Georgia River Goes On Second Rampage To Menace Augusta

1,500 Men Work Fast To Patch Crumbling Levee; River Rises To New Record Level

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 2.—(INS)—Barrage and precautionary work for safety were taken in Augusta today as the turgid, yellow Savannah went on another rampage—the greatest, the Weather Bureau predicted, in its history.

More than 1,000 men toiled throughout the night patching the city's nine-mile levee, while the river steadily rose. Water was seeping through at several places with the down, and forces were frantically rushed to these dangerous spots.

At 9 A. M. the river reached a stage of 42 feet, and was rising rapidly. The weather bureau predicted it would reach 47 feet by noon—the highest on record and inundate Augusta's business section. The low outlying sections already are under many feet of water, and the residents have gone to higher ground.

At Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 2.—(INS)—A levee breach was reported today for the town of Milledgeville in south Georgia. It was reported to be in the water of the overflow menacing that section of the state.

BROAD INQUIRY LAUNCHED INTO LOBBY EFFORTS

Senate Adopts Carraway Motion To Probe All Organized Moves To Influence Solons

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(INS)—A far-reaching investigation into all forms of congressional lobbying—which annually amounts to the expenditure of millions of dollars in Washington—was announced today as a result of the Senate's adoption of the Carraway resolution.

The Senate Judiciary Committee, of which Senator Noris is chairman, is authorized to conduct the inquiry, and no strings were tied to the committee's activities.

There was widespread speculation in Washington today as to how far the committee will go in its inquiry, and whether it will be a mere formality or a thorough and exhaustive one.

The committee will be held in a meeting to discuss the situation and to plan a subcommittee of probably five members will be appointed to conduct the inquiry.

Seminole High Grid Squad Prepares For Freshmen Of Rollins

By Peter Schaal

Four weeks of hard work behind them, and with yesterday's practice scrimmage the snappiest one of the year to date, Coach Hugh Welchell's Seminole High griders enter their final week of preparation for the opening game of the 1929 season scheduled for next Saturday, with the strong Rollins football team furnishing the opposition.

And from all the indications, it certainly looks like another banner year, with the chances better than ever of going through a season with an unblemished record. Despite the loss of practically all of his backfield, and a fighting center and end, Coach Welchell has a squad of 40 boys out there that have led him to believe that the loss of the stars of last year will mean very little, so he has enough men to more than fill their shoes. In fact, the coach has about four men for every position on the team, with only the fact that they are mostly inexperienced in football to worry him. And that, of course, is plenty of trouble to any coach. However, what the boys lack in experience they certainly do make up in spirit, and there is no doubt but only a game or two is all they need to bring out the plenty of talent.

Last year the coach trotted out for the fans a line which he thought was the last word in speed, brawn, and power, and it was known throughout the State, and in one or two cases, feared, as that "180 pound stone wall." No other high school in the State equaled that line in weight, and it compared in that respect with a prep school in college. But this year, Coach Welchell will offer for approval what he terms "the heaviest, strongest and tightest forward wall he has ever seen." And instead of a mere 180 pound average, this year's wall will total the scales at 186 pounds. And if you don't believe it's a line that will make last year's line look like the City's bank balance, just run out to the field any day this week and watch them go through their paces.

The coach is ready and willing at any time to go into detail about why this line won't be the class of State high school football, and a great deal of his enthusiasm is finding its way into the minds of the boys who make up that combination. They work with a will, eagerly await the opening game, and the coach hasn't had a bit of worry over their department in the season's progress. There are many good men to see that the coach has been wondering just who he will start on that line. It has three parts of ends, headed by Edersfield and Aycock, six tackles, headed by Holtz and the Hyatt brothers, five guards, headed by Captain Yancy and Little Billie Ball and one center, Kanter, but what a center! All this material gives the coach a chance to try out different combinations for either offensive or defensive play, and this is the one year that the coach can really carry out his threat of bombing the men who don't prove his worth.

This 186 pound line is composed of Aycock, 160, an Edersfield, 140, at end, Hyatt, 245, and Holtzlaw, 165, at tackle, Yancy, 245, and Ball, 190, at guards, and Kanter, 215, at center, at center's just off hand, he says that that's to be the regular varsity line too, though the Coach has intimated that he has not selected his first string players yet.

