 ties for both our visitors and our home folks.
 A growing Sanford demands better city services to its citizens. A growing Sanford means better business and job opportunities for us all. A growing Sanford City Government doing a better job for the visitor and the home-folks will, no doubt, cost more money. Some economies can, no doubt, be effected. However, to grow and prosper, we must examine our tax structure and make what changes are necessary to pay the cost of the growth and progress we desire.
 "By long range planning, that alone will insure you and me a progressive and efficiently operated city. Long range planning will give us, the people of Sanford, what we have the right to expect from our city." z seas," related Dean, "I can hardly pose as any authority on European customs, economics and politics, and I certainly do not want anyone to get the idea that I think I can spend three days in Paris and come up with any solution for the French Parliamentary system or three weeks in Britain and know how to count my change in English money."

 One of the biggest differences that Dean could tell in the American people and those abroad was their lack of interest in drinking water, which is prevalent virtually everywhere. In France they drink wine and in Germany beer, but he found it equally as hard to get a glass of water "just to drink" in England.
 One of the hardest things to understand about England", stated Dean, is the fact that there has been almost no new commercial construction there since before the war and most of its business activities are carried on in buildings erected at least 100 years ago.

"We never realized before how many different ways there are of speaking the English language until we went to England", he laughingly remarked. In addition to mastering the mechanical differences of the British built cars or learning to drive on the left side of the road, it was more difficult to understand their highway signs and expressions pertaining to the machines". Gasoline is referred to as "petrol", if the garage man wants to look under the "bonnet" he means the hood. The trunk is called the "boot", the crank case the "sump" and the dash board the "facia".
 "When we came to a sign which read, 'please park head or tail toward stones', we had to ask for an interpreter."

Mr. Dean and his party found Scotland fascinating as they drove through the Highlands which he compared to the mountains of North Carolina. "And you can understand as we did why the rugged mountaineers of Scottish history fought so hard to preserve their homes and why in the first World War they were known as the 'Ladies from Hell'.
 "One of our pleasantest experiences", said Dean, "was when we attended a Rotary luncheon at Kendal, a little town of 18,000 people in the lake district of England. We wouldn't be surprised if we were the only Americans who had ever been there. Most of them had never heard of Florida and some of them seemed to think that the United States was a large body of Marilyn Monroe surrounded by Indians".
 In Paris they found a definite international flavor at a meeting which they attended. "We got the feeling from the speaker that day," he said, "that most of the problems of the world are not so much ideological as they are economic and that if some way could be found for every country to live and let live, most of the danger of war would disappear".
 Fearing they might encounter unpleasantness in visiting Vienna, they were surprised at the freedom with which they were allowed to move. Although they had to obtain special passports and there were Russian soldiers and Communist posters displaying likenesses of Lenin and Stalin, and the place was heavily guarded, they were not interfered with in any way.

"What baseball is to America", remarked Dean, "music is to Austria. It is the home of Mozart, Hayden, Beethoven, Schubert, Liszt, the Magic Flute, the Merry Widow and the Blue Danube. Where other nations have erected monuments to their military leaders, Austria has raised statues to its composers and musicians.
 "It reminded us of Florida", he said, "where our plane was in land two days later, where the bumper and saw and the men behind these tools are busily carrying out a new empire in the land of the sun, where the magnolia, the orange and the palm tree making those necessary salary adjustments within the financial means of the city in line with the progress and growth of Sanford.

 In reply to question number five, "Do you believe in increasing the city's tax millage to take care of the city's needs which are demanded by the people, or are you an advocate of nuisance charges earmarked for specific projects?" I believe it is best that we maintain at a minimum our tax millage as long as the assessed valuation is at the present rate because the property owners and businesses of Sanford have for too long paid the bulk of the tax burden. If, after all the economical practices possible have been utilized, the city still finds itself in need of additional funds for general operation and the demands of the citizenry, I, before raising millage or levying so called "nuisance charges," would be in favor of studying the possibility of raising assessed valuations and lowering millage to a balanced point where only the additional needed revenues would be realized. This means, I feel, would help spread the tax so that it would not be too burdensome.

To sum up my thoughts on this, a most difficult problem, I feel that our taxes should go no higher unless it is absolutely impossible to meet our necessary expenditures otherwise. Florida today is one of the fastest growing states in the nation. For us to get our share, taxes must be kept as low as possible. Should I be elected, any and all problems on taxes, present or proposed, would receive my most careful scrutiny.

In answer to your sixth question, "How do you think the Board of Sanford City Commissioners can better serve the people of this city?" in my opinion there are many ways.

First, may I mention a subject which the Jaycees and The Sanford Herald have been dwelling on very recently - that of poor percentage of registered voters and poor turn-outs at the polls. I feel that a greater interest and participation in our city government by all qualified residents of Sanford would better serve the wishes of the majority and thus better serve the people in directing the progress of our city.
 Secondly, a continued program, with renewed vigor, of encouraging new industry would certainly benefit our city. As I see it the ground has been broken in recent years, but redoubled efforts along these lines would certainly yield more new industries, more jobs and more money in circulation.

In the third place, I feel that an expanded city recreational program leading ultimately to a year-round schedule would prove advantageous to all of us. Our summer recreational activities have been highly successful and I see no reason why an expansion of these activities would not prove beneficial.

Lastly, a continued program of good relationship with the Navy should not be overlooked. Any and all measures possible should be taken to insure the permanency of our base and all efforts made toward the enlargement and expansion of the local facilities.

In closing, may I say that I firmly believe that none of us want a rubber stamp commissioner, but want one who will do that which is in the best interest for all. As I said in the beginning, that is my only desire.

Russell Dallas Starts Job Nov. 1

Confidence Heard At Meet Last Night Of Highway Group

Confidence in the completing of the right of way program and the letting of the bids for the 17-22 widening, four laning and paving project, was expressed last night at a meeting of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce Long Range Highway Planning Committee and the Citizens Group, headed by Bralley Odham.

Mack N. Cleveland Jr., attorney for Seminole County, who is now completing details for the filing of necessary papers for condemnation proceedings and declarations of taking, told the group, "I have no doubt that the project will be completed this year."

We have set a deadline which we expect to meet, Cleveland said. The Highway Planning Committee representatives of the State Road Department are now in Seminole County working with right-of-way agent John E. Fox in order to expedite the right-of-way plans. He said, "There will be another representative here Monday to further help us in getting the necessary information for the court orders."

Clerical help and long distance facilities were placed at the disposal of County Attorney Cleveland in order to further push the project to completion, by the Chamber of Commerce group.

The new head of Sanford's recently formed Utility Department is "on the job" getting acquainted with the organization he will control prior to reporting for duty on Nov. 1.

Russell Dallas, a resident of Seminole County for more than five years, will come to Sanford to head the big sewer-water department, from Bush Building Company where he was General Superintendent. "The organization," Dallas said, "is one of the oldest utility construction companies in the south, having been in the business for 33 years."

"I was with Bush Building Company," he said, "for eight years having had my own business known as the Knoxville Boiler Works where I was vice-president and owner along with my brother."

Dallas was with the Army Corps of Engineers during the last worldwide conflict having held a commission of Major and was battalion commander in charge of troop training. He is a graduate of the University of Tennessee where he earned his BS and ME degrees.

"My last construction job was the Washington Terrace Pumping Station in St. Petersburg," said Dallas, "a construction project costing a quarter million dollars."

"In recent years," he says, "I have completed more than three-million dollars of rehabilitation and new construction utility projects consisting primarily of water and sewer, and some gas projects."

When asked about his reaction in accepting the position as Utility Department head for the City of Sanford, Russell Dallas said, "To sum it up in a few words, I have traveled around the country in construction work for 25 years and the opportunity to be at home is a pleasant one to accept."

Russell Dallas and his wife make their home on Twin Lakes where he says, "my hobbies are some citrus trees and raising dogs."

"He is not expected to be at the station long today," Captain Jackson said this morning, "but he expects to get down at a later date for a longer visit."

