Christensen Singled Out To Join Disney Festivities

By Kathy Tyrity
And
Paul Schaefer

All but one of the Seminole County commissioners were left out of the Walt Disney World extravaganzas this past weekend, although all the commissioners from Orange and Osceola counties were invited, according to Tom Brinkmoeller, Disney publicist.

Barbara Christensen, Seminole County commissioner, received an invitation to all of the media events celebrating Disney's 15th anniversary. "Probably because she has worked closely with the Disney organization in the past," Brinkmoeller said. Although she apparently was invited in a non-official capacity, the Disney spokesman said he was "unclear" on just why she was invited.

Seen Saturday night at the Epcot celebration, Mrs. Christensen said she had received an invitation, but "I don't know why."

Asked if she was scheduled to speak or appear at a ceremony in an official capacity, she said she was not. Asked further if she was to provide media information about Central Florida, she said she was not scheduled to do anything like that. She did say she thought she was the only Seminole County commissioner invited.

Other Seminole County commissioners were asked if they had received invitations, and none of them recalled receiving any, except Mrs. Christensen.

Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff said he wasn't sure if he had gotten an invitation or not.

"We get that kind of stuff all the time. I might have gotten one, but I wouldn't go anyway. That's the last place I'd go," Kirchhoff said. He said he would not go to such an event unless it had a direct benefit to the people he represents.

Said Commissioner Fred Streetman: "I don't remember getting an invitation, but we get a bunch of them. I would not have attended. I go to

Impact Fee Drop Eyed For Sanford

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford commissioners have tentatively endorsed across the board decreases for impact fees developers pay to hook their residential and commercial projects into the city's water and sewer systems.

A proposal to pare the fees was presented to commissioners at a work session Monday by Planning and Engineering Director Bill Simmons.

Simmons' recommendations result from a fee study the city undertook at the request of the Florida Homebuilders Association last summer.

Results of the study, if adopted through ordinance by commissioners in regular session, would decrease the present $1,800 sewer service hook-up and $700 water service hook-up. Under Simmons' recommendation, impact fees for one and two bedroom units and mobile homes go from $1,800 to $1,418 for sewer, and $700 to $583 for water hook-ups. Larger residential units would be charged $1,700 for sewer and $650 for water.

According to Sanford Growth Advisory Board member Pete Knowles, former Sanford city manager, the public actually bears the cost of impact fees because developers add them onto the unit's sale price. Knowles serves as a private development consultant. The Growth Board he sits on was formed last year at the request of the Homebuilders Association.

Simmons said he will meet with the Growth Board and the Homebuilders group to discuss the pared fees before the

Man Shoots Wife, Passerby; Kills Self Woman Feared For Her Life

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

A 40-year-old Sanford man who said "I love you," to his estranged wife before shooting her in the back of the head at about 11 p.m. Monday, later killed himself with a gunshot to the head.

The woman, who reportedly lived in fear of her estranged husband, and a passerby, the son of a prominent Sanford businessman who tried to prevent the shooting, are both wounded and in critical condition at an Orlando hospital.

Dead is Robert Shaw of Sailpointe Apartments, Sanford, the gunman.

In critical condition at Orlando Regional Medical Center are Shaw's wife, Mary Ann Shaw, 42, of 2580 Ridgewood Ave., Sanford, from a gunshot wound to the head; and Jeffrey D. Dickey, 30, of P.O. Box 878 W.

Eighth St., Sanford, the son of John and Suzanne Dickey who and operates McRoberts Tire in downtown Sanford. The younger Dickey, who works for Ball Trucking in Sanford, was shot in the neck.

The tragic shooting occurred as Mrs. Shaw was en route to her job at Stromberg-Carlson in Lake Mary. She was a passenger in a car driven by her supervisor, Horace W. Starns, 46, of Eustis.

Here's the account of the shooting, according to police:

Shaw had picked up Mrs. Shaw at her home and was driving along State Road 46A. As he approached Rinehart Road at Oaklawn Cemetery in Lake Mary, a car driven by Shaw pulled in front of Starns' car and stopped abruptly, causing Starns' car to crash into it. Behind Starns' car was young Dickey in a Ford pickup truck who stopped behind the two cars blocking the roadway. Shaw jumped out of his car brandishing a small-calibre handgun. As he approached Starns' car, Dickey jumped out of his truck carrying an axe handle. Dickey chased Shaw around Starns' car. When Shaw reached the driver's side of Starns' car, he turned suddenly and fired twice at Dickey. One of the bullets struck the young man in the neck just below the left ear. Dickey fell wounded to the ground, but was still conscious.

Shaw opened the driver's door of Starns' car, and leaning over Starns, pointed the gun at Mrs. Shaw, said, "I love you," and fired a single shot into the back of her head. Ignoring Starns, Shaw returned to his car and drove off.

Lake Mary Attorney Resigns

By Kathy Tyrity
Herald Staff Writer

"The meetings are too long," explained Lake Mary City Attorney Robert Petree after he stepped down from office in a surprise move Monday.

Just as the new commissioner and charter officials were being confirmed for a year's term, Mayor Dick Feas announced "with deep regrets" the resignation of the city attorney.

"I'll miss you all, but not the one-o'clock meetings," Petree responded. But the deeper reason for his resignation came later.

After the meeting, he explained that he had been city attorney since 1982, working out of his Orlando firm — Bornstein, Petree & Cooper. But whenever his firm represents a developer or major property owner before the city commission, he must abstain from the proceedings, as happened again last week, causing quite a row. Not only that, but his firm now has a policy of not representing anyone wanting to develop property in the Lake Mary area.

"As you can imagine, this is beginning to cost us thousands and thousands of dollars," Petree said.

But Petree said his resignation was not forced

School Employees Active In Board Races

By Paul C. Schaefer
Herald Staff Writer

Two Seminole County school administrators are working in the election bids of two school board candidates seeking the same seat. One is the campaign manager for the incumbent, and the other is the treasurer of the challenger for the seat.

Both administrators say they are acting within school and state policy parameters, which prohibit political activity on school property, or during work hours.

Superintendent of Schools Robert Hughes says the two are abiding by the rules, and have a right to participate in political activities, and those rights are protected by the guarantee of freedom of speech in the U.S. Constitution.

Carey E. Ferrell, the county's assistant superintendent for business and finance, is the treasurer for candidate Ann Neiswender's bid for the board's District 5 board seat, and has been since Mrs. Neiswender announced her candidacy last spring.

Last week, incumbent District 5 board member Jean Bryant announced the appointment of Karen Coleman, spokesman for the school district, as her campaign manager.

"We are operating within the policy restricting what can be done during working hours," Mrs. Coleman said.

Ferrell added, "We cannot use our positions in anyway to influence anyone's vote, and cannot carry out any campaign activities during working hours."

Mrs. Coleman said school officials participating in political races are "historically not unusual," and that she has "been active in other campaigns."

A Lake Mary High School, soccer coach Larry McCorkle was recently verbally reprimanded by principal Don Reynolds for mixing school business and politics.

McCorkle, who is helping with the District 1 election campaign of school board candidate Larry Betsinger, sent a soccer team-related letter to parents of team members in August, which reportedly included a paragraph asking for support of Betsinger in his race against incumbent board member Bill Kroll.

McCorkle said he produced the letter on his own time, and paid for the mailing himself, to avoid a conflict of interest. But Reynolds said the mistake came when team business was mixed into the same letter with the pitch for Betsinger.

Hughes called the letter a "minor discrepancy," which would not threaten McCorkle's employment status, although he was investigating the incident.

"Every election, employees of the school system have been actively involved, within the restrictions," Hughes said. "They have all the rights, responsibilities, and privileges as any citizen."

"Teachers and employees have historically become involved with campaigns for both incumbents and challengers," Hughes continued. "It's an individual decision, but they can participate in the political area."

He added that board members running for re-election can attend school meetings and functions in board member capacity, but can't campaign at them.

"They can't mix school business and political business under the same hat at the same time," Hughes said, adding that Ferrell and Mrs. Coleman are only

Longwood Blocks Funeral Home, Again

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

A conditional use request to operate a funeral home in a C-2 commercial zoning district was denied for the second time Monday night by the Longwood City Commission in a 4-1 vote.

Now the applicant Cy J. Case, president of the company that operates 18 Garden Chapel funeral homes in the state, says he may sue the city. "I have no other choice unless the city wants to buy my property and find me a suitable site."

He said he paid $200,000 for the property on State Road 434 and spent $15,000 on engineering, surveys, soil testing and other things he said city staff told him he would have to do.

On August 18, following an emotional public hearing at which Case was not present, Commissioners voted unanimously to deny the request. A second hearing was scheduled at the request of attorneys for Case, who said their client was not properly notified of the first hearing so that he could be present.

Case said a 120-day agreement that made his purchase of the property conditional on city approval has now expired because of city requirements and the necessity for holding a second hearing.

Mayor Larry Goldberg passed the gavel to Deputy Mayor June Lormann in order to make the motion to deny the conditional use request, saying it was for safety aspects, because of traffic conditions on State Road 434. Commissioners Ed Myers, June Lormann, and Harvey Smerlison voted with Goldberg, while Perry Faulkner cast the only no vote. Faulkner said, "It is a touchy and delicate situation, but my decision is based on the fact that Case has complied with all the regulations."

Lormann accused Case of trying to intimidate the commission by bringing with him his lawyer, Gary E. Shader of Shader and Stern, Altamonte Springs and traffic engineering consultant, Andy Nunez, to help present his case and a court reporter to record the proceedings.

Longwood osteopathic physician James J. Hynick, who has an office at 301 State Road 434, (east of Oleander Street) next to the proposed funeral home site, was back again to oppose the operation of a funeral home there. Several of his patients also spoke out against the funeral home and told

Nominee Gets Lift To White House

A Lake Mary developer is to fly Florida Republican gubernatorial nominee Bob Martinez to Washington and back today.

Martinez is scheduled to meet with President Reagan while in the Capital.

Larry Dale, Lake Mary, who recently purchased a twin engine Cessna Citation jet in Kansas City, Missouri, will co-pilot the craft along with chief pilot Jan Watkins, Sanford, who is based at the Sanford Central Florida Airport.

"I'm looking forward to being able to chat with Mr. Martinez during the flight," Dale said Monday evening. He said he has known Martinez for about a year and a half, and met him through Martinez's running mate, State Rep. Bobby Bouslog, Longwood.

Martinez won his party's nomination for governor last week.

Dale said he didn't know if he would accompany Martinez and his wife Mary Ann, Tampa, to the White House this afternoon, but said he wouldn't turn down the opportunity if it was presented.

Martinez's campaign spokesman David Dignam said this morning that the Martinez group, which also included campaign aid Sam Ballard and a news media representative, left Tampa this morning for Jacksonville to attend a campaign finance breakfast. They were scheduled to leave Jacksonville at 10 a.m. and arrive in

Lightning, Rain Delay Shuttle Move To Launch Pad

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — With safety the watchword, the shuttle Atlantis's planned move to the launch pad today for seven weeks of key tests was delayed until early Wednesday because of lightning and thunderstorms in the area.

Atlantis, mounted atop a ponderous crawler-transporter, had been scheduled to begin the seven-hour trip at 12:01 a.m. EDT to the same pad Challenger used Jan. 28 when it took off on its fatal voyage.

But Atlantis's long-awaited trip to the pad, the first such shuttle move since the Challenger disaster, was put on hold shortly after midnight because of lightning within 25 miles of the spaceport.

Once at launch pad 39B, Atlantis, scheduled for its first post-Challenger launch in May 1988, will be used to test new safety procedures and to check out a sophisticated weather protection system designed to protect a shuttle's sensitive heat-shield tiles.

Poor More Likely To Get Cancer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The poor, regardless of race or ethnicity, are more likely than the rich to get cancer and die from it — perhaps because of their predilection to smoke and drink, an American Cancer Society study shows.

The report of the major two-year study, released Monday, reveals that all people below the poverty level have a long-term cancer survival rate of 10 percent to 15 percent below the average American survival rate of approximately 50 percent.

Poor Americans also have an estimated 60 percent greater chance of developing lung cancer than Americans above the poverty level, said epidemiologist Lawrence Garfinkel of the American Cancer Society.

The chances of the poor getting esophageal and stomach cancers are 300 percent and 100 percent greater than average, he said.

Nominee Says Veto Fight Over

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's choice to be the first black ambassador to South Africa insists the administration shares the view of Congress toward apartheid despite last week's veto fight on the issue of economic sanctions.

Edward Perkins, the black career diplomat nominated by Reagan as the new U.S. envoy to Pretoria, said the battle over how to pressure the white minority government end its system of racial segregation is now part of the past.

"If confirmed, I can assure you that I will do everything in my power to advance (U.S.) interests in the Republic of South Africa," Perkins said Monday at his confirmation hearing before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The committee was expected to vote today in favor of the nomination and send it to the full Senate for confirmation.

Suspect Linked To Radicals

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (UPI) — A man charged in a series of bombings attended the white-supremacist Aryan Nations Church and lived with a church security guard who last week was accused of counterfeiting and found with explosive powder, authorities say.

Robert Elliot Pires, 22, was arrested, charged at a District Court hearing and jailed without bail on Monday — one week after three explosions rocked downtown Coeur d'Alene.

Pires is accused of detonating two of the three Sept. 29 blasts — at a federal building and a retail complex — and a bomb that exploded two weeks earlier at the home of Bill Wassmuth, a civil rights leader who has opposed the Aryan Nations.

Summit May Delay Arms Debate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A compromise may be in the works on five controversial House-passed arms control requirements that critics say could weaken President Reagan's position at the weekend superpower meeting in Iceland.

House Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas said Monday that lawmakers were talking with the White House about delaying at least some of the stipulations until the spring, and one House source said a resolution of the matter could emerge tonight or Wednesday.

Both the House defense authorization bill and its version of the huge fiscal 1987 government spending bill contain the arms provisions that have triggered a Reagan veto threat. The issues were not included in Senate versions.

LaRouche Offices Raided; Securities Fraud Charged

LEESBURG, Va. (UPI) — Federal and state authorities have seized evidence allegedly linking an organization affiliated with political extremist Lyndon LaRouche to a million-dollar securities and credit card fraud scheme.

Authorities confiscated the documents in a raid before dawn Monday on two buildings used by the LaRouche organization, just hours before a federal grand jury in Boston indicted 10 people in connection with the case.

The indictments culminated a two-year investigation into the scheme involving 200,000 unauthorized credit charges totaling more than $1 million.

Four of the 10 people charged were arrested immediately in Virginia and Pennsylvania. The whereabouts of the others was not immediately known.

Two of those arrested, Jeffrey and Michelle Steinberg, were described by Justice Department spokesman Pat Korten as part of the LaRouche "inner circle." They were charged with credit card fraud and tax evasion.

Roy Frankhauser, said to be a member of LaRouche's security team, was arrested in Pennsylvania for obstruction of justice.

Though numerous probes of the LaRouche operation have been conducted around the country, the Boston grand jury returned the first federal indictments against 10 people, two corporations and three campaign committees connected with LaRouche in the nationwide scheme.

LaRouche, 64, a radical presidential candidate who contends Queen Elizabeth is involved in international drug smuggling, lives on a heavily fortified $1.3 million estate near Leesburg. His whereabouts were not immediately known, but a spokeswoman said it was believed he was in Loudoun County, Va., outside Washington, D.C.

Ed Spannaus, legal coordinator for LaRouche's campaign publications and the treasurer of his 1988 presidential campaign, called the raid "one of the biggest political dirty tricks in history" and said the timing was "quite significant since it comes about four weeks before the November general elections."

Spannaus said William Weld, the former U.S. attorney in Boston who now heads the Justice Department's criminal division, was "on a fishing expedition."

