Prosperity For All

Characterizing the Townsend Pension Plan as class legislation designed to benefit only one small group at the expense of all others, F. H. McCabe, editor of the Logan Observer in Iowa, brings forth a "Plan for Perpetual Prosperity" which embraces the economic security of everyone in the country from the cradle to the grave.

Continuing, the Times explains the plan, "suppose that a baby whom we will call Esek Bunniham is born Feb. 8, 1936. As soon as his birth is certified to the administrator of the PPP, $20,000 is allotted and credited to Esek from federal funds. Loaned at 5 percent by the government to industry, agriculture, municipalities and states, Esek's nest-egg will earn $1,000 a year.

"Of this interest, $400 would go to Esek's parents to pay for his support. The remaining $600 a year would be added to the principal sum. When Esek is 21 the interest will amount to $21,000. The parents will have had $5,400 for his nurture. To the principal sum will have been added $12,600 less only the small expense of administrative charges. The balance will go into the Plan's revolving fund. To Esek, then a voter, will be paid $10,000 for his education, to set him up in business or farming, or help take care of his parents and dependents. The other $10,000, revolving fund, will be lent at 5 percent until Esek is 60. Thenceforth he will have an annuity of $100 a month.

"Calculating his expectation of life at ten years, his annuities would require $12,000. While he is going on from 21 to 60 the interest on the original $10,000 at 5 percent will have piled up $19,500, paying for his annuity and leaving the handsome sum of $7,500 to be chucked into the revolving fund.

"To this $7,500 would be added the original amount of $10,000 (which had been loaned) making a total of $17,500. To this sum also would be added the accumulations from the first half of the beneficiary's principal sum ($10,000), such accumulation being $12,600, less small administrative charges. These charges may be liberally estimated at $2,600, leaving a balance there of $10,000. This sum added to the $17,500 total as shown above would bring the original sum of $20,000, with interest, to a grand total of $27,500, or $7,500 more than the amount originally set up in the individual case. Such balance or profit would go into the general revolving fund.

"Benefits cease at the beneficiary's death. If he dies after the age of 21, what is left of his $10,000 goes to his estate. Will not Dr. Townsend admit that Mr. McCabe's plan is not only 'self-sustaining and self-financing,' but also profit-yielding? If normally there are 2,000,000 new babies every year in the United States, at $400 apiece the parent-money would be $800,000,000 a year. It would all go into circulation at once. There would be no reason to save it. The future of each infant would be provided for. Think of the far greater increase of purchasing power, the universal boom of the $40,000,000,000 a year—2,000,000 births at $20,000 apiece.

"Population, production, consumption flourish like a green bay tree. All Ages are supported comfortably. Prosperity is perpetual. Isn't this the Perfect Plan? Isn't it the fullest flower of the Iowa Idea? Unable to deny its grandeur, envious persons pretend that Mr. McCabe has tainted an undeniably original genius by too much devotion to certain writings of Dean Swift, Prince of planners, master-economist and financier, bringer of good fortune from birth to death, McCabe of Logan must not be diminished into an arch ironist and satirist. We will leave it to him if he isn't serious when he is serious."

Kidnaping On The Wane

Despite well founded fears prevailing among many American millionaires that their children are not safe from kidnapers in this country, it is a commendable fact that substantial progress has been made by the government during the past two or three years in putting a stop to this unconscionable menace.

"I won't say anything about the future," Mr. Hoover declares, "that's always a bad policy. But there's every reason to believe now that the kidnaping racket is on the decline. Every one of the 62 kidnapings perpetrated since the Lindbergh law was passed in 1932 has been solved, and, in each case, we've made it unhealthy and unprofitable for the kidnapers."

Making it unprofitable for kidnapers is undoubtedly as important a factor as making it unhealthy. As long as there is money in this racket there will be men bold enough to risk the unhealthy aspects of it. But, as they can't make any money at it, kidnaping will soon become a relic of a barbaric past. A change in the public attitude toward kidnapers, according to Mr. Hoover, is largely responsible for the success of the "G-men" in making kidnaping unprofitable.

"The determination of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma man, to aid federal agents in trapping his kidnapers, despite gang threats, marked the turning point in public opinion," Mr. Hoover says. "Since then, we have been able to make it rather clear to the citizen that he won't be harmed if he tells us all he can about any kidnaping." he declared. "A number of kidnaping victims have given us splendid co-operation. Some of them have received threats. But none of them has been harmed. As a result, the citizen no longer fears gang retaliation if he talks, and the public is ready and willing to aid us."

"The underworld has learned too, that kidnaping is not a paying racket. In every case handled by the federal agents, the victim has been returned unharmed; where ransom money was paid, most of it has been recovered; and the percentage of kidnapers and their aides who have escaped punishment is very small.

"None of them has yet got by with it," Hoover concluded.

Persons Interested In Polar Regions Can Hear McMillan

Donald McMillan, noted Arctic explorer who for the last 25 years, with the exception of the World War period, has spent a portion of each year within the Arctic Circle, will deliver an address in the First Congregational Church in Sanford on the evening of Mar. 2.

