State traffic deaths total 22

DELAND — The Labor Day holiday traffic death count totaled 22, seven less than predicted, a Florida Highway Patrol spokesman in Deland reported this morning.

There were no fatal Seminole County traffic accidents reported during the 78-hour holiday weekend that began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight Monday.

Seven injured in bathtub race

SERAVEZZA, Italy — A bathtub speeding down a hill at 50 mph veered out of control and plowed into a crowd of spectators, injuring seven people, police said.

Eight bathtubs equipped with wheels, a steering wheel, and auto-style brakes were entered Monday in Seravezza's sixth annual bathtub race. The race's route ran down a steep hill and ended in a central square of the town inland from the coastal resort of Viareggio in northwest Italy.

Police said a tub driven by Luciano Silvestri, 18, was traveling around 50 mph when it ran off the road at a curve and crashed into the crowd.

Six women and driver Silvestri sustained injuries in the crash, but there were no broken bones.

One man's art

PORTLAND, Ore. — A sculptor whose work shows life-size, nude male torsos skewered by huge swizzle sticks is accusing officials of Portland's Artquake festival of censorship because they won't display his pieces.

Mike Randles said his sculptures were rejected because they portrayed male nudity. But Artquake officials said they refused his work because it was different from slides of the sculptures he submitted earlier for approval.

Randles admitted the sculptures were not identical to the slides, but said the slides showed less mature work.

The graduate teaching fellow at the University of Oregon said the slides depicted the male sex organ transformed into a rifle.

SANFORD — Voter turnout this morning was slow to steady at several area precincts, pollworkers reported.

"It's not real busy, not real slow," said Betty Roberson, a pollworker at Sanora Clubhouse in Sanford, where Precinct 18 and 88 voters cast ballots. "It's been steady. We hope it will pick up later."

"We're seeing a little more than we anticipated," said Lem Tew, a pollworker at the Precinct 14 balloting location at Northland Community Church in Longwood.

Elections supervisor Sandra Goard predicts about 28 percent of the 111,922 registered voters will participate today, about the same turnout as the last gubernatorial primary in 1986. If the prediction holds true, about 17,000 Republicans will vote today and 12,000 Democrats will vote.

The polls will remain open until 7 p.m. and results are expected to be completely counted by about 9 p.m., if all goes well, county elections supervisor Sandra Goard said this morning.

Poll officials will yield questions at 321-1130, extension 7707.

Seminole County Republicans will make choices in two county commission races today, possibly choosing one commissioner, and for several judicial positions.

In the District 2 county commission race, 12-year incumbent Bob Sturm hopes he will outlast two challengers, former Lake Mary mayor Dick Fess and former challenger Bob Desmond, to extend his county commission term to 16 years.

Sanford commission qualifying to begin

By MICK PFEPAUF Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Although the statewide primary election today will decide some winners and pare other races down to a runoff, qualifying for city elections will just be getting started Wednesday morning at the City Clerk's office in City Hall.

Two Sanford City Commission seats will be on this year's city ballot, those for District 3, currently held by A.A. "Mac" McClanahan, and District 4, held by Whitey Eckstein. Both incumbents have indicated they will be seeking reelection to another four-year term. Sanford's commissioners receive an annual salary of $3,000.

The qualifying period is eight weeks long, running from 8:30 a.m., Sept. 5 to noon, Oct. 30.

Sanford City Clerk Jan Donahoe said, "The qualifying fee this year is $180, and must be drawn on an established campaign account. In addition to that, except for those already in office, city commission candidates will have to file a financial disclosure form and complete a campaign treasurer's and campaign depository form." Florida's leading gubernatorial candidates made last-minute appeals for support Monday at Labor Day picnics and parades.

Voters will decide in Tuesday's primary whether former Sen. Lawton Chiles or Rep. Bill Nelson will be the Democrat who will attempt to unseat Republican Gov. Bob Martinez in November.

The Florida Newspaper Poll indicated Sunday that Chiles is leading Nelson 55 percent to 30 percent, with 15 percent still undecided.

Nelson dismissed the results, saying he expected the undecided voters to swing his way. See Governor's, Page 5A

Soldiers of the Army's 101st Airborne Division are building their own amenities.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

UF students return to campus

United Press International

GAINESVILLE — University of Florida students began returning Monday for the resumption of classes as investigators said they were searching for new leads in the slayings of five college students.

The slayings prompted an exodus of nervous students from the campus last week, and others left because of the Labor Day holiday. UF officials said classes would resume Tuesday in atmosphere as close to normal as possible.

University of Florida President John Leachman urged students to return. He said security patrols would be increased, and on-campus housing would be arranged for those who were too scared to stay off-campus alone.

"To tell you that there is no crime, to tell you that there are no fatalities that will occur ... is simply not to be realistic," Leachman said. "Would I send my child back to the University of Florida? The answer is, yes, I would."

Leachman said only about 100 of the university's 34,000 students had notified campus officials that they would not return.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the Gainesville Police Department said there was no new information to report about the search for the killer or killers.

"The media has requested daily briefings from us, so we're complying, even if there is nothing new to report, which is the situation today," said Barry Luke, director of communications for the police department.

Luke clarified a report from Sunday's briefing in which police said they have eight suspects, four of whom were described as "primary." Warren Virgil Tinch, a car salesman being sought by the FBI for the mutilation-murder of his former girlfriend in Ohio, was dropped from the Gainesville list.

"It's unfair to say that he is no longer a suspect," said Luke. "He has been dropped from the top eight, however, and there was some confusion on the part of the news media about that."

The only suspect on the list of eight to be identified by police was Edward L. Humphrey, an 18-year-old UF freshman being held on $1 million bond on charges of beating up his grandmother.

Investigators have searched out Humphrey's room in the Hawaiian Village apartments in Gainesville but have not secured a warrant to search it. However, officers have searched garbage dumpsters and a stream at the complex.

Luke said Monday that police would neither confirm nor deny that search warrants were being sought for Humphrey's apartment or several other locations.

There was no mention of the Gainesville slayings during Humphrey's arraignment Friday on the assault charges.

A bond hearing was scheduled Tuesday in Melbourne for Humphrey, and his attorney planned to ask that his bond be reduced. That move seemed calculated to force police to reveal what evidence they had against Humphrey.

After a week of investigating, police said they were not close to making an arrest and were warning residents not to let their guard down.

The bodies of the five college students were discovered within a 48-hour period early last week.

The search for clues went nationwide last weekend as the task force investigating the slayings deployed 18 officers to nine other states.

Parole board considers early release

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Parole Commission has started examining the records of hundreds of state prison inmates, determining which of them will get out of prison early to make room for other, more violent criminals.

A 1988 state law set up the Florida Central Release Authority program to determine which inmates can get out of jail early. It's intended to replace the periodic early release of inmates who have received gain time through various programs. Critics said the old program allowed too many violent inmates out of prison.

The new program is designed to provide for better review of each inmate's case. The individual review is also supposed to make sure the more violent inmates are kept in jail.

Currently, Florida inmates serve on average about one-third of their sentences before being released. Florida is under a federal court mandate to limit its prison population.

Exotic dancers return stolen tips

JACKSONVILLE — Two exotic dancers have returned the huge tips they recently received after finding out the money came from a 70-year-old woman who had been robbed.

About $25,000 in cash and about $100,000 in jewelry were stolen last month from Cutis Joey, an elderly woman who had received the cash as a loan repayment.

Before Joey had time to get to a bank, the cash and her jewelry was taken during a burglary at her home.

Police arrested two men and recovered more than $14,000, later finding out that the rest of the money had been spent in various bars around the Jacksonville area.

Two exotic dancers at a bar where some of the money was spent came forward and returned the money, police said.

Nearly all of the cash has been recovered, police said, but the jewelry, which was sold, is still missing.

