while sliding at Milwaukee Aug. 8 but Dr. Kerlan told Koufax not to pick up a baseball for two weeks.

With Koufax sidelined along with Johnny Podres, Drysdale is the only remaining starter from the trio which pitched the Dodgers to the world championship last season.

The prognosis on Koufax rushed Drysdale into position to lead the major leagues in strikeouts for the fourth year. He is only 21 behind the idol Koufax. Don started the Dodgers rout Monday night with two-run single in the fifth inning off loser Mike Cuellar 5-4, snapping the Cardinal's winning streak at six games.

Johnny Roseboro doubled home three runs, Wes Parker collected three hits including a homer for Los Angeles and Maury Wills rapped a two-run homer.

The Minnesota Twins, who open a three-game series with the American League leading Baltimore Orioles tonight, defeated the Washington Senators 2-1 in the only major league contest Monday.

Reliever Bill Pleis rescued Jim Grant in the eighth inning to preserve Grant's 11th victory against 10 losses. Grant had a three-hitter until he issued two walks and Don Blasingame's single scored one run and left runners at second and third.

Pleis entered the game and struck out pinchhitter Fred Valentine to end the threat and he set the Senators down in the ninth. Zollo Versalles homered in the third and Jimmie Hall doubled home a run in the fourth off loser Buster Narum 9-11.

The American League's three-team pennant battle swings to the Midwest and West tonight. In addition to the Orioles game at Minnesota, second-place Chicago hosts Detroit and the third place New York Yankees will be at Los Angeles.

Sanford Area Bowlers Prepare For 1964-65 League Seasons

As all of the other Fall Leagues make last minute preparations for the coming season, here's a report that the Navy Intramural League is already having one of its many position nights.

Monday night in the Navy (American) Intramural Bowling League found VAIH-3 Line going against Acey/Ducey for positions one and two and Wing 'H' meeting the VAIH-3 Oddballs.

Friday morning the Navy Vives League will hold its 'Jam-day' and awarded trophies for the recently concluded Summer League. A special vote of thanks to McRoberts Tires for sponsoring this group.

Trophies will be presented to Verna Bolton for her high average of 160. Similar honors in the high series department will go to Alice Sexton for her 543 set. The high game was Joan Brewer's 210.

Getting recognized for their series and game with handicap are Marla Foy, a 628 series (and I might mention that Marla's been bowling less than a year. Much less, come to think of it, cause she just started to bowl in the summer league in July). Pat Wills won game with handicap, a 230.

A salute to the first place team of the RVAH-9 Bombers, Pat Siple, Vicki McGough, Liz Klein and Susy Reno. This league will officially start next Friday with 20 teams competing.

SEC Elevens Begin Work On 1964 Campaign

United Press International

Southeastern Conference football teams began preparations today for the 1964 campaign. The first day of fall practice Monday was devoted to the traditional practice of picture taking by news photographers.

There was an exception. The Florida Gators, who meet Southern Methodist Sept. 19, went through their fourth day of practice, and Coach Ray Graves was anything but pleased with what he saw.

"They were sluggish both mentally and physically," Graves said. "We're going to have to start doing a lot better than this." Graves ordered a canvas stretched around the Gator practice field and said future practice sessions would be held in secret.

At Alabama, Coach Paul Bear Bryant said he wanted to "see who's who" before beginning physical contact work.

"Our first eight or nine practices will be devoted solely to learning and relearning fundamentals," Bryant said.

The Crimson Tide opens its season at Tuscaloosa Sept. 19 against Georgia.

New Bulldog Coach Vince Dooley looked over his charges Monday and said again that Georgia's main weaknesses were lack of depth in the line, a proven quarterback and team speed.

"As I've said before, we are going to dedicate ourselves to presenting a respectable football team," said the former Auburn assistant. "How good a team it will be, I don't know."

Tennessee Coach Doug Dickey pointed to tackle as the Volunteers' weak spot.

"There are only three lettermen competing for the position, and there's not a two-year letterman in the group," said Dickey.

The Vols will be a relatively green team with 40 sophomores, 23 juniors and only 8 seniors among the 71 candidates.

There were 23 lettermen among the 70 prospects at Louisiana State University, where Coach Charley McClendon sought a replacement for suspended halfback Danny LeBlanc.

