Industry-Seeking Bodies Would Be Combined

Governor Holds Key To Joint SCOPA-SCIDA Agency

By ED PRICKETT
 Herald Staff Writer

By noon Friday, Governor Reubin Askew must act on a local bill that has triggered efforts to combine Seminole County's two industry-seeking agencies.

Officials say creation of one super agency would save taxpayers thousands of dollars and would eliminate duplication of industry seeking efforts.

As proposed by State Sen. Lori Wilson, a member of Seminole's Legislative delegation, the measure which officials say Askew will approve gives the Seminole County Commission the power to make direct appointments to the Seminole County Port Authority (SCOPA) without approval from the governor's office.

State Sen. John Vogt, another of Seminole's lawmakers, said today part of the measure's intent was to induce county officials to combine SCOPA and the Seminole County Industrial Development Authority (SCIDA).

"Why have two industrial development agencies that are basically performing the same task?" Vogt asked.

Local officials interviewed for the most part agreed with Vogt. Port Chairman Thomas Binford said today either SCOPA or SCIDA should be abolished, or else the two should be combined.

"They've got some fine people, but SCIDA hasn't done a thing," Binford charged. He said SCIDA has spent $284,000 of the taxpayer's money, but the agency has failed to produce any new industry for the county.

If approved, the measure goes into effect July 1 — 14 days before Binford's appointment expires.

Two county commissioners — Richard Williams and Harry Kwiatkowski — agree the agencies should be combined. But they differ on how it should be accomplished.

"At this particular point, it's nonsense to have them both," Kwiatkowski said.

Williams said county officials should meet in the near future to decide the fate of the two agencies.

"We definitely ought to sit down and find out what the mechanics are," Williams noted. The mechanics, depending on whom you talk to, differ.

For example Port Administrator Jim Ryan says the county commission on any given Tuesday can abolish SCIDA.

Kwiatkowski, however, feels a local bill would have to be passed by Florida legislators. "SCIDA exists because of legislation and so does SCOPA," the commissioner said.

Williams believes SCIDA has "some advantages" over the port, but Williams agreed with Ryan that the "commission created SCIDA and can abolish it."

Williams says SCIDA can perform certain tasks that SCOPA cannot, but Ryan says "everything that is required to function like SCIDA is already invested in the port authority. We need no amendment to the act."

SCOPA was designated by the Florida Legislature as an industrial development authority in 1971. But by 1973 the county commission became disenchanted with SCOPA and under the Home Rule Law created SCIDA and gave it industry-seeking powers.

For fiscal 1976-77, SCIDA's budget is $60,250. "Honestly, the (SCIDA) money has been a total waste," one top-ranking county official said.

SCOPA, on the other hand, has a $250,000 yearly operating budget, all of which comes from port-operated businesses. Ryan said it is "one of the reasons why we need to combine them."

Gov. Askew Vetoes 'Shoot To Kill' Bill

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Gov. Reubin Askew today vetoed the so-called "shoot-to-kill" bill, saying it has been widely misunderstood and "invites abuse."

Askew objected to a provision in the bill which would remove from the current law a requirement that persons who use deadly force to halt intruders in or near their homes must have reasonable belief that such force is necessary.

"I do not think any persons should be authorized to take a life if it is not necessary," he said in his veto message. "I do not believe the legislature intended this result."

The bill also authorizes use of deadly force to halt persons fleeing after committing a forcible felony such as rape, murder, arson, burglary or robbery.

"This law might well be interpreted to mean the citizen who employed deadly force would have to prove that his victim was actually attempting or committing a forcible felony," Askew said.

He said that could jeopardize the citizen who makes a reasonable and understandable mistake.

The governor said the present law "adequately provides for a reasonable defense by a citizen of his home, family, life and property."

He said deadly force is already justified "where such force is appropriate and necessary."

Askew said the shoot-to-kill bill has been widely misunderstood by the public and press. He said such misunderstandings could lead to unauthorized killings by homeowners of persons who merely set foot on their property.

Askew also vetoed a bill supported by law and order legislators to provide the death penalty for anyone committing rape or a kidnapping during the burglary of a home.

"Under this bill, the death penalty would be grossly disproportionate to the crime if imposed under every instance allowed and would be of questionable constitutionality," he said.

The bill, HB3343, was developed in response to the ski mask terrorists who raided homes in Central Florida.

Askew said his decision was supported by Atty. Gen. Robert Stevin, who also urged Askew to veto the shoot-to-kill bill.

"I am confident that the legislature did not intend to authorize anyone to kill an individual," he said. "It was unnecessary to do so, yet SB315 would, in my opinion, do just that," Stevin said.

The bill would allow use of deadly force to halt persons breaking into a home or lurking in the immediate area. It also would allow the slaying of criminals escaping after a forcible felony.

Stevin said he opposed the bill because it would eliminate the long-standing legal requirement that a person using deadly force must "reasonably believe that such force is necessary."

Longwood $ Fears Appear Unfounded

By DONNA ESTES
 Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Fears expressed by city officials early this week that settling out of court a long-standing lawsuit will require an increase in city taxes are not borne out by a financial statement for the city's operation during the first two-thirds of the fiscal year.

The report — covering city operation from October 1975 through May 1976 shows that the city, on the brink of bankruptcy 18 months ago, is not only solvent, but has $88,000 in the bank not budgeted for any purpose.

The report also shows revenues will exceed expectations by $50,000 by the end of the fiscal year Sept. 30 and that department budgets are in the black.

The suit is scheduled for court hearing in July.

The engineering fees were for designing and engineering a sewer system for the city with effluent to be pumped to Altamonte Springs for treatment at its regional sewer plant.

Funding in the open market was to be obtained for the installation of lines within the city for the multi-million dollar system while an $813,000 grant from the federal government was to pay for 75 per cent of the cost of the construction of a sewer interceptor line west on SR 434 to Montgomery Road.

The interceptor would have linked the two cities.

Included within the grant funds was some $30,000 to be used toward engineering fees.

In early 1974 as the building boom was continuing, but trouble appeared ahead, city officials, led by Council member June Lottmann expressed fears that trouble was ahead for the construction industry and that the city would

The city council Monday night voted unanimously to offer the engineering firm of Glace and Radcliffe a $75,000 settlement in a two-year-old law suit. The Winter Park firm is seeking $28,000 in fees for work on the defunct sewer system, plus accumulated interest.

Michael Jones of the law firm of Jones and Bishop, Altamonte Springs, legal counsel for the engineering firm said Tuesday, however, he will recommend that his clients decline the city's offer.

City Attorney Ned Julian Jr. told the councilmen Monday night that recent court decisions indicate a strong possibility that the firm would be able to recover at least "out of pocket" expenses totaling nearly $75,000 if the suit is tried in the courts.

The suit is scheduled for court hearing in July.

Bill May Provide Area Jobs

By The Herald Services

The U.S. House of Representatives Wednesday approved a $1.9-billion public works employment bill that, if it becomes law, may provide millions of federal dollars for projects in Sanford.

The vote on the bill was 228 to 83, substantially more than the two-thirds needed to override a presidential veto. The Senate last week approved the measure 70-25, also enough to override a veto by President Ford.

Sanford city officials for the past few months have been working in conjunction with Seminole authorities to have the county designated an "economically distressed area" by the federal Economic Development Administration — a prerequisite for receiving grants under the terms of the bill.

Sanford City Manager Warren Knowles said Monday a decision on the designation is expected around July 1, but that it was impossible to accurately predict a date because of the red tape involved in dealing with the federal bureaucracy.

Knowles said two projects under consideration by city officials for possible federal funding are the new city hall and a proposed municipal drainage project.

In May, the City Commission voted to fund the construction of the new city hall, expected to cost approximately $1.3 million, through the use of utility franchise revenues. On June 1, commissioners voted to place the Orlando architectural firm of Watson & Company at the top of a priority list for negotiations. On June 11, commissioners entered into a contract with the firm to pay

Black Or Woman For VP?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter says his vice presidential choice is likely to have a Washington background and could be a woman or a black. But the former Georgia governor isn't ready to name names.

Carter, in the capital for a series of meetings today with congressional leaders, says he has not yet whittled down a list of 10 or 12 persons he said he is considering as his running mate.

Carter is expected to win first ballot nomination as the Democrats' presidential candidate when the party convenes its national convention in New York next month.

He commented in a brief news conference Wednesday night after flying from New York, where he delivered a foreign policy speech and took part in five fund-raising events to help campaign debts.

The Republican presidential battle resumes today when President Ford and Ronald Reagan step up their delegate hunt. GOP delegates will be selected at four state conventions this coming weekend.

Carter planned separate meetings today with House and Senate Democrats; House Speaker Carl Albert and Majority Leader Thomas O'Neill; Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia; Edmund Muskie of Maine, and Henry Jackson of Washington.

He also was to meet with Democratic Party Chairman Robert Strauss.

Carter also said he has decided to decline President Ford's offer of an FBI background check of prospective running mates.

Black Or Woman For VP?

"The more I think about it, the more I think it would be inappropriate," said Carter, who expressed concern last week that such an investigation could violate privacy rights.

But he said that before the Democratic National Convention, he or a staff member will conduct personal interviews with "one or more" of those under consideration for the No. 2 position on the ticket.

Carter told reporters "the likelihood is that it will be someone with Washington experience," although he said there are some persons on the list without that background.

He said in reply to questions that he was "seriously" considering either a black or a woman, but refused to comment in greater detail.