One-third of voters expected to turn out

TALLAHASSEE — State officials estimate about one-third of Florida's 5.9 million registered voters will head to the polls in Tuesday's primary.

The big race is for governor, with Republicans and Democrats deciding who their candidates will be in the general election in November. Incumbent Republican Gov. Bob Martinez is expected to easily win the nomination, while former Sen. Lawton Chiles and Congressman Bill Nelson battle it out in the Democratic primary.

Recent polls show Chiles the favorite to defeat Nelson and face Martinez in November. The same polls have shown Martinez would be defeated by either Chiles or Nelson.

There are also congressional races, legislative contests and a host of local candidates and issues statewide. Two of the most controversial are a gay rights issue in Broward County and a two-year growth moratorium in Sarasota County.

Officer's name tag deflects bullet

TAMPA — A police officer's name tag is credited with deflecting a bullet and likely saving him from serious injury.

Officer Thomas Thompson was wearing his police uniform early Tuesday while working security at a local nightclub, police said. A 17-year-old gunman opened fire at Thompson, but the bullet ricocheted from the name tag, hitting Thompson with only a scrape on his elbow, which needed no treatment.

But another bullet hit a 20-year-old man in the leg. The youth and a 24-year-old man were arrested and charged with two counts of attempted first-degree murder.

The gunfire erupted following an argument between the two suspects and some other bar patrons in a parking lot, police said.

Restaurant stand-off ends

JACKSONVILLE — Three gunmen surrendered early Tuesday after holding a dozen hostages inside a Red Lobster restaurant for about six hours in an aborted robbery.

None of the hostages were hurt. One of the gunmen was shot in the leg by police during the incident.

Police said they were notified about a possible robbery at about 11 p.m. EDT Monday when a passer-by saw a man with a shotgun go into the back of the restaurant.

Patrol officers and a SWAT team quickly surrounded the building and a hostage negotiating team was sent to the scene.

One of the gunmen came out the back door of the restaurant and was shot in the leg. A second gunman then burst from the door and ran off, but was captured a few blocks away.

The manager of the restaurant was forced at gunpoint to drag the wounded gunman, who had already been handcuffed, back inside the building. A mechanical robot was used by police to take a handoff key to those inside, while one of the hostages worked the phone as a mediator between police and the would-be bandits.

Columbia's countdown continues

By WILLIAM HANFORD
UPI Science Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — Countdown clocks finally began ticking again Monday for the shuttle Columbia's pre-launch Mission Thursday on a long-awaited astronomy flight after a weekend of around-the-clock work to fix a faulty telescope.

Engineers restarted the countdown at 1 a.m. EDT Monday and if all goes well, Columbia and its seven-man crew will blast off at 1:20 a.m. Thursday, three months late because of a fuel leak and a week after the ship was grounded by an electronic glitch with one of four on-board telescopes.

"We've had some trouble, but responding to it has been a breeze. It's our strong suit," said NASA test leader Michael Leachman. "Used to get a good word. We've been disappointed several times of course, but Thursday morning we're hopeful all that will be behind us."

If bad weather forces an emergency landing site in Africa out of action, the shuttle could be launched 15 minutes early, at 1:07 a.m., to take advantage of another landing site in Marion Bay.

As for weather at the Kennedy Space Center, Air Force meteorologists predicted an 80 percent chance of acceptable conditions at launch time.

"I'm ready to go. I'm ready to get this one off the ground," Leachman said of NASA's launchless summer. "Solving any unforeseen problems we're going to do exactly that. The team's feeling good."

Protest delays pigeon shoot

United Press International

HOBBS, Pa. — More than two dozen animal rights activists were arrested Monday for disrupting an annual pigeon shoot, which one protester described as an "outrageous display of cowardice."

The 58th annual Fred Coleman Memorial Labor Day Pigeon Shoot, in which 7,000 pigeons are gunned down to raise funds for a 10-acre park, was delayed three hours by a number of acts of civil disobedience, state police said.

Fourteen protesters were arrested after placing themselves between shooters and the pigeon traps as they chanted, "Save the pigeons; ban the shoots."

A total of 35 activists, including one juvenile, were charged in the standoff, state police said. No one was seriously hurt, although several were roughed up as they tried to resist arrest.

State police spokesman Thomas Lyon estimated that $25,000 was spent in overtime pay for officers providing security for the shoot, which attracted a crowd of 10,000 picnickers and beer drinkers in addition to 400 protesters.

The shoot draws entrants from throughout the nation and is considered one of the largest events of its kind in the world. Each participant pays $90 to shoot pigeons released from traps 32 yards away.

"These are normal country folk trying to make a living," said a shooter from Reading, Pa., who refused to give his name. "We're doing our best. We aren't here to hurt anyone."

Among the protesters were members of five national, state and local animal rights groups. Animal Rights Mobilization of Williamsport, Pa., accounted for about 200 of the protesters.

The groups contend the event is nothing more than an organized bloodletting. They also protested the use of trapper boys, youngsters employed to gather maimed pigeons and ring their necks to kill them.

Steve Hindi, 36, of Plains, Ill., was among the most active critics of the event Monday. Although he belongs to no particular animal rights group, he is known by pigeon shooters throughout the country.

"It's the most outrageous display of cowardice I've ever seen. I've never seen worse," said Hindi, a shark hunter by profession.

Tattle-tale phone mail establishes network between parents, schools

United Press International

MIAMI — Students returning to W.J. Bryan Elementary School Tuesday will find a computerized phone system to keep their parents posted when they are disciplined, forget their homework or get notes to take home from the teacher.

The MemoryCall phone mail system allows parents to call in for messages from their children's teachers or leave messages for teachers any time of the day. It also allows teachers to contact parents immediately with good news or bad.

Each teacher and the principal will have access codes that parents can dial to receive information on class activities, homework assignments, field trips, meetings or other school activities.

Parents also can make suggestions or notify teachers of absences, for example.

"It's an effort for us to try to bring the home and the school together," said Bryan Elementary Principal Nora Brandt. "This gives parents a way to contact schools 24 hours a day, seven days a week."

—Nora Brandt, principal

together," said Bryan Elementary Principal Nora Brandt. "This gives parents a way to contact schools 24 hours a day, seven days a week."

The system allows up to 99 calls to come in at a time. It will cost the school $50 a month, or $14 per teacher.

That cost will drop to $6.25 per teacher in January, when the school expands the program. That will allow parents to get information from all departments at the school, including the cafeteria, the clinic and the counselor's office.

Brandt arranged to get private telephones for 20 teachers as part of the project. They can use the phones to call parents at any time.

"I just think kids do so much better in school when parents are involved," Brandt said. "We want parents to feel like they are part of the school."

She said teachers would be encouraged to call with good news as well as bad.

"It's a reward system. It's the same thing as getting a star on the chart," Brandt said.

Kindergarten teacher Marti McLean is excited about the new system.

"There will be no excuse for not keeping a line into the home. Education doesn't stop at 5 p.m.," McLean said.

Marlene Leach, president of the Parent-Teacher Association, agreed.

Superintendents' meeting may lead to school budget shortfall

By Vicki Buchanan
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — While the Seminole County school board prepares for a final hearing and vote on the 1990-91 budget on Sept. 18, a meeting between the Commissioner of Education and the Florida Association of School Superintendents may make more belt-tightening necessary.

So far, however, no one at the district is making any official plans to cut spending.

"The way I understand it," said Supt. Bob Hughes, "the Cabinet will meet for a revenue estimating conference on the 10th (of September) and then the Commissioner will meet with us the next week (Sept. 17) to give us an update."

Hughes said there is always the concern of a "budgetary shortfall" when a revenue estimating conference is held.

"We may all be asked to tighten our budgets even more because adequate revenues to fund all programs can not be found in the state coffers," Hughes said.

He said the key items in the Seminole County budget would not be touched regardless of the outcome of the Sept. 17 meeting.

