Birds destroyed by vandals

LONGWOOD — Most of 13-year-old Orlando Garcia's tiny pets were destroyed by vandals Monday night while he and his family slept.

According to George Proechel of the Seminole County sheriff's office, 35 lovebirds and 55 of their eggs were smashed by the unknown person or persons.

"We think this was probably somebody who knew the family or knew the boy," Proechel said. "But we want to get this person off the streets. They need more help than they think they do."

Proechel said that Garcia and his family were very upset by the incident.

"The child is just an animal lover," he said. "This random act of violence against these birds is just unbelievable."

Ten birds were released from their cages in the backyard of Garcia's Amberwood home, he added, but only two of those have been located. The other birds, in 18 homemade cages, were smashed in their nests and their eggs were destroyed.

"This is truly a horrible thing," Proechel said. The sheriff's department is looking for assistance in bringing the vandals to justice. They presently have no leads in the case.

Anyone having any information that might lead to a resolution of the case should call 330-6600, ext. 352.

County expansion may cost $78 million

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County's office expansion plan could cost as much as $78.2 million, according to a consultant's estimate Wednesday.

That's the cost of a courthouse expansion, a new public safety-sheriff's center and a new county government building if they were built during the next nine years. If the entire package were built during the next three years, the cost would be about $71.5 million, the consultants estimated.

At least three commissioners, a majority, expressed a willingness Wednesday to consider the total package. Two said such a large expense wasn't needed. They preferred a phased approach of building on what's needed.

If commissioners decide this year to pursue all three of the construction projects, they may decide to add about $18 per year to the countywide tax paid by owners of $75,000 homes or increase the utility tax paid by unincorporated residents from 4 percent to 8.4 percent.

Commissioners will meet again in about two weeks to discuss the costs of the building program.

County consultants recommend expanding the courthouse to relieve current crowding and to serve future population increases. They Seminole County commissioners are facing an office construction program that could cost $78 million to make room for new employees during the next 20 years.

One proposal to building the whole building package at once would cost $71.5 million, saving about $6.7 million from the recommend replacing the crowded, leased Sheriff's Office at Sanford's airport and consolidate it with the Public Safety Department at Five Points.

And the consultants recommend building a new administrative center or move the tax collector and other offices out of the County Services Building to prepare for future staff increases during the next 20 years.

The costs of the proposals break down this way: the courthouse expansion, with its 1,000-space, $7 million parking garage, would cost $38.9 million. The sheriff-public safety center would cost $10.3 million. Initial remodeling of the County Services Building: $1.5 million. Remodeling of the Health and Human Services Building: $1.5 million. Subtotal: $53.3 million.

The new administrative center, if built before the year 2000, would cost an estimated $11.3 million. If

Zoo hosts free concert

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — The Second Annual Symphony Zoo Safari will be held at Central Florida Zoo this Saturday despite last month's dissolution of the Florida Symphony Orchestra.

Many of the FSO musicians will perform with Music Orlando, a summertime ensemble created about two years ago to allow them to perform chamber music throughout the summer during the off season of the FSO. With the demise of the FSO last month, a Music Orlando board member said the organization hopes to take a more visible role in the Central Florida music scene.

"We hope we can keep as many FSO musicians working as possible," said Andrew Lane, a french horn player. "A lot of us feel like the support is still here for a symphony orchestra."

The demise of the FSO last month lead to heartbreak then quick action for groups expecting to perform with the musicians. Last month, a choral concert scheduled with the FSO in Orlando was hastily rescheduled to DeLand.

Man 'went nuts' over winning Lotto

TALLAHASSEE — An unemployed Lauderhill man said there are three things he wants to do with a $3.8 million Lotto prize: pay his bills, put aside money for a house, and "don't work."
Ernie Simmons, 29, received the first of 20 annual installments of $192,000 Wednesday. He said his wife, Tracy, and their two children stayed in Lauderhill.
Simmons said he found out he had won Saturday's jackpot Tuesday when he checked the weekend newspapers for employment ads. He saw that a winning Lotto ticket had been sold in Lauderhill and realized he hadn't checked his 20 tickets.
On the tenth ticket he checked, all six numbers matched: 1-6-18-28-34-40.

Teen-ager sues over stalking charges

PENSACOLA — A teen-ager is suing the Escambia County sheriff and a deputy who charged him with stalking and leaving threatening notes for a 12-year-old girl.
The boy's lawyer, Daniel Soloway, said Tuesday that the $1 million lawsuit was filed after a judge dismissed the criminal case last month because a handwriting expert determined the youth hadn't written the notes.
The suit alleges Sheriff Jim Lowman and Deputy Dora Currence violated the civil rights of Jeremy Mysak, 14, when Currence used random handwriting samples to accuse the boy of writing notes found in the girl's school locker.
The deputy made the arrest last December, when the boy was 13, although she has no expertise in handwriting and failed to seek the advice of experts, the suit alleges.
Currence, school resource officer at Ferry Pass Middle School, declined comment.

Sheriff bans discrimination against gays

FORT LAUDERDALE — Broward County's sheriff has banned harassment or hiring discrimination against gays, making his department one of the few — if not the only — to take such action in Florida.
Broward Sheriff Ron Cochran's staff directive, addressed to employees, states the department will be an equal opportunity employer without regard to race, religion, sexual orientation, age, creed and other factors.
Dennis Delia, president of GUARD — Gays United to Attack Repression and Discrimination — applauded Cochran for being the first Florida sheriff to afford gays such protection.
"That statement to us was a beacon of hope in what is otherwise a sad state of affairs in the state of Florida," Delia said.

UF tests drug for cats with cancer

GAINESVILLE — University of Florida veterinary researchers are testing a new drug therapy for cats with mouth cancer.
"Most cats with this type of cancer (oral squamous cell carcinoma) are euthanized because of debilitation and progression of their disease," said Dr. Leslie Fox, a UF veterinarian.
"Even with surgery or radiation therapy, control of these cancers is poor," Ms. Fox said. "Only 10 percent live more than one year."
Ms. Fox is seeking 14 cats with mouth cancer to participate in the one-year study of a drug that is a derivative of a common anti-cancer agent called cisplatin, which are effective in treating this cancer in people and dogs. But the most commonly used compound is fatal for cats.

Immigrant found dead in inner tube

BOCA RATON — A Cuban immigrant carrying only scraps of paper with phone numbers and an empty canvas sack was found dead in an inner tube.
The Hispanic man was in his late 20s or early 30s apparently died from dehydration, said Richard Rodriguez, investigator with the Broward County Medical Examiner's office.
The migrant had been dead at sea for at least a day before a passing boater found him Tuesday two nautical miles east of Boca Raton.
"We have nothing," Rodriguez said of man's identity. "He had some names and phone numbers."
The medical examiner's office was attempting to trace that information and identify the Cuban immigrant.

