Battered women, shattered lives

By SNARI BRODIE

SANFORD — The children laughed and played in the warm winter sunshine, unaware of the celebrity who had joined their mothers on the patio outside the safe house they now called their temporary home.

"You look like you're having too much fun over there," Denise Brown said to one youngster, who was showing off for her on the swing set. "I remember when I used to do that," said Brown.

Brown paid an afternoon visit Saturday to SafeHouse of Seminole, touring the facility, talking with the women who have found refuge and solace there.

Nicole Brown Simpson's sister, Denise, carries her message to women locally

"I'd seen more love and more support in a shelter," Brown told the women, "than is seen in most homes."

Brown has made a concerted effort to educate women on the alternatives to coping with domestic violence, since the death of her sister, Nicole Brown Simpson, who was allegedly a victim of abuse in her relationship with her husband, O.J. Simpson. Simpson recently was found not guilty of Nicole's brutal murder.

In her sister's memory, and to spread the word that "there is no excuse for abuse" Brown founded and is chairwoman of The Nicole Brown Simpson Charitable Foundation. SafeHouse of Seminole is one of five domestic violence shelters Brown visited on her whirlwind tour of Central Florida. Brown's trip was the direct result of a sympathy card sent to her by Joanne Consalvo-Mulvaney, a local woman touched by the plight of battered women, herself once a victim.

"I wrote to Denise in May," Consalvo said. She received an immediate response to her card, by Brown. Consalvo asked her to 15 shopping days to Christmas

Parade transforms downtown

By GARY COATMAN
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Over 15,000 people lined the streets to watch the Sanford Winterfest '95 Christmas Parade Saturday. The crowd, primarily composed of families with young children, munched on cotton candy and candied apples while it patiently waited for Santa Claus.

Sanford resident Craig McGowan, whose 3-year-old daughter Sommer was in the parade, waited with his sons Craig Jr., 8, and Jacob, 4. Participation in parades is nothing new to the McGowan family. Craig Jr. was in last year's parade, and Sommer has been in two Thanksgiving parades.

"The joy of seeing my children in a parade makes me speechless," Craig McGowan said.

"I want to see Santa Claus and my sister," Craig Jr. added. "I like the colors of Christmas, and I really want a go cart from Santa."

Longwood's Ron Wagner and Lisa Houston brought 3-year-old daughter Alexandra to see the parade. They chose to come to the parade because they feel it is quality family entertainment that is easily accessible.

"I like Santa Claus," Alexandra said. "I like making Christmas cookies and putting icing on them. I also like giving and opening presents."

The Sanford and Lake Mary police departments and the Seminole County Sheriff's Office, along with the Sanford Fire Department, signaled the beginning of the parade by driving by the crowd with vehicle sirens blaring. Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith and parade Grand Marshal Dolores Cottingham followed close behind.

School were well represented in the parade. Those groups were: the Seminole High School Air Force ROTC, the Lakeview Middle School band, the Midway Elementary cheerleaders and Dazzlers, the Sanford Middle School dance team and hip club, the Hamilton Elementary School band, the Idyllwild Elementary School chorus, the Lyman High School homecoming king and queen, the Tusawilla Middle School band and

The Sanford Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts, Girl Scouts and Brownies also participated in the parade. The Sanford Gymnastics club, the YMCA youth tribes, the Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole, and the Silver Bullets Tap Dancers were other groups that participated in the parade featuring area children.

The Scottish American Society of Central Florida marched to the sound of bagpipes, and a "Season's Greetings" LYNX bus rolled by playing Christmas music. The Celery City Crusaders showed off their classic cars, which included a 1930 Model A Ford. The Orlando Arabian Horse Association let

Public housing residents unite to make a difference in quality of life

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — Many who live in the public housing units in Sanford are not there by choice and are very interested in improving their lot in life.

Many lack the education and the job experience to get the employment they need to move on. Without the financial experience or resources, they can not get the loans they need to break free.

It is often an endless circle. A group of 11 women is doing what they can to break the cycle.

The SHARCs are attacking the problem and making a difference.

SHARC (Sanford Housing Authority Residents Council) is trying to help turn things around for those who want to make a change. And they're always looking for new ideas.

Recently they helped get the BRO (Brethren Reaching Out) program off the ground and are getting the ball rolling on another program called Save-A-Child.

The BRO program takes first time offenders and tries to help them refrain from a life of crime by helping them build their self esteem and their sense of self-worth.

The Save-A-Child program will try to teach the same skills to youngsters who have not yet run afoul of the law in an effort to keep them on the right path. That program will kick off at the Sanford Housing Authority soon.

"Nothing happens out here (in the public housing units) without SHARC knowing about it," said Tim Hudson, interim executive director of the Sanford

Also up for discussion is whether the police department should be housed in a former bank building.

The City Commission will consider an agreement turning most control of the Orlando Sanford Airport over to the Sanford Airport Authority. It will also look into the latest feasibility study regarding the off-again-on-again plan to have the Sanford Police Department come to Central Florida, and it was decided that the trip could be used as a fund-raising effort for local shelters.

Consalvo, who accompanied Brown and her secretary, Shakti Chen, described herself as a private citizen who has held a lot of anger inside since she was abused by a boyfriend at the age of 17. She feels that battered women need role models, like Denise Brown, to aid them in struggle for independence from an abusive relationship.

In Sanford, residents of SafeHouse, past and present, spoke to Brown of their situations and what finally drove them to seek help at the shelter.

Dawn, who now has a home of her own, said that her husband never hit her, but it was the constant verbal abuse that drove her to attempt suicide twice. Another woman said she was surprised and shocked at her own violent reaction to the abuse she received.

But Brown and all of the women concurred that most women will not seek help until the violence is turned on the children.

Brown suggested ways in which funds could be raised for the shelter, by making a wish list and taking it to local companies. She also suggested working with realtors to utilize foreclosed properties as temporary residences for women and children who are ready to leave the shelter, but not ready to return to an abusive environment.

On her tour, Brown also visited inmates at an Orange County correctional facility, women who were incarcerated because they had fought back. Consalvo described it as very emotional, as Brown listened to the stories of the women who chose to do something about the abuse they were experiencing, and lost their freedom for their efforts. "I learn from the women, what they have gone through," Brown said.

She also spoke to a doctors group and met with law enforcement agencies. The trip culminated with a speaking engagement held Saturday night at St. Stephen Catholic Church in Winter Springs.

Brown said her impression of the programs available to battered women in Central Florida was "very positive."

"Every shelter has been wonderful," Brown said.

Christmas comes to SafeHouse

By VICKI BASHOR
 Herald Senior Staff Writer

Christmas came a little early for the residents at the SafeHouse of Seminole County this week.

A Santa, representing the employees of Amdahl Corporation in Maitland, arrived after school on Friday with boxes of gifts for the youngsters who are in the battered women's shelter with their mothers.

With the rip of brightly colored paper, smiles erupted on the faces of the children who have been living in a communal environment with one another while their mothers try to put their lives back together.

"This is what I always wanted," said one little boy clutching the sand art kit in his arms.

"I got a pretty dolly and a Polly Pocket," a little girl called across the room to her mother.

One little boy wandered around the room offering his services as a gift opener to anyone who needed such assistance.

Jane sat back on the overstuffed couch and surveyed the room where more than a dozen children, six of them hers, were squealing with delight at their presents.

She has been in the shelter for more than a month with her children, ages one to 11. She has a new job and she's trying to make a new life for herself and the kids.

"It's tough for them, but they're making the transition," she said of the children. "We're going to be OK."

Being in the shelter is not difficult for her, she said, even in the holiday season which is so inexorably connected with families.

"Oh, no," she said, "I am coming up from a very abusive relationship. This is going to be a peaceful Christmas."

Jane said it took nearly a dozen years of abuse before she finally made the decision to leave her husband. Her bright eyed one year old daughter is the one who gave her the incentive to make the move, she said.

"I didn't want her to grow up thinking this is the way women are supposed to be treated," she said. "And I didn't want my boys to think that men can do this to women. I couldn't set that kind of example for them."

Though families are usually sent on their way after four to six weeks in the shelter, Jane and her family are being allowed to stay longer so they will have a place to stay over the holidays.

"We are making an exception because she is working hard, but getting started can be hard at this time of year with so many children," Hollan Pugh, executive director of SafeHouse, explained.

The shelter is currently full to capacity. Five women and nearly 25 young people are living there. Each family has a small apartment-like room to which only they have the key. They share a communal kitchen and dining area. Each mother cooks meals for her own family, though sometimes the women will share the duties for more than one family.

"That never lasts very long," said Pugh.

