Traffic Deaths Decline 3 Pct.

CHICAGO (UPI)—The National Safety Council says that traffic deaths declined 3 per cent during May for the ninth straight month in which a decrease was reported.

In addition, the council said, May was the 17th month in the last eighteen to show fewer highway fatalities. The only month in that period to show an increase was last August.

"But the real test is just ahead," the council warned. "The fourth of July weekend will bring the biggest traffic jam of the year so far."

"There could be no better way to celebrate the holiday than for everyone to get back home safe and sound."

May toll was 2,910 deaths as compared with 3,000 for May 1957, the council said. The May traffic deaths raised the toll for the first five months of this year to 15,240, or 1 per cent below the 15,360 total for the corresponding period last year, the council said.

Twenty-six states chalked up fewer traffic deaths in May, one reported no change and 21 reported increases. The council said that at the end of the five-month period, 53 states had better records than for the same period last year and 15 showed increases.

Showing decreases for the five-month period were Vermont, West Virginia, Arkansas, Connecticut, South Carolina, Delaware, Nevada, New Hampshire, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Maine, New Jersey, Georgia, Kansas, New Mexico, Alabama, Iowa, Montana, Ohio, Missouri, Utah, Pennsylvania, Texas, North Carolina, Wisconsin, Oregon, California, Maryland, Oklahoma, Kentucky, Rhode Island and Virginia.

The three largest cities with perfect traffic records in May were Fort Worth, Tex.; Tampa, Fla.; and Wichita, Kan. The largest cities with no traffic fatalities for the five-month period were Saginaw, Mich.; Orlando, Fla.; and Pueblo, Colo.

Three leading cities by population group at the end of five months, ranked according to number of deaths per 10,000 registered vehicles were:

850,000-500,000: Memphis, Tenn., 1.5; 50,000-100,000: Orlando, Fla., 0.9; Kingsport, Tenn., 0.0.

What Are the Effects Of Alcohol on Body?

By HERMAN M. BUNDESEN, M. D.

RECENTLY I wrote a column about the advantages of alcohol in certain cases as a therapeutic agent. Now, it seems, everyone wants to prescribe his own medicine — whisky, gin, beer, what have you?

I have received several letters inquiring about the effects of alcohol upon the body. Readers ask what does drinking alcohol do, how does it react?

How It's Used

Well, let me emphasize that it is not alcohol itself, but the way we use it that determines how much good or harm it will do.

Alcohol, you see, affects every organ of the body.

It enters the bloodstream rapidly, since it does not require prior digestion. Alcohol gets into the bloodstream most quickly when it is taken in concentrations of from 15 to 20 per cent, the percentage found in most highballs and wines. Food in the gastrointestinal tract slows the entrance of alcohol.

Once it is absorbed from the gastrointestinal tract, it travels through the portal vein to the liver. Most of it goes through the inferior vena cava to the heart, lungs and arterial blood. After some delay the alcohol enters the various organs.

Requires Certain Functions

Alcohol is primarily a brain depressant. First faculties to be impaired are the more complex ones.

(© 1958, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

pleas ones, such as judgment, learning, self-criticism, memory and environmental awareness.

Mild depression brings relief from life's worries and cares. It serves to relax a person before dinner. And it might help provide a better night's sleep.

The trouble, of course, is that too many persons begin taking a drink now and then for such temporary relaxation and find it a crutch which they do not seem to be able to release. This can lead to no end of difficulties.

Making of Alcoholic

More and more alcohol is consumed in an attempt to resolve various difficulties, and there you have the makings for a real alcoholic.

A person's tolerance to alcohol, naturally, depends a great deal upon his resistance to it. The more frequently a person drinks, the more slowly his central nervous system reacts to alcohol.

Those who drink seldom, or not at all, might experience physical and mental impairment when the level of alcohol in the blood reaches 50 to 100 mg per 100 cc. Generally, heavy drinkers must have more than 100 mg before undesirable changes appear.

Rev. Schlessmann Accepts Call To Eustis Church

Rev. Phillip Schlessmann, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer in Sanford, announced today that he has accepted a call to serve as the pastor of Faith Lutheran Church in Eustis.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower stood pat today on his decision to keep Sherman Adams as his top aide despite Republican statements that he should resign because his usefulness has been seriously impaired.

The President told a news conference that the statement he made two weeks ago on Adams is no more or no less an expression of his confidence in Adams now than it was then.

After giving that answer to a question about whether he might be reconsidering his decision on Adams, Eisenhower said he would have nothing more to say at this time on the matter.

But a few minutes later he did say in response to a question that he assumed the Internal Revenue Service would report to him on whether Justice Byron Bernard Goldfine had charged off as an income tax deduction his gifts to Adams on the ground that they were a business expense.

The President said that he heard only this morning that Goldfine may have done that.

But he added that he has always believed that the true cure for racial difficulties depends on all Americans observing correct procedure rather than acting from individual prejudices and emotions.

Market's Commodity Total Shows Decrease

More than $4 million worth of produce moved through the Sanford State Farmers' Market during the 1957-58 season, according to the annual report of commodities sold.

Several factors entered into a decrease in valuation of produce sold through the local market. The $4,012,500.70 sold this season was $729,779.85 less than the 1956-57 season.

Sandy Anderson, assistant Market Manager, pointed out that "in spite of three freezes, two floods, and a late opening of the new market building, there was only a narrow margin between this year's sales and the previous season's."

He said, in revealing the June report, the out-of-state commodity report, and the annual report of Florida products for the season ending June 30, "We think you will find our annual report of varieties, units and gross sales of Florida Produce and fruit, in a fairly substantial bracket considering the adverse weather we encountered in the fall of 1957 and the spring of 1958."

Rep. Cleveland Seeks 4th Term In House

State Representative Mack N. Cleveland Jr. today announced his candidacy for a fourth term as a member of the Florida House of Representatives.

Representative Cleveland served as Speaker Pro Tempore during the 1957 session of the Legislature and served on the Rules and Calendar, Finance and Taxation and Constitutional Amendment committees, three of the most important committees in the House.

Cleveland is an over-30 veteran of the Army Air Corps of World War II and after his discharge in February 1946, entered Stetson University where he received his Bachelor of Science and Business Administration degrees in 1949 and his law degree in 1951 and since that time has been practicing attorney in Sanford.

He is a member of the Senior and Junior Chambers of Commerce, First Baptist Church, Masons, Baha Shrine Temple, Elks, American Legion, VFW, Kiwanis, The Florida Bar, 40 at 8, Seminole County Bar Association and American Judicature Society.

mitted and has served since the establishment of this committee during the 1955 session. As a result of the work of this committee Legislation was introduced and passed in the 1957 session resulting in improved accounting procedures and better efficiency in many of the agencies of State Government.

In an interview this morning Representative Cleveland stated: "I have sincerely appreciated the opportunity and privilege of serving the people of Seminole County during my three terms and feel that with the experience and seniority acquired I am in a position to render an even greater service to all of the citizens of Seminole County if re-elected. I humbly submit my candidacy for a fourth term with the expressed desire and hope of continuing to actively and energetically serve the people of Seminole County in the Florida House of Representatives."

