Blood bank takes precaution

ORLANDO — The Central Florida Blood Bank plans to begin releasing to the local health department the names of all donors who test positive for the AIDS virus, but because of legal questions, health officials said Thursday they would refuse to accept them.

Pat Hunter, blood bank spokesman, said the move was intended to deter anyone who suspects he has AIDS from using the bank as a free testing agency.

"We basically just want to, again, protect the blood supply and make sure that if there's anyone involved in high risk behaviors, they defer themselves from donating," she said.

"I don't think it makes the blood supply safer," said Bill Calvert, district AIDS coordinator for the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services. "I hope they will back down and not report their positives to us."

The blood bank plans to begin releasing the names on Monday, but Calvert said until the HRS legal department had reviewed the release form used by the bank, his agency would reject them.

Donors will be asked to sign the form giving the bank the right to report HIV test results to the health department. If they refuse to sign, they will not be allowed to give blood, said Mary LaPlant, a blood bank spokeswoman.

Wounded cop anxious to get back to work—with his vest, of course

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County Sheriff's Deputy Thomas Johnson, wounded March 30 in a shootout with two bank robbery suspects, is anxious to get back to full-time patrol duty in four to six weeks.

When he comes back to work, Johnson said during a press conference Thursday, he will be wearing his "lucky" bulletproof vest that saved him from death by two 9 mm semiautomatic bullet strikes to the center of his chest.

He displayed the protection during the press conference at the sheriff's office, where he also recounted details of the shootout.

Johnson removed from the vest a black metal "trauma shield," which he said he bought four years ago for $16, and inserted into his department issued vest. The vest itself, which he was wearing voluntarily when he was shot, would have kept the bullets from penetrating his chest.

However, Johnson, 25, said, the shield, with deep dents from the two bullets, dispersed the shock from the strikes and saved him from severe bruising and broken ribs.

Under Sheriff Duane Harrell said today that the department is considering issuing similar trauma plates to accompany the bulletproof vests of other deputies.

Johnson was shot by Robin Cary, 27, of Boulder, Colo. after a bank robbery in Longwood.

Deputy Paul Shuck arrived within five seconds of Johnson being wounded by the gunfire, and Shuck opened fire on Cary.

New Jersey applicant may take county manager job

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Greg Fehrenbach, the dynamic city administrator of New Brunswick, N.J., is the top contender for the Seminole County manager.

Fehrenbach, 42, was chosen by county commissioners as well as the top choice of the commission's candidate screening committee, comprised of homeowner's representatives, business officials and government officials from other Central Florida counties.

The screening committee's other two top choices, in order of their ranking, were Dora Harrison, chief assistant administrator of Pinellas County and Phyllis Allison, coordinator of the Institute of Government at University of Central Florida.

Commissioners said they were also impressed with Harrison's directness and knowledge of state issues.

The county's candidate-search consultant, MSN Inc., Atlanta, will conduct a final background check on Fehrenbach today. If no problems are found, commission Chairman Sandra Glenn and County Attorney Bob McMillan will negotiate a salary with him. Commissioners have said they will pay up to $150,000 annually in salary and benefits to the new manager.

Commissioners will vote on the salary April 24. They hope to have the new manager in place by June.

Zoo egg hunt among local Easter events

By VICKI BOGEMAN
Herald staff writer

LAKE MONROE — The Easter Bunny has scheduled a stop tomorrow at the Central Florida Zoological Park to leave more than 5,000 eggs for children to find the day before he makes his rounds elsewhere.

Other celebrations, both recreational and religious, will take place elsewhere around the county as well.

A sunrise service will be hosted by the Seminole County Ministerial Association at 7 a.m. Sunday in Centennial Park near downtown Sanford.

Centennial Park, at the corner of 4th Street and Park Ave., has been the site of the service for the past two years. Previously, the service had been celebrated on the waterfront by Lake Monroe.

Other Easter services across the county are:

- Ascension Lutheran Church, 351 Ascension Dr., Casselberry; sunrise service at 6 a.m.; Easter breakfast at 7 a.m.; worship services at 8 and 10:30 a.m.; Sunday

Local Democrats applaud gubernatorial 'Dream Team'

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The chairman of the Seminole County Democratic Executive Committee today applauded the entry of Florida political superstar Lawton Chiles to the Democratic primary for governor, saying he may prove a stronger opponent to Gov. Bob Martinez than current Democratic frontrunner Congressman Bill Nelson.

"He's quite possibly stronger than Nelson," said Bill Gilmartin, chairman of the county's Democratic party organization.

"He has more appeal and he might be able to attract more Republicans than Nelson. He was the classic uncorruptable politician, a definite minority in Washington and Florida."

Chiles said he will pair with former Ocala Congressman Buddy MacKay as his running mate. Some Democrats are already calling the match the "dream team."

Seminole County Clerk of Courts Maryanne Morse, a Republican state national committeewoman, also said Chiles will present a strong opposition to Martinez.

"He represents a definite challenge on the part of Gov. Bob Martinez," Morse said. "He's much better known than Nelson, but I doubt he can attract more Republicans than Nelson. I'd say it's a definite wash."

On whether Chiles could win the governor's race, Morse said "It's hard to say. There's always a definite risk when you're out there."

Chiles announced his candidacy on the steps of the Old Capitol building in Tallahassee, creating the equivalent of a political earthquake.

"I'm delighted to be here to tell you that Buddy and I want to present ourselves as the soon-to-be governor and lieutenant governor of the state of Florida," the former U.S. senator said to thunderous applause from several hundred supporters.

The announcement ended a week of high suspense that began last Friday with news reports that Chiles and MacKay were considering entering the race. Republicans and Democrats alike said Thursday the

Two arrested on sex charge

LONGWOOD — Two men who allegedly made sexual advances to a male undercover City County Investigative Bureau agent at Big Tree Park, rural Longwood, Thursday night, were arrested there, in connection with separate incidents.

Charged with assignment to commit a lewd act are: Charles Keith Ledbetter, 29, 2800 Georgia Ave., Sanford; and James Lee Hubbard, 41, 588 Silver Gate Loop, Lake Mary. Ledbetter was also charged with resisting for allegedly struggling with agents.

Man accused in attack on wife

LAKE MARY — City police here report charging Steven Ray Riedy, 37, 407 Country Wood Circle, Lake Mary, with aggravated battery, after he allegedly beat his wife "very badly," and choked her.

The alleged attack occurred during a dispute at the couple's house at about 11:30 a.m. Thursday, police said. When police arrived they said Riedy met them outside and surrendered.

Cocaine arrests

CASSELBERRY — City County Investigative Bureau agents working undercover in Caselberry, reported a man who approached their car parked near Buxton Road Thursday night, after apparently mistaking their car for that of a drug dealer.

The man moved on to another similar car parked in the area, and appeared to be involved in a drug deal with the occupants of that other car, agents report. The man and the other car drove away and agents because of available manpower were only able to follow and stop the car of the suspected drug dealer.

In a search of that car and the passenger's purse, agents said they found cocaine. That led to charges of possession of cocaine against Debra Jean Ray, 37, 2181 Sunderland Road, Maitland; and Kenneth Frank Hightberger, 50, of the same address.

Police chief lists common offenses

By MARK SPANFAM
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — While crimes of breaking and entering continue to be the most prevalent in the City of Lake Mary, numbers of such cases are not increasing in proportion to the increase in population.

Lake Mary Police Chief Charles W. Lauderdale said Wednesday he believes there are several factors preventing sizeable increases in B&E crimes.

He listed personal home alarm systems and excellent neighborhood watch programs as the leading deterrents, along with the structuring of the police department to provide, what the Chief called "Pro-active order maintenance." By that, he said he meant the assignment of officers to designated areas for the specific purpose of preventing break-ins.

The chief praised the amount of neighborhood watch activity in Lake Mary, often instigated by home owners associations, but cautioned new residential areas to begin their watch programs as soon as possible, and not wait until a crime has been committed.

Crash protection bills miss the mark

Two and a half years after the stock market crashed, Congress is finally getting around to dealing with the proposals for financial market reform made by the Brady Commission. Unfortunately, the bills before the House and the Senate are not only late but inadequate.

The Brady report and other studies of the 1967 crash traced the dizzying collapse of stock prices to faults both in the markets' internal organization and their external regulation. The stock exchanges have moved on their own to correct some of those problems, such as the failure of computer systems to keep up with a high volume of trading and the misconduct of traders who use prior knowledge of large block stock trades by their customers to profit in the stock-index futures markets. But the commission's calls for regulatory reform have so far bogged down in political infighting.

The bills moving through the House and Senate reflect that stalemate. They incorporate mostly the least controversial of the commission's reform recommendations.

They would give the Securities and Exchange Commission new emergency authority to close markets and impose rules to protect investors in a disorderly market. They would permit the SEC to monitor large trades to watch for market manipulation and give regulators more information on the financial condition of the parent companies and affiliated firms of brokerage houses, a provision that would have given the SEC more warning of the Drexel Burnham Lambert bankruptcy. The bills also would authorize a coordinated national process for settling and clearing "over-the-counter" transactions, a process that broke down in the October, 1967 crash.

All that is useful and necessary. But the bills shy away from the central recommendations for reforms that came out of the crash: a single regulatory framework to govern both Wall Street stock trading and the Chicago market for stock-index futures.