Injured Key deer airlifted to Gainesville

MIAMI — A Key deer fawn nearly killed when hit by a car has been airlifted to Gainesville for treatment.
The tiny 3-week-old fawn was run down last weekend and initially treated at the Key Deer Refuge on Big Pine Key, said Miami MetroZoo director Ron Magill, who escorted the deer to Miami International Airport.
Zoo veterinarians discovered the animal's injuries were worse than first believed, and decided to send it to the School of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Florida on Wednesday.

HRS reorganization plan
McKay announces plan to revamp, improve operation

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, the nation's largest state agency, will revamp its operation in hopes of minimizing bureaucracy and improving services on the local level.
"We believe that this is really the first step to truly reorganizing the department, to truly taking those services down to the local level," Ted Granger of the United Way said Wednesday after the changes were announced.
The 44,000-employee agency in charge of numerous social services will be scaled back from nine to six levels. The bottom and top layers won't change, but positions, such as deputy assistant secretaries, assistant deputy secretaries and deputy secretaries, will be eliminated.
Altogether, the salaries of those working at the HRS headquarters here will drop $8.5 million from $77.5 million. The agency's total staff costs $10 billion.
Lt. Gov. Buddy McKay, put in charge of HRS by Gov. Lawton Chiles after problems surfaced earlier this year with welfare estimates, said the changes represent a 25 percent reduction in the office of the secretary and offices dedicated to specific programs.

"These are jobs that are needed at the district and local level," he said.
As part of the changes, the jobs of 128 Tallahassee administrators will be scattered throughout the state to the four new districts created by lawmakers last year.
When the Legislature increased the number of districts from 11 to 15, it directed the agency to run the new districts with its existing staffing.
In addition to the 128 administrators, another 65 vacant Tallahassee positions will be transferred to the districts and 45 positions now in field locations will answer to districts rather than Tallahassee.
Tallahassee officials will also give the district officials more say in spending money — and hold them accountable for the decisions they make, McKay said.
A second phase of decentralization and reorganization will be announced next month, McKay said. The changes will have to be carried out by July 1 under the law.

"We're serious about changing the focus of this agency from (Tallahassee) to the place where the services are delivered," he said, referring to the name of the HRS headquarters complex in Tallahassee.
And there are more changes down the pike, McKay said Chiles would ask lawmakers in a special session on workers compensation reform expected sometime later this year to move some functions from HRS to other agencies.
An example would be moving child support enforcement to the state Department of Revenue.
Dominic Calabro, president of Florida TaxWatch Inc., said he had looked the plan over and could find nothing to criticize.
"The department's taken a new approach," he said. "It's taken a different approach, one that's more client-driven, less bureaucratic."
But he added that reducing the bureaucratic levels by one third would be a substantial challenge and that his non-profit research group would wait to see how the plan is carried out.

Lake Mary to look at Crystal Lake Park

By NICK PFREIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Refurbishing Crystal Lake Park is being considered. The Lake Mary City Commission will discuss a proposal during tonight's meeting.
The park is located just off Country Club Road, behind the Community Center. In years past, the property had served as the city's swimming beach and picnic area. It is on the eastern shore of Crystal Lake.
For the past few years, it has been closed to swimming by HRS due to concern over the purity of the lake water.
The land however, is still a city park area, and if maintained, could serve as a picnic area.
Parks and Recreation Director John Holland has investigated costs of a master redevelopment project, which he said are just under $5,000.
"Until a master plan is developed," Holland said, "major work in the area should be postponed."

At this time a cleaning and clearing project would be in order. I would like to propose a 'Neighbors for Neighborhoods' project be scheduled for an upcoming Saturday.

-John Holland

He continued, "However, at this time a cleaning and clearing project would be in order. I would like to propose a 'Neighbors for Neighborhoods' project be scheduled for an upcoming Saturday."

The "Neighbors for Neighborhoods" concept was started early last year, initiated by former Lake Mary Mayor Randy Morris. As a result, several small park areas in the city have been refurbished, cleaned, re-landscaped, and improved. Large work has been done by city crews, but most of the physical labor has been through the help of volunteers from the community as well as members of the commission and city staff who assisted in the work during free time on weekends.

For the immediate future at Crystal Lake Park, Holland is proposing the immediate removal of an old pavilion and the addition of picnic tables and grills.
"I have requested information from various residents and organizations on the possibility of historical value of the old pavilion," Holland said. "I have not found any to date."
Holland is proposing Saturday, June 12, for initial work on the project and removal of the pavilion if approved by the commission, and if the date is not in conflict with any other activities.
The proposal is scheduled for presentation during the City Manager's report at the regular commission meeting tonight, beginning at 7 p.m., at Lake Mary City Hall, 100 W. Lake Mary Blvd.

Molestation case: Money, influence

By BRIGITTE GREENBERG
Associated Press Writer

SAN DIEGO — Something happened to the children Dale Akiki minded in a church nursery as their parents prayed nearby.

Was it bizarre episodes of sexual abuse at Akiki's hands?

Or was it manipulation of their impressionable minds by therapists and prosecutors, forced on by a powerful and well-connected businessman whose grandchildren are among the accusers?

"This case is about money, somebody buying a prosecutor," said John Akiki, the defendant's brother.

"This is a case of physical abuse, sexual abuse and emotional abuse," Deputy District Attorney Mary Avery said during opening arguments last month.

Akiki, a 35-year-old former church volunteer who was deformed at birth and has limited intelligence, is charged with abusing and kidnapping 10 boys and girls ages 3 and 4 in 1988 and 1989. He could get more than 125 years in prison.

Most of the alleged abuse occurred in the nursery of Faith

Chapel, a large evangelical Christian church.

Prosecutors say that while parents attended services, Akiki raped and sodomized the children, threatened them with guns and knives, forced them to eat feces, beat them, photographed them nude and tortured them with scalding water.

Some children also said Akiki slaughtered a 6-foot elephant, a giraffe and rabbits, and drank the animals' blood.

Defense attorneys point out there are no photographs, semen, blood or other physical evidence to support the charges.

They say the most outrageous of the allegations show that the children were brainwashed. And they contend the case never would have gone to trial without the intervention of the businessman.

The man, the grandfather of two of the alleged victims, is chairman and chief executive of a major San Diego-based corporation. His name is being withheld to protect his grandchildren's identities. He declined to be interviewed, and he sued a local radio station that identified him.

Some church mothers, including the grandfather's daughter, had been trying for a long time to have Akiki removed, contending his enlarged skull, droopy eyelid and clubfoot might be scaring children, defense attorneys say.

At first he was removed only as a teacher. Then he was asked to leave.

Months later, a girl told her mother that someone "showed me his penis." Parents and therapists assigned by the district attorney questioned the children for months before the first specific allegations began to emerge.

Prosecutors believe the children denied any molestation at first because Akiki had threatened to kill them and their families.

But defense attorneys say the fantastic nature of some allegations showed the children were brainwashed. The child who claimed to have seen the elephant slaughtered later recanted most of his statements.

"Each and every allegation from the first to the last was as the result of direct, suggestive and leading questioning," said defense attorney Kathleen Coyne.

The first prosecutor assigned to the case did not file charges. After the grandfather and his wife met privately with District Attorney Edwin L. Miller Jr., that prosecutor was taken off the case.