He was born in Sanford and attended Seminole County Schools and graduated from Seminole High School in 1942.

Convicted Bolita Ringleader Gunned Down From Ambush

TAMPA (UPI)—A recently convicted bolita ringleader was shot-gunned to death from ambush here early today as he stepped from a cab.

Police said Joe Pelusa Diaz, 64, was struck by three shotgun blasts in the right side and back fired from a parked car about 85 feet away. He apparently was killed instantly.

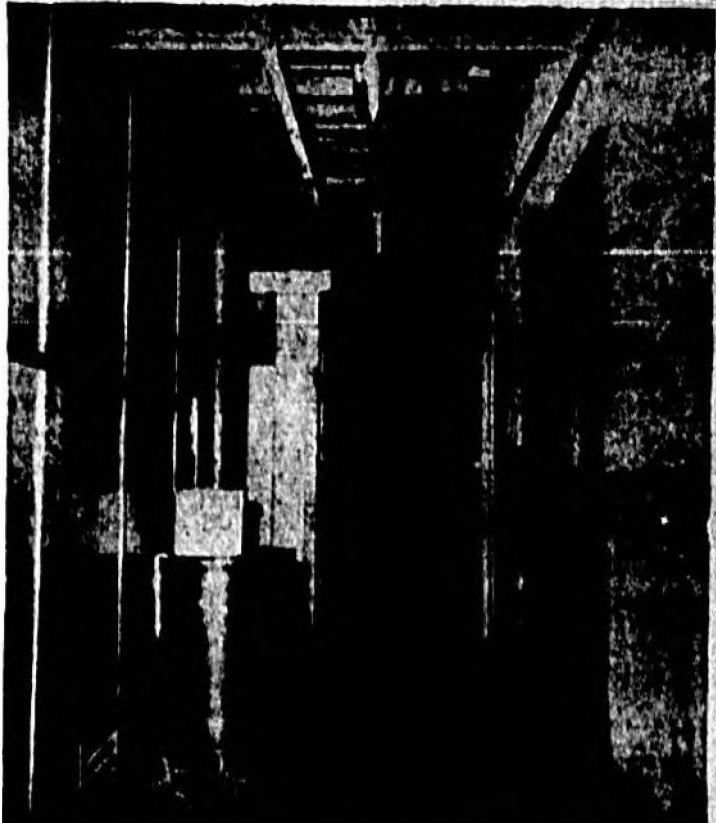

The assailant or assailants then sped away in the darkness. Police said there was an eyewitness to the slaying, but they would not disclose his identity. He was believed to be the cab driver who took Diaz to the death scene.

Diaz's own car was parked nearby. He apparently took the cab to pick up his car.

Diaz was convicted Saturday of being a "layoff man" for the big bolita ring smashed by raids in Polk and Hillsborough counties last March. He had been charged with three lottery counts but was convicted only of assisting in the promotion of a lottery.

As a "layoff man" Diaz covered protection bets on heavily wagered lottery numbers.

He surrendered on the bolita charges March 29 in Polk County after being advised he was being sought by police.

YES! THIS IS IN THE SEMINOLE COUNTY COURT HOUSE. Even looks like a fire trap, doesn't it? Look at the exposed wood beams, wood walls, and narrow hall! Anything could happen here. (Photo by Bergstrom)

AN EDITORIAL

County Court House Is Too Old To Be Safe

The very character and heart of a community is reflected in its public buildings.

Progressiveness, aggressiveness, that spirit of "being out in front" is portrayed in the structures which house the governmental bodies of the community.

Sanford and Seminole County, we know, are not communities that will go up in smoke at the first strike of a match but the public buildings which house the various important departments of its government are actually tinder-boxes.

They've been outdated by many years and by the very admission of those who occupy it, the County Court House is practically useless.

The offices of the Clerk of Court, the Tax Assessor, the Tax Collector, the County Judge and the Judge of the Circuit Court are all too small to take care of the enormous growth through which Sanford and Seminole County are going.

Offices in the basement of the court house are inadequate and antiquated; the lighting is terrible. Wood floors and partitions would flame up like tissue should a fire start in some cubby hole or crack.

Well do our elected officials realize that others before them failed to take care of the progress ahead, setting aside funds with which outmoded and worn-out buildings could be replaced. And certainly they realize that funds are hard to come by for the emorgo from taxes levied upon the people of the community.

But there comes a time when these buildings, now nearing the end of their period of usefulness, must be replaced so that Sanford and Seminole County, as well as all of the communities of the county, can follow the leadership of their government and set about putting the community on a modern pace.

No one wants to endanger their lives or the lives of the employees of county governmental offices by subjecting them to work in a building which could so easily be destroyed by fire—a building that can fall to the ravages of weather and just plain "being worn out."

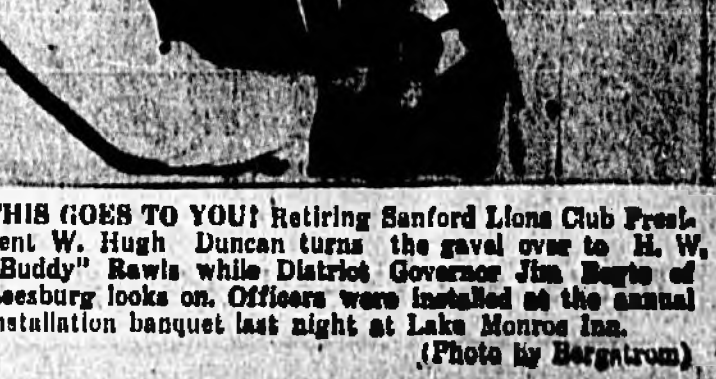

Again we invite you to take a close look at the Seminole County Court House—look closely in the basement and around the narrow passageways which cannot be used. Pass your own opinion on them and it is believed that it will be the same as ours—just too old to be safe.

It has been said recently that the Seminole County Court House must be evacuated in the next two or three years—but we call to your attention that there is no planning, none whatsoever, leading toward replacing a structure that must go.

As a Court House 20-30-40 years ago, it was wonderful, actually served a county with just a few thousand people in it. Now it is a landmark and pointed to as "the deteriorated old building that's become useless."

It is time for Seminole County to put its best foot forward so that merchants, businessmen, investors, and industry will follow suit.

A modern, well planned, up-to-date Court House is a must for Seminole County and it's time to start planning for the date when it will be built.

Holland Stresses Seniority In Reelection Bid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Florida's U. S. Sen. Howard L. Holland pointed to his seniority today in his bid for re-election against former Sen. Claude Pepper.

Holland, who will be 66 July 10, official Tuesday that he would seek his third six-year term in the Senate. But there had been no doubt that he would attempt to keep possession of the Senate seat he has held since 1948.

Holland, who will be 66 July 10, will face Pepper in what is expected to be one of the hottest political battles in the Sept. 9 Democratic primaries.

The Florida Republicans have not yet named a candidate to meet the winner in the November general elections.

Liberal vs. Conservative In announcing his candidacy, Holland did not mention Pepper by name but said Pepper's candidacy "gives the people of Florida a clear choice between his brand of thinking and mine."