As for his backfield, it will probably be a fast, light one though George Moyer 170 pounds of full-back material will keep the backfield's average up around 160 pounds. Fulton Foster, one of the brightest of last year's stars is the only veteran in the backfield, and will surely be the man around whom the coach will build his offensive. Heater will probably alternate at quarterback and fullback, thus fitting into either of two backfields to lend the extra experience that must be there to help youngsters along. Jack Robinson has been groomed for the quarterback position, and seems to be fighting hard to show the coach he can handle it. He is fast, and is picking up plays like a veteran. Alan Fields at right half will probably be assigned a regular berth due to his punting, which he has been developing gradually since the season opened. He lifts long, lazy spirals in good style, and it is thought that he will receive a regular berth due to his punting, which he has been developing gradually since the season opened.

He lifts long, lazy spirals in good style, and it is thought that he will receive a regular berth due to his punting, which he has been developing gradually since the season opened.

As said before it looks like a good year, and it won't be long before we will know just what all this promising material can do under fire. The schedule for this year is practically the same as last year with the addition of New Smyrna, who take the place of Montverde. From all indications, every team to be played has some weaknesses or other, either a bunch of new men inexperienced men, or as is the case in DeLand, New Smyrna and Orlando, a new coach. Tresburg lost all their stars last year, and their chances are that Babalaka will furnish most of the opposition this year.

CLYDE CRABTREE IS ONE OF DIXIE'S TRICKIEST BACKS

Cannonball Made Big Name For Himself On Freshman Team

By Frank B. Wight

GAINESVILLE, Oct. 1. (INS)—It's all in the lay your hand upon, or to accurately define an atom is impossible. Similarly, they have been many football players in the South for the past three years who think just that way about "Cannonball" Clyde Crabtree, quarterback of the University of Florida, who has been about the most elusive and trickiest in Dixie's gridiron. He kicks from either foot and can pass with either arm.

Crabtree today might be at home studying algebra, or up in the stands with the crowd, if it weren't for a rather singular happening back in the fall of 1926. Clyde had been calling signals on the fourth and fifth yard lines for a couple of weeks, and his work had gone unnoticed. One day for some reason there developed a shortage of quarterbacks, and the freshmen were scrambling the varsity just prior to the varsity's trip into the mid-west to play the University of Chicago.

"A quarterback up here," Coach Cowell the freshman mentor, shouted. "One of you backs step in here, fast and let's give the varsity a real scrimmage." The demure and somewhat inconspicuous Crabtree snapped his 110 pounds into the fray and in five minutes he had the literally popping out. The first time he carried the ball he slipped through the varsity for 75 yards and a touchdown, and after half a dozen other runs Coach Howell took him from the game to allow the teams to have some line scrimmage and not spend the afternoon chasing Crabtree's shadow.

With that stellar exhibition, Crabtree emerged from obscurity into full prominence on the freshman football team. And from that day until this, the name of Crabtree has been talked in a most glorious fashion whenever football in the South has been discussed.

Crabtree and Company invaded Atlanta and whipped Georgia Tech 23 to 7 the year that he, Crabtree, Goodbread, Reeves, Van Sickle and the other freshmen and for Tech, Thomson, Mizell and others were first year football players on Grand Field. Crabtree was a great star in that class, and in every subsequent football game he's played for the Orange and Blue. Clyde was born at Altamira, Iowa on November 30, 1907. The day he "Gator" embarked for Harvard this year will be Captain Crabtree's 22nd birthday, and the day the Gators begin their return journey from Cambridge will be Clyde's 22nd birthday. He lived on an Iowa farm until he was 14, and there developed an early inclination and aptitude for football.

For years most of Clyde's associates were boys larger than he. His mother had presented him with a fine ball that resembled a football and at first Clyde rented it out at a price for a penny. Later he persuaded the boys to allow him to play with them and thus save the rent.

Going to Morton High School in Chicago, Clyde played his first year on the lightweight football team and though he added 30 pounds to balance the bar at 115 his second and third years, he won a regular quarterback post with the heavyweight team. Up in that country they have the two divisions in high school football. Clyde's team averaged about 120 pounds and to look at that aggregation, the crafty little fellow surely must have resembled a baby mascot of the team, instead of its star player. Fourteen teams were in the suburban league and Clyde was named on the All-Star team.

Clyde captained the basketball team one year at Morton High, but confined his athletic then, as here in college, to the gridiron and basketball court.