The second prosecutor, Ms. Avery, is a founding member of a non-profit child abuse foundation that provides money to several agencies, including a unit in Miller's office.

The grandparents have donated about $480,000 to the foundation, either personally or through the corporation, said Coyne and fellow defense attorney Susan P. Clemens. The couple and Miller all hold positions with the foundation.

In addition, the grandmother had frequently spoken to other churches about ritualistic and satanic child abuse before Akiki joined Faith Chapel, Ms. Coyne said.

Miller and Ms. Avery deny any conflict of interest. Ms. Avery said she is just a casual acquaintance of the grandfather's, and a judge has ruled that there is no reason to remove her from the case.

The dispute has divided the church to the point where some of the parents who accused Akiki have left the congregation.

Bonnie Kibbee, 51, a Faith Chapel member for 15 years, said most members now believe that Akiki is innocent and that the grandfather pushed ahead with the case "based on a rumor."

"Sometimes, people believe things without fact, and they can believe them so strongly that they just go forward even after they know they're wrong to try to justify how they handled the situation," Mrs. Kibbee said.

Man drives his car into a canal after getting conned

By The Associated Press

HALEAH, Fla. — A distraught man drove his car into a canal and drowned after learning con men had cheated him out of his $7,000 life savings with a phony lottery ticket.

Celestino Cruz, 81, died after fighting off a passerby who tried to pull him from his sinking car Tuesday, police said.

Authorities said Cruz agreed to give $7,000 to two men who claimed they had a winning lottery ticket but couldn't cash it because they were illegal aliens. Cruz withdrew the money and handed it over; they gave him the ticket.

After discovering the ticket was worthless, Cruz left a note to his family in Spanish. It read: "If you want me, I'll be in the 44th Place Canal near the monuments."

Police released a bank surveillance-camera photo Wednesday of one of the men suspected of conning Cruz and warned that the lottery ticket scam was especially common in Hispanic neighborhoods, with many victims elderly immigrants. Last week, a woman was conned out of $9,000 — possibly by the same men.

"We've had three this week so far," Detective Omar Caraballo said. "They run anywhere from $1,000 to $8,000 or $9,000."

He also noted that the Lottery

Department "is not Immigration — they don't know or care if you're a legal immigrant or not."

A sad situation with a solution

For parents, possibly one of the saddest stories in recent times is the Associated Press item on page 3A of Tuesday's Sanford Herald. The headline, "Chiles stumps for juvenile justice reform," was mild compared to the statistics.

The report quotes Governor Lawton Chiles as saying, "Violent crimes by juveniles have risen 91 percent. (In the past ten years) and there has been more than a 1,000 percent jump in attempted murders."

Juvenile crimes are not restricted to major metropolitan areas. Just before the end of April, two juveniles, one age six, the other age eight, were arrested in Sanford on charges of attempted arson and burglary, at Hamilton Elementary School.

It may be easy to point a finger: parents can't control their youngsters because of the need for both to be employed; there are more single-parent households which provide less guidance for children; spanking a child may result in an HRS investigation for child abuse; when schools want to establish guidelines, parents object.

Governor Chiles has voiced his concern over the lack of space in the state prison system to hold juvenile offenders once they are convicted.

There are others who believe placing a child in jail only hardens them to commit even more acts of crime when they are released.

The increase in juvenile crime appears to be unstoppable. One of the solutions however, may lie in the lack of organized activities for children. During the summertime, many municipal recreation programs are offered, but they generally are capped at the young teenage level.

Many privately funded organizations do what they can to help those under the age of 11, but that often becomes an economical situation when a parent cannot afford to have a child in such supervised care. The cost of child care is high, and obtaining equipment, space and personnel is rising to the point where low income families may not be able to afford the fees.

As for the youngsters from age 12 to 18, there is little to do in the form of organized activities. Most of them must be left on their own, to spend their free time in any way they choose.

Citizen gatherings are being held for many purposes such as lakefront development, historic downtown redevelopment, conservation, substance abuse, transportation needs, and others.

All of these are worthwhile projects. However, there is a need to study ways to reduce juvenile crime and provide suitable activities for teenagers.

Individuals, government bodies, private organizations and others appear to be ignoring this problem.

Finding a solution may be difficult. It will require a great deal of work and cooperation. But time and effort spent will be steps in the right direction.

What group will champion this cause?

The answer to nuclear proliferation

With the world's attention riveted on Bosnia, a far graver crisis is coming to a head almost unnoticed in a very different corner of the globe. The repudiation of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty by North Korea's Communist dictator Kim Il-Sung, and his refusal to allow U.N. teams to inspect possible production facilities for nuclear weapons, poses an immediate threat to world peace.

The only response of the Clinton administration has been to express the pious hope that Kim will change his mind. But the only real hope of stopping North Korea would be to bomb the production facilities into rubble, as Israel did to Iraq's a few years ago. And that's about as likely as Mr. Clinton's resigning the presidency and going to work as an ad salesman for the "Rush Limbaugh Show."

Instead, Secretary of State Christopher will lead the United Nations through a series of pointless foot-stomping exercises, at the end of which it will at long last be obvious that the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty is as dead as the dodo.

The treaty was always mostly a pious hope, born back in the days when nuclear weapons were possessed only by a few major powers (the United States, the Soviet Union, Red China, Britain and France) that were deemed too cautious ever to use them.

But that cozy state of affairs was early disrupted by Israel, which quietly joined the nuclear club decades ago. It was soon followed by India, South Africa, and apparently Pakistan, and now North Korea and Iran are on the verge of demanding a admission. Taiwan certainly possesses the necessary know-how, and other nations in South America and elsewhere may be close to acquiring it. Meanwhile the Soviet Union has collapsed, and its nuclear-tipped missiles are distributed unevenly among Russia, Ukraine and Belarus. So there are well over a dozen nations to worry about, with more coming on line every year.

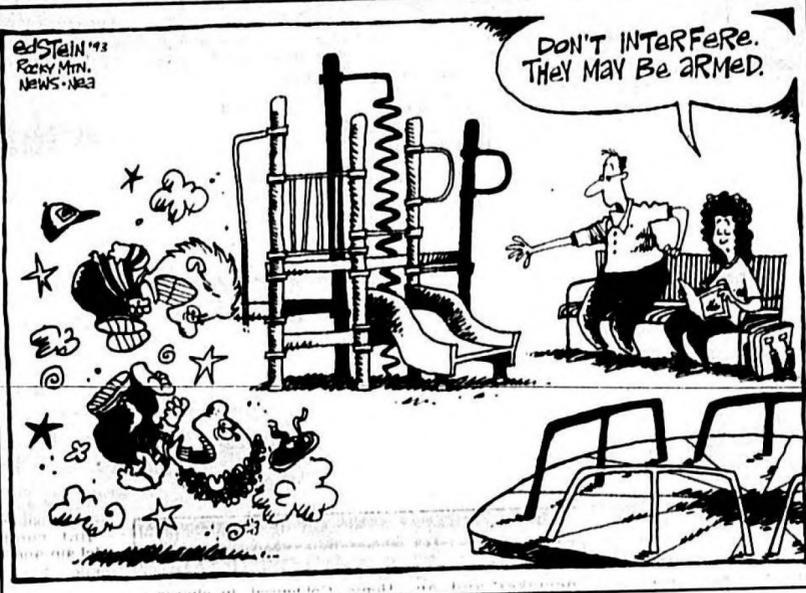

But the only real hope of stopping North Korea would be to bomb the production facilities into rubble.