She said the women and children who come into the shelter are in a state of post-traumatic stress. Often they are unfocused and unsure of what they need to do next.

"We try to keep them going in the right direction," she said. "When they first get here, we do a full survey of medical, financial, career goals and their needs. Then we do what we can for them. And every day we go over with them, 'what did you do today?' 'what are you going to do tomorrow?' and just make sure they keep going and are ready to make the transition."

SafeHouse is one of 38 shelters in the state. Much of their funding comes from a state tax on marriage licenses and on divorcees. Some comes from private sources and some comes from grants from places as far reaching as Reebok and Keds to the county.

In addition, groups like Amdahl make occasional donations to ease the financial burden on the shelter.

Dennis Wilson and Lourdes Formel, two representatives of Amdahl, said the employees at the Maitland office who supplied the gifts that were presented by Santa on Friday, were "committed to doing as much as they could" to help the shelter. They said they would bring over school supplies and clothing to help the youngsters in the transition with their mothers.

"These kinds of commitments are what keep us going," Pugh said.

The shelter, which has been open since March, is almost always filled to capacity with families starting over.

"It can be difficult and we need the support of the community," Pugh said.

Ranch hand confesses to murder

MIAMI — Hours after learning her missing 8-year-old son had been molested, murdered and dismembered, Claudine Ryce looked to the sky Saturday and closed her eyes as a slight drizzle began to fall.

"The heavens are crying. It's starting to rain," she said through her own tears, her face wrapped in pain. "And I know this seems like this is appropriate, such a beautiful world, and Jimmy was a flower in it that was just beginning to open. ... But we will go forward and try to make the world a safer place for children."

Earlier Saturday, police told Mrs. Ryce and her husband, Don, that their son Jimmy, missing for nearly three months, had been kidnapped, sexually assaulted, shot and dismembered by a ranch hand who lived 6 miles away.

Juan Carlos Chavez, 38, confessed to the crime and led investigators to the site where the boy's remains were found in several containers, police said. They did not say where the containers were found.

Chavez, who had been questioned by police for three days without an attorney present, was charged with kidnapping, aggravated sexual battery, first-degree murder and firearms charges. Police said he has no previous criminal record.

Jimmy Ryce had been the subject of a nationwide search since he vanished Sept. 11 — two weeks before his 10th birthday — after getting off a school bus a few blocks from his home in southern Dade County.

Cracker Barrel murder suspects

NAPLES — Collier County sheriff's detectives questioned two suspects Saturday in the slayings of three Cracker Barrel restaurant employees last month.

The two suspects, who were picked up and questioned in Las Vegas, were identified as Brandy Bain Jennings, 26, and Charles Jason Graves, 18, both of Collier County.

Neither man has been charged in the Nov. 15 slayings, but they are considered suspects, authorities said. Robbers hit the Cracker Barrel restaurant just off Interstate 75 early that morning, herded three workers into a walk-in freezer, bound their hands with tape and slit their throats.

"We had investigators go out there to interview them," said Collier County Sheriff's Deputy Paity Rodriguez in Naples. "But we won't know what we have until they get back. I don't know how many days they'll be out there."

The two men were being held in Las Vegas after leading police on a high-speed, 26-mile chase Friday afternoon.

Jennings was charged with evading police, driving with a suspended license and possessing a controlled substance. He also was served with a Florida warrant on traffic charges, according to court records.

Graves was charged with possessing a controlled substance.

The way we were: High school 1923

I thought it was about time for me to delve into my mother's scrapbooks again as I had not done this since February. This time, I have in my hands the scrapbook from her own high school days which would have been 1920-23. It is a 5x8 inch hard back book entitled My Golden School Days: Class Memories. Throughout the book, there are pages with such topics as My Classmates; Sports and Athletics; Stunts, Doings and Jokes; Kodak snap-shots; Spreads and Entertainments; and Graduation Day. Almost every page is covered with newspaper clippings, photos, programs and invitations. Most interesting of all, to me, are her own comments about these events. Those of you who knew my mother, Maire Stempfer Stinecpher, remember that her handwriting was atrocious, but I can decipher most of it. She tells of incidents that happened at some events and also what she wrote to others. She mentions a couple of boyfriends, but it is usually a group of both boys and girls who attend the functions together. I'll probably give you some of her comments as we go through her book. Most of the items are from her senior year.

School colors

One of the first things that struck me is a typewritten poem posted on one of the first pages. I don't know whether it is a song or just a poem. It is not the school song, because that is also there and is the same one it has always been, to my knowledge.

Here is one of the stanzas of the poem:

Tho' the colors of old SHS
 Have been of varied hue
 Yet the members of all classes
 To the Black and gold are true.
 We will boast the grand old colors
 Nor honor shall withhold
 Yet we place above all others
 The dear old black and gold.

So the SHS school colors have not always been orange and black! The colors black and gold are mentioned in the 1921 and 1922 Salmagundia, but I couldn't find any colors mentioned in those a few years later. Perhaps the school colors were changed when the high school was moved from Palmetto Ave.

High School, 1923

Mr. G.E. McKay was principal of Sanford High School in 1923-25. According to the Salmagundia, he first became principal in 1921-22; he was preceded by Mr. Ogilvie. Teachers during 1923-25 were Sara Muriel, Ida Gray, R.F. Cooper, Mary Cates Zachary, Mrs. G.E. McKay, Mrs. R.L. Maxwell, Mrs. John Leonardy, and Gerardina Muriel.

Senior Class officers were Ralph Woodruff, president; Olive Vera Gilson, vice president; Byron Stephens, secretary; and Rodman Lehman, treasurer.

Suspect in shooting turns self in to cops

By SHARI BRODIE

SANFORD — A 16-year-old suspect sought in the shooting of his father turned himself in to Seminole County sheriff's deputies Saturday.

Timothy Stephens, 16, has been charged with aggravated battery and domestic violence in the shooting which took place Friday afternoon at 2580 Crawford Ave., Midway.

Stephens was questioned but would not talk to deputies. According to sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, a neighbor told deputies that there was an argument in the home, which is occupied by Timothy and his father, Arthur, 51, regarding his attendance to school. The eyewitness told deputies that Stephens chased the boy into the bedroom, brandishing a machete. When the pair reached the bedroom, a small caliber handgun, possibly a .22 or .25 caliber, was found and allegedly discharged by Timothy.

McDonough said the Seminole County Fire Department responded to a 911 call at the house. Paramedics found Stephens shot once in the head, but Timothy had fled the scene. The gun was not found at the scene, but the machete was discovered in the bedroom.

Stephens was airlifted to Orlando Regional Medical Center, where he remains in stable condition.

The fact is, the high price of new cars is causing more people to hold on to their cars for longer than they used to. Seven to 10 years is not uncommon.

Unless your current car needs several major repairs in a short period of time, it's almost always cheaper to hold on to your current car than to buy a brand new model. The trick is to maintain your car properly so you can keep it running smoothly for as long as possible. If your current car is comfortable and in good running condition, you'll be less likely to be seduced by an expensive new model.

Last week, we explored the benefits of checking the fluids in your car and what fluids need to be checked.

Beyond the fluids, your car also has several filters that need periodic replacement. These include the oil filter (which should be changed with every oil change), the fuel filter, (which should be changed about once a year or so), and the air filter (which should be examined every few months and cleaned or changed as needed). The purpose of these filters is to capture dirt particles and keep them from clogging or contaminating the engine and fuel lines. As these filters age, they accumulate more and more of the particles they're designed to capture. Eventually, if ignored, they clog up the entire system, not allowing oil, fuel, or air to pass through.

If your car has a turbocharged engine, then maintenance is especially crucial. This is because the turbocharger can run very hot, and it has parts that can move at about 100,000 RPM (or about 50 times faster as the engine). Mike Wilks of Altamonte Springs, who owns a 1986 Buick Regal Grand National with a 3.8 liter turbo engine, recommends keeping the air filter clean at all times; even more so that in a non-turbo car. Also, if you don't drive the car frequently, he recommends getting a pre-luber installed. This is a device that actually circulates oil in your engine before you start the car, and it's important because if you don't drive the car frequently, then the oil in the engine has time to drain down into the oil pan. At this point, when you start your car, the engine actually runs for a few seconds with very little oil protection, until the oil pump gets the oil circulating throughout your engine again, and this can cause quite a bit of damage over time. Expect to pay about $450 or so to get a pre-luber installed.

Another tip that Wilks offers is to get problems checked out quickly. For example, if your car is idling rough, don't just ignore it. Find out WHY it's idling rough before what seems to be a small problem turns into a big problem.