Pepper, who was defeated in 1950 by Sen. George Smathers, was labeled as an ultra liberal during his 14 years in the Senate when he supported the Democratic New Deal and Fair Deal. He also led fights for organized labor against the late Republican Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio.

Holland, considered one of the staunchest liberals of the Democratic Party, said "in my opinion, the main reason why he (Pepper) was re-elected from Florida's other seat in the Senate was his failure to follow the thinking and convictions of Florida people."

Holland pointed to the advantages to the state in his seniority and committee membership.

Cites Service "Any new senator," he said, "must start at the bottom and would require many years of service to reach my present committee standing or my proven capacity to serve Florida and the nation."

"I had to wait eight years, until I was in the upper third of the Senate, before I could win assignment to the Appropriations Committee, as its first Florida member in about 40 years. I have been a member of the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry for nearly 10 years. My aggressive services on these two committees has enabled me to serve

73-Lb. Watermelons Grown In This County

People were actually stopping a truck loaded with the huge melons yesterday in order to get a first hand look at the giant size.

Recently an announcement was made that the top watermelon, in one of the melon growing counties, weighed in at 73 pounds.

But watermelon growers do, Seminole County does a little bit better.

Hubert Bagwell, on one of his melon farms, raised a new-cumner in variety to Florida. The one causing all of the confusion over size is known as the "Cobb Gem."

According to Bobby Newman, who furnished equipment to Bagwell, one of the huge round melons of the new variety weighed in at 73 1/4 pounds. Practically more than an ordinary man can lift comfortably!

However, the "Cobb Gem" isn't the only large melon grown by Bagwell in his prize patch. There are "Charleston Grays" that average from 65 to 68 pounds, and by the looks of them, some even heavier.

According to Bagwell, "they're mighty sweet melons along with the fact that they're big and look like the top weight in this section. "I've got a mighty good crop of these beauties," said Bagwell, "and they're all just about like this," as he pointed to his truck loaded with about the biggest melons one would want to enjoy.

Watermelons are comparatively new to Seminole County—prize watermelons, that is.

While stopped in talk to a Sanford Herald reporter and to have a picture made with the "big ones," passably would slam on brakes and ask "are those watermelons?"

"Yes mam," Bagwell would answer, "they're Seminole County grown 'Cobb Gems'."

VAH-9 Reveals Outstanding Crews Of Month

Upon the completion of another month of intensive flight operations, Heavy Attack Squadron Nine (VAH-9), operating as an element of Carrier Air Group Three aboard the USS Saratoga, selected its outstanding flight and maintenance crews of the month for May. Cdr. N. M. McInnis, VAH-9 Operations Officer, in announcing the flight crew of the month, stated: "The selection of this month's crew was rendered extremely difficult in that VAH-9 broke its own Navy wide record of hours flown by a carrier based crew. Almost everyone in one month operation, and all crews got very a maximum effort."

The procedure for the selection of a flight crew of the month was begun three months ago to stimulate competition between individual crews in furthering their effectiveness in all phases of training. Each crew is graded upon the completion of every flight for utilization of time in furthering training in all phases of the particular mission flown.

The award for the month of May was made to Tactical Crew 14, comprised of the Aircraft Commander, Lt. Bob Field; his bombardier/navigator, Lt. (jg) J. L. Hutton; and third crewman, C. R. Kelsey, ADJ.

Each ADJ crew member of VAH-9 has a four man maintenance crew, under the direction of a plane captain, assigned to accomplish the vital maintenance and repairs necessary to keep the aircraft in top flying condition. These crews are awarded points through a system of graded scores on their effectiveness in accomplishing work in an expeditious manner—the number of flights their particular aircraft flies, and the general mechanical condition of their aircraft. The crew accumulating the greatest number of points each month is named maintenance crew of the month. The award for the month of May was made to crew 6, consisting of the plane captain, J. H. Miller, ADJ; R. G. Durham, ADJ; G. H. Funk, ADJ; and C. M. Williams, ADJ.

Kremlin Casting Doubt On Summit Conference Intentions Says Ike

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower told Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev today that the Kremlin is "casting doubt" on its intentions toward a summit conference by making unacceptable demands.

The president said in a new letter to Khrushchev that Russian diplomatic maneuvering "has disrupted" discussions in Moscow aimed at carefully preparing for a top level meeting which would be profitable.

Eisenhower flatly denied a Khrushchev charge that the United States and its British and French allies will not relax their efforts to find solutions to major East-West cold war problems demanding the Soviet "arbitrary action."

The President's letter delivered in Moscow replied to a June 11 message from Khrushchev charging that the United States and its allies were trying to sabotage a summit conference by raising insoluble issues such as German reunification and the future of eastern European satellite nations.

Khrushchev asked the President whether the western nations were "serious about arranging a summit meeting" or were trying to prevent it.

thern Church, Ann Arbor, Mich. He graduated from Concordia Seminary in 1943.

The Lutheran Church of The Redeemer has shown remarkable growth since the small group first held its worship service in the Yacht Club from May, 1955 until the church here was dedicated.

Both of the churches in the one parish served by Pastor Schlessmann have expanded their membership under his leadership. The Florida-Georgia District, born in its 11th year, authorized the re-organizing of the two churches into individual parishes early this year.

During the five years Rev. Schlessmann has served the two congregations he has conducted two services weekly on Sunday and divided his time between the two communities in carrying on the Missions work of the church. Special Church season required four services weekly in each community.

Rev. Schlessmann will serve as fulltime Pastor of Faith Lutheran Church in Euclid following an installation service at the Lutheran Church of The Redeemer on July 27.

Market

To fill this gap, Anderson said "We are striving to locate such a tenant that is in a condition financially to fill the needed replacement on our market."

The June commodity report, estimating the 1957-58 season, shows a sizeable increase in units and valuation. According to the report a total of 138,212 units were sold through the Sanford State Farmers' Market and the total valuation was set at $288,424.10. This was an increase over the previous year of 35,940 units and an increase in valuation of $15,900.80.

The annual commodity reports of the Sanford State Farmers' Market shows that over three-quarters of a million dollars worth of cabbage was sold through the local market.

The orange shipments and sales were near the $1 million mark and actually to fill the needed replacement on our market."

Celery is still a big item on the Sanford State Farmers' Market. The report points out that nearly $4 million in celery, despite the ravages of weather and other factors, left the platform here.

Out-of-state products moved over the platform of the local market, included apples, cabbage, squash, plants, cantaloupes, cucumbers, water melons, and pineapples. However, the size of this season's out-of-state produce sales came to only about 10 per cent of the previous year's valuation and about 30 per cent of the total units of the previous season.

Scientists Study
Psychic Energizer
Called Iproniazid
By DELLOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Maybe it wasn't the drug but a virus, said two medical scientists studying the currently grave problem concerning the "psychic energizer" chemical, iproniazid and the human liver.

Dr. Louis Zetzel and Herman Kaplan of the Harvard Medical School had studied the body chemistry of three women in whom rampant liver disease appeared while they were taking iproniazid to brighten their depressed minds and lift their weary spirits.