McLendon also kept a watchful eye on the condition of quarterback Pat Screen, fullback Don Schwab and center Ruffin Rodriguez, all of whom underwent surgery for injuries sustained last season.

Basilio Claims Boxers Should Be Own Pilots

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N. Y. (NEA) — Carmen Basilio knows what's wrong with boxing.

"It's not with the fighters," said the former welterweight and middleweight champion of the world. "I'll tell you what's wrong—the managerial and the politicians. Get rid of them. A fighter should be his own manager and he could be if only the state athletic commissions would do their jobs."

"They got deputy boxing commissioners. They watch a wrestling show; they work maybe two weeks a year and get $9,300. That's pretty good pay."

What about Al Weill and Gus D'Amato, who nursed their fighters carefully?

"They moved Patterson and Marciano good. They were good managers. But too many guys are looking only for a buck. Before a promoter makes a fight, he should have to present it to the commission and if they did their job, they could prevent a kid overmatching himself. Let him hire seconds and trainers and if he doesn't like them he can change them."

"Why should the other guy get 3 1/2 per cent and up to 50 per cent?"

Dark Days Descend On Giants; Alvin's Days May Be Numbered

By Sandy Padwa

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. NEW YORK (NEA) — Alvin Dark always was the type of player who best you with his mind as often as his bat.

That's why he became manager of the San Francisco Giants in 1961 immediately after his active career ended.

From Bill Higney and Tom Sieehan, Alvin Dark received a ball club with talent, potential and more important problem ballplayers.

Since Dark apparently is not the most patient and tactful of men, his feelings usually were a matter for public discussion, just as they are now.

Orlando Cepeda, the big, temperamental first-baseman, has been the main recipient of Dark's remarks since the 1962 season and the World Series loss to the Yankees, when Cepeda hit just .158.

Just one season before Cepeda had led the National League in home runs and RBIs, but Dark has castigated him with this statement: "I'm sick and tired of people leading the league in home runs and runs batted in and not helping us any."

Dark also has had trouble with the Giant management this year, meaning owner Horace Stoneham who judges his team by one thing — wins.

Stoneham was reported to be so dissatisfied with the Giants that Dark could have been fired any time this season without surprising anyone.

Compounding the whole situation are the remarks Dark, a Louisiana resident, made in a column written by one of the New York area's most competent and thorough reporters.

It said: "We have trouble because we have so many Negro and Spanish-speaking players on this team. They are just not able to perform up to the white ballplayers when it comes to mental alertness. You can't make Negro and Spanish players have the pride in their team that you get from white players."

Dark said he had been "misquoted" and some of the statements in the interview had been "deformed." The author said he would stand by the story.

So the Giants find themselves in what could become baseball's biggest racial incident since Jackie Robinson came up in 1947.

The Giants also are in a pennant race and right now it's hard to determine if they can stay in it with a situation as strained as that as this.

speak, it is in generalities like 'he has never shown me that' or 'he treats me very nice.' Even Cepeda said that.

Willie Mays, whom Dark appointed captain of the Giants this year, says the controversy will not affect the club. Coach Whitey Lockman says the same thing. Pitcher Bob Hendley, on the very night of Dark's now famous New York press conference, said the Giants were a very close team.

Then there was Willie McCovey, the huge outfielder from Mobile, Ala.

He was standing alone waiting a turn in batting practice. The subject came up and Willie said something about not wanting to speak for the other players. He wouldn't reveal his own feelings, either.

That's the way it is on the Giants these days. It is hard to determine just how they're thinking and until it's cleared up, the pennant race will be doubly tough — for everyone connected with the club.

First Workout In Pads Held By SJH Squad

By David Higginbotham
Herald Sports Writer

Sanford Junior High's Braves held their first practice in full equipment Monday.

The youngsters started their workout with punting and passing drills that put the squad on their toes. Candidates for the Braves 33-member team went over pass patterns and the receivers looked great.

Wayne Fakas and Fred Weber led conditioning exercises and made it hot inside those uniforms. Fakas and Weber are both ninth graders and played on the Braves squad last season.

Backfield coaches, Owen McCarron and Ronnie Hunt ran the backs hard on carrying the ball through the line. It appears that the Braves' backfield will be able to move the ball and with the proper blocking from the line could make it rough on the Oviedo Lions Cubs in the opener.