Studies after the crash showed that the plunge was driven largely by the links between the stock market, where investors buy and sell shares in individual companies, and the futures markets, where they buy and sell contracts based on the anticipated level of the entire stock market at some date in the future. Although big investors play in both markets and the prices in the two markets are interconnected, there are different rules, regulators and margin requirements for each market.

The Brady Commission and many other experts have recommended a single regulatory framework and coordinated rules for the two markets.

Those recommendations have been fought by the Commodities Futures Trading Commission, the federal agency that now regulates financial futures trading, and by legislators with close ties to the Chicago commodity markets. The closest any of the bills comes is a provision in the House bill that would give the SEC authority to regulate program trading — large computer-executed trading of baskets of stocks, often in conjunction with transactions on the futures markets. But unless Congress is prepared to give the SEC not only that authority but much more, the markets and investors will remain at risk of another destabilizing crash.

Military sprawl alarms rural area

INDIAN SPRINGS, Nev. — Most people are thrilled to watch the Air Force Thunderbirds perform intricate aerial maneuvers while flying their jet fighters at high speeds in tight formations. But for the residents of this community, it's terrifying.

Although the local high school's sports teams are nicknamed the Thunderbirds in honor of the Aerial Demonstration Squadron (the unit's official name) whose home is at nearby Nellis Air Force Base, classes are abruptly halted when the planes regularly roar over at altitudes as low as 500 feet.

Teachers and students — and everybody else in the small Nevada town of 1,500 people — can't communicate over the noise and vibration. In past years, scared youngsters on the school playground flung themselves to the ground when the planes screeched overhead while flying in and out of Nellis.

Conditions became so intolerable that angry townspeople insisted that the Air Force modify the Thunderbirds' flight patterns in mid-1988. "For a while afterward it was OK, but now it's getting bad again," says one local resident, Ellen Buttery. "They scream right over the top of my house."

Nellis is hardly the only military facility whose activities intrude upon life in the community. On one side is the Indian Springs Gunnery Range. On another side is the vast, 864,000 acre Nevada Test Site, where nuclear warheads once were detonated in the atmosphere and now are exploded underground.

Throughout the nation, from Minnesota to Mississippi, rural communities are increasingly concerned as all of the military services — Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines — seek to acquire millions of additional acres for their bases and thousands of miles of new air lanes for their planes.

Military installations in this country already occupy 35 million acres, most of which was previously public land. Now, various components of the Defense Department want an additional 7.7 million acres of public land while seeking to close older, smaller installations.

"Today, a mechanized Army battalion needs more than 80,000 acres to practice standard maneuvers, compared with 4,000 acres during World War II," says Robert A. Stone, deputy assistant secretary of Defense for installations.

"The five nautical miles required for aerial maneuvers during World War II has grown to 40 nautical miles today, and the new advanced tactical fighter is expected to need between 80 and 100 nautical miles," he adds.

Rural regions offer the most logical sites for those activities because "adequate weapons testing and training requires sparsely populated areas to minimize the risks to human health and safety," Stone explains.

But a different perspective is offered by Robert Fulkerson, executive director of Citizen Alert, a grass-roots organization based in Reno, Nev., that represents those "fighting to protect themselves and their rural communities from military abuse."

He understands that low population density is "the prevailing reason for siting the vast majority of the federal government's dangerous, dirty and debilitating projects in rural areas."

Conditions became so intolerable that angry townspeople insisted that the Air Force modify the flight patterns.

Right calls new war on poverty

WASHINGTON — It's ironic that on the same weekend when veterans of Lyndon Johnson's administration gathered in Washington to mark the 25th anniversary of the Great Society, the head of a leading conservative think tank should issue a manifesto calling for a concerted attack on the poverty and dependency Johnson sought to eradicate.

Edward J. Feulner Jr., president of the Heritage Foundation, resurrected a favorite Great Society concept — "empowerment" — in an essay, "Conservatism in a New Age," for his organization's annual report. He argues that this notion can serve as the glue for a conservative movement that he acknowledges has "far less consensus than a few years ago" on its approach to domestic or foreign policy.

Feulner told me that he hopes this idea can replace anti-communism as the source of energy to carry conservative hopes into the Nineties.

Of course, when Feulner and his colleagues speak about "empowerment," they have something quite different in mind than Johnson's version of the "War on Poverty." They have nothing but scorn for things like "Model Cities" or "Community Action" programs. In Feulner's view, these "empowered bureaucrats, not people."

To him, empowerment means "giving parents the freedom to choose the schools their children attend, empowering tenants to manage the public-housing projects where they live, and providing business incentives to invest in poor inner-city neighborhoods."

Interestingly, the conservatives advocate the Earned Income Tax Credit. That's a fancy name for a family allowance — or reverse income tax — that has the government writing checks to low-income families. Feulner asserts that Heritage's Robert Rector deserves credit for making that feature the heart of the child-care legislation just passed by the House. Even though the idea is a variant on the proposal for which George McGovern was ridiculed in the 1964 presidential campaign, Burton Yale Pines, Heritage's senior vice president, has no qualms about embracing it.

"One of the main imperatives for conservatives," he told me, "is to recapture the rhetoric of compassion. Conservatives believe we're not all created equal and those who are better-endowed have an obligation to take care of those who are less well-endowed. The Earned Income Tax Credit is a way of saying that those who most need help from the government should get it in the least intrusive way possible, and the least intrusive way is to give them cash. It's empowerment."

Feulner and Pines argue that adoption of their child-care approach by such younger-generation liberals as Rep. Tom Downey (D-N.Y.) shows that conservatism has become "an almost irresistible wave." But they concede that they have been criticized, by right-wingers a generation younger than themselves, for "even conceding a government role in child care."

In fact, it is the readiness to get in and mix it up in the real-world political and policy debates in Congress, rather than remain in ivory-tower purity, that has made Heritage's Capitol Hill headquarters a respected force in Washington. Now 17 years old, it has 135 scholars and researchers, a contributor base of 180,000 people and a budget last year of almost $18 million.

It was wired-in with the Reagan administration and is comfortable, if not cozy, with the Bush crowd, of whom Dan Quayle and Jack Kemp probably are the most sympathetic. Feulner gives the Bush administration "a good solid B so far." And Pines says that if it succeeds, "it will be remembered like the Truman administration," as one which consolidated the success of a predecessor.

"You don't need a Roosevelt or a Reagan more than once a half-century," Pines said, "but it takes creativity just to consolidate."

There's a certain smugness about the Heritage high command, as there is about the Bush administration. Feulner and Pines, for example, insist that the budget deficits will disappear by 1992-93, if Bush just sticks to his no-new-taxes pledge and brandishes the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings sequester threat at Congress. They also argue that the United States faces fewer problems than Japan or a reunited Germany in gearing up for the international economic competition of the coming decade — especially if the United States goes forward on a proposal Heritage is giving intense study: expanding the U.S.-Canadian free-trade zone to include Mexico.

But there's a clear sense of energy and confidence at Heritage, reflecting the conservative successes in the Eighties. It shows in the aggressive outreach program Heritage is mounting to bring more black scholars and students into its orbit. That kind of energy is hard to find among the think tanks on the Left.

That kind of energy is hard to find among the think tanks on the Left.

Soviets spying at French ports

WASHINGTON — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev may have declared this to be the age of glasnost, but a U.S. intelligence report says he has more than 300 spies busy in France stealing military and industrial secrets. As a sidelight, the Soviet agents hang around French port cities hoping to befriend visiting American sailors.

The report, classified "secret," was authored by U.S. naval intelligence. It estimates the Soviet presence in France, including diplomats, to be as many as 1,400 people, with 200 of them in the business of collecting intelligence. That makes France the gathering place for one of the largest contingents of Soviet spies outside the Soviet Union. If Gorbachev is trying to warm relations with Western Europe, why all the spooks? As we reported earlier, in his effort to move the Soviet Union out of the Dark Ages, Gorbachev has switched the focus of the KGB from propaganda and military intelligence to industrial espionage. At a secret meeting with KGB chief Vladimir Kryuchkov, Gorbachev was briefed on how "cost effective" industrial espionage can be. He ordered Kryuchkov to not only keep up the good work, but put more emphasis on stealing high-tech secrets. The French counter-espionage service, the Direction de la Surveillance du Territoire, or DST, has become one of the most effective in countering technological theft by the KGB.

Our intelligence sources told us of a sensational DST coup that came in the spring of 1981 when the agency managed to turn a top KGB techno-spy. The man, code-named Farewell, was a senior official in the KGB section dealing with scientific spying. He ended up giving the French more than 4,000 classified documents on the subject. We can now reveal that it was Farewell who almost singlehandedly revised the way U.S. intelligence agencies approach the threat of KGB scientific espionage.

At the first eight-power Western economic summit attended by President Reagan in 1981, then-French President Francois Mitterand personally briefed Reagan on the news from Farewell. Several weeks later, the DST chief Marcel Chalet briefed then-Vice President George Bush.

Farewell's information was substantial enough to cause the French to expel 47 Soviet diplomats for espionage in 1983. The counter spy disappeared without a trace that same year.