Carter asked his polling organization recently to test public opinion of vice presidential possibilities, including Sen. Alan Cranston of California, who took himself out of the race Wednesday night, saying vice-presidential speculation was hurting his campaign for Senate Whip.

Carter now has 1,467 of the 1,500 delegates needed for the nomination, according to an Associated Press tally. He could go over the top when North Dakota Democrats select 13 delegates on Friday.

Carter aides said that in the New York fund raising, Carter raised about $175,000. Two fund-raising events in Boston on Tuesday brought in about $60,000, they said.

Carter campaign treasurer Robert Lipschutz said last week the campaign was about $600,000 in debt.

NATION IN BRIEF

JFK Killing Clues Point

To A 'Cuban Connection'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Richard Schweiker says his staff is pursuing a number of leads on the assassination of President Kennedy that could link the 1963 slaying to either a pro- or anti-Cuban conspiracy. The leads were not disclosed in the Senate intelligence committee's report on the assassination, Schweiker said. The committee report was released Wednesday, revealing a pattern of noncooperation between key CIA and FBI officials and the Warren Commission, which concluded that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in killing Kennedy.

One lead mentioned in the Senate committee report, involving the "strange travel" of a Cuban-American with a possible tie to Oswald and Cuban intelligence, also is being pursued. Staffers are checking a reported sighting of the man in Dallas at the time of the Kennedy assassination in November 1963, Schweiker said. The Pennsylvania Republican refused to disclose any details concerning one "very hot lead" that would link the assassination to an anti-Cuban group or another "very promising" lead involving pro-Cuban forces, saying to do so would jeopardize the investigation.

Expense Reforms Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats approved a package of sweeping payroll and expense account reforms in the wake of the Capitol Hill sex scandal, with some members warning that failure to act could hurt their chances for reelection in November.

The House Democratic Caucus approved the changes by voice vote Wednesday night after a meeting occasionally characterized by confusion and shouting. Opponents of the changes tried unsuccessfully to postpone action on the grounds that they had no time to study the proposals.

The House Administration Committee was to meet today to implement most of the changes. The committee's new chairman, Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., was elected chairman of the panel by the whole House to replace Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio.

FBI Agents Huddled

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI agents under investigation for allegedly committing burglaries have been ordered not to talk to their lawyers about their case until the lawyers are cleared to receive secret government information.

Department sources have confirmed that the civil rights division is investigating at least 20 FBI agents involved in intelligence-gathering burglaries during the past five years. The probe involves possible illegal violations of the civil rights of American citizens.

The FBI agents were given the instructions about their lawyers in a teletyped message from FBI headquarters last Friday, according to Jack B. Solerwitz, an attorney representing some of the FBI men.

100 Injured In Plane Crash

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An Allegheny Airlines jetliner with 105 persons aboard broke apart while trying to land at Philadelphia's International Airport during a freak storm. No one was killed.

One hundred persons were treated at various hospitals. Twenty-six of them admitted, 18 in serious condition.

The pilot, Carl Boyer, of Ft. Lauderdale, was in critical condition with a fractured skull.

The tail section of the twin-engine DC3-Flight 121 bound from Providence, R.I., to Memphis, Tenn., with stops at Hartford, Conn., and Philadelphia — came to rest 400 feet from the fuselage.

Fire Rages In California

PLYMOUTH, Calif. (AP) — A 50-square-mile grass fire — the biggest this year in parched California — raged out of control near this Sierra foothills town early today.

Residents spraying water on their homes were relieved when a fresh easterly wind blew flames to the west.

"What's between the fire and Plymouth? For one thing, a lot of good wind," said Jim Turner, a spokesman for the California Division of Forestry.

Cold Front Creates Storms

By The Associated Press
Heavy thunderstorms generated by a slow moving cold front continue from Nebraska into northern and western Texas. Thunderstorms also are scattered from the Mississippi Valley to the south Atlantic states as moist air prevails throughout the eastern half of the nation.

But Ford's Deputy Presidential Press Secretary, John G. Carlson, said after the vetoed by Ford in February — becomes law, the city commission probably will vote on a list of projects to be used as subjects for grant applications.

Assault Charged In Row

A 54-year-old Sanford man was behind bars at the Seminole County jail today charged with aggravated assault after being arrested by Sanford police in connection with an incident at the home of Buster Ward, 1221 Lincoln Court, Sanford.

Albert McDaniels, 1217 Lincoln Court, was being held under $10,000 bond on charges of aggravated assault with a firearm and using a firearm in the commission of a felony.

Police said Ward told them that McDaniels visited the Ward residence around 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, pulled out a .32-caliber revolver and threatened to kill Ward with it. McDaniels then left and went to a neighboring house where he discarded the weapon, officers said.

Patrolman Steven Harriett reported that McDaniels had 21 live cartridges in his pocket when he was arrested.

Elsewhere, Seminole County sheriff's deputies investigated the reported disappearance of a 15½-foot boat and a 75-horsepower Evinrude outboard motor from the edge of Bear Lake, west of Altamonte Springs.

Mrs. Frank McMillan of 7000 Lineal Beach Drive, told officers that the boat and motor, valued at $500, were borrowed last Sunday and were first noticed missing the next day.

Susan DiGirolami of 1402 Noble Street, Rolling Hills, reported that someone entered her home between 8 p.m. and 10:30 p.m. Wednesday and removed a 19-inch color television set worth $460. The victim told deputies that she had left the house without locking the front door.

Carroll A. Burke, a Sanford lawyer, has announced he will run for the new Seminole County judgeship recently approved by the Florida Legislature.

A native of Bowling Green, Ky., Burke has practiced law in Sanford since 1967. He did undergraduate work at Western State College in Bowling Green and Stetson University in DeLand before receiving his law degree from Stetson's law school in St. Petersburg.

Burke is a U.S. Navy veteran who served during the Korean conflict. He is married and has six children.

"A judge in Seminole County needs some maturity," the Democratic candidate said, "along with experience in practicing law in the lower courts."

Stemper To Attend Seminar

William H. Stemper Sr., local Real Estate Investment Counselor, is attending the Certified Business Brokers Seminar in the nation's capital this week. The seminars, held periodically in major cities, offer instruction on how to merchandise going businesses to nationwide investors.

Stemper said Arthur Hamill, President of Certified Business Brokers, and his associates are conducting the extensive and detailed instruction in four eight-hour sessions preparatory to being designated a Certified Business Broker. This facility will supplement the general real estate services of Stemper's Realty Agency.

Florida GOP Clears $38,000 At Dinner

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Republicans have received more than $38,000 in contributions from lobbyists and two Senate Democratic chiefs for use by party candidates this fall.

The contributions, which came from a spectrum of special interests to the GOP at a legislative appreciation dinner last month, were reported Wednesday by state party officials.

Herb Harmon, state Republican executive director, said the money will be spent to help Republican candidates in this year's legislative elections.

The Republicans received $34,975 in cash contributions and $2,265 worth of donated food and beverages. The appreciation dinner cost $1,138, so the party cleared $37,094.

Tucker Loan Under Probe

NEW PORT RICKEY (AP) — House Speaker Donald Tucker says it shouldn't take a whole month for a federal grand jury or prosecutors to find out if something is illegal about a $200,000 bank loan he was granted a year ago.

"If they can't determine if something is wrong with the loan in a matter of two or three hours, then they're all dumb," Tucker told a Florida police chiefs convention Wednesday.

Tucker refused to a federal grand jury probe in Miami of the $200,000 loan granted by Southeast First National Bank of Miami. A source told the Associated Press Tuesday that the grand jury investigation began several months ago and is continuing.

Building Plan Sparks Flap

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Education Department officials say a hearing officer and not the Cabinet should take testimony on a proposed Florida State construction project which has football boosters and a group of homeowners up in arms.

Deputy Education Commissioner Roger Nichols made the recommendation Wednesday to Cabinet aides. The flap is over whether a $2.7-million maintenance building should be built near the university's football stadium.

The issue is scheduled for Cabinet action Tuesday, but Nichols said the Cabinet should drop the controversy in the lap of a hearing officer to decide who has jurisdiction and make a recommendation to the appropriate body.

Mattox: 'I'm Not A Crook'

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Rep. Ray Mattox says he did not report free lodgings and airplane trips provided by lobbyists, but adds "I am not a crook."

"I make mistakes, but I think I'm about as reasonably honest as any man who has served in public office for 18 years," the Winter Haven Democrat, a congressional candidate, said Wednesday.

The Tampa Tribune reported Wednesday that Mattox accepted free lodgings from Bill Olson, the Florida Mobile Home and Recreational Vehicles Association lobbyist who runs a group of trailers where lawmakers are wine and dined during legislative sessions.

Drinking, Negligence Tied

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — The Florida Supreme Court has increased the possibility that a drinking driver involved in a fatal auto accident will be convicted of manslaughter.

The court ruled Wednesday that a jury may consider whether the drinking contributed to culpable negligence, which must be proven for a manslaughter conviction.

The opinion was an extension of previous decisions that drunk driving, speed or even running a stop sign did not automatically constitute culpable negligence.

Barron Denies He's 'Ruthless'

MIAMI (AP) — Senate President Dempsey Barron, insisting he's not ruthless or dictatorial as he's sometimes characterized, says he uses his power for progress.

"So all that junk you have been reading about (my) power is just that — a bunch of bunk," Barron told a Dade County political club Wednesday.