Iproniazid will do that for people who had been prescribed the "energizer" for their minds. Hence, medicine's rapt interest in the studies of Zetzel and Kaplan.

Damage Similar To Virus
The damage to the livers of their patients was indistinguishable from the damage caused by viral hepatitis, they reported. The hepatitis virus is tricky; its methods of attack are many and some are obscure. Therefore, perhaps it was the virus and the dosing with iproniazid was "coincidental." But certainly the "possibility" that the drug poisons the liver cannot be "disregarded," they added, and any doctor who intends prescribing it must keep in mind that "serious liver damage is a possible hazard."

That doesn't mean the drug should be abandoned, they continued. When a person definitely needs to have his mind energized and the doctor clearly understands "the potential risk," then it can be used, they said, adding that his decision should not come from "an indiscriminate and casual attitude devoid of careful clinical judgment."

Hundreds Suffer No Damage
Hundreds have taken it without developing signs of liver damage. For instance a recent medical symposium discussed 200 patients "with far advanced cancer, melanomas, the depressions of elderly patients, rheumatoid arthritis" and other depressing diseases, whose lives had been brightened by the drug and whose livers were unaffected, the scientists recalled.

Recently publicized deaths associated with iproniazid suggested that over-dosages were involved. The three patients Zetzel and Kaplan studied had been taking light doses. The scientists made their report to the New England Journal of Medicine.

Too Late To Classify Veterans Corner

By RUBELL RAY
Speaking before the state convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars at Ft. Lauderdale, Senator George Smathers said that a successful American defense program "must include an increase in brainpower, along with an increase in firepower."

"In the long run," he said, "the caliber of our guns may prove far less crucial than the caliber of our minds."

The senator pointed out that the tremendous technical advance by the Soviet Union had seriously shrunk the military lead which we hold over the Russians.

"Russia has an estimated 800,000 trained scientists working today compared to 700,000 in the United States. We must view this in the light of the fact that the technological advances made in the next few years will be of tremendous importance in deciding our military advantage," he said.

He called attention to the fact that the Soviet Union is graduating twice as many engineers and scientists as we are, and warned that in Russia one half of the college students are enrolled in scientific studies against only 15 percent in the United States.

Smathers urged action now to meet this alarming situation and warned that if we remain complacent and ignore the problem, each passing year will see a wider gap between Russia and our country.

He advocated a broad gauge reformation of our educational system that would serve to develop brainpower and provide opportunity for our best minds.

The senator told of his proposed legislation to provide 1,500 scientific scholarships annually for the sons and daughters of veterans. The $3 million a year plan, which is endorsed by the VFW, would be financed from the interest of enemy war assets seized from Germany and Japan at the start of World War I and later accepted by the United States in lieu of reparations.

He pointed out that former owners of these assets have been trying to soft soap us into returning them and have employed public relations experts and high priced lawyers in an effort to sell the American people on the idea. He explained that the Paris Reparations Agreement of 1946 provided that the United States and 17 other nations accept as full and final settlement of all claims against Nazi Germany, the relatively small amount of enemy assets they held within their borders.

"The total Allied claim against Germany was $200 billion. Now it is proposed that we return a good portion of these assets which would be nothing more than a hi-jacking of what is really owed us, were used for scientific scholarships, we would be taking a long operation against the United States Treasury and the American taxpayers."

He contends that if these assets, which represent only a trifle forward in developing the technicians and brainpower we need so badly today.

The VFW convention was one of the best attended in years, with 10 past commanders participating and representative delegations from every section of the state. Sam Story of Lake Wales was selected State Commander succeeding Charles H. Whitesore of Hialeah. The other officers elected were Alex. Littlefield, Daytona Beach, Senior Vice Commander; C. M. Meiswieser, Pensacola, Junior Vice Commander; Fred Taylor, St. Petersburg, Chaplain; Dr. Cecil Bergen, Miami Beach, Surgeon. Re-elected were: M. D. Wade, Ft. Gainesville, Quartermaster; and Mm. F. Blowers, Ocala, Department Judge Advocate. Lakeland was selected for the next convention.

35,000 Kiddies
Depart From Grand
Central For Camp

By GAY PUALEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—Some time this week, 64-year-old Edward G. Fischer will steer the last child onto a camp train, comfort the last sobbing parent and leave the proverbial sigh of relief.

These last seven days have been times to try trainmen's souls, even the soul of a man practiced as Fischer is in the art of handling children by the carload.

Fischer is stationmaster at Grand Central Terminal, departure point for camp each year at this time for 35,000 children, ranging in age from four to 16.

"Some of them are so small, the camp leader strings them all together on a rope, like wash on a line," said Fischer, who has been working out the transportation logistics since 1947.

"But we've never lost a child," he said. "And only a few of the kids ever miss trains. Then it's the parents' fault; they didn't get up early enough."

Have Parents Double Work
"This job would be a cinch if it were just the children to handle. But the parents and other relatives double the work. Each parent thinks his child is the only one in the world. The parents spend a whole week kissing the kids goodbye."

Fischer, a grandfather of seven children, said that on some days as many as 8,000 children board trains for camps in the Adirondacks, the Berkshires, and New England in general.

"No other terminal in the country handles anything like that number," said Fischer.

Fischer and his staff start gearing for the June rush two months in advance—deciding which guard shall be stationed where, the location of placards indicating the rendezvous point for each of the 850 camps, and how many extra trains and cars are needed.

Jumble Repeated In August
Come August, the whole process is repeated as the children return.

"Then," said Fischer, "we have other things to contend with: misplaced trunks, mice, turtles and fish. Kids collect the darndest things. But they all come back looking healthier than when they left, so we are happy."

Here are authoritative answers from the Veterans Administration to questions of interest from former servicemen and their families:

Q: I am the widow of a veteran who died of a service-connected injury. I receive monthly benefit payments from the VA. I understand my payments will be increased now that the pay for most military ranks has gone up. When will my increase show up in my check?

A: Since each case must be examined individually, it may take several months. Any increase will be paid automatically, and will be dated back to the first of June, the date the new military pay scale went into effect.

Q: I am a Korean veteran. I have not yet reported the birth of our second child to the VA. Will the effective date of the increased payment be the child's birth date or the date of my reporting it?

A: The effective date will be the date the VA receives evidence establishing your entitlement to extra pay.

Q: My permanent plan GI insurance policy lapsed two months ago. How do I go about reinstating my insurance?

A: As long as you are in as good health as you were when your GI insurance lapsed, you may reinstate it by paying all premiums in arrears. No interest will be charged if your application for reinstatement is submitted within three months of the date of lapse.

Fischer has been with the New York Central Railroad since 1909 and in charge of camp trains since 1947. He will retire next August, at 65, delighted, he said, to get rid of the youngsters for a while.

"But I know what will happen," he smiled. "By next June, I'll be so lonely for them I'll probably be right back at Grand Central helping out."

TODAY'S THOUGHT

The Advisory Commission Serves People Of Seminole County Well

Things are beginning to look up for Seminole County, even though some of the troubles being pointed by existing conditions might lead to make us believe that conditions will be hard to make.