The current U.S. Navy intelligence report is based on information from the DST, and is a warning to American sailors on port calls in southern France. "At least five suspected Soviet intelligence agents are reportedly operating in the southern coastal region of France, and a group of French-Americans residing along the southern coast are believed to be engaging in espionage activities," the secret report says.

"The large Soviet presence along the southern French coast provides ample opportunity for intelligence collection operations against U.S. Navy assets visiting French ports." The Soviets are not the only hostile spies in France. The Navy reports that Cuba, Libya and Iran are among the those actively gathering intelligence. "Soviet and Warsaw Pact activities in France are aimed primarily at collecting information on France's role as an ally of NATO and on French technological developments," the report says.

Manager

Former County Manager Ken Hooper resigned Oct. 23 after falling from favor with the majority of the commission.

Commissioners said they were undecided as to their choice after meeting privately with four of the top five candidates Wednesday. But all said after listening to the five candidates in five-on-one interviews throughout the day Thursday, Fehrenbach emerged as their clear choice.

"He's knowledgeable and he handled himself beautifully," said commissioner Jennifer Kelley. "I like his style. He'll be able to work well with the staff."

"He came across as a good communicator," Glenn said. "He may be a workaholic, but it appears he's looking for a new challenge and he's willing to get up to speed real fast. He seemed open and honest."

"He displayed what will be his management style," Streetman said. "Self-confident, firm. This county is used to a strong manager, Ken (Hooper) and Roger (Neiswander) before him. I think we'll have that in Greg."

Fehrenbach has served as administrator of New Brunswick, a city of 40,000, for one year. He previously served as administrator of East Brunswick, N.J., a town with 43,000 people, for four years. From 1974 through 1985, he served as manager or deputy manager of two smaller New Jersey communities.

Fehrenbach described his management style as ranging from autocratic to participative and "in the middle."

"I generally describe it as contingency," Fehrenbach said. "I select a style that's appropriate for the environment. I don't take a cookbook style developed in one place and carry it from place to place."

Fehrenbach said he has had to adapt in a city with a small $80 million budget by soliciting private firms to donate services to the city. He said the city is in the process of computerizing its systems and to save $25,000 in hiring a consulting firm to design the system, he asked an executive with Johnson & Johnson headquartered in the town for their assistance.

"They're about four or six months behind schedule, but that's the trade-off," Fehrenbach said.

Fehrenbach said he's also had to deal with public opposition to a 30 percent property tax increase. He said he prepared for the opposition by presenting the residents with full information on why the increase was needed, how the additional revenues would be spent and how future increases could be avoided.

Fehrenbach said there have been no subsequent property tax increases in that community in six years.

Much of the commissioner's questioning centered around Fehrenbach's relationship with his staff. He said he does go to lunch and an occasional dinner with his department heads, but does not develop deeper relationships.

When asked if he discovered a director he liked was giving preferential treatment to a developer that was a friend of the director, Fehrenbach said if the activity was illegal, he would collect the information and deliver it promptly to the State Attorney's Office. If not illegal, Fehrenbach said he would demand the favoritism end and expose the situation.

"I find putting a spotlight on a situation like that tends to end it rather quickly," Fehrenbach said. "The embarrassment usually does it."

Johnson said he was "surprised" when Cary "popped up" from inside the car and opened fire on Johnson, striking him first in the chest. While Cary was focused on him, Shuck arrived to shoot Cary.

Dobson survived to face multiple charges, including attempted murder of Johnson. He is held without bond in Orange County.

Johnson said he was wearing his bulletproof vest at the insistence of his wife Sheri. Since Johnson was shot it has become mandatory for Seminole patrol deputies on day duty as well as night to wear department issued bulletproof vests on duty.

"If you don't wear a vest for yourself, wear it for your family and the people who love you. It's uncomfortable, but necessary," was Johnson's comment directed to fellow officers.

Johnson said emotionally he's 100 percent. Physically he has no feeling in his right knee. His wounds are healing, and he said doctors say he will recover fully.

bullets from Cary's gun striking the ground beside his head, while he held Cary's accused accomplice in his own gunights.

"I don't feel like a hero," Johnson said. "The heroes are the firemen, the people who took care of me that day."

Johnson had pursued the bank robber's car from the scene of a $34,000 robbery of a bank on U.S. 17 in Sanford, Fla., about two miles from the shoot-out scene.

When Johnson forced the suspects' car to stop near the E. Lake Brantley Road intersection, he got out with his shotgun in hand and ordered the armed men in the car out. Johnson fired shotgun blasts to disable the car. The driver, Graham Dobson, 33, of Australia, got out, and Johnson said his mind played a trick on him and he thought Cary had gotten out and run from the car too. Johnson ordered Dobson to stop and while he focused on him,

Chiles

announcement turns the governor's race upside down.

For instance, Nelson, who for 17 months has been the Democratic front-runner in the race to unseat Republican Gov. Bob Martinez, said Chiles has to be automatically regarded as the party's favorite.

Martinez, in comments made prior to Chiles' announcement, predicted the former senator's entry into the race will throw the Democratic Party into "turmoil" and "disarray." The chief beneficiary, he said, will be Bob Martinez.

"We welcome all the crowd on the Democratic side. I think it's good news," said Martinez prior to a Cabinet meeting. "It just keeps them busy. It defers the November election just a little bit by virtue of them having to stay busy with each other to see who'll get nominated."

In Orlando, a spokesman for state Sen. George Stuart, who has trailed Nelson in the camaign, said Chiles' entry seriously wounds Nelson and has caused a change in their strategy.

The Stuart campaign now believes the Democratic primary will end in a runoff, and "we want that second spot," said campaign spokesman Scott Sokol.

In announcing for the governor's race, Chiles said he will impose a $100 limit on campaign contributions. So far, Nelson has raised $4.3 million, while Martinez has collected $6.3 million.

"Money doesn't vote — people vote. ... We're going to have more people," he said.

With MacKay at his side, Chiles said their campaign will focus on "women and children first," a reference to health care and family issues.

Several Nelson supporters on the front lawn of the Old Capitol pulled their Nelson pins off their lapels when Chiles announced he was running.

U.S. Sen. Bob Graham, who watched the ceremony, said he was not going to endorse any candidate, but he said Chiles will bring new energy to the Democratic primary.

"Every election with an incumbent has a degree of referendum vote to them. This will be more of a referendum than most elections. Everybody has decided 'Yes' or 'No' with respect to Martinez. With Lawton in the race, it presents a very strong alternative," Graham said.

Nelson, who has already lined up the support of most of the state's Democratic officials, welcomed Chiles' entry into the race, but he referred to his old friend and colleague as "tired" and "out-of-touch."

But in a recent opinion survey, Chiles polled far better than Nelson and ran about even with Martinez, a showing that some political observers called outstanding in light of the fact that Chiles has been in retirement for two years. Chiles, who celebrated his 60th birthday last week, has been one of the state's top all-time vote getters. The native of Lakeland served seven years in the Florida House and four years in the Florida Senate before his election to the U.S. Senate in 1971.

He rose to become chairman of the powerful Senate Appropriations Committee, but he left the Senate in disgust in January 1989, saying he was frustrated with Washington politics and the emphasis placed on money in political campaigns.

Since leaving government, he has served as director of the LeRoy Collins Center for Public Policy at Florida State University.

MacKay was considered one of the national Democratic Party's rising stars until his narrow defeat in 1988 in the race for the seat that Chiles vacated. Republican Connie Mack won that race.

Government wants all shellfish cooked

By KEN GUBAN
United Press International

ATLANTA — Federal health officials Thursday warned Americans to avoid eating raw shellfish and urged restaurant workers to wear gloves to help combat an upsurge in the liver disease hepatitis A.

The Centers for Disease Control reported a 58 percent increase over six years in the feces-transmitted form of the viral infection that rarely causes death but can lead to prolonged illness.

During the years of the increase — 1983, when 9.3 cases per 100,000 people were reported, to 1989, when 14.8 cases per 100,000 were cited — 7.3 percent of the cases were attributed to transmission through food-handling or shellfish, the CDC said.

The other 92.7 percent of the cases were among people who had close contact with carriers of the disease — drug users, people in day-care settings and international travelers, said Miriam Alter, a CDC epidemiologist.

There are about 34,000 cases of hepatitis A each year in the United States. The disease can cause mild fever, fatigue, sore muscles, headache, abdominal pain and upset stomach. There is no treatment.

While prevention is difficult in most patients, restaurant workers and consumers of shellfish taken from waters contaminated with feces can do their part to protect themselves and others against the liver disease, Alter said.

"If you are going to prepare food or ice or anything that is going into anyone else's mouth, you should be wearing gloves," Alter said. "And if a food handler does come down with hepatitis A, it should be promptly reported to local health department."

The CDC cited examples of 1988 outbreaks traced to restaurants in North Carolina, Washington state and a convenience store in Alaska that had served an ice-slush beverage prepared with utensils stored in a bathroom.

In a case not contained in the CDC report, Dade County, Fla., officials this week reported at least 38 people were stricken with the disease after eating at a Miami gourmet deli. The establishment, Poppy's Deli, had employed a salad and sandwich preparer who unknowingly was afflicted with the virus.

Though the incidence of transmission through contaminated shellfish is rare, Alter said consumers of raw clams, mussels, oysters and scallops should start learning to enjoy the delicacies in their cooked form.