Zeigler Defense Calls 80

JACKSONVILLE, — (AP)

— Eighty potential witnesses are listed by the defense as it seeks today to start proving its claim that W.T. Zeigler Jr. was not the perpetrator but almost a victim in a bloody Christmas Eve massacre.

Zeigler, 30, is charged with four counts of first degree murder in the deaths in his furniture store of his wife, Eunice, 31; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Edwards of Moultrie, Ga., and Charles Mays Jr., 35.

Defense attorney Ralph Hadley III said his first 14 witnesses will impeach the testimony of some government witnesses.

State Atty. Robert Egan rested the prosecution case Wednesday after putting 72 persons on the witness stand over 10 days and getting 171 pieces of evidence into the record.

Circuit Judge Maurice Paul denied a defense motion for a judgment of acquittal.

Hadley contended that the state had only circumstantial evidence and failed to prove that Zeigler did the killings.

"The quantity of proof required by Florida law is just not there," Hadley said.

In his opening statement, Hadley said a gang of robbers did the killings and shot Zeigler in the abdomen. The state contends that Zeigler's wound was self-inflicted.

The final state witness, Russell D. Courtney, testified that Zeigler took out a $50,000 life insurance policy on his wife less than three months before the killings.

A previous witness testified that Zeigler bought a similar $50,000 policy on her from another company.

Geneva Plans July 4 Parade

GENEVA — A Fourth of July Bicentennial parade will be sponsored by the Geneva Elementary School Parent-Teacher Organization Saturday, July 3, in conjunction with ceremonies designating Geneva as an official Bicentennial community.

The parade will form at 10 a.m. at the community house, where a 40 foot flag pole has been erected for the U.S. and Bicentennial flags to be raised.

The marchers will stop off at 10:30 a.m. at the club equestrian units, decorated bicycles, tricycles and dogs, and hopefully an area school band.

Speaker for the occasion will be Dan Mathieux, third runner-up in the state debating contest. There will be games, entertainment and refreshments for all.

Scandal Serves A Good Purpose

The suspicious will see something related between the congressional sex scandal and the announced retirement of House Speaker Carl Albert, the Oklahoma Democrat. Albert mildly explains he always intended to retire at age 70 and, suspiciously, the announcement came a day or so after Elizabeth Ray, the incumbent Ingenuite, teased reporters with tales of orgying in Albert's congressional chambers. It is not suggested that Albert, who yawns a lot in the execution of his duties, knew anything about the alleged chambering.

Better, perhaps, that he encourage the speculation. His image never had it so good. Whereas Rep. Wayne Hays, the Ohio Democrat, had his congressional career unceremoniously aborted because of Ms. Ray's terrible tongue, Carl Albert can fairly afford to get out now. He's no more mountains to climb. After a Rhodes Scholarship, what else is there?

Whatever Carl Albert might not have done or condoned, he has given shape to all the vexatious congressmen now are required to suffer. Consider for examples the congressional perquisites: free haircuts, free picture-framing, free office plants, free gym and swimming; more holidays than private sector people dream of; and more money; no work. No, those aren't the problems. What's vexing is that American voters and taxpayers have had enough.

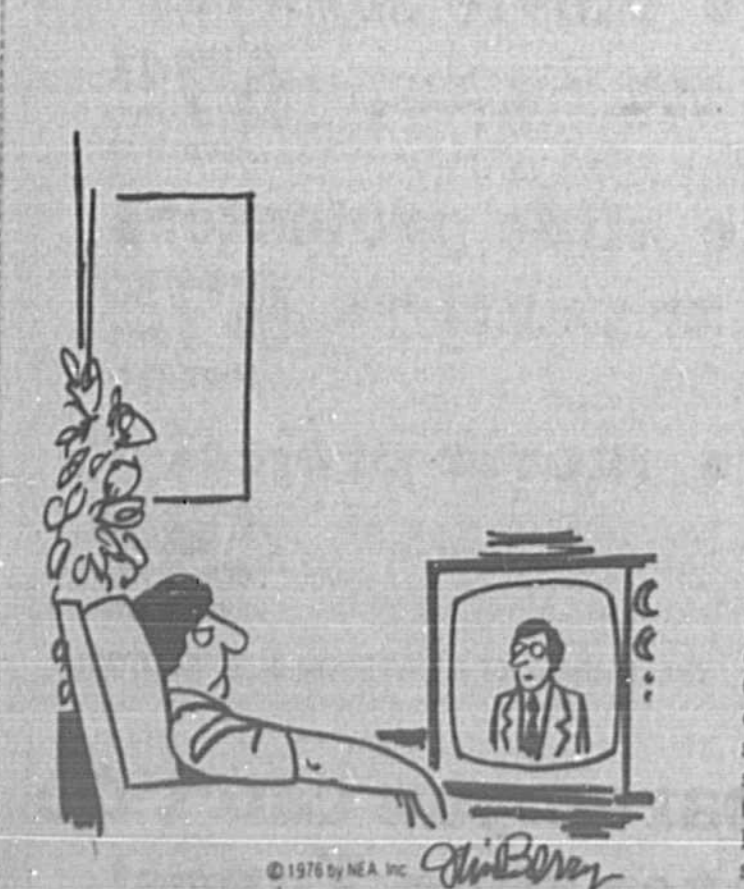

The June Nation's Business cover story says it all: "Why So Many Congressmen Are Calling It Quits." Because the heat is on, that's why. They can't Harry-Truman it, can't stick it out in the kitchen. All the moralistic scrutiny the selfsame congressmen heaped on the Nixon White House has bounced back on them. The newly codified election practices and the exhibitionist crusade to reveal every penny of private income has gotten to be too tough, and too embarrassing. Along comes Elizabeth Ray, and every anti-Washington vote is multiplied ten-fold.

It is to the good the scandal returns to Congress, the members of which are responsible for the bloated budgets, the pork-barreling, and so on — every thing that makes tax-paying Americans livid. We have traveled far, this bicentennial year, from the notions of "republican virtue" which informed colonial thinking as an American government started fresh from King George.

In these days the virtuous candidates — and there was no strong opposition to them — were those who sacrificed. Politicians gave up income to come to the capital. They lost their time and were dragged kicking from their families. Now congressmen are self-interested in perpetuating inflation because their cost-of-living allowances are a step ahead of everybody else's. Federal bureaucrats make more money than their equivalents in the private sector.

The Capitol Hill scandal, over which Carl Albert inescapably if innocently presides, will serve America if it can force a return to "republican virtue" of old. Someone should introduce, right now, legislation to make politicians and bureaucrats earn less money than could be expected in the private sector, thereby reintroducing the element of sacrifice. That would be a start.

Life, per se, is an amazing thing. Think about that when you're feeling down and nothing seems to do you any good. Just think about the fact that life, per se, is an amazing thing.

It would help you if you could remember all the really bad things that've ever happened to you. Because then you could compare how bad a certain thing at the present is with the degree of badness things in the past were.

Psychologists tell us, however, that the mind purposefully forgets experiences that were bad. If the mind didn't phase bad experiences out, some psychologists say, we would all go insane. They may be right because normally when you think about a past experience, or something you remember only the good things — never the bad.

If you remembered the bad parts, you probably would repeat experiences that were, at least partially, bad ones. I guess you couldn't get much done that way, I mean, you might just lock yourself inside a minimum number of experiences that

Signers' Pledged Honor

Americans will shortly celebrate the 200th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence (although the actual signing was not completed for months and in some cases years after July 4, 1776).

Fifty-six individuals mutually pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor to that document. Except for the most prominent figures, however — Jefferson, Adams, Franklin, Hancock — most Americans would be hard-pressed to name a fraction of them. What manner of men were these others, and what were their fates after 1776?

All 56 were delegates to the Second Continental Congress and all were prominent men in their own colonies. They were, for the most part, well-educated and well-to-do. More than half were lawyers, four were doctors and one a practicing minister. Others were merchants, shippers, planters and landowners.

Almost all the signers continued in public service after the founding of the new nation, at either the federal or state level, as judges, congressmen, governors and vice presidents. John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, of course, became second and third presidents.

Sixteen helped to draft the Articles of Confederation in 1781, and six signed the Constitution in 1789.

As a group, the signatories were relatively young when the Declaration was proclaimed; half were under 45. Edward Rutledge and Thomas Lynch Jr., both 26, were the youngest, while Benjamin Franklin at 70 was the oldest.

But again as a group, the signers of the Declaration survived an average of nearly two years less than did men of corresponding age in the general population at that time according to a longevity table compiled by Metropolitan Life Statistics.

Nine of the signers did not live to see the end of the Revolutionary War, and another died before George Washington's first inaugural in 1789.

First to die was John Morton at the age of 52, nine months after signing the Declaration. A month later, Button Gwinnett expired from the effects of a pistol wound suffered in a duel. Youngest to die was Thomas Lynch, who was lost at sea in 1779 at the age of 29.

At the other extreme, the last surviving signer, Charles Carroll, lived until 1832, when he died at the age of 86. Adams and Jefferson also lived well beyond their expectations to see the infant United States securely established. Both men died within hours of each other on July 4, 1826, exactly a half-century after the Declaration of Independence.

But whatever the subsequent fame or obscurity or length of their lives or the prospering of their personal fortunes, each of these 56 men won immortal honor by signing their names to that precious document conceived in Philadelphia 200 years ago.