The blunt truth is that we are going to have to live, for the indefinite future, in a world where many important countries will regard nuclear capability as a necessary proof of their sovereignty and security, and there is no assurance whatever that Kim Il-Sung or some other adventurer won't yield to the temptation to lob an atom bomb at some hated foe.

What can be done about it? Fortunately the technology to insure the world against nuclear missiles launched by any nation against any other has existed for years. The United States has only to launch in earth orbit a large number of small surveillance satellites capable of detecting a missile launch, and a number of weapons capable of homing in on the missile and destroying it with a powerful laser beam. Not a single human life need be lost on either side.

This basic concept was first proposed, to counter Soviet ICBMs, by President Reagan 10 years ago, and his proposal -- promptly backed up by American research on the project -- played a major role in persuading Mikhail Gorbachev that the Soviet Union simply couldn't afford, let alone win, the Cold War.

But SDI is needed even more, if possible, in today's world than during the Cold War. Does Mr. Clinton have the vision to understand this?

MARTIN SCHRAM

Why America confronted Serbs

A careful mix of diplomacies -- quiet and loud -- has carried President Clinton to the defining moment of his role as world leader.

He got himself to the right place: a resounding "No!" to Serbian ethnic cleansing, backed up by a vow to use force, if needed.

And he got there just at the right time. After weeks of post-inaugural to-ing and fro-ing, America's new president worked boldly to give peace a real chance. First, he worked quietly to get Russia's embattled president, Boris Yeltsin, to take a stand against the murderous policies of Russia's one-time client, Serbia, and its never-to-be-trusted president, Slobodan Milosevic.

Then Milosevic, seeing that even his one friend in the world was no longer in his corner and fearing the effects of a choking economic embargo, sent a letter to his own client, Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic. Milosevic's message was, in effect, that the war he'd once fueled had run its course. And, after Clinton followed that quiet diplomacy with his decision to use military air power, if necessary, Karadzic, signed an international paper of peace.

The world, of course, knows better than to value those words from a leader who lives by lies. (On NBC's "Today Show," Karadzic, the neo-peacenik, insisted: "We don't attack Muslims. Muslims attack us.")

And speaking of the world, those Europeans who consider themselves to be among its leaders, morally and monetarily, have now been yanked abruptly into reality by America's young president. The wise heads of Britain, France, Germany had been relatively content for a year to counter Serbia's unspeakable ethnic cleansing of Muslims, which was happening right in Europe's backyard, with shouted protests of "Tak, tak."

Even as the Clinton administration debated, the strongest argument for action came from none other than Ronald Reagan's secretary of state, George Shultz. On ABC's "Good Morning America" last month, he veritably shouted with rage as he declared: "Ethnic cleansing is just genocide, and they (the Serbs) have done it. They have murdered, raped -- I don't know what it takes to get us worried about something... Stop, stop this killing and murder and genocide and rape. Stop!"

On May Day, Clinton took his loud stand. The United States stands ready to meet Serbian inhumanity with American air power, and apparently stands willing to arm the virtually defenseless Muslims so they can fight their own battles on the ground.

The ever-tremulous Europeans worry that arming the Muslims may lead to a wider war that will spread through the Balkans.

Just before the peace paper was signed, British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd rose in Parliament to declare his myopic view that rationalizes doing nothing while Muslims are slaughtered. Hurd declared: "The worst of all worlds would be half measures in Bosnia which salvaged the consciences without saving lives."

No, the worst of all worlds would be to do nothing but sit and watch the ethnic cleansing. We know how quickly we'd rise to action if those being murdered by Serbs were named Goldbaum or Feinberg or Weinstein. And we know how quickly the British foreign secretary would leap to act if those whose ethnicity were being cleansed were named McMillan or Thatcher or Major or Hurd.

Now, as we wait to see if our new world leader, President Clinton, has pushed the Balkans into a lasting peace, we ought to be guided not by the words of the British foreign secretary but by those of a German Protestant minister. The Rev. Martin Niemoller, writing in another time, sounded a clarion call for today:

"In Germany, the Nazis came first for the communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a communist. Then they came for the Jews, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, but I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant. Then they came for me, and by that time there was no one left to speak for me."

And he got there just at the right time.

Everywhere you look, it's Bob Dole

Something unusual happened a short while ago: I had a Dole-free day.

I don't know if it was planned or if it just happened that way. I listened to radio news broadcasts, checked the networks, CNN, C-SPAN, I scanned five newspapers, skimmed the magazines. And guess what? No Bob Dole. The first time since November. I've been taking notes and I am certain this is true.

Since George Bush went down in flames and the Senate minority leader was relieved of his water boy chores and became the Lord Master of the GOP, it has been difficult to tune in the news without tripping over him. The senior senator from Kansas seems so happy, too, like he's been eating Democrats for lunch.

Truth is, he has. "Fifty-seven percent of the Americans who voted in the presidential election voted against Bill Clinton," Dole said last November, "and I intend to represent that majority on the floor of the U.S. Senate." And so he has. Bill wants to let guys wear the uniform, Bob says no. Bill wants new taxes, Bob says no. Bill wants to spend a few billion, Bob says no -- and he organizes a filibuster to enforce his edict.

Those who have followed Dole's career closely know this was perfectly predictable. Negativity is his core philosophy and he loves gridlock. "If you are against something," he says, "you'd better hope there is a little gridlock."

Which brings me to my main point. I like that attitude. Indeed, I believe the Founders deliberately designed a system of impediments and obstacles to promote occasional gridlock.

There are numerous other things about Bob Dole that I like. He is an old-fashioned conservative and deficit hawk who believes in "lower taxes, lower spending, fewer regulations, less government and a strong and secure America." I like that.

He detests supply-side economists. "The good news is a bus load of supply siders went over a cliff," he jokes. "The bad news is, there were three empty seats." I like that.

He is a man of humble origins -- the son of a cream-and-egg merchant in Russell, Kan. Dole was badly wounded in World War II, so badly in fact that he spent four years in recuperation and permanently lost the use of his right arm. He earned his undergraduate and law degrees at Washburn Municipal University in Topeka, Kan. He was a county attorney for eight years.

All this has made Bob Dole an appreciator of ordinary people -- farmers and clerks and nurses -- and I like that. So why don't I like Bob Dole? I don't dislike him, you understand, but I don't like him. To be more accurate, I want to like him, but I am afraid to. Every time I begin to think he's not such a bad guy, he slips into a phone booth and dons a Quirky Bob cape. Or a Snarly Bob cape. Or a Bitter Bob or Mean Bob or Partisan Bob cape. If you let yourself start feeling warm toward this guy, you will get burned. I have examples:

When under duress, he scapegoats the press. They're too liberal, too pro-Democrat, too absorbed in trivia. As the Republican National Chairman during Watergate, Dole delivered one broadside in which he trashed the Washington Post 57 times.