Head Coach Dan Polham and aide Ed Buckner ran the line through blocking positions against the dummy bags. If the line will smack their opponents as hard as they have been hitting the dummies the backs should have no trouble finding the hole.

The Braves finished Monday's workout by running wind sprints and going through more exercises.

WE ASSUME everyone has heard about the big USO Show which is being planned by the VAH-1 Tigrettes, utilizing all the talented Navy folks who can entertain others and put on a good old-fashioned vaudeville show.

Leader of the Tigrettes is Suzann Koozer, and all the members of the club are working hard to put on a really good show, and raise some money for the U.S.O.

They are auditioning at the ballroom again tonight at 7:30 p.m. so if you sing, dance, play an instrument, pantomime, do imitations or anything entertaining, get on over there and volunteer your services. There'll be prizes for the best performers.

All the other Wives clubs have been asked to work on short skits which will be interspersed between acts. The whole thing sounds like a real good program. Don't be bashful, now. Get with it.

Talented Elaine Orz, vice president of the Tigrettes is director of the show. Elaine has had a good deal of experience along this line and has mapped out a whole schedule of rehearsals to pull the show together.

Other Tigrettes who are heading up committees working on the project include Dot Oakes and Clois Owen, who are in charge of securing prizes; Barbara Carlson and Carol Ferrier, who are working on advertising and publicity and Mrs. Bob

All this to retaliate on the cruising husbands, hunting the shores of the Med for the ultra-modern lassies in topless swim suits.

Next item on the social calendar for VAH-1, Det. 8 is a desert bridge at Sue Jamison on September 3rd.

MAY WE CALL your attention, Navy wives, (as a sort of public service) to the Seminole County Business School?

It is a public school, run by the county school system, and if you are contemplating going back to work while your husband is gone to sea, or just want to get out in the business world again, this is the place to start.

There is only a small registration fee, and they have both day and evening classes, where you can either brush up on old skills or learn new ones.

They have just about every kind of office work in their curriculum, including, of course, shorthand, typing and bookkeeping. In addition there are courses in how to operate various business machines, including the IBM keypunch, business law, business arithmetic, business English and spelling, secretarial practice and consumer economics.

If you are considering taking a selling job, maybe part time or on your own time, you might benefit from a course in business psychology, salesmanship, or effective speaking or both.

Mrs. Penrose Love tells us that the school has more calls from employers for trained office and sales personnel than they can fill, and students often begin work, even before they have finished you could continue to study at their courses, in which case you could continue to study at night.

Don't be scared off by unemployment figures you read often. Skilled, trained employees are always in great demand—much more than you might realize.

So if you want to get out in the business world, either because you need to or just because you want to, see Penny Love at the business school, (corner of Palmetto and Ninth St.) and sign up for a brush-up or for something new.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We have always avoided political arguments with our friends, but in recent weeks my husband and I have been drawn into several. The last was at our home. When my husband learned that our out-of-town house guest who had been his lifelong friend, was on the other side of the fence politically, he was astounded. A hot argument took place, which ended a friendship of many years. I say a person's political belief, like his religion, is his own business, and should not interfere with friendship. My husband says I am wrong—a person's political belief is an index to his character, and reveals his compassion (or lack of it) for his fellow man. He says he wants no part of friends who support the line of thinking that one political party is now supporting. I would like your opinion.

ART'S WIFE
DEAR WIFE: If the matter of compassion is clearly evident in one side or the other, your husband is right. And where can one better practice compassion than with a friend? I say, stay in contact, talk it out, be sure of your facts, and don't become emotional. To end the friendship would also end all hope of educating a probably well-intentioned, but misguided citizen.

DEAR ABBY: I was going steady with a boy I thought a lot of, but whenever we were alone he would try to get fresh with me. I always managed to keep him in his place for a while, but not for very long. I finally asked him if he was going with me because he thought that in time he might be able to break down my will power. He said, no, that he really loved me. He never called after that. Do you think he is angry because I doubted his love? Or do you think I was right about him in the first place? What should I do now?

WONDERING
DEAR WONDERING: Quit wondering. You were right about him in the first place. Forget him.