Of course, if you own any car long enough, you'll eventually need to spend some money to repair it. But using these maintenance tips can help postpone those major repairs for as long as possible, and they can help keep your car running smoothly. If you ignore the basic maintenance, your car may still run for a while, but it may run rough and sputter at every stoplight. By maintaining it properly, you help keep it fun to drive, and you make it easier for yourself to drive right by those new car showrooms without any envy.

Toys for Tots

Everywhere you look during this Christmas season, you are apt to see signs regarding Toys for Tots drives. Several local business organizations, clubs and organizations are involved in obtaining donations of toys to be distributed to children who might otherwise have little during this gift-giving season.

Toys for Tots is not a new drive. It has been going on for years, and has, with each passing year, proven to be more and more successful. Even occasional drops in the economy have prevented this operation from succeeding.

Sanford Herald photographs shown each year during the handing-out of these toys has proven over and over that this is truly a worthwhile project. That can easily be determined by just looking at the faces of the youngsters who are receiving these generous donations.

Years ago, when Toys for Tots first got underway, the call went out for people to donate used toys in good condition. Now the call is for new toys. The drive was started by the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve 48 years ago. Last year in this Central Florida location, a total of 11,000 children received toys.

Among organizations including the Marines who deserve notice for this Toys for Tots drive this year are Winn Dixie stores, Target, Perkins, Toys R Us, Krystal, Shell stations, Burger King, Service Merchandise stores, and all fire stations. Each of these points is a collection center for the gift donations. People are asked to bring them unwrapped.

Another event in connection with this year's drive will be in conjunction with the Holiday Nights '95 event to be held Dec. 8, 9, and 10, at the L&L Acres, at the southwest corner of Lake Mary Boulevard and Interstate-4 in Heathrow. One dollar from each admission will be deducted when people bring an unwrapped toy for this drive.

While Toys for Tots is only one of many drives to help the needy this holiday season, (there are many more of excellent reputation), we urge participation in any way possible in this 1995 drive.

When the toys are distributed to the youngsters this year, it will do us each good to know that we helped.

Pleasant surprise

What a pleasant surprise awaited me in your Nov. 26 paper! The article "Who Said Kids Are Horrid Brats?" (Vicki DeBormier, Writer's Block) was a real thrill for my class and myself to read! I appreciate you conveying that there are good things happening in education and that there are lots of great, motivated kids out there!

We have read your article over and over and a copy hangs proudly in our classroom. (Kaleigh requested her very own copy of the article!)

Thank you so much for the kind words.

Home atmosphere

At a meeting in Tallahassee of the Senate Criminal Justice Committee, the subject was raised that Representative James Bush, D-Miami, is developing a bill to create facilities in state prisons to accommodate the family environment. This is another liberal boondoggle meant to coddle criminals at the expense of the taxpayer.

Representative Locke Burt, R-Ormond Beach, told representatives of a group called Families With Loved Ones In Prison, that lawmakers will consider supporting such a bill in the House to help families with relatives in prison by building such facilities.

Taxpayers should not be expected to re-establish a "home environment" for criminals who obviously did not care about their home life before their incarceration. While we may sympathize with the plight of families the criminals left behind, society owes nothing to the families of these offenders. Every taxpayer should write his or her state representatives and let them know that we will not continue to spend dollars on criminals which should be spent on education and other programs which support the law-abiding citizens.

The real meaning of Christmas

Christmas is a time of joy and acknowledging the greatest gift mankind has ever received, the birth of Christ. It is the story of God and how he shaped the lives of Mary, Joseph and Jesus. These three were especially selected for service to all of humanity.

Joseph's reaction to being called into service was fraught with consternation for him. When he understood his mission he became the obedient servant. Mary's reaction can be found in Luke 1:46 "My soul magnifies the Lord, and my spirit rejoices in God my Savior."

We travel back in time and visualize Mary and Joseph traveling to Bethlehem. They arrive, without reservations and find the only available accommodations, a stable. Thus, the Christ child was born amid the animals. Every aspect of the Christmas story emphasizes a dearth of natural possessions. It de-emphasizes pomp and splendor relative to the birth of Jesus.

Christmas 20th Century style is as anything can be. The focus of Christmas has become showering those we know and love with material items, that will perish over time. The underlying message of Christmas is that children need two parents. The real joy of Christmas for children is having two parents, who love each other and them. Parents might consider that spending more time with their children was a far better non-perishable, memory-building time

SWEETING

Love is kind; Love is not envious or boastful or arrogant or rude."

This Christmas should be a time of soul-searching, particularly for those in the service of rearing children. Children are gifts from god, that have been entrusted to parents. Parents' primary responsibilities to their children are: to love; to nurture and to train them. These are the priceless gifts that take hour and time and cannot be measured. There is not substitute for spending time with children loving and training them how to navigate life's troubled seas.

Christmas is a time of service, thus parents and caretakers are called to dedicate themselves to making a real difference in the lives of their children. We are appalled as the media bring into our consciousness the multiple violent crimes children in this society are committing daily.

Often the young perpetrators show no visible signs of remorse or contritence. Yet their acts of violence are symptomatic of a lack of love for themselves and others.

Individually each of us should determine what the Christmas story really means to us. How are you preparing for Christmas. Do you think of Christmas as time of committing yourself to service that will last throughout the year? Do you consider sharing your time and talent rather than giving material possessions?

than accumulating debts that may dictate they work added hours to pay off.

Prior to marriage and during marriage couples should avail themselves of counseling services. Marriage should not be taken lightly but should be prepared for. We wouldn't dream of driving a car without first taking lessons. However often individuals enter into marriage without any preparation.

Love, respect, compatibility and willingness to make marriage succeed should be salient considerations for couples. Perhaps the reason so many marriages fail is because lust masks itself as love. Love and lust are diametrically opposed. Lustful individuals are selfish and prone to use others. Love is best defined by I Corinthians 13:4 accordingly: "Love is patient;

The two worlds of Sanford

Last week I had the opportunity to travel to two very different worlds.

In one world, the abundance of the Christmas season was evident in the form of brightly decorated trees, crackling fires in the recently renovated fireplaces, golden packages tied up with sparkling ribbons and an abundance of cookies, cakes and spicy apple cider.

Neighbors greeted each other cordially with kind words and cheery waves. Conversation drifted easily from topics of the latest fashions to the stock market to the newest car accessories.

Young ones in Gap Kids' finest played hand held video games on the porches, while listening to their favorite CDs. Their parents toasted the season with imported wine.

In the other world, children ran barefoot through sandy yards, skipping nonchalantly over broken beer bottles and abandoned crack pipes. A crime scene tape provided hours of entertainment for the younger children.

The smell of barbecuing chicken brought the curious from blocks away. For some the prospective mid-afternoon meal would be their first of the day. For some, it would be the first meal in weeks that hadn't come from a hermetically-sealed bag.

Prostitutes and drug dealers hawking their wares approached cars in the middle of the street and waved off with an extended middle finger those who tried to hurry them along.

Those sitting on their front stoops waved cheerfully to me and asked if I needed help as I looked at blank walls for an apartment number which was nowhere to be found.

People who live in one world rarely see those who live in the other and when they do, they more often than not try to remove themselves from one another, each disgusted by the other.

Those two worlds are not hundreds of miles apart. They are not hundreds of miles away.

They are less than 15 blocks from one another in Sanford.

The downtown historic residential district, dressed in all her finery of the season, was beautiful. A picture post card rendition of what a sleepy, Southern town should be.

But so far removed from what it is.

Cowan Moughton Terrace wore the soiled, tattered dress that is the best she has. There is no fancy make up. There are no glittery ribbons and bows.

But, despite obvious problems, there is an undercurrent of hope.

"We can make a difference," one of the organizers of a program to help turn the lives of first-time offenders around said to me. "We will make a difference."

Meanwhile, in a fancy home less than a mile away, the owner sits on his porch and looks around.

"Well, it's done," he says of the restoration process. "There's nothing left to do."

Nothing, indeed. Let me introduce you to some of your neighbors. I'm sure they can find plenty for you to do.

Step on it, or we'll be late

'Twas about three weeks before Christmas and what a mess. I had enough scheduled on my calendar for several days. Rush, rush rush. I will never make it, I mused that Monday morning when the well-planned, busy day started.

My husband had the tree all set up and ready for me to decorate and had dragged down numbers of cluttered boxes for me to sort through. Every year, when I pack the Christmas things away, I write myself nasty little notes on the computer regarding what I did wrong and my needs for next year.

When I pulled up the Christmas file, the first sentence read, "Get rid of some of those tacky decorations." This happens every year, but it's always too late. Shopping was not on my calendar that day. So up the tacky old decorations went.