His abiding anger and acerbic wit sometimes take him off the deep end, as when he spoke sourly of "Democrat wars" during the 1976 vice-presidential debate with Walter Mondale.

There are those who say that Bob Dole's elevated station will bring out the statesman in him. I will wait and see, and I don't intend to get too close while I do it, either.

And guess what? No Bob Dole. The first time since November.

Columbia lands

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — Space shuttle Columbia and its seven-man crew streaked toward a backup landing site in the California desert today after a 10-day German laboratory research mission.

Columbia was supposed to land at Kennedy Space Center, but low clouds forced a last-minute detour to Edwards Air Force Base. The shuttle was due to touch down on the concrete runway at Edwards 1 1/2 hours after sunrise.

Commander Steven Nagel and pilot Terence "Tom" Henricks fired Columbia's twin-braking engines an hour before landing, reducing the ship's orbiting speed of 17,800 mph by nearly 200 mph and starting it on its fiery descent.

By flight's end, Columbia will have circled Earth 160 times during the voyage and traveled 4,164,183 miles.

The astronauts worked round-the-clock inside Spacelab after reaching orbit April 26, conducting experiments on fish, plants and themselves to help scientists better understand how organisms adapt to weightlessness.

"We'll also have free hot dogs and soda, and a Hot Shot Hoop contest," Kirby added.

"This is part of our continuing efforts to provide as much as we can to the youngsters of our city," Kirby said. "That's what a recreation department is supposed to be for, and that's exactly what we plan to do."

This is an effort to provide the community with a chance to learn more about Sanford and Seminole County's youth opportunities in a hands-on afternoon," he added.

As the day is considered a student holiday, Kirby expects a good turnout.

The event will be held Friday, May 7, at the Sanford Civic Center, from 2 p.m. until 7 p.m. There is no charge for admission.

For further information, phone the department at 330-5697.

Walter Brungs, a German payload official at NASA's Johnson Space Center in Houston, said scientists were disappointed Columbia was not landing at Kennedy, where the chief researchers were gathered and where extensive medical tests on the crew had been planned. The science samples aboard Columbia will be rushed from Edwards to Kennedy as soon as possible for analysis, he said.

"You can run but you cannot hide," Mission Control's Curtis Brown told the astronauts before the deorbit burn. Research teams are on the way to Edwards and will meet you as soon as you get off... they're peddling fuel."

Saturday, the fruition of another such quick-change act will be performed at the Central Florida Zoological Park. At 3 p.m. in the picnic pavilion near the entrance of the park, Music Orlando will perform Tchaikovsky's "Peter and the Wolf," narrated by Danny Treanor, WFTV Channel 9's weatherman. Admission to the concert is free.

The concert was originally planned to be the second annual appearance of the FSO at the zoo, financed by a $14,000 grant from the Seminole County Tourist Development Council. Zoo public relations manager Andrea Farmer said she thought the concert was dead after the FSO dissolved, but then she learned of Music Orlando.

"We were going to cancel until we heard about Music Orlando," said Farmer. "I got Andy's name and we were able to go ahead."

build-some-now, build-some-later approach.

If that all-at-once proposal were pursued, the county would sell $60 million in bonds to start the building program and $5.3 million later to finish it. Interest from the bond proceeds while construction is going on would make up the difference between $71.5 million and $65.3 million.

To finance the bonds, commissioners would look either to countywide property taxes or the unincorporated utility tax. If the property tax were pursued, .35 mills would add 35 cents to each $1,000 of taxable property. That would add about $18 to the tax bill of the owner of a $75,000 home and $35 to the owner of a $100,000 home. The rate would then decrease slightly each year during the next 30 years.

How that will affect the overall tax rate this year can't be determined yet. Property Appraiser Bill Suber said property values will increase or decrease "nominally." If at all, this year. The total tax roll, including new construction, won't increase more than 3.5 percent this year, Suber said.

Also, the county is in the throes of budget preparations, so County Manager Ron Rabun says he can't say yet whether the current tax rate of $5.42 per $1,000 of taxable property will increase, decrease or stay the same whether or not the building program is pursued.

County budget staff doesn't recommend the utility tax option because it is paid by only unincorporated residents. They would be paying for structures to serve all residents, including city folk. The current rate is 4 percent, which increases utility bills by $40 to $50 per year. Budget director Jean Kassab said an increase of 4.4 percent would be needed to repay the bonds. The increase could mean county utility taxes might approach and even pass $100 a year for many unincorporated residents.

The County Services Building is slated for overhaul.

built later, it would cost $14.5 million. A major renovation of the County Services Building would cost $7.8 million if done this decade or $8.4 million after the year 2000. Modifications to the existing courthouse would cost $1.5 million if done early or $2.8 million if done later.

The enormity of the figure wavered commissioners Wednesday, but three have indicated they could support a new county administrative building.

"Why do we have to always be the second-class citizens of the county," said chairman Bob Sturm. "We are not chopped liver. What's wrong with spending some money for our offices?"

"I have no qualms about a new administrative building if I can see a need," said Commissioner Dick VanDerWeide. "If I was convinced this space (the County Services Building) is not adequate, I would be willing to take the heat that goes along with what will surely be a tax increase. Whatever we do involves a tax increase. I'd much rather be a part of a program everybody can be proud of. If we have to go to the well, I'd rather Judicial needs prompted strategy for courthouse expansion.

do it once and do it right."

Commissioner Pat Warren showed a bit less resolve Wednesday than she did last month when she also called for a new administrative building for the commissioners, the "second-class citizens," as she called them then.

"I don't see the central services building as a current need," Warren said Wednesday. "But commissioners Daryl McLain and Larry Furlong were opposed to any plan that called for a new county administrative building. They expressed some support for a $53.4 million plan for a courthouse expansion, new public safety center and renovations to the County Services Building to allow it to be used for up to 10 years longer.

"To build out for something we all think we need, in my opinion, is not prudent," said McLain. "We need to be more prudent." "Good," added Furlong.

Serbs reject peace plan; Clinton mulls using force

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Caught between the reluctance of European allies for tougher action and the rejection of a U.N. peace plan by Bosnian Serbs, President Clinton is looking anew at military steps to end bitter ethnic fighting in the former Yugoslavia.

Returning to the White House late Wednesday night from two social events, Clinton learned of the rejection of an international peace plan by the self-styled Bosnian Serb parliament. Instead, the Serbs said they would hold a popular referendum on the plan.

"He's being told right now," a senior administration official said shortly before midnight. "We'll have to meet in the morning and analyze what happens."

Another administration official said the president wanted to make a round of phone calls, including one to Secretary of State Warren Christopher traveling overseas, before making a public response.

But the Serb decision seemingly leaves the administration on the path toward bombing strikes against Serb artillery in Bosnia.