"We set a priority to raise teachers salaries and increase the budget for text book purchases," Hughes said. "Those items will stand. If cuts are made, they will be made elsewhere."

Hughes said, however, he would not speculate on the nature of additional cuts in the district budget until he was told they were necessary.

Some district employees said they have been told that spending on items such as office supplies might be frozen this budget year and that "austerity measures" would be enforced.

Hughes said he has not mandated such cutbacks yet, but some department heads might be implementing cost-cutting programs on their own.

"We keep hearing concerns about shortfalls in the state budget," Hughes said. "And that can never be a good thing. But, I don't know yet what all this means for us."

Hughes said in the past, the state has "left education alone" when revenue shortfalls have occurred, but he wouldn't predict if that would be the case this year.

"This is an election year," he added. "They'll find the money for everyone somewhere."

SCC to show historical documentary

By Vicki Buchanan
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — On Sept. 9 at 2 p.m., Seminole Community College will present a preview of their 1990 Governor's Summer Program video documentary "The Significance of Bahad Combrad."

The video chronicles the history of Seminole County through interviews with members of various ethnic communities which settled the county, including blacks, Swedes and Slavs.

Students from all six district high schools wrote and produced the documentary this summer as part of a project funded by the state to help them earn college credit while learning about writing, historical documentation and the video arts.

The students who participated in the program are:

- Robert Collins, 16
  - Melissa Shafford, 16
  - Veronique Bole, 15
  - Sara Winkler, 16
  - Laura Rauch, 16
  - Holly Kerie, 14
  - Rene Echevarria, 16
  - Jessica Rungt, 15
  - Adriana Rendon, 16
  - Mike Duvall, 16
  - Mike Cruise, 16
- Bole, Duvall, Rendon, Rungt, Shafford and Winkler were part of a team which, last year, produced a photobook on the historical roots of Seminole County.

City to review beautification contract

By Mike Phipps
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — City Manager John Litton will seek city approval at Thursday night's city commission meeting to enter into a $30,000 contract with Canin Associates, Inc., of Orlando toward the first steps in the Lake Mary Boulevard beautification project.

Canin will design and oversee the implementation of the landscaping along the highway in accordance with the gateway beautification concept approved by the city and the county last year, and will divide the project into three phases: Phase I, from Marshwood Woods Road east to Interstate 4; Phase II, from I-4 to Rinehart Road; and Phase III, from Rinehart to Country Club Road.

Through negotiation, the total contract price has been reduced from the initial offer of $45,000 to $30,000, with Seminole County and Lake Mary splitting the costs. The city will assume the contract and will later be reimbursed by the county.

One of the delaying factors in the beautification project has been the court case involving the burial of Florida Power Corporation power lines along Lake Mary Boulevard. While an initial decision was made Aug. 7 by Circuit Court Chief Judge G.H. Eaton Jr., who ordered FPC to bury its lines within 90 days, no actual work has started. A trial date on that question has been tentatively scheduled for Sept. 17.

Canin's work will consist of engineering and design development that will include landscaping and design of intersections, sidewalks, lighting and irrigation.

As soon as the agreement between the city and Canin is finalized, Canin plans to meet with city officials to establish a schedule for completion of services.

X marks which spot?

Some of Hollywood's leading directors have had it with the 23-year-old rating system that, among other things, has hampered serious films like "Midnight Cowboy" with the likes of "Debbie Does Dallas." The X rating was meant to label films suitable only for adults, but once the porno merchants seized upon it as a marketing device, serious directors had to become self-censors to get a coveted R rating, which allows those under 17 into the theater if they're with an adult.

An X rating means being frozen out of most mainstream theaters and even the entertainment pages of newspapers that don't take ads for X-rated films. Now some directors are going to court and threatening to append their own rating — in most cases an A (for adult) to films they consider mature but not risqué. Better, for the sake of industry harmony, they'd like the Motion Picture Association of America to adopt the A itself.

After initial resistance, MPAA President Jack Valenti seems to be bending under pressure, and well he might. It's unfair to punish an innovative director like Wayne Wang, for example, with an X because of one scene in which a character is seen looking at a pornographic magazine — a scene that illustrates a theme of decadence in contemporary Hong Kong.

Some might say just take the scene out, as censors have said ever since Hollywood started policing itself some 60 years ago. It's to filmmakers' credit, however, that they've resisted that solution — as when producer David Semick fought to let Robert Butler tell Scarlett O'Hara that he didn't give a damn — or subverted it, as director Francis Ford Coppola did to "The Godfather Part II" by showing the system without actually violating it.

Unfortunately, adding an A also adds confusion to a modified system that now runs the gamut from G to PG to PG-13 to R to X, but doesn't, except where local theaters or critics volunteer the information, tell people just why a movie has been given, say, a PG-13 instead of an R: Is it simple nudity, sex, violence, profanity, all of the above?

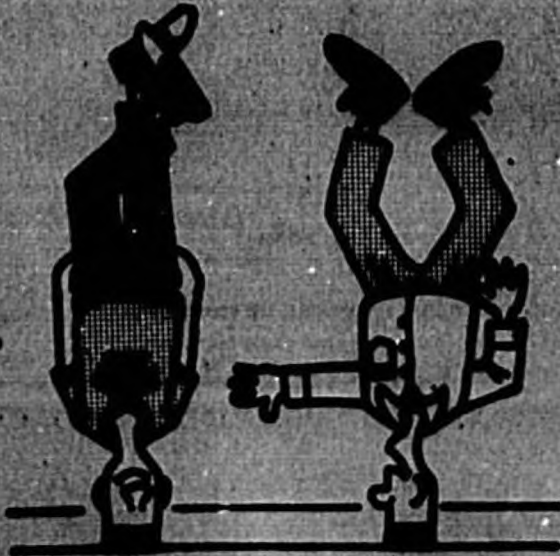

Adding an A to the list makes sense within the context of the existing system; the question is whether Hollywood can come up with something that's both simpler and more informative.

Movies have come a long way from the time when husbands and wives couldn't occupy the same bed, when even the mildest curse was taboo, when women were "expecting" but never pregnant. No doubt some filmmakers, even "serious" ones, have gone too far, but the solution to this is to give audiences intelligible guidance. It's too bad all of this has to be so complex, but so is the society it reflects.

Military misses the readiness target

WASHINGTON — Although it's currently fashionable to say this country's military establishment is ill-prepared for combat in regional conflicts, the squandering of decades of opportunities to achieve that readiness has received almost no attention.

The current potential regional conflict is, of course, in the Middle East. Assorted armchair generals throughout the nation have been quick to note that the Department of Defense lacks much of the equipment crucial to extending and maintaining the 7,000-mile-long supply line necessary to meet that challenge.

The conventional wisdom cites, for example, the paucity of quick-to-react strike forces equipped with light, highly mobile weapons that are dispatched to battle aboard "roll-on, roll-off" transport ships or cargo planes capable of operating on short runways.

There's no question that the Pentagon must dramatically upgrade its sealift and airlift capacity if this country is to maintain its capability to project military power — and thus political influence — around the globe.

Thus, it's hard to dispute a typical analysis, holding that the inadequacies materializing in recent weeks offer "depressing proof that the United States, after 40 years of planning for the Big One in Central Europe, is largely unprepared for conflict in other parts of the world."

But the commonly accepted notion that the current crisis in the Middle East constitutes an unprecedented post-Cold War experience misses an important point:

Although the United States has been a combatant in several major regional conflicts in recent decades, it has largely remained oblivious to the lessons it should have learned from those scarring experiences. The first was in Korea during the 1950s. The second was in Vietnam during the 1960s and 1970s. Korea was, at best, a tie. Vietnam was a defeat. Both were humiliating to a country that claims to be a military superpower.

Moreover, both were virtually ignored as examples of the low- and mid-intensity conflicts likely to recur because the country's political and military leaders were preoccupied with planning for high-intensity clashes with the Soviet Union.