The raid at 6:45 a.m. EDT was led by dozens of agents from the Justice Department, FBI, Secret Service, Internal Revenue Service, Postal Service and Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, aided by about 50 state troopers. Justice Department papers said LaRouche aides forged credit card forms for amounts ranging from $45 to $2,500 using Visa, MasterCard or American Express numbers of people who subscribed to LaRouche magazines or contributed to his campaign.

The money, said Korten, was used "to support the activities of the LaRouche empire."

Bert Rohrer, spokesman for Virginia Attorney General Mary Sue Terry, said people had complained that amounts charged to their credit cards were in excess of those they authorized to the LaRouche group.

In response to written questions from United Press International in April, LaRouche said he received no money himself from his organizations.

"I am associated with two organizations which do have regular income, although I receive no personal compensation from either," he said. "One is a publication organization whose income is derived from sales of periodicals and other publications; the other is a non-profit scientific association whose income is from sales of publications and memberships."

Poet Laureate Scolds Educators

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's first Poet Laureate has little to say about his title, but he has some strong words about the demise of a once-common classroom exercise: memorizing poetry and "hearing it in your head."

Robert Penn Warren, 81, and the author of more than 50 books of poetry, fiction and criticism, was named in February to a one-year term as the United States' first official Poet Laureate.

He met with reporters before giving his first public reading Monday in the new job at the Library of Congress.

"Memorization doesn't exist," Warren said when asked about the state of current interest in poetry. "I remember a long generation ago, on a Friday afternoon (reciting) a long poem."

"Memory is the thing that counts. Hearing it in your head."

He lamented that schools today provide "no general education" in poetry, and that students are not exposed to poetry "unless they have a special interest in it."

When he was appointed to the newly created position — superseding the job of Consultant in Poetry, which he also held between 1944-45 — Warren made light of the post, saying that he would not write poems "to order" honoring the death of presidents' kittens and suggesting the job was more in keeping with a monarchy than a democracy.

Warren noted that in England, the title of laureate is for life and said, "I don't think that role is very interesting to us."

He continued to be self-effacing about his role.

Asked if the new title would increase the American public's interest in poetry, Warren shot back: "I wouldn't know. The thing to do is not to reduce it."

Warren, who has won three Pulitzer Prizes — two for poetry and one for his most famous novel, "All the King's Men," also wryly dismissed his own output.

Rivers Receding; Problems Persist

Rivers receded today in much of the Plains and Midwest, but floodwaters poured through a broken Missouri River levee, an Oklahoma town still looked like a "big lake" and the rising Mississippi forced evacuations.

The floods have been blamed for 14 deaths and hundreds of millions of dollars in damage. Most of the 42,000 people evacuated have returned to begin cleaning up, but 7,000 people in Missouri remained out of their homes, officials said.

In Oklahoma, the Neosho River created Monday night in Miami, forcing 250 people to flee and prompting Northeastern Oklahoma A&M College to cancel classes until Oct. 13. Another 500 people remained away from their homes in Bartlesville, where damage was estimated at more than $100 million.

"It's probably more," said Ann Tierney, civil defense spokesman. "It looks like one big lake out there. About 90 to 100 houses have water midway to three-fourths up the house. A lot of them are just completely ruined. The floor fell out of one when they tried to move back in."

In Dewey, Okla., authorities said looters ransacked some empty homes.

Most of the 300 residents of Kaaskakia, Ill., on an island in the rising Mississippi, were either protecting their homes with sandbags or had fled.

The National Weather Service predicted the Mississippi River would crest Wednesday at 40.5 feet at St. Louis, more than 10 feet above flood stage.

If the prediction holds true, the flood would be the second-highest on record in St. Louis. The Mississippi rose to a record 43.2 feet in April 1973.

About 800 people in St. Charles County, Mo., were advised to leave their homes Monday because of a broken Missouri River levee. Flooding along the Missouri kept 7,000 people out of their homes, officials said.

In Hermann, flood damage was estimated at between $2 million and $3 million. Four to 6 feet of water covered streets in Rhineland and the town bank was flooded.

High water delayed damage estimates in Missouri and Oklahoma, but losses have been estimated at $36 million in Montana and $40 million in Illinois.

Agricultural losses in Kansas, where 300,000 acres were under water last week, have been put at $60 million. Kansas Gov. John Carlin asked President Reagan to declare disaster areas in nine counties.

"People are literally trying to collect their items out of tree tops over the river," Community Development Director Don Russell said in Fort Scott. "Some people were left with nothing but the clothes on their back."

Illinois Gov. James Thompson Monday declared five counties state disaster areas, bringing the total to eight. More than 15,000 people were evacuated in the state. Most have returned, but what they found was not always pleasant.

"There are about a zillion dead worms in my basement," said Diane Holst of Gurnee, Ill. "It smells like dead carp."

Fourteen deaths have been blamed on the floods since Sept. 13 — four in Illinois, three in Minnesota, three in Missouri and one each in Oklahoma, Texas, Montana and Pennsylvania.

In the East today, frost and freeze warnings were posted in West Virginia, New York, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Firing Of Truck Driver Upheld By Labor Board

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A non-union employee has no protection under federal labor law from being fired for complaining to a government agency about company safety violations, the National Labor Relations Board ruled.

In an opinion released Monday, the labor board for the second time upheld the 1979 firing of a truck driver who reported safety violations to a state agency in Tennessee, saying it is not "a forum in which to rectify all the injustices of the workplace."

The case is expected to be appealed to the Supreme Court. The controversial finding reaffirmed a 1984 NLRB ruling that was overturned by a federal appeals court in 1985. The case has been litigated since 1979 and involves the definition of "concerted activity" by employees — protected by federal labor law.

The NLRB said that while unionized employees enjoy broad protections under the National Labor Relations Act, a non-union employee can be fired if he acts alone in filing a complaint about his company's violation of safety laws.

The case began when Meyers Industries Inc. of Tecumseh, Mich., fired truck driver Kenneth P. Prill in 1979 after he complained about faulty brakes and a defective steering mechanism on a company truck.

Prill would not drive the unsafe rig after an accident in Tennessee and reported the defects to the state's transportation agency. After an inspection, state officials found Meyers Industries in violation of several federal safety regulations.

Prill, who refused an order to drive the truck back to Michigan, was fired.

The NLRB ruled that the firing was legal because Prill, a non-union employee, had not discussed his safety concerns with fellow workers and had acted "solely on his own behalf."

Court Will Weigh Scope Of Racial Bias

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, revealing its first decisions under the stewardship of Chief Justice William Rehnquist, agreed Monday to consider the rights of ethnic and religious minorities to file racial discrimination suits.

The court returned to the bench on the traditional first Monday in October with Rehnquist taking the seat at the center of the mahogany bench as the nation's 16th chief justice. Rehnquist, an associate justice since 1972, replaced Chief Justice Warren Burger, who retired after 17 years.

Antonin Scalia joined the court as Rehnquist's replacement and took the seat at his far left as the court's junior member. The seat-shuffling was the first since 1981, when Justice Sandra Day O'Connor joined the court as its first woman member. The high court took no formal notice of the changes.

The justices selected only a handful of the roughly 1,000 cases that piled up during their summer recess for full hearings and two of them are related discrimination cases — one brought by a group of Jews whose synagogue was defaced and the other by an Arab college professor denied tenure — that could open federal courts to a flood of disputes.

Both cases concern whether citizens not generally considered "racially distinct" may claim racial discrimination in filing a federal civil complaint. Federal appeals courts took differing stands on whether the separate suits could proceed, prompting the Supreme Court to step in in its role as judicial referee.

In other actions announced Monday, the court:

—Let stand a ruling that Kodak infringed on patents held by Polaroid in a case that forced Kodak out of the multimillion-dollar instant photography business.

—Sent to trial a lawsuit against the government designed to force the IRS to end the tax exempt status of the Roman Catholic church because of its political activity. The court refused to hear an appeal by the government of a 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decision that cleared the way for a trial.

—Said it will review a 125-year-old precedent and decide if courts can force a governor to extradite a fugitive. The case stems from Puerto Rico's five-year pursuit of an Iowa man accused of murder.

—Refused, for the fourth time, to clear the name of Dr. Jeffrey

MacDonald, a former Green Beret, rejecting arguments he was denied a fair trial when he was convicted of the brutal 1970 murders of his wife and two daughters.

The court hears only about 150 cases per term and already has on its agenda a dispute over the teaching of "creationism" in public schools, a major challenge to the death penalty, and a continuation of its review of affirmative action plans.

One of the discrimination cases involves members of the Shaare Tefila Congregation synagogue in the Washington suburb of Silver Spring, Md., who filed a federal civil rights suit against some young men who painted swastikas and slogans — including "Take a shower Jew" and "Dead Jew" — on the walls of the building.

In the other case, Majid Ghaidan Al-Khazraji, a Moslem born in Iraq, claims he was the victim of discrimination when the board of trustees at St. Francis College in Loretto, Pa., voted against granting him tenure.

First Lady Recovers From Fall

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nancy Reagan, a former actress accustomed to the stage, rose quickly to the occasion after falling from one at a White House concert.

The first lady landed with a loud thud when her gold-backed chair tipped over and fell sideways to the bare floor from a 3-foot platform Sunday. She immediately got up and returned to the stage, where startled pianist Vladimir Horowitz hugged her tightly.

"That's the reason I did this," Mrs. Reagan told him, smiling. Horowitz beamed, and the East Room audience — which erupted in a chorus of gasps and "ooohs" when she tumbled from the platform — breathed a collective sigh of relief to see that she and her sense of humor were not injured.

The accident occurred as President Reagan was delivering a post-concert tribute to Horowitz, the 82-year-old Ukrainian-born pianist who recently received the Medal of Freedom in an Oval Office ceremony.

Mrs. Reagan, wearing a winter-white wool dress, rose from her chair to straighten the back of her skirt. The chair tipped over and took her with it to the floor, where she landed on her side.

Assuring her concerned husband and friends she was "all right," Mrs. Reagan got back on the stage and the president came up with a one-liner of his own.

"Honey," he said, "I told you to do that only if I didn't get any applause."

"I certainly livened things up," rejoined the former actress who followed her leading man from his Hollywood career to the White House.

Reagan, pausing with a familiar "Well," looked again at his wife and resumed his remarks, praising Horowitz as one of the first artists to go to the Soviet Union after Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev agreed to reinstitute cultural exchanges at their November 1985 summit in Geneva last November.

C'mon, Jimmy Get Real Mad

Jimmy Carter's problem was always that he never could be sure exactly what he thought. Having won the presidency after running for office as a social conservative, he soon found himself under the influence of the Democrats' McGovernite wing, and never seemed to be sure whether he was coming or going.

Well, it looks like he's still kind of mixed up. Attempting to tell off Jerry Falwell for questioning the world view of anyone who could author the SALT II and Panama Canal treaties, Carter raged, "Jerry Falwell can — in a very Christian way — as far as I'm concerned, he can go to hell."

That's raging for Carter. Jerry Falwell may be forgiven some confusion about how he can proceed toward the designated destination in a Christian way.

Now Falwell was decidedly off base in asserting that no Christian could associate himself with those treaties, which are far from divinely inspired but not clearly diabolical either. So, tell him off, Carter — in no uncertain terms.

Americans appreciate forcefulness in their politicians. Ronald Reagan will leave office as one of the most popular presidents ever in large part because he knows exactly what he thinks and doesn't hesitate to say it.

Leif Columbus Be

When Christopher Columbus made his first voyage to America, the world was forever changed. Fortunately for us, nobody asked the world beforehand whether it thought the trip was a good idea.

Spain is currently preparing a world's fair to commemorate the 500th anniversary of its sponsorship of Columbus's explorations, and in that connection asked the United Nations for a resolution memorializing the event.

That was four years ago and the debate has been raging on ever since. Iceland complained that any recognition of Columbus would be a slap in Leif Ericson's face.

With the start of a new session, the incoming president of the General Assembly, Humayun Rasheed Choudhury of Bangladesh, has finally gavelled the controversy to a close.

We'll Export Peas That Split In The Night

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In its current issue, a foreign agriculture publication poses the rhetorical question of whether technology can "recapture export markets."

To answer rhetorically, of course it can. Split-pea soup makes a good prime meal example.

I don't know whether that product represents a plus or a minus on the export market, but I understand, rhetorically, that in some underdeveloped countries, soup-makers still split peas the old-fashion way, by hand, the way they split infinitives.

(Split-infinitive soup is a different product that we, fortunately, don't have to get into right now. I can tell you, however, that any student who split an infinitive in Miss Pringle's English class definitely was in the soup. Or at least in hot water.)

If you have any rhetorical memories of your own mother slaving over a hot peavine, you can readily appreciate why some emerging, and importing, nations need mechanical pea-splitters.

I'm not talking about big assembly-line pea-splitters of the type canned soup companies might use. I'm talking about portable pea-splitters small enough to fit into the average kitchen.

Furthermore, our technocrats shouldn't fool around with plug-in portable pea-splitters. Average kitchens in many underdeveloped countries probably don't have electricity.

To make an attractive export item, and to avoid making a false prophet of me, portable pea-splitters should be truly mechanical — the kind a soup-maker turns with a crank, or something.

While we're being rhetorical about it, let's take technology a step farther and call in the genetic engineers.

They produce a new type of pea seed. No longer need soup-makers split peas by hand or with portable splitters. These peas come off the vine already split. All a soup-maker need do is open the pod.

Obviously, the genetic engineers also should change the color.

As things now stand, most peas split for soup are greenish. That hue distinguishes them from black-eyed peas, which are brownish.

Most green peas, also for American growers, are called English peas. Small wonder the British Isles have a shot at the export market, such as it is, without or without a portable splitter.

What is required at this point is the development of good ol' American pre-split peas that can be called by that name.

Red peas probably won't get the job done. There already are some red beans that can be split into a pretty good lentil soup.

No, if technology is really to recapture export markets, I recommend that genetic engineers create an American seed that produces cantaloupe-colored peas.

In other words, these seeds grow into peas that not only are pre-split but are yellowish-orange and come in mottled pods. There is no mistaking them for English peas.

Come to think of it, a purple lemon that tastes sweet might not be a bad idea either, exportwise. Rhetorically speaking.

Doomed Zaccaro House

In ancient Greek tragedies, the hero foredoomed himself by committing the sin of hubris — an act of wanton insolence against the gods, arising from excessive pride, or from passion. The terrible fate that then befell him was tragic precisely because it seemed excessive.

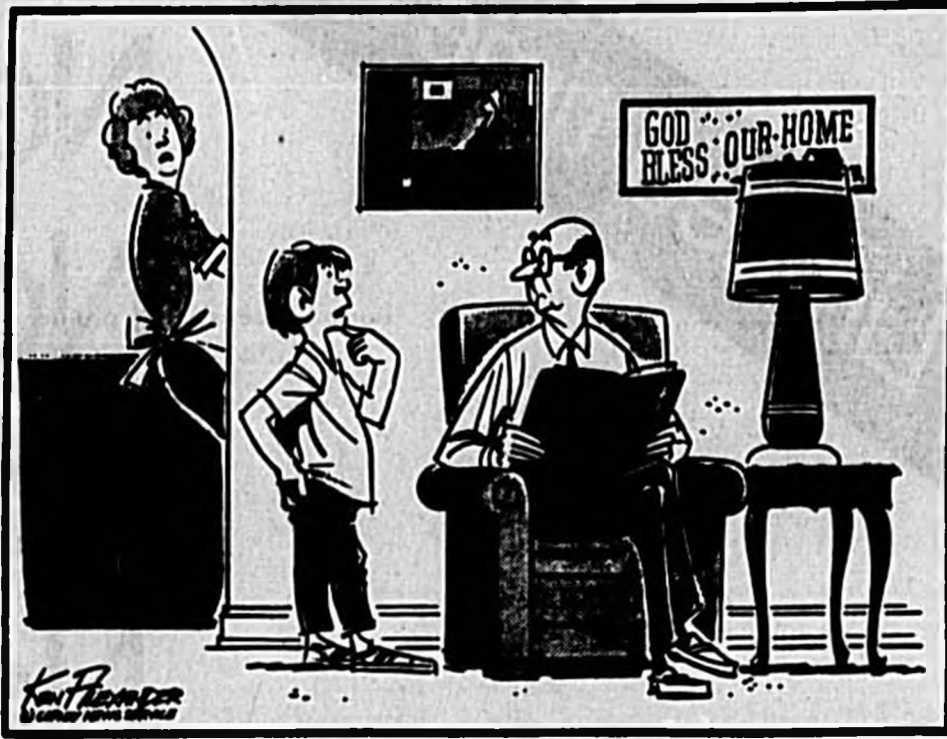

Recalling this ancient formula, one cannot help wondering whether some grim act of hubris lies at the bottom of the incredible series of disasters that has overtaken the family of John Zaccaro since his wife, Geraldine Ferraro, accepted the Democratic vice presidential nomination in August 1984.