Captain Harris came to this district to command the Naval Air Bases from sea duty in the Far Eastern Waters where he was Chief of Staff, Commander of the Carrier Division Three. Previous to his Far Eastern duty, he was Commanding Officer of the Aircraft Carrier Philippine Sea.

Marilyn's Divorce Is Final Today

NEW YORK (AP)—Marilyn Monroe's divorce from Joe DiMaggio became final today.

There was no sign of reconciliation, though the actress and the former baseball player had seen one another at various times since she obtained the California decree.

Columelia Otis Skinner, in the New York Post, quoted the blonde star as saying "marrying again in the farthest thing from my mind."

Wilson quoted DiMaggio as saying about the marriage: "I never think about that any more."

Persons Are Urged To Attend Red Cross First Aid Classes

Civil defense workers — and in fact, all who are interested in knowing how to meet emergencies brought about through personal injuries—are being urged by A. B. Peterson Sr., Director of the Seminole County Defense Council to enroll in first aid classes now being formed by the local Red Cross office.

It was pointed out by the CD director that rarely does a community have the opportunity to learn from so competent a teacher as E. R. DeFallot who will have charge of the instruction.

Mr. Peterson said that he has learned that not only has Mr. DeFallot the skill to give first aid, but has the unusual ability to impart his knowledge to others.

Mr. DeFallot is now here with the Southern Bell Telephone Company. Before moving to Sanford he was active in the CD in New Jersey where he not only studied intensively in first aid courses but developed a proficiency in teaching them. His services as a teacher was greatly in demand.

In commenting on the need for such training the local CD official said that it does not take an atomic explosion to create the need for skillful first aid, although such knowledge certainly would be helpful then. He pointed out that accidents in the home are not infrequent and the confident emergency treatment of a loved one just in a single accident would more than compensate for the time spent in learning.

The increasing frequency of highway accidents also points up the desirability of knowing the fundamentals of first aid treatment, it was added.

Those interested in joining the classes should call the local Red Cross office to get the details as to location and time of instruction, Mr. Peterson said.

Teams Are Praised 31 New Members Join Organization

Winners of the Chamber of Commerce membership drive were announced this morning at the October 27th meeting at the Chamber of Commerce Building.

Last minute returns changed totals and increased the score of new members joining the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce.

According to Membership Chairman Clifford McKinnon, there are 31 new members of the Chamber of Commerce, with 22 of the members admitted increasing their dues over last year.

Team winners of the competition are John Fitzpatrick and Jim Grant with a total of 30,875 points. They receive four tickets and $25 expense money to the Orange Bowl game. Runnersup are John Williams and Al Williams with total of 29,725 points. They will receive four tickets and $15 expense money to the Gator Bowl game. The winning team captain is Dan Balas who racked up a total 15,775 points to receive two tickets to the Tangerine Bowl game and two dinners at Freddie's Steak House. A total of $2,394.50 was collected by the winners.

Mr. McKinnon, expressing his thanks to the members of the teams and those who worked untiringly to make the membership drive a success said, "the entire group exhibited unusual enthusiasm as they asked business people to take a little more realistic view of the work the Chamber of Commerce is doing to the community." He said, "it was gratifying to work with this group of men and women who have shown a lot of enthusiasm."

New visitors to the monthly Coffee Club included Lt. Condit, Lanar, Reall, supply officers at the Sanford Naval Auxiliary Air Station replacing Commodore Finley Nash, Bill Stinson, Quartermaster at the Sanford Naval Auxiliary Air Station and Henry Mills of the Sanford Steel Inc.

Dr. Terry Bird Tells Kiwanians Of Health Unit

Dr. Terry Bird, Seminole County Health Officer, told the Sanford Kiwanian Club at its noon luncheon meeting yesterday, that the Seminole County Health Unit is a local center for the "facts and sciences of preventing disease and prolonging life."

Dr. Bird explained the major functions of the organization, a local position of every county in the State of Florida with the exception of one. He said, "The county Health Unit is set up by the Board of County Commissioners in cooperation with other organizations for the preservation of health in the community."

The Seminole County Health Officer enumerated the many operations of the local group and told specifically of the testing of public and private water facilities to be sure the water we drink is of the purest.

In the control of rabies, Dr. Bird warned parents of children that dogs killed because of their rabid actions cannot be tested. Their death, especially if shot (Continued on Page Eight)

City Employees Eat At Annual Barbecue

More than 315 City employees, their families and friends, lined up last night at 8:30 to be served barbecue at the annual city employees barbecue held at the Farmers Auction Market.

It took more than 700 pounds of meat to fill the plates of the huge crowd who annually are fed by the city government.

Carl Williams, who has spent 35 years preparing barbecue, and who is known far and wide for his abilities as a chef, said that "there were 300 pounds of pork, 200 pounds of beef and 20 pounds of lamb prepared for the event." "In addition," he said, "there were collards and gallons of pickles, salad, and slaw, especially prepared to suit the taste of those who live to eat barbecue."

To prepare the barbecue, two pits were used, said Williams. A large portable pit was set up alongside the extra large pit at the auction market. The meat was smoked and baked for six hours before being ready to cut up and serve to the huge crowd. 10 pounds of charcoal was needed to cook the meat, Carl Williams said.

Taking up the tickets for the event was Mrs. Mary J. Harkey of the City Manager's Office, while City Manager Warren E. Knowles served coffee for the big annual employee event.

City Commissioners, County Commissioners, heads of departments, employees and friends all were invited to the barbecue held at this time each year.

Westinghouse Co. Disputes Statement On Jet Engines

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Westinghouse company has disputed statements that failure of jet engines it manufactured was to blame for accidents which cost the lives of four men testing the Navy's P-6000 interceptor.

Speaking for the firm, W. W. Smith told a House government operations subcommittee yesterday Westinghouse records "show no instance in which a crash resulting in injury or death of a pilot could be directly attributed to the failure of a J40 engine."

Smith is manager of the Westinghouse Electric Corp.'s aviation gas turbine division at Kansas City.

The subcommittee, hoping to find out why its inquiry into the Navy's purchase of McDonnell Aircraft Co. F-1H Bombers powered with Westinghouse J40 engines, recalled Navy and McDonnell officials for questioning at an open hearing.

Subcommittee members have criticized the program as one which cost an estimated 200 million dollars and four pilots' lives, without producing a combat-worthy plane. The Navy says it is a calculated risk taken under Korean War pressures, which did not work out, but that some valuable knowledge was gained.

Smith's testimony that engine failure could not be blamed for any serious accidents involving the P-6000 seemed to conflict with that taken Monday from Rear Adm. James S. Russell, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics.

Russell said that in three crashes the engine "can be blamed directly, or seriously suspected" and that in another the engine was a factor. He said these four crashes cost two lives.

Duxbury Pupils Present Program For Lions Club

The Duxbury School of Dancing presented a program of entertainment for the Sanford Lions Club at its noon luncheon meeting Tuesday.

Pupils of the school were seen in special numbers during the program. Dottie Williams performed a soft-shoe number to the music of "Blue Suede" while Mary Jane Flynn did the Charleston. Nancy Richards a military toe number. June Jennings an arrant waltz, with tap selections by Joey Muse, Carol Nutt, and the team of Deanna Nichols and Michael Pope.

NEW PRESIDENT TOLD PENSACOLA

ENGLISHTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Mrs. Colin English of Tallahassee is the new president of the Women of the Church, Presbytery of Florida.

She was chosen yesterday in succeed Mrs. George Watts Jr. of Chipley.

Other officers are Mrs. Ann Traylor, Tallahassee, vice president; Mrs. David Bevil, treasurer; Mrs. F. B. Calloway, Chipley, historian; and Mrs. James Ward, Monticello, world missions chairman.

Grocers Association Disapproves Use Of Trading Stamps

The Florida Retail Grocers Association, at their convention in Clearwater, has turned thumbs down on the practice of using trading stamps to spur business.