As I was perched high upon the rickety ladder trying to center the once-lovely angel, now in her golden years, the phone rang and I hurriedly and clumsily scurried down to listen to some pitch about a handout for a youth organization. I told the caller I was glad he called, that my family could certainly use some of his organization's charitable endeavors. "We have 14 grandchildren," I informed the caller, "and they are always in jail or some kind of trouble. We are at our wits' ends." He apologized and hung up.

Bah humbug! Just as I darted back into the living room, the aging ceramic angel toppled from her station on the treetop and broke. I shed a few tears as I wiped the blood from my finger. I couldn't be sure whose blood it really was — mine or the angel's — until I discovered a tiny cut.

Then as I stepped on a wad of tissue, I heard a crunching noise coming from under my foot. I glanced down to discover I had just mutilated the white dove that was now turning brown with old age and bald from losing his feathers. What next?

The clock was ticking too fast as I looked at the nearly barren tree and stacks of Christmas cards covering the dining room table. Then, there stood a silver casserole dish that had to be polished to take a dish to share at a Christmas party that night.

This party had been on my calendar for several weeks. Usually, when we have anything planned, I record it in my little red book, along with my business appointments. So, I had carefully made a notation on Monday, Dec. 4, reading, "Norris party, 7 p.m. Take covered dish." This meant we would leave home at about 6:30 so we would be early. We always arrive early and if I recall correctly, last year we were the first to arrive at this party at the Norris home.

I finished the sad-looking tree after laboriously untangling several strings of twinkling lights and carefully placing old, but meaningful ornaments on the slightly bent branches. Then, I stepped back to carefully scrutinize and assess my work. "Not too bad. It's me," I thought.

After addressing a few cards and polishing the silver casserole to a shining luster, I tackled the meatballs to fill the dish and was on schedule.

Then I rushed to curl my hair, press my outfit, take a leisurely bath and get dressed. I was running a few minutes later than I hoped and screamed to my husband to: "Step on it, Slow Poke." By nearly breaking our necks, we were ready to leave home by 6:30.

We pulled up in front of the idyllic home of Jean and Bill Norris, and sure enough, we were the first guests to arrive. The attractive exterior of the home was so inviting with hundreds of twinkling lights and lighted sculptures of angels and reindeer welcoming visitors. We were looking forward to the same lovely party Jean and Bill throw every year.

After ringing the doorbell, we waited with anticipation until the gracious hostess showed up at the door with a broad smile on her face inviting us in.

But something seemed to be obviously awry. Were we too early? Why, we had not even given Jean the opportunity to apply her makeup and get changed from the comfortable house dress she was wearing.

Then, we spotted Bill cleaning silver in his work clothes. Jean invited us to put the dish on the beautifully appointed table and sit down. We observed several boxes of decorations scattered around. Frankly, it didn't appear the Norrises were ready for guests.

Finally, I asked, "Are we too early?" Jean answered, "The party's tomorrow night."

What a lesson in humility! We all had a good laugh, as well as all the guests who heard this Christmas story the next night at the wonderful gathering.

Free veggies

SANFORD — Seminole Volunteer Enterprises, Inc., known as the food commodity office will be handing out free vegetables beginning at 10 a.m. Monday morning.

According to program Director Jean Metts, the vegetables are left over from the Farm/Share vegetable program, and have been held because they are considered cosmetically impaired. "They are still good however," Metts said, "it's just that they may have a slight blemish."

Metts said the vegetables include cucumbers, squash, green beans, grapefruit, Starburst, and zucchini.

The vegetables will be given, free of charge on a first-come first-served basis, but Metts said proof of low income must be provided. This might consist of income proof, or Medicaid or food stamp cards.

The Farm/Share giveaway will be conducted at the Food Commodities office, at the north-west corner of U.S. Highway 17-92 and Airport Blvd., in the old Zayres Plaza.

utilize the old First Federal Bank Building as a new headquarters.

The Airport Authority met this past week, and unanimously approved the most recent in what has become a series of re-wordings in a lease agreement between the city and the authority. Monday night, the matter is to be discussed first during the work session beginning at 4 p.m., and is later scheduled for possible approval during the regular commission meeting.

The need to give more power to the Sanford Airport Authority has been considered necessary for the airport to become involved in long-term leases in order to attract new and larger industry to the facility.

There have been objections to various parts of the plans, and a number of meetings have been held between officials involved. Monday night, the Lease Agreement and Bond Issuance resolutions are ready for presentation.

Regarding the bank building for use as a possible police facility, there have also been differing opinions. Some say the building would be most acceptable. Others have said the cost of refurbishing it for use by police would be too high.

This matter is also scheduled for discussion during the commission work session, but is not, at this time, listed for any major decision during the regular meeting.

A third item which has been discussed numerous times, appears ready for possible commission approval. That is a resolution approving a community redevelopment plan for the Lake Monroe waterfront and Downtown Sanford Community Redevelopment area.

The resolution is the result of extensive study and work by the city staff as well as the Lake Monroe Waterfront Master Plan Steering Committee. Another organization which has been involved in the preparation of these plans is Sanford Main Street.

In order to enact the resolution and eventually secure outside funding, it was necessary to determine, through a "Finding of Necessity," what is considered to be a "Blighted Area." The resolution identifies that area as extending 4.3 miles from Interstate-4, easterly to Mellonville Avenue. The southern boundary of the study area includes the CSX main railroad line, also known as Rand Yard, as well as First, Second and Third Streets.

Statistics revealed in the study indicate that the city's per capita income is only two-thirds the per capita income of surrounding Seminole County. The 1990 census shows 16.3 percent of the citizens of Sanford are below the poverty level, while the county percentage is 7.2.

Taken into consideration as problems and needs of the referendum, items listed include faulty surface water drainage systems, deteriorating bulkhead, deteriorating streets/irregular brick streets/broken sidewalks, faulty lot layout and diversity of ownership, structures needing rehabilitation, inadequate parking facilities, and other items including the environmental blight caused by mounds along the lakefront.

The document contains a lengthy listing of projected improvements to be made, as well as an extensive lakefront downtown area development concept.

The item is scheduled for consideration as the first listed agenda matter to come before Monday night's Sanford City Commission meeting beginning at 7 p.m., at Sanford City Hall.

Housing Authority. "They are the driving force behind all the good things that are happening out here."

Bettye Chaney, president of SHARC said that is the goal of SHARC.

"We want to take an active role in making things better for people out here," she said. "We have to take an active role if we want those good things to happen."

Chaney said she has a "nice and a good staff" of 10 women who are working for the benefit of the community. They attend seminars and are constantly looking for ideas of programs that will benefit the residents of the Sanford public housing.

"We attend conferences, but then we come back and share what we learn with other people who want to learn how to improve themselves," SHARC secretary Josephine Griffin said.

Chaney said the biggest challenge facing the group is getting people involved in wanting to improve the conditions in their community.

"A lot of times they want to make a difference, but they are afraid for whatever reason," she said. "It's our job to get them involved."

Among the programs that are in the planning stages is one to get a day care center into operation. The center would be operated by public housing residents who have been trained in child care procedures.

SHARC currently has a painting and a lawn care contract with the city of Sanford. Public housing residents, trained through SHARC, are responsible for the work in that contract.

"We're getting there," Chaney said. "We're working hard and we're getting there, but we have a long way to go."

Some lucky children and their parents had breakfast with Santa Saturday, at St. Peter's Preschool in Lake Mary. Breakfast included pancakes, eggs, sausage, bacon, fresh fruit, muffins and a beverage. Children enjoyed a hayride and playing in real snow as their parents took advantage of a silent auction and bake sale. SHS students show financial acumen in Ford Credit contest

By VICKI DeSOMMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - Seminole High School students showed off their financial acumen recently through an essay and poster contest sponsored by Ford Credit Corporation.

Thursday morning representatives of Ford Credit were on hand at Seminole High to congratulate the winners in the contests.

Eddie Vargas took the award for "Best of Contest" for his essay on the theme of "Why is good credit so important for young adults?"

The three semi-finalists were Dianne Bachard, for a poster; Hassan Habibi, for an essay; and Ryan Loker, for an essay.

The second annual contest was open to 11th and 12th grade students in the district, though only Seminole High School students submitted.

Twenty-nine students entered the contest.

"There are some really great kids there at that school," Debbie Macon, a customer service representative for Ford Credit, who was one of the organizers of the contest.

She said the local Ford Credit office in Maitland has been very pleased with the quality of work they have seen from the Seminole High School students.

The judging panel for this year's contest consisted of finance managers from Seminole Ford in Sanford and Longwood Lincoln Mercury in Longwood.