It is easy enough, in retrospect, to say that Ferraro and her husband ought to have realized the ferocious intensity of the light that beats down upon the national nominees of the two major parties. But for Geraldine Ferraro at least, the excitement of becoming the first woman ever to receive such a nomination must temporarily have obliterated all other considerations.

Investigation of her tax returns quickly established that she had understated her tax liability for 1978 by some $53,000 — a mistake she belatedly rectified and blamed on her tax accountant. Research into her background disclosed that her father died in 1944, just after his indictment for allegedly working a numbers operation in Newburgh, N.Y.

Meanwhile, the press was also nosing into the business affairs of John Zaccaro (who didn't help matters any by cheerfully volunteering that he expected to sit in on Cabinet meetings when his wife was elected vice president). His company quickly turned out to have managed properties tenanted by what police identified as Mafia and organized crime figures, and he had promoted the sale of yet other properties to a top Gambino family crime boss. But the severest blow was a court ruling that he had improperly borrowed $175,000 from that incompetent widow's estate. (He later repaid the sum.)

What's more, we may not yet have reached the bottom of the Zaccaro barrel. At this writing, a grand jury is still weighing perjury and perhaps other charges against a high Queens judicial official who has been close to the family. Apparently the gods are still grimly pursuing the doomed House of Zaccaro.

ROBERT WAGMAN

S&L Regulatory Feud

IRVINE, Calif. (NEA) — The head of one of the larger savings and loan institutions in the United States is in the middle of an important battle over federal regulatory policy. It's a clash with national ramifications that has turned into an angry personal feud.

Charles H. Keating Jr. is chairman of the holding company that owns Lincoln Savings and Loan — a $4 billion S&L, one of California's largest.

To hear Keating tell it, he and his financial institution are being harassed by Edwin Gray, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, the U.S. government regulator of S&Ls.

Keating is a major spokesman for the portion of his industry that is opposed to Gray's tight regulatory philosophy.

What's going on? The savings and loan industry is in trouble. Dozens of S&Ls have been declared insolvent in the last year, and by one estimate there are more than 250 S&Ls around the country today that are technically insolvent.

In recent congressional hearings Gray estimated his agency may have to close as many as 122 problem "thrifts" — as S&Ls are known — in the coming year.

Federally chartered S&Ls are insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, the counterpart of banking's Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. FSLIC officials admit its reserves have declined by $1.3 billion this year because of losses incurred in closing insured S&Ls; and it may be $26 billion short of what it needs to close failing S&Ls in the coming year.

To Gray, the answer is stepped-up federal regulation. He believes less federal regulation would lead to another Maryland-like fiasco.

In Maryland, the entity that regulated insured thrift institutions had become nothing more than a public-relations institution to protect the image of the industry. Several institutions in Maryland failed because of mismanagement — with disastrous results.

Keating, however, has become something of a spokesman for those in the thrift industry who believe restrictive federal regulation is largely responsible for their current problem. Caught in the middle of this growing feud is Congress, which is trying to come up with some kind of long-range plan to save the S&L industry — and protect the millions of depositors who keep their money in thrift accounts.

The S&L industry is itself badly split over the issue of deregulation.

Supporting Gray and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board is the U.S. League of Savings Institutions, the largest lobbying organization for the industry.

But that organization is controlled by smaller institutions that fear being gobbled up by the larger thrifts if deregulation occurs. The larger institutions support deregulation — as well as an attempt to oust Gray.

Keating sees Gray's ouster as a major step in the right direction.

The feud between the two men has grown loud and public. Gray has accused Keating of being out to get him. Keating has accused Gray of using the power of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to harass his financial institution.

SCIENCE WORLD

Worried, But Not Wicked

By Deltha Ricks UPI Science Writer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Step-mothers have been getting a bad rap ever since Cinderella's confined her to the cellar and refused to let her go to the ball, a researcher says.

Constance Ahrons, a sociology professor at the University of Southern California, has found that stepmothers are worried, not wicked.

The study concludes that the role is a lot more difficult than that of stepfather because many women doubt their competence as step-parents and feel they get less support from their mates in parenting matters.

Ahrons suggests two possible reasons for the problems — stepmothers not knowing what role to play when they come into families and society's basic hostile view of stepmotherhood.

"If you look at the stereotypes, they're all negative — they're Cinderella — and we have the same stereotypes about mothers-in-law and both appear to be gender-based."

"Think about it, we don't have the same kind of humor about men. There are no wicked stepfathers."

The sociologist interviewed at regular intervals 98 divorced men and women with children. All surveyed were in their 30s.

She found that at three years after divorce, 58 percent of the women and 76 percent of the men were either remarried or living with someone.

Ahrons noted that unlike the story of Cinderella, stepfamilies usually do not consist of a household of father and children into which the stepmother enters.

In most cases, children remain in the custody of their biological mothers after divorce, but spend weekends, and sometimes summers, with their fathers and stepmothers.

"We're winding up with women who are helping to parent another woman's children and they are confused as to what their role is," Ahrons said.

Because men often remarry women younger than themselves, the age difference between stepmothers and stepchildren may contribute to the confusion women feel about such parenting roles, she said.

The sociologist said stepmothers who fare best in their roles are those who become friends with the mothers of their husbands' children and gain the trust and friendship of the children.

JACK ANDERSON

U.N. Bureaucracy Spends And Spends

By Jack Anderson and Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — In a bizarre twist of policy that has outraged Ronald Reagan's most conservative fans, the White House is fighting to persuade Congress to give more money to the United Nations than it wants to.

The Reagan administration has long been at least a rhetorical repository of criticism aimed at the United Nations for its frequent anti-Americanism and its extravagant spending. So it is particularly discomfiting to hard-line Reagan supporters that the United States has actually been defending the U.N. wastrels against drastic budget cuts proposed by the Soviet Union. The main reason U.S. conservatives detest the United Nations is they believe that it is a Kremlin puppet.

All the partisan budgetary bickering has tended to obscure the incontestable fact that the United Nations is as irresponsible in its spending as in some of its political policies. The U.N. bureaucracy is dominated by representatives of small nations that contribute only a tiny share of the U.N. budget; the biggest chunk is provided by the United States, so the U.N. bureaucracy has little incentive to trim its costs.

Our associate Lucette Lagnado has interviewed current and former officials of the U.S. mission at the United Nations, and compiled a long list of the organization's most outrageous extravaganzas. Here are a few of them:

— The U.N. Secretariat began life in 1946 with 1,546 employees; today, the number is close to 13,000, parceled out among a dizzying array of departments, offices and divisions. The number of member nations has grown in 40 years, of course. But no part of the U.N. bureaucracy ever seems to die, even if its reason for living has long since vanished. There is an entire department to oversee "decolonization," for example. More than half the world was under colonial rule in 1946, but there is a bare handful of such dependencies in the world today. Yet the department lingers on.

— The United Nations is extraordinarily top-heavy, boasting 28 undersecretaries-general and 29 assistant secretaries-general. All of these super-diplomats are handsomely paid, even by the U.N.'s heady standards, and their pensions make retirement truly the Golden Years. An undersecretary-general, for example, gets a lump sum of $350,000 when he totters away from the U.N. trough after 30 years.

— A huge, overlapping structure of informal or ad hoc U.N. bodies has grown up over the years, like some incredible bureaucratic monster. At last count, there were more than 150 committees, commissions, subcommittees, subcommissions and "working groups" drawing U.N. salaries and expenses, with new "subsidiary organs" springing up almost daily.

— Like seasoned bureaucrats anywhere, the U.N.'s time-servers are adept at creating mountains of paperwork to justify their jobs. But the United Nations has a built-in cost escalator that other bureaucracies are spared: Documents deemed worthy of printing and distribution to the general membership must be translated into the six official U.N. languages. One knowledgeable source that estimated that, by the time it has been translated and printed, a single page of U.N. wisdom costs $558.

— Bloated as it is, the U.N. bureaucracy still needs outside help to accomplish its job. The result is that $8 million a year is paid in consulting fees.

— In the gigantic U.N. bureaucracy, duplication is the rule, coordination the exception. Informational and public affairs operations are conducted by at least three departments and one office, with predictable overlapping. No attempt has been made to consolidate these competing mini-empires.

Denial's Defeat

Addict Found Discipline, Self Respect Behind Bars

This is the story of a former Seminole County sheriff's deputy and his battle against cocaine addiction. Parts one and two appeared in Sunday and Monday editions of the Evening Herald.

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer
Last of three parts

Oscar Redden spent the first 45 days in jail on a drug charge thinking of ways to get out, and get out of the drug counseling unit.

He was hard into denial. "The jail's therapeutic environment is jail, make no mistake. It's for people who have problems and want help. You give up some privileges. You have to work, and keep the unit spotless. I mean, there's no restaurant in the state of Florida that could meet those requirements."

The discipline, the rigid rules, are all designed to give recovering inmates self-control and self-respect.

"I'm not perfect but I've learned that there are some things you can do and some things you can't do. My best thinking got me out of Seminole County jail. Now I have to rely on the thinking of others.

"You know. Everybody's got ideas and answers how to avoid doing drugs. But having been in the pit, and felt the heat of the flames, I say to the person who's going in there — don't go in there. That's the only way to avoid it. Don't go in there. There ain't no such thing as an occasional user.

"Imagine the lies a parent has to tell. Extra trips to the bathroom. Putting

'I drew a picture of a dumpster with all these bodies in it and all of these people are on crack dump and they are being swarmed by the flies of addiction.'

—Oscar Redden

the garbage out the day the garbage man don't come, just so he can get outside to his stash... People freaking out over things that are not even happening.

"The typical person is the 'I can handle it person' like the four I used to know. They still think they got no problem. They're still in denial. They're burnt. They're through dealing. They're history.

"Each of these individuals are now on crack dump. That's where all of these people are. I drew a picture of a dumpster with all these bodies in it and all of these people are on crack dump and they are being swarmed by the flies of addiction.

"It's just like a dump. Crack uses you up and throws you aside and gets a new sucker. And it ain't only me. It's anybody who reaches out and puts their hand in there. It's like a vacuum cleaner — shwoosh — and you're in and you can't come out as fast you went in. It takes a lot of work and determination and help from other people.

And Oscar got help, and as the crack changed him, so too did the help.

"I feel like I've got a debt. I feel like I have a debt to Seminole County, The Grove (counseling center), the system. I feel like I've gotten a loan from them, given this chance to get this help. I feel this obligation to give them something back because they gave something to me.

That "something back" is a high profile during his probation period and following that, drug counseling. Oscar also wants to attack the reasons why drugs are popular.

"It's common knowledge that a drug addict will listen to a drug addict. But they are very shrewd. They will listen for some reason to discredit you.

"So I say, 'Let me tell you about me. I was lying, cheating and stealing to support my habit. You don't do that?' Sooner or later you might reach them, in denial, after they fall that low."

But even Oscar realized the limits of good intentions. With the help of Roslyn, his wife, he'd take people in for counseling but "I'd take them in the front door, and as soon as I left, they'd run out the back door."

You can carry the message, but you can't carry the addict."

Still, he gives talks about his addiction and keeps a high profile.

"God didn't allow me to come back to the community to avoid people. They don't have to wonder what I'm doing. My recovery program is not underground. They see me going to my job every day, out with my wife and kids, and not afraid to take a stand against drug addiction.

"I went in. I came out. The taxpayer's money was not wasted.

"We overlook that addiction is a widespread disease in this country. If anything is in, we got to have it. If it looks good on us, we want it.

"We need to take a harder look at the homes and the young people we're bringing up. And start injecting some values and change the patterns of thinking and wants and things like that so that our children don't fall into the same mass production click we've turned them out in.

"They ain't sneaking out of the classroom, one or two at a time, to see the dope fiend on the corner. The whole classroom's goin'."

"I think we need to back up all the way to the home and the psychological preparation of the kids and change the family and instill respect and open communication in the home. Ain't nothing going to change until it is instilled in the home.

"I don't think the police have the resources they need. They do an excellent job with what they got. But they make a bust on 13th Street and there's nine million deals coming in all over town. They make a stop on Interstate 4 getting a few slabs, but not the tractor-trailer load on forty-six. We need to demand more for law enforcement.

"I promise you this. I promise you this. Jails, institutions, debt and grave yards are the ending places of people following addiction to the end.

"Whether you run to the jail, or the jail runs to you, you end up in jail.

Tuxedo Tale Becomes International Spat

LONDON (UPI) — Savile Row tailors dispute an American claim that the tuxedo was a U.S. fashion innovation born 100 years ago this week, asserting their countrymen created the formal garb about 20 years earlier.

"The dinner jacket is older than 100 years," said Angus Cundey, managing director of Henry Poole and Co. tailors on Savile Row, a sartorial street known around the world. "We made a short smoking jacket for the prince of Wales as early as 1865."

The U.S. version of the story goes that in 1886 the Prince of Wales, later King Edward VII, met a New York banker and invited him to the royal estate at Sandringham for the weekend.

The banker asked what he should wear and was told the prince preferred a more casual shortened tail coat to long tails when sitting down to his seven-course meal.

The banker was advised to visit Poole's, the prince's tailor, to have something similar made.

When Potter returned to the United States, he showed the new shorter-tailed style to tobacco heir Griswold Lorillard and fellow members of their "Tuxedo Club" — a retreat for rich men 30 miles from New York.

Lorillard, inspired by the coat, cut the tails completely off his black dress coat.

On Oct. 10, 1886, he sashayed into the club and introduced the tuxedo to the world. It became known as "the jacket they wear at the Tuxedo Club" and ultimately was dubbed simply the tuxedo.

Prince Charles' Former Valet Dies Of AIDS, Paper Says

LONDON (UPI) — Stephen Barry, who served as Prince Charles' personal valet for 12 years but left in 1981 because Princess Diana reportedly did not like him, has died of AIDS at age 37, British newspapers said Monday.

London's St. Stephen's Hospital said Barry died there Saturday but declined to disclose the cause.

Today newspaper said Barry died of acquired immune deficiency syndrome, which robs the body of its immune system, and that the nature of Barry's illness was known to the royal family. Today said it was unlikely Charles would attend the funeral.

A Buckingham Palace spokesman said Barry served as Charles' personal manservant until he "retired" in 1981.

"He was a valet, and that's all we can say. We refuse all other comment on the matter," the spokesman said.

London news reports said he quit shortly after Charles married Princess Diana because Diana did not like him. The palace did not comment on the circumstances of Barry's departure from his job.

Barry fueled his unpopularity with palace officials after he left royal service when he violated protocol restricting disclosure of royal duties, newspapers said.