Christopher, sent to Europe by Clinton on Saturday night to rally support for military measures against the Serbs, has not gained the direct endorsement from any of the European allies or Russia.

Instead, the allies appeared to be counting on the Serbs to accept a peace accord, in which case Western powers would contribute troops to a peacekeeping force.

The Serbs' intransigence may help persuade Western allies to join Clinton in threatening force to stop Serb aggression against Bosnian Muslims and Croats. More than 134,000 people are dead or missing in Bosnia after a year of civil war.

The United States has consistently been skeptical of the Serbs' interest in a negotiated peace. The Serbs hold more than 70 percent of Bosnia, and would be forced to give up territory under terms of a peace plan already accepted by the other warring parties.

Frustrated by the Serbs' aggression, Clinton has proposed limited bombing strikes against Serb artillery sites in Bosnia and the arming of Bosnian Muslims to give them an equal chance on the battlefield.

Even before the Serbs' rejection of the peace plan, the administration had not expected full acceptance of the terms, anticipating that the Serb assembly would insist on conditions or exceptions to the international accord.

"This may be an agreement that doesn't change our course," said one official, speaking only on condition of anonymity. "It is a complicating factor but it may not change the outcome. The conditions they're laying out may make it impossible for us to accept it."

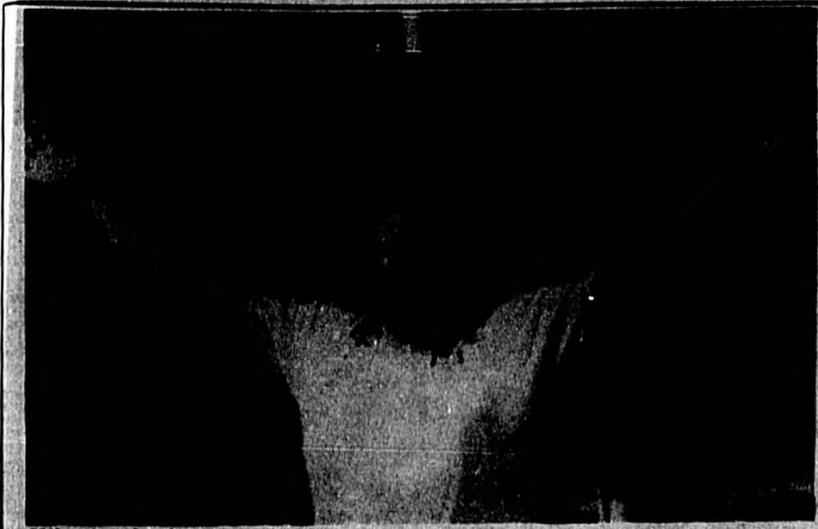

Clinton met with congressional leaders Wednesday on the fighting in Bosnia. They cautioned the president that Americans have not been adequately prepared for the possible use of U.S. force in Bosnia. Some said he should seek congressional approval for military intervention before committing troops.

"I personally believe that the country benefits by having a democracy go to war or go into a dangerous situation by having a debate of all our people beforehand through the Congress," said House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo.

House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., said, "Let's face it, most of the people, I think, throughout the country — their interests are more on domestic affairs."

Michel questioned whether the House would vote to authorize using American forces, but Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said, "I believe there will be congressional support for what the president determines to recommend to the Congress."

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said the Senate would authorize troops if asked. Even if Clinton did not seek an authorizing resolution, some members of Congress could propose it on their own.

From Congress, two sentiments: Never again Vietnam, Holocaust

By JILL LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Conflicting lessons from Vietnam and the Holocaust are tearing at Congress as lawmakers wrestle with the conundrum of Bosnia.

Some are comparing the Serbs' "ethnic cleansing" of Bosnian Muslims to the Nazis' genocidal "final solution." Never again, these lawmakers say.

But some representatives and senators who fought in Vietnam and, in some cases, were held prisoner there, make an equally compelling case. They, too, say never again — never should the country creep into a war with little definition, little popular support and limited military options.

"If we don't want to get involved in a land war, then don't do anything. Solve the problem with a thousand tears," says Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Neb., who returned from Vietnam with a Medal of Honor and an artificial limb.

Rep. John Murtha, D-Pa., another Vietnam veteran, gives this summary of his counsel to President Clinton: "Do nothing." Like Kerrey, he said the president's only other choice is to "go all-out" with a ground war.

As Clinton weighs U.S. options and degrees of possible entanglement, the advice raining down on him falls outside the usual political categories.

Among those urging caution are conservatives who supported the Persian Gulf War — Murtha prominent among them. They believe arming the Muslims and bombing the Serbs, two steps under consideration, would aggravate rather than relieve the agony in the Balkans.

Interventionists, by contrast, tend to be liberals who were ambivalent or outright opposed to the Gulf War and, for that matter, Vietnam.

The ironies came into sharp focus last week on NBC-TV's "Today" program. The adversaries were liberal Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., who supports air strikes against the Serbs; and conservative Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., a former prisoner of war in Vietnam. Parts of the exchange went like this: Biden: "If we do nothing, there's a Serb victory and the continuation of genocide."

McCain: "If we do what you want, we only have two options. That's admit failure or send ground troops."

Biden: "What do we do if we don't do anything?"

McCain: "I'm not ready to risk another Vietnam."

Biden: "This is not Vietnam." The opening of the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum last month added pathos and urgency to the pleas of those who believe, as author Elie Wiesel said at dedication ceremonies, that something — anything — must be done to stop the slaughter in Bosnia.

"Standing by in silence, paralyzed by inaction, was wrong 50 years ago; it is wrong today," liberal Sen. Paul Wellstone, D-Minn., wrote in a newspaper essay about the new museum, his Jewish roots and Bosnia.

Rep. Tom Lantos, D-Calif., a Holocaust survivor from Hungary, said this week that the world has taken too long to re-learn an obvious historic lesson: diplomacy must be "coupled with the credible threat of force" in order to work.

Some observers see a perverse logic in the liberal push for deeper involvement — it's tolerable as long as no clear national interest is at stake.

"It's curiously and curiously that liberals who resisted previous U.S. military interventions would now somehow suddenly be clamoring to do so on purely humanitarian grounds," said Will Marshall, a foreign policy specialist and head of the centrist Progressive Policy Institute.

Christopher Deering, a congressional and foreign policy specialist at George Washington University, noted that Bosnia is not the only killing field in the world today and suggested that liberals may be overreacting. The same potential exists among Vietnam veterans, he said.

"Vietnam is potentially a lesson learned too well," Deering said. "I think of Mark Twain's line — a cat that sits on a hot stove won't sit on a hot stove again, but he won't sit on a cold one either."

Some Vietnam veterans in Congress argue that they supported the Gulf War precisely because it was everything Vietnam was not.

"We got in, we did good and we got out," said Rep. Sam Johnson, R-Texas, a former Vietnam prisoner of war.

Many immigrants join nation's welfare rolls

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Despite promises that their relatives will support them after they arrive in the United States, growing numbers of elderly and disabled immigrants are turning to the government for cash assistance.