New Home Prices Drop

NEW YORK (AP) — In case you missed the original announcement, it should be recorded that in May the average purchase price of a new single-family home fell to $46,300, a drop of $2,200 from the record-high price a month earlier.

It is understandable that you might believe these figures to be the result of a typographical error, but they are not. It is possible too that they are another of those well-known statistical flukes, but maybe not.

The fact is that there are some solid reasons why the prices of some new homes might have dropped. Some are smaller editions, many are minus the refinements of a year ago. And some sellers have been having problems.

This latter cannot be ignored: If you think you've had troubles in buying a house your local builder can reduce you to tears with his frustrations in trying to sell a house, even at a minuscule profit.

So what do we deduce from this latest news? That it pays to wait? If you so conclude you are battling the odds. You might very well find yourself in the same trap that ensnared many young households of the 1960s, who were convinced that housing prices would stabilize. Well, they did, for a while. But while housing prices were stable, and only briefly, interest rates rose. And they rose and rose, fully 50 per cent in 10 years. And they were still rising, as of May.

Housing prices weren't stable for long either. They too rose and rose, doubling in about 10 years. Price for land, materials and labor are ascending. Many areas are imposing costly building limitations in order to preserve the purity of their water. Operating costs are rising too.

Will there be a technological break-through that might lower costs? Attempts so far have yet to prove themselves as permanent or broadly acceptable.

Remember the factory house? It's still being produced and the quality is good. But mass production hasn't really caught on; the industry is still largely one of small stick builders operating locally.

The no-frills house? Promising. But some builders maintain they really can't produce a quality house by stripping away distinctive features and then manage to sell at a profit.

A Good Contest Is Brewing

America's presidential primary campaign season, the heaviest there has ever been, has done its job for the Democrats by producing their candidate, but has failed to do the same for the Republicans. The best election that could happen this autumn, for America and for its friends, has been a sport for some while. It would be a contest between Jimmy Carter on the Democratic side and President Ford on the Republican one: Carter representing the best of the new South and the anti-Washington vote, Ford the best of old-time Republicanism and that long line of good Washington government in Congress and the White House that recent sad years have not entirely broken.

That has long seemed a worthy choice.

President Ford has not shown Carter's talents, and so he now finds himself little better than neck-and-neck with Ronald Reagan. Last week, by one count, Ford had 1,003 delegates committed to him and Reagan had 929; another count in different Republican caucuses and state conventions in the next week or two. In seeking these delegates Ford might be expected to have the tactical advantage, since he is chosen in different Republican caucuses and state conventions in the next week or two. contained few or no bad memories. Maybe that's what crazy people do. They just refuse to deal with subjects that have really bad memories attached to them, and since about everything that's any good has some bad, maybe crazy people just disassociate themselves with the entire process of going about living "normal" daily lives.

All this is neither here nor there, as the saying goes, but it does have a point. That point being that life really is very fine, and it's not too difficult to see that. It's just that some people appreciate little things, like the fact that someone likes you or sun in the early morning or freshly-mowed grass or tall trees or the neighbor's old dog or a friend's good job or an associate's saying you did a good job. These are all nice things and as long as you can appreciate them and a thousand other little things, I mean really appreciate them, well, chances are good you won't ever go crazy. Isn't that nice to know?

Busing Theories Disproved

WASHINGTON — Listening to the arguments of a government that would force busing to achieve racial balance, one hears it repeatedly asserted — ad nauseam — that such busing is vitally necessary to provide minorities with "quality education."

But what is never heard — at least I've never heard it — is the evidence to back up this assertion. There is, however, some important new evidence to the contrary.

In this month's Psychology Today magazine, two California social psychologists, Norman Miller and Harold Gerard, write about their 10-year study of a large-scale, one-way busing program in Riverside, Calif., that distributed minority children evenly among 11 elementary receiving schools, ranging from kindergarten through sixth grade.

The sample studied by these two gentlemen included almost all of the school district's 900 minority children, plus their parents, plus a matched sample of about 900 white children and their parents.

The conclusion of the Miller-Gerard article is: Despite a decade of massive busing there was no real change in achievement, motivation or personality for the black and Chinese children who rode the buses. The authors write:

"Most of the personality, attitudinal and value changes that did appear were in the wrong direction. Anxiety, for instance, increased substantially among black children in the year after the busing program began. On some measures of self-esteem there were no changes, yet other measures revealed that minority children were experiencing self-doubts.

"Ironically, white children from families in the bottom five per cent of the socioeconomic index showed gains in self-esteem after desegregation. Even after several years, there appeared to be no change in minority achievement motivation."

The facts of academic achievement "were bad news as well," say Miller and Gerard.

"Overall," they write, "the minority children did not gain in achievement, either absolutely or relative to national norms. After five years of desegregation they were doing worse than they had been had they not been desegregated. Nor did it seem to matter how young the child had been at the time of desegregation."

"Instead, minority grades went down after desegregation, and white grades went up despite the fact that the children in all three ethnic groups were performing at approximately the same level of standardized achievement tests as they had prior to desegregation."

In retrospect, say Miller and Gerard, the whole model they were using — the idea that academic achievement would change as personality changed — embodies "an arrogant, white middle-class ideology that was and probably still is useless as a means of improving minority education."

Personality, after all, they write, would be a terribly difficult thing to change even if they were sure it was a key factor in performance. In any case, they found little evidence that this is so.

Finally, Miller and Gerard declare: "We cannot expect busing programs to lead straight to better minority education. It was quixotic, if not arrogant, to have thought at the outset that sitting next to white classmates would cause Mexican-American and black students to take on good, white middle-class values, and enter the mainstream of American society."

"It just did not happen. We found, instead, that the children in each ethnic group became more and more cliquish over the years and less accepting of those outside their own groups."

So, the next time you hear somebody say that forced busing to achieve racial balance is imperative to improve the quality of education for minorities, ask this somebody to show you proof, and if pressed for his sources he can take to heart the words of the above study.

Now, some of you may say that Norman Miller and Harold Gerard are probably biased, before it is too late. It is not surprising that their article reflects adversely on busing.

Well, you're right. They write that they were "profoundly disappointed" by their findings because "when we began, we expected to document the successes of the whole program."

U.S. Attacked For Vetoing Angola U.N. Membership Bid

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States came under heavy attack from Third World and Communist nations Wednesday night for vetoing Angola's application for membership in the United Nations.

The United States cast its 15th veto in the Security Council to kill a resolution recommending that the former Portuguese African colony become the 145th member of the world organization.

The council vote was 13-1. China did not participate, saying it is "firmly against providing the Soviet Union a pretext to prolong its interference" in Angola.

U.S. Ambassador Albert W. Shriver Jr. told the council the United States opposed Angola's entry because of the "continuing presence of a large number of Cuban troops in the territory."

Africa Talks Continue

GRAFENAU, West Germany (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger holds another round of talks today with South African Prime Minister John Vorster, seeking a way to get negotiations for black majority rule in Rhodesia going again.

Kissinger said after their first four-hour meeting Wednesday that he and Vorster had a "very full review of the situation in southern Africa," and "we indicated the United States we think things should move."

The official said the step was part of a general reduction of U.S. military personnel overseas. He also said it was tied to the Shanghai communique issued at the end of then-President Richard M. Nixon's 1972 visit to mainland China.

"That mutual declaration included a statement that the United States would cut its military activity in the Far East as part of the U.S. effort to improve relations with the mainland."

Party Has Coalition Woes

ROME (AP) — Italy's Christian Democratic party was faced today with the same problem it has had for election last week: how to get the Socialist party to join it in a coalition government without taking the Communists, too.

Because the Christian Democrats fell 53 seats short of a majority in the Chamber of Deputies and campaigned on a promise to keep the second party Communist out of the government, they can only put together a governing majority by an alliance with the Socialists and other minor parties.

"But" the Socialists are only available for the formation of a government that associates all the leftist parties," Socialist leader Enrico Manca said in a television debate Wednesday.

SEA To Seek Arbitration On Teacher Grievances

By JEAN PATTERSON
Herald Staff Writer

The question of whether teacher contract disputes can be handled through the official grievance procedure will come one step closer to being resolved next week, when the Seminole Education Association asks the school board to take three teacher grievances to binding arbitration.

A letter from the association requesting arbitration was submitted to the school board Friday, after the board refused to hear a grievance by Ovidio High School teacher Carol Edwards.

Mrs. Edwards, whose contract was not recommended for renewal after she had taught French and Spanish at the school for three years with outstanding evaluations, has said she will take her case to arbitration, and to the courts, if necessary.

After her grievance was turned down by Ovidio Principal Keith Stone, Mrs. Edwards filed with School Supt. William P. Laver. But Laver refused to hear the grievance, maintaining that annual contract teachers had no right to grievance status.

Mrs. Edwards then took her grievance to the school board, which also refused to hear it, because it had not been acted upon by Laver. The board also feared a potential conflict with state law if it upheld the grievance and restored Mrs. Edwards to her job with continuing contract status.

According to state law, only the superintendent has the power to recommend a teacher for appointment or continuing contract status.

The board was faced with a similar conflict when Jackson Heights Middle School librarian, Lynette Cornelison, presented her grievance about not being rehired in a public hearing. The board supported Laver's denial of the grievance in a $2 vote.

A third teacher, Deana Baird of Sanford Middle School, also has filed a grievance which will be included in the association's request to go to binding arbitration.

School Board Atty. Douglas Strumfuss has said that no decision has been made on the association's letter requesting arbitration, but that he will probably submit it to the board next week for direction.