Two volumes of memoirs — "Royal Service" and "Royal Secrets" — detailing his work and travels with Prince Charles were published in the United States but British publishers refused to handle them in deference to the palace.

The London reports said he made at least $1 million from the books in the United States and settled briefly in San Francisco before returning home to die from AIDS.

Substance Speeds Wound Healing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientists are testing a futuristic substance that drastically reduces the time it takes wounds and burns to heal and could save millions of dollars a year in hospital costs, a researcher said Monday.

The substance, a genetically engineered version of a hormone called epithelial growth factor, or "EGF," is one of many produced by the body to stimulate cell reproduction.

The hormones, when applied to eye wounds induced in laboratory animals, cut healing time by as much as half, said Dr. Richard Efferman, director of the Corneal External Disease Service in the Department of Ophthalmology at the University of Louisville School of Medicine in Kentucky.

Scientists have begun testing the substance in human patients in the last 10 days at selected medical centers around the country, Efferman said. He declined to provide further details.

Thrifty Asian-Americans Prime Targets For Financial Services

NEW YORK (UPI) — Generally thrifty Asian-Americans could become an ideal customer group for financial services companies that can successfully market their products to people who are often wary of securities.

"Most Asian-Americans tend to want to save money and invest the money in physically tangible things like buildings," said Alan Levin, senior researcher of Langer Associates Inc., a New York-based market and opinion research firm.

"Abstract things like stocks and bonds are scary and risky to them, or they don't know anything about them."

Educating these people about products would be helpful for financial institutions including life insurance companies, mutual funds and even brokerages, he said.

"Right now, conservative products have the best chance. But with education and assimilation, the Asian-American community can learn to accept some small amount of risk on the chance of getting a greater gain," said Levin who has conducted a study on the Asian-American community, particularly Chinese, Koreans, Vietnamese and Filipinos, for Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

For education and marketing, he recommended Asian-language advertisement tailored for Asian cultures in community newspapers.

Asian-Americans, especially those who have been living in the United States for less than eight years, feel more comfortable with their own languages than with English and remain in their own cultures, Levin said.

Those cultures vary, but they generally emphasize thrift, respect for elders and love of children, he said.

Metropolitan Life has targeted the Asian-American community since early this year and has developed a cohesive marketing strategy based on Levin's study, said Teresa Mak, assistant market director for personal insurance sales.

The New York-based life insurance giant has employed 350 Asian-American insurance sales agents and is advertising to Chinese and Koreans in their languages in local newspapers and sales literature.

The initial targets are Chinese and Koreans because they account for more than 30 percent of the Asian-American population. The program could become more specific and expand to cover Vietnamese, Filipinos, Indians, Pakistanis and Japanese, Mak said.

Advertisements in the two languages show a picture of a man hugging a child and say: "Remember, your insurance program is your child's security blanket."

They described savings features of life insurance. Levin's study, conducted among some of Metropolitan's Asian-American agents, indicated a popular product in the community is a universal life variant of whole life insurance, which earns competitive market interest rates like savings accounts.

Metropolitan's Asian-American program follows a successful two-year ethnic marketing program that boosted its market share and consumer awareness ranking to No. 1 from fourth in the top seven Hispanic markets in the United States.

Asian-American population was estimated at 5.1 million by the U.S. Census Bureau last year.

The high income and education levels combined with thrift and their cultural background make Asian-Americans "good insurance prospects," Mak said. "It's an excellent market."

Screams Foil Purse Snatching, Suspect Arrested

Casselberry police reported catching a 21-year-old Orlando man less than 20 minutes after he allegedly tried to snatch the purse of an 42-year-old Casselberry woman at Oxford Square, State Road 436, Casselberry, at about 8:04 p.m. Saturday.

The suspect was captured at Seminole Plaza, at the corner of State Road 436 and U.S. Highway 17-92, after he fled west on foot following the purse snatch attempt, a police report said.

The man ran after the victim, Dianne W. Hassemer, screamed. He didn't get the purse. The suspect was reportedly identified by Ms. Hassemer, the report said.

The man arrested bonded out of the Seminole County Jail Sept. 26, on a charge of burglary to an occupied structure.

Jan Elliott Davis has been charged with strong arm robbery in the case. He was being held without bond.

CHILD ABUSED

Seminole County sheriff's deputies are investigating a possible child abuse case in which three suspects have been named.

Officials at the Seminole County Juvenile Detention Center at Five Points brought the case to the attention of sheriff's deputies at about 5 p.m. Friday.

The Altamonte Springs boy who is 5 years old has old scars and bruises on his body. There are three scars on his stomach and bruises on the back of his left arm and his back. In a sheriff's report the boy's mother, grandmother and uncle have been named as possible suspects. The report also said the boy was "unkempt."

ON ROAD DISPUTE

A domestic dispute that took to the road brought the arrest of a 21-year-old Lake Mary man who allegedly rammed his wife's car from the rear with his own vehicle. The man also allegedly took his wife's car keys and threw them in woods off Lake Mary Boulevard, Lake Mary, where the incident occurred.

A Seminole County sheriff's deputy reported that there was more than $500 damage to the car of Kathy Faison and her husband's car was equally damaged.

Scott Patrick Faison of 2000 Lake Mary Blvd., #108 F, was charged with aggravated assault with a motor vehicle and battery. He has been released on $500 bond to appear in court Oct. 20.

STOLEN CAR CHARGE

Seminole County sheriff's deputies, who waited and watched at the 7-Eleven on East Brook Boulevard, Winter Park, as a man got into a car that had been reported stolen, arrested the man as he tried to drive away at about 4:45 p.m. Sunday.

The man reportedly first avoided approaching the car when a deputy in a marked patrol car was spotted at the scene. That deputy left and in a few minutes the man reportedly returned to the 1973 Oldsmobile and tried to drive away.

But he was still being watched by the deputy in the patrol car and another deputy.

Bobby Jack Vandye, 36, of 2038 Eastbrook Blvd., Winter Park, has been charged with possession of a stolen vehicle and driving without a license. He was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

ROPED BY DAD, NEIGHBORS

A suspected burglar, wanted on a Seminole County warrants charge, was rounded up and tied by his father and neighbors on South Street, to be held for Seminole County sheriff's deputies.

Arrested on charges of burglary, grand theft and trafficking in stolen property at about 1 p.m. Sunday was Leon Charles Wright, 22, of no address. He was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

BURGLARY ARREST

The victim of a burglary at 320 Oak Ave., Sanford, reportedly identified a suspect for Sanford police, who arrested the man at about 2:47 p.m. Sunday.

Rodell Anthony Roberts, 29, of 414 Palmetto Ave., Sanford, was arrested on Fifth Street at Park Avenue. He has been charged with burglary and was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

SMOKER, COKER

A man who was in a car parked near the Hotline Bottle Club, State Road 436, Altamonte Springs, with two other men was arrested after police reportedly spotted him smoking cocaine that was in a beer can.

Police reported the suspect tried to hide the can under the passenger's side seat of the car. The two other men, and two more men who were approaching the car when police arrived at about 4 a.m. Saturday, were not charged.

Charged with possession of cocaine and drug paraphernalia was John Milton Roberts, 23, of 643 Encino Way, Altamonte Springs. He has been released on bond.

COCAINE IN HAND

A man who reportedly had a small quantity of cocaine hidden in his hand when a Seminole County sheriff's deputy approached a group outside Crabman's on Slipes Avenue outside of Sanford, at about 8:40 p.m. Sunday, has been charged with possession of cocaine.

Runey Darnel Redden, 30, of 2020 Henry Ave., Sanford, has been charged in the case and was being held in lieu of $2,000 bond.

DUI ARRESTS

The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

—Thomas Walton Keen, 41, of 1020 Pebble Beach Circle, Winter Springs, was arrested at 2:49 a.m. Sunday, after his car was weaving and ran a stop sign on Winter Springs Boulevard, Winter Springs.

—James Ellis Neamith, 44, of Route 3, Box 145, Oviedo, at 8 p.m. Sunday after he reportedly drove onto northbound U.S. Highway 17-92 into the path of a Florida Highway Patrol car. The trooper reported having to stop quickly and veered to the left to avoid colliding with Neamith's car. He was also charged with violation of the right-of-way.

—John Cleveland Whack, 55, of 233 Tuskegee St., Sanford, at 5:05 p.m. Saturday, after he remained parked at a traffic light after it turned green. The arrest was made on U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford.

BURGLARIES & THEFTS

Masrovb B. Merzoyan, 23, of 1269 Rising Sun Blvd., Winter Springs, reported to sheriff's deputies $600, two video recorders with a combined value of about $3,000, a $2,000 stereo, and three rings of undetermined value were among the items stolen from his home Sunday.

A jewelry box containing $10 and a $370 video recorder were stolen from the home of Kenneth W. McCorkle, 37, of 101 Alder Ave., Altamonte Springs, Sunday, a sheriff's report said.

Bruce Williams, 32, of 405 Highland St., Altamonte Springs, reported to sheriff's deputies that a $150 edger was stolen from his home between Oct. 1 and Sunday.

Hand tools valued at $150, a $150 chainsaw, a $70 skill saw and a $120 motor were stolen from 750 County Road 15, Sanford. The items belong to Jesse Smith Hays, 51, of 1741 Via Tuscany, Winter Park, deputies reported.

Three cameras, a pair of binoculars and some coins with a combined value of about $1,000 were stolen from the home of Jean Wald, 38, of 2020 James Drive, Jamestown, outside of Oviedo, on Oct. 2, a sheriff's report said.

Robert Nolan Brooke, 43, of Route 2, Box 77B, S. Cameron, Sanford, reported to sheriff's deputies that $1,500 worth of tools were stolen from the bed of his pickup truck while parked on State Road 46 at Beardall Avenue, Sanford, on Sunday, deputies reported.

Ruth Vogle, 46, of 2702 Magnolia Ave., Sanford, gave sheriff's deputies the name of a suspect whom she alleges entered her home between 5 a.m. and 1 p.m. Sunday and stole $700 from her purse. She also said the suspect threatened to harm her 11-year-old son if the theft was reported.

The home of Danny Thompson and John Phillips of 2208 Southwest Road, Sanford, was burglarized Oct. 3 and about $90 worth of jewelry was stolen along with two television sets and a $600 stereo, a sheriff's report said.

Sanford Woman Found Stabbed To Death

By Kathy Tyrity
Herald Staff Writer

A 39-year-old Sanford woman, Iona Smith-Brown, was stabbed to death on 12th Street in Sanford early Sunday morning. Police have a suspect but have made no arrests.

Police Capt. Charles B. Fagan said the woman appeared to have been stabbed several times with a pocket knife, and the fatal wound was to the chest.

She was found in pants and a flowered blouse lying in a yard east of 1119 W. 12th St. about 2:20 a.m., police said.

"It appears there was some argument between her and another person," Fagan said. Police processed the scene but could find no murder weapon.

A suspect was detained and read his rights, after which he reportedly asked to see a lawyer. However, police could not hold him long without evidence, Fagan said.

As of Monday, police could not confirm the woman's address or identify who lives at the 12th Street address.

"It's all under investigation at this point," said Fagan. "We have a lot of questions that need to be answered."

There were some witnesses to the crime scene, Fagan said, and they are being questioned. Ms. Brown leaves a daughter who police said is about 20 and a mother, both of Sanford.

One puzzling factor is that there didn't appear to be signs of a struggle, said Mark Nichols, the crime scene technician who photographed and processed the scene.

While police are sure the death was a murder, they did not have a motive.

"We feel there was foul play," said Fagan. "We have a few witnesses under investigation and now we'll just start the process of elimination."

He said Ms. Brown was pronounced dead at the scene by the medical examiner, but it was not known how long she was dead.

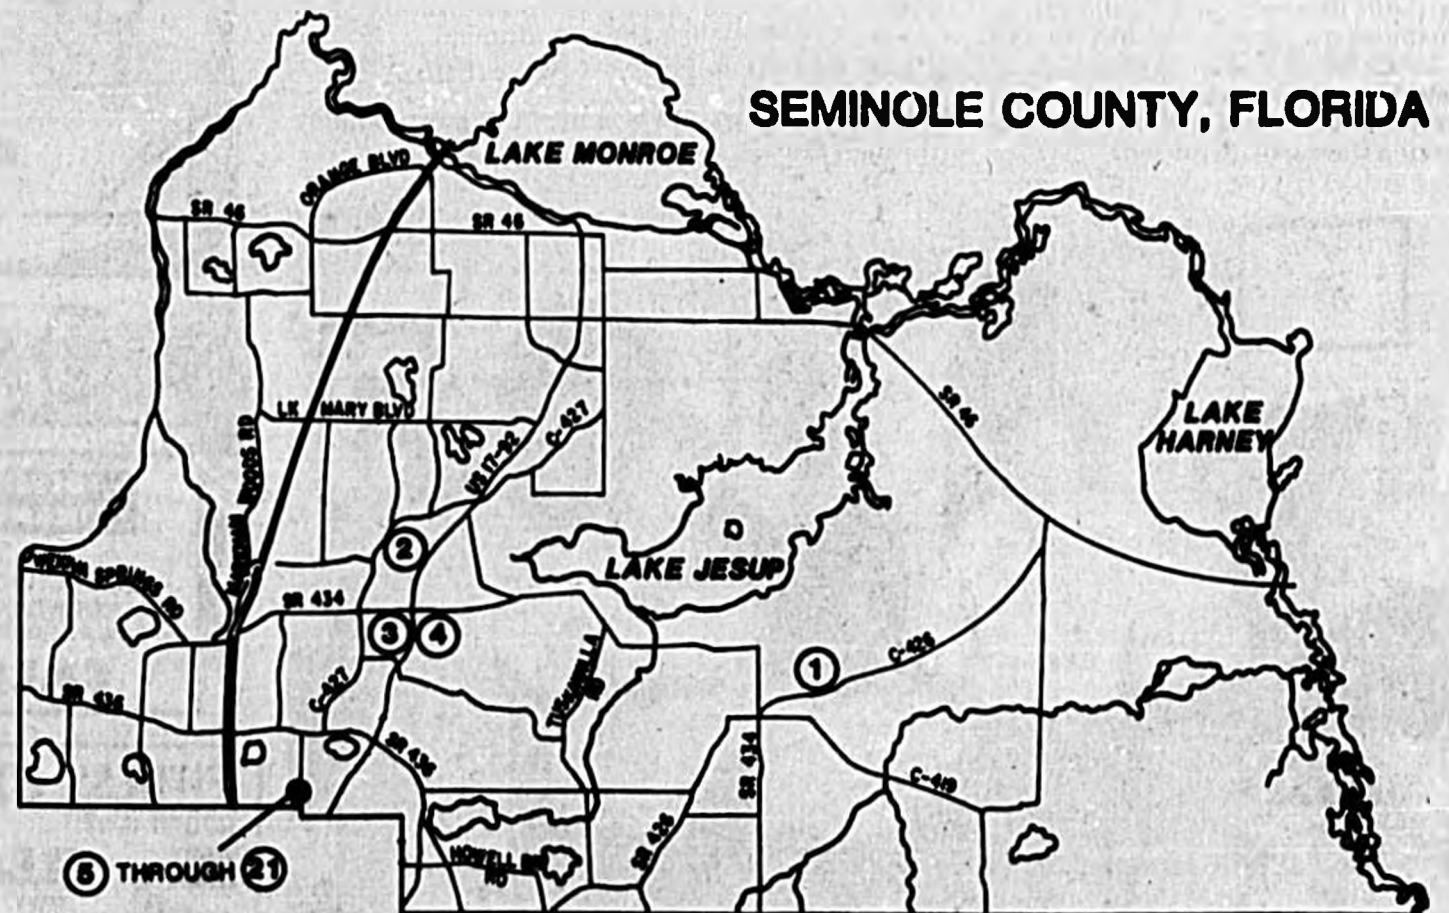

If police cannot solve the crime, it will be the first unsolved murder in Sanford in a long time, Fagan said.