Thousands of legal immigrants apply for Supplemental Security Income benefits within months of arriving in the United States, according to government documents and a spokesman for the Social Security Administration.

Immigrants made up 11 percent of the SSI rolls in December 1992, compared with 3.3 percent a decade earlier, said Social Security documents obtained by The Associated Press under the Freedom of Information Act.

"People learn about the program before they even come to this country by word of mouth and passage back and forth. They've become very sophisticated about applying," said John Clark, a regional public affairs officer for the Social Security Administration in New York City.

In New York's Washington Heights neighborhood, immigrants apply for SSI accompanied by translators and "community people who are versed in how to deal with the program — who know the ins and outs, what answers are required and what documents are required," Clark said.

Many of the Washington Heights immigrants are from the Dominican Republic and Eastern Europe.

Nationwide, the number of legal immigrants and refugees on the SSI rolls has exploded in the past decade — from 127,900 in December 1982 to 601,430 in December 1992. The program's overall rate of growth has been slower, from 3.9 million recipients to 5.4 million.

Nearly 91,000 immigrants joined the SSI rolls in 1991 alone.

Participation in SSI, a welfare program for low-income elderly, blind and disabled people, opens the door to other public benefits including food stamps and, in most cases, Medicaid health insurance. The average SSI benefit was $316 a month last December.

One-fourth of SSI's immigrant participants are in the United States under what is known as "color of law," such as refugees who are unable to return to their country.

LAKE MARY — Brian Marotta picked up where Chad Kessler left off and the duo combined for a two-hit shutout in Lake Mary's 1-0 win over the Deltona Wolves Wednesday night in the 4A-District 9 tournament.

Lake Mary, seeded No. 3 in the nine-team bracket, improves to 20-7 going into this evening's 5 p.m. semifinal game against second-seeded Spruce Creek at the University of Central Florida baseball complex. Deltona finishes 14-12-1.

Also Wednesday night, top-seeded Lake Brantley blanked eighth-seeded DeLand 6-0. The Patriots will face fifth-seeded Lyman (which eliminated fourth-seeded Lake Howell Tuesday) in tonight's 8 p.m. semifinal game.

p.m. Friday at UCF.

The Lake Mary-Deltona game started Tuesday night but was postponed by lightning in the bottom of the third with the Rams leading 1-0.

When play resumed from that spot Wednesday, the Rams went hitless the rest of the way against Deltona ace Alan Westfall while the Wolves managed a walk, a single, and a double against Kessler and Marotta.

Kessler, the starting pitcher for Lake Mary, worked three hitless innings before play was suspended Tuesday. He gave up his first hit to Dana Flaherty in the fourth inning Wednesday. After Kessler walked Joe Arroyo on four pitches with one out in the fifth, he was lifted in favor of Marotta.

Marotta quickly picked off Arroyo, then struck out the Jeff Wisinski to end the inning. He struck out the side in the sixth inning and the first two in the seventh before Westfall doubled off the left-center field wall. Brian Herod then lined out to end the game.

The win evens Kessler's personal record at 3-3 while Marotta earned his second save of the season. Westfall, who tossed a complete-game two-hitter but lost on an unearned run, fell to 5-4.

Jason Rasmussen doubled and scored on a pair of pass balls in the bottom of the first inning for the game's only run. Rene Perez singled in the second inning for the Rams' only other hit.

Pirates, darkness tie up Cardinals

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Going into their game Wednesday night at Sanford Memorial Stadium, the Knights of Columbus Cardinals were the only remaining undefeated team in the Sanford Recreation Babe Ruth Baseball League.

By nightfall, the Cardinals were still undefeated . . . sort of, their game with the Moose Lodge Pirates left standing in a 7-7 tie when play was suspended because of darkness after seven innings.

There was no word when or if the game will be completed.

Meanwhile, at Zinn Beck Field, the Woodmen of the World A's rallied past the Kiwanis Club Orioles 10-8.

The Cardinals, who have already clinched the National Division title, are now 10-0-1. They're followed by the Korg USA Expos (6-4-1), the Pirates (5-4-2), and Elks Lodge No. 1241 Cubs (5-6).

With their loss, the Orioles drop into a first-place tie in the American Division with the Rotary Club Royals at 6-5. The A's are now 3-8 while the R.E. Templeton Co. Inc. Blue Jays are 1-10.

All eight teams will play again Saturday. At Sanford Memorial Stadium, the Cardinals will play the Cubs at 9 a.m. before the Pirates battle the Expos at 11 a.m. The Orioles and Blue Jays will meet in the 9 a.m. game at Zinn Beck Field before the Royals and A's take the field at 11 a.m.

Trailing 7-2 after four innings, the Cardinals got three runs back in the top of the fifth and tied the score in the top of the seventh when Lloyd Dixon crushed a two-run home run, the first homer hit in Babe Ruth play at ORLANDO — Wildwood's Wayne Anderson survived several yellow flag incidents and a late race challenge by veteran Lee Faulk to win the 50-lap Sonny King Orange Buick Late Model championship last Friday, April 30, at Orlando Speedworld.

SAMSULA — For the fourth time this season, Wildwood's Wayne Anderson has won back-to-back — Friday night and Saturday night — FASCAR-sanctioned Late Model feature events.

Coming off of a close victory over Lee Faulk Friday, April 30, at Orlando Speedworld, Anderson dominated racing action Saturday, May 1, at New Smyrna Speedway.

Anderson, who started on the pole, led every circuit to claim his 13th win of the season. "I want to dedicate this win to J.C. Pressley,

"Man. It was har-kari out there tonight," said Anderson, the current FASCAR (Florida Association of Stock Car Automobile Racing) Late Model points leader.

"I owe this win to my crew chief, Mark Osada. He's got the car really fine tuned. Every time we had a caution and a new restart, I could pull away from the traffic with no problem."

who passed away this week," said Anderson, the current FASCAR Late Model points leader.

"For years and years, he worked the back gate. As a young kid, I would come to the races with my dad and J.C. always found time to talk to me. J.C. was a really super guy who'll we all miss."

Anderson crossed the stripe about 10 car lengths ahead of John Kennedy, who was trailed by Chuck Abell, Joe Middleton, and Eddie Perry.

"We've been running real strong lately," said Anderson. "The fans only see me in victory lane, but a lot of people are responsible for my being there. I have a real dedicated crew, including my BARBERVILLE — Tony Ponder's undefeated streak in Late Model Stock and Winston Racing Series competition came to an end Saturday, May 1, at Volusia County Speedway with a third-place finish behind Cam Gibson and Mike Hunter.

But Ponder took more than consolation as he came back in the night's feature event, running from the outside pole to the checkered flag in a dominating win in the Late Model Baxley Oil 100, the first installment in the five-race VCS Late Model Championship Series.

"Everybody thinks this is the old '01' Late Model Stock, but it's not," said Ponder from the VCS winner's circle. "This is Rick (Newton's) Late Model that's been sitting around for two years. I'm excited about this car. It took a couple of laps to get used to it, but I'll tell you what, it's fantastic."