"The contest is designed to promote awareness in high school students about the importance of building strong credit and using credit wisely," Macon said. "These students obviously have a good grasp on that concept."

Mary Cinder, the branch manager of the Ford Credit office said she was pleased with the response to the contest from the Seminole High students.

"The creativity of the essays and posters and the more-than-expected number of submissions leaves no doubt that our 1995 contest was an unqualified success," she said. "Our goal to create credit awareness among young adults was certainly achieved."

Clinton vows to preserve health care

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Pushing his latest balanced-budget plan as the right choice, President Clinton today promised to veto GOP-sponsored Medicaid cuts that he says would cost millions of children access to needed health care.

"That is unacceptable in a country that cares about its children," he said in his weekly radio address. "And I will not permit it to happen."

Clinton said the Republican budget, which proposes to cut $163 billion from Medicaid over seven years, would repeal the federal guarantee of health care for 8 million people, including poor kids, people with disabilities, pregnant women, older Americans, veterans and people with AIDS.

On Wednesday, he vetoed Congress' seven-year plan for balancing the budget "through wrongheaded cuts and misplaced priorities" on grounds that it squeezed too much money from the Medicare and Medicaid programs for older Americans and the poor, respectively.

Clinton then offered a seven-year budget formula of his own, which he says balances the budget in the time frame the GOP insists on, but with less pain.

Lake Mary boys punish Arrow Force IV

SANFORD — Six Lake Mary players scored in double figures Friday in a 62-40 win over Seminole Friday in a Seminole Athletic Conference boys' basketball game at Bill Fleming Memorial gymnasium.

Jason Junker led the Rams with 18 points, while Matt Townsley and Chip Richardson each added 13.

"We talked to Jason Junker about not putting up so many three point shots," said Lake Mary coach Willie Richardson. "He spread the ball around pretty well, and the whole team played well."

Arrow Force IV took a 12-8 lead on a three point field goal by Mequal Bush, and Seminole later extended the margin to 16-11. Wes Jackson tied the game for Lake Mary on a dunk with :57 left in the quarter, and the Rams had an 18-16 lead at the end of the period.

"I was pleased with the first six minutes of the game, but we didn't play very well after that," said Seminole coach Bob Traina. "Lake Mary has a very good team, and we are inexperienced."

Randy Abrams gave Lake Mary a 26-16 lead with 5:21 before halftime, but Seminole cut the margin to 26-20 with 4:03 remaining. The Rams then pulled away again, and held a 40-21 advantage at intermission. Lake Mary continued to dominate in the second half and outscored Arrow Force IV 42-19.

SANFORD — It was exciting, if not pretty.

Former Seminole Community College head coach Bill Payne brought his St. Petersburg Junior College Trojans to town Friday night and took a hard-fought 90-76 victory over the Raiders back to the west coast of Florida.

"It's been a long season," said Payne, who guided St. Pete to a second place finish in the state tournament last year. "We have a real young team and they make a lot of mistakes. They work real hard in practice and the games, but improvement is definitely coming along slowly."

Both teams took turns leading in the first half, with the Trojans holding a control most of the second half, but every time you looked at the clock, the scrappy SCC bunch was only behind by 4-6 points.

"We played hard and hung in there," said SCC head coach Bernard Merthie. "But we just had way too many fouls."
The Raiders made six more field goals than the Trojans (28-22), but SFJC made 36-57 from the charity stripe, while SCC hit just 16 of 27.

Charles Fitzpatrick led the Trojans (3-7) with 24 points, including 12 of 19 from the free throw line, while Eileen Corbett added 18 points and Sergei Korobov chipped in with 14.
The Raiders got a huge game from 6-foot-9, 320 pound freshman center Edward Butler, who came off the bench to score 19 points and pull down 14 rebounds.
"It's really the first time all season he's got a chance to play," said Merthie. "We really need him to be able to play like that for us to be successful."
Arnette Young (17 points, 11 rebounds) and John Mobley (17 points) also had good nights for SCC.
The Raiders (2-12) will now take off for the holidays before returning to the court on Saturday, January 6th to host nationally ranked Tallahassee Community College at the Health and Physical Education Center starting at 7:30 p.m.

passing and accurate shooting to pull away from Lake Howell, had four players in double figures.
Junior guard Darren Rogers, who led the Lions with 13 points, scored eight points in the third quarter as the hosts outscored the Silver Hawks 23-9 to lead 51-28 entering the final eight minute stanza.
Forward Christian Sanders, who along with Aaron Thomas and Ben Knapp scored 10 points each, pulled down a team-high eight rebounds.
"We're playing like the team that won state three years ago," said Oviedo head coach Ed Bolton. "We have a lot of guys that can score."
Lake Howell (5-3), which failed to have a player score in double figures, got nine points from forward Cliff Rogers.
"This was an ugly loss," said Silver Hawks head coach Steve Kohn. "We have no inside game."
Lake Howell's outside game was also lost momentarily when freshman scoring machine Reggie Kohn left the game with an eye injury in the third quarter. He did return in the fourth quarter, but finished with just four points.
"That was a key for us," Bolton said. "We came on strong after that."
The junior varsity contest also went to the Lions by the score of 60-52.
Both Oviedo and Lake Howell will play Seminole in their next games, with the Lions hosting Arrow Force IV on Wednesday and Lake Howell traveling to Sanford to play the Tribe at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium next Friday.

WHAT'S UP IN THE NFL

Well now we've made it to Week Fifteen. The regular season is coming to a close, and the playoff picture is starting to take shape. Arizona, Jacksonville and the Jets are the only teams that have been mathematically eliminated to this point. This weekend will remove another five or six teams from contention, which will allow fans to better comprehend the playoff scenarios.

I have the sad duty of reporting that the Patriots, as my LOCK OF THE WEEK not only failed to cover, they failed to win.

I've learned my lesson, even in the pro's teams quit. It will take me a couple of weeks to forgive the Pat's for dropping my LOCK record to 12-4. I know, "Forgive and forget," right? Well it's not that easy when you're trying to make a living.

Focusing on Florida's teams, let's take a look at the Dolphins. I would like to know where the turnout stases calling for Shula's head have gone. Miami pulls out a lucky win against the Falcons, and suddenly everything is peachy.

As I said last week, I can't stand ignorant fans. I think the Dolphins will have a tough time making the playoffs, but if they do it will be because of Marino's arm and Shula's coaching. The fans in Miami should be ashamed of the manner in which they respond to adversity. To be honest, I don't think they deserve the privilege of postseason play.

As the lights are turned on Sunday for the Bucs' night game against the Packers, I can't help but think back to better days. At one point this season we were 8-2, lofty dreams had us in the playoffs, and the state of Florida had new-found respect for the boys in orange.

Six weeks later we're 6-7, have no offense, and the rest of the league is convinced we're now just playing for pride.

Sunday night presents an opportunity to change all that. Whether we make the playoffs or not, beating the Packers on national television will shock the entire country, including the Tampa area.

Big Al has been licking his chops in anticipation of a blowout, and will be disappointed with the outcome. Unlike most Buc fans, I haven't stopped believing in the squad's ability to make the playoffs. I hope that Sunday's victory over the Packers goes a long way in convincing others.

Let's take a look at Sunday's schedule and find some winners.

DALLAS (-8) AT PHILADELPHIA
This line is absolutely ridiculous. The Cowboys are coming off the loss to the Redskins, while the Eagles are thinking playoffs.

I was never sure if there really was a Santa, now I am. Take the points and run like a fleeing felon. This is easy money. Cowboys 21, Eagles 17.

BUFFALO (-8) AT ST. LOUIS
The Bills will benefit from the return of Andre Reed, but the Rams have been tough at home. The Bills are a better team, and even though this is a questionable bet to make, I will. Bills 27, Rams 20.

ATLANTA (-8) VS. NEW ORLEANS
I a game that I know will be decided by a field goal or less, you have to take the points. This is one of my favorite selections of the week. Falcons 27, Saints 24.

NEW ENGLAND (-8) VS. NEW YORK JETS
Talk about two teams that have disappointed and sicken fans. Allowing this mediocrity to exist in a professional sport should be a crime. Neither of these teams will make the playoffs, the Jets, without reactivating Joe Namath, may never again. Patriots 26, Jets 20.

CHICAGO (-8) AT CINCINNATI
The Bengals have almost given up on their Cinderella season, and the Bears are in desperate need of a win.

If Chicago wins this game they will have to score 32 points. For the first time this season, I'm suggesting betting on the total. Get a cash advance on your credit card, bet the "Over," and watch Sanford native Jeff Blake throw four touchdowns by halftime.

Now Lou, isn't this easier than a real job. Bears 25, Bears 21.