"We've only had two or three murders this year, and they've all been solved," he said.

FHSAA: Howell, Brantley To Join 5A-4

Mark Blythe

SPORTS WRITER

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

After competing in one of the toughest districts in the state, District 5A-5, the past two years, the Lake Howell and Lake Brantley football teams will be back where they feel more comfortable in 1987.

Lyman High Principal Carlton Henley and Lake Mary High Principal Don Reynolds, officers for the Florida High School Activities Association, said the FHSAA decided in its Fall meeting Monday night in Gainesville to move Lake Brantley and Lake Howell into District 5A-4 with neighboring Lyman and Lake Mary, along with Volusia County schools DeLand, Daytona Beach Mainland and Port Orange Spruce Creek.

"It will be a good, strong district with the addition of Lake Howell and Lake Brantley," FHSAA Director Don Reynolds said. "And it will be much healthier for Lake Brantley and Lake Howell."

RECLASSIFICATION

Five-Class Football Reclassification (sophomores, juniors, seniors) — 5A (99 schools): 1,398 and up; 4A (82): 895-1,397; 3A (62): 435-894; 2A (83): 225-434; 1A (64): 0-224.
District 4A-7 Football — Seminole, Oviedo, Leesburg, Orlando Edgewater.
District 5A-4 Football — Lake Mary, Lyman, Lake Howell, Lake Brantley, Daytona Beach Mainland, DeLand, Port Orange Spruce Creek.
Four-Class Other Sports Reclassification — 4A (101): 1,390 and up; 3A (109): 708-1,389; 2A (250-707); 1A (148): 0-249.

to a 5A format for the 1985 season. Lake Howell and Lake Brantley were put in the same district with traditional powerhouses Winter Park, Orlando Evans and Apopka. Going into this week's games, Lake Brantley and Lake Howell are 0-9 against those three teams in district play over the past two years.

It was also decided in Monday's meeting that Seminole High and Oviedo High will remain 4A in football next season and will join Orlando Edgewater and Leesburg to form the District 4A-7, although both schools are just below the 5A cutoff.

"Oviedo's growing so fast it won't stay 4A too much longer," Reynolds said. "And Seminole High is getting close to being 5A as well."

While football was the main topic of discussion, a reclassification for basketball was also on the agenda. It was recommended that basketball go to a 5A or 6A classification to accommodate the numerous 1A schools who do not field football teams but compete in basketball.

"There are approximately 148 Class A schools," FHSAA Vice President Henley said. "There are a number of smaller schools who do not play football but play basketball. There is a proposal of going from the regular 4A format to 5A and possibly 6A with the splitting of the smaller schools."

Reynolds

The redistricting in basketball will go to a vote of all the FHSAA members in April.

Reynolds said the possibility of reclassification of all sports will not occur anytime soon. Reynolds said all other sports other than football, and the possible exception of basketball beginning in 1987-88, will remain at the Class 1A through 4A level.

Brauman, Gibson Rub Shoulders, Excel With Elite

Seminole County has a couple of track and field coaches who are closing in on 40 years old, but it hasn't affected their competitiveness or ability too much.

Seminole High's Ken Brauman and Lake Mary High's Mike Gibson rubbed shoulders with some of the best former track and field athletes in the world Sunday and came away with some pretty impressive performances.

Granted, Bob Richards doesn't resemble his picture on the Wheaties box any more, but the 30-year-old Gordon, Texas native still pole vaulted 11-6 in the Empire of America Masters Sports Series meet Saturday at Winter Park's Showalter Field. Richards also won the high jump (4-7), long jump (14-5½), discus (164-1¼) and shot put (49-4¼) in his age group. Also competing was ex-Olympic hurdler Willie Davenport.

Brauman, a top-notch triple jumper at Iowa State University during his college years, flashed his old form in the 35-39 age group by taking first place with a leap of 38-2¼. Brauman's bound was almost 11 inches better than the winner of the 30-34 age bracket.

The 38-footer would place him second or third in most high school meets. No wonder Brauman has trained a back-to-back state triple jump champions in Alvin Jones (Princeton).

Gibson, who doubles as Lake Mary's girls cross country coach, was "Mr. Runner-Up" Saturday. He took five second places. Gibson, also in the 35-39 classification, finished behind world class athletes on the Masters level in all but one of the events he participated in.

In the long jump Gibson leaped 12 feet. In the discus he threw the Olympic weight disc and tossed it 79 feet and 9 inches. Gibson then came back and tossed the 16-pound shot 28 feet even. Later he high jumped 4-2, and he finished his day full of seconds tossing the javelin 98 feet.

There were some familiar faces running the college division of the Florida State University Invitational this past Saturday at Tallahassee.

Billy Penick, a 1986 Seminole High graduate, competed for the FSU men's team but the grueling heat got to the former state mile champion as he collapsed at the end of the race and had to be carried off on a stretcher.

Three former Lake Mary runners, Matt Palumbo, Ken Rohr and Jeff Hale, competed for the University of Central Florida men's team.

Running for the FSU women was two-time Class A cross country champion Adrienne Poltowicz, a 1986 graduate of Trinity Prep. Seminole High grad Katrina Walker competed for Florida A&M University while Lyman High grad and current Lyman assistant cross country coach Cindy Gaskell ran for JCF.

Melrose's Gerry Woods has been humming. "Row, row, row your boat, gently down the stream" for the past week. The Melrose triathlete merrily came on to win the individual honors in the first-ever Seminole County Water Festival triathlon with a time of 82:14. The event was held last Sunday in Sanford at the Holiday Inn on Lake Monroe.

Mark Schuler of DeLeon Springs had a large lead going into the canoeing portion of the race before Woods was able to overtake him.

"It was obvious to everyone who saw the race that the canoeing was the most significant part of the race," race director John Boyle said. "Woods is an experienced canoeist and that's what enabled him to catch and pass him (Schuler)."

Woods went on to win by over five minutes as Ed Goiringer who also passed Schuler took second with a time of 87:55 and Jack Anderson of Sanford was third, finishing with a time of 98:39.

Sperry Rademaker of Floral City won the Ladies Individual Division of the race with no trouble in 72:42.

Sure, Dwight Gooden is as intimidating as he looks. And the New York Mets won 108 games while running away with the National League East. Why then, did none of the Evening Herald's Panel of Experts select the Mets to win the World Series. See 10A.

Clemens Duels Witt In Opener

BOSTON (UPI) — California's Mike Witt and Boston's Roger Clemens say their roles as starting pitchers in today's opener of the best-of-seven American League Championship Series have been overemphasized.

Witt said he and Clemens should not be cast as enemies.

"It's my job to get the Red Sox hitters out," Witt said. "I don't worry about what Roger Clemens might be because it's not my job. I don't face him and I don't hate him."

"I let my hitters take care of that. I just concern myself with Boston's batters and they're something to be concerned about."

Clemens, who said he was "sick and tired of being asked about my elbow because it's fine," agreed with his counterpart.

"It doesn't matter who is pitching because I'm not pitching against that guy," said Clemens, who was hit in the right elbow by Baltimore's John Stefero last Wednesday. "I'm pitching against the Angels. I want to beat the opponent, not their pitcher."

"And another thing, Mike Witt's been characterized as a junkball pitcher, but he's not just that. He's got a pretty good fastball."

How would Clemens know, since he doesn't face Witt?

"Well, pitchers do talk to the rest of the team once in a while," he said with a grin. "Besides, there's going to be a lot more to this series than meets the eye."

California won the season series with Boston 7-5 as the teams split six games at Fenway Park. Clemens, however, was 3-0 over the Angels. Witt was 1-2 against the Red Sox and dropped both of his decisions at Fenway Park.

The game will be nationally televised by ABC, with coverage beginning at 8 p.m. EDT. CBS radio will broadcast the action as well.

John McNamara guided California for two seasons until 1984 and his tenure was sandwiched around Mauch's terms.

"There's nothing whatsoever about going against my former team," McNamara said. "Only Witt and (Doug) Corbett are left from when I managed them, so there's no secrets in danger of being revealed."

McNamara called the meeting of Clemens, who finished with a 24-4 mark after opening the season with 14 straight victories, and the 18-10 Witt "just the beginning of it."

"This is a meeting of two teams that fought to get to where they are today," McNamara said. "That's the bottom line."

"Twenty-two clubs went home yesterday (Sunday), and we're still here. Injuries? Sure we've got them. They're part of baseball. But we'll rise above that."

FINALLY, RIPKEN GETS JOB

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Cal Ripken Sr. says his job as Baltimore Orioles manager will be to turn around a demoralized team and "re-establish the winning attitude."

Ripken, who had been snubbed twice by the organization he has served for three decades, was named Orioles manager Monday.

"With this ballclub and this organization, we have to get back to doing things right," Ripken said.

Largent Grabs Historic Pass In Seattle Romp

SEATTLE (UPI) — Steve Largent was being carried off the field by three teammates when he realized he had made NFL history.

Largent caught a 17-yard pass from Dave Krieg with 10:21 remaining in the second quarter of Seattle's 33-7 rout of San Diego Monday night and became the first player in league history to catch at least one pass in 128 consecutive games.

Largent broke the record he had shared with former Philadelphia Eagle Harold Carmichael. Running a crossing pattern, he caught Krieg's pass at the Seahawks' 33-yard line for the mark.

"It wasn't like it really dawned on me — until two or three teammates picked me up and carried me off the field," Largent said. "Then I remembered the record."

Largent was awarded the game ball and congratulated by Carmichael.

"I just said, 'Congratulations,'" Carmichael said. "I didn't want to say too much because I didn't want to interrupt the game. He just said, 'Thank you.'"

Howell Thinclads, Evans' Gridders Stay No. 1

Lake Howell's girls cross country team and Orlando Evans' football team continued to lead the prep polls released Monday by the Florida Athletic Coaches Association and the Florida Sports Writers Association.

In the FACA poll, coach Tom Ham-montree's Lady Hawks retained the top spot while Winter Park remained second. Lake Howell, which won the FSU Invitational last

Football

The reception came on Krieg's fifth pass attempt to Largent. The previous four were overthrown, including one that was intercepted by cornerback Donald Brown.

"We tried to get it done early, but we didn't connect," Largent said. "From the first play, we were looking to get it over with, get it done and get on with the game."

"It wasn't because of pressure," Krieg said of overthrowing Largent the first four times. "It just wasn't happening."

San Diego's Charlie Joiner also set an NFL mark, when he caught a 20-yard pass from Dan Fouts with 9:49 left in third quarter to increase his career receiving-yardage total to 11,843. He passed the old record of 11,834 set by former New York Jet Don Maynard.

"It'll be a good thing to look back on later in life," Joiner said. "I just wish it could have happened under better circumstances."

The victory improved Seattle's record to 4-1 and kept the Seahawks within one game of first-place Denver in the AFC West. San Diego fell to 1-4.

Largent finished with four catches for 78 yards and a touchdown. With his receiving yardage, he also moved up to fourth place on the all-time NFL list with 10,317.

Joiner wound up with four catches for 39 yards, giving him a career total of 11,855. Joiner also has 728 career receptions, an all-time record he already held.

Seattle's Dave Krieg completed 21 of 35 passes for 284 yards and three touchdowns. He was intercepted twice. Fouts was 20 of 31 for 231 yards and three interceptions.

Curt Warner, the AFC's leading rusher, had his best game of the season with 28 carries for 142 yards. He now has 515 yards in five games.

The Seahawks received field goals of 29, 30 and 54 yards from Norm Johnson to build a 9-7 lead after an early San Diego score. Johnson later added a 20-yard field goal to close the scoring.

With Seattle leading 9-7, Lionel James fumbled on a run and a kickoff return to set up two straight Seattle touchdowns.

Safety Eugene Robinson recovered James' fumble at the 50 and, three plays later, Krieg fired a 46-yard TD pass to Byron Franklin to give the Seahawks a 16-7 lead with 9:04 left in the third.

James fumbled the ensuing kickoff and Eric Lane recovered at the Chargers' 15. The next play, Krieg threw a TD to Largent to lift Seattle to a 23-7 edge.

...Prep Polls in SCOREBOARD

Consensus: None Of These Jokers Picked The Mets?

The New York Mets won 108 games. They have the best position players in the National League in first baseman Keith Hernandez, catcher Gary Carter and right-handed pitcher Dwight Gooden. The oddsmakers have them 9-5 to beat Houston for the National League pennant.

Taking all of the above into consideration, the Astros should win the N.L. Playoffs in seven games. Why? Why not? In baseball, more than any other sport, the better team doesn't win. The short series is the equalizer as the Championship Playoffs heads into its second year of the seven-game format. Remember the defending World Series champion Kansas Royals? They were probably the 10th best team in baseball last year.

The same will be true in '86. Houston, which won the West by 10 games, was 52-29 in the Astrodome. Games 1 (Wednesday), 2, 6, 7 are played at the Dome. In a seven-game format, the first two and last two are the most pivotal games. Joe Cruz, the most underrated player in baseball, will be the MVP. Look for shortstop Dickie Thon to have a good series, too. Mike Scott will lose two games but win the finale before the largest crowd in Astrodome history. The Mets, who won by 2 1/2 games, don't have complete players at shortstop (Rafael Santana or Kevin Mitchell) and second base (Wally Backman or Tim Teufel). Third baseman Ray Knight will also come back to earth. Davey Johnson finds out platooning doesn't win in a short series.

The final weeks of the regular season may have been anti-climatic but this series will be a sizzler. Each team won its last five games and has a 105-degree case of Pennant Fever.

The temperature in the American League isn't running as hot. Boston, which won the East by 5 1/2 games, lost its last four games to the Yankees. California, which won the West by five games, lost seven of its last 10. The oddsmakers have the Red Sox as a 7 1/2-5 favorite.

That's good enough reason to pick the Angels. Granted, the Bobos have Roger Clemens and "Oil Can" Boyd, but where do you go from there? The relief pitching is also suspect.

The first game (tonight on Orlando's WFTV-9 at 8) is the key. California's Mike Witt will outduel Clemens and things will get progressively worse for the Red Sox. The Angels will prevail in six games.

Sam Cook

Sentimentality favors one more curtain call for Reggie Jackson. "Mr. October" has a perfect setting to earn himself another year with someone other than the Angels, who have indicated they won't re-sign him. California's left-handed power — Jackson, rookie Wally Joyner and veteran Rupe Jones — will be the difference along with center field defensive whiz Gary Pettis.

The Red Sox haven't won a World Series since 1915, and they won't get another chance this fall. Look for lefty John Candelaria, a proven playoff performer, to play a key role. Witt, "Candy Man," Kirk McCaskill and sage Don Sutton will neutralize Jim Rice, Wade Boggs, Rich Gedman and Tony Armas.

Which brings about a Houston-California World Series. More aptly titled the "Snore Series." Pitching, pitching and more pitching. Houston has more and will win the October Classic in five games over the tiring Angels.

And, if you don't buy any of that, you can get a good deal on these picks:

Sports writer Chris Flister, the Evening Herald's right arm, claims to be from New York, maintains he went to high school at Spring Hill Springstead and attended Alabama.

If you believe all of that, the Fearless Flister Forecast says: In the N.L., New York wins in six games. Dwight Gooden has two wins and Gary Carter is MVP. In the A.L., California sweeps the Red Sox. Doug DeCinces and Brian Downing scale the Green Monster. Witt outwits Clemens. Boggs gets blanked. Beantown gets gas.

Finally, California in seven in Series as Mets crumble after taking 3-1 lead. "Mr. October" returns to his old form and hits four homers.