With discussions and issues over their use in several sections of the State, Sanford has as yet become excited about the action taken in other cities. City Manager Warren E. Knowles said yesterday that nothing has been said so far, either pro or con.

"There is nothing in our ordinances so far, that I know of," said Knowles, "that would prevent the use of the stamps."

One member of the Florida Retail Grocers Association called on the organization at its meeting to help Orlando in its fight to enforce two ordinances affecting the stamps.

"That is more than just an Orlando problem," Arthur Harris of Fort Myers said.

"If we lose the Orlando battle we have lost throughout the state," Harris told fellow delegates to the association's annual convention Tuesday.

The Orlando ordinances put a one per cent tax on the stamps and require all stamps to carry the name of the city and merchant.

Ted Murehead of Miami, association secretary, said the stamp companies intend to spend money to defeat any proposed laws regulating the stamps.

A resolution opposing use of the stamps was passed at the meeting. Opponents of the stamps said they objected to the extra cost of the stamps.

Another resolution adopted at the retail grocers meeting asked that retailers be allowed a markup of at least 13 per cent on milk, compared to a markup of about 8 per cent now. The present markup is two cents a quart.

The grocers said that the higher markup would allow retailers to make more profit without raising the price to consumers who have milk delivered to their home by the dairy.

Attending the convention from Sanford was Joe Gazi, operator of the Top Top Super Market on Sanford Ave.

School Collecting Mayonnaise Labels

The Forest Park School for the Physically Handicapped, in Orlando, which serves the five county area including Seminole, is collecting the tear off portion of the label of Kraft Mayonnaise.

According to a letter from the Forest Park School's Parent Group, the Kraft Company will pay the school 10¢ for every "tear off" label from a quart jar, 5¢ from pint containers, and 2¢ for the 8 ounce size labels.

"Perhaps," said the letter, "some individuals, clubs, or organizations would be interested in this worthy cause."

Labels collected for this group should be sent to "Forest Park School, Orlando, Fla."

Reducing Diets Vary For Each Age Group

By MERRAN H. BUNNING, M.D.

YOU'VE got to cut down your daily calorie intake if you want to reduce. And there's only one way to do that—eat less.

Yet the body's food needs vary with age, so a diet which may be ideal for you, won't work for your young daughter or your mother.

How Diet Works

Now, when you go on a diet, don't expect to lose two pounds the first week, two pounds the second week, and so on. Dieting generally just doesn't work that way.

You may not lose anything for a week to ten days. Then you'll probably drop four or five pounds within the next week. Thereafter, you'll level off with an average loss of up to two pounds per week.

And let me remind you that it's just as important to diet during the approaching holidays as at any other time of the year, if you really want to lose weight.

Extra Fat

Excess weight isn't good for anyone. You may pay for a mere 20 pounds of extra fat with about 10 years of your life.

On the other hand, taking off weight improperly can be dangerous business. This is especially true during adolescence and middle-age, since in these stages you need the special protection that only the right sort of food can give.

How much you lose under a diet depends on how long you follow the regimen in your age group. Whether you diet at all, and how much you should lose, is, of course, a matter for your physician to decide.

Typical reducing menus for one day, for teenagers, the 20-40 age group and the 40-and-over group follows:

Pinky Lee Is Sensitive

HOLLYWOOD UP — A sensitive fellow is Pinky Lee. He has been the butt of other comedians' jokes. This has hurt him deeply. He longed for the time when he could have their respect.

"I'm not a naive comedian, like Jerry Shriver or George Gabal or Jack Benny," he says. "I've got a speech impediment. It's ugly. So I do things that make people laugh at me and then feel sorry for me. Little wistful things that might bring a tear to your eye."

For years he lingered on the fringe of top stardom, rising from burlesque to night clubs and movies and then television.

But he never really elicited big until NBC slotted him in an afternoon program for children, The Pinky Lee show took off like a shot and soon overpowered even Howdy Doody in the daytime ratings.

Then along came a little mouse to scare him.

Well, it wasn't just a little mouse, it was the mighty Mickey. Backed by 15 million dollars of sponsors' gold, the Mickey Mouse Club was scheduled on ABC opposite Pinky. People said the Walt Disney show meant curtains for the little comic.

Pinky began working even harder. He already had a Hercules schedule—six half-hour shows a week. And he couldn't walk through his door. He was hounded himself out like a trouper throughout each show. Even so, he stepped up the pace, brought in new gimmicks.

"The climax came when I had to give a commercial for Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck watches," he said. "Imagine, plugging the proposition on my own show. The only way I could get through it was to say, 'Buy a Mickey Mouse watch so you can tell what time the Pinky Lee show is on.'"

"That was the day I collapsed." He had never done 24 shows in a week, trying to get through it was to say, "Buy a Mickey Mouse watch so you can tell what time the Pinky Lee show is on."

Now Pinky's head in the old slouch position and he looks to be held out until June. Most people will seek a restful schedule.

But he isn't surrendering to the mouse. "I think Disney is a great creator," he says. "But you must remember that kids are loyal. They love me and I love them. I know they'll stay with me."

Husbands, Wives Relationships On TV Is Boring

NEW YORK UP—The relationship of husbands and wives, as viewed on television, is becoming a boring stereotype. In this version, holy matrimony is a state of perpetual conflict.

Of course there's plenty of conflict in marriage. If marriage were just one big sweet confection, the whole institution might eventually perish of diabetes.

So let me emphasize that I'm not plugging here for a perpetually sweet and totally unrealistic view of matrimony on TV. I simply protest the depressingly large proportion of TV drama and comedy that trietly and with exaggeration treats the theme of marriage.

Not a night passes that at least one drama is not preoccupied with the bustup or patchup of a marriage. And as for daytime soap operas!

Rarely does television treat the theme of marriage without banality. Watch for these developments in the next televised matrimonial tangle you witness:

The wife is usually sensitive and perceptive. The husband is usually goodhearted but inclined to be rather a slob because he's weak or cross or misguided. Occasionally there's a reverse switch, but in general wives have better characters than husbands on TV. I think it's the advertising agency influence, which is enormous on the scripts of many shows. In the effort to please the ladies, we emerge as heels, gentlemen.

At the denouement of this typical marriage drama husband and wife are reunited thanks to some "revelation" usually instigated by the wife.

I've looked at quite a bit of daytime soap opera. If I were a woman I'd consider it a depressing drug. Its conflicts are perpetuated by gossip. Its plots revolve around bustups and patchups. Yet in some respect some soap operas are more realistic than some nighttime dramas. In them, for example, people do separate and get divorced—one woman on one program three times. Like people you know in real life.

Yet in general the marriage dramas of TV are not lifelike because their solutions are contrived and do not stem from true characterization. The bickering is realistic enough, heaven knows. But between the bickering and the contrived solutions I've had more than enough of 'em.

People In Radio Are Very Cheerful

NEW YORK UP—People in radio are very cheerful about their medium these days. It's not just sales talk. Rather, it's the sort of indefinable optimism that comes when a commercial venture is making money.

Arthur Hail Hayes, president of CBS Radio, cheerfully put it this way: "We've started up with radio."

It is, says Hayes, a kind of historical situation. When radio came in, phonograph recordings hit an all-time low. Everyone said the recording business was finished. Then along came television and a lot of people said radio was finished. But now—despite both radio and television—the sale of phonograph recordings is at an all-time high.

"Whenever anything new comes along, the American people go all out for it," Hayes says. "But after awhile they become selective. They choose what they want. And a lot of people want radio again these days."

In support of his belief Hayes cites radio sales figures compiled by the Radio, Television and Motion Picture Manufacturers' Association (RTMA) in its regular weekly statistical summary.

Factory sales of radio sets for the first 37 weeks of this year totaled 5,144,133—an increase of 40.9 per cent over the figure for the corresponding period of last year when 6,431,262 sets were sold.

Hayes emphasizes the "personal" aspect of radio in the respect that a home may have as many as a half-dozen sets which enable various members of a family to listen to the program each prefers.