For instance, many of our leading citizens who have opposed practically any measure of a reorganization or reappraisal program, are beginning to see that such a step is necessary in Seminole County.

Because of a study made by an appointed commission, many details have come out that have been only unconfirmed rumors. This fact is stated by one of the county's leading citizens to the effect that "only one-half the people of the county pay all of the taxes."

And then there was the fact produced at one of the meetings "less than one-half the families of children attending public schools in Seminole County pay taxes."

The inquiries existing were then "lacked down" when it was revealed that "if our assessment procedure were on a state average the county school system's eight mill building and bus assessment would take only one mill." It now takes eight mills to meet the bill.

The Advisory Commission to the Board of County Commissioners has done a remarkable job of looking into the various affairs of the county and how the money, necessary to carry on local government, is raised.

Hardly a paper has been left unturned by this group of eleven Seminole County civic leaders. They have interviewed department heads, looked at records, talked to officials and in general "dug into the problems" of the county.

Only good can come from such action—such as the proposed reorganization discussed at a recent meeting. Such a group, representative of the entire county, can come up with answers that individuals just can't visualize. Possibly the adage "two heads are better than one" has a lot to do with this.

More than likely, this body of men who have voluntarily devoted their time and efforts to this lengthy study, will come up with a set of recommendations on which the Board of County Commissioners can take action.

We have always contended that when public buildings, public funds, taxes, programs, problems and recommendations come to the forefront, it is the citizens themselves who will come up with the proper answer.

Many mistakes are made by the "hidden control" of a few people. When the people themselves make the recommendations there is sound thinking to back up the public official in his earnest desire to serve "all."

As one of the committee members expressed it "No doubt that there are many inequities existing and that a reappraisal program is necessary to correct them."

Whatever the wording of the recommendations forthcoming from this group of men who have given so unselfishly of their time, time has been well spent where the public as a whole will be served.

Public Buildings Wearing Out

Well, we've been telling people, practically every day, that the public buildings in Seminole County are wearing out.

These words were backed up by a report from a well known out-of-state engineering firm whose services were used by the Seminole County Board of Public Instruction to look into reports that the Sanford Junior High School building was unsafe.

Boys and girls slated to attend the Sanford Junior High School this coming year might have had their lives endangered had it not been for the report revealed Monday morning at a special meeting of the school board.

Instead of double sessions for the seventh and eighth grade students we might have read of a calamity for there were reasons to believe that under certain conditions the building, nearly fifty years old, could have become a mass of debris and rubble with more than 470 children trapped within the crumbling walls.

We are fortunate that a "worn-out-building-conscious" Board of Public Instruction had the foresight to call in a reputable engineering firm to look over the aging building with a fine tooth comb.

That prompts us to say that freshholders of Seminole County had best take a look at the deteriorating buildings now being used by the school system before they go to the polls this coming September 9 to vote on the proposed $3.2 million bond issue.

Never before in the history of any school system has a community needed so desperately new structures, new plans, new buildings, new facilities for its nearly 10,000 children. Not only is space becoming a premium, but the safety of children who attend school must be regarded too.

This one report, which is merely one of a series secured by the Board of Public Instruction, is enough to prompt hundreds of Seminole County parents to turn out and talk for the proposed bond issue this fall.

What we cannot see is this—that the Board of Public Instruction must each year survey the school plants in the county to determine if they're safe structurally because of the age of the buildings.

There should be a fund, a reserve fund, set aside each year to replace these buildings when they become outdated and unusable. It is the same story in county government where public buildings are getting to the point where they're dangerous. Years ago, political leaders should have had the foresight to know that they'd have to be replaced sooner or later and should have made plans for it.

Just one calamity, such as that pointed out in the engineer's report condemning the Sanford Junior High School building, would have started local citizens asking "Who's at fault?"

And the answer would fall right back on the shoulders of the people.

Facts, Figures On 49th State—Alaska

By GAYLORD F. GODWIN
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)— With the admission of Alaska, the United States will have a state as large as Russia's vast territory. Little is known about Alaska, which is within sight of Big Diamond, owned by Russia. The distance between them is only 2.5 miles.

Alaska has been seeking statehood for 48 years. The first statehood bill was introduced in Congress in 1816. It got nowhere, but Alaska and their friends have been trying. The Alaska Legislature designated the "largest-meat" as the territorial flower.

The federal government is going to have to work out a lot of minor problems with a 49th state on its hands. There is that long-discussed matter of where to add the 49th star to the flag, for one thing. Another is changing hundreds of tabulating machines and large numbers of government forms to show Alaska as a state instead of a territory. And what about the Lincoln Memorial which has the 48 states listed around its sides?

Alaska's population in 1950 was 128,000. Its estimated population now is about 200,000. Between 1900 and 1950, its population increased by 77 per cent, while the population of the continental United States increased by only 14 per cent.

Anchorage, the largest city, has 28,000 residents; Fairbanks, the second largest, about 18,000. Juneau, the capital, and Ketchikan in the southeast each has fewer than 10,000.

Alaska will have the highest birthrate and lowest death rate of any state.

It also will be good hunting ground for girls looking for husbands. There are 16 males to every 10 females and nearly three-quarters of the women there are already married. In the continental United States, women slightly exceed men in numbers, and only two-thirds of the women are married.

If you think of Alaska as a perpetual frozen, you are mistaken. True, temperatures in the winter range down to 70 degrees below zero. But in the summer the mercury climbs in many places to 90 degrees above.

Winters in Anchorage, bathed by breezes from the warm Japanese current, are no more severe than those in Kansas, the Dakotas and Nebraska. Three-fourths of Alaska is in the north temperate zone. The remainder is north of the Arctic Circle.

Foreign News Commentary

By CHARLES H. McLEARN
UPI Foreign News Analyst
Polish Communist leader Wladyslaw Gomulka has saved his job by criticizing President Tito of Yugoslavia.

It is said that he also has preserved at least some measure of the independence from Russian dictation which he was at the head of the 1956 Polish revolt.

For months, Gomulka had resisted demands that he join Russia, Red China and the East European satellite countries in their savage attack on Tito as a Communist renegade.

He had made it plain, too, that he strongly disapproved the execution of Hungarian revolt leaders Imre Nagy and Pal Malotk.

It is now disclosed that Gomulka was told last week that he must either come out against Tito or face overtures.

There is one report that Gomulka gave him 70 hours to make up his mind.

Forced To Give In
Gomulka was forced to give in. He has refused, not only would he have been forced out of Poland's leadership but his country would have been given over to the "Western" elements in his party. Gomulka has been under increasing pressure from Moscow ever since the Communist revolution forced the hierarchy of the Food Administration to resign.

He has refused to renounce his past. He refused to join in the anti-Tito campaign. He has tried to stop the general trend toward Stalinist policy in the Communist world.

He has been compelled to give in bit by bit, and to follow up his own independent path.

Finally, come the demand that he come out against Tito.

The alternative was that Russia would take every possible means, political and economic, to overthrow him.

There was no direct threat of Russian military intervention against him. But apparently authentic reports say that in recent weeks strong forces of Russian troops have been moved close to the East German and Russian frontiers of Poland.