Sports writer Scott Sander, who received half of a good high school education in Illinois before attending Lake Brantley High for two years (just kidding, Marty and Darwin), says Houston in six games and Boston in five games. Mike Scott and Bill Buckner are playoff MVPs.

In the series, Boston prevails in seven games with Clemens picking up the MVP.

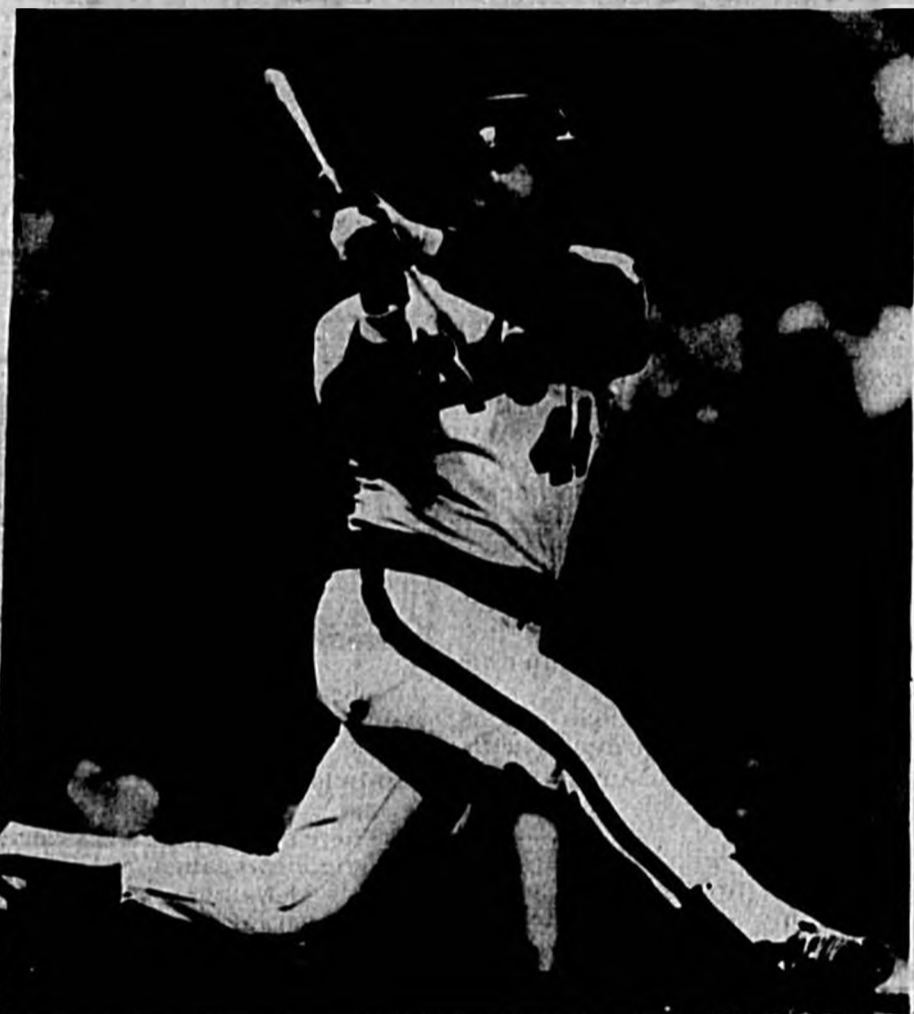

Mark Blythe, whose formative years were spent at St. Lukes Lutheran School in Slavia (that's in Florida, not Russia), says the Mets in five games with Darryl Strawberry as MVP and the Red Sox in six games with Boggs as MVP.

In the classic, MVP Clemens hurls Boston to a seven-game championship.

Mike Andrew, who was raised a Hoosier in Indiana but somehow became an Atlanta Falcons' fan, says MVP Ron Darling and four Gary Carter homers carry the Mets in six games. MVP Boggs bats the Sox to a sweep of the Angels as "Mr. O-For-Tober" goes without.

In the final, MVP Armas and Clemens (shutouts in Games 1 and 4) lead a five-game Boston championship.

Consensus: None of these jokers picked the Mets?

Reggie Jackson launches another dramatic home run. California designated hitter said he doesn't thrive on the media pressure like he used to in the past.

'Mr. October' Reggie, 40, Still Commands Playoff Spotlight

BOSTON (UPI) — As long as major-league baseball survives, there will be other playoffs and other players to command the spotlight.

But there probably won't be another Reggie Jackson and, on the eve of the 1986 postseason, Mr. October displayed why.

The 40-year-old slugger played the media in his inimitable style Monday, bringing a flare of drama to what would have been an otherwise drab day of workouts.

Jackson tantalized the assembled horde of reporters and cameramen for over two hours with the prospect of his missing Tuesday's opening game of the American League Championship Series because of a self-inflicted wrist injury suffered Saturday. He launched three batting-practice pitches over the Fenway Park wall Monday before holding court.

"I can't handle it like I used to," he said of the intense attention he had masterfully created. "It's uncomfortable. It takes too much away from what I have to do. It's too emotionally, mentally — it's too heavy for me now."

Having proven to himself what he might have already known — the wrist injury he sustained punching a water cooler and dugout wall in Texas after an 0 for 4 night would not prevent him from playing — Jackson bore the burden of the limelight as lightly as ever in his 19-year career. He appeared to relish the hype just as he had savored each of the 16 home runs he has hit in playoffs or World Series.

"In the past, I could handle it," Jackson said, "and there were times when I could thrive on it. I think, now if I have success, I'll thrive on it, but I'd rather have success, then have the media, rather than have the media and have no success — or success. Before, it was matter-of-fact."

These, too, are facts: Jackson is the sixth-best, home-run hitter in major-league history. Only Mickey Mantle has hit more postseason homers — 18 — and, if Jackson does not surpass that total in the next three weeks, he may not get another chance. When the Angels' season ends, he will be a man without a team, a free agent.

"If I play well and have another good October and play right through the World Series and contribute, then it would be the perfect time to retire," Jackson said. "But I've had a lot of people tell me — almost 99 out of 100 people I've talked to — say 'Play as long as you can play, because once you can't play, you can't.'"

Beginning Tuesday night against Red Sox ace Roger Clemens, Jackson will find out if he can still play. His numbers this year have not been Reggie-esque: 18 homers and 58 RBI with a .241 batting average. The postseason, however, has always been his stage and he has been a virtuoso.

"You never know until it comes down," he said of his baseball future. "It's easy for me to say I'll play on the reputation I've had in the past, but baseball is changing. They're not paying so much on a guy's past anymore."

"I think they're doing their best to bring salaries down. I think they're doing a lot to get rid of veteran players who are making high salaries. I understand I'd have to take a (salary) cut and I have no problem with that. But I think there are some new things happening in baseball and the best I can do is to wait until the dust settles and make that decision with the people who are going to pay — or not going to pay."

PLAYOFF PREVIEW

MATCHUPS

NL Playoff Matchups

United Press International
(New York players listed first)
First base — Keith Hernandez vs. Glenn Davis. Hernandez is one of the game's best hitters; has occasional power and is outstanding defensively; turns the 3-4-3 double play better than anyone. Davis is Houston's first legitimate power hitter since Jimmy Wynn; only average defensively. Edge: Hernandez.
Second base — Wally Backman and Tim Teufel vs. Bill Doran. Backman plays against right-handers and Teufel against southpaws; offensively, they form a solid combination; Backman, a slap hitter, is dangerous on the bases while Teufel has power; Backman is better defensively. Doran is one of baseball's most underrated players; some consider him Houston's MVP; sound fundamental player, decent hitter, good speed and fine glove. Edge: Doran.
Shortstop — Rafael Santana vs. Craig Reynolds and Dickie Thon. Santana is a sound defensive player with a weak bat; Mets will pinch hit for him late in game. Reynolds is a dependable player who won't hurt you in the field or at the plate; Thon, whose career was damaged by 1984 beaning, is superb fielder. Edge: Reynolds and Thon.

Third base — Ray Knight and Howard Johnson vs. Phil Garner and Denny Walling. Knight, a right-handed batter, hits for average but leads somewhat in second half; has sparked defensively. Johnson provides power but is only average defensively. Garner, making his fourth playoff appearance, plays against left-handers and has slowed defensively but has some pop left in his bat; Walling has excelled offensively in the second half. Edge: Even.

Left field — Mookie Wilson and Kevin Mitchell vs. Jose Cruz — Wilson is a switch hitter with good speed and some power; always a threat to steal; often misjudges fly balls. Mitchell is a solid hitter with defensive shortcomings but has performed adequately at both infield and outfield. Cruz, 39, is Houston's oldest regular but can still hit, especially in clutch; can still run balls down in left. Edge: Even.

Center field — Lanny Dykstra vs. Billy Hatcher. Dykstra is Mets' catalyst on offense; good speed, always a threat to run; steady fielder; a Pete Rose-type player who makes the most of his talents. Hatcher is the Astros' leadoff hitter and catalyst; capable of hitting long ball; good fly-chaser. Edge: Even.

Right field — Darryl Strawberry vs. Kevin Bass. Strawberry is underachiever but can break open a game at any time with his power, speed or defense; has trouble against left-handers. Bass hits with power from both sides of the plate; excellent arm and solid defensive player. Edge: Bass.

Catcher — Gary Carter vs. Alan Ashby. Carter is an NL MVP candidate; excellent run producer with good hitting in the clutch; gritty and enthusiastic player; superb at handling pitching staff; doesn't throw out runners as well as used to. Ashby is one of few Astros who remain from 1985-81 playoff teams; a switch hitter who hits for better average and power left-handed; sound defensively. Edge: Carter.

Starting pitching — RHP Dwight Gooden, LHP Bob Ojeda, RHP Ron Darling and LHP Sid Fernandez vs. RHP Mike Scott, RHP Nolan Ryan, LHP Bob Knapp and LHP Jim Deshaies. Mets' four-man rotation is an explosive staff; all have ability to dominate a game. Astros' four-man rotation blends well together and staff has been hottest in major leagues in last two weeks; Knapp gives Mets fits. Edge — Even.

Bullpen — RHP Roger McDowell and LHP Jose Oseso vs. RHP Dave Smith and RHP Charlie Kierfeld. McDowell is a workhorse with good velocity and excellent control but didn't pitch well against Astros this year; Oseso is tough on left-handers and had success against Houston; Smith is usually a reliable short man but was hit hard by Mets this year; Kierfeld, at 4-foot-4, 235 pounds, is an imposing figure on mound and throws hard but Mets eat up fastballs. Edge: Mets.

Bench — Mets have good hitters in Mitchell or Wilson and Denny Hays; Los Angeles has sound fundamental player. Outside of Terry Puhl, Astros are thin. Edge: Mets.

Managers — Davey Johnson vs. Hal Lanier. First playoff appearance for both. Johnson has been a winner on all levels; astute at juggling players; a mathematics major in college, he sometimes uses computer cards to explain moments; waitress; Lanier, a rookie manager, is a disciple of Whitley Hoge and plays an aggressive running game. Edge: Johnson.

A.L. Playoff Matchups

United Press International

(California players listed first)
First base — Wally Joyner vs. Bill Buckner. Joyner, the baby-faced good luck charm, breaks up two no-hitters in the ninth; got off to a rousing start, hitting 19 homers by mid-June, but slumped in second half. Buckner, at 36, still one of game's most consistent hitters but has no range at first base. Edge: Joyner.

Second base — Bobby Grich vs. Marty Barrett. Grich slumped at times but provided occasional power, steady fielding and leadership; has appeared in four ALCS but has never made it to World Series; retirement plans may be swayed by playoff success. Barrett is a feisty player but strictly a singles hitter. He is a solid fielder and one of C.A.'s best baserunners. Edge: Barrett.

Shortstop — Dick Schofield vs. Spits Owen. After two poor seasons at the plate and provided some unexpected power. Owen, acquired from Seattle late in the season, made immediate impact on Red Sox. He is a solid fielder with a strong arm who is better on grass than artificial turf. Edge: Schofield.

Third base — Doug DeCinces vs. Wade Boggs. DeCinces had strong second half which put him in position to lead club in homers and RBI; excellent third baseman with accurate arm. Boggs is one of game's best hitters and has excelled after being moved into the leadoff position. He has improved his fielding dramatically. Edge: Boggs.

Left field — Brian Downing vs. Jim Rice. Downing got off to a fine start before two-month slump caused by bronchitis; plays outfield like a fullback; often running into walls and center fielder Gary Pettis. Rice had outstanding season after cutting down his swing; plays Fenway Park left field well as well as anyone; owns one of best arms among left fielders. Edge: Rice.

Center field — Gary Pettis vs. Tony Armas. Pettis is baseball's best at reaching over walls to snare "homers"; covers more ground than any other center fielder; club's best base-stealer has improved average and eye at the plate. Armas had another injury-plagued season and had fewest homers since 1979; not the fielder he once was. Edge: Pettis.

Right field — Ruppert Jones and George Hendrick vs. Dwight Gooden. Jones delivered 13 leadoff homers and has excellent extra-base potential; one of Mauch's favorites for doing things that don't appear in baseruns; Hendrick has slowed some in outfield but can still produce at the plate when used properly; Evans is one of baseball's best outfielders and hasn't slipped since joining Boston in 1972; experience helped club through tough times following All-Star break. Edge: Evans.

Catcher — Bob Beane vs. Rich Gedman. Beane, 38, never seems to wear down and is still one of the game's best throwing catchers; top-notch handler of pitchers. Rich Gedman boasts accurate arm behind plate and can hit the long ball. Edge: Even.

Designated hitter — Reggie Jackson vs. Don Baylor. Jackson has shown recent flash of power after slumping for almost two months; one of team's most aggressive baserunners and still one of game's most flamboyant stars at age 40; Baylor is recognized as clubhouse leader. Provided power and customary ability to get hit by a pitch when club needs baserunner. Edge: Baylor.

Starting pitching — RHP Mike Witt, RHP Kirk McCaskill, RHP Don Sutton, LHP John Candelaria vs. RHP Roger Clemens, LHP Bruce Hurst, RHP Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd and RHP Tom Seaver. Angels have nice blend of youth and experience with plenty of mental toughness. Injury to Seaver and late season ineffectiveness of Al Nipper may force Red Sox to go with only three pitchers in series. That puts tremendous burden on Clemens. Edge: Angels.

Bullpen — RHP Bernie Marsa, LHP Gary Lucas, RHP Doug Corbett vs. RHP Calvin Schiraldi, RHP Bob Stanley and LHP Joe Sambito. When Marsa is healthy he's one of best in major leagues. Schiraldi has been a big surprise but he's only a rookie. Edge: Angels.

Bench — Angels bench, with all-purpose Rob Wilton, infielder Rick Burleson and either Jones or Hendrick gives Angels plenty of maneuverability. Outfielder Dave Henderson and infielder Ed Romero, a good glove but no hit infielder, are Boston's best reserves. Edge: Angels.

Managers — Gene Mauch vs. John McNamara. Mauch probably "plays it by the book" more than any other big-league manager; loves the sacrifice, which has helped Angels post best one-run record in A.L.; has never reached World Series in 23 years of major-league managing. McNamara, who replaced Mauch in California in 1983, was replaced by Mauch after 1984 season. He is a "player's manager" who lets the players pretty much play their own game. He also is looking for his first World Series appearance in 13 years. Edge: Even.

Armed Attack: Gooden, Scott, And 45,000 Strong

HOUSTON (UPI) — Dwight Gooden will face Mike Scott Wednesday night in a battle of hard-throwing right-handers. A crowd of more than 45,000 will yell for their Astros and the scoreboard is sure to explode in a flash of light and sound at least a dozen times.