A man who knew the great western marshal Wyatt Earp said not long ago that Hugh O'Brian looks and acts enough like Earp to be his son. This naturally pleases O'Brian. After all, he plays the lead in the excellent western series, "The Life and Legend of Wyatt Earp" (ABC-TV).

"Earp was really a 'mental' kind of guy," O'Brian said the other day. "He out-thought his enemies. He had about 10 gun-fights, but he killed only four men. However, in my job of interpreting Earp's character I can't be too 'mental.' While the show is an adult western, it's a favorite with youngsters too—and nobody wants to think too hard while watching it."

Hallowe'en is Time For Trick Or Treating

ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

"I don't care what you say—Mrs. Murphy said 'I do not want Merton to go out trick-or-treating. In the first place he's too little.'"

"Oh come now," Mr. Murphy said. "Let the boy have a little fun. I'll go along and keep an eye on him."

"Miff," said Mrs. Murphy. "I remember the time junior was little and you went along to keep an eye on him. And Jim Simpson invited you in for a 'taste' of hard cider. Junior got home two hours before you did!"

"Well, you wouldn't expect us to share the cider with a boy of three," said Mr. Murphy reasonably. "Anyhow, junior got home all right. Taught him self real nice."

"He could have got lost or—or almost anything. Besides, I don't approve of this trick-or-treat business. It's nothing but begging."

"There is," said her husband, "begging and begging. I don't recall using any such word when you went from door to door putting the arm on people for the benefit of the ladies' antiragweed guild."

"That's entirely different and you know it! The Meat Comparing a fupid drive for a worthy cause with this—this juvenile delinquency. That's all it is—it's racketeering. You're encouraging your own child to threaten the neighbors: 'Give me a quart or I'll do something to annoy you!'"

"You know," said Mr. Murphy thoughtfully, "maybe you have a point there. Maybe we should forget the treats and concentrate on the tricks. Like when I was a boy. Did I ever tell you about the time we hitched the mayor's car battery to the door handle, and—"

"Come on, Merton. We'll try it first at the Websters'. Then I know a dandy trick to play on old Mrs. Men," sobbed Mrs. Murphy.

"Children—every one of them. All right. Go trick-or-treating. But you stop in for any more of that cider. I'll come up and soapy every one of Jim Simpson's windows!"

CYCLO THERAPY IN MUSCLE SPASMS

HUMANS RELY ON 500 MUSCLES

MUSCLE SPASMS ARE COMMON AMONG ATHLETES

MUSCLE SPASM IS ASSOCIATED WITH A VARIETY OF DISEASES

THE HOME HANDY MAN

by Science Features

We humans rely on a complex array of 500 muscles of various sizes for the physical power we have over our environment. Yet, we commonly become aware of this wonderful system of locomotion only when our muscles "act up"—when they remind us through pain or spasms that something has gone wrong.

A spasm is any sudden, involuntary contraction of a muscle. Twitching, cramps or other types of muscle spasm may be brought on by a variety of causes. Sudden chilling of the body after swimming may result in severe spasms of several of the body's muscles. Sharply diminished circulation of the blood to any part of the body brings about spasms in the blood-starved area. Chemical imbalance is also a common cause of spasm; for example, recent research indicates that the painful leg-cramps of pregnancy are due to abnormally low levels of calcium in the blood of expectant mothers. The so-called night cramps—sleep-disturbing spasms of leg muscles—are also believed to be related to calcium metabolism.

Facial tics can send the body's musculature into violent contractions; the most notorious of these is the poison secreted by the germ of tetanus or lockjaw. In addition, many ailments of the nervous and skeletal systems are accompanied by muscular spasms.

In some cases, muscle spasm is not primarily the result of disease, but is related to over-use of a particular set of muscles. In these conditions, such as the so-called "occupational cramps" of athletes' cramps, modern methods of treatment, including cyclotherapy have proven effective in restoring free motion to the affected parts.

Death of Roger Brindle, an extremely popular syndicate newspaper columnist, opens new chapters in the lives of those whom he wrote so well. He leaves his young widow, Carol, and an entourage of persons whom he had befriended. Carol learns that Roger left her no more than five thousand dollars. When he leaves from his wife, Beatrice, that Roger's first wife, Jane, has come to Stoweville for the funeral, Albert Hibbes, and tiny habits bedeviled by Roger, refuse to see her. Beatrice expresses the hope that Carol will get rid of Joe Hattery and Ethel Hattery, another couple whom Roger had helped. Carol tells Standy Stone, descendant of an old village family, that she has received a cryptic note regarding Roger's death. Standy learns that a ghost writer who is coming to help Carol, Lois Fleming, whom he had known seven years before.

CHAPTER SIX
"I AM SURE," said the literary agent, "that it will prove to be a successful collaboration," and put down the telephone. Mignonne Franks said brisidy. "When I suggested having someone else write about her husband Mrs. Brindle fell all over herself. I told her you'd be there on the fifteenth. But you heard that the stories on figures."

"I still don't like it," Lois Fleming said stubbornly.

"Mignonne Franks, Mignonne to the publishing trade, to a score of professional actors on Broadway and in Hollywood, to the musical world and a fair share of those in other parts of New York, worlds for which she had, incredibly, the time and energy to devote her alert intelligence, was small and plump, with shining black hair as smooth as a cop, snapping dark eyes, and tiny habits bedeviled by Roger, moved at prodigious speed but with so much efficiency that she never appeared to be in a hurry. As an agent, she was always at leisure to hear the troubles of her clients, whether they involved writing and marketing or some of her marital and extra-marital crises, and at the same time she got through more work than most of her competitors.

At the moment one small hand, weighted down by a magnificent jade ring, rested on a fevering pile of scripts that had to be read promptly. Mentally she reviewed the hours ahead, canceled a Carnegie Hall concert she had looked forward to hearing, and switched all her attention to the immediate problem before her.

At least once a week Mignonne swore a solemn oath that she would stop taking on other people's burdens and just as regularly she forgot an about it. There was Lois Fleming, for instance, facing her across the desk. The girl had never really recovered from that bout of pneumonia. She was too thin and pale. Probably she nibbled little snacks and heated cans of soup instead of eating properly. Mignonne, blessed with a superb digestion and a nice taste in food, had no patience with women who neglected their meals simply because they lived alone. She lived as much alone as her host of friends would permit, but she ate sensibly.

Lois should have married again. She had been badly shattered by her husband's death, but seven years had passed since then. Time she made a new start. The shrewd eyes studied the young woman across the desk. Lois Fleming was twenty-nine with dark hair cut very short and curling all over her head. Her features were not symmetrical enough for beauty but she had big eyes and a small nose, a warm voice and a vivid quality which Mignonne could not quite define. Perhaps it was the way she held her head, the way she walked like a thing in flight, always on the verge of taking off the ground. People turned for a second look at the eager, charming face.

Lois had always maintained roundly that a ghostwriter had no right to a personality. A ghost was only a reflection. But Lois Fleming was something more than that, a kind of slurring red. That was why she was a good ghost, of course.

"I still don't like it," Lois protested again.

"What else can you do?" Mignonne introduced the practical note, one which Lois had sometimes found disagreeable but which she admitted, helped her to pay the rent. "You're not only dead broke; you've got doctors' bills piling up. You need a job and this one will be a cinch. The pay is good, you'll spend a few weeks in the country, and believe it or not, it's cool in their hills."

Lois ran a hand impatiently through her short hair. "But it's not my kind of job."

"What's wrong with Roger Brindle?"

"Nothing is wrong," Lois admitted. "He was America's best-loved man, an indulgent husband, a staunch friend, a good neighbor, a success in his profession. Nothing was wrong with him. He was perfect. And perfect people make awfully unexciting copy. I simply don't believe in them."

Mignonne played her trump card.

"I'll arrange with the magazine editor to make this one of those 'as-told-to' jobs with your name under Mrs. Roger Brindle's. Time you were known. And you'll like Stoweville. It's a charming New England village."