World War III never arrived and isn't likely to come any time soon — but we've spent trillions of dollars getting ready for it, especially during the 1980s under the inadequate leadership of President Ronald Reagan.

There's the B-2 Stealth bomber program, a $63 billion extravaganza that requires $840 million in public funds to produce a single aircraft. If strategic bombing becomes necessary in the Middle East, the B-2's lack of range and capacity make it virtually useless. Instead, the aircraft of choice would be the decade-old B-52 that the B-2 was supposed to supplant.

There's the Strategic Defense Initiative, the "Star Wars" program launched by Reagan that already has cost the country $80 billion. If it's completed and if it works (both unlikely events), it would provide a shield against intercontinental missiles launched by the Soviet Union.

But the Soviet empire is disintegrating and SDI is of no value whatever in low- and mid-intensity conflicts. "We're still fighting the Cold War with Reagan relics — and SDI is the biggest relic of them all," notes Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa.

ELLEN GOODMAN

On post-integration segregation

BOSTON — The man was talking about what he calls the "re-segregation" of American life. He was a veteran of the civil-rights movement, and even South as a student in the '60s when whites and blacks fought American apartheid together.

The man went on to make his life in a Midwestern university, where he was my guide one spring day. Indeed he taught about race in America until he felt discredited on account of his skin color — white — and went into administration.

Walking me into the student union, he said: "Look." The tables in front of me were nearly all segregated as a lunch counter in the Alabama of the 1950s. There was just one table where black and white undergraduates ate in noisy camaraderie. They, my guide explained, were members of the variety team.

Feeling, he counted on one hand the number of places where blacks and whites sat together on his campus these days: in sports, in the arts or, he added ironically, in residential class. A few years back there was a shantytown on campus, a makeshift protest against investing in South Africa. Now he was almost sorry the university divested because it had been one of the few actions that brought students together.

I thought the story lent to a woman who devoted only one phrase: re-segregation. We never desegregated, she says. An academic and black, she favors very few people who ever had equal lives that easily transcended the color line.

As a member, she sees her graduate-school kids with streaks of all hues, but her college students subdivided by skin color. So she also wonders when it happens and why. Many of her black students believe they can only succeed on white terms and turf. Many of her white students feel uncomfortable by blacks. Many feel unrepresented.

Who was defensive and who was racist and who was just uncomfortable? And why this great distance today between blacks and whites about race relations in America?

Both of these students, now enjoying the summer that is their chief professional perk, are city insiders over the past year. Grubbi, beauty, tennis. Yet they would agree that there are by no means the worst days on campus or the worst years. They remember the 1982 Massachusetts legal segregation.

But they also know that nearly every campus holds a volatile mix of attitudes that in no way resembles a melting pot. In some places, whites believe that their black classmates were admitted because of their race. In others, blacks believe that whites believe that.

On many universities, the black search for identity — their own place on a white campus — can end up being indistinguishable from repression. In many universities, white classmates resent the racist label brushing them indiscriminately.

There is today a high degree of racial consciousness and a sorry lack of a language, of a forum, of a common ground where people can talk honestly about race. These two facts have given many campuses the look and sound of two cultures. And in these segregated places, there may not even be faith anymore in the value of integration.

Neither of my guides believes that campuses are unique in their sharp segregations. Quite the opposite is true, they say. Look around the office. Look around town.

In Washington, it is still almost impossible for blacks and whites to talk about the trial of Mayer Berry. To most whites in the nation's capital, the case was "about" the mayor and his alleged use of drugs. To most blacks the case was "about" the contempt of a black leader. Across the great divide of the race, the words defied interpreters.

Even in journalism, bylines often come color-coded. White journalists are entrusted writing about blacks as if race were a qualification. Black journalists are often both required and discredited for writing about "their own."

And in our cities, there are neighborhoods so sequestered by race as ever in our history. There are people who speak for the "black community" and the "white community" as if their apertures was an accepted and permanent reality.

But universities have often thought of themselves as models, communities of scholars. At best, they are expected to uphold their own values. At a minimum, they are places where we are to think and talk deeply about what troubles the "real world."

The universities are re-opening. They start each new year with a fresh curriculum. But what troubles the real world as much as anything these days is race relations. It's a problem that exists on a scale as large as a city. But it can also be seen — and changed — on a scale as small as a dining-room table.

Who was defensive and who was racist and who was just uncomfortable?

Seldman-Sununu feud continues

WASHINGTON — When William Seldman was thrown from his horse recently on his New Mexico ranch, there were plenty of powerful people in Washington who were hoping he would stay down for the count. Seldman needed emergency surgery for internal bleeding, but he was back in the saddle in Washington within a few weeks.

As chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and the man in charge of the savings-and-loan cleanup, Seldman is known for his blunt talk and in-your-face independence. He has kicked some powerful shins, including those of Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady, and there is no love lost between Seldman and White House Chief of Staff John Sununu.

There is no love lost between Seldman and White House Chief of Staff John Sununu.

The surgeon who treated Seldman after his fall was also named Sununu, promoting an aide to Seldman to coach. "Count the spoons." Even by his own standards, Seldman may have gone too far when he recently sent a message through back channels to his nemesis in the White House, Sununu. He said that every time he read in the press that Sununu wanted him to quit, he would stay one month longer than he intended.

The Seldman-Sununu feud dates back to the early days of the Bush administration when Sununu proposed a "deposit tax" as a solution to the thrift crisis. Seldman called it the "reverse toaster plan" where instead of getting a gift for opening an account, you give one. Seldman realizes that credibility for both bankers and regulators is their most precious asset. So he has been candid about the potential problems facing the entire financial system. That frank talk doesn't sit so well with the Bush administration, which believes that the savings-and-loan crisis could do for Bush what the Iranian hostage crisis did for Jimmy Carter.

At a recent meeting with Treasury Department officials, Seldman was told to stop talking about the fact that the FDIC's fund that insures commercial bank deposits is under severe strain, such as the savings-and-loan deposit fund was when the S&L scandal was just beginning to surface. And the commercial banking industry's problems now seem compounded by the specter of an already ailing American economy being pushed into a recession by inflated oil prices. The FDIC fund is now at $11 billion, a historic low, with the prospect of another $2 billion in losses this year. The failure of only a few big banks could wipe out the fund, creating a second currency for taxpayers. Already the thrift crisis is projected to cost upward of $1 trillion.

That's not the end of the bad news. The nation's 18,000 credit unions seem to be traveling down the same road as their sisters in the thrift industry. A new breed of pseudo-credit unions — aggressively expanding their membership and the kinds of loans they make — have stifled the growth of that industry from $28 billion in assets in 1980 to $125 billion last year.

Fraud is also being detected in a growing number of credit unions. The biggest case was the recent collapse of Franklin Community Federal Credit Union in Greater New York. Credit union regulators now claim that fraud accounts for about 5 percent of the failures. In addition, 65 percent of the failures are caused by weak management. The best of optimistic prophets planning the financial system to why several prominent GOP lawmakers recently urged President Bush, pleading with him to keep Seldman on the job.

All the women in the class are over 50 years old, all are preparing to begin a new career in the day care industry. The class roster totals six, though one woman, Audrey Higgins, is absent on this particular day.

The women all have various needs of their morning spent in a day care center working with youngsters. They were discussing their observations on the "old care" use of Play-Doh and comparing notes on different management styles of the facilities where they worked.

"It was interesting to see the children's faces when they saw what they were creating," Josevita Fernandez, 51, said. "I had to wash my face at the end."

Marge Hennessey, who will be 55 next month, said she thought it was odd that the day care facility where she worked only put toys out at certain times during the day. A discussion by the group brought them to the conclusion, however, that different management styles are needed for each center depending on both the children and their caregivers.

The class is an experiment of sorts, sponsored by the Seminole-Baldwin Foundation, designed to bring older people and children together for the benefit of both.