Yes, the Houston Astrodome will probably be the noisiest place west of New York's Grand Central Station when the Mets and Astros meet for Game 1 of the National League Championship Series.

So, in preparing for this madness, what did the Mets and Astros do Monday — one day after the end of the regular season and one day before the media onslaught that invades today's workout at the Dome?

Absolutely nothing. Scott spent a serene day with his family. Charlie Kerfeld whiled away an afternoon at the department store. And the Mets donned raincoats and made their way through misty Houston on the way from the airport to their hotel.

"I'm going to take my kid somewhere and just enjoy the quiet," Scott said following Sunday's regular-season finale start for New York. Both are left-handed hitters — Backman is a switch-hitter but is more effective from the left side — and thus will play in line with Johnson's platoon system.

The pair got on base 38 percent of the time this year. Dykstra gets hit by pitches, drag-bunts and owns surprising power for a little guy. Backman batted .320 and is another Met who loves to run the bases and get dirty.

Those two need to reach safely if the Mets are to do anything against Scott, whose split-fingered fastball has produced an 18-10 record and transformed him into one of the game's most unhittable hurlers. In 37 starts this season, he allowed more than three unearned runs just four times.

With the right-handed Gooden, 17-6, starting for the Mets, Houston Manager Hal Lanier is expected to use left-handed swingers Craig Reynolds at shortstop and Denny Walling at third. Both have proven to be valuable clutch hitters for a team that posted 390 comeback victories this year, including 24 in its final at-bat.

Ryan Cranks Up 39-Year-Old Flame

HOUSTON (UPI) — A major-league career spanning more than 19 years, three teams and two leagues has taken its toll on Houston Astros pitcher Nolan Ryan.

So have an amazing 4,277 strikeouts, five no-hitters and more than 100 victories in each of the American and National Leagues.

But Ryan, who turns 40 in January, has not lost his trademark smoke. The hard-throwing right-hander from Alvin, Texas, still is capable of firing a blazing fastball nearly 100 mph, an even more amazing feat considering he has thrown more than 4,100 innings since first playing a big league game in 1966.

"I don't have the strength or

N.L. Baseball

against Atlanta. "It'll be plenty busy starting Tuesday."

Kerfeld, the Astros' answer to Jim McMahon, seemed to look forward to today's crush of reporters. Could it be he's ready to trade in his famous "Jetsons" pullover?

"I might have my own press conference," the punk-rock reliever said. "I've got a special playoff T-shirt ready to go and a surprise for you all."

The Mets did little Monday besides reflecting on a marvelous season that saw them win 108 games and the NL East crown by 21 1-2 games over Philadelphia. They prepared for the best-of-seven playoff by winning 14 of their last 18 games.

"The last week, the intensity has been building," New York Manager Davey Johnson said. "I could feel it. We were gearing up for the playoffs."

With the right-handed Scott scheduled for Game 1, center fielder Len Dykstra and second baseman Wally Backman are especially geared and ready to stamina I had 10 years ago," said Ryan, who is scheduled to start Game 2 of the League Championship Series Thursday against one of his former teams, the New York Mets, in Houston.

"But I think for 100 to 120 pitches, I'm still very efficient."

Houston's league rivals would agree. Ryan was 12-8 in 1986 with 194 strikeouts in 178 innings and, despite being placed on the disabled list twice during the season for an elbow problem, he was clocked as high as 97 mph. The average speed of one of his patented fastballs was 93 mph.

Ryan does not have any scientific or philosophical explanations for his ability to stay in the game as long as he has and still be effective.

"I think if you look back on anybody who had longevity, whether it be (Tom) Seaver or (Don) Sutton or Davey Lopes, you find one trait in all those people," Ryan said. "It's that they work hard and are dedicated to what they're doing. I think that's why sometimes we're able to continue as long as we have."

"I learned to throw the ball naturally and refined that ability. It's come through years and years of studying other pitchers, talking to pitching coaches and just talking to other pitchers."

SPORTS

IN BRIEF

Lyman Boosters Bring In 3 Top College Soccer Teams Oct. 23

Three of the top 20 women's college soccer teams in the nation will be on hand Thursday, Oct. 23, when the Lyman Athletic Booster Club will host a pair of women's matches at Lyman High School.

The first match will start at 5:30 p.m. when the University of North Carolina takes on Barry University out of Miami. North Carolina is currently ranked number one in the nation while Barry is ranked 17th.

The nightcap will pit the University of Central Florida against Brevard College out of North Carolina. UCF is ranked third in the nation while Brevard, which features some former Seminole County standouts, is building a strong program. Playing for the UCF team is former Lyman High all-star Alyson Barnes who scored her first college goal in a 17-0 win over Alabama last week.

Admission prices have been set at $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for students. One admission allows a person to see both matches.

Robinson: Hard To Find Home

LANCASTER, Pa. (UPI) — Cliff Robinson has spent so much time traveling the NBA highways, he's had a hard time finding a home.

And he's not sure whether he's got one with the Philadelphia 76ers.

"Being on a team with so many forwards and with trade rumors going around already and with me being in my option year, it's hard for me to feel comfortable and I don't know what it's going to take," Robinson said.

Robinson was acquired by Philadelphia in a draft-day deal that sent Moses Malone, Terry Catledge and two draft picks to Washington for Robinson and center Jeff Ruland.

"But I'm here and I'm just going to play as hard as I can, as I do every year, and the rest is out of my control," he said.

Robinson, a member of a crowded frontcourt that already features Charles Barkley, Roy Hinson and Danny Vranes, has been the object of trade inquiries by other NBA teams, but owner Harold Katz said the 76ers have no plans to deal him.

Dooley, Tech Near Settlement

BLACKSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Virginia Tech football coach Bill Dooley could reach an out-of-court settlement with administration officials today in his $3.5-million dispute over an alleged breach of contract.

Roberts Moore, Dooley's attorney, said he was optimistic the negotiations between the disputing parties could be completed today.

The university faced a deadline Monday to legally respond to the breach-of-contract lawsuit filed by Dooley last month. But late in the day, the university released a statement detailing the decision to proceed out of court.

Dooley, who serves as both coach and athletic director, charged the university fired him in February, then offered to allow him to stay on as coach and not athletic director.

WBC Champ Camacho Arrested

NEW YORK (UPI) — World Boxing Council lightweight champion Hector Camacho was arrested Monday on a series of vehicular charges, including reckless driving and driving without a license, police said.

Camacho, 24, was pulled over on Manhattan's upper east side about 4:45 p.m. after he was spotted driving his red 1986 Ferrari in a reckless manner, a police spokesman said.

Camacho was released and ordered to appear in court Nov. 3.

Word Promises To Go Straight

CHARLOTTESVILLE Va. (UPI) — Barry Word, the 1985 Atlantic Coast Conference football player of the year, says he will straighten out his life after pleading guilty to charges Monday of conspiring to distribute cocaine.

Word was sentenced to six months in jail and three years probation.

Rogers, Faulk Point For Finish

Kinley (Thunder Car), Warmack (Street) Pick Up Victories

Special to the Herald

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — One would think that with 35 victories under his hood, prolific Late-Model Champion David Rogers would be a shoo-in for the points division title at New Smyrna Speedway.

No so, however. Rogers drove the Wayne Denach Budweiser Pontiac to victory for the 35th time this season Saturday night at the high-banked, one-half mile oval but it still took two points behind point-chase leader and second-place finisher Lee Faulk.

With only three racing programs remaining before the end of the season, expect a wire-to-wire battle between Rogers and Faulk.

Following the speedway policy of racing every Saturday night — 52 weeks a year — the new point season will start promptly on the first Saturday of November.

Finishing third was Joe Middleton who for the last two weeks, has been doing a super job for new sponsor Buddy Dogs Used Cars. Chris Roberts was fourth, followed by professor Duke Southard.

"Wild Bill" Kinley kept his Mercury Cougar on the point all the way to score a popular win in the Thunder Car finale. Rounding out the top five were Rand Rhodes, Eddie Vunk, Granny Tatroe and Mike Barfield.

Dominating the Street Stock Division by winning the heat and leading every lap of the main was Sanford's Joey "Iron Man" Warmack.

In IMCA Florida open-wheel modified action, the two lead cars tangled on the last lap, allowing third-place runner Sidney Jones to take the win.

Auto Racing

Guy Lingo moved up on the point with two laps to go and went on to win the four-cylinder feature, beating Jerry Symons, Gene Van Alatine, Sanford's Curtis Miller and Billy Hooven.

The Roadrunner main went to Gary Salvatore, with Mike Fitch gamely driving the Popeye's Bar Chevy to the runner-up position from his last place starting spot. Trying really hard to repeat as track champion, Big Mike Kubanec scored a strong third-place finish over Lil' Joe Berry and high point man Jeff Rinehart.

In the monthly 100-lap Enduro, apparent winner George Rhone was disqualified after tech inspection, with apparent runner-up Charles Russell also being disqualified because of a locked rear-end.

Lettered on the trunk lid of the third place finisher's car were the words "Ragged but Right," and driver Mike Behens' automobile was "right" enough to pass tech and he declared the winner of the $500 first place money. Moving up in second to fifth spots were Jack Teagle, Mike Fritts, ageless veteran Ernie Shaefer and Warmack, who won the first stock feature earlier in the evening.

Under 14 coach Suzy Reno praised the defensive play of Ryan Ortiz, Amy Williams, Joe Nicholas and Randy Bowlin.

In under 12 play, a powerful F.C. United club rolled to a 14-0 victory over Sanford. Sanford coach Henry Bowlin nevertheless lauded his team's "never give up" attitude.

In under 10 play, Gene Bouck scored on an assist from Laura Williams but it wasn't enough as Sanford dropped a 5-1 decision to Maitland.

In under 8 play, goalkeeper Neil Fetter had four unassisted saves but F.C. United was relentless in its attack as it claimed a 6-0 victory over the Sanford team.

The Buccaners dropped a 23-20 overtime decision against Atlanta two weeks ago and Eric Dickerson's 42-yard touchdown run four plays into Sunday's overtime lifted the Rams past Tampa Bay 26-20.

Steve Young hit five passes for 80 yards on Tampa Bay's tying drive in the final minute of regulation, but he has thrown for just 282 yards in three starts since replacing veteran Steve DeBerg.

"The positive part is that we're getting better every week," Bennett said. "I see Steve Young getting better, too. He showed more poise Sunday and was a real big-timer when he took it from our 1-yard line for a field goal to tie the score. He has grown a lot."

Free agent rookie Nathan Wonsley continued his impressive play for the Buccaners with 108 yards in 18 carries, including a 59-yard TD burst in the middle. Tampa Bay's rushing defense couldn't handle Dickerson, who rushed for 105 yards in the opening quarter.

Defensive ends Ron Holmes and John Cannon missed most of the game for Tampa Bay, but Bennett won't use the handy crutch.

Nicaragua Claims Downed Plane Proof Of 'Dirty War' By U.S.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Nicaraguan officials said today government troops shot down a C-123 transport, killing three Americans and capturing a fourth on a CIA mission to ferry supplies to U.S.-backed Contra rebels. A Defense Ministry statement, issued late Monday, said the captured man identified himself as Eugen Hafenfuf, 35, a military adviser working in El Salvador.

Alejandro Bendana, secretary-general of the Nicaraguan Foreign Ministry, told ABC the plane was part of a CIA operation aiding the Contras, who are fighting to overthrow the Sandinista government.

"The facts are that there was a plane shot down, that it had an American crew in it," Bendana said.

"We're talking about a U.S. plane. We're not saying (a) U.S. Army plane but this is obviously a CIA operation with CIA operatives, whether they are U.S. Army personnel or not — it's almost beside the point."

Navy Watching Sub Area

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy decided to continue air and sea surveillance today in the area of the Atlantic Ocean where a Soviet nuclear submarine armed with 16 nuclear missiles sank after an explosion blasted a hole in its hull.

The 1980s vintage submarine went down Monday in 18,000 feet of water three days following the fire and explosion that killed three men. Senior Pentagon officials said the United States has no interest in recovering it.

A skeleton crew that had kept the boat afloat 1,000 miles east of the North Carolina coast since Friday abandoned the foundering sub about 30 minutes before the 9,600-ton vessel sank, the Pentagon officials said.

One official said Navy P-3 Orion submarine-hunter aircraft "will continue to monitor the area for a little while" to determine if any radiation leaked from the vessel "and to see if there is any assistance we may be able to provide."

Vice Adm. Powell Carter Jr. Carter said the explosion would have destroyed the missile in the No. 4 tube and probably ejected the warhead, which either burned in the fire or was tossed into the sea. He said the ocean would dissipate any contamination.

Water pressure at 18,000 feet probably would crush the missiles and a nuclear detonation would not be possible, Carter added. In the reactor, the fuel is contained in vault-like plates that corrode at the rate of a fraction of a millimeter every 1,000 years, he said.

Soviet Chess Champ Retains Title

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (UPI) — Champion Gary Kasparov retained his title with a draw in the 23rd game of the World Chess championship against Anatoly Karpov on Monday, ending a long, bitter battle between the two Soviet grandmasters.

The score in the 24-game series stands at 12 to 11 in favor of the defending champion, who holds five victories to Karpov's four.

The two Soviet grandmasters agreed to play out the remaining game in the series Wednesday, although there was no chance for Karpov to recover because Kasparov retains the title in the event of a tie. A Karpov win Wednesday would even the score at 12-12 and Kasparov would retain the title.

Karpov, playing white, offered a draw in the 32nd move and Kasparov instantly agreed, bringing to an end the struggle between the two Soviet grandmasters that began in September 1984.

Stay Halts Stewart's Execution

STARKE (UPI) — Roy Allen Stewart, scheduled to go to the electric chair early today for the 1979 murder of an elderly Miami woman, was granted an indefinite stay by the federal appeals court in Atlanta.

The 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals granted the stay Monday "until further order of this court," just 15 hours before Stewart's planned execution.

The stay came at the end of a rash of last-minute appeals by Stewart's lawyers in state and federal courts. The appeal was based on the argument that the death penalty is applied with a bias against blacks.

Martinez is scheduled to attend a brief reception at Washington's Madison Hotel Boardroom, before leaving to attend a Republican Governor's Association dinner to be attended by the President at the Vista International Hotel from 6 until 8 p.m. The group is expected to fly out of Washington at about 9 p.m., and Martinez will return to Tallahassee by 11 p.m. tonight.

Dale said he and Watkins will then return to Sanford.

Dale, a builder and developer of several subdivisions in Lake Mary, said he supports the Martinez-Branley ticket, and that he would absorb at least a portion of the cost of the flight. He said he could not estimate the cost of the flight.

Martinez defeated former U.S. Congressman Lou Frey, Winter Park, for the Republican nomination for governor and faces Democrat Steve Pajcic in the Nov. 4 general election.

Lynette Dennis of 263 W. Palmetto Ave., Longwood, has filed to run for the District 3 seat on the Longwood City Commission. A story in Sunday's Evening Herald misstated her district. The District 3 seat is held by Commissioner Perry Faulkner, who has said he is not running for re-election.

or due to any rift between him and the commissioners that surfaced last week. Petree reached the boiling point at last week's meeting after a developer-client, whom he represented, told the commission she had difficulty communicating with her attorney. She said a couple of the commissioners had expressed concern over this, and Petree demanded to know which commissioners. Although the meeting was heated for a few moments, it was settled amicably.

Fess said he had received Petree's resignation that morning and so he knew the quarrel did not provoke Petree into resigning. But he said the resignation is really in everyone's best interest.

"I think he is doing the city of Lake Mary a favor," said Fess, "because when he has to abstain from the proceedings, the city has to hire other counsel."

The new city attorney will be Frank Kruppenbacher, 34, of Swann & Haddock, P.A. in Orlando. Kruppenbacher also represents Winter Springs, Apopka and Ocoee, but he said those cities generally meet at other times and other nights, and so the schedules shouldn't overlap.