DEAR ABBY: After putting up with an impossible man for nine years, I finally got a divorce. We separated several times, but I always went back to him because of the children, who are now four and seven. I agreed to let him pick up the children at ten Sunday mornings and bring them back at seven. Now I would like to put a stop to it for the following reasons: It seems that my former husband has several girl friends, and each Sunday he takes the children to one of their homes. One Sunday the children reported that "Daddy was acting lovey-dovey with a red-headed lady." Another Sunday they said "Daddy was acting lovey-dovey with a yellow-haired lady." Need I say more? Also he has brought them home as late as ten. I don't think this is the proper atmosphere for young children. What can be done?

THEIR MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: A call to your lawyer is in order. Daddy is out of line.

7:30-8:30 P.M. ABC. Combat. "The Bridge at Chalons" (Rerun) Guest star Lee Marvin such a forceful portrayal of a nervous, vitriolic demolition expert that he makes the show worth while. In the story he and Saunders (Vic Morrow) take on a mission to blow a bridge behind enemy lines. Animosity between the two provides as much tension as the dangerous situation deep within German territory.
9-9:30 P.M. CBS. Petticoat Junction. (Rerun) Plenty of homespun humor but not as many laughs as usual. "Tomboy" Betty Jo (Linda Kaye) makes little romantic headway with Orville Miggins (Jimmy Hawkins) who favors her only because of her mechanical abilities with his car. Kate (Ilea Bendrecht) tries and falls to switch Orville's session from his jealousy to boy daughter, but Uncle Joe steps in to prove it takes a man to find the way to another man's heart.

9-10 P.M. ABC. The Greatest Show on Earth. "Lion on Fire" (Rerun) This was the premiere show of this circus series and we must say it started out on the right track. Palanca, as circus boss Johnny Slate tries to help rehabilitate a lion tamer who had been disabled by one of his animals. His hopes are dashed by deeper gash in the man's mind than the one that crippled his body. Actual scenes of lions working with fire are excellent. Harry Guardino and Joan Freeman are featured. Highly recommended.

Jacoby On Bridge By Oswald Jacoby

The first thing to learn about a bidding convention is when to use it. The second is when not to use it.

North and South were using the Jacoby ace convention so that North could have asked for aces by jumping to five clubs over his partner's three no trump rebid. On the other hand North was more interested in finding out about the queen and jack of diamonds than about aces and kings and therefore North decided to rebid his diamond suit and see what his partner would do.

sponse of five hearts to show two of them and South continued to five no-trump.

This five-no-trump call was the Blackwood request for kings but in expert circles the bid is more than a request for kings in that it also guarantees that the partnership holds all four aces.

This gave North a chance to do some thinking of his own. Why was South interested in a grand slam? He had shown a minimum type hand by his three no-trump rebid. He held two aces and in addition it appeared certain that he would show up with the queen of diamonds and the king of hearts. In that case North could count 13 tricks so North bid the grand slam in no-trump.

We The Women: By Ruth Millett

People can be taught to listen — and they should be. That's the conclusion of a man who is an expert on listening — Stanford E. Taylor, president of the Educational Development Laboratories of Huntington, N. Y.

All women love to talk. Very, very few women ever bother to listen with complete attention. When they seem to be listening, they are usually just waiting for a chance to interrupt and take over the conversation.

outside the door of a room that is filled with women and the noise level is comparable to that coming from a kitchen in which an electric dishwasher, a washing machine, a ventilating fan and an electric ice crusher are all shrilly at work at one time.

So if you want to get out in the business world, either because you need to or just because you want to, see Penny Love at the business school, (corner of Palmetto and Ninth St.) and sign up for a brush-up or for something new.

Very, very few women ever bother to listen with complete attention. When they seem to be listening, they are usually just waiting for a chance to interrupt and take over the conversation.

And if you think anybody — but anybody — inside is listening to what all the competing voices are saying — you're dead wrong.

When the barracuda is about to attack, it usually assumes a head-down position in the water. At such times, the dark spots on its sides become more prominent, according to Marieland of Florida.

Maybe that is why a party of women is so often referred to as a hen party — all clucking and no listening. Stand

Any woman who isn't talking is just impatiently waiting her chance to drown out someone else. Maybe women can be taught how to listen — but it isn't going to be easy.