"It's great for both the day care facilities and the women in this class," said Kathleen Wilmsont, the instructor of the class. "These ladies are finding rewarding jobs and, if they need it, supplemental income. The children love the grandmother image. And the day care centers are finding stable, hard working employees in an industry where there is a great deal of turnover."

The Seminole Community College program received an $8,000 grant from the Foundation to get the program off the ground. "If we find success with this," Bob Ledford, director of SCC's office of community and continuing education, said, "we'll have to find another source of support."

The students pay nothing for the 50-hour class which includes a 20-hour training course to receive day care certification from the state.

Celia Lunkin, 55, hopes to open her own day care center, operated from her home, upon completion of the course.

"I have one grandchild at home now," the Seminole native said. "I'd like to have other children to care for too."

Unlike the others Lunkin has some day care experience, having run an informal day facility from her home in the past.

"I am learning English and then I will be able to open my own business," she said.

board will not be used Oct. 2. Though the school board races in Districts 1, 4 and 5 appear on the ballots which are at the precincts today, any votes cast in those races will not be counted. The ballots were printed before the final resolution of the confusion.

Turnout

Sturm will be re-elected today as no Democrats are seeking the seat. If no one gains over half the District 2 vote, the two top vote-getters will face off Oct. 2.

District 4 incumbent Sandra Glenn will face former county commissioner and school board member Robert "Bud" Feather. The winner of today's race will face Democrat Larry Furlong Nov. 6.

Five Seminole County attorneys are seeking the Seminole County Judge Group 1 seat vacated by the resignation of Judge Alan A. DeWay. They are Ken Bevan, 46, Altamonte Springs; Michael A. Kramer, 38, Longwood; Chris Ray, 48, Sanford; John Stoop, 41, Wekiva; and Richard B. Taylor Jr., 40, Longwood. As of Jan. 1, 1991, the salary for this four-year term will have increased $8,500 to $90,354.

Voters are also selecting circuit judges for three seats in the 18th judicial circuit, which comprises Seminole and Brevard counties. Groups 10 and 11 will be seated in Seminole County, Group 12 will operate in Brevard County.

Four candidates are seeking the group 10 seat, made vacant by the resignation of Judge Kenneth Laffer. The four are Newman D. Brock, 48, Longwood; Ned Julian, 48, Sanford; George Kelley, 47, Forest City; and Robert E. Miller, 37, Winter Springs. The salary of a circuit judge is $88,048.

Group 11 candidates are Jeff Deen, 35, and Robert B. McCreger, 60. McCreger is the only incumbent facing opposition.

Circuit judge candidates in Group 12 are Glenn Craig, Melbourne, and Charles Holcomb, Cocoa. Although they will be seated in Brevard County, candidates run for election in the entire two county circuit.

Ten seats have already been decided with only one candidate qualifying to seek election in each. Two are in Seminole County, Seymour Benson, Altamonte Springs, will become circuit judge in group 5 and Alan A. Dickey, Lake Mary, will become circuit judge of the newly created group 13.

Lake Mary

Mary. "We're the squeaking wheel," said Wolff, a native of Lake Mary and member of the historical commission, women's club, and the city board of adjustment.

"This is my home. I've known these people all my life, and I like to watch out for them." Wolff has faithfully attended the commission meetings this year thanks to her next door neighbor, Ethel Carlson, who gives her a ride.

Carlson also gives the opening prayer at every meeting, and has done so for the past nine years.

"In nine years I've only missed three commission meetings," Carlson said. "It's the only way you can really find out what's going on in the city."

Whenever they disagree with the commission or feel they can enlighten them with new information, the "squeaky wheels" won't hesitate to get up and speak their mind.

Carlson recalls a time when she spoke in favor of the city purchasing the Community Improvement Association building, when most of the commission was against it. The final vote was 3 to 2 in favor of purchasing the building.

"I felt it was a good idea, so I got up and said so," Carlson said. "So many new people get up there and start talking when they really don't know the area or what's going on. They don't care what it's for, they just want to be heard."

The final spoke in the wheel is Wesley, who moved to Lake Mary with her parents in 1919. Author of the historical book "Lake Mary's Beginnings," Wesley also serves on the historical commission and the senior citizen's center.

"I think we should all be interested," Wesley said. "Our lives are affected by what happens there."

Mayor Paul Tomal agrees that more citizens should attend the meetings. He said Carlson "holds the record" in attendance for the six years that he's served on the commission.

"We've agreed on some issues and we've disagreed on some issues," he said. "When we have disagreed, neither one of us takes it personally. That's what is so refreshing about Mrs. Carlson — she always has the best interests of the city at heart, and I think she knows I do too."

Carlson is the only outsider of the three, having retired in Lake Mary 10 years ago with her husband, Carl. She works weekly at the Sanford Christian Sharing Center, the CIA, and the Coast Guard Auxiliary as a radio operator for patrols on the St. Johns River. She's also past president of the Lake Mary Women's Club.

An originator of the threesome, she can explain why they sit together on the second row, instead of the first.

"We always sat in the front row at the old city hall. Now we sit in the second row because these seats aren't as comfortable," she said while pointing to the first row's fold out chairs. "Mary is so little, she sits in the middle."

City Associate Planner Mark Rasmussen called Wolff, at 4 feet 8 inches tall, a "fireball."

"She hasn't grown up yet," Carlson teased.

"Well, she's 77 years old. I've been too busy to grow," Wolff said. A graduate of Seminole High School, she attended college in Tennessee and taught at Oviedo High School for several years. She took time off to raise four children with her husband, Charlie, and then taught junior high and elementary school in Miami for 20 years until she retired at age 70.

She now owns about 60 acres south of Broadwater Street that has been in her family for generations. She plans to develop that land into a single-family subdivision.

"You have to get into politics if you have land, and if you own anything about the city," she said. "To protect the interests of yourself and your friends."

Wolff plans to keep the area "as natural as possible. I can't help on holding it out forever, although I do have mixed emotions."

Wolff and Wesley have an old friendship, dating back to when they were teenagers here in the 1920s. Wesley graduated from Seminole High School and then moved with her first husband, Marcus Green, to Tennessee. She has worked as a correspondent for the Sanford Herald and the Orlando Evening

Although she is the oldest in the group, her mind and her speech are as sharp as the pencil she takes notes with.

"I'm interested in hearing what the city commission and staff is doing for us," she said. "My husband is dead and I have no family here. They're like my extended family."

The most outspoken of the group, Wesley says she only comes forward at the meetings to give new information.

But for the other two, says Carlson, "If we have something to say, we get up there and say it."

Kids learn manners in new class

By KAREN WILLIAMS
United Press International

LOS ANGELES - Where is the parent who hasn't dressed up the children and dragged them to a restaurant or party, only to learn the hard way that the kids are as far out of their element as a salmon out of water.

Admonishment or (shudder) toleration need not be the only alternatives. Not when there are "white glove" schools available.

Etiquette entrepreneur Diane Diehl, who teaches classes for youngsters at the traditionally elegant Biltmore Hotel in downtown Los Angeles, says protocol is regaining currency after a deep depression in the 1960s and 1970s.

Diehl says the children she teaches "retain more than adults" at least in part because "we are treating the children with tremendous consideration and respect," which she believes encourages obedient and polite behavior.

Since April 1988, "Petite Protocol" classes have been held at the Biltmore every three months, with each session reflecting a different seasonal theme, hotel spokeswoman Holly Barnhill says.

The course was originally developed by Margabelle Young Stewart, who has co-authored 17 books on etiquette. Stewart's pupils in Washington, D.C., have included one of President Bush's grandchildren and one of Vice President Dan Quayle's children.

Stewart says dignitaries and businessmen alike are "enrolling their children in droves," and corporate leaders who lament the lack of polish in their employees have taken to signing up their workers.