"If a person is concerned about getting hepatitis A from shellfish, cooking the shellfish as opposed to eating it raw would prevent them from getting it," Alter said.

Jean-Claude Desenclos, a CDC epidemiologist assigned to the Florida Health Department, recommended cooking the mollusks for at least six minutes, noting that steaming them for a minute is insufficient to kill the virus.

The CDC also recommended better surveillance of fishing waters, which are routinely inspected by state officials under Food and Drug Administration guidelines. The government also is warning fishermen to operate inside the designated inspection waters.

The federal health agency cited a 1988 example of a hepatitis A outbreak in Florida in which 61 people were infected. The cases were traced to consumption of raw oysters that had apparently been illegally harvested off Bay County.

The other forms of the liver disease, hepatitis B, largely transmitted through human contact, and hepatitis C, have been shown to have leveled off in recent years.

Alter said authorities cannot explain the increase in hepatitis A, except that it tends to run in cycles, sharply rising after a period of dormancy because of a lack of immunity to the disease.

"It's not due to the increase in food-borne cases," she said. "The shellfish cases are very rare."

A vaccine is available to prevent hepatitis B. A similar immunization is being developed for hepatitis A.

Until a vaccine is available for the hepatitis A version, the only preventive measure is gamma globulin, a shot derived from human plasma that must be administered within two weeks of exposure to prevent the onset of symptoms.

Tuna companies pitch for dolphins

WASHINGTON — Announcements by the nation's top three tuna canners to help reduce the killing of dolphins disappointed fishermen, but boosted environmentalists who are lobbying hard for change.

StarKist Seafood Co., the world's largest tuna canner and a subsidiary of H.J. Heinz Co. of Pittsburgh, was first to announce Thursday it would stop buying tuna from fishermen whose nets simultaneously trap and kill dolphins.

At a news conference, Heinz Chairman Anthony J.F. O'Reilly said StarKist's decision will cost consumers "a couple of cents" extra on each can of tuna.

Van Camp Seafood Co. of St. Louis, maker of the second most-popular brand, Chicken of the Sea, and No. 3 Bumble Bee Seafood Inc., followed StarKist with similar announcements. Bumble Bee is owned by a Thai investment group.

In addition, StarKist and Van Camp each said they would stop buying fish caught in gill or drift nets, known to be dangerous to marine life.

Controversial FBI seizure proposed

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department expressed concern over an FBI effort to gain broad authority to seize documents and other evidence in criminal cases without grand jury subpoenas or orders from federal judges.

The proposal, first reported by The New York Times on Thursday, would allow FBI agents to obtain "administrative subpoenas" authorized by supervisory-level FBI agents.

The concept has generated civil liberties concerns because the FBI has been accused of overstepping constitutional bounds in some politically oriented investigations.

Critics say it would remove an important level of supervision over FBI activities.

Study explains 1980s tuition increases

WASHINGTON — The rapid rise in college costs during the 1980s occurred as schools decided to compete for students by improving quality rather than lowering prices, a report sponsored by higher-education groups said.

Arthur Hauptman, author of the study requested by the American Council on Education and the College Board, said Thursday many feared that the smaller pool of college-age students in the 1980s would lead to school closings and mergers.

But instead, he told reporters, colleges and universities competed for students by offering more financial aid and better facilities and services — leading to higher tuitions.

Former governor pleads guilty

CHARLESTON, W.Va. — Former Gov. Arch Moore, who agreed to plead guilty to five federal charges ranging from extortion to filing false tax returns, will cooperate with a wider investigation into political corruption in West Virginia, federal prosecutors said.

An indictment issued Thursday focused on $631,221 Moore received between 1984 and 1986, the last of his three terms, alleging that the former Republican governor extorted well over half that amount and that he failed to pay taxes on or in other ways illegally handled the rest.

U.S.: Census count not going well

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Far fewer people have responded to the 1980 Census than expected, said Census Bureau Director Barbara Bryant, who still promised an accurate, if more costly, head count.

"As of today, the national check-in response rate is only 57 percent," Bryant told a news conference Thursday.

"We're at a critical point in the census process," she said. "We have had a good response from some areas and a disappointing one from many others. If this slow response rate continues, it will cost the American taxpayer."

But she added "the integrity of the count is not at issue. All along we have had procedures to count" those who do not mail the forms back.

"What we're talking about is the cost difference," Bryant said.

Census officials said they had hoped to have a 70 percent return of 90 million census forms that were put in the mail at the end of March. Those addresses not mailing back forms will be visited in person by a census taker.

"For each 1 percent of the mail return that falls below our 70 percent rate, we will need an additional $10 million to hire, train and pay enumerators to complete the job on the doorsteps of America," Bryant said.

It also means that an additional 950,000 homes and apartments will have to be visited in person by a census taker.

Next week, Bryant said, the agency will begin to make the determination of how many census takers it needs and where they must be placed for the door-to-door count that is to begin April 28.

Since the once-a-decade count began, the effort has been plagued with reports of foul-ups, confusion, missed addresses, housing units that exist but are not on the census list, undelivered forms and other problems.

On Wednesday, officials from a number of cities, including New York and Los Angeles as well as the U.S. Conference of Mayors and the National League of Cities said they would return to court to force the Census Bureau to adjust its 1980 count to correct for a predicted undercount of minorities and other hard-to-reach people.

Indonesian satellite launch from Cape set for 6:30 p.m.

WILLIAM HARWOOD
UPI Science Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — An Indonesian satellite stranded in space during a 1984 shuttle mission and tracked 10 months later by spacewalking astronauts is ready for a second launch try Friday, this time using an unmanned Delta rocket.

The Palapa B2R satellite, refurbished by Hughes Aircraft Co. after its return to Earth in November 1984, was scheduled for launch at 6:28 p.m. from the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station adjacent to the Kennedy Space Center. Air Force meteorologists predicted a 90 percent chance of good weather.

"At this point, we're looking very good for launch," said a spokesman for Delta-builder McDonnell Douglas Space Systems Co. of Huntington Beach, Calif.

Launch will come on a Friday the 13th, the 20th anniversary of an explosion that rocked the Apollo 13 spacecraft, aborting a landing on the moon in one of the greatest space dramas in history. The three-member crew successfully returned to Earth after swinging around the moon.

Once on station 22,300 miles above the Pacific Ocean equator, Palapa B2R — the "R" stands for re-flight — will join two other relay stations already in orbit to help link Indonesia's 13,677 islands with telephone, television and data communications service.

Palapa B2R, a cylindrical

1,437-pound satellite measuring 22 feet long and 7 feet wide, is equipped with 24 radio transponders, each one capable of carrying 1,000 one-way voice circuits or a color television transmission.

Liftoff Friday will come six days after the successful launch of an identical satellite aboard a Chinese Long March rocket that was stranded in space along with Palapa during a February 1984 shuttle mission.

Both Palapa B2 and Westar 6, identical Hughes 376 communications satellites, were fired into useless orbits when their McDonnell Douglas-built "payload assist module" solid-fuel rocket motors misfired after deployment from the shuttle Challenger.

20th anniversary of space drama today

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — Twenty years ago today the 13th, the Apollo 13 moonship, launched at 13:13 Houston military time two days earlier, was rocked by an explosion that triggered one of the most dramatic crises in the history of manned spaceflight.

The tense life-and-death drama began at 10:08 p.m. EDT on April 13, 1970, when an oxygen tank in the Apollo 13 service module suddenly blew up as the spacecraft and its three-member crew were hurtling toward the moon some 205,000 miles from Earth.

The flight began two days earlier when commander James Lovell, command module pilot Jack Swigert and lunar module pilot Fred Haise p.m. EDT April 11 from the Kennedy Space Center to kick off the third manned lunar landing mission.

"The first two days we ran into a couple of minor surprises, but generally Apollo 13 was looking like the smoothest flight in the program," Lovell wrote in "Apollo Expeditions to the Moon."

"At 55 hours 46 minutes (into the flight), as we finished a 49-minute TV broadcast showing how comfortably we lived and worked in weightlessness, I pronounced the benediction: 'This is the crew of Apollo 13 wishing everybody there a nice evening... Good night.'"

Nine minutes later, oxygen tank No. 2, mounted in the Apollo service module directly behind the manned command module, exploded, which caused the No. 1 tank to fail as well.

Shining Path blamed for Peru violence

LIMA, Peru — Police blamed Shining Path rebels for a shooting and bombing rampage in the Peruvian capital that killed two people and wounded at least 21 during a widespread blackout.

Suspected Shining Path guerrillas set off bombs in cars, banks and parks and shot and killed a policeman Wednesday night after bombing the capital's main electricity towers, police said Thursday.

The violence came just three days after general elections Sunday. The latest projections from the presidential vote show independent Alberto Fujimori, 51, running neck-and-neck with conservative novelist Mario Vargas Llosa, 54.

Arafat arrives in Czechoslovakia

PRAQUE, Czechoslovakia — PLO chairman Yasser Arafat arrived in Czechoslovakia Thursday for a two-day visit at the invitation of President Vaclav Havel, the official news agency CTK said.

Havel greeted Arafat at Ruzyně airport, which was decorated with their flags, CTK said.

Diplomatic observers said Havel extended the invitation to balance his own trip to Israel, tentatively scheduled for April 26. Czechoslovakia renewed diplomatic relations with Israel Feb. 9.