A FORMER STUDENT at Seminole High School, Miss Jeannie Sheets, visited in Sanford last week with Mr. and Mrs. Clay Williams. But that's not the story.

The story is that Jeannie has just returned from living for two months with an Argentinian family as a member of an association called "Expertment in International Living." This is a group who sponsor college students, both American and foreign, for extended visits in other countries.

The group is limited and students have to pay their own transportation and expenses, but arrangements with the families are made by the association.

Jeannie graduated from Seminole High School in 1962 and has been attending the University of Maine. Since she is majoring in languages, she had intended to try to visit Mexico this summer, until the opportunity to go to Argentina came along.

Seven other students, and an adult leader accompanied Jeannie on her travels and all stayed with families in the city of Mendoza, Argentina, a town about the size of Sanford.

The Oberli family, with whom our traveler stayed, had two daughters near her own age, Kuky, 23, a law student at the University of Cordova and Perica, 19, who taught math in the fifth and sixth grades in Mendoza. (A college degree is not required there to teach elementary school.)

Although Jeannie speaks fluent Spanish, and her hosts spoke not a word of English, she found the visit strange, interesting and memorable. Here are some of her more outstanding impressions:

Four meals a day — a late breakfast, lunch, an elaborate tea at 5 p.m. that is "quite a meal," and dinner about 9 to 10 p.m.

"Evening activities begin about 10 p.m., after dinner, and last into the wee hours of the morning. There's lots of parties (fiestas), lots of singing, with guitars, lots of dancing to Latin rhythms and much drinking of wine, which is served of course with every single meal," said Jeannie.

"However, the food was very, very good. There is an abundance of Argentine beef — wonderful steaks, the best cuts served at not more than 75 cents, fancy and elaborate pastries, all kinds of hot breads — it seemed like all we did was eat," sighed Jeannie.

"There is no free dating, such as we do in America. Boys and girls go to parties together, but they seldom pair off. Even the dancing is mostly done in groups. There is a lot of high-class flirting — they are very good at it," she observed.

One of the things that surprised Jeannie was the formal dress. "Girls are never seen in shorts or slacks, always in dressy dresses and high heels, and boys wouldn't be seen without their coat and tie," she noted.

"The American group determined to have a casual party in shorts and slacks, with beer and popcorn, but no one came in sports clothes except the Americans — everyone else was dressed to the teeth, as is their usual custom."

"Dating begins much later and they marry later. The Argentinians are very class-conscious — very sophisticated. It is very unusual for outsiders, especially Americans, to be invited into Argentinian homes.

"Soccer is the national game there, and it is fierce and competitive. Girls and women do not go to the games, only men and boys.

"The churches are fantastically elaborate, and all along the streets, in the parks and plazas you see statues, thousands of statues. The Argentinians are great on tradition. In fact, their whole way of life seems to involve a lot of looking back, with a great consciousness of history and national heroes.

"They consider John Kennedy a martyr and a hero of the whole world and mourned his death as much as Americans. He has become a sort of national symbol of a great American.

"Everyone wants to come to the U. S., of course. What they have heard and read makes it sound fabulous," she told us.

"Shops in Argentina," Jeannie noted, "are highly specialized. You buy buttons in a button shop, thread in a thread shop, needles in a needle shop. Shopping is a great adventure and takes hours and hours and many trips to make a few purchases. It is a sort of social thing. Everyone goes to shop and promenades and chats and flirts."

"No one seems to work very hard except the peasants. Everyone has servants. The Argentinian women I saw did not cook, do housework or domestic chores," Jeannie noted.

"It's all so different, a very different kind of life, sort of like colonial days or what the Old South was supposed to be like," she concluded.

Jeannie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Sheets are now in Monterey, California, where her father is attending post graduate school. After living in Sanford for awhile in 1961 and '62, they were transferred to Maine, but Jeannie stayed in Sanford with Mr. and Mrs. Williams to finish high school. She has many friends here, with whom she talked and visited during her stopover on her way back to Maine to return to school."

ISN'T IT NICE that the city library is going to be air-conditioned? It certainly will make it more pleasant, and add to the comfort and convenience of the new quarters.

Sarah King, head librarian told us last week that they are going to start staying open on Friday nights, beginning this week.

