Defector Murdered With

Poison Umbrella, Wife Says

LONDON (UPI) - The widow of a Bulgarian defector says her husband was murdered with a poisoned umbrella tip to silence his Radio Free Europe broadcasts that named the mistresses of Bulgaria's communist bosses.

The defector, Georgi Markov, 49, a news announcer whose broadcasts were beamed across the Iron Curtain, said on his deathbed Monday that a man jabbed him on the back of the right thigh with an umbrella on the busy sidewalk outside the British Broadcasting

Markov, Bulgaria's most prominent playwright and writer until he fled to the West in 1999 to work for the BBC and Radio Free Europe, said the man apologized in a thick accent, dropped the umbrella, retrieved it and hurried off in a taxi. "I am poisoned," Markov told doctors trying to treat him. An inquest was scheduled today in a further attempt to determine the circumstances of Markov's death.

Train-Town Theme Backing Sought

By MAX ERKILETIAN Herald Staff Writer

Sanford's Interested Sarahs To Encourage Rejuvenation (SISTER) plans to contact other civic organizations to ask their support of efforts to change the city's slogan from "The Friendly City" to "Train Town USA."

The group passed a resolution Thursday directing its officers to get in touch with other civic organizations to support the idea and promote the renovation of downtown Sanford. It was the first meeting since the Sanford City Commission decided to put the slogan change on the ballot Dec. 5. That vote will

It So Much, He's Staying

It was a year ago that Krauz - who is from Germany and did not speak English - got off a plane in Bangor, thinking he had arrived in California for his dream vacation.

Bangor residents treated him well - so well he is coming back to Maine and, if he has his way, he will never return to his European homeland.

Ralph Coffman, who hosted the wrong-way tourist last October, said Thursday Kreuz, a brewery worker from Augsburg, West Germany, told him he would like to stay in Maine.

Reported Rapes, Assaults Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Reported rapes and assaults increased again during the first half of 1978, dampening Attorney General Griffin Bell's optimism over a 2 percent overall drop in serious crime.

Violent crimes of all types increased slightly, mainly in the West and in middlesized cities, according to the FBI's Uniform Crime Report issued Thursday. Much of the decrease resulted from fewer property crimes and thefts, the statistics indicate. Police departments said the number of reported rapes rose by 5 percent - with increases appearing in cities of all sizes and in most regions of the country. The number of reported rapes has risen steadily, sometimes in leaps, during six of the last seven years.

68 Cuban Families To Miami

MIAMI (UPI) - Sixty-eight Cuban-American repatriates and 64 members of their immediate families have arrived in Miami to join relatives and friends who preceded them to the United States in the "Freedom Flights" that were stopped by Cuban President Fidel Castro. Many had not seen each other in 17

Tropical Depression Eved

MIAMI (UPI) - Tropical Storm Greta continued on a westward trek across the Caribbean See with 50 mph winds, while Hurricane Flossie sipped northward in the cold north Atlantic waters through main shipping lanes. Meanwhile, forecasters kept an eye on a tropical depression east-southeast of Bermude with 35 mph winds.

National Hurricane Center forecaster Paul Hebert said Tropical Storm Greta is expected to gradually strengthen today... At 6 a.m. EDT, the center of Greta was estimated to be near latitude 13.7 north, longitude 73.3 west or about 150 miles north of the coast of Colombia.

Chairman Henry Ford II Thursday announced the company's board of directors has elected Philip Caldwell, vice chairman of the company since 1977, to be the company's next president, effective Oct. 16. The move completes a dramatic shakeup in the executive suites of the world's second

School Board EyesWays To Ease 'Walking' Gripes

By LEONARD KRANSDORF Herald Staff Writer Five steps outlined by the Seminole School Board may soothe the complaints of the parents whose 37 children are now walking to Casselberry Elementary.

At the Wednesday night meeting, the board instructed Superintendent William Layer to contact the city of Casselberry to see if sidewalks can be built on the walk route; if a fence can be placed at the site of bridge along the route and to check if the speed limit can be lowered along Lake Triplet Drive, the road the children take. Additionally, the board instructed its own staff to check if

If school board negotiator Ernest Cowley thought he had problems last week with the county clerical workers ... his problems may only be beginning.

Thursday night, two opposing factions of the clerical workers meeting in two separate locations voted to send what they both claim are "bons fide" negotiating teams to the bargaining table.

Cowley will be confronted with choosing one of the two or rejecting both at the next bargaining session scheduled for Sept. 25 at 4:30 p.m. at Lyman High School. Because both sides are now claiming they represent the bargaining unit, Cowley said he many consider having the school board's attorney go to the negotiating session and help in making the decision. He also noted that if a decision is not made

Somoza And United States

Pity the people of Nicaragua. They face a Hobson's choice between supporting the corrupt, authoritarian regime of Gen. Anastasio Somoza Debayle or throwing in their lot with the growing insurrection and thus risking a Marxist takeover by the Sandinista guerrillas. Meanwhile, the U.S. government faces something of a Hobson's choice of its own in Nicaragua.