DENVER (-4) AT HOUSTON
This is one of the more difficult games of the week. The Lions need the game, but the Oilers have a great defense.

If Houston tries to blitz Mitchell, Barry Sanders will carry and receive the ball for 300 yards. Lions 27, Oilers 17.

SAN FRANCISCO (-18) AT CAROLINA
I love this matchup of David and Goliath.

The Niners will have it in cruise control as they try to stay healthy for their playoff run.

This presents a wonderful betting opportunity. The Panthers will be playing with reckless abandon, and barring a blowout, could steal a win. They did last time. Niners 28, Panthers 17.

INDIANAPOLIS (-4) AT JACKSONVILLE
The Colts, with their playoff berth in jeopardy, will be in no mood to fool around with the Jaguars. If time permitted, they could win this game by a hundred points. Colts 21, Jaguars 8.

OAKLAND (-1) AT PITTSBURGH
In the past few weeks the Raiders have abandoned their most potent weapon, cheating. In doing this they have hurt their record, as well as their image.

My California sources have told me that the gang no longer wear their apparel in drive-bys.

The Steelers won't have any problem with this "new" team. Steelers 24, Raiders 17.

DENVER (-7) VS. SEATTLE
The Seahawks are desperate and have never been beaten by Shanahan's Broncos.

This game will be the end for one team and the beginning for the other. I said Elway would squeak into the playoffs earlier this season.

In the words of a famous country singer, "That's my story, and I'm sticking to it."

Broncos 27, Seahawks 21.

NEW YORK GIANTS (-8) VS. WASHINGTON
I don't understand how the Redskins can be underdogs after beating the Cowboys last week.

The Giants are terrible, but there must be a reason for this line. Don't bet this game. Redskins 17, Giants 19.

GREEN BAY (-7) AT TAMPA BAY

This rematch of the Battle of the Bays will be on national television, and rightfully so. Tampa has an outside shot at the playoffs, and with a win here, controls its own destiny.

Wyche plans to get Big Al too drunk to play, and you have to factor that into the outcome of the game. In the upset special of the year, the Bucs steal the win. Bucs 28, Packers 21.

MIAMI (-8) VS. KANSAS CITY
The blitzing has temporarily ended in Miami, just in time to take on the team with the best record in the AFC.

Bryan Cox is considering a post-football career in public speaking.

In this Monday Night matchup, Shula will take one more step in shutting up the traitors in the Miami area. Dolphins 24, Chiefs 21.

Every week, I issue what I consider to be the best pick against the spread on the schedule. This is the game that after research and contemplation, I feel most confident about recommending as my LOCK OF THE WEEK. At 13-4, I'm in need of a sure thing, and I got it!

PHILADELPHIA (-8) OVER DALLAS, is a classic example of what Milton Friedman claims doesn't exist, a free lunch.

Stock brokers would ask for monetary compensation for this profitable advice. I don't, instead I consider it a public service for the benefit of my fellow citizens.

Good luck this week, and don't worry about raking those leaves Sunday. I here somewhere they make good mulch.

Waterfowl season set to reopen

Dove, woodcock and waterfowl hunters can begin taking aim again soon in Florida. Seasons for those birds will open again in December.

The third and final phase of dove season (mourning and white-winged dove) runs December 9 to January 7 statewide. Shooting hours are from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset. The bag limit is 12 doves daily and 24 in possession (including no more than four white-winged doves daily and eight in possession).

Woodcock season opens statewide on December 9 and closes January 23. Shooting hours are one-half hour before sunrise to sunset. The bag limit is three per day, six in possession.

The second phase of duck, coot and merganser season opens on December 7 statewide and closes January 30. That's an increase of 10 days over the second phase of waterfowl season last year. Shooting hours are one-half hour before sunrise to sunset.

The daily bag limit of ducks is five and shall consist of no more than one female mallard, one black duck, one mottled (Florida) duck, one fulvous whistling duck, one pintail, one canvasback, two redheads and two wood ducks. Taking or attempting to take brant, geese or harlequin ducks is prohibited.

The bag limit for coots is 15 daily, 20 in possession.

The bag limit for mergansers is five daily, 10 in possession (including one hooded merganser daily, two in possession).

Hunters are reminded that the limited waterfowl season will continue in Leon County and on Lake Miccosukee in Leon and Jefferson counties. Waterfowl hunting in these areas is permitted only on Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays during the open season, and on December 7, 25 and 26 and January 1, 2, 15 and 19.

However, Lake Talquin in Leon and Ocala counties and the Ochlocknee River are open to hunting every day during the regular waterfowl season.

FISHING FORECAST
Bass action is improving daily as water levels drop and temperatures cool. Fish areas of running water in the river, as bass wait in these areas to ambush baitfish. Local lakes will also have good fishing.

Flounder are the big news at Sebastian Inlet. Huge flatfish are making their annual appearance and will readily strike finger mullet bounced slowly across the rocky bottoms. Redfish, jack crevalle and ladyfish are also mixed in with catches.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports fair offshore action when seas permit boats to venture out. King mackerel and cobia are roaming 8-A reef and wahoo and dolphin can be found further offshore. Inside the Port, sheepshead and flounder are providing steady action. Trout and redfish are rated as fair on the flats of the Banana and Indian rivers.

Sheepshead are the big news at Ponce Inlet. Fish in the 4-8 pound range are biting live shrimp and fiddler crabs around the rocks. The tip of the north jetties is the real hot spot. Expect drum, redfish, small bluefish and jack crevalle to be caught along with the sheepshead. Trout and redfish are rated as good in Miccosukee Lagoons.

Adamses wed 70 years; club gives $$ to charity

Bessie and Jacob Adams have reached a milestone that few ever attain - their 70th wedding anniversary. And according to Bessie, "We are doing fine."

They were married Nov. 25, 1925 in the Methodist parsonage at Aky, W. Va. In 1947, they moved from DeLand to Sanford where they opened Adams' Decorative Service, an upholstery business that they successfully operated for 31 years until 1978.

What makes a 70-year marriage tick?

Bessie credits their long and happy life to living a Christian life. "Loving for the Lord Jesus is the biggest thing on earth," she said. "And having a beautiful family."

SENIOR EDITOR

DORIS DIETRICH

Bessie and Jacob Adams

Their meeting back in 1924 reads like a romantic fairy tale. After Bessie corresponded with the dashing young Jacob (whom she had never met) for about a year, Bessie's father decided to travel to Reading, Pa. to check out the persistent suitor. Jacob passed the test and was invited to come to the West Virginia Hills to visit the family.

All dressed up in his Sunday best with visions of being transported to Bessie's home in a fancy carriage, Jacob got the surprise of his life when two of Bessie's five brothers arrived with a mule for Jacob to ride. Undaunted, he and the brothers rode the 18 miles over the Jacksonburg Mountains to arrive somewhat frazzled and disheveled when they reached the family farm for Jacob to finally meet the girl of his dreams.

It was love at first sight and the young couple were married six months later. The marriage

Blanche Kissane honored at party on 100th birthday

Blanche Reah Baker was born on Dec. 4, 1895 in Carleton, Mich. to Perry and Musetta Baker, the oldest of three children. During her younger years, she worked in a drug store where the proprietor, noting her superior intellect, offered to finance her education in pharmacy, but she was determined to teach.

At the age of sixteen, Blanche began teaching in a rural Michigan area on a life certificate from what was then called the Michigan Normal. She taught grades one through eight in a one room school house. After marriage and children, Blanche Kissane owned and operated a dress shop, Musettals, which was named after her mother. While she was the proprietor of that shop, she became the president of the Business Women's Professional Club.

Later, she completed a studies course and received a masters degree from the University of Michigan and was the president of the Honorary Education Sorority, Alpha Delta Kappa. After 30 years of teaching in the Michigan school system, she retired in 1962 to the City of Longwood where area residents were to reap the benefits of her life of giving.

Shortly after her arrival in the south, Blanche joined the Longwood Civic League Woman's Club and became the parliamentarian for that organization and also was the librarian for the club, the only library in the City of Longwood at the time. In addition to her contributions to the Women's Club, Blanche also visited Pine Crest and Longwood Elementary Schools to read and tell stories to the children in the younger grades. She always loved books and wanted to share her love and knowledge with children of all ages. During her retirement she also wrote and published a book for young adults and also two short stories.

Another of Blanche's loves was her volunteer efforts at the hospital in Sanford where she was a "Pink Lady" for 17 years. She received numerous awards for her work at the hospital including the most devoted for number of hours served and another award presented by Radio WTRR.