"I'd forgotten that Roger Brindle lived in Stoweville." For a long moment Lois was thoughtful. If she had any sense she'd stay away, let the dead past bury its dead. "All right," she said. "I'll go to Stoweville. But I warn you right now the articles will be synthetic. Not real. I know the kind of material you get for a thing like this. Whipped cream?"

"Yes, you read the Brindle column?"

"Occasionally. I wasn't one of his regulars."

"Why not?" Mignonne demanded.

It was interesting to watch Lois search for an intellectual reason for an indistinct feeling. "I don't know," she admitted at length. "He made the people he wrote about seem real, three-dimensional; if you cut them they would bleed. He was really good. But—"

"Well?"

"He tried too hard," Lois declared. "And toward the end, those last few months, his column depressed me horribly."

Mignonne's eyes flickered. "That's a peculiar thing to say about one of the few genuine rock-bottom optimists writing in our time."

"But, you see," Lois said as though it must be obvious to everyone, "he didn't believe in anything more. He didn't believe in anything."

Mignonne leaned suddenly to reach for papers in the bottom drawer of her desk. She spoke with her face still hidden.

"What did you say?" Lois asked. "A slurring red. Not. What is it? This thing they call empathy?"

"There isn't anything," Lois said unasily.

"Of course not. I was just joking. I'll put an informal agreement in the mail tonight for Mrs. Brindle and you get your clothes together so you can leave day after tomorrow."

"But that's only the BRH!"

"Exactly."

"You told Mrs. Brindle the BRH, didn't you?"

"Exactly," Mignonne said again. (To Be Continued)

Atom Blast Victim Dies Of Lukemia

HIROSHIMA, Japan (U-A) — A 12-year-old girl who as a baby was only a mile from the center of the Hiroshima atom bomb blast died yesterday of lymphatic leukemia which a U. S. doctor said may have been "a late effect of radiation."

Dr. Robert Holmes, director of the Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission, said records showed that Teiko Sasaki "was exposed at a distance of 1,635 meter (1,793 yards) and was shielded from radiation effects of the bomb only by a wooden frame building."

"It is therefore possible that this case of leukemia is a late effect of radiation."

Japanese newspapers listed it as the 14th death so far this year from wartime atomic bombs. There was no confirmation from commission officials, who explained that it is technically impossible to say positively whether deaths had been caused by A-bomb effects or by other causes.

Stink Bombs Are Dropped In Hotels

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (U-A) — Stink bombs were dropped in two ocean-front hotels here last night. A Fort Lauderdale man was charged with the "bombing."

The first drove guests from the lobby of the Saxony Hotel at midnight, and two others were set off in the Sans Souci a short time later.

Paul P. McCastland, 42, of Fort Lauderdale, was charged with setting off stink bombs and released in $250 bond.

McCastland, a former Miami Beach bar owner, reportedly was connected with the Hotel Employees Union (AFL) at Fort Lauderdale. The hotels he is accused of stink bombing were among those picketed by the union here until court injunctions halted it.

Dock, Terminal Effort Means Immediate Growth To Sanford

There is evidence that the interest in the establishing of a dock and freight terminal at Sanford has not cooled down beyond its last spark.

The subject was broached at the last meeting of the Board of Sanford City Commissioners and it is hoped that the renewed interest will not stop at the "we'll let the City Manager gather the information and see what we can do about it stage."

If the Sanford City Commissioners want to get their teeth into a project that will mean something to the local community other than token returns, the Docks and Terminal effort can mean the immediate "triple to quadruple" growth of Sanford in less than a decade.

"One of the biggest building booms of substantial means will come into being when a project of this nature is undertaken," is the undoubted belief of hundreds of Sanford citizens as well as businessmen throughout the Central Florida Area who are anxious to compete with other business houses who reap the same benefits that Sanford would get in the event the project ever became a reality.

The real estate business would blossom into a field of unusual return in the locating of warehouse sites, loading areas, truck terminals, storage space and industrial sites.

It would be year-round employment for thousands upon thousands of skilled and unskilled laborers, from dock hands, truck drivers, railroad men, clerks, and whatnot.

Sanford has tasted the prosperity of growth. Its banks have been bulging with expansion. But with a Dock and Terminal on the St. Johns River, located at Sanford, property will become a reality yet undescribed. There is no enthusiasm so great as that of community growth, there is no interest so deep as one which would benefit the most. That's why the locating of a Dock and Terminal for water freight would be, in the words of the former mayor of Sanford who appeared before the Board of Sanford City Commissioners, "a shot in the arm to Central Florida industry."

Here is a project that will keep open the hundreds of channels of private industry for Central Florida. This is a project that the City of Sanford can boast without fear of "taking away from the people their inalienable right of free enterprise." The Docks and Terminal project is one that will return thousands upon thousands of dollars to the community for each one invested.

There is an open avenue of continued freight traffic into Sanford from Trenton, N. J., and even points further north, through the waterway channel for barge lines operation.

Without a doubt, overnight there could be barge lines operating in the 12-foot channel created for just this purpose. Barge line owners have already shown their willingness to send their barges, hauling steel, lumber, automobiles, trucks, wire, hardware, cement, potatoes, canned goods, paint, ladders, rope, cloth, oils, roofing, literally thousands of items necessary for the continued prosperity of Florida, to Sanford and its Docks and Terminal.

Even to the refrigerated barges, for the modern shipment of frozen foods and vegetables, as well as citrus juices to the northern markets.

There are unlimited possibilities, and we sit holding our hands waiting for someone to float the project ashore as if by some magic formula it becomes a reality.

This is an opportunity for the entire body of Sanford City Commissioners to stand up, roll up their sleeves, turn down their collars, and go to work for the citizens of the community and the future of the city.

Let's not hem and haw, stumble around, and offer one excuse after another for the slowing down of this project. Let's not place stumbling blocks in the path of a "good project."

This is a time when an investment of a few thousand dollars in an "on the top of the table" survey by a firm of reputable engineers will pay off in dollars and cents return to the city as a whole. It will mean a return in the pockets of the merchants of Sanford. It will mean a greater return for the investor in industrial sites. It will mean thousands upon thousands of extra dollars into the till of the "tax collector" who has to bring in the money to run the city.

Smooth politicians won't be able to put this project over-the-top. It's going to take the working together of a group of citizens interested in but one thing, THE FUTURE OF SANFORD.

Who's going to be the first to move toward PROSPERITY?

WASHINGTON— Into each politician's life some rain must fall. But sometimes sunshine pieces through the raindrops.

For example, the Eisenhower Administration recently has not been able to cut spending by the Defense Department. It wanted very much to trim expenditures by this and other departments in order to achieve a balanced budget.

But, instead of declining, defense spending actually is on the increase. Secretary of Defense Wilson explains that this is due to higher costs.

This situation makes the balanced budget advocates in the Administration very unhappy. But there is another aspect which makes them chuckle with pleasure. It is this:

For a long time some of the Administration's critics have been proclaiming far and wide that President Eisenhower was placing the Nation's security in dire peril by his efforts to reduce defense spending.

Administration spokesmen explained that the contemplated cuts involved only the elimination of waste, efficiency and duplication and that nothing would be done to endanger the Nation's safety.

This did not satisfy the critics however. The statements of some of them were so violent against the Administration that they created the impression that even to think of economizing in Government spending amounted to a criminal act.

Now, the aspect of the spending situation that makes the Republicans feel good is this: The critics can no longer complain that the Administration is jeopardizing the Nation's safety by cutting spending.

The Republicans regret very much that the efforts to balance the budget have met with unexpected obstacles. But they are delighted that one of the main complaints against the Administration . . . that of imperiling safety by reduced spending . . . has been demolished.

Of course, some of the Republicans feel certain that the opponents now will shift their tactics and start shouting that the Administration has not increased defense spending adequately. But that is another story.

Mr. Truman has been one of those who, looking toward the 1952 elections, have been charging that the Eisenhower Administration cut defense spending below the safety level established by the previous (Truman) Administration. In view of Mr. Truman's criticism, some of the Republicans looked up his record with respect to defense spending while he was in the White House. They found this:

In 1948 the Air Force asked for funds for 70 groups of airplanes. The White House, acting through the Budget Bureau, cut the figure to less than 50.