At a recent Saturday session in the Biltmore's "Cultural Camp" program, Diehl gave a lecture for seven children, covering topics ranging from table and telephone manners to grooming and the proper way to shake hands. The $150 fee also covered instruction in social manners for cultural events.

After the classroom session, a brunch was served in the hotel's restaurant. Under the supervision of maître d' Quester Stebert, Diehl's young gentlemen learned to help her young ladies with their chairs.

Diehl instructed them on the correct way to eat the first course, papaya filled with berries and topped with creme fraiche. The second course - a brioché, or soft roll, with a scrambled-egg filling and a topping of smoked salmon and caviar - was eaten with the correct spoon.

Only two of the children said they enjoyed the dinner. Kristine Jurk, 7, said the bread was her favorite part of the meal.

Teens, stars in AIDS book

By Barbara Woodcock
United Press International

LOS ANGELES - Role models ranging from a concerned teenage girl to Hollywood luminaries pitch the importance of safe sex in a new teen guide, "Risky Times: How to be AIDS-Smart and Stay Healthy."

Boston television medical reporter Jeanne Blake populates her new book with compassionate figures like Christie Levinson, 17, who, after seeing two friends die of AIDS, organized a seminar on the disease for her Los Angeles classmates.

Blake tells Levinson's story, and those of others whose lives have been changed by the AIDS virus, in three-page chapters, short enough to be read in one sitting by teenagers with video-era attention spans.

In fact, the entire format of the book (Workman Publishing, $5.95) encourages browsing.

It is peppered with celebrity photos and blurbs, such as Whoopi Goldberg's "Get the facts!" and Cher's "Be careful. Protect yourselves."

Larry Bird and other sports stars preach against drugs and promote the use of condoms.

The pages are broken up with snapshots of self-confident teenagers dispensing advice like:

"Don't be a jerk. Use a condom."

The book is frank about sexual transmission of the AIDS virus, and describes how hemophiliacs, blood transfusion recipients, newborns and medical personnel also can contract the disease.

The prevention message is underscored in a chapter titled, "A bad way to die," with pictures of a 30-year-old homosexual patient's deterioration. In one picture, he is skeleton-thin with a tube in his nose.

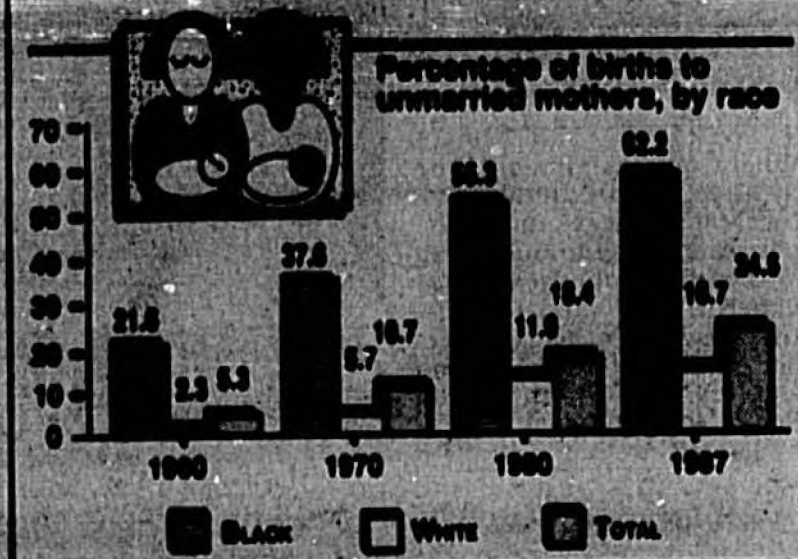

Easy-to-read, compelling accounts of likeable, sympathetic people exposed to the virus show that AIDS strikes mothers, runaway teens, dancers, athletes; in short, anyone.

Blake tells of a woman whose long-time boyfriend was bisexual. The woman died in 1989, leaving a son conceived before her diagnosis infected with the virus.

Also profiled is a 19-year-old hemophiliac who was fired from his fast-food job and is shunned by his girlfriend's roommates, who want him barred from their dorm because he used their bathroom.

Blake says that he had no way of avoiding the virus, but tells readers, "Today, kids have a choice. They can protect themselves. Use a condom. You might be embarrassed, but use it anyway."

Over half of all black newborns in both 1980 and 1987 were the children of unmarried mothers. In those years, less than 20 percent of white babies were born to unmarried mothers.

Burners steamed 3-2

Local soccer team loses in finals of Ford-Pele

From staff reports

ATLANTA — Burns' Burners finally had their fire extinguished Monday as the Casselberry-based team lost in the finals of the Ford/Pele Labor Day Tournament 3-2 to the Atlanta Steamers 78 being played in the Atlanta suburb of Dunwoody.

The Steamers 78 team is the defending 13-and-Under Division Regional Soccer Champions.

The Burners, an under-14 boys select team in the S.C. United Youth Soccer Organization out of Casselberry, went 18-minutes into the game before Sean McSorley of Oviedo dribbled through the Steamers defense and stuck in the goal. The only other scoring for the Burners came off the foot of Brian Diebler of Longwood who drilled a penalty kick past the Steamers goalie.

The Burners had reached the final by defeating the Atlanta Steamers 5-2, the Asa Kings Wolves 6-2, Cobb Union of Marietta, Ga. 4-1 to win their elimination bracket and then won their semifinal over the Stone Mountain (Ga.) Fire 2-1.

The second-place finish by the Burners was quite impressive as the Ford/Pele Tournament is one of the biggest soccer tournaments in the southeast, attracting 300 teams, including 50 outside the state of Georgia and two foreign entries. The Burners finished ahead of 14 other teams in its division.

The Burners finished the tournament with a 4-1 record and bested 14 other teams in its age bracket. The tournament was just the second that the team had competed in since Coach Jon Burns put the team together a few weeks ago. The team had won the six-team Tampa Bay Thunder Tournament in Clearwater two weeks ago.

After the completion of the tournament McSorley, who led the team in scoring with six goals, was named the Most Valuable Player in the tournament.

The Burners had a great tournament as goal keeper Ryan Smith of Chulohota only allowed eight goals while the offense scored 19 goals in the five games they played.