Merger Unites Florida Banks

MIAMI (AP) — The Landmark Banking Corp. of Fort Lauderdale and the First State Banking Corp. of Miami have announced a merger agreement that would unite 23 Florida banks under a $1.3 billion holding company.

The merger is subject to approval by the state banking regulator. Landmark operates 17 Florida banks. Seven are in the Fort Lauderdale area while one or more of the others are in Melbourne, Indiantine Beach, Orlando, Tampa, St. Petersburg, Clearwater and Tarpon Springs.

Landmark's deposits were reported as $700 million and the company's assets almost $1 billion.

First State has six banks in the Miami area with deposits of $272 million and assets of $300 million.

If approved, Landmark would continue as the new entity, ranking it as Florida's seventh largest bank holding company.

Fred H. Millsaps, chairman of Landmark, said the merger is the first in his plans to expand "through sound acquisitions and the opening of selected branches."

Tony The Tiger Tanks Panthers

The Tigers scored by choice—holder's choice to be exact—Tigers can wrap up the best of seven series with a victory, with the Panthers hungry to stretch the series to a winner-take-all game Friday night.

Leading 11-10, the Panthers scored what appeared to be an insurance run in the sixth on three walks and an error. But the Tigers bounced back to tie the game with a last-ditch effort on Tony's fielding error and a fielder's choice.

The Panthers' Darryl Merthie was the only player to get more than one hit, singling in the second and fourth frames. Merthie and Bruce Franklin had RBIs for the Panthers.

Game No. 2 set tonight at 6:15, preceding the Major League city tournament. The game will be played on a double-elimination format.

City LL Tourney To Open Tonight

Get out the folding chairs, pop. And don't forget the mosquito spray, mom.

It's Little League tournament time. The city tournament gets underway in Sanford tonight with champions of the city's three leagues—Jack Prosser Ford, Railroaders and Flagship Bank of Seminole—playing a double-elimination tourney which will run through either next Tuesday or Wednesday, weatherman cooperating.

Prosser Ford and Flagship of Seminole play tonight at 8, with the Railroaders awaiting the winner in Friday night's game. The losers play Monday.

The Pee Wee championship series precedes the tourney, that game slated to begin at 6:15.

Crusaders, Hollywood Look Firm

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Jimmy Connors, looking to regain the Wimbledon title he lost to Arthur Ashe last year, will need every ounce of energy he's capable of to reach the final.

After shedding 20 pounds since losing to 1975 final, Connors, at 155 pounds, is hardly in the same physical class as big man like Stan Smith and Roscoe Tanner.

But Jimmy says he's as hard as any of his opponents face off in third-round clashes.

Smith, of Sea Pines, S.C., the best seed at No. 16, could be Jimmy's next foe if he can conquer Russia's Tamuz Kaula. Smith, the 1972 Wimbledon champion, is a highly served-and-volley artist.

Connors, No. 2 seed behind Ashe, has a day off from the singles today but he's expected to play in the doubles.

Connors' next opponent will probably be Tamer, the left-hander from Lookout Mountain, Tenn., with the blistering serve, who is seeded seventh. Tanner's third-round foe is Carlos Kike of Brazil.

Through the first three days of the two-week, $200,000 Wimbledon championship, the 14 men's singles seeds have won all their matches.

Two of Putnam's anticipated payroll problems already have been eliminated. Goalie Gerry Cheever, who reportedly had a $100,000 contract from singles play, while Highland fell to 10-2. Sanford stays at Melbourne Saturday in a noon double-header.

David Higgins gained his third victory without a loss for Sanford. Sanford now stands 7-3 while Highland fell to 10-2. Sanford stays at Melbourne Saturday in a noon double-header.

Allen Form Returns, Phillies Still Hot

By The Associated Press

Life among the Philadelphia Phillies is finally agreeing with Dick Allen. The Phils are running away with the National League East and the sometimes moody, controversial Allen is thoroughly enjoying the trip.

"This is really fun," said Allen after Philadelphia dumped Cincinnati 4-2 Wednesday night. "Whether I'm 6-for-12 or 3-for-12,000, I'm having fun."

"I'd pay to watch a playoff between these two teams... and I can't stand to watch baseball."

Allen, in his second go-round with Philadelphia after turbulent stints with St. Louis, Los Angeles and the Chicago White Sox, has got his batting average up to .288 and is regaining the earlier form that made him one of the game's most feared sluggers.

He got the Phils' winning third-inning run, Dave Cook struck a leadoff double and took third on an infield out. After a walk, pinch-hitter Bob Boone grounded into the sixth with a leadoff double and took third on an infield out. ## Pollen Allergy Changes Olympic Runners' Routine

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—In the Cascade mountains 50 miles east of here, far from Hayward Field and the grass pollen of the lush Willamette Valley, Mike Manley and Mark Feig, both training for the U.S. Olympic track and field trials.

"It's beautiful up here—the air is so fresh," said Manley, a 34-year-old school teacher who, like Feig, has a sensitivity to grass pollen. They're among the many athletes with similar allergies competing at the trials.

Neither Manley, a 1972 Olympian, nor Feig, a 1975 Olympian, had any allergies when they were first recruited to the U.S. Olympic team.

Manley, who says his training away from Eugene "is going very well," is entered in the 3,000-meter steeplechase. Heats in that event get underway late this afternoon.

Feig, who won the Pre-Olympic Classic with a time of 3:31.1, will run in the 1,500-meter heats. Heats are scheduled Friday.

Manley and Feig are among the athletes in four events where they'll have immediate after their races and go back to the Cascades, where they'll stay until the next round.

The trials, following the format of the Montreal Olympics, will be held in Eugene, Ore., from June 24 to June 27.

Manley, who says his training away from Eugene "is going very well," is entered in the 3,000-meter steeplechase. Heats in that event get underway late this afternoon.

Feig, who won the Pre-Olympic Classic with a time of 3:31.1, will run in the 1,500-meter heats. Heats are scheduled Friday.

Smith, of Sea Pines, S.C., the best seed at No. 16, could be Jimmy's next foe if he can conquer Russia's Tamuz Kaula. Smith, the 1972 Wimbledon champion, is a highly served-and-volley artist.

Connors, No. 2 seed behind Ashe, has a day off from the singles today but he's expected to play in the doubles.

Connors' next opponent will probably be Tamer, the left-hander from Lookout Mountain, Tenn., with the blistering serve, who is seeded seventh. Tanner's third-round foe is Carlos Kike of Brazil.

Through the first three days of the two-week, $200,000 Wimbledon championship, the 14 men's singles seeds have won all their matches.

Two of Putnam's anticipated payroll problems already have been eliminated. Goalie Gerry Cheever, who reportedly had a $100,000 contract from singles play, while Highland fell to 10-2. Sanford stays at Melbourne Saturday in a noon double-header.

David Higgins gained his third victory without a loss for Sanford. Sanford now stands 7-3 while Highland fell to 10-2. Sanford stays at Melbourne Saturday in a noon double-header.

Crusaders, Hollywood Look Firm

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Jimmy Connors, looking to regain the Wimbledon title he lost to Arthur Ashe last year, will need every ounce of energy he's capable of to reach the final.

After shedding 20 pounds since losing to 1975 final, Connors, at 155 pounds, is hardly in the same physical class as big man like Stan Smith and Roscoe Tanner.

But Jimmy says he's as hard as any of his opponents face off in third-round clashes.

Kuhn, Finley Face Congress

WASHINGTON (AP)—Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley will soon face Congress in a hearing in the halls of Congress in addition to the courts and news media.

Finley shocked the sports world June 13 by holding a clearance sale of players who led the A's to three world championships. He handed pitcher Rollie Fingers and outfielder Joe Rudi to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million apiece, then dealt pitcher Vladek Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million.

Three days later, Kuhn pulled an even bigger shocker. He voided the deals, saying he was taking his lawsuit-producing action in the interest of preserving baseball's integrity.

Rep. Leo Zeffertt, D-N.Y., said the committee should look into the hassle "because it goes beyond the sale. It deals with the reserve clause and playing out of the system, just where reserve baseball is going."

Sisk said the committee would first investigate baseball and then move on to other sports.

Grich Homer Lifts Orioles, Palmer

By The Associated Press

Bobby Grich isn't Baltimore's designated hitter, but you'll have to forgive Jim Palmer if he doesn't pay that. It seems that when Palmer is pitching, Grich is usually doing something useful with his bat.

"Last year, the Baltimore scoreless hit home runs to keep the New York Yankees for $1.5 million."

Longwood $ Fears Appear Unfounded

(Continued from Page 1-A) not triple in size as would have been necessary to amortize bonds to pay for the city sewer system.
Citizens in the community petitioned to have the question of whether planning should continue for the system placed on the ballot in a special election in June this year after members of the business community waged a hard fought campaign to get voter approval, city voters by a vote of 3-1 turned down the proposal and planning on the system was halted.
Jones said his clients set a Friday deadline for rejection of an offer of settlement of $55,000 they tendered to the city. Jones said his client would not accept less than $55,000.
He said that his clients are confident of winning the lawsuit, but are willing to work in good faith with the city.
Terry McManus of the Jones office said today the Glace and Radcliffe engineering firm has extended the deadline for an out-of-court settlement to next Tuesday.
The city council is scheduled to have a meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. and may reconsider. A suggestion of Council Chairman J.R. Grant earlier this week that the meeting be cancelled was not approved by the city council.
It was not mentioned at this week's meeting that Glace and Radcliffe had indicated willingness to settle the suit for a set amount.
The city's special attorney in the suit Mack N. Cleveland Jr., some weeks ago said he would talk to council members individually on strategy concerning the court action, adding that he did not wish to meet publicly with them and reveal strengths and weaknesses of the city case. Cleveland's tactic eroded Florida's Government in the Sunshine Law, which requires open meetings and public decisions.
This week all council members, but Lawrence Goldberg, indicated they had spoken individually and privately with Cleveland.