Both the Senate and House angrily overrode the White House and approved the 70-group objective which was to be built up over a period of years. Congress then voted an appropriation of $82,000,000 as the first installment of an overall program of $3,138,000,000 to provide the goal wanted by the Pentagon.

President Truman signed this measure, but cautioned the military against spending the money too rapidly.

The following year the Truman Administration said the minimum should be 48 groups and resisted efforts to raise it to 70 groups.

On October 20, 1949, less than a year before Korea, President Truman signed the $15,542,843,000 military supply bill, but he impounded a sum of $618,000,000 which had been earmarked by Congress to boost the air groups to 58 as a step toward the 70 goal. Former Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson was instructed by President Truman to place these funds in reserve.

At the time, President Truman said the procurement of additional planes for more than 48 groups would "place an unbearable burden on the national economy in years to come."

The Republicans find this record most interesting in view of current anti-administration attacks.

LONDON, England — The gloomy gray castle walls, the delicate Maid Marion (in bangs) smiling wistfully over Robin, and so on and so on. It's swabs and Indians in Sherwood forest, and it takes only a slight imagination to see young America henceforth going around howling and trying to put each other's eyes out with feathered shafts. Department stores thinking of Christmas please take note. It is true that the TV people have aimed Robin Hood at the entire family market, but I must report to them that dad and mummy may go into the kitchen for a beer and game of gin rummy while the small fry are following Robin's didoes.

What you are tempted to do is run out and cable immediately to America. Your wife would go to Tonto and the Lone Ranger, and would read DANGER AHEAD. GET OUT THE OLD SILVER BULLETS.

The flat truth is, an English firm, working for American sponsors, has come up with a TV series that shortly will begin on American home screens—that, it could be, may be the biggest thing since Davy Crockett. You say this cautiously, almost reluctantly. The people who have put this series together have invited you to England to see how and where it is being made and you have come almost with a chip on your shoulder, so as to preserve your fabulous integrity and your professional detachment. But sitting here in the darkened, shabby little Walton-on-Thames movie house, you are forced to the conclusion that they have done a spanking job and are coming to the United States late this month with all bows firing.

It's all here—Robin of Locksley splitting Gaius Balthar's arrow in the famous archery contest conceived by the villainous Sheriff of Nottingham, swordsmen

TOURISTS IN HAWAII who ask how Waikiki Beach got its name are solemnly informed that a Chinese visitor calmly went swimming one day on an exclusive beach clearly marked "KAPU" (Hawaiian for "Keep out"). He was chased once, but didn't understand a word the guard was saying, so he promptly returned. The second time he was booted off the beach bodily. He picked himself up indignantly, and demanded, "Why kicky?"

If the tourists believe that one, Hawaiians have a hundred even more preposterous whoppers to try out on them.

Roger Price says he had to turn down the role of a private eye in a new TV series. He's allergic to truck coats. "It's my girl who ought to be doing the hush-hush stuff anyway," he adds. "Can she keep a secret? We were engaged for three months before I knew it!"

Notre Dame Is Picked To Lose

NEW YORK (AP)—One can get plenty of headaches—also letters—picking Notre Dame to lose a football game but that is the choice this week. It is the Knute K. Rockne memorial game at South Bend and Notre Dame will pull all the psychological stops.

Should this forecast come true it will be because of George Walsh's prize-bald antics as the Navy quarterback.

This blueprint special prediction is the highlight of the season's seventh week. Last week there were 37 correct selections among the 53 picks for a .892 average, lowering the season's total to .734 on 199 correct choices and 73 incorrect ones.

Other sections this week: Michigan over Iowa; If the trainers could meet at midfield and compare hospital lists, Iowa would be an easy victor.

PCC Teams Have Defeated Big 10 Opponents 4 Times

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Either Pacific Coast Conference football is getting better or the Big 10 brand is slipping, a check of the records showed today.

PCC teams have defeated Big 10 opponents four times in six games this season with one more to go—and Southern California is near unanimous choice to make it five out of seven over Minnesota Saturday at Minneapolis.

The record is a complete switch from that compiled only one year ago. Western teams won only twice in six encounters during 1954 regular season play.

Cost winners this year have been Stanford, 6-0 over Ohio State; UCLA, 23-13 over Iowa; Southern California, 33-21 over Wisconsin; and Washington, 300 over Minnesota. The losses are Stanford, 28-14, to Michigan State, and California 20-13 to Illinois.

Earl Blaik Moves Army Players Like Magician

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP)—Nobody has ever called Earl (Red) Blaik a sleight of hand performer but the way he has moved his Army football players around should qualify him for membership in the Magicians Society.

Injuries have forced the shifts in a team that figured before the season opened to be one of the best in Blaik's 13-year tenure at the Point.

Crooms Academy Students Enjoy Big Homecoming

Homecoming activities at Crooms Academy got under way last night at 8 p. m. with the crowning of lovely Gwendolyn Blocher as Miss Crooms Academy. At the same time charming Mary Helen Pierce was crowned "Miss Homecoming."

The spectacular homecoming parade started at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Headquarters for the parade was the rear end of Crooms' campus. The route the parade followed was from the campus up 12th St. to Lake Ave. where the parade disbanded to reconvene at the corner of Second St. and Cypress Ave., and then moved west to Palmetto, then south to Third St., down Third to Sanford Ave. and south on Sanford Ave. to Ninth St.

Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees used more players this year than he had used in five previous World Series. He used 24 different men in the first four games. In 1951 he used 21 Yankees.

Man Says Cheaper To Own Horses

BOSTON (AP)—A retired Massachusetts businessman who says he found it cheaper to own horses than bet on them pocketed $40,100 today for Rockcastle's tremendous victory in the $30,000-added Yankee Handicap.

"Used to bet on them, but decided it was cheaper to own my own," said Joseph Leone yesterday after his speedy and durable colt defeated a fine field of 16 other three-year-olds in the Yankee's 20th running.

Although the brown colt had won six races and finished out of the money only once in 11 previous starts this season, Rockcastle went off at better than 10:1 as a crowd of 20,032 made Hilton Dabson's Nance's Lad a 95 favorite.

Nance's Lad made a game attempt to overtake the Leone colt, but had to settle for second, a length and a half behind.

After 41 Years Austin Is Back In Texas League

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Austin was back in the Texas League today after a 41-year absence, replacing the faltering Beaumont franchise long-sailing Beaumont.

The city was officially moved to the Texas capital city last night as league President Dick Butler announced that all details had been worked out to permit the transfer.

Allen Russell, owner of the Beaumont franchise, brought the club here when an Austin group headed by Mayor Tom Miller guaranteed an attendance of 175,000 for the 1956 season. Beaumont drew only 60,000 the past season.

Russell said he had 24 players and his manager will be Connie Ryan, former big league player who managed Corpus Christi in the Big State League last season.

Navy, Notre Dame Coaches Looking For Another Replay

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Navy and Notre Dame coaches are looking for another possible replay of last year's 6-0 thriller when the unbeaten Middles and the once-defeated Irish meet Saturday.

Both head reporters at Navy's weekly football news conference yesterday they regard the other as being as good or better than the 1954 teams and expect another close battle.

Coach Terry Brennan said in a telephone interview from South Bend, the site of Saturday's clash, that he thinks the oddsmakers are mistaken in making Notre Dame a six-point favorite, the same margin they beat Navy last year.

"I don't know how they figure it," the youthful Irish mentor remarked. "I would think we would probably be rated even."

He called this year's Navy team "probably the best they've had in the last 10 or 15 years" and said "records indicate they'll probably be the best we play."

Navy has beaten its first five opponents but they expect the Irish to be their toughest to date. The Middles have shown the same fire in practice this week they had for the game in Baltimore's muddy stadium last year, when a fumble going into the end zone cost them at least a tie or possibly a victory.