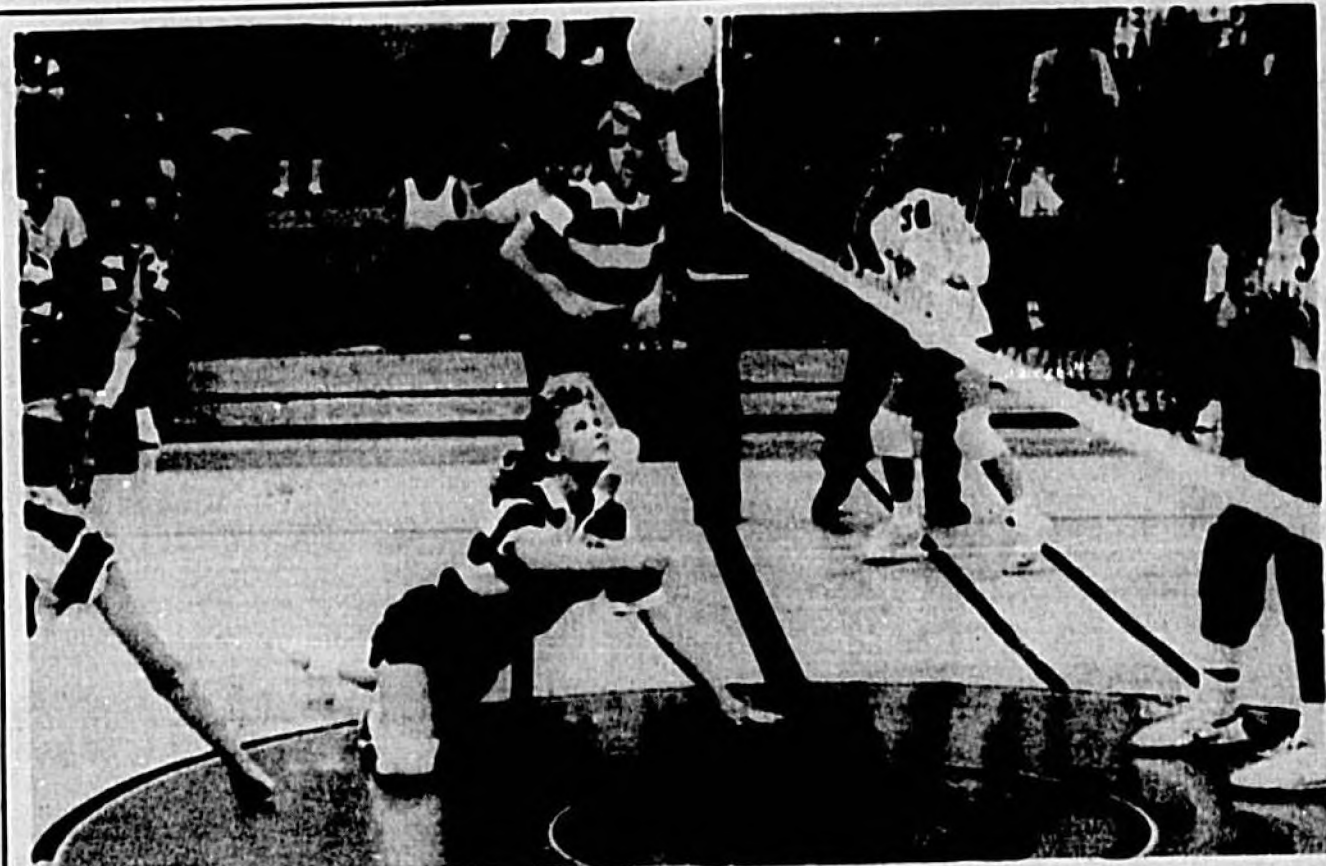

Another outstanding statistic for the team was the fact that nine different players scored goals for the burners. In a sport known for only two or three players dominating the offense this is a great statement for the teamwork of the Burners and the coaching of Jon Burns.

The other players who scored in the tournament, besides McSorley, were Diebler with three goals, Salman Lewis of Winter Springs, Damon Cottingham of Altamonte Springs and "Ace" Delaney of Lake Mary (with two goals each). Netting one goal each were Jeff Solistman of Winter Park, Jason Tisdell of Longwood, Brad Massey of Winter Springs and Charles Whitmore of Altamonte Springs.

Other members of the Burners who made the trip were Team Manager Don Smith and players Chad Felkel of Casselberry, Randy Jenkins of Orlando, Alan King of Winter Park, Will Lipscomb of Lake Mary, Graig Noyes of Oviedo, Paul Riggins of Longwood and David Kinsley of Casselberry. Coach Burns is the sole coach of the team.

The team will now get ready for the regular season which will be starting up soon. The next tournament action for the team will be at Thanksgiving when the team travels to Plantation for a Holiday Tournament.

Volleyball Jamboree

Action like this can be expected when Lake Mary, Lake Howell, Oviedo and Seminole get together today for a volleyball jamboree at Lake Mary High School starting at 4 p.m.

Each team will play three 15-point games. In game one, Lake Mary will play Seminole, in game two it will be Oviedo squaring off with Lake Howell, game three, Lake Mary and Lake Howell, game four, Oviedo and Seminole, game five, Seminole and Lake Howell and game six, Lake Mary and Oviedo.

Graf rips Capriatti in Open

United Press International

NEW YORK — Steffi Graf, her two biggest rivals already eliminated, personally removed the darling of the crowd from the U.S. Open Monday with a 6-1, 6-2 victory over Jennifer Capriatti.

The much anticipated showdown between the world's best woman player and the 14-year-old prodigy was a runaway disaster as Graf, the two-time defending champion, sped to a 53-minute victory for a berth in the quarterfinals.

Boris Becker, the men's defending champion, endured a much more difficult struggle than did his West German compatriot before edging Australian Darren Cahill 2-6, 6-2, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4.

No. 4 seed Andre Agassi coasted into the quarterfinals, sweeping 11 games in a row in downing No. 13 Jay Berger, 7-5, 6-0, 6-2, in 1 hour, 50 minutes.

Perhaps too much was expected of Capriatti, who begins ninth grade next week in Boca Raton, Fla., and the pressure was compounded by a sellout crowd of 20,000 at the National Tennis center solidly behind her.

From 1-1 in the opening set, Capriatti managed merely 11 points in the next eight games, effectively ending her day.

Capriatti, who has a 35-9 record in her first season on the tour and climbed to No. 14 in the world rankings, said she absorbed a solid lesson from the champion.

"I wasn't doing anything out there," she said. "I wasn't making the shots. I wasn't going to the net. Next time I can't let that happen."

Graf's victory, her 18th in a row at the Open, fittingly comes on the day she broke the record for men and women of holding the No. 1 world ranking for 180 weeks.

"I expected a very tough match," said Graf, 21. "I knew it wasn't going to be easy to play her because of expectations, but it turned out different. She deserves a lot of attention, being 14 and doing so well, but it's not making it easy for her."

Buc's Igwebuike shocked by release

United Press International

TAMPA — A puzzled and hurt Donald Igwebuike, waived Monday despite a glittering five-year record as Tampa Bay's kicker, is still awaiting the reason behind his release.

Igwebuike, who has converted 41 of his career field goal attempts from 34 yards or less, lost the kicking battle against rookie free agent Steve Christie, who went undrafted after becoming William &

Mary's career scoring champion.

Tampa Bay Coach Ray Perkins indicated Christie's youth and superior leg strength on kickoffs were critical factors in the decision to release the popular Igwebuike, a 10th-round pick in 1985 out of Clemson.

"I'm still waiting to hear why, I don't understand," Igwebuike said at his home in Tampa. "I showed up to run yesterday and (wide receiver) Mark Carrier told me, 'Good luck.' Coach Perkins called me in and said he did what is best for the team. I told him, 'Good luck, coach.' I didn't have any reason to expect this ... I did everything they wanted."

After holding out during 1989 training camp, Igwebuike received a considerable raise. He rejoined the team and quickly found Perkins in a critical mood.

"After I signed, I remember the first kickoff in the next exhibition game," Igwebuike recalled. "I came

Miami Dolphins pick up nose tackle

United Press International

MIAMI — The Miami Dolphins traded a conditional late-round draft choice to Atlanta for journeyman nose tackle Shawn Lee Monday while releasing 12 players and placing two others on injured reserve.

Jackie Cline, waived after being paid an injury settlement for his bruised thigh, was the only player released who played with the Dolphins a year ago. Cline was picked up from Miami by Atlanta under Plan B last winter, released by the Falcons last week and signed by the Dolphins Thursday.

He injured his thigh on Friday during the Dolphins' 20-17 loss to Minnesota.

Offensive lineman Stacy Searles, an offensive lineman, was given a settlement for his toe injury. Shula said both Cline and Searles could be re-signed during the season by the Dolphins, who open their regular season Sunday at New England.

Placed on injured reserve, making them ineligible for the rest of the season, were cornerback Donnie Elder, a Plan B acquisition from Tampa, and free agent tackle Dave Popp.

Cut were tight end Greg Baly, guard Tony Brown, defensive end Jeff Faulkner, cornerback African Grant, linebackers Chris Harring and Stacy Harvey, fullback Garrett Limbrick, nose tackle Jeff Roth, wide receiver Thomas Woods and lineman Jim Zlar.

Shula also said linebacker Barry Krauss, who led the Dolphins in tackles last year, underwent arthroscopic surgery on his left knee Monday and will be out three to four weeks. He said Krauss would be placed on injured reserve Tuesday, opening up another roster spot which could be filled by picking up a player from the waiver wire.