At a news conference, Arafat said, "I am happy to be in this friendly country again."

The PLO leader first visited Czechoslovakia in 1966 as chairman of the Union of Palestinian students, and returned several times during communist rule.

Czechoslovakia was one of the first nations to support the call for a separate Palestinian homeland in 1948.

"This nation has always been on the side of a just cause of our people, its right to freedom and democracy," he said.

Thatcher arrives in Bermuda for talks

HAMILTON, Bermuda — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher arrived in Bermuda Thursday for summit talks with President Bush and tersely stuck by her decision to lift sanctions against South Africa.

The beleaguered prime minister, facing a tax revolt and plummeting popularity at home as well as increasing isolation in the international community, was expected to hold nine hours of talks with Bush beginning early Friday — their sixth meeting since Bush was elected in November 1980.

Exiled king cancels return to Romania

GENEVA — Exiled former King Michael abandoned plans to return to his native Romania Thursday after the Bucharest government, warning of possible violence, revoked his entry visa.

"I just wanted to be in my country for Easter," the former monarch told a news conference in Zurich, from where he was to have flown to Bucharest for his first visit in 43 years.

Clutching his passport in his hands and flanked by his wife, the former Queen Ann, Michael said it was a "very sad day when a country no longer accepts its citizens."

He said his planned trip to Romania after four decades in exile was "entirely motivated by personal and spiritual reasons connected with my wish to spend Easter in my country." He said he still hopes to return to Romania as soon as possible.

Thieves snatch Greek antiquities

ATHENS, Greece — Thieves broke into a museum in ancient Corinth, overpowered a 1980 guard and stole a truckload of priceless antiquities, the semi-official Athens News Agency said Thursday.

The news agency, quoting police sources, said the theft occurred about 3 a.m. Thursday at the museum 60 miles west of Athens.

The thieves broke in through a back door, overpowered and bound the lone guard and emptied display cases of priceless antiquities dating back to classical times and earlier. They loaded the antiquities onto a truck and made off with them, the news agency said.

ANA said the stolen antiquities included a marble bust of the Roman Emperor Hadrian, 10 marble heads, 12 ancient plaster vases, two ceramic vases with decorations in relief, four clay statuettes and five clay vases.

Walesa seeks presidency

United Press International

ELBLAG, Poland — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, openly angling for President Wojciech Jaruzelski's job, criticized his performance Thursday and said a new president should act rapidly to implement economic reforms.

Walesa met about 400 Solidarity union activists at a mechanic's school at the Zamech industrial plant and, like a seasoned candidate, accepted a bouquet of flowers, signed autographs and cracked jokes with admirers.

"Come quick, I will not give any autographs when I am president," he said at one point, sending his audience into gales of laughter.

East Germans elect CDU leader

United Press International

Lothar de Maiziere, elected Thursday to become East Germany's first non-Communist leader, is a soft-spoken lawyer and former viola player who only reluctantly entered the political arena.

A slight and unassuming man who readily admits he is not a Western-style, charismatic leader, de Maiziere once said: "I am a politician by duty rather than calling."

But his common-sense approach to the problems facing a changing East Germany and his firm commitment to swift German reunification won him high marks with voters in March 18 elections — the first free polls in East Germany's 40-year history.

He also earned the respect of fellow conservatives for managing to clean up the image of his Christian Democratic Union — which had been one of the four block parties allied to the communists until last fall's ouster of the Stalinst leadership.

The CDU won 163 parliamentary seats in the recent elections, more than any other party. De Maiziere was elected prime minister after receiving the backing of a comfortable majority in the 400-seat Parliament, garnering 265 votes.

The 50-year-old conservative leader had earlier in the week accomplished the tricky task of bringing together conservatives, social-democrats and liberals to form a new broad-based coalition government.

UNITED NATIONS — A group of Soviet organizations announced Thursday plans to air a 24-hour television program to publicize the "sad events" of the Chernobyl nuclear accident on its fourth anniversary April 26.

Headed by Anatoly Karpov, challenger for the world chess championship, the group said "Telethon Chernobyl" will be broadcast from the Rossiya concert hall in Moscow.

Iraq may destroy nuclear bombs

United Press International

JERUSALEM — Iraqi President Saddam Hussein told a U.S. Senate delegation led by Minority Leader Robert Dole that Baghdad would destroy its non-conventional weapons if Israel would do the same.

Dole, R-Kan., told a news conference Thursday in Jerusalem that during a 2 1/2-hour meeting this week in the northern Iraqi city of Mosul, Saddam also "flatly denied" an NBC-TV report that Iraq was attempting to develop biological weapons.

The group of five senators, who are touring the Middle East, had told Saddam the United States was concerned about Iraq's involvement in non-conventional weapons, Dole said.

The Iraqi News Agency, monitored in Kuwait, reported that Saddam told the senators he would dismantle all his "weapons of mass destruction" if Israel did the same.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, said the Iraqi leader had told the delegation to publicize his offer.

"He advocates complete elimination of all weapons of mass destruction in the area and pledged his government's support for such action," McClure said.

Dole said Saddam believed a smear campaign was behind news reports about Iraq's alleged plans to develop nuclear and biological weapons.

"He indicated to us that he feels very strongly that there's an American-British-Israeli campaign to tarnish the image of his government and his country," Dole said.

East Germans elect CDU leader

United Press International

Lothar de Maiziere, elected Thursday to become East Germany's first non-Communist leader, is a soft-spoken lawyer and former viola player who only reluctantly entered the political arena.

A slight and unassuming man who readily admits he is not a Western-style, charismatic leader, de Maiziere once said: "I am a politician by duty rather than calling."

But his common-sense approach to the problems facing a changing East Germany and his firm commitment to swift German reunification won him high marks with voters in March 18 elections — the first free polls in East Germany's 40-year history.

He also earned the respect of fellow conservatives for managing to clean up the image of his Christian Democratic Union — which had been one of the four block parties allied to the communists until last fall's ouster of the Stalinst leadership.

The CDU won 163 parliamentary seats in the recent elections, more than any other party. De Maiziere was elected prime minister after receiving the backing of a comfortable majority in the 400-seat Parliament, garnering 265 votes.

The 50-year-old conservative leader had earlier in the week accomplished the tricky task of bringing together conservatives, social-democrats and liberals to form a new broad-based coalition government.

ELBLAG, Poland — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, openly angling for President Wojciech Jaruzelski's job, criticized his performance Thursday and said a new president should act rapidly to implement economic reforms.

Walesa met about 400 Solidarity union activists at a mechanic's school at the Zamech industrial plant and, like a seasoned candidate, accepted a bouquet of flowers, signed autographs and cracked jokes with admirers.

"Come quick, I will not give any autographs when I am president," he said at one point, sending his audience into gales of laughter.

UNITED NATIONS — A group of Soviet organizations announced Thursday plans to air a 24-hour television program to publicize the "sad events" of the Chernobyl nuclear accident on its fourth anniversary April 26.

Headed by Anatoly Karpov, challenger for the world chess championship, the group said "Telethon Chernobyl" will be broadcast from the Rossiya concert hall in Moscow.

ON YOUR FEET

DR. MICHAEL LAIBERTE Podiatrist

DIABETICS AND FOOT CARE

If you are a diabetic, you should be particularly alert to any problems you may be having with your feet. Most foot problems can be treated successfully if you act in time.

As a disease, diabetes tends to cause circulatory problems that affect the feet and legs. It can also cause a loss of feeling in the feet. Infections can start more easily than in the non-diabetic person, and it will probably take longer to cure an infection once it starts.

Diabetics often do not have the ability to feel pain as quickly or intensely as other people, and for that reason injuries to the foot may not be noticed until the condition becomes serious. If you notice even a slight injury to your foot, you should not continue to walk on it unless it has been examined and treated.

Probably the best advice for someone who is diabetic is to have his feet examined routinely by his foot specialist. Even minor problems can become serious if they are left untreated.

IN BRIEF

BASKETBALL

76ers romp without Barkley

The Philadelphia 76ers didn't need much of a contribution from Charles Barkley to make their 50th win of the year their most convincing victory of the season.

Hampered by a sore right knee, Barkley played only 23 minutes and scored a mere 11 points Thursday night but Philadelphia rolled over the Minnesota Timberwolves 110-77, with the 33-point difference being the 76ers' largest margin of victory this season.

Barkley injured the knee in a collision with Atlanta's Jon Koncak Tuesday and limped noticeably on the court against the Timberwolves.

In other games, Cleveland clipped Washington 102-100, Boston beat Miami 139-118, New York nipped Indiana 108-100, Houston stopped Charlotte 117-110, Utah topped the LA Lakers 107-104, San Antonio stopped the LA Clippers 105-98, Phoenix defeated Sacramento 118-114, Seattle sank Denver 113-103 and Dallas dumped Golden State 140-133.

TENNIS

Bassett-Seguso to face Graf

AMELIA ISLAND — Carling Bassett-Seguso, who all but dropped out of tennis two years ago, upset Linda Ferrando 6-4, 6-2 Thursday, advancing to the quarterfinals of the $350,000 Bosch & Lomb Championships where she will play Steffi Graf, who also making a comeback.