Notre Dame has lost only to a good Michigan State team and is plainly regarded by Coach Eddie Erdelatz as the big hurdle faced by his team this season, with the natural exception of an always tough Army game.

"We regard them every bit as tough as last year," Erdelatz said, "but feel the same way about the game. . . . Our boys do a better job against a tougher team."

P. Cothren Revives Art Of Kicking

UNIVERSITY, Miss. (AP)—Fullback Paige Cothren, the Associated Press "back of the week" for his performance against Arkansas, revived the art of kicking field goals for the University of Mississippi.

Cothren set a Southeastern Conference record, where field goals are almost out of date, by booting two against Georgia. Those two also were the first field goals kicked by a Mississippi player since 1931.

The junior booted one field goal against Arkansas, in addition to scoring a touchdown, kicking two extra points, intercepting a pass, and blocking viciously for his teammates.

Cothren prevented Cothren from scoring all Mississippi points in its 17-7 victory over Arkansas Saturday.

Cothren 1 keeping alive the Pool tradition despite a different name at Mississippi. The three famous Pool brothers, Ray, Buster, and Barney, are his uncles.

Cothren leads the Southeastern Conference scoring race with 44 points on four touchdowns, three field goals, and 11 extra points.

He's a good bet for All-SEC honors.

Who Said Baseball Season Is Over?

NEW YORK (AP)—Who said the baseball season is over? Early Wynn is pitching in Mexico, Sandy Amoros is catching fly balls in Cuba. Vinegar Bend Mizell is striking them out in Havana.

The far-flung winter baseball season already is well under way. In addition to the four leagues belonging to the Caribbean Federation—Cuba, Puerto Rico, Venezuela and Panama—there are four or five other leagues employing some U.S. talent.

There are the Vera Cruz and Mexican Pacific Coast leagues, in Mexico, the Occidental League in Venezuela and a four-club league in the Dominican Republic. Several Baltimore players and farmhands are playing in the Colombian League in South America.

The four Caribbean Federation leagues work closely with organized baseball. Players with two full seasons in the majors are not eligible.

In the nonfederation leagues, players are considered under the regulations on barnstorming. That is how Wynn, the veteran Cleveland right-hander is allowed to pitch two games for Bobby Avila's Mexico City Reds. Bob Lemon also was to have pitched a couple of games but begged off.

Change In Lineup Of U of M Team May Appear Soon

MIAMI (AP)—A major change in the University of Miami football lineup for the Pittsburgh game Saturday may show up in the middle of Miami's line.

Coach Andy Gustafson moved Bob Della Valle, 190-pound right tackle, to center to take over for the injured Mike Hudeck, in yesterday's workout.

Co-Capt. Whitley Rouvire, still on the second unit behind John Varone, worked at both left and right halfback and also moved from his corner spot to the deep position to try and strengthen pass defense.

Gene Reeves and Sam Scarneckia were throwing well during the drill and extra point kicking saw Ed Oliver click with five for five. Mario Bonifacio made three for four.

The squad, 34 strong, will leave for Pittsburgh tomorrow morning.

Frank Tamburello Celebrates First Year As Q-Back

COLLEGE PARK, Md.—Frank Tamburello celebrates his first anniversary on Saturday as Maryland's quarterback and perhaps its best ever.

It was on Oct. 30 last year against South Carolina that Tamburello, coached by Coach Jim Fatum turned to the sophomore Tamburello after Maryland had staggered through its first five games with two victories, two defeats and a tie quarterbacked by Charley Roalson.

Tamburello directed Maryland to a decisive 20-0 victory and kept on doing the same for the next four games. Maryland hasn't been beaten in 11 games since Tamburello took charge.

In fact, he takes charges so completely that sleep down you have a feeling that when coach Fatum admires it he isn't entirely sold on it.

"He's got a lot of imagination, he likes to do his own thinking," says Fatum. "He's naturally cocky and confident he can score anytime he wants."

Once he gets ahead he likes to try things and tries to put on a show.

Do you approve, Fatum? "As long as he stays ahead," he replied wryly.

That he didn't endorse it entirely was gleaned from his recollection that Bernie Faloney, quarterback of Maryland's 1953 national champions, "used to stick to his knitting. You could sit on the bench and all the next play ahead of him."

With Tamburello, he's never sure. Neither is the other team. Tamburello is one of the quickest quarterbacks to change plays after coming out of the huddle and reaching the line of scrimmage.

"He has a steel trap mind," says Fatum from the admiration standpoint. "He can't play with a perfection."

Gators Resume Drilling Yesterday

GAINESVILLE (AP)—After taking a two-day rest following their sixth rugged contest, the University of Florida Gators resumed their efforts on the football drill field yesterday.

That is most of them have returned but a number of others were kept absent because of severe colds. Among those not practicing yesterday were front runners John Barrow, Jackie Simpson, John Burgess, and Joe Brodsky.

Chances are that all those missing from today's activity will be back in uniform before the week is out and will have time to prepare for the Gators' game with Georgia Saturday week. They have an open date this Saturday.

George Wardman, with a five under par 66, holds the course record for amateur golfers at Bermuda's Mid-Ocean Club. He shot his record-breaking score in 1952.

(Continued from Page One) Chamber of Commerce told the Coffee Club this morning. "I want to express appreciation to the ladies and gentlemen who have worked in this drive. The entire population owes you a debt of gratitude, not only for bringing in the money but for telling the people and letting them know what we are doing. I think that most people are astounded at the amount of work that goes through this office. When we say we are grateful for the interest we are truly expressing the gratitude of the people."

City Commissioner John Krider, also at the meeting this morning of the Chamber of Commerce Coffee Club, said that "I think we have some new interest now toward the docks and terminals which has been an issue for a number of years. The Chamber of Commerce has done a remarkable job in gathering the information for such a project that will benefit the area as a whole."

The 1955 Annual Report of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce activities was distributed to the Coffee Club members this morning. The report contains the 15-point program of work for 1956, along with a review of the publicity gained by the Chamber of Commerce for the various activities of the organization.

Earl Higginbotham, immediate past president, concluded the report with "Yes, 1955 has been an active year for the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce. In addition to the more obvious activities as described by the news clippings in this report, many other details are handled by the Chamber staff each day. Let's get behind our new officers and directors and make 1956 an even bigger year."

Information For Veterans

Here are authoritative answers from the Veterans Administration to four questions of interest to former service men and their families:

Q. I am a disabled World War II veteran, and I have just come home after several years in a VA hospital. I want to take Public Law 56 training, but I understand I will have to complete it by July 1956, less than a year from now. Could an exception be made in my case, since I wasn't able to begin training before this time?

A. You possibly could have until July, 1960, to complete your training. The law allows disabled veterans an additional four years, if they were not able to start on time because of their disabilities. Since VA decides each case individually, you should get in touch with your nearest VA office to learn whether the extra time applies to you.

Q. I have just been discharged from service, and I intend to apply to VA for disability compensation. Will I be required to take VA physical examination?

A. Not necessarily. If you file a claim within six months from the date of your separation, it may be rated initially based on the records of the service department, unless it appears that an error might result from such a rating.

Q. I am a disabled Korea veteran. What is my deadline for applying for the special GI insurance available to disabled Korea veterans?

A. You must apply and pay your first premium within one year from the date that VA has determined your disability to be service-connected.

Q. Are VA's special "wheelchair housing" grants available only to disabled World War II and Korea veterans?

A. No. Veterans of all wars, as well as those with peacetime service only, may qualify, so long as they meet the eligibility requirements of the law. Veterans living in Central Florida who wish further information about their benefits, should write the VA office at 42 E. Central Ave. Orlando.

Murray Announces Boy Scout Drive To Start Monday

A financial campaign to support the Central Florida Council, Boy Scouts of America, will get underway in Sanford and Seminole County Monday morning, said Fred Murray, chairman of the fund drive for this area.

Murray said today that the six-county council has a budget of $32,000 to raise during the drive for funds to support the 11-unit organization within Seminole County.