Embarrassed by its long support for the Somosa family that has ruled Nicaragua since 1933, ngton would welcome Somoza's resignation and his replacement by a moderate, democratic regime. But Somoza is not likely to resign. And despite inclusion of a majority of minessmen and middle-class professionals within the anti-Somoza opposition, outright overthrow of the government could easily lead to installation of a Communist regime allied with Cubs and the Soviet Union - a development the United States has every legitimate interest in avoiding.

Yet, Nicaraguan sensitivities are such the U.S. intervention of any kind risks adding to Washington's unpopularity with many Nicaraguans, whether of the left, center or right. Thus the administration's temptation to stand back and let events take their course.

We believe such a policy may be unwise, even when the risks are considered. The United States is, in fact, already involved in Nicaragua and has been for 60 years. So the decision to remain aloof or become involved is Fortunately, Washington may still be able to influence events constructively and in a manner well short of the clumsy, heavy-handed in-tervention that would understandably be resented in Nicaragua and elsewhere in Latin America.

Although he permits nothing approaching democracy. Somey, a set cate the ruthin omnipotent dictator the Sanchilical world have world believe.

Pressure from Washington did persuade Somora to ease press censorship and release some political prisoners in recent years. And, Somoza has demonstrated a willingness, however reluc-tant, to at least negotiate with the more moderate of his opponents.

Now that respected members of Nicaragua's middle and even upper class are joining in op-position to Somoza, there is reason for Washington o hope that added preasure could midwife political benges and compromises that would include nederate, representative elements, and exclude the Marxists.

The military aid sales agreement with Nicaragus signed last year by the Carter ad-ministration contains human-rights provisions that can and should be made to influence Somosa to

Meanwhile, the modest economic aid provided Nicaragua should continue to be strictly limited to nutritional assistance, medicines and the like. Admittedly, the time for compromise is fast running out in Nicaragua.

The Carter administration has a responsibility to use what time is left in the interests of a better future for Nicaraguans and a more secure Western

It was only a couple months ago that Mario Andretti set back in a small Fern Park office which seemed more like a broom closet because of the reporters who had jammed in to interview the star of the Grand Priz racing circuit.

An inevitable quastion concerned Andretti's slip from the winner's circle, and the sudden surge to the limelight by his racing team partner Ronnie Peterson.

"There's only room for one star on a racing team...and that's me," said Andretti, as politely as onsible.

Most of the top racing writers from Florida had onverged on the Gran Priz mini-track, one of Andratti's business ventures. They were obviously not interested in the local track, only this legend of the European circuits, and what he had to say about subjects pertaining to his frame of mind and his string of "tough-luck" losses. In retrospect, it is likely the Peterson subject which went through most of their minds when they heard about the fiery Milan crash which took the life of Peterson, a 34-year-old Swede who was the only driver with a chance of overtaking Andretti for this year's champions! "When Ronnie is on his own and is the star of his team, he will know what it is like," Andretti added. Just as the racing world is mourning the loss of one of its brightest young drivers, so is it considering the banning of Grand Prix racing at the amed Monza course. The problem is that the course was designed 56 years ago, when today's speeds were unthinkable, much less attainable. The bottleneck start also presents a major problem.

Sunday's Italian Formula One Grand Prix accident pinpoints the problem. The starter is claimed

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) - "Come early." Muhammad Ali warned. "Come see the greatest fighter of all times. I'm gonna be young looking and skinny and dancing. I'll shock 'em. I'll come up blasting." Muhammad Ali says tonight's 97 million rematch with heavyweight champion Leon Spinks is the last fight of his ndary career, win or lose - maybe. Loon Spinks figures he's going to be responsible for Ali's retirement at the age of 36. "When he loses to me a second time, I don't think he'll want to fight again," Spinks said.

Spinks, 201 pounds of rippling muscles, is no longer a mystery to Ali. Ali knows too much about the 25-year-old

Ali has watched videotapes of that fight more than 20 times. He says it embarrances him to see it. Ali now is a firm 221 pounds, three pounds less than last time and the band of fat around his middle is gone. Whather his reflexes are also gone remains to be seen. All said he plans to take the fight to Spinks early and that's why an unusually high number of observers here are predicting Ali will win by a knockout inside 16 rounds.

Ali has only two knockouts - glass-jewed Richard Dunn and champagnesipping Jean-Pierre Coopman - in the three years since he stopped Joe Prasier in 14 rounds. Ali also has a new tactic for this fight. He can't throw punches continuously but he'll try to throw combinations in flurries and hope to catch Spinits off-guard. Spinks' style won't change much. He is like an octopus with gloves. He throws punches non-stop in every direction from bell to bell. The only major difference in Spinks' arsenal is his approach to defense. Ali's Last Hurrah?