Thigpen sets new major league save record

United Press International

CHICAGO — Ex-Seminole Community College baseball player Bobby Thigpen set a major league record for saves in a season and Carlton Fisk smacked a tie-breaking homer in the sixth inning Monday night to boost the Chicago White Sox to a 4-2 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Thigpen, whose 47 saves are more than any major league team except Oakland, started the ninth. He retired Kevin Seitzer on a ground ball and after a single, George Brett grounded into a double play.

He had tied Dave Righetti's mark of 46 saves on Saturday in Anaheim. Thigpen, whose previous single-season best was 34 saves in 1988 and '89, now has appeared in 65 games. Righetti set the mark in 1986 in 74 games, finishing 68.

Fisk's blast, his 15th of the season and a major league record 330th as a catcher, made a winner of Wayne Edwards, 4-3, who pitched 2 2-3 innings in relief.

The home run, off Kevin Appier, 11-5, was the 351st of Fisk's career, to move him into a tie with Dick Allen for 42nd on the all-time list.

Fisk went 3 for 4, with a single, a double and the homer.

Robin Ventura added an RBI single with two out in the eighth for the final run.

Kansas City took a 2-0 lead in the first. Bill Pecota singled and one out later, reached third on Brett's double, the 545th of his career. Danny Tartabull then doubled to right, driving in both Pecota and Brett.

Chicago tied the game 2-2 in the fourth on a pair of sacrifice flies. Dan Pasqua singled to lead off and reached third on Fisk's double. Frank Thomas flew out to center, scoring Pasqua, and Fisk advanced to third on a passed ball before tallying on Ventura's fly ball.

Capriati, who carried Graf 6-4 in the third set before losing to her in the second.

It's nice to win 6-4 in the fifth, sometimes better than 2, 2 and 3," said Becker, winner of seven of his last nine five-set matches. "It's tougher for your head, it's a real battle out there to try and fight to win."

Cahill, ranked 68th in the world and his last opponent a strong serve-and-volleyer, took the first two points on his serve in the decisive seventh game, but Becker swept the next four. A backhand pass by Becker set up break point and Cahill then netted a forehand volley.

Becker served out the 3-hour, 14 minute match, yielding five points in five service games. In the sixth game, Becker held with a pair of aces, but the four he managed all day, followed by two service winners.

On match point, Cahill fell raising to his left hand and was in no position to contest a follow-up backhand volley from Becker to the other side of the court.

"I played a couple of loose volleys at the wrong time, and he served better in the fifth set," Cahill said. "He cut out his loose errors on his service games in the fifth set."

Becker will play ninth-seed Aaron Krichbaum. The American defeated Amos Mansdorf of Israel, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4 in Monday's evening match.

After winning the second and third sets comfortably, Becker fell behind 2-0 in the fourth, including two service breaks.

Perkins' agent, Joe Senkovich, wasn't surprised by his client's release. According to Senkovich, Perkins could not accept someone "different" like Igwebuikwe, whose approach to the game clashed with Tampa Bay's strict-faced coach.

"I know all along it was coming," Senkovich said. "They don't like the guy. Donald is a different animal, but in a positive way. Perkins is into the (defensive end) John Cannady-type guys with the short hair who say, 'Yes, sir,' all the time. I

The cuts hit Miami with only four defensive linemen, making the acquisition of another one necessary.

Lee played two years for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers after a college career at Northern Alabama. He was cut last week and picked up on waivers by Atlanta.

"We felt there was a need to bring in another nose tackle," Coach Dan Staley said. "We worked against Lee some over in Tampa and felt he was a good prospect."

Lee was delighted with the opportunity, because the Dolphins have only rookie Alfred Ogburn at nose tackle until starter Brian Basila comes off a steroid suspension in three weeks. End T.J. Turner also could shift over one spot if it became necessary.

"This is an excellent situation for me," Lee said. "I'm sorry some of the other defensive linemen had to get hurt, but I'm just glad I have a chance to come in here and earn a starting job."

Minnie Minoso will play in 6th decade

CHICAGO - Minnie Minoso's bid to become the first person to play in six decades of major league baseball will depend on the Chicago White Sox's chances in the American League West.

Minoso, a career .300 hitter who broke into the majors in 1946 with Cleveland, had spent the majority of his career in Chicago, but he entered this season with the Sox after Jerry Rector's trade to Oakland.

This is the White Sox's last season at Comiskey Park, a stadium that is only a few years older than the 67-year-old Minoso. The Sox's 1980 operations would be cut by half if the White Sox are sold and relocated to Oakland in the fall.

The White Sox probably won't use Minoso until the postseason race is decided, one way or the other.

"When I don't know, but I'll play," said Minoso after taking his turn in the batting cage Monday.

"I would give Harold Baines and Willie McGee. We got Minnie Minoso and Jerry Rector," said Coach Garry Modjeski, the White Sox's assistant manager.

Minoso joined the White Sox in 1961-67, then again 1969-71, '74, '76 and '80. He led Chicago in runs batted in in 1966, and in runs and RBI in 1964, and had a

Diuretic is linked to side effects

DRUGS DR. GOTT: Can the drug hydrochlorothiazide for high blood pressure cause high blood sugar?

DRUG READER: Yes, it can.

Hydrochlorothiazide is a mild diuretic used to treat edema (fluid accumulation) and hypertension. This prescription drug has been available for many years and is popular among doctors. It is used alone or in combination with a variety of other diuretics and anti-hypertensive compounds. For most patients, it is safe.

However, it does have several recognized side effects that sometimes cause problems. It can cause excess loss of potassium from the body, leading to weakness and heart irregularity. This is usually treated with oral potassium supplements.

It is dangerous to use in patients with kidney failure or liver disease, since it can worsen these conditions.

Also, HCTZ has, in rare instances, caused stomach irritation, inflammation of the pancreas, gas, low blood count, dizziness, restlessness, blurred vision and rash.

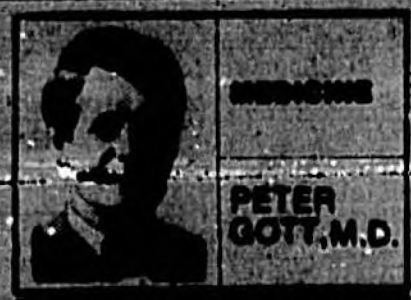

Finally, it can worsen diabetes. Although the manufacturer states that HCTZ can occasionally raise (or lower) blood sugar, in my experience it is much more likely to raise it. This means that diabetics on HCTZ may have to increase their insulin.

More frequently, the drug unmask a diabetic condition that may have been unrecognized. That is, a patient may have very mild, unsuspected diabetes that becomes evident (high blood sugar) when HCTZ is administered. Therefore, the medicine does not "cause" elevated blood sugar, except in patients with diabetes or a diabetic tendency.

Incidentally, this is not a major complication necessitating discontinuance of the drug. The situation can usually be corrected by appropriate adjustments in diabetic medicine or by placing patients on low-carb diets.

To give you more information, I am enclosing you a free copy of my Health Report "Diabetes." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.50 with their name and address to P.O.

By James Jandy

Most of the interesting plays you read about in the newspaper come about because either a defender or the declarer does something quite expert. In the real world, as you might imagine, winning positions occur because someone at the table makes at least one grievous error. So it was in today's deal. After North and South had overbid slightly, the defender underplayed, and declarer South took full advantage. Declarer played low from dummy on the diamond lead, and East won the jack. Not wanting to lead from the Q-J-9-8 club sequence (South might hold K-10-x), East returned the heart five. West won the queen when South played low, and continued on and a diamond. (It would have been better to play a club.) Assuming that West would be short in spades, declarer led dummy's spade ace and played low from his hand. A queen took in the queen was followed by a club to dummy's ace. Dummy's A-K of spades were cashed, declarer throwing a club and a heart.