Present for the grand lady's 100th birthday were: family members, daughter and her husband, Kathleen and Arthur Lee of Longwood; grandson and his wife, Woody and Diane Lee of Longwood. In addition to her contributions to

A big success Lake Mary Holidays draws crowds

Lake Mary's first annual Olde Lake Mary Holidays was a wonderful success. The festival was planned in conjunction with the city's tree lighting. This year, the city's tree was decorated with wooden ornaments. The ornaments were designed and crafted by Girl Scout Troop Co-Leader Debbie Swearingen. The ornaments were then painted by girls in the various troops.

The festival was also planned as a community service project. The festival took in donations of food and toys for Safehouse of Seminole County. The Lake Mary Woman's Club offered free cookies and drinks to any person donating a non-perishable food item. Girl Scout Troops 148, 1361 and 1592 offered free holiday crafts to any person donating a new toy. In all, 5 dozen new toys and 1000 pounds of food were collected. Troop 148 also offered free face painting and the FOX 35 Kids Club offered free holiday cards for children to color.

There was a lot of great entertainment beginning with the Lake Mary High School Christmas Band. They were followed by the Stardust Singers, 15 Girl Scout Troops from the Lake Mary area. Country Joe Rosier, storyteller extraordinaire, told holiday stories. Melissa Mills sang. And the Lake Mary High Drama Club performed a ten minute excerpt from their play "The Elves and the Shoemaker".

There was one other form of entertainment. Three tons of snow to play in. The snow was made possible by the City of Lake Mary, the FOX 35 Kids Club and Stardust Girl Scout Troops 1592, 512, 629, 1512, 536, 148, 1431, 1448 and 984.

In 1930 the devout couple started lecture tours of the background churches in Pennsylvania and West Virginia where they showed colored slides depicting the life and crucifixion of Jesus Christ. The slides and materials came from the Passion Play held every decade since 1834 at Oberammergau in Bavaria, Germany.

The couple moved to DeLand in 1945 and then on to Sanford in 1947 to open their business. Bessie, 88, and Jacob, 95, have been very active in the community. They live independently and attend the Church of God of Prophecy. They are very proud of their two daughters and their families including three grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

In celebration of their 70th anniversary, the couple were honored at a party given by their daughters, Allegra Blum and Darlene Carlton at the home of Darlene and Hugh Carlton on South Sanford Avenue. The Carlton home, a beautiful 1920's Victorian-styled residence, was a perfect site for the festive event when style and hospitality reigned supreme.

"It was gorgeous," Bessie said.

Gerry and Rudolph Johnson Sr. arrived early from Hilliard to help set up the gala celebration.

The home was decorated in the traditional wedding motif. The picturesque tables, covered with pink taffeta skirts, were overlaid with off-white lace caught at the corners with rose satin bows.

Pink party punch was poured from a crystal punch bowl gracing a round table elegantly decorated with a lace skirt from a 1920s-style wedding dress enhanced with a large satin bow in the front. Pouring the punch were Joanne and Sarah Nettles, wife and daughter of Allan Nettles, grandson.

For the occasion, Bessie was lovely in a wine lace tea-length dress, a gift from Jacob, complemented with a corsage of pink and wine-colored roses. She and Jacob graciously received over 100 guests during the three-hour celebration.

A stairway of four cakes formed the anniversary cake which was decorated in wine and pink roses with the numerals "70" on the top layer. Cutting and serving the cake were Carol and Brandt Blum, wife and granddaughter of Brad Blum, grandson. Presiding over the food table were Lorie and LaRee Johnson, granddaughter and great granddaughter.

Pink wine and rose-colored balloons adorned the white wrought iron stairway which lead to the screened porch where the guest registry was kept by Mathew Blum, Justin Nettles and Adam Johnson, great grandsons. Rudy Johnson Jr., Brad Blum and Allen Nettles welcomed the visitors.

The Rev. Robert Welch of the Church of God of Prophecy reviewed the years he has known the Adamases since 1948. He spoke of their faithfulness to God and church all those years, read the renewal of the marriage vows and shared a poem, "Hold My Hand." The Rev. Messer, also a longtime friend of the honored guests, led an appropriate and meaningful prayer.

The Rev. Bill McLeod of the First Methodist Church of Mt. Dora and former pastor of the First United Methodist Church in Sanford, a family friend, also spoke on the couple's 70 years together. After McLeod's commentary, Jacob presented Bessie with a gold watch which he personally selected.

At the close of the charming celebration, the great grandchildren insisted that "Bunny and Pop," dance a few steps to the "Anniversary Waltz." Although the couple had not danced since the Charleston was the rage, their closeness and young-at-heart frame of mind came shining through.

Among the other out-of-town guests were Ruth and Jack Carlton, Cross City; Cindy and Bryan McLeod, Mt. Dora; Marie and George Smith, Orlando; and Charlie and Carol Van Over, Jonesboro, Ga. Club opens heart at Christmastime

Hobbyist of the Week

Preacher's wife turns God's creation into work of art

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Staff Writer

Midge Segroves stands by her five-foot grapevine Christmas tree.

LAKE MARY — Midge Segroves has found a way to take a little of God's creation that some find annoying and weave it into a beautiful work of art. She has mastered her hobby of spinning grapevines and created a five foot tall grapevine Christmas tree.

This tree decorated the foyer of Sanford Christian Church where she and her pastor husband, J.D., serve the congregation. For many years this very tree was a delightful addition to holiday decorations yet this year Segroves has her treasure in her own Lake Mary living room.

Using nature as her tool she has wrapped numerous grapevines into wreaths for family and friends. She laughed as she said, "I have asked my sisters if they need another wreath. They quickly respond with a no not any more."

For over 15 years Segroves has decorated and toiled various fashions with the wood-vines. She added, "My mother had a lot of grapevine at her property as well as muscadine. Muscadine is a fruit like grape so the vines are similar."

While clearing the land for the new location of Sanford Christian Church Segroves said, "I about went crazy. There was so much grapevine. I begged the men to save it for me. I still have videos of the guys swinging on the vines while trying to get them down."

After three months of daily labor from the grapevines so lovingly reaped from the church property Segroves displayed her masterpiece Christmas tree to all. "I still have to spray it for insects and mites," she said. "They could get into the wood and ruin the tree."

She shared some tips for those interested in taking up the skills involved with weaving grapevines. "It's very important to work with the vine when it's wet and new. When it gets dried out it's not good."

Besides grapevines, Segroves also has a love of music. She and her husband of 35 years, J.D. and their daughter Amy, sing in a group called Sweet Harmony. "We will be performing at the Holiday Nights in Lake Mary," she said. "Our trio are having a tape made now. My husband and I have made two other records."

The couple also have two other children, Barry and Greg and four grandchildren. Segroves does enjoy making small bird houses for home decorations from a block of wood and adds a few sprigs of flowers or a small craft twig bird.

Loved once upon a time at the church, she can also be found tending to the flowers or assisting in the nursery.

IN BRIEF

Drug prices rise; affect elderly poor

NEW YORK - Drug companies forced to give deep discounts to managed health care plans are making up the difference by raising prices to the elderly, uninsured and others least able to pay, a study shows.

The findings suggest the emergence of a two-tiered pricing structure in the prescription drug industry, which defended the practice as necessary to fund research into new drugs.

Wholesale prices of the top 500 prescription drugs sold in stores rose 4.1 percent in the third quarter compared with a year ago, researchers at the University of Minnesota said Thursday.

During the period, the Consumer Price Index, which is only one measure of inflation, rose just 2.5 percent.

Drug manufacturers give price breaks of as much as 25 percent to garner business from health maintenance organizations. HMO members often pay only a nominal fee of roughly $5 per prescription.

The only patients who pay drugstore prices, however, are those who are not members of HMOs or other insurance plans. Those retail buyers represent about 45 percent of the public, including those over 65 - whose Medicare benefits often don't include drugs.

"What's happening is that old people are subsidizing the discounts being offered to managed care," said Hemant Shah, an independent drug industry securities analyst in Warren, N.J.

That may help companies boost their profits in the short run, Shah said, but it's a risky strategy.

"For the long-term prosperity of a company pricing should not be a major tool for growth. The major tool for growth has to be new products," he said.

The study by the National Association of Chain Drug Stores and the Prime Institute backs up anecdotal reports of price increases earlier this year from drug industry securities analysts and an independent research corporation, Medispan Inc.

Drug industry representatives contacted Thursday were hesitant to address accusations of price shifting to the weakest Americans.

"I'm not going to talk about pricing strategies, which company does what and why they do it," said Pat Korten, a spokesman for the Pharmaceutical Research and Manufacturers of America.

Korten accused the chain store organization of bias, noting that it has filed a lawsuit against drug makers seeking the same discounts given to HMOs.