It is not required under Lake Mary's city charter to advertise the opening, according to City Clerk Carol Edwards.

Judging from the mayor's and attorneys' comments, negotiations with Kruppenbacher and Lake Mary were proceeding for about six months. Mayor Fess said he had the candidates narrowed down to three firms before deciding this week on Kruppenbacher.

Kruppenbacher said he had eight and a half years municipal law experience and he has a staff of 40 attorneys available for city problems.

He said he had been contacted "on and off" by the mayor in recent months about the possibility of working for Lake Mary.

Petree, 52, a resident of Lake Mary, said the city's business was simply taking "too much time" from his practice in Orlando. "Five years is enough," he said. But he said he would still be close by and available for counsel if needed by the commission. He has been with Bornstein, Petree & Cooper for 25 years.

He also said he was considering resignation for "about six months," which the mayor confirmed.

Petree said his major accomplishments at Lake Mary included: talking the commission into forming an Historical Commission; redrafting the charter; working on the land development code, the tree ordinance, sign ordinance and comprehensive plan. And, he said, he has been successful in "keeping the city out of court."

Kruppenbacher, originally from Westport, Conn., graduated from New York Law School. He is married and has two children.

Lake Mary pays its attorney a $2,000 per month retainer fee, and $75 per hour litigation fees on top of that. Its budget this year for the extra litigation is $5,000.

adding that Public Relations Director Dianna Morgan, who could furnish that answer, was out for the day.

Brinkmoeller was also asked what the "duties" of the public officials were at the affairs, and why they were in attendance. He said although there was no booth or special time set aside for media interviews with the officials, there was an interview office set up at the Contemporary Hotel to coordinate media requests and to conduct interviews. He said the reason officials from Orange and Osceola counties were invited was that they had helped raise money in sponsoring parties during the festivities. Also, Disney World is located in those two counties. Seminole had not been sponsor to an event, and thus, its officials were mainly left out, he said.

"Blanket" invitations were issued to all of the county commissioners from Orange and Osceola counties — that is, the tickets covered all events including the Friday night party at the Magic Kingdom and the Saturday night extravaganza at Epcot. Brinkmoeller iterated that the Orange and Osceola counties' officials were there as a source of information to the press about Central Florida and its attractions, and as a "thank-you" for hosting parties and raising money.

Disney World when I think the least number of people are going to be there, not the most. I wouldn't have been offended by having that offered, but I wouldn't have gone. As I understand it, it was a freebie thing for the press."

And Commissioner Bob Sturm said he wasn't interested either. "I'm afraid I wasn't (invited). But I already had things scheduled for the weekend. My campaign for re-election is more important than a visit to Disney World. I don't like to go to orchestrated events." He added, however, that he has no problem accepting invitations because of his position as a county commissioner.

Asked who, specifically, was responsible for the invitation list and who decided Mrs. Christensen should be the only county commissioner invited from Seminole County, Brinkmoeller said a committee of Disney executives made up the list, which included more than 15,000 journalists and officials. "But I have no idea who made the actual decisions about Seminole County," he said.

hope I live through it," according to family members.

Tim Barkley, husband of the Shaws' daughter, Lynette, said her estranged husband "constantly terrorized Mrs. Shaw and other family members."

Barkley, who lives with Mrs. Shaw, said Shaw, who is a mechanic, has always been violent. Mrs. Shaw left him after 23 years of marriage. They have three children.

During their separation, Barkley said, Mrs. Shaw appealed to the Seminole County Sheriff's Department and Sanford police for aid in stopping her husband's threats and acts of violence. Barkley said she was told there was nothing police could do and she should see a lawyer.

Friends who would take Mrs. Shaw, a non-driver, to work would find that Shaw had cut the tires on their cars. He routinely harassed Mrs. Shaw and the person who would be taking her to work, Barkley said. "He would follow them," Barkley said.

"It's a bad nightmare," Barkley said. "Everybody just can't believe it, although they expected trouble." Barkley said for the past three days until the shootings, Shaw hadn't been heard from by the family. "Then he surfaces to do this," he said.

Barkley praised Dickey. "It troopers and Seminole County sheriff's deputies arrived at the scene.

Dickey was lying in the roadway and Mrs. Shaw was in the front passenger seat of Starna's car. She was helicoptered from the scene to Orlando, while Dickey was first taken to Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford, then transferred to Orlando.

Starna, who apparently knew Shaw, told police Shaw was the assailant and he had fled west on State Road 46-A. Starna gave police a description of Shaw's car and a search was mounted. Shaw's car was found a short time later on County Road 431 (Orange Boulevard), near Wilson Elementary School in Paola, within three miles of the initial shooting scene. He was dead, apparently from the self-inflicted gunshot wound.

The Shaws had been separated for about two months and were in the process of getting a divorce. But the separation period was said to be a continuing series of harassment and violence on the part of Shaw who apparently was distressed over his marriage breaking up. Mrs. Shaw was quoted as saying, "I know I'm going to get shot. I just takes a lot of courage to see somebody with a gun in hand and to go after them with a stick. He had to be pretty brave."

Mrs. Shaw makes job assignments at Stromberg-Carlson. The Shaws moved to Sanford from Ohio about 10 years ago. Barkley said when Shaw first arrived in this area he worked in law enforcement, but he doesn't know in what position or for what police agency.

David Hammock, an electronics technician at Stromberg-Carlson, said today employees there are setting up a trust fund for young Dickey to help with medical expenses and his recovery. They credit him with saving the life of Starna, who may have been spared after Shaw was distracted by Dickey. Hammock said employees at Stromberg want to "nominate him (Dickey) for the Medal of Freedom, if we can." The trust fund will be set up at Barnett Bank.

emotional stories of how Hynick had saved lives of relatives when they were rushed to his office and their fears that the sight of a funeral home would depress terminally ill patients or those who had lost family members.

Case presented letters from doctors and others that had offices next to the Garden Chapel Home for Funerals in Orlando saying the funeral home had been a good neighbor and there were no problems.

Nunez told the commission a funeral home would generate less traffic than most of the permitted uses under the zoning — such as, an office building, a restaurant, bakery, insurance office, pet shop, or bank.

Case said the proposed funeral chapel would be only for making arrangements with the families, holding viewing, funeral services or memorial services and there would be no crematory, embalming or other body processing services performed there. These are done in a central location in Orlando, not in the satellite chapels, he said.

Myers said he was concerned about the design of the building, which includes a preparation room, but was told the state requires a standard design in order to obtain a license to operate even if the building is used strictly for services.

Shader said his client would agree as a condition for the conditional use request being granted to having time restrictions to avoid peak traffic times and a prohibition against the building's use for preparation of bodies.

Mrs. Lormann said she was in real estate and could help Case find another location for his chapel.

Lonely Grandma Says Teens Are Takers And Never Givers

DEAR ABBY: When I didn't even get a phone call (except one wrong number) by 10 p.m. on Grandparent's Day, I called my son's house. His wife answered and I said, "How come nobody called to wish me a happy Grandparents' Day?"

She said, "I didn't even know there was a Grandparents' Day. When was it?" (She is generally up on those things, so I'm wondering why all those retailers are so anxious to push their merchandise months ahead of time for other holidays, but they slipped up on this one.)

Grandparents give more in a lifetime than anyone else, and they certainly deserve more acknowledgement of their day. Please print this with some comment. It's time teen-ager children woke up to the fact that you don't just take — you learn to give, too. If it's only a phone call to someone who's old and lonesome.

DISGRUNTLED GRANDMOTHER

P.S. If they can teach music, sex and sports in the schools, they should add a course in "etiquette." The kids of today could sure use a few lessons. They don't seem to be getting them at home anymore.

DEAR GRANDMOTHER: Children shouldn't need an act of Congress or an ad in the newspaper to remind them to honor their grandparents on a special day every year.

A gift or impromptu telephone call to say, "Hi, Grandma and Grandpa, I love you," would seem far more sincere and meaningful. But for others who did not know, Grandparents' Day falls on the first Sunday after Labor Day.

DEAR ABBY: I am to be married soon and have a very serious problem to face. My fiancée's father is seriously ill. (He's terminal.) The doctors have just given him a period of time to live, which comes very close to our wedding date. We set our wedding date four months ago — before we knew how sick he was.

If he is called by God close to our wedding date, what is the proper etiquette with regard to our wedding? How can we handle the joy of our wedding with the sorrow of his passing, which will be mourned by my fiancée's mother and the rest of his family?

Please answer soon as there isn't much time.

HAPPY AND SAD

DEAR HAPPY AND SAD: Should your future father-in-law die on your wedding day, or a few days before, it would cast a sorrowful shadow over the wedding festivities.

Why not change your wedding to an earlier date, so he can have the pleasure of knowing you are married? If this is not possible, then I suggest postponing it until after he answers a God's call.

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Also Concerned in Vermont," who suggests that I lobby — I have. I have written many lobbying letters in the state of California. I have also testified before Rep. Claude D. Pepper's Committee on Aging, Rep. Pepper, Sen. John Heinz and Sen. John Glenn all have legislation pending before Congress regarding nursing home care. They are members of the Campaign for Quality Care, a nationwide organization headquartered in Washington. I am the chairman. If you want to join our crusade, please contact us at 1424 16th St. N.W., Suite L2, Washington, D.C. 20036. The telephone is (202) 797-0657.

I particularly urge those caring people who work in good nursing homes to unite with us in fighting against the abuse of the elderly that exists in other homes. There are many concerned people. I am only one.

KIRK DOUGLAS

DEAR KIRK: Count me in.

Bachelors Up For Auction At Heartthrob

Twenty five of the area's most eligible bachelors will be put on the auction block at the American Heart Association's second Heartthrob to be held at the Sheraton-Maitland on Wednesday, Oct. 29, at 7 p.m.

Heartthrob is a special event at which bachelors with a date package are auctioned off for an evening. Only women are invited to attend. Women are encouraged to meet the bachelors during the cocktail hour from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. Dave Manor and his associates will start the auction at 8 p.m.

Heartthrob is put on by the AHA to raise money to support lifesaving research into cardiovascular disease. Heart and blood vessel diseases kill almost one million Americans every year, claiming the life of one of every two Americans.

Heartthrob was held last May before approximately 500 women. $18,000 was raised to fight the #1 killer, heart disease. It is being held again by popular demand. For more information call 843-1330. There is a $10 donation.

OPEC Ministers Mull Oil Production Cuts

GENEVA (UPI) — OPEC oil ministers began a second day of talks today on boosting prices by continued restraint of production during the winter when Northern Hemisphere industrial countries use more energy.

At the same time, the United Arab Emirates said it was cutting production from 1.2 to 1.3 million barrels a day to 950,000 barrels to comply with its quota under a temporary OPEC output ceiling.

Emirates oil minister Mana Saeed Oteiba told reporters his country has stopped excess production "to support the market and OPEC." Venezuela said Monday it was ceasing sales from stocks to comply with cutbacks agreed for September and October.

Officials said the 13 ministers met today in "restricted session" with each of them accompanied by one or two aides.

They met in a suite on the scaled-off 18th floor of their conference hotel instead of in the ground-floor ballroom which is used for full sessions.

OPEC's latest conference seeks to bolster oil prices by continued production restraint during the winter in the Northern Hemisphere.

Ministers set up two special committees to discuss individual member output quotas within an overall OPEC ceiling and a price range target.

OPEC spokesmen said the quota group comprised six members — Saudi Arabia, Indonesia, United Arab Emirates, Iran and Nigeria.

Composition of the price committee was not immediately known except that it was chaired by Kuwaiti minister Ali Khalifa Al-Sabah.

The latest conference of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries began on Monday and is the fifth this year.

Several leading OPEC members immediately made it clear that they would like a simple extension — until year's end — of the current output ceiling of 18.8 million barrels a day for September and October.

That ceiling, agreed upon Aug. 4, succeeded in pushing prices up by 50 percent — from around $9 per barrel to $15 a barrel. Prices, however, are now hovering at $13 to $14 pending the outcome of the latest deliberations in Geneva.

Powerful Saudi Arabia with support from its Persian Gulf ally Kuwait want a new production quota system with combined daily output of 17.5 million barrels.

Saudi minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani told reporters that such a level, at least over coming months when winter demand for oil will be higher, could ensure prices of up to $19 a barrel.

Several high delegation officials as well as market analysts said OPEC may be unable to agree at this time on new individual quotas.

Yamani himself conceded that it would be tough to get agreement on new quotas and that the conference could last as long as two weeks.

Libyan minister Fawzi Shakaoui said it would be necessary to cut production back to 15 million barrels a day to attain such prices.

Indonesian minister Subroto proposed extending the current 18.8 million barrel daily ceiling through the first quarter of 1987 — in other words for five additional months.

Delay Of Surgery Appears Justified

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — I had all the signs and symptoms of appendicitis, except for an elevated white blood count. The barium enema showed a blocked appendix, but the doctors refused to perform surgery. When I eventually did get a doctor to do surgery 9½ months later, he found that my appendix had been inflamed, was surrounded by the omentum and had adhered to the Fallopian tube. Please explain this version of appendicitis.

DEAR READER — The appendix is a little sac that juts off the cecum, the first part of the large intestine. There is enormous variation in the size of appendices; some can be as small as the eraser on a lead pencil, while others can be as large as a forefinger.

When the appendicial sac becomes blocked, infection sets in. The patient may experience severe right-lower abdominal pain and fever. There may be an increase in white blood cells (infection fighters). However, the typical symptoms may not always be present. The appendix lies close to other structures, such as the omentum (bowel covering) and the right Fallopian tube. Therefore, if appendectomy is delayed — as it may be when the white-blood-cell count is normal — other abdominal organs also may become infected. Sometimes the appendix bursts.

In your case, the untreated appendicitis simply spread. Hence, at the time of surgery, the doctor probably had to remove other structures as well as the appendix itself. Ordinarily, surgeons prefer to operate before the infection spreads, but in the presence of a normal blood count, the delay, although unfortunate, was justifiable.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I would appreciate any information you can provide on granuloma annulare. It has not responded to topical administration of cortisone.

DEAR READER — Granuloma annulare is a chronic skin disease of unknown cause. It is seen as ring-like arrangements of reddish bumps and pimples. The condition is not serious, and I am unaware of any specific treatment for it. DEAR DR. GOTT — I had hot pack and ultrasound treatments every day for two weeks, then three times a week for 3½ months. Then the physical therapist said I couldn't have anymore ultrasound because I had too much electricity in me. Is this just an excuse?

DEAR READER — I'm afraid it is. Ultrasound is unrelated to electricity and, as far as I know, causes no harm, even after repeated treatments. The therapist might better have chosen to explain to you that a course of ultrasound was not particularly effective; you might feel more comfortable with other methods of treatment.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

After West had cashed three quick diamond tricks against South's four-spade contract, it seemed natural and easy to continue with still another diamond. That fourth diamond allowed East to shed a second heart, but it also gave declarer a chance to show his mettle.

He carefully trumped the fourth diamond with the 10 of spades. Next he played a club to the ace and led the nine of spades. When that held the trick, he continued with the spade eight. Because declarer had wisely used the spade 10 earlier, the lead remained in dummy. Declarer continued with the king and queen of clubs, throwing first a low heart and then the ace. He trumped the last club and returned to the heart king. East was left with the K-6 of spades, but South had the A-Q. Because the lead was in dummy, declarer took the last two tricks to make his contract.

The unusual aspect of this deal is that declarer cannot make the contract without West's play of the fourth diamond. Try doing it if West plays a heart after cashing the third diamond. It can't be done. It's tough to construct a rule from this; just remember that the obvious defensive play is not always the best play.