McMillan's latest northern expedition, his plane, the Viking, and during that time he mapped 1,400 miles of uncharted country, and studied 80,000 square miles of Northern terrain. He took thousands of feet of color film, thus recording not only the scenery but also the mode of living of the natives in Labrador. He also discovered a large lake never before seen by white man. He holds the chair of Ethnography at Bowdoin College, though much of the time he is on leave of absence for field work in the Arctic. Four years ago he was awarded the Elisha Kane Gold medal for "daring exploration and scientific research."

During the war McMillan served in the U. S. Navy, but upon the conclusion of peace he resumed his Arctic explorations.

BOCA GRANDE, Feb. 15.—(AP)—The cruise of the schooner Fleetwood, en route from Tampa to the West Indies with a cargo of nautica, has been interrupted once more. The little ship was firmly aground on a sandbar about 50 miles from here at Little Gasparilla Pass. Some of the voyagers swam ashore but refused to discuss their troubles or plans. Boca Grande is located on Gasparilla Island, in the mouth of Charlotte Harbor, about a hundred miles down the Gulf Coast from Tampa.

Inflation May Have Effect On Credits As Well As Cash, Says A.P. Financial Editor

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER (Associated Press Financial Editor)

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Inflation often travels in strange garb, and is difficult to recognize.

Particularly is this true when it is in its milder form, credited inflation. When it becomes currency inflation, its true colors usually are apparent.

Most experiences with inflation in the United States have been with the milder form, at least those within memory. For this reason, economists say, there is not the horror of inflation in this country that there is in Europe, fresh from the disastrous monetary experiences which followed the World War.

Credit inflation is often indistinguishable in its earlier stages from increasing business prosperity. Many leading economists now agree that the 1928-29 boom and collapse was chiefly the blowing up and eventual pricking of an inflationary bubble of credit.

The word inflation, now subject of widespread and bitter controversy, means literally the blowing up or expansion of the amount of credit or currency in use. In these days, when some transactions with bank credit are only about 10 percent with cash, the blowing up of bank credit is inflationary, just as is increasing volume of currency in use.

So long as the volume of credit and currency increases only at the rate at which the physical volume of production grows, then it is not a blowing up process. But when the same volume of physical goods is supporting more and more credit and currency, then the value of the unit of money declines, and prices rise. The price rise of 1928 and 1929 was almost wholly in securities and real estate. Had it spread to commodities, it might have been more widely recognized as inflation.

The United States experienced a substantial post-war inflation by 1919. Credit had been pumped out by the billion to pay for the World War, as successive issues of Liberty bonds and Victory bonds were sold. But the rise in prices was only partly due to credit expansion. Much of the world's productive capacity had been given over to war use. Such inflation as existed, however, began to pinch, even in this country, and there were widespread complaints about the high cost of living. But the American government's credit was still good, and the country was able to deflate quickly, and enter a decade of peace-time prosperity.

More serious inflation was experienced in America during and after the Civil War. The government's credit became so impaired that it had to resort to currency inflation, with the printing of some $450,000,000 of fiat money, known as "greenbacks." Price levels rose steeply. But the greenbacks were eventually made good with the resumption of gold payments.

During and after the Revolutionary War, the United States experienced its worst currency inflation. The struggling young government had little or no credit standing, and from the currency printed by the Continental Congress arose the expression, "Not worth a continental." In Boston in October, 1780, history records that a barrel of flour sold for $1,578 in Continental currency, a bushel of corn for $150, and a pound of butter for $12.

The post-war inflation in Germany is a well-known story. It was attributed largely to the situation of a defeated country racked by war and revolution, under a new and floundering government. Yet in its early phases, vigorous measures were taken to keep the currency backed by gold and government bonds, and to maintain the value of the government securities. France, while a victor country, experienced a post-war inflation that boosted its price level some 500 percent.

We believe that Lucky Strike Cigarettes embody a number of genuinely basic improvements, and that all these improvements combine to produce a superior cigarette—a modern cigarette, a cigarette made of rich, ripe-bodied tobacco—A Light Smoke.

Democratic Committee man

"I know the value of extra nitrogen!"

I may be an "old timer" yet I keep in touch with new things. And when any new thing is better, that's what I want.

Ever since I learned the Department of Agriculture and Immigration of Virginia reported that ARCADIAN, THE AMERICAN NITRATE OF SODA contained extra nitrogen over the guaranteed 16% with an extra cash value as high as 88c per ton, I have used no other.

I know the value of extra nitrogen and I make sure to get that extra value. For truck, fruit and all crops it is now proved that ARCADIAN, THE AMERICAN NITRATE OF SODA brings the farmer the best value.

Keep AHEAD Of The JONESES

There's just one way to be "better off" than the other people on your street... In order to keep ahead, you must think and act first. And that can be done by any one who decides to do it, whatever the family income.

For instance, some people are smart enough to buy things when prices are down. Right now, of course, you can find sheets and towels and other supplies for the house at lowest-this-year prices. And that isn't all... Some time this winter you will find underwear for the children, gloves for yourself, pajamas for the head of the house—and many, many more things offered at 'way-down' prices.