Crabtree started to Northwestern, but changed his mind after being in school two weeks and came to Florida with his mother, taking up residence at

OTT, KLEIN AND O'DOUL SEEKING BATTING HONOR

Records Established By Hornsby Are Due To Fall This Season

NEW YORK, Oct. 1. (INS)—Now that the pennants have been won and the baseball season has all but rolled over, and died it may be said, it is time to talk about important games, but three of them will be played this week in Philadelphia.

Meaning the three contests involving the Giants and the Phillies. The games mean quite a bit to the two clubs as both are making a desperate bid for higher things but they mean a lot more to Messrs. Ott, Klein and O'Doul.

For the first two gentlemen, tied for the league honor lead with 42 apiece, the game will probably decide the 1929 National League batting crown. The honor of having set a new record. For the latter gentleman the contests offer an opportunity to set a new mark of safe hits made for a season plus a chance to establish a new high water point in the matter of runs scored during the season.

Haines City. Then he entered the University and after an unassuming start became the hero of the hour.

Clyde stands only five feet, seven inches and weighing just 110 pounds. But in that slight, yet powerful and rugged physique, is moulded the skill, the nerve, the ambition and naturalness that makes him almost a marvel. In fact it is no exaggeration to say that Crabtree has been a real marvel.

The greatest game of football to his nation was the Florida-Alabama fracas in 1927. He ran a punt 95 yards for a touchdown, made a couple of 55 yards and in all gained over 300 yards in that grueling battle that Florida won 13 to 7, and a game in which he won the name of Cannonball Clyde. The Georgia game brought him real satisfaction, but he hopes to realize the greatest joy of all by helping Florida win the Tech game in Atlanta October 19.

For two successive years Clyde has been Florida's individual high scorer in basketball, and for a boy to be an outstanding star in two major sports; to enjoy an admirable reputation by faculty and student body alike, is indeed a most commendable record. Clyde is an officer in Delta Tau Delta, Pi Kappa Phi and Beta Beta Beta. If all goes well, Clyde plans to be in action this time next year. Flying seems to be his new hobby.

ing a... at 42... number... hit 22 when he set a record. Some meanie steals their one of these boys should the record.

Saturday the last of the games is... should see O'Doul with thorns and maybe three. He has 248 safe hits for the yearling but three to break Hornsby's mark of 1922. The Philadelphia game at this date has scored runs. Hornsby has scored 150 this season to break O'Doul's 1925 mark of 144. Entirely probable that Leonard will overtake Roger for all record. His one certain hit the batting crown, his 30 being beyond in either league.

AMERICA'S SUGAR BOWL

Sugar Cane Syrup

Florida produced enough sugar cane syrup last year to supply almost the entire population of the State with a dollar's worth each. The value of Florida cane syrup in 1928 was estimated at $1,224,000 by the Department of Agriculture.

This important Florida product ranks seventh among the States as a staple and the possibilities indicate an even greater source of future wealth.

FLORIDA, the potential sugar bowl of America, endowed by nature with fertile soil and favorable climate and guided by energetic men of great vision, holds within its grasp a tremendous agricultural destiny—the leadership in the world's sugar industry!

Years of cane-breeding activities, painstaking experiments and heart-breaking failures... yet always a consistent, confident progress... and RESULTS that speak for themselves. The Florida sugar industry is still in its infancy; FACTS, definitely established, assure its rapid growth and successful future.

The Department of Agriculture cites the case of one large grower near Lake Okeechobee who found that 500 acres of sugar cane yielded 50 tons to the acre, with 12.5 per cent of sugar obtainable—a larger tonnage and a larger percentage than is shown in Cuba, Hawaii, Java and other countries with the exception of Peru and Argentina. By the end of 1929 it is expected that the grinding capacity of this region will be advanced to 7,500 tons a day.

Ernest A. Burguières, president of the Domestic Sugar Producers' Association, predicts that Southern Florida and Southern Louisiana together will produce 1,000,000 tons of raw sugar yearly within the next ten years. He says: "We should produce at least 90 per cent, if not all of the sugar we require in this country."

Utilization of the two million acres of Everglades land, now undrained but ideally suited for sugar cane production, would mean that Florida could supply all the sugar used by the people of the United States each year.

Optimistic... perhaps ambitious... this growing Florida industry, but such is the metal of Florida's men... molders of destiny, builders of prosperity!