Graf, returning as No. 1 player in the world after breaking her thumb more than two months ago, was idle Thursday. In her first two matches after recovering from her injury, she beat Petra Langrova and Andrea Temesvari in matches totaling less than 90 minutes.

In other matches Thursday, second-seeded Gabriela Sabatini defeated Cathy Caverzasio of Switzerland, 6-4, 6-0; third-seeded Arantxa Sanchez Vicario sailed past Kathy Rinaldi 6-0, 6-1, and No. 4 Zina Garrison outlasted Veronica Martinek 6-4, 6-4.

Kelly case nearing end

BUFFALO, N.Y. — The son of a woman suing Bills quarterback Jim Kelly for hitting her with beer-filled balloons denied Thursday striking his mother and causing her to undergo dental surgery.

The woman, Marlene Edbauer, 40, of Clarence, is suing the millionaire quarterback for $200,000 in damages, claiming he hit her in the face with a beer-filled balloon at a 1987 bar picnic. Edbauer claims she had to have a root canal as a result.

In the fourth day of the civil trial before Buffalo City Court Judge Michael Broderick, Kelly's attorney, Vincent Tobia, told the court Kim Weierheiser, the half-sister of Edbauer's son, had told a defense investigator that Edbauer's son had hit his mother in the mouth.

Weierheiser denied telling the investigator her half-brother, Michael, struck his mother and said she had not talked her half-brother in years.

HOCKEY

Blues first to advance

St. Louis goaltender Vincent Riendeau played the part of unlikely hero, preserving a 4-3 victory Thursday night and helping the Blues clinch their first-round series against the Toronto Maple Leafs.

After sitting on the bench as brilliant rookie Curtis Joseph started each of the Norris Division semifinal games, Riendeau drew the assignment in goal midway through the third period.

Joseph suffered a shoulder injury with the Blues leading 4-2 at 8:43, and Riendeau was on.

After giving up a goal, he made the save of the game — and the series — robbing Toronto winger Daniel Marois on a breakaway. Marois aimed inside right post, but Riendeau, sprawling, flicked out his glove to catch the puck.

In the other Norris Division semifinal, Chicago topped Minnesota to take a 3-2 lead in the series.

In the Smythe Division, Calgary blasted Los Angeles 5-1, but trails three games to two in their best-of-seven series. Edmonton also avoided elimination by defeating Winnipeg 4-3.

SCC grad McCullum joins UF hoop staff

United Press International

GAINESVILLE — University of Florida basketball coach Lon Kruger, who was hired earlier this month from Kansas State, named two of his former assistants Thursday for similar positions with the Gators.

Seminole Community College graduate Robert McCullum and Ron Stewart will be involved in all aspects of the UF program, from on-the-floor coaching to off-campus recruiting, Kruger said. "I am pleased to have Robert and Ron join our staff at Florida," he said. "Both are highly respected in the coaching profession and both will work hard to represent the University of Florida in a first-class way."

Kruger, who was named coach April 1, needs one more assistant to complete his staff, but did not set a time-frame for doing so.

McCullum, 35, joined the Kansas State staff last season after spending two years as an assistant coach and recruiting coordinator at Southern Illinois. Before his stint at SIU, he spent four years at South Alabama.

After spending two years at SCC in Sanford, he graduated from Birmingham Southern in 1978. He also has a masters degree in secondary education from Alabama State.

"I've spent most of my life in the heart of the Southeastern Conference, being a native of Birmingham, Ala.," McCullum said. "I think my background will be a plus for me in terms of our recruiting relationships."

Stewart, 40, spent the last four seasons with the Wildcats, and was responsible for helping lead Kansas State to four consecutive NCAA Tournament appearances. Stewart, of Indianapolis, coached at the high school level for five years, and served as an assistant coach at Nebraska (1978-80) and Southern Methodist (1980-82).

Stewart graduated from Indiana in 1971. He holds a political science masters degree.

"I am pleased about the opportunity," he said. "My family and I have enjoyed a long-term relationship with Coach Kruger. We look to continue that relationship."

Tribe to take stock at meets

By TONY BOGOSIAN
Herald Sports Editor

Just a week away from the Seminole Athletic Conference meet and two weeks away from the 3A-District 8 meet, Seminole High School track coaches Nate Perkins and Ken Brauman are still trying to get an idea of how good their teams are.

To help them in assessing their respective team's merits, Perkins and Brauman are taking their squads on the road this weekend to participate against some pretty impressive competition.

The Seminole girls will be traveling to Jacksonville on Saturday to take part in the Jacksonville-Ribault Invitational while the Seminole boys, along with Lyman and Lake Mary, will compete in the prestigious Mike Roberson Invitational tonight at Winter Park's Showalter Field.

For Perkins and the Seminole girls, the trip to Jacksonville will allow them the opportunity to measure themselves against some schools that will challenge the Seminoles at the Class 3A state meet.

"This is a non-scoring meet," said Perkins of the Ribault Invitational. "We just want to go up and see how we look against teams in that area again."

"Ribault has a pretty good team. They didn't have it all together the last time we were up there. But it's almost district time for them and for us, we want to see how we stack up against them now."

Brauman isn't concerned so much with how the Tribe boys match up against other schools but how they measure against each other. The Roberson Invitational, which has developed into one of the premier boys' regular season meets, should tell Brauman everything he needs to know.

"There will be some great competition," said Brauman. "I've entered some guys in some different events. I want to get a final look at them before conference and district meets."

Killian knocks off Patriots

From staff reports

SARASOTA — Playing three games in four days took its toll on the Lake Brantley pitching staff as the Patriots fell to Miami-Killian 11-6 Thursday night in a semifinal game of the Sarasota County Classic baseball tournament.

Killian (20-4) will play Coral Gables, a 8-2 winner over Miami-Palmetto Thursday, in today's 7 p.m. championship game at Ed Smith Stadium, spring home of the Chicago White Sox. Lake Brantley (19-4) and ranked third in the most recent Class 4A state poll battles Palmetto (13-11) for third place at 4 p.m.

The Patriots, who got a complete game from Brad Rigby in their opening-round win on Tuesday, used five pitchers in the loss to Killian last night after using four in their quarterfinal win over Miami Senior on Wednesday.

Lake Brantley's pitchers didn't receive much defensive support as the Patriots uncharacteristically made five errors against Killian, leading to four unearned runs.

Teams can enter Softball Challenge through Monday

From staff reports

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Softball teams of all skill levels and designs are being sought to compete in this year's Pizza Hut-Rally's Hamburgers Softball Challenge at Merrill Park on April 21 and 22.

Co-sponsored by WOFL-Fox 35, MIX 105.1 FM, Sports Unlimited and Coca-Cola USA, all proceeds benefit Camp Challenge, the wheelchair-accessible Easter Seal camp.

All teams are invited to participate: male, female and co-ed, both city league teams and "just for fun" pickup teams.

A wide variety of prizes has been assembled, including team T-shirts for every team that enters. The entry fee is a $150 donation to Easter Seals, but teams are encouraged to raise more than the minimum and qualify for cases of Coca-Cola products, team caps, Pizza Hut pizza parties, beach weekends, etc.

The top fundraising team will win the grand prize of team uniforms or team sweatshirts from Sports Unlimited.

Pizza Hut and Rally's Hamburgers have underwritten the costs of the tournament so that all funds raised will be used to send children and adults with disabilities to Easter Seal's Camp Challenge.

Entry deadline is Monday, April 16. For more information, call the Easter Seal Softball Hotline: 886-7881.

Nicklaus grabs lead at PGA Seniors Championship

United Press International

PALM BEACH GARDENS — Jack Nicklaus, playing what he called a "very good round of golf," fired a 4-under-par 68 Thursday to take the opening day lead in the $450,000 PGA Seniors' Championship.

Playing the 6,630-yard Champion course, which he redesigned within the past year, Nicklaus fired five birdies and one bogey to take a three-stroke lead into the second round.

"I managed the golf course very well," said Nicklaus, making his first start in the 51st edition of the oldest senior professional tournament. "My putting was about medium, not good and not bad."

Dale Douglass, the 1987 runner-up, and Mike Hill, the first-round leader a year ago, were among for players tied for second at 71. Al Kelley, who got in as an alternate when Dave Hill withdrew, and Jim Ferree also carded 71s.

Eight players were tied at 72, while defending champion Larry Mowry had 78.

Mike Hill and former major-league pitcher Ralph Terry were at four-under during their rounds. But Hill made double bogey at the par-3, 15th hole. Terry birdied four of the first six holes, but had four straight bogies starting at No. 9.

"It looks like everybody had difficulty finishing," said Douglass. "From No. 14 in, the holes are very difficult. And you know, Jack Nicklaus is not just another 50-year-old out here."

Nicklaus' other competitors in senior golf's "Big Four" did not fare as well. Arnold Palmer and Gary Player, each a two-time winner of the PGA Seniors' Championship, posted 80 and 74, respectively. Lee Trevino, also a rookie on the Senior Tour this season, had 77.

But, in Nicklaus' opinion, at least, they aren't out of the picture.

"If the conditions remain the same the rest of the weekend as they are today, it won't take much under par to win," he said. "The wind turned completely from yesterday's practice round."