The implied threat apparently was that Polish "independence," if necessary, would require the rising tide would give Russia an excuse to intervene. Poland's position is that Poland cannot get along without Russia. Its economic situation is chaotic. And nearly all of the raw materials used in Poland's industry come from Russia.

Gomulka made his surrender in a speech last Friday at the Polish Radio, the part of Gomulka's speech was reported in Yugoslav newspapers.

Gomulka said of the dispute between Tito and Soviet Russian leaders: "But he qualified his criticism by saying that Tito sincerely desired to strengthen peace."

In speaking of Nagy, Gomulka criticized his policies. But he still refrained from giving his approval to Nagy's execution. That, he said, was an internal Hungarian affair, and it was not for Poles to judge on its fairness.

Thus, though Gomulka has been forced to comply with Russian demands, it is clear that he did so grudgingly. The Russian cannot be too pleased with the victory. Soviet pressure on him, undoubtedly will continue

Today's Political Undertow

By LYLE C. WELSON
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)— Today's political undertow:

It could be chosen every day and Christmas every Sunday for New York politicians this year. Democratic Gov. Averell Harriman will be the candidate to succeed himself in the November election. Harriman is a very wealthy man.

Nelson A. Rockefeller has announced for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. Rockefeller, like Harriman, is loaded.

Politicians like it when really rich men contest for high office. Such makes for stylish, well-financed campaigns.

John A. Roosevelt, FDR's youngest son, may be a factor in this year's political campaign in the nation's most populous state. Roosevelt is head man of the "Metropolitan Political Club, Inc.," whose immediate objective seems to be to:

1. Nominate and elect Rockefeller governor.

2. Oust the man who now leads the Republican Party in the five boroughs of New York City.

Roosevelt got the Republican nomination as an opponent in the Citizens for Eisenhower organization. He organized NYC as a Republican vehicle, but was renounced by legal action from using the word Republican in its title.

In two of the three largest states the GOP organization is in trouble or likely to be in trouble. Those states are New York and California. The Republican organization in the third state, Pennsylvania, has been set on its heels. The switch may change that considerably.

Republican politics were arranged in California by the maneuver in which Gov. Goodwin J. Knight was compelled to give way to Sen. William F. Knowland's desire for the nomination for governor. Knight was shunted to the contest for nomination to the Senate seat which Knowland will give up. Both probably could have been elected to the job they now hold. The switch may change that considerably.

Republican trouble in New York could flow from the insurgent-Democratic division of Roosevelt's club, edged with the possibility of Rockefeller. The leading of Rockefeller with Roosevelt's rebellion against the big city leaders may improve the position of Leonard W. Hall, former Republican national chairman, who has announced for governor.

Built-in Bustle is Latest Thing For Ladies' Figure

By DUC GURGO
 United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI)—Every female is entitled to pine for a form-fitting, but the latest strange device for magnifying the womanly shape is, honestly, just too much.
 It was Henry Wadsworth Longfellow who remarked poetically that "things are not what they seem." He can say that again. Female fashion is becoming a well-rounded falsehood.
 Things are getting so bad that you can't look at a lady without wondering whether she is throwing you a foam-rubber curve. What blasted off these remarks was a package waiting for me on my desk when I returned from vacation. It contained the aforementioned strange device.
 Worth Writing About
 With it was a notation that this might be something worth writing about. Well, sure it is. Also worth philosophizing about.
 What the thing seems to be is a modern, built-in bustle, worn at foundation level. The note with it described it as "the party girl's with decorative pads." It has two beautifully rounded, tapered, inch-thick foam-rubber pads sewn into the coat.
 To a man looking at this monstrosity, the idea occurs that it is a magnificent triumph of functional contradiction. What is a bustle for? To shove what it is shoving, that's what. Now here is an elasticized party girl's admirably built to squeeze the area it covers, but contradicting itself by padding out part of what it's trying to belittle.
 And speaking of contradictions, here we have millions of women on strict diets, trying to slough off pounds in obvious places. And along comes this Friedrichs of Hollywood with his padded panties to simulate the lost poundage.
 Subject For Interview
 Becoming interested in the new development, a local newspaper, the Daily News, devoted its jaquizing-photographer column to interviews on the question: "What is your opinion of a girl who resorts to false padding in the rear?"
 The first answer, from a lady named Anne Vivian Frisbie, was: "Since I've always been ample in that department, I'm entranced at the idea that there are girls who actually resort to this subterfuge. Feminine figures are becoming more mysterious with the new fashions. How do you men tell fact from fiction these days?"
 There is the temptation to say that any girl who wears one of the new things should be turned over the hose for a good spanking. But what good would that do? With an inch of rubber padding, she wouldn't even feel it. Probably the only thing we males can do is retaliate—let's bring back the real suit with the bra—no false—shoulders.

Strokes Less Fearful If You Understand Them

By WILLIAM H. GIBSON, M. D.
 ALL OF YOU, I'm sure, have heard a great deal about strokes. Most of what you have heard has been quite alarming, and a great many of you have come to regard strokes with a terror.
 I don't want you to fear them, but I am sure your doctor wants you to respect them and the diseases which often culminate in a stroke.
Preventive Treatment
 For while we cannot prevent the majority of strokes, we can treat some of the conditions causing cerebral vascular (heart and blood) disease, and this treatment may help prevent strokes.
 Moreover, in some cases there are fairly definite signs which warn of an impending stroke. If we heed them in time, we may be able to head it off.
 A stroke generally occurs very suddenly. It's caused by the interruption in the flow of blood to the brain. Perhaps an artery ruptures or is blocked by a blood clot, spasm or some form of pressure.
Recognizing Strokes
 When this happens, the victim may suffer paralysis of a leg and arm and may also develop difficulty in speaking. While these symptoms sometimes clear up rather quickly, usually some form of physical disability remains.
 Thus, it's much better to try to prevent strokes from occurring whenever we can.
 High blood pressure, for example, often is associated with strokes. With our modern drugs

White Springs To Get Tubular Bell Carillon

WHITE SPRINGS (UPI)—The 87 bells of the "Old Folks at Home" and "Beautiful Dreamer" will soon be chiming throughout this north Florida town from what is believed to be the world's largest tubular bell carillon.
 The bells will be installed in the 200-foot colonial brick tower along the banks of the Suwannee River, according to Foster Barnes, director of the Stephen Foster Memorial.
 The 87 bronze tubular bells were especially built by the J. C. Deagan Corp., Chicago, which spent more than a year casting and tuning the $125,000 carillon.
 Formal dedication of the bell and tower will be held later this year. (UPI Telephoto)

The Lone Deputy

CHAPTER 14

THERE WAS ONLY SO much waiting a man could stand, and Price began to feel that Pete Nance could endure the waiting better than he could. The gunman was the biggest obstacle that I never would have learned it if I hadn't been taught it by a good man named Ralph Carver. I'd like to do for you what he does for me, but maybe you just don't have enough sand in your arse."

Price walked to the door and opened it, motioning for Laura to leave. She stepped into the hall, and Price was over the threshold before Bruce asked in a ragged voice, "What was it?"