He doubted the survey's accuracy, pointing out that the government inflation rate for prescription drugs was just 1.9 percent during the same period. He acknowledged that includes discounts to the insured and HMO members.

Several drug companies said that their overall price increases, including HMO discounts, have been within inflation for several years. Most wouldn't reveal their wholesale price increases to drug stores.

Drug industry critics contend manufacturers are taking advantage of the fact that Democrats who criticized double-digit price increases in the 1980s lost control of Congress last year.

"When ... members of Congress took a little attention off the price increases, man, they go right back up," Ron Ziegler, drug store association president and chief executive, said at a news conference.

Dr. Pearle visits local store

By SHARI BRODIE

SANFORD - A recent Sanford Herald story reported that the local Pearle Vision Center was celebrating the tenth anniversary of its opening. With the story, a photograph ran of manager Rick Moses and optician Barbara Gleason with a life-size cut-out of Pearle Vision Center founder, Stanley Pearle. Little did they know that they would soon be visited by the real McCoy.

Pearle did make an appearance at the Sanford store, which is located in Seminole Centre, on Highway 17-92, on Wednesday, Dec. 6, traveling to the store from a senior citizen convention he was attending in Daytona Beach. Pearle and Moses have actually met on several occasions. Moses has been with the company for more than 20 years.

"He was very warm, very nice," said Gleason, of Pearle. She said he spent about an hour in the store, greeting customers and signing autographs.

Gleason said that Pearle, who is in his 70s, is making an effort to visit as many of the 1100 locations as possible. "Just like ago and likes to stress the

Bone marrow donors needed

ORLANDO - A Pine Hills nine-year-old, suffering from a fatal blood disease is in need of a compatible bone marrow donor to save her life.

The only hope for a cure that Daneeka Dickerson has is for an African-American donor whose bone marrow matches her to come forward to help.

No one in her family has been able to match her type and she has not found a match among the national donor list. Because only six percent of the 1.8 million are African American, her choices are few.

Potential donors from the community are being asked to take part in a volunteer marrow donor recruitment at Princeton Hospital on Mercy Drive in Orlando. The event will take place on Friday, Dec. 15 and Saturday, Dec. 16 from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day.

Volunteer donors must be between the ages of 18 and 55, in good general health and not excessively overweight.

To register for the recruitment drive or for more information, call the hospital at 286-8151, ext. 1290.

HOROSCOPE

Your Birthday

Sunday, Dec. 10, 1995

Generally speaking, improvements in many areas are indicated for the year ahead. You will probably not repeat old mistakes this year, and as a result, you will be more successful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A critical financial decision shouldn't be made under pressure. Put the matter on hold, and take the time to study it from every angle. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences that govern you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In a bargaining situation today, convince your adversary to make some concessions. Unless everything is fair, the deal will not work out.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Make security a priority today, especially if you're working on a do-it-yourself project with unfamiliar tools and materials. Read directions carefully.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You will conduct yourself reasonably well in social situations today. However, a crisis might arise if someone you dislike joins your group.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Discard in your household will be probable if you fail to handle situations tactfully. Do not aggravate matters. You should try to reduce the hostility.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may have ample reason to find fault with others today. However, it will be better to keep silent. Your criticism may be turned against you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Continue to manage your resources as prudently as possible. The temptation to spend extravagantly will be strong in this cycle. Try to control your whims.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today could be rather disconcerting if you don't treat occurrences philosophically. Remain tolerant even if your good intentions are misunderstood.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Do not react angrily to a situation today. Your inappropriate behavior could provoke very

WIN AT BRIDGE

Dynamite defense

By Phillip Alder

To end the week, here is another great defensive play. It is a definite candidate for the International Bridge Press Association's award for the defense of the year. The deal occurred during the Gold Coast Pairs Championship in Surfer's Paradise, Queensland, Australia, last February. (If you are ever in this area in the middle of February, go to the tournament. Everyone raves about it.) Sitting East was Paul Lavings, who has been an Australian international many times.

North's double was negative, indicating some values with length in the minors. Three spades was pre-emptive, showing a relatively weak hand with four or five spades. With a singleton heart and four cards in either minor, Lavings would have bid four spades.

West started with his two top spades. The declarer ruffed, cashed his four red-suit honors and trumped a heart with dummy's diamond seven.

Lavings saw that if he overruffed with the diamond jack, he would either have to lead a club away from his king or concede a ruff-and-discard. So Lavings discarded. Declarer played a club to his ace and ruffed a heart with dummy's diamond 10. Again Lavings discarded!

Now the contract couldn't be made. Yet if Lavings had overruffed either time, South would have succeeded.

Would you have returned the chances to overruff? Honest now!

ROBOTMAN

by Jim Meddick

One Man Talking Trash Creates a Kind of Treasure

DEAR ABBY: I have seen letters in your column from people who are ashamed to disclose their occupations.

I have never been ashamed to say that I am married to a garbage collector. My husband calls himself the "Southern Lehigh Garbologist" and his attitude toward his work has received positive feedback from the community. People view him as a smart businessman with a keen imagination and a wonderful sense of humor.

When he had to raise his rates, he wrote his customers letters explaining why. His letters made the local newspaper at least three times, and one of them was featured in an evening class at a local university. (It was a course called "How to Win Friends and Influence People," instructing business people how to sell themselves positively to their customers.) One customer told us he had heard someone use my husband's nickname on late-night television.

I have always worked by his side by running the office. The garbage business has provided us with a decent living, not to mention some of the "perks" that come in the form of "your trash is my cash" items — including some lovely antiques.

I'd be proud to have you use my name, or sign me "The Contented Wife of Garbologist Steve Tegy." SHIRLEY TEGY, COOPERSBURG, PA.

DEAR SHIRLEY: Attitude is everything, and you and your "Southern Lehigh Garbologist" are shining examples of it. May you have continued success.

DEAR ABBY: Eight years ago, when my first child was born, I received a lovely poem that contained some excellent advice for parents. I have applied it to my relationship with my children. It strengthened our bond and we became best friends.

It occurred to me that you may find it appropriate for your column. The author is unknown, but perhaps someone in your vast reading audience will know who wrote it. JOHN ZURSTADT, SEATTLE

WHAT SHALL WE GIVE THE CHILDREN? What shall we give the children? Christmas is almost here. Toys and games and playthings. As we do every year?

Yes, for the magic of toyland is part of the Yuletide lore To gladden the heart of child-hood. But I shall give something more.

I shall give them patience, A more sympathetic ear, A little more time for laughter, Or tenderly dry a tear.

I shall take time to teach them The joy of doing some task. I'll try to find time to answer More of the questions they ask.

Time to read books together, And take long walks in the sun. Time for a bedtime story, After the day is done.

I shall give these to my children, Weaving a closer tie, Knitting our lives together With gifts that money can't buy.

DEAR JOHN: In keeping with the holiday spirit, perhaps parents could also give their children lessons in acceptance of others who are different in some way, as well as lessons in charity.

Help them select a toy for a less fortunate child, or bake cookies for a needy family. Help them learn about children from another culture, and draw a picture about those children to hang in your home during the holidays. Let your imagination soar ... and their, too.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Upset Mother," whose teen-aged daughter was arrested for shoplifting.

ADVICE
ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

My best friend and I were also arrested for petty theft. She had something in her pocket, and I had a lipstick in my backpack.

The police arrested, handcuffed and fingerprinted us. They took our pictures and we were taken to the police station, where we were not allowed to call anyone. We weren't read our rights either. Someone called our parents for us.

Our parents wanted to hire a lawyer because we were treated poorly and our rights were "violated." We told our parents that since we were guilty, we didn't want to get off on a technicality.

We went to court and were sentenced to 25 hours of community service, plus we had to write a letter of apology to the store, attend three classes on the judicial system, and write three pages about what we had learned. My friend and I were not allowed to perform our community service at the same place, either.

When our sentences were finally completed, we returned to court, where the charges were dismissed. We learned a lot from that experience, and we will never steal again.

Those parents should let the courts punish the girls. It will be an unforgettable learning experience.

LEARNED THE HARD WAY P.S. We were also punished by our parents and haven't seen each other in more than four months.

DEAR READERS: May I share my favorite cartoons by Harley Schwadron in The Wall Street Journal?

Spirit, Pride & Dedication

There is a spirit, a sense of pride and dedication that comes with being an American. Within our community is a group of individuals who strive to preserve these things. They protect our freedom, our homes and our families. They work with us during the week, but a few days each month and a few weeks each year they train to be the best. They have served our country since its beginning and you could be one of them. Join the Florida National Guard, call today!