Pardon me

Somehow, Terrell Jackson (No. 7) of the Rinker Material Dodgers managed to duck between pitcher Shaun Eason (left) and catcher Bart Dixon (right) of the First Federal of Seminole Cardinals and score on a passed ball. The play occurred during National Division play of the Sanford Recreation Department Little Major League at Fort Mellon's Roy Holler Field.

SANFORD — Twenty-five years and thousands of students ago, sisters Miriam and Valerie Rye made every little girl's dream of becoming a ballerina a possibility. They opened the School of Dance Arts in Sanford. The dance studio and the sisters are still going strong.

To celebrate a quarter century dedicated to dance, the sisters have planned a reunion picnic.

"We've been dancing and singing all around the area for 25 years. Now we're singing 'Y'all come!'" Miriam said.

Pack a picnic of your choice and join Miriam, Valerie, their families, SODA alumni, their families, and a host of area residents with an interest in dance arts at the pavilion of the Central Florida Zoo, from 1-4 p.m., Sunday, April 29.

The sisters decided on the family activity because more people can share in the fun, just like family participation in dancing classes.

"A picnic is much like the dancing school scene," Valerie said. "Little brothers who don't dance still come to the studio to wait for sis. Dads are often recruited to build or move scenery. Older brothers find themselves lifting the girls in a new ballet that couldn't be done without boys," Valerie explained.

"Many grandparents perform taxi service to get tots to the studio for lessons. Dancing has been a family event, like our picnic will be," Miriam said.

SODA began with 55 students in 1955. This year over 500 students will take that first step toward becoming a ballerina, training with Miriam and Valerie.

"We know the smallest pre-schooler may well grow into a professional dancer, so families with children who are showing and interest in dance for the first time should certainly come to the picnic," Valerie said.

Some SODA graduates who have pursued professional careers in the entertainment field are: Jackie Greene Haas, Tom Lake, Margo Dowlen, Cathy Paulk, Laura Moore, Luis Perez, Drew Bongiani, Heather Hofmore, Erika Mills, Janet Sauczuk, Debbie Russell Bowman, Mary Ellen VanDuyne, and Nancy Tomlinson.

Miriam and Valerie said they feel the picnic will be special, not because of activities planned, but because of the people who attend.

Young father victim of old trick

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to "Too Young," the boy who found himself to be a prospective father at the tender age of 15, missed the mark. You suggested that he and his parents seek legal advice, personally visit the girl and her parents, and try to work out the best possible solution for all concerned—and above all to finish high school.

You overlooked one very important aspect, Abby. These children had met on a sking weekend eight months ago and had not seen each other since. They had talked on the telephone a few times, the boy wrote once, but the girl didn't answer his letter. He mentions you recall of a "pregnancy" until the girl was in her eighth month then she called him up saying she was due to deliver in two weeks. Something is terribly amiss here.

I am all for accepting responsibility for one's actions—which this 15-year-old boy was willing to do—but you should have advised him to make absolutely certain that he is the father of this soon-to-be-born baby. It is entirely possible that the girl was pregnant when she met the boy and deliberately took him to bed in order to claim him as her father. That trick is old as the hills, Abby.

ADVICE

BEEN AROUND IN COLORADO

DEAR BEEN AROUND: I advised the young man to seek legal counsel. A lawyer is aware of all the tricks and will surely be able to protect the young man if he has been wrongly accused.

DEAR ABBY: The letter in your column concerning the wedding in which the bride wore a 6000 bridal gown and the minister was paid $20 reminded me of the "fee" my uncle received for officiating at a wedding back in 1934. The parents of the bride ented my uncle (a minister) with a pair of leather gloves.

My uncle said, "Thank you," and his wife said, "Leather gloves? That's a strange gift to give in June—but by October they will come in handy." Came October, when my uncle was putting on the gloves for the first time, he found each "finger" of the glove stuffed with a $10 bill, wrapped in tissue paper in 1934. $100 was a small fortune.

My uncle told that story often, adding, "That's when I learned never to judge a book by its cover."

Jesus Christ hung crucified on the cross, mocked by a bloody crown of thorns, flanked on each side by a crucified thief.

Haughtily, the first thief jeered, "If you are the Christ, save yourself." No reply came.

In contrast, the second thief said to the first, "This man has done nothing wrong."

Jesus replied, "Today you shall be with Me in Paradise."

We may not all be criminals, but we are all sinners. Yet, God sent Jesus Christ, His son, to be crucified for our sins, so that we might have eternal life, asking for forgiveness through Jesus' name.

Good deeds alone are not enough. Believe in the crucifixion and the resurrection of Jesus Christ through faith in God's word.

This Easter lift your voices in praise to God for the gift of His Son. Do not seek proof as did the first thief, but like the second thief have faith and BELIEVE.

Finding 'good' in Good Friday

By TOMMY JONES

Holy Week is celebrated by Christians of every faith all over the world. Last evening, Maundy Thursday services commemorated Jesus' last meal with the disciples. Palm Sunday, less than a week ago, marked Jesus' triumphant entrance to Jerusalem. This Sunday we celebrate the resurrection of our Lord.

Now, I have been unable to determine the meaning of the word maundy (as in Thursday) but I am satisfied that it has great significance or else it would not be used. But the question came to me some years ago, "Why do we call Friday of Holy Week, Good Friday?" The primary event that took place on that day was without doubt in my mind the scene of the worst injustice that humanity has ever witnessed. A sinless, blameless, innocent rabbi was beaten beyond recognition, scorned, publicly humiliated and nailed to a wooden cross to die in the intense Middle Eastern heat. Why not Worst Friday, Horrible Friday, Dreadful Friday?

Certainly those close friends and followers of this rabbi, Jesus, would not have called it Good Friday. What was good about that day?

To discover the answer to that question we need to look at not what onlookers witnessed but what happened that day as Jesus died on the cross.

Friday was good because on that day and on that cruel instrument of death, Jesus took, in our place, the punishment that we deserve for our sin. In Romans 8:23 we read that "the wages (payment) of sin is DEATH." God's ideal for us is to be without sin. Obviously we have fallen short of the ideal. Because God is holy and just, we deserve the death penalty for our sin. But because of his love, he allowed Jesus to take that punishment for us. Friday was good because God showed an incredible love for us. He loved us so much that "he gave his only son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). By providing a substitute for us in the person of His son, God said, "I love you" to each of us.

Friday was good because of what happened on Sunday, Tony Campolo has written a book entitled "It's Friday...But Sunday's Coming!" On that first Easter Sunday, God demonstrated his power by conquering death and resurrecting Jesus! After breaking the grip of sin on Friday, God destroyed the stronghold of death on Sunday! The two things that threaten us most, sin and death, have been overthrown by what happened on Good Friday and Easter Sunday.

Good Friday? Yes, because of what God accomplished through Jesus' death and resurrection.

It is my prayer that as you worship this weekend you will experience the full significance of Holy Week, especially the meaning of Good Friday.

God loves you! Come to the church this week and find out about it.

Tommy Jones is minister of education at First Baptist Church, 219 Park Ave., Sanford.

Good Friday turns grisly

United Press International

SAN PEDRO CUTUD, Philippines — At least 17 Filipinos were nailed to crosses and thousands of penitents scourged their backs with glass-studded whips in grisly Good Friday rituals that have degenerated into a commercial spectacle. Thousands of spectators, many of them foreigners, watched under a hot sun as 12 men were nailed and hoisted on 18-foot crosses atop a mound in the farming village of San Pedro Cutud, about 50 miles north of Manila.

Three other men and two women, self-proclaimed faith healers, also were crucified in the nearby village of Santa Lucia and in Bulacan province, organizers said.

The Filipino "Christi," accompanied by horse-riding men dressed as Roman centurions, paraded for at least a mile from the village chapel to the mound which was surrounded by barbed wire in the middle of a rice paddy. Onlookers chanted, "Crucify them, crucify them."

Police estimated the crowd in San Pedro Cutud at 30,000.

Religions prepare for Earth Day

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI religion writer

The original Earth Day 20 years ago, which propelled the environmental movement to the forefront of American consciousness, did not contain any specific religious dimension.

Indeed, many ecologists and environmentalists at the time named Christian theology and its doctrine of humankind's dominion over the world as one of the problems, seeing in it a justification for rampant, unchecked exploitation of natural resources.

But even then there were other voices in the religious community and during the early 1970s a whole field of ecological theology flourished as theologians such as Paul Santmire and, more recently, Douglas John Hall, sought to redefine the idea of Christian stewardship, re-explore the proposition of a humanity created in God's image and thus loving the creation.

This time around, when Earth Day is celebrated on April 22, organizers hope to have major involvement from the nation's faith communities.

Dennis Hayes, one of the founders of the original Earth Day and head of the group organizing this month's observance, has insisted there be a religious component.

To help develop that involvement, Jan Hartke, a Virginia lawyer and son of the former Democratic senator from Indiana, Vance Hartke, has been named religious liaison for Earth Day.

"While the environmental movement needs the churches," Hartke said, "the churches need the environmentalism."

"In America, religious leaders are recognizing that their institutional future may depend on their capacity to assume responsibility for the fate of the earth."

Donald Conroy, president of the North American Conference on Religion and Ecology, said the effort to provide a specific

Local groups sponsor Earth Day celebrations

Central Floridians will celebrate Earth Day locally with several activities planned for next weekend.