Another Measure Creates Housing Agency Askew Okays Learning, Spanking Bills

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Bills aimed at making sure Florida students learn what they are supposed to do and are spanked when they should be have been signed into law by Gov. Reubin Askew.
In addition to the two major school bills, Askew signed Wednesday his long-sought bill aimed at creating a housing finance agency to reduce the cost of buying a home.
He also signed a bill to improve the protection of water by setting limits and boundaries of water management districts.
The functional literacy bill, CS-SB107, requires that students be able to read and write before graduating from high school.
It insures that they learn along the way by requiring the Cabinet to set up minimum standards that must be met in tests in the third, fifth, eighth and 11th grades.

The Cabinet last week adopted standards which Secretary of State Bruce Smeaders said were too low and Education Commissioner Ralph Turlington said most pupils would surpass.
The new law also expands the accountability testing program by requiring school boards to base their plans on test results and requiring that results also go to teachers for their use.
The student discipline bill, SB105, requires school boards to set up codes of conduct for pupils and to establish procedures that teachers must use to discipline violators.
Claud Anderson, Askew's education adviser, said that for the first time schools will have standards to be followed by both students and teachers.
The housing and water bills implement constitutional provisions.
At a bill-signing ceremony, Askew urged voter approval in November of a proposed constitutional amendment to allow the state to sell bonds and provide the funds to home-buyers through financial institutions at the lower interest rates available to government.
The water-management bill fully implements the land-water resources act and the water-management districts it created based on hydrological rather than political boundaries, Askew said.
The bill implements taxing powers for the districts as authorized in a constitutional amendment approved in March.
The tax rates were set at .08 cents for the Northwest Florida Water Management District; .15 for Suwannee River; .15 for St. Johns; 1 for Southwest and 8 for South Florida.

County Can Name SCOPA Members

SCDA operates, theoretically, like any department in county government. Money is paid to the department out of tax dollars in return for services — attracting new industry to Seminole.
To date, SCDA has no significant achievements along that line, but Executive Director Jim Daniel is gearing up for a good year, and hopes to bring in much-needed industry. Daniel assumed his position last year.
SCOPA's self-support doesn't impress Kwiatkowski, "SCOPA should not just be off the tax rolls because it had the potential to be a money-making entity a long time ago. It should have been making the county money a number of years ago," he said.

Ryan says the port was not set up to get off the tax rolls as soon as it did. He also said the port is growing in "leaps and bounds."
As for the soon-to-be-signed measure which gives the commission the power to make appointments, Ryan says, "We have no quarrel with that."
Ryan also said there's no indication the governor will veto the bill. "It's not a world shaking thing," he said.
In the next breath, however, Ryan agreed that Binford's days are numbered. It's doubtful the county commission will reappoint Binford, an independent who is seeking Commission Chairman Mike Hattaway's seat.
Next year board members Don Jackson and Rod Cable's appointments expire. By then, however, if Williams and Kwiatkowski have their way, only one county-sponsored agency will be trying to lure industry to Seminole.

How To Cope With Kids In The Car

When imagination and patience are worn out, try that old game: 'Now let's see who can be quiet the longest.'
By JEAN PATRISON Women's News Director
Summer vacation! But before you get there, you've got to survive that many-mile journey in the car with the kids.
One mother of nine lively youngsters, Mrs. Charles (Betty) Glascock, Casseberry, recalls the chaos of vacation trips with a certain amount of horror. But there were times when she got organized and the journey didn't seem so bad, she adds.
"We played those same dreadful games — counting the telephone poles and such," she said. "We sang a lot, and I always took books along — coloring books, picture books."
Her husband took a trip last year with eight of the brood. They had a lot of stories to tell while away the miles, and they got quite proprietary about the cows and horses along the way; made a business about buying, selling or trading members of "their" herds, said Mrs. Glascock.
Another mother of a large family, Mrs. Joe (Pat) Hartwig, Sanford, recalls how she would entertain her seven kids on a "long car journey." Her secret weapon against restlessness and boredom was a "surprise box." Weeks prior to the trip, she bought comic books, cheap story books, and stored paper, crayons, scotch tape and various self-adhesive decals in a box. During the trip, the kids would be allowed to select one of the items at a time, never peeping to see what else was in the box.
For the little ones who cannot read, she suggested tape recording some of their favorite stories, and letting them page through the book as the stories were played back.
Mary Groome, director of elementary education for the Seminole County school system, and mother of two grown children, has several suggestions. If there is a baby involved, parents should consider how they plan to fit formula no matter where they happen to be in route. Always have some water available in the car, she suggests, and bring something from home to make a little one feel comfortable in a strange bed.
Mrs. Andy (Gail) Steele, director of the new Montessori preschool in Sanford and mother of three daughters, said she always packs the floor of the car to back seat level so that the children have a larger level area to play. The kids never eat candy on a long trip — if anything makes them sick that will be lively enough without added stimulant.
To avoid sibling rivalries between school-age children Mrs. Steele suggests letting one sit up front with the driver, helping with the map reading. The other parent can keep the other children happy in the back seat.
Getting organized planning and packing at home for a trip is often an exhausting, that thinking ahead to the trip itself often helps the last straw.
But rally your energies. When you're out on the highway one hundred miles from nowhere, it's the wrong place to discover that Lucy left her security teddy bear at home, or Buddy has no crayons for his coloring book. Worse still, there's not a rag nor drop of water in sight to wipe sticky fingers before they muddy the windows, and Dad's threatening to turn around and head for home unless the kids quiet down and do something constructive.
Basically, kids' needs are the same en route as they are at home. They must be kept clean, fed — and quiet. It's just more difficult for parents to meet these in an automobile.
Surprisingly, clean is easiest. No organized parent sets out without at least two wet washcloths in plastic bags — one for either end.
Pre-moistened paper towels, the kind you buy, won't work as well as a large, damp cloth. They are more expensive, too small for big spills, they don't work as well on upholstery and kids are likely to think they stink.
A roll of paper towels, a roll of plastic bags and a box of tissues are necessities. Take along grocery-size brown bags for trash and for kids' collection of rocks and other "treasures." Mother will need a large paper or cloth.
If the baby is still in diapers, take paper ones. The dirty ones can be easily discarded and you can buy extras along the way.
Young children will go through a couple of changes of clothing during the day. Keep an extra outfit up front in the car.
Unfortunately, the need to keep a child fed can destroy your best laid plans to keep him clean. You can eliminate some problems by being stern: no hamburgers "all the way," no ice cream in the car, no chocolate bars to be left in the rear window.
Try carrot sticks, celery, fruit. If it's grapes, make them seedless. If it's peaches, be sure they are not too ripe and juicy. If it's watermelon — stop the car near a supply of running water before you cut the first slice!

WOMEN

Thick chewy cookies leave fewer crumbs than potato chips and crackers — and don't make kids thirsty.
Thirty kids drink. Drinking kids need to stop more often. Make sure, before you start on each leg of the journey, that everyone has been to the bathroom.
Sandwiches with lunch meat stay together pretty well. Peanut butter and jelly ones tend to fall face down on car seats.
If you're taking soda pop, don't take cans. No child will drink the can empty before spilling it. A bottle, thermos of small cans are your best bet — you can pour a small drink, then recap the container.
Clean, fed — that seems reasonable. But keeping children quiet and entertained is the most aggravating chore. If you're lucky, they'll sleep some, — though often not all at the same time. Night travel is one way of encouraging kids to sleep in the car — but it's hard on the driver.
During the day, try to make short stops every two or three hours. It helps keep the driver alert, and it's your chance to say to the kids, run and yell all you like — cause you're going to have to sit quiet in the car again pretty soon. Take along a ball or play catch when you stop.
In the car, there are usual games to keep kids amused. Travel bingo, cards, coloring books, comics, crossword puzzles and tablets for drawing on. A few new toys help — or pack away a couple of favorite toys weeks before the trip and they'll seem like new when they're unpacked on route.
Don't take toys that make a noise. Do take a soft sleep-with toy for each child.
Singing helps pass the time. But unless you have nerves of steel, sing only when the kids are asleep. A traveling treasure hunt is the way to keep the kids alert and aware of their surroundings. It is especially handy to be familiar with your route. Make a list of items to stop along the way. The first kid to check the landmarks checks it off his list. The one with the most "treasures" checked, is the winner. Or play first to see the flagpole, red mail box, yellow truck, gas station or church steeple.
Each family has its own versions of games such as "I spy..." but remember, a child's attention span isn't long. And each child likes to win.
Finally, there's that old reliable — the silence game. It is played by saying in a loud, exaggerated voice, "Now we will see who can be quiet the longest."
Don't feel guilty. Sometimes it works. But be prepared for the kid who immediately pipes up: "You win."