"Lock the door, Jean," Price said. He gave the boy a searching look, not at all sure there was anything in the kid to be le. After all, that was the real answer, the intangible qualities inside a man that make him do the things he does.

"What was it you learned?" Bruce cried.

"I learned that a man who can't look at himself in the mirror and be a little proud of what he sees there just ain't no man at all. Right now you can't, so you'll run and you'll keep on running. Somebody maybe you'll wind up shooting yourself, and nobody, Jean or Bruce or nobody, will give a god damn for you."

Price went out and shut the door. Laura put her hands up to his cheeks in a gentle caress. "Do you have to look into the mirror?"

He nodded. "But there's something more important to me than that. I've got to live so you can look at me."

She kissed him and she let him see how proud she was of him, then she whirled, her skirt flowing away from her ankles, and went down the front stairs. Price left through the back, walking to the Madden house, and mounting his horse, led the other animal to the rear of the ivory stable. He called, "Barney?"

De Long came out of the back room, hurrying along the runway. "Price, where in blazes have you been?"

"Fetchin' in Bruce Jarvis," Price said. "Take care of these horses, will you?" When De Long reached for the reins, Price added, "I hear Pete Nance is in town."

"He's gunning for you," De Long said. "This is a rotten deal, if you get him, you're still got to bust Weston, and he's got a pretty salty bunch. Curly Blue, for one. He ain't gonna forget the beating you gave him. The odds are too long, Price. You can't win."

"I've got to try," Price said. "Looks to me like I'll be trying alone."

De Long restrained a step. "I'll take care of the horses."

Price made a awful check of his gun. He wasn't at all sure he could take Nance. If he won, he felt there was a chance that Cole Weston and his bunch would cave. A slim chance, but still a chance. For Pete Nance represented a big investment in Weston's part, an investment aimed to take care of exactly this kind of situation. So it was better to jump Nance now and not wait.

But when he stepped into the street, Max Barker called from the saloon doorway. "Price, come here. Barry Madden wants to see you."

Price turned toward the saloon, and stepped into the office. Barker shot the door behind him. Price sat at the desk, that had been Price's from the time he had come to Saddle Rock. Madden got up slowly. He was a sick man, maybe a crazy man. He walked around the end of the desk, his hands trembling.

Price gazed at Barker, who was wearing a star and had a gun under his waistband. Price sensed that this was trouble and not the kind he wanted. No matter how it turned out, it would not answer the problem that faced him, and he wasn't sure what Barker would do. Now the man turned to the gun rack and took down a shotgun.

"Price," Madden said, "you're a fool. The worst kind of a stupid fool. I told you to let this alone but you wouldn't listen."

He stood ten feet from Price, his hands trembling more violently than ever, then, without warning, he lunged at Price, swinging a deadly blow to the head.

Knowing Madden as well as he did, this attack was the last thing Price expected. Surprised, he held him inactive for a moment before he barely ducked the blow in time.

Price said sharply, "Stop it, Barry!" and backed up a step. Madden didn't stop. He cursed Price in a steady monotone and tried to hit him again. Barker, standing by the gun rack, didn't say or do anything. Price, his patience frayed and seeing no excuse for this, blessed Madden's next blow, and crashed him on the jaw with a hard right that stretched the banker flat on the fall floor.

Madden raised himself on an elbow and stared at Price as if puzzled by what had happened. Price backed up to the wall so he could watch both Madden and Barker.

"What are you doing with that shotgun, Max?" Price asked.

"I'm the town marshal," Barker said. "Seems to me that one of my duties is to keep the town from being shot to hell."

Price gave Barker a close look, not quite sure what was in the storekeeper's mind. Maybe he was promising help, or maybe he was giving a warning not to start any shooting.

"I don't get it, Max," Price said. "You're a counter jumper. You're way over your head, with things stacking up the way they are."

"I'm the best there is," Barker nodded at Madden, who was still on the floor. "I'm a better man than he is." He went to the desk, filled his pockets with shells, broke the shotgun and saw that it was loaded, then snapped it shut and moved to the door. "I'm going outside and let you have a talk with Barry."

He went out, closing the door. Price said, "Get up, Barry. Sit there at the desk. Looks like it's past time for us to have a talk."

Madden got up, rubbing the bruise on his jaw, and set down at the desk. That one blow had made a changed man out of him. The arrogance, the smooth, confident manner, the desire to dominate the character that Price had disliked in him so much now seemed to be gone. Instead, there was a kind of wonder as if he couldn't believe that had happened to him.

"Maybe you ever hit me before," Madden said.

"I don't know," Madden said. "I guess I never thought about it."

Price knew he had to hunt Pete Nance down and brace him; he had to drive the man out of town or kill him. But set against that knowledge was the feeling that for the first time since he had met Barry Madden, the man had been humbled enough to talk. He had never understood why Madden had followed the ruthless course Weston had led. Suddenly Price made his decision. It was important that he find out what prompted Barry Madden. Pete Nance could wait.

"Price stepped into the street and faced Madden. They made a line from one edge of the boardwalk to the other. Five of them, moving toward him!"

Odds are against Price in the next-to-last chapter of the story tomorrow.

Citrus Mutual

By JOHN SIKES

Florida Citrus Mutual

LAKELAND—A quick way to cram your cranium with more facts and figures on Florida's fabulous citrus industry is to check one of the speeches to be given at the annual convention of the Florida Citrus Mutual, which is being held in Lakeland, Fla., on July 10-11-12.

In this case the speaker is Bob Rutledge, Mutual's Head Man who's one of the State's most sought after men when it comes to wanting somebody to make a talk. (Sounds like high-handed apple polishing, doesn't it? Well, it isn't—if for no other reason than he really doesn't like to make speeches.)

For example, here's a quote from one of his most recent talks: "No other section of the entire world has figured out how to produce frozen orange and grapefruit concentrate at the low prices Florida producers do—and still make a profit."

It's making this statement—which nobody's ever attempted to dispute—Rutledge gives a pat on the back to the skilled technicians at daily work in the state's several concentrate plants.

Another item: Rutledge thinks that, because of these technical skills the California lemon people will be sending more and more of their raw product to Florida for concentrating in our processing plants.

Evidence of the laymen's interest in Florida's big citrus industry is the fact that when Rutledge concludes one of his speeches he must stand before his audience for many additional minutes answering questions about the industry from the floor.

As any seasoned public speaker will tell you, it's a sure sign your audience is listening, close and good, when a lot of folks are in no more of a hurry to leave than to ask a flock of questions.

IN QUOTES: "The citrus industry presents the brightest outlook of any agricultural product—for those who know the business." —Bob Rutledge.

PEELINGS: Seven of the U. S. 48 governors now are members of Florida Citrus Mutual, their contracts signed, sealed and delivered. These are Governors Albert (Happy) Chandler of Kentucky, George Docking of Kansas, Steve McNichols of Colorado, John W. Davis of North Dakota, Charles Russell of Nevada, Joe Foss of South Dakota and George D. Clyde of Utah... They became Florida citrus growers at the recent National Governors Conference in Miami Beach when Minute Maid presented each with an orange tree growing in MM groves... Thus, they became eligible for Mutual membership and were invited to join by Mutual President Vernon L. Conner... Others, with the understandable exception of California's Gov. Knight, are expected to sign up.

always there... WHEN YOU NEED A LIFT

A FIRST FEDERAL SAVINGS ACCOUNT!