They'll observe the same hours as downtown shops — 9 p.m. on Friday nights.

If you like the idea of being able to go to the library at night, be sure to patronize them so they will know that you appreciate their effort. They've got some good new books in — and lots of good old ones, too.

IF ALL THOSE yachts that were sunk in the stormy path of Hurricane Cleo had been moored at the Sanford Marina on Lake Monroe (which we haven't got, but have hopes) they would have been safe, in a quiet inland harbor.

RAINS HAVE brought bad luck to the two recent youth activities put on by civic organizations here — the Kiwanis Kids Day and the Jay-Coe Fishing Rodeo. In both cases inclement weather put a damper on the fun and the attendance, and caused a lot of headaches to the committee of gentlemen working so hard to bring off the annual events.

They have our sympathy. There just isn't any way to get the weather to cooperate with human endeavors. Even the weathermen can't seem to get the best of old Jupiter Pluvius.

The staff of a weather station in South Carolina picked last Thursday for their annual picnic, using all their best charts and prognostications. So guess what? A long came Cleo!

Pre - Nuptial Party Honors Miss Mary Helene Washburn

Miss Mary Helene Washburn, bride-elect of Ronald Brumbaugh, was recently complimented with a kitchen shower at the Escambia Drive home of Mrs. Harold Whittier, with Mrs. Marvin Dyal serving as co-hostess.

The hostesses presented while carnation corsages to the honoree, who was attired in a pale blue sheer shift, and to her mother, Mrs. Mary Washburn, dressed in a two piece moss green jersey ensemble.

The bride-elect received an abundance of useful kitchen gifts and party games befitting the occasion provided entertainment for the guests with prizes awarded Mrs. Ave Davis, Mrs. Bill Vihlen, Mrs. Blake Sawyers, Mrs. Henry Tamm and Miss Ann Schumacher.

forty two faculty members and their wives and husbands present to enjoy this delightful party. It was held in the Martin home around their indescribably lovely pool; beautifully lighted. The guests enjoyed swimming, gabbing, ping-pong playing and simply relaxing.

The delicious menu of the evening consisting of charcoal-broiled steaks, salad, baked potato, cake and iced tea, was enjoyed by all faculty members, and Mr. and Mrs. Martin and their daughter, Ann.

This is an annual event given by the faculty for the new members and they were fortunate this year to be able to accept the generosity of the Martins to use their pool. Teacher chairmen of this event were: Miss Lois Ruddell, Mrs. Jim Martin, Mrs. Milton Gore, Mrs. Kirby Buckelew, and Arthur Scott. New faculty members who were guest of honor were: Mrs. Arline Coyle, Mrs. Cyrus Dawsey, Arthur Hammond and Dick Prater.

Mr. Stenstrom To Address Sanford BPW Wednesday

The Sanford Business & Professional Women's Club held its August business meeting recently at the lovely and spacious home of President Evelyn True in Lake Mary. Members attending were: Misses Helen Pearson, Harriet Slawter, Marjorie Cowan, Ruth Cummings, Ruth Warren, Jessie Brisson, Valerie Colbert and Margaret Ganas. Following the roundtable business session Mrs. True served delicious refreshments consisting of lime sherbet punch, cake, brownies and fruit bars.

It was decided that the dinner meeting of September 2nd would be held at the Lake Monroe Inn at 7:00 p.m. Douglas Stenstrom will be guest speaker with "Florida Law for Women" as his topic.

DeBary Personal

By Mrs. Frank White
Mr. and Mrs. Carlos E. Diaz have bought their new home at 137 High Banks Rd. E. They are from New York.

Mrs. N. Gerateneck of Narcissus Dr. spent two weeks visiting relatives and friends in Kentucky. En route home she visited places of interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Tinsley and Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Mallory visited the Orchid House in DeLand, where the ladies entertained their husbands at a Dinner Party, honoring their birthdays.

Mr. Ellis W. Petterson of Sunrise Blvd., DeBary, is at present at the V.A. Center in Dublin, Ga.

Miss Deanna Nichols Feted At Evening Bridal Shower

Mrs. F. B. Adams and her daughter, Mrs. C. O. Jones, were co-hostesses recently at the Adams Lake Avenue home to a miscellaneous bridal shower honoring Miss Deanna Nichols, bride-elect of Lt. Norman R. Frueci.