Here are some of the scheduled events for Earth Day:

• The City of Winter Park will host a clean up and restoration of Moon Gardens on Earth Day. Moon Gardens is home to one of the remaining 14-rodent wildland habitats in the Orlando area.

For information, call Paul Freeman at 325-7410.

• Orlando Area Groups will host Earth Day Earth Watch at Moon Gardens, Winter Park, April 23 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Live music, speeches, art exhibits and children's activities will be featured.

For information, call

Freeman at 325-7410.

• Central Florida Synagogal Council, 175 S. Orange Ave., Orlando, will sponsor Earth Day April 22 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Religious displays and environmental education activities will be featured.

Tom Williams, an education director, will speak on "Conservation and the Promise of Earth" at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Admission is $5 for adults, $2 for children and $2 for seniors.

For information, call the one at 325-4450.

• Earth Day at the Seminole Landing Church, New Ridge Road, Deland, will be April 21.

religious dimensions to Earth Day activities — which is, after all, a Sunday, a holy day for many — "will give millions of people around the world the opportunity to discover the critical relationship between the environmental crisis and the ethical teachings of their faith."

Conroy's recently formed interfaith organization hopes to be a vehicle by which the North American religious community will more deeply enter the environmental movement of the 1990s with more informed understanding, deeper commitment and a dynamic sense of environmental service.

To promote that involvement, Hartke and the North American Conference, have created a resource packet for use by local congregations.

Among its contents are sample indoor and outdoor worship services for use around Earth Day, a sample Christian Earth Day sermon and an introduction to "environmental ministry," with specific how-to steps that congregational committees can take. The building and grounds committees, for example, are urged to start by taking a simple "walk through" of their building and property in terms of environmental practices and effects.

A social action committee, according to the packet, can begin by discussing the Valdes Principles — recently formulated guidelines directed at corporations to make their business practices environmentally sound — and examine their church's or denomination's investment portfolio to see if companies adhere to the principles.

As the religious community learns from the environmental movement, perhaps the movement will learn something from churches and synagogues, especially that political action on environmental issues also involves people and economic well-being.

Justice for both sides in the equation is not always easily reached.

How to treat blisters from skin allergies

DEAR DR. GOTT: My hands and forearms constantly break out in tiny water blisters. My hands then swell and crack. A dermatologist says I'm allergic to nickel and treated me with oral antibiotics. Now I think I'm allergic to my own sweat because when my face sweats, it eats the metal off my glasses. What advice can you give me?

DEAR READER: Skin allergies (contact dermatitis) often cause blisters that eventually break, leading to raw, cracked skin surfaces. These allergies can be due to soaps, detergents, cosmetics, sunlight and a wide variety of environmental factors; nickel allergy is one of the worst. It's particularly bad because nickel is added to many metals, particularly jewelry. Rings, glasses frames, bracelets and earrings may cause severe skin reactions that are difficult to diagnose because they so often resemble other skin conditions, such as eczema.

I don't know if nickel is the culprit in your case — an allergist would have to verify that with further testing — but I do know that antibiotics are not the treatment of choice. Avoidance of nickel-containing metal and the use of cortisone (in cream or pills) are preferable therapies. On occasion, when contact dermatitis becomes infected, antibiotics are necessary; however, you should continue to use cortisone and to avoid nickel.

See an allergist. Or, if one is not available in your community, ask for a referral to another dermatologist for a second opinion.

Although contact dermatitis is not a health hazard, it can be annoying because of the itching and pain. To my knowledge, people do not become allergic to their own perspiration. More likely, the inflamed skin is reacting with the nickel in your glasses frames.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is eating just before bed considered bad for one's health? I've always eaten at 10 p.m., then gone to bed within 30 to 30 minutes.

DEAR READER: I am not aware that eating just before bedtime affects health. Many people do it and seem to suffer no consequences. Although some late-night eaters may experience abdominal discomfort, bloating and heartburn if they retire right after a heavy meal, most of us are not affected by this practice.

By James Denton

You can truly feel that your bridge guardian angel is looking over your shoulder when a slam contract looks as if it may be doomed by foul distribution but suddenly is rescued by a lucky lay of the cards. South was aggressive in the bidding, but the six-spade contract was good and would easily make without the best opening lead. But West found a trump lead, and East won the ace of spades and returned a spade. That left only two trumps in dummy for ruffing purposes, and South had three losing minor-suit cards. Not to worry — there were possibilities in the heart suit. So declarer played ace and ruffed a heart. East's K-10 coming down. Then he played A-K and ruffed a diamond. If the Q-10-9 had all fallen, the last diamond would be a winner, but no such luck. When South led another heart from dummy, East showed out, so the hearts could not be set up. More or less resigned to defeat, declarer played his last diamond. Suddenly West was in a trance. If West threw a heart, one more heart ruff would set up the jack in dummy. But there was a little pain in throwing a club from the Q-J-5. There was nothing for West to do but hope that East held the club nine. He discarded the club five. Declarer ruffed the diamond in dummy, ruffed another heart, and then played A-K of clubs. With the Q-J falling, the lowly club nine took the final trick and declarer made his slam.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
April 14, 1990

In the year ahead you may go through a sifting out process regarding the objectives you establish for yourself. Your success will come from the ones you choose to keep.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Guard against inclinations today to do things the hard way, especially where your career is concerned. If you get involved with a procedure that isn't working, try something new. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail 62 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your hunches and perceptions might not be too reliable today, because they're likely to be more negative than positive. Don't let your imagination play tricks on you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you're presently involved in a situation that was supposed to be profitable, but isn't, it might be wise to phase it out before it cost you more.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In order to achieve an objective of importance to you today, be careful you do not do anything that could be detrimental to others. This is a delicate area.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Aggressive thinking is not the same as being a visionary. Before you start imposing your ideas on co-workers today, first be certain they are feasible.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Watch yourself in an important commercial arrangement today. Be especially alert for some little changes that may have been added since your last meeting.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You won't be too proud of your efforts today if you are more concerned about getting things done than you are about getting them done right. Do less, but do them properly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're likely to be a very keen observer today, but unfortunately, your focus may be on the failings of others rather than on their attributes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22) It's best not to spend funds today you've already earmarked for something essential. Strive to be disciplined in the management of your resources.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 19) There's a wise old adage that says, "If it ain't broke, don't try to fix it." If you keep this in mind today it will make your life less complicated.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You won't look too good in the eyes of associates today if you try to blame them for mistakes that are traceable to you. Instead of making accusations, spend your energy on making corrections.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This may be one of those days when you won't be up to par as a money manager. Don't lend or spend that which you can't afford to lose.

SEMINOLE SCENES

Beware

Winston Card, head reptile keeper at the Central Florida Zoological Park, is careful about removing a poisonous Florida Cottonmouth Moccasin from its case in the zoo's reptile display.

The pictures shot by Herald photographers vary in angle, pose and content, and not all of them are published immediately. From time to time, the newspaper takes a second look at those news and features scenes from around Seminole County.

Full-time protection

the city's gear was checked by R.L. Fudge, Jerry W. Lisk, and Ed. Koch, all now fulltime firefighters/EMT technicians.

Kelley requests investigation of Midway rates

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

MIDWAY — Seminole County Commissioner Jennifer Kelley has asked State Attorney Norm Wolfinger to investigate if Midway water rates are excessive and if the Midway-Canaan Community Water Association blocks users from joining the 24-year-old organization.

Kelley, in letter dated April 11, asked Wolfinger to investigate whether $50 to $80 water bills each month are reasonable.

"I've talked with people out there and I think it needs to be investigated," Kelley said. "I don't think I saw one bill less than the 'teens. I think that's excessive considering they are only paying for water, not garbage or sewer."

The association purchases water from Sanford and resells it to about 600 homes in this community. According to city officials, the association pays the regular wholesale rate of $178 each month and $1.48 for each 1,000 gallons of water used. During the last three months, the association has purchased an average of 4 million to five million gallons each month.

The association sells the water to residents for $12.20 for up to 1,000 gallons and $1.70 for each additional 1,000 gallons. Fifteen-dollar water bills are common. Thirty-dollar water bills occur often for residents.

The association's bylaws say that each household using the water is eligible to vote on association matters and elect officers as a member. Midway-Canaan president Willie Cummings said association directors are the only voting members of the organization. Cummings said allowing everyone to vote may be disruptive.

Cummings and at least two other current directors were among the original eight directors who founded the association. Cummings said directors are replaced as they die or move away.

Everglades cleanup OKed

WEST PALM BEACH (UPI) — Water managers approved a new Everglades cleanup plan Thursday despite objections from sugar growers who labeled it a "full-fledged loser."

The board of the South Florida Water Management District approved the plan, clearing the way for a 60-day review by state and federal parks, wildlife and environmental agencies.

If it is cleared by other agencies, the proposal would mark the first comprehensive effort to clean up the threatened wetland, a critical link in south Florida's complex water system.

The plan, which would cost $89.5 million in its first five years, would cut by three-quarters the amount of phosphorus-heavy fertilizers that filter into the wetland from surrounding farms.

The fertilizers are considered the biggest threat to the Everglades because they feed cattails and other pest plants, choking out native vegetation.

This year, about 400,000 pounds of phosphates will run into the Everglades and surrounding water conservation areas.