The group of volunteer leaders in Sanford, Oviedo, Longwood, and Casselberry join hands with leaders in other sections of the Central Florida Council in the campaign to raise funds with which to bring Scouting to five thousand boys in the area.

Murray explained that the financial campaign is for funds to keep records of training, finance, advancement, membership and other like services of the trained staff serving the council. It also furnishes supplies such as literature, badges and program aids. Mail service is also a function of the council so that bulletins, notices, orders, court of honor material and registrations can be circulated freely among the volunteer leaders. Personal conferences for the volunteers so that trained personnel can guide the progress of advancement among boys.

The $32,000 goal by the Central Florida Council, Boy Scouts of America will furnish for the growing boys in this area the full time service by a staff of four professional men who recruit, train, and guide 2,100 volunteers through work with District Committees, Commissioner Staffs, training courses, round table and unit committees and leaders.

Sanford and Seminole County is increasing its share in the financing of the Central Florida Council, Murray said today, in 1954 local funds were three per cent of the total budget, in 1953 they were increased by local contributions to four per cent, and now, he said, the budget calls for an even greater increase.

Cynthia Roumillat Receives Letter From White House

Miss Cynthia Roumillat, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frances Roumillat Jr., received a letter from the White House today.

Sometimes back, 14-year-old Cynthia wrote Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower, wife of the President, asking for a gift for Sanford's All Soul's Winter Festival.

Today a large envelope printed "White House", arrived. With it came a letter from Ann Parsons for Mrs. Eisenhower, secretary for Mrs. Eisenhower, which said, "I am enclosing an engraving of the White House for your All Soul's Winter Festival."

The engraving will be sold at the annual Winter Festival, but the letter will probably be among the keepsakes that are highly valued by Cynthia Roumillat.

New Jersey Holds First Statewide Mobilization Today

TRENTON, N. J.—An official "well done" was stamped today on New Jersey's first statewide mobilization of Civil Defense forces and National Guard units following an air raid alert.

When the siren sounded at 8 p. m. yesterday—during the commuter traffic rush period—the entire populace scurried for shelter.

Traffic halted, and bridges and tunnels linking this state to New York and Pennsylvania were closed during the 10-minute test.

Some 8,000 Civil Defense and National Guardmen took part in the operation.

The two candidates for the Board of Sanford City Commissioners in the Nov. 8 election appeared before the Seminole County Jaycees yesterday at the noon luncheon meeting.

Merle Warner, local filling station owner and operator, and David Gatchel, locker plant co-owner and operator, told the Jaycees how they felt toward the various issues to probably face the city in the immediate future.

Gatchel said that a four-point program on the part of the city commission should be adopted. They are, he said, "increasing the percentage of voters in city elections, encouragement of new industry in the city, an expanded city recreation program, and good relationships with the Navy."

Basing his talk primarily on the six questions submitted to each candidate by The Sanford Herald, Gatchel told the Jaycees and radio audience that "as to the question of a Florida Power and Light Company franchise, frankly, I do not know. My mind is open." He added, at the conclusion of his ten-minute talk, "I will not be a rubber stamp for any group."

Warner, very briefly, told the local Jaycee organization, "you know my views, you are familiar with the open stand I take on the questions before us, and I earnestly solicit your support."

Questions from the audience were answered by both candidates on a seaford disposal plant for Sanford, a port terminal, and the securing of industry for the area.

Also to come before the candidates was the question of fluoridation of the city water; Warner frankly told his audience that "I'm no doctor, and all I know about the question is what I read about it. If the doctors say that it is good enough for us, then I believe the doctors."

Gatchel, however, attacked the cost of the water processing. He said, "it's an awfully expensive process, Sanford being saddled with high debts I doubt if we could afford it."

Wounded During Fight

Carnegie Fund Tells Recipients

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—The Carnegie Trust Fund commission announced today awards of honor medals to three Florida men for outstanding acts of bravery in 1941.

The recipients were: John F. Conway, 34, of Oviedo, who was shot and permanently disabled as he attempted to save a woman from being harmed by a crazed gunman.

Gilbert A. White, 31, of 1008 Cherry Road, West Palm Beach, who drove his car into a canal in an unsuccessful effort to keep from striking a careless school boy on a bicycle.

Finley Kirklighter, 27, of 1041 20th St. South, Ft. Pierce, who saved a boy from being hit by a train.

In most cases, the commission does not reveal what, if any, cash award accompany the medal. In the case of Conway, however, it disclosed that he will receive disability benefits of $84 a month.

On the night of April 9, 1941, Willie Carwise, a 23-year-old Negro, entered the home of Police Chief Robert Mellon at Oviedo while the chief was on patrol duty. Carwise pointed a gun at Mrs. Mellon and told her he wanted to kill his estranged wife, Augusta 21.

Carwise told Mrs. Mellon to telephone her husband and tell him to bring Mrs. Carwise to the Mellon home to be killed. Pretending to dial the police station, Mrs. Mellon called the nearby Courier residence.

Courier, a sales manager, put a revolver in his pocket, ran into the Mellon home and grappled with Carwise. In the fight, Courier was shot in the neck. The bullet lodged in his spinal column.

Summoned by Carwise's wife, Mellon drove home but was discovered by Carwise. Carwise, George Kelley and another man, George Means, arrived shortly afterward and also were taken prisoner.

Carwise soon forced Means to drive into his wife's home where he shot and critically wounded her. Later, he was captured and sentenced to 10 years in prison. Courier and Mrs. Carwise both recovered but Courier suffered a permanent partial disablement.

E. Bud Avery Wins Dismissal

MIAMI BEACH.—E. Bud Avery, 38, son of Chicago's Democratic boss Jacob M. Avery, won dismissal in municipal court today of charges that grew out of a "lovers' quarrel."

Avery was charged with breaking into and entering the home of an attractive divorcee, Mrs. Jane Aronson, residing at 1000 N. Beach, and breach of the peace by slugging his wife.

Mrs. Aronson had told detectives that Avery came to her window at 3 a. m. Sunday, and when refused admittance tipped the screen off a back door and smashed through a glass panel. He slung into her bedroom and demanded that she go to Georgia with him immediately to get married.

She refused and Avery ran to the bathroom and cut his left wrist, Mrs. Aronson said.

Avery told Judge Albert Saperstein today that he and Mrs. Aronson would be married soon. He had little else to say.

The judge lectured him and dismissed the charges.

Merchants Not Called On Asked To Contact CoFC

"Not near all of our merchants, business and professional men, and interested persons who should be members of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, were called on during our recent membership drive," said Clifford McKibbin, Membership Drive Chairman today.

"So many of our merchants and other members, bring their memberships to the Chamber of Commerce office themselves each year," McKibbin said, "and to add their names to our list of prospects would have lengthened the drive and consumed so much valuable time of the businessmen who were volunteers during the campaign."

"We are sincerely hoping that those who were not called on will immediately get in touch with the Chamber of Commerce office relative to their membership," he said.

"Every attempt to contact all of the new businesses in our county was made during the membership campaign," the Membership chairman said this morning, "but we know that there are probably some that we missed." Those new business houses, merchants, and professional men that we did not contact will do us a favor by calling the Chamber of Commerce office and bringing their names so that someone can call and explain our Chamber of Commerce plan for the coming year, Clifford McKibbin said.

So far this year, he said, we have a total of 55 new membership units, with a total of 37 merchants or businessmen increasing their memberships over last year.

"We made a remarkable showing in our membership campaign this year," said McKibbin, "and we sincerely believe that with the renewed effort and interest created by the many contacts made during the membership drive, they will surely come some wonderful good."

Additional members to the names already reported are as follows:

Dr. O. I. Barke, Gordon E. Bradley, A. Constantine, J. E. Cordell, Jimmie Cowan, C. B. Dawson, Dr. A. W. Epps, Gordon V. Frederick, J. Q. Galloway, Roy Holler, Hunter Lee & Ford Company, Ben Kals, W. E. Kirchhoff Jr., I. & L. Iron Works, George A. Maliet, R. T. Mah