Chrissie Evert: On Winning, Money And Men

Chrissie Evert, star of women's tennis

Chris Evert, whizz of women's tennis, talked recently with Glamour Magazine about discrimination against women in tennis ("there is some"), drugs among the players ("hardly any"), her feeling that women should not compete against men in singles matches ("there's no question") and her relationship with Jimmy Connors ("dearer than we've ever been").
At 21, Miss Evert is the world female player in the top earning thousands of dollars. She has been engaged to the top-ranked player in the world and dated a President's son. What does she enjoy most about her life?
"I think just growing. Until last year, I always had either my mom or my dad with me, and I have such freedom now. It's great."
She comments on the pattern of a typical day. "On the circuit, we usually get into town on Sunday, then have one singles and one doubles match per night during the following week. So let's say I have a match at 8 p.m. I'll wake up around ten and eat some breakfast at around eleven. Then I'll go out and practice for an hour with someone who can push me. I'll eat again at around 4 or 5 p.m., probably a salad and a piece of meat — then just relax and try not to think about the evening's match. After that's over at 10 p.m. or so, we have a press conference, then take a hot shower and get a massage from our trainer."
As far as goals for the coming year, Chrissie said she doesn't have any as far as winning a tournament goes — she's won all the major ones. "Last year, my goal was to win the U.S. Open at Forest Hills, and I did that. This year I just want to try World Team Tennis — after the Virginia Slims Circuit ends, I'll be playing with the Phoenix Racquets — which will be a new experience for me. I will be disappointed if, at the end of the year, I haven't won a major tournament. But I don't want to put any pressure on myself, because I play better that way."
Last year she made $362,227. Has all that money made a difference?
"I don't think I've changed my lifestyle that much. I don't even have a car. But I'd be lying if I said the money makes no difference to me. I'm very competitive, and I think last year I broke a record for my earnings. So naturally, if I didn't at least equal that this year, I might be disappointed. But Miss Evert doesn't care much for publicity. "I feel very uncomfortable walking in public with my racquets — for example, in airports. I go through periods where I wear hats or sunglasses, because I don't like to be recognized at all."
As for women competing against men in singles, she said there was no question she opposes the idea. "If I played the number 50 man in the world, I'd probably lose. The men are so much stronger than the women — if there were something to be learned and something to prove, I might consider it. But the only challenge match I can see that has done any good for tennis is the one between Billie Jean King and Bobby Riggs. That was exciting and the first challenge match tennis ever had, and the ratings were unbelievable."
On certain surfaces, there is discrimination against women in tennis, and not only that the prize money is often less. "When women play on clay, everyone starts complaining it won't be as good as when you play with men's tennis on clay. But right now I think women's tennis is more interesting than men's because we have a sponsor, Virginia Slims, and the men don't."

Would the star prefer to marry a tennis player? "I've been thinking about that since I was 16. I know, I know. You know, it's really tough for me to talk about this, because I've been going with Jimmy Connors for so long, and he plays tennis. I've had maybe two or three dates with guys who don't know a thing about tennis."
Her relationship with Jimmy Connors is far from normal, ever. "I've been with Jimmy for a long time, ever since we were in high school. I think that's why we're so close. We've been together for a long time, and we realize we're both number one and it would be tough for us to get married."
Jack Ford once joked that Chris should pay for the date as she usually does. "I've been picking up the tab. "I don't care if I made a million dollars, the man's going to pay," declared Miss Evert.
Would the man she married have to have as much money as she does? "Oh, wow, that's a tough one. I've always been very old fashioned about that and said that the guy I marry is going to have more than me and is going to support me. But that's not a very good statement to make, because I think I've a lot of money. And if I really love the guy, it won't make any difference."

'I Do, I Do' Special For Newlyweds

The Annie Russell Summer Theatre at Rollins College is currently presenting a musical comedy about love and marriage—"I Do! I Do!" As part of an effort to provide an insight for newlyweds and engaged couples as to what they can expect in the years of matrimony ahead of them, the Annie Russell Summer Theatre Producer Steven S. Nelson is offering these couples two tickets for the price of one.
All that "soon-to-be" couples and newlyweds (within the past year) need to do is present a copy of their wedding announcement or marriage certificate at the box office, and they will receive one free ticket with the purchase of one ticket.
A few days after "I Do! I Do!" closes, one of the most suspenseful murder mystery plays ever—"Ten Little Indians"—Opens July 7. Written by the great lady of mystery writers, Agatha Christie, the play is a chilling shudder melodrama based on Miss Christie's terror-packed dramatization of a well-remembered Saturday Evening Post serial, "And Then There Were None."
For tickets or further information, call the Annie Russell Summer Theatre box office. Discounts on season tickets are available through July 3.

Funny, Serious Sides Of Steve Allen Viewed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television viewers will have an opportunity in coming months to sample both the funny and the serious sides of entertainer Steve Allen.

Already airing in some cities is a syndicated series of 10 comedy sketches which reunites Allen with some of the old comedians who worked on his TV shows over the past 20 years, including Don Knotts, Louis L'Amour, Bill Dana, Pat Harrington, Tim Conway and Gabe Dell.

Each program in this "Laugh-Back" series runs 30 minutes and features not only new comedy routines with Steve and his chums but also some classic sketches they did on his old shows. Allen resurrected most of the old black and white footage from his own files.

Later this year, Allen's serious side will emerge in a "Meeting of Minds," six one-hour programs that he wrote and appears in for the Public Broadcasting Service.

The format provides a discussion of current national and international issues by famous historical figures such as St. Thomas Aquinas, Copernicus, Thomas Jefferson and President Theodore Roosevelt, based on their written and reported views. The PBS series will present a different foursome in each of the six installments, with Allen serving as moderator.

It's a series he has been marketing for 18 years despite repeated rejections from the networks and other commercial broadcasters who said the idea was admirable but wouldn't draw much of an audience.

Projects of such diverse nature are hardly surprising from Allen, whose abundant creative talents also extend to dramatic acting, playing the piano and writing poetry, novels, plays and songs.

But he is best known as a TV funnyman and talk show host. Allen, in fact, was the first host of "The Tonight Show" on NBC, holding the job from 1957 to 1962. Unfortunately, none of the film from that period will be seen in the new "Laugh-Back" series.

Allen explained why during an interview in his San Fernando Valley office — "Someone at NBC, upon discovering a few years ago that the network was running short of space in its New Jersey storage warehouse, suggested by burning not only my three years of 'The Tonight Show' but just about all the films that NBC had produced from, I think, around 1949 to 1962."

Still, his numerous other shows over the years produced plenty of great routines from which to choose for "Laugh-Back." In one installment devoted to preview the new series, in fact, the old material was funnier by far than the new.

Allen says these two recent forays into the familiar folds of television have done nothing to change his opinion of the medium.

"Economically, it's very healthy," he observed. "Creatively it's probably about as bad or as good as it ever was, depending on one's requirements."

"I'm grateful that there are good shows on the air from time to time."

History Shows Ford Has Even Chance In Election

By JOE WING
For AP Newswriters

If you are a betting man or woman, past performances won't help you much in trying to handicap the coming presidential election.

Of the eight vice presidents before Gerald Ford to attain the presidency unexpectedly, four made it on their own later, and four failed.

The lucky four were the most recent ones, while the failures all made their runs in the past century. On the other hand, the victors, as well as the losers, reached the No. 2 spot by popular election, whereas Ford was appointed by his predecessor.

Because Warren Harding's administration, like Richard Nixon's, was tainted by scandal, some parallels can be drawn between Calvin Coolidge's legal situation and that of Ford. But the graft rampant in the Harding regime did not come to light until after his death. Coolidge's tight-lipped conservatism fitted the country's postwar mood in 1924 and, nominated by the Republicans on their first ballot, he swapped John W. Davis by an electoral vote of 382 to 136.

Harry Truman made himself the everlasting darling of the underdog politician by upsetting all predictions and beating Thomas E. Dewey in 1948. This was all the more amazing because Franklin D. Roosevelt's act was such a hard one to follow, and because Truman's popularity in the polls had fallen as low as 30 per cent. But, after trying at first to tread in FDR's footsteps, "Give 'em hell" Harry talked tough to Democrats and led the charge against William H. Harrison died after only a month in office.

Neither Teddy Roosevelt, an amazingly versatile and charismatic figure, nor Lyndon B. Johnson had much trouble holding onto the presidency for a full term after the assassinations of William McKinley and John F. Kennedy.

Attacking the "manufacturers of great wealth," Roosevelt in 1904 defeated the conservative underdog politician by upsetting all predictions and beating Thomas E. Dewey in 1948. This was all the more amazing because Franklin D. Roosevelt's act was such a hard one to follow, and because Truman's popularity in the polls had fallen as low as 30 per cent. But, after trying at first to tread in FDR's footsteps, "Give 'em hell" Harry talked tough to Democrats and led the charge against William H. Harrison died after only a month in office.

Restricted Busing Is Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, asking Congress to restrict busing as a means of desegregating public schools, is expected to urge legislation that would limit the duration of busing programs and narrow the cases where courts can order busing.

As part of his plan, the President today is expected to ask Congress to declare that judges can order busing only to correct segregation caused by official governmental action, such as the work of a school board.

Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi indicated last week that the bill might also seek a time limit of three years for such busing.

"Economically, it's very healthy," he observed. "Creatively it's probably about as bad or as good as it ever was, depending on one's requirements."

"I'm grateful that there are good shows on the air from time to time."

Visitors Outnumber Residents

ROCKFORD, Mich. (AP) — Many of the proprietors like Mrs. Anglin converted a hobby into an occupation. She was staffing coordinator at a Grand Rapids hospital until about three years ago.