Trailing Anderson to the checkers were Faulk, Ronnie Roach (who was involved in a three-car melee on lap nine), Dave McCabe, and Eddie Perry. Anderson, driving the Anderson/Howe Camaro, set the evening's fastest qualifying time. He started the race from the fourth position; on the third lap, he got around Faulk, the early race leader, to take the point.

As Faulk tried to regain his advantage, Roach (who set the evening's fastest qualifying time), Ed Meredith, Ricky Marshall, and Scott Reeves battles wheel-to-wheel for position. On lap nine, Roach, Marshall, and Reeves made contact coming out of turn two. Marshall and Reeves had to have their cars, which suffered major damage, towed back to the pits. After a quick pit stop, Roach was able to continue.

With five laps to go, Faulk closed on Anderson's rear bumper. But, despite some close-quarters bump-and-run racing, Anderson was able to maintain the lead and crossed the stripe less than a car length ahead of Faulk. Timmy Todd went green flag to checkers to score his fifth Limited Late Model win of the season. Jacob Warren was second trailed by Gary Schlichter, John Wills, and George Dease. Barbara Pierce, fresh off of a feature win last Saturday night at New Smyrna Speedway, outdueled Bill Loomis and Paul Colgan to take top honors in the Sportsman division. Rounding out the top five were Jerry Smith and Chuck McRoberts.

Dave Savicki edged Skip Honaker by less than a car length to win his second Modified feature of the season, Kenny Heckle was third, Glenn Carter took fourth, and Donald Shedd finished fifth. Bobby Sears started the Mini-Stock feature from the eighth position. On the fourth lap, he overtook frontrunner Jeff Peseur, then raced unchallenged to his sixth win of the season.

Following Sears to victory lane were Gen Van Alstine, Ted Vulpius, Richard Newton, and Eddie Tovet. Mike Hughes went wire-to-wire to win the Bomber feature main event. John Smith, Wally Semrow, Greg Noe, and Glen Cordell trailed. George Donally won the Run-About feature with Chester Lucas scoring his first ever win in the Mini-Stock Run-About Class.

mom and dad, plus a lot of help and support from the people at the Skunk's Nest in Wildwood." A rare occurrence happened in victory lane as Anderson was being presented his trophies. As he got out of his car, Anderson was mobbed by autograph seekers and well-wishers. "This was an impressive win, but I was more impressed by the fans and all the kids coming to me for my autograph," said Anderson during the post-race inspection. "To me, this is what the sport is all about."

Jerry Symons, driving the Park Avenue Auto Parts Pinto, held off a late race challenge by Ted Vulpius to take honors in Mini-Stock racing action. Symons, who now has 14 wins on the season, was trailed to the winner's circle by Ted Vulpius, J.D. Duncan, Conrad Grenier, and Bobby Sears. Mike Fitch, piloting the Pioneer Motors Cavalier, went green flag to checkers to win his 10th Modified feature of the season.

Refuting cholesterol and cigarette link

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: A friend told me he keeps his cholesterol level low by smoking. I assume his claim is grounded on the fact that nicotinic acid is used to lower levels, yet I think nicotine and nicotinic acid are as far apart as ethyl and methyl alcohol are. Please respond.

DEAR READER: I'm with you. Smoking cigarettes to lower cholesterol is like shooting yourself in the head to treat a headache. Nicotine is a poison that has no known health benefits. It is not related to nicotinic acid (niacin), which is a B-complex vitamin necessary for normal metabolism.

Your friend is merely using a flimsy excuse to justify his cigarette addiction.

Niacin supplement does, indeed, lower cholesterol blood levels in some patients. Nicotine doesn't.

Unfortunately, niacin must be taken in large doses to achieve this goal: 1,000-1,500 mg. per day may be necessary. At this dose, niacin may cause extreme flushing; therefore, physicians recommend a starting dose of 50-100 mg., from which the patient must gradually work up to the full dose. Also, timed-release capsules have been reported to cause liver damage; thus, most doctors have returned to the practice of ordering standard niacin tablets.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Understanding Cholesterol." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: At the beginning of World War II there was a plan to use okra as a blood plasma. Can you tell me if this process ever took place?

DEAR READER: I am sure that there were a lot of wacky schemes to improve health back in the early 1940s, but this takes the cake. To answer your question: No, I do not believe there was any serious effort to use okra as a blood substitute.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Let's try one of those word-association tests that psychologists love. "Oz." What comes to your mind?

Probably Kansas, Judy Garland, the tin man and the cowardly lion. But maybe some of you thought of Australia. That land of Oz has its own unique fauna: kangaroos, duck-billed platypus, emus and koalas.

Today's deal comes from a recent issue of Australian Bridge magazine. Look at just the North-South hands. Against your four-spade contract, West leads the diamond jack. East wins with the king, cashes the ace and exits with a trump. You draw a second round of spades, both opponents following. How do you continue?

South's leap to game was aggressive, especially given the way he played the cards.

After two rounds of diamonds and two rounds of spades, South cashed the club ace, played a club to dummy's king and ruffed a club in hand. However, the suit didn't split 3-3. Next South confidently finessed the heart queen, but East won with the king and returned a heart: one down.

"East, why didn't you double with that hand?" demanded South.

"Don't be so rude," interrupted North. "When you lead the third club from the dummy and East follows suit, don't ruff. Instead, discard one of your hearts. That costs an overtrick if the clubs are 3-3, but it guarantees the contract. What can East return? A heart is into dummy's A-Q tenace. A club establishes the suit. And a diamond concedes a ruff-and-discard. Whichever he chooses, you lose no heart trick."

"You're right." South apologized to both North and East.

May 7, 1993

On more than one occasion in the year ahead, Lady Luck might position you in the right spot at the right time, which will help you to derive some rather impressive benefits.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You could be quite lucky today where unexpected developments are concerned. If you are subjected to shifting conditions, flow with events instead of resisting them. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This could be a fun and constructive day for you socially, because of your ability to mix well with others. Saying and doing the right things add luster to your image.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be alert for opportunities today that could produce benefits for you as well as for your family. Something propitious might be generated through an unexpected chain of events.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Others won't resent it today if you help them manage things they are unable to do on their own. There's a chance you could also share in the good results you produce for them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Conditions in general are rather favorable for you today, especially those that contribute to your material well-being. If you discover a way to make or save money, explore it thoroughly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Endeavors that you personally control have excellent chances for success today. Don't delegate important assignments to people who can't do as good a job as you can.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're under very fortunate aspects today where money or material gains are a probability. Something good might develop in two different areas.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You are now in a propitious cycle for fulfilling your hopes and expectations. Lady Luck will do as much as she can, but the rest will be up to you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Joint ventures could work out well for you today, especially if the activities involve someone who has brought you fortune in the past. The combination is still dynamic.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It looks like you could become more closely involved at this time with a person of foreign birth. This association may produce benefits that might never be achieved individually.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In competitive developments today, the odds are slanted in your favor, instead of with those who oppose you. Don't be intimidated by challenges.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you use your innate ability to define both sides of an important issue today, the decisions you make should be wise and beneficial.