The guests enjoyed participating in various bridal games and contests, with Miss Bonnie Gielow awarded the prizes. A cleverly decorated wedding bell box held the many lovely and useful gifts, which were presented the honoree. The serving table, overlaid in sheer lace, was centered with an arrangement of summer pink Azaleas, accented on either side by silver candelabra holding tall pink tapers. Sparkling pink punch was poured from a crystal punch bowl, and miniature pastry shells contained chicken and ham salad. Silver and crystal service offered an assortment of toasted nuts, slipper mints and dainty tea cakes.

Guests enjoying the charming bridal atmosphere were Mrs. M. L. Nichols, mother of the honoree and the Misses William Sherrill, Terry Smith, Eddie Barbour Jr., Raymond Lundquist, Michael Thomas, Ernest Southward, B. E. Ratliff, F. Cole, W. C. Johnson, B. E. Chapman, Tommy Best, Owen Ferguson, Ed McCall, Philip Phillips, Rose Kratzert, Vicki Ferguson and Bonnie Gielow.

Students Prefer Chic Chick Jokes To The Elephant

NEW YORK (UPI)—The elephant's had his day. Now it's the chicken's turn for notice the joking way.

On college campuses, at least, embryonic eggheads are scratching the pachyderm, man's biggest friend, in favor of the chicken.

Samples of chicken jokes: Q. What kind of an automobile does a chicken drive? A. A yolkswagen. Q. Where do you get chicken dressing? A. At Peck and Peck. Q. What name is erroneously applied to baby chicken? A. Chickets.

This information comes from Revere Sportswear, a firm which has responded to the chicken craze by manufacturing a golden yellow sport shirt with a redheaded chicken crest. Students explain the chicken coup over the elephant this way: "We just think it's time to bring a high-class status to the lowly chicken bird. "It's our answer to the war-of-the-chicks — the 34-24-34 breed."

Horoscope Forecast

Wednesday, SEPT. 2, 1964
GENERAL TENDENCIES: Much that has been obnoxious or questionable in the past can be eliminated early in the day; then by evening you find it possible to start new set of circumstances to benefit you in putting across whatever ideas are of importance or concern to you. Adopt the new, the modern.
ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Instead of becoming emotionally disturbed, study what has to be done quietly and plan your work in a most scientific way. Then proceed on schedule. Be particularly calm with close ties, too.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Soothe others who are in trouble and pay no attention to some letter that has disturbed you. Think along lines of furthering own ambitions. This requires a clear head.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Avoid the monetary and go after the personal affairs that are infinitely more important to you right now. Be well prepared. Give a helping hand to the troubled and inspire others.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Being more altruistic so that you exude warmth and understanding can be very helpful to good friends. They are pressing problems. Late, be with fine group in the company of that special charmer you admire.
LEO (July 22 to August 21) Why sit and criticize when you can be out among civic-minded career groups and making your mark in the world. Change your attitude toward bigwigs. Then you get the fine benefits you want.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22) You are highly inspired at this time and can be a more workable modus operandi for the future. Find the right contacts and really be on the go.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Whatever you need to do to get more ideal conditions working between you and mate and pals should be done quickly. Don't be dramatic with loved one. Use straight methods.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You are able to come to a meeting of minds with associates, but only if you take them to some charming spot. Discuss matters of policy, etc. Don't neglect some important items.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Gaining favor of those who labor by your side is easy if you show open appreciation. Get week ahead nicely planned. Take time to improve your state of health - exercise.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) It would be wise to entertain those whom you want as backers now. By being charming, you quickly get them to become interested in your plan. Be practical, honest.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) Don't be unhappy with conditions at home, get busy with paint brush, etc. Clear out unnecessary debris quickly. Talk turkey with close ties and establish harmonious relations.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20) Your newspaper and other valuable printed media hold the answers to many of your questions and problems today. Then have serious talks with right people. Make concrete plans.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY, he or she will be one of those steady persons who will work very hard for a certain length of time, then take time out to rest and think over next day's work, etc. There will be no traveling about without an purpose in this chart and home and close ties will be the most precious to your fine progeny.
'The Stars Impel, they do not compel.' What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!