A visit to one of the Square's first businesses spurred her decision to open a candle shop. "I'd been making candles as a hobby for a good many years," she said.

The area's pace is leisurely. Most shops are open only six hours daily.

John Reed, secretary treasurer for the local Chamber of Commerce, described the Square's business as "mostly Mom and Pop operations" but estimated they still gross at least $60,000 annually.

Reed, who owns a gift shop outside the Square area, said eight new businesses have opened in the past six months. Over half of them are run by nonresidents, he said.

The Square started in 1970 when two Rockford brothers, Mike and Tim Farmer, fixed up the burned out and condemned antique and food. The shops once held a variety of businesses, including a lively stable, barn, a feed mill, a railroad caboose and even a coffin maker.

Vihlen Seeks U.S. Probe Of Rep. Kelly's Mailing

Sidney Vihlen Jr., Democratic candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives, today called for a federal investigation of the reelection campaign activities of Rep. Richard Kelly, the Republican incumbent.

Vihlen cited Kelly's recent mailing of literature to residents of Florida's District 5 which he says "must be classified as multi-colored political campaign literature."

"True," Vihlen said, "the law states that a member of Congress can communicate in this manner with constituents, but this piece is ridiculous... coming on the eve of Kelly's qualification for reelection."

Vihlen, a Sanford resident and Seminole County Commissioner, said "not only is Kelly using federal tax monies to launch his campaign, but he voted for the increased Congressional expense budget last year, meaning that he voted for an increased mail budget — obviously, laying the groundwork for his use of Americans' hard-earned tax dollars to kick off his reelection campaign this year."

Bill Purvis, Kelly's press secretary, called Vihlen's charges "absolute nonsense."

"The literature that Congressman Kelly sent out was nothing but announcements to the constituents of the Fifth Congressional District of Florida saying that the Congressman would be in the area to conduct public forums this weekend."

"These meeting announcements have been approved by the staff of the Post Office and Civil Commission."

Refinancing Plan Withdrawn

A bond refinancing program that county officials said would save taxpayers $912,000 has been withdrawn, Exec. Asst. Roger Newswender announced today.

Newswender said William R. Hough officials informed him Thursday that the county commission approved refinancing package was being withdrawn because of a change in the bond market.

The refinancing contract was awarded the Hough firm Tuesday. All that was lacking was final approval of the Hough offer from county bond counsel John Kelly of Jacksonville.

The Hough firm stood to make $182,000 on the project, which was to refinance a $2.4-million bond issue that was used last year to purchase Indian Hills and Consumer Utilities.

"They said they were forced to withdraw," Newswender said. "We'll be seeking legal input from the county attorney."

Newswender said the county is back at home base on the bond issue. And with no proposal before the commission, the executive assistant said the county would have to seek new proposals.

Tuesday's award came from proposals from three firms including Hough were rejected.

At Tuesday's meeting, Hough said all three investment firms violated county guidelines.

The initial Hough offer, officials said, would have saved the county $625,000. On the second bid the projected savings jumped to $912,000.

Public Defender Investigated Governor Gets Report On Kelley

Gov. Reubin Askew is expected early next week to assign an outside state attorney to evaluate the findings of an investigation into the operation of 18th judicial circuit Public Defender Franklin Kelley's office.

Pulswinder, chief investigator for Seminole-Brevard State Atty. Abbott Herring, hand-delivered to the governor's office in Tallahassee this morning a lengthy report on the investigation conducted by Herring's office over nearly three months.

The investigation was begun after a complaint was filed with Herring on April 5.

Herring asked Askew for the assignment of a state attorney to handle the case after Kelley last week announced he would be a Democratic candidate against Herring this fall.

Kelley has said the investigation covers everything from the way his office is operated to his sex life and that of some of his employees.

The investigation also reportedly included the use of Kelley's former wife as a court reporter by the public defender's office. Kelley has said that some of the questions asked by Herring's office have involved the hours worked by individuals and the use of offices by part-time public defenders.

Herring today declined comment on the content of his report to the governor. Kelley was not available for comment at either his Brevard or Seminole County offices.

Herring said that included a cover letter with the report outlining certain areas of the investigation and pointing out that "I feel the investigation mandates another state attorney come in and evaluate the findings to take appropriate action to conclude the matter."

The state attorney said the governor's office "indicated they would assign another state attorney to conclude the matter."

A spokesman in the governor's office said today that Art Canady, to whom the FDCLJE first directed its request for permission to conduct the investigation, was not available. Herring said he received a "substantial complaint" from the governor's office today that Art Canady, who has previously asked an investigation of Kelley from the Brevard County Sheriff's Department in December.

The Sheriff's Department contacted the Florida Department of Criminal Law Enforcement (FDCLJE) about the matter. The FDCLJE, required by law to have approval from the governor before investigating a matter concerning an elected official, could not pursue it when the authorization was not forthcoming.

Ford Wins Minnesota Convention Test

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — President Ford's backers won a key test at the start of Minnesota's Independent-Republican convention and appeared ready today to claim the state's 15 remaining national nominating delegates.

The convention, with more than half of the attending delegates Ford supporters, voted to require majority support for each of the 18 delegates left to be picked.

Ronald Reagan, challenging Ford for the GOP nomination, arrived here from Mississippi after the vote and reacted angrily to word of the rule change. He said he would support his backers if they decided to walk out of the state meeting in protest.

"If party unity is being hurt, it is being hurt by the other side," the former California governor declared. "We have done nothing divisive. They have done nothing except be divisive."

Reagan and Ford are locked in a tight race for the GOP nomination, with the President holding the edge, 1,008 delegates to 928 for Reagan with 1,130 needed for the nomination and 161 to be picked.

The challenger and First Lady Betty Ford were scheduled to address the Minnesota convention and mingle with delegates today.

In the race for the Democratic nomination, meanwhile, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter ran his delegate total past the 1,500 needed for the nomination.

Carter pushed over the majority barrier exactly four months after he won the opening primary in New Hampshire. With the convention still 17 days away, Carter's total edged up to 1,510, an Associated Press delegate survey found.

The survey counts only delegates who are legally committed or who have publicly declared their preference for one candidate. It does not include any delegate who is leaning toward a candidate, nor does it count delegate votes simply on the statement of a party leader.

Delegates to the Minnesota convention voted 877 to 747 to adopt the rule requiring that each national delegate get a majority vote at the state convention. About 85 per cent of the delegates favor Ford.

During a two-hour debate on the rules, Reagan backers warned that a failure to split up the 18 delegates could leave the party apart and hurt state legislative races.

Delegate Count Gives Nomination To Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter has now collected enough committed convention delegates to give him the Democratic presidential nomination, an Associated Press survey shows.

Carter, who never trailed any other contender in his bid for the necessary 1,505 delegates, pushed over the majority barrier Thursday, exactly four months after he won the opening primary in New Hampshire.

With the convention still 17 days away, Carter's total edged up to 1,510, the AP delegate survey found.

"The survey counts only delegates who are legally committed or who have publicly declared their preference for one candidate. It does not include any delegate who is leaning toward a candidate, nor does it count delegate votes simply on the statement of a party leader."

Carter's nomination became virtually certain when the primaries ended June 8 and his victory in the Ohio primary boosted his delegate total to 1,125. Democratic leaders and former opponents rushed to endorse him.

Carter, who met Thursday with Democratic congressional leaders in Washington, said he welcomed the AP survey finding.

"I'm glad to hear it," he said. "We've got a very good certainty of a first ballot victory."

Carter called the AP survey "a very conservative count."

"Our confidential delegate count is approaching 1,800," he said.

The Fair Labor Standards Act prescribes minimum wages, hours and other working conditions. The present minimum wage is $2.30 an hour. The law was passed by Congress in 1938 but is enforced by states and their political subdivisions were excluded from coverage until Congress passed the extension in 1974.

Decision Exempts Workers From Overtime Rules

By JACQUELINE DOWD

A United States Supreme Court decision to exempt city employees from federal overtime regulations has triggered a big shift of relief at Sanford City Hall.

The city, under the court's ruling Thursday, permitted to compensate for overtime by giving time off in a later pay period. That was prohibited under an extension of the Fair Labor Standards Act passed by Congress in 1974.

"The first impact on us was on some city employees who had been working on a voluntary basis," said City Manager Warren Knowles, who had been forced to order a city employee to quit coaching Little League because of the law.

"They ruled that with Little League — since it's his job and that we would have to pay him overtime," Knowles said. "So I had to tell him he couldn't coach anymore."

Knowles said the city's firemen were also relieved when the Supreme Court struck down the law. Over the next three years, work schedules for the firemen would have been changed so that each employee worked a 40-hour week.

"Firemen now work a 56-hour week, but they're asleep for about 24 hours," Knowles said.

"Under the 40-hour program, the dorms would be done away with and the firemen would have to be up, in uniform, actually working for 40 hours," he said. "But who wants to have an inspection at 11 p.m.?"

Knowles said the court ruling — expected to ease tight budgets in many cities — won't affect Sanford's budget because the city has cut down considerably on overtime since the law was passed. "The impact here will be in better relations with city employees," Knowles said.

The Supreme Court — in a 5 to 4 decision — struck down the extension of federal overtime regulations, which the National League of Cities had been fighting since it was passed in 1974. The extension applied to non-supervisory state and local government employees.