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) - Muhammad Ali is calling this one his ant hurrah, and I have the feeling he's absolutely right, only not the way he means.

Supremely sure of the outcome as always, at least in his own mind, Ali pictures himself piling up points by peppering away at Leon Spinks or peasibly even knocking him out in the Louisiana Superdome tonight and then triumphantly riding off in the sunset somewhere as the first man ever to win the world heavyweight title three times After sooing both him and Spinks these last few days leading up to the fight, I have an entirely different picture of the way it'll I see it ending with Muhammad Ali, the Great Legend, flat on his back or being helped to his corner by his handlers somewhere along the eighth round. I see him in the same dased shape poor Joe Fratier was after being clubbed to the canvas five times by hig George Foreman in Jamaics five years ago, and everybody at ringside staring up at him in open-mouthed disbelief while searing witness to indeed his last hurrah. As must to all mon, the end also has to come sometime for

Antenned All

Soldern have I ever seen a fighter in any division as superbly physically conditioned as Leon Spinks is for the first defense of his world championship. More significant yet, however, is his ex-traordinary mental stillade concerning this fight. B's as done to perfect as you'll find. If over anyone was het to used, B's this optim. If yours younger that fait, some of any victory over him already and getting better all the time.

Spinks' people have prepared him to expect the M-year-old Alt to change his customary factics and come at him with everything he has from the opening bell. Sam Solomon, his trainer, and as wise a man in motions of ring warfare as you're likely to find, has convinced Spinks he can counteract that flashy looking but not always effective type attack by staying right squarely in Ali's face with both hands and not retreating. That kind of manouver is made to order for defensive fighter anyway and theroughly enjoys mixing it up. All says he's going to feel everybody by dancing all night. If he tries doing that, the only one he'll really feel is himself because he can't heep dencing for six straight rounds anymore, let alone 15. That became perfectly obvious during their final training sensions for this fight when Ali, struggling to get his weight down and put together some of those fancy punching combinations he showed in the past, looked almost pathetic the other day against one of his sparring pariners, a young amateur from Cincinnati named Tony Tubbs. All knew how bed he looked. "Don't worry about it," he tried reasouring those around him. "I "I all be different once I get into the ring when the little gloves are on, the headgear is all and the crowd is there. Then is when it

"Lean, we love you!"

Watching it all, I couldn't help but feel that the old order was swiftly changing, switching from Ali over to Spinis, and that what I was seeing and experiencing was simply a proview of what would came to pass tonight. It struck me All was being right in calling it his last hurrah. Far more right than he realised.

A representative of Secretary of State Jesse McCrary is cheduled to meet with Seminole Supervisor of Elections Camilla king an explanation of the high incidence o voting machine failures in Tuesday's primary election here. Meeting with Mrs. Bruce will be David Cardwell, director of the division of elections of McCrary's office.

"We're waiting to hear from Cardwell's investigation," said Dick Simpson, administrative assistant to Attorney General Robert Shevin. "We have some people checking the law books right now," he said.

Simpson in a telephone interview from Tallahassee said that omplaints were received by his office and by the secretary of state's office on the voting machine failures and reports received were that "up to 72 percent of the voting machines malfunctioned" on election day.

Meanwhile, State Rep. Robert Hattaway, D-Altamonte Springs. mid he met with Mrs. Bruce on the matter and has requested Dick Williams, county commission chairman, to place Mrs. Bruce and himself on the agenda for 9:30 a.m. at Tuesday's county commission meeting.

"I plan to ask the commission for some changes to be made in preparation for the upcoming Oct. 5 primary and that a mainenance man be assigned to maintain the machines." said Hat-

"I wish also to discuss specifically the polling place changes which occurred in both precincts 11 (Altamonte Springs area) and 16 (Bear Lake area).

"Mrs. Bruce and I have asked cierts from the polling places to e present at the meeting and we are going to try to air this problem before the county commission and straighten it out so we don't have this problem in the second primary," said Hattaway. "It's a shame what happened in Seminole County Tuesday. If we do not get results I have bills being drafted in Tallahassee right now to take care of problems of this sort. I don't mean this to be a red flag, but something will be done," he said.

Williams Friday received the results of a survey completed by ffice manager, Dorothy Wade, on voting-machine problems on election day, including a lits of preciscts with completings; maintenance check list; information on known sources of machine maintenance, Mrs. Bruce's response about election day; and information on the number of hours spont on maintenance of machines by county employees since Jan. 1, 1978. The preventative maintenance check list aboved that among the checks made on each of the county's 178 voting machines were inspections, adjustments and lubrication where applicable of morn, door locks, door handles, etc. One of the most frequent is on election day was that machine doors could not be