SEE FOR YOURSELF

What a big difference a savings account makes! It gives you a lift to go out and do things! You start planning for the many savings goals ahead: a new car, a tri-level home, labor-saving appliances. And the list goes on, and on... as the children grow up and you come closer to retirement.

So it is all through your life. Saving gives you a lift, a sense of security and a spirit of independence!

In our economy today we hear mixed talk of recession and inflation. Generally a recession proves a good time to go out and buy things because prices are lower. You get more value for your dollar. During inflation, it's smart to save because of rising prices and a tight supply of cash.

The way we see it... any financial weather requires personal savings because even in a so-called recession you need cash to pay for the things you buy. Besides, there's never a stop to the above-average earnings we pay. They keep right on, boosting your funds.

Thus on this July 4th you can be glad you have the opportunity to save and to spend in a country where it's safe and rewarding to do both!

Player Of The Day

By United Press International
— Stan Musial

Like most rookies, Bob Giamberardo of Los Angeles came, saw and was conquered by Stan The Man Musial.

Giamberardo, recently brought up from Montreal, was inducted into the ranks Monday night when he faced Musial for the first time. The Cardinal slugger teed off on him for his 13th homer in the first inning to start St. Louis on the way to a 4-2 victory over the Dodgers.

Later in the game, Musial doubled to drive in another run. The two extra base hits brought Stan within two of Lou Gehrig's total of 1,190, which ranks second best in the majors. Babe Ruth is the all-time leader with 1,356 extra bases.

Musial, of course, is a cinch to overtake Gehrig, and if time doesn't run out on him he may even catch the Bambino.

One thing is sure. Giamberardo went away impressed.

Sports Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI)—A rising young artist will be in town next week for two diverse exhibitions on canvas.

Come Tuesday, Harwood Crawford, a commercial artist who does brilliantly plumaged birds in oils for a calendar company, will put on an exhibit of his work.

Come Friday, this same Harwood Crawford — known to aficionados of the manly art as Mickey Crawford — will climb through the ropes at Madison Square Garden in an attempt to daub the features of one Gaspar Ortega.

Harwood — or "Mickey" as you'd better call him unless you can run like Bobby Morrow — hopes that both exhibitions are a success. The first would merely provide aesthetic satisfaction, even though the viewers will be members of the cauliflower set.

The second show is the big one, however, because Mickey has a chance of becoming the first world boxing champion produced by the city of Saginaw, Mich., since Kid Lavigne ruled the lightweight ranks in the gay 90's.

Crawford, a 24-year-old boxer, has come fast in recent months to reach fifth ranking among the welterweights. Son of George Crawford, a former flyweight, his career jelled rapidly after long periods of exasperation. This explains why, at 24, he has had only 24 bouts in a business where they start young and fade early.

He was tempted at one stage to give up the ring and concentrate on his job with a commercial art firm in Detroit. Then came the night when Art Greenwald, the head man of the firm, went to the fights and heard that a good young batter named Mickey Crawford also was a commercial artist.

Investigation disclosed that Mickey Crawford, the fighter, was the same Harwood Crawford who worked in Greenwald's own firm.

Greenwald, the artist, subsequently became Greenwald the manager.

Crawford, the artist, became Mickey the fighter.

It has been a happy combination. Mickey has won four in a row this year to run his record to 22 wins in 24 bouts against two losses. His victims include such as Paddy De Marco, Wallace (Bud) Smith, Chico Vejar and Gil Turner.

Ortega, his next opponent, has a stiff edge in experience. The Mexican Indian, who ranks fourth among the welters, has won 48 of 58 bouts against 11 losses and one draw. He has split in two bouts this year.

"It'll be a big week," says Crawford. "Imagine, two exhibitions in one week."

E. Lynch To Get Another TV Fight

NEW YORK (UPI) — Welterweight Eddie Lynch of New York will get another TV fight at St. Nicholas Arena July 28 because he outpointed Tony Dibiase of New York there Monday night.

Promoter Teddy Brenner will pick the opponent later this week.

Lynch, weighing 147 pounds to Dibiase's 149½ won a unanimous 10-round decision. It was an exciting, close fight.

Tony was the aggressor throughout. He rushed in peremptorily with hooks to body and head. But

Whatever Happened To

Doris Hart

Doris Hart, a tall Floridian, ran up an impressive string of tennis victories the world over, though when she was a youngster there was a time when her doctors wondered if she'd ever walk properly again—let alone run. But as a result of a childhood leg injury, Doris turned to tennis to strengthen her legs and a great career began. She won one Wimbledon singles crown, won twice at Forest Hills in the U. S. championships and added numerous other important titles in doubles and mixed doubles. Doris never could cover the court as well as other girls but she developed solid ground strokes to cover her deficiency. After winning at Forest Hills for the second time in 1955, she turned professional.

Whatever happened to Doris Hart? She now is a top teaching pro, currently attached to the Bathing and Tennis Club of Sea Bright, N. J., in the summer and the Flamingo Hotel at Miami Fla., in the winter.

GO "FOURTH" SAFELY

85 MET DEATH IN ACCIDENTS DURING THE LAST 3-DAY HOLIDAY WEEKEND ... DON'T LET THIS HAPPEN TO YOU!

Enjoy the Fourth—but be alive the Fifth. There will be hundreds of accidents during the coming three-day weekend! Holiday outings turned to tragedy, with far too many dead, far too many injured and crippled! Remember, if you're driving, IT'S BETTER TO BE SAFE THAN SORRY!

Take a few minutes more to get where you're going! Start early—drive slowly! Statistics prove the majority of fatal accidents occur during the first thirty hours of the holiday! So play it safe—take it easy! Be sure your car is safety-checked, then drive ten miles an hour slower than your usual rate of speed, to allow for heavier traffic, extra hazards, "amateur" holiday drivers!

BE SLOW! BE CAREFUL! BE COURTEOUS! BE ALIVE!

DON'T GAMBLE! OBEY ALL SAFETY RULES! IT'S 'MURDER' IF YOU DON'T!

1. Before starting . . . have your car checked! Blowouts, mechanical failures, can cause death!
2. If you're going to drive at leisure, use side roads.
3. Children and pets in the back seat, where they can't distract the driver.
4. Stop frequently for coffee and rest periods. Don't get overtired!
5. Don't drink and drive! Even "one for the road" can lead to accidents.
6. Don't speed! Don't "pass"! Don't swing out of traffic lanes!
7. Always yield the right of way.
8. Swim before eating, never after!
9. Don't "clown it up" in a boat, or around motors!

This ad is brought to you in the interest of public safety by the undersigned local establishments. Follow the rules — HAVE A HAPPY "FOURTH"!

Drive if you're tired!

Swim after eating, ever!

"Speed it up" on the road!

Drink if you drive!

Drive an unchecked car!