All sorts of special buys will keep bobbing up, if you watch the advertisements in this newspaper—and keep thinking ahead, and buying ahead.

Where will you get all the money, you ask? Well, it doesn't take more money to be better off, this way. Actually it takes less. The pennies you save by timely buying add up to dollars in the end.

Cannon Is Excuse For Jubilee By Ex-Service Men

(Continued From Page One) Speaking of the school's, Commander Boring said "here is no excuse for a jubilee. It was brought on by a Legion of Ex-Service Men. A Legion supper was held and there was such a quantity of provisions that some of the crowd had to be turned away. It was a success for those who were speaking. W. H. Schmidt and Willard Conley played some of the old war-time tunes and a number of more modern music numbers on saw and guitar.

Legion Leader Tells Aims of Organization

(Continued From Page One) excuse why Florida should be 39th in position in regard to education," that the youth of this state "deserve just as fair an education as the boys and girls in other states," and that "it is our duty to see to it that they have what is their due." He urged Legionnaires who have children in the schools to attend meetings of the P. T. A. and to work with school trustees, "and it is not putting the Legion into politics to find out where a candidate for office stands as regards our schools." Efforts of communists to spread their teachings was brought into the commander's address. He said that the communists have realized they can never make headway with the adult population as long as there is an American Legion so they are concentrating their efforts on the more pliable mind of the youth, "teaching disbelief in God, the home, the schools and that the flag is a mere piece of cloth." The Legion, he said, should not wait for some private day to visit the schools and talk to students on the value of their citizenship. "We owe it to them and to our country," he said, "to go into the classrooms and tell them of their obligations as citizens, to see to it that they understand the ideas and principles for which we fight."

Otto Caldwell To Take Boy Scouts To Orlando Fair

(Continued From Page One) Caldwell was presented with a merit badge in athletics and promoted to the Life rank. It was brought out at the council meeting that there are 1,100 boys of Scout age in Seminole County but there are only 60 Scouts and practically all of them are in one troop. It was reported the boys are beginning to become Scouts, but there are no leaders for more troops. A new charter for Lake Mary Troop No. 58 was to have been presented last night, but through a misunderstanding the delegation from Lake Mary Community Church, which is sponsoring the troop, was not present. The charter will be presented to the troop some Sunday in the near future, it was stated.

A half dozen South Dakota communities—Hereford, Volunteer, Stoneville, Creighton, Fairpoint and Hoover—were cut off again after rescue expeditions had cleared roads leading to them over the weekend. Meager reports from the hamlets represent conditions as approaching the critical point.

Corn and fence posts were burned at Hereford. All the flour was gone at Hoover. A new blizzard blocked highways. Silence veiled the progress of relief parties moving toward Sulphur and Twilight. Inense cold prevailed.

Avis or George Hiebt piloted a ski plane 75 miles through the blizzard to bring Gus Anderson, of Capitol, Wyo., to a hospital at Belle Fourche.

News Movie Of Florida Canal Is Being Made

Wm. Randolph Hearst Sends Out Crew To Film Scenes And Interview Leaders

Picture Release Is To Be Monday

Movie Will Be Shown In Nearly Every Theater In Land

The City of Sanford and the County of Seminole are to receive some unusually effective and valuable advertising—and it won't cost a cent.

William Randolph Hearst, noted publisher of big city newspapers from coast to coast, sent a crew of reporters and news men into the County today to film pictures of every field, cabbage patch, flowing wells, the state market and other scenes, and to get statements from leaders in the campaign being waged by the Central and South Florida Water Conservation Committee against the Cross-State Ship Canal.

Other scenes and interviews will be obtained in Ocala and Jacksonville, and the whole will be gathered into a full length news feature intended to show both sides of the canal controversy.

The picture is being made by Motion News and will be shown in practically every theater in the United States and Canada and in a number of theaters abroad. News reel pictures made by two other concerns are shown in the Miami Theater in Sanford but local theater manager, J. L. Thayer, said today, he will endeavor to make arrangements to show the canal picture here.

John A. Brockhurst of New York, directing the canal news reel feature, said that the picture would be rushed through in only two days' work and that it will be released next Monday.

"I have an idea that Mr. Hearst is opposed to the canal," said Mr. Brockhurst, "as we were told in a wire with the article in Time magazine." (The Time magazine article in which he refers to an "irreversible canal construction") "If so," he continued, "the Hearst picture will present both sides, with statements from Senator Fletcher, for instance, on one side and Frank K. Anderson, probably on the other, pointing out the speakers being shown in connection with their remarks."

Charles A. Feden, of New York, camera man with Mr. Brockhurst, suggested it would be a good plan to have Mr. Anderson make his "spiel" with a fishing artisan, well as a background.

A number of "still" pictures of Seminole County fields were taken by Joe Gibson, another member of the crew sent out from New York. Sanford and Seminole County will be "played up" as the focal point in opposition to canal construction, and it is therefore believed that millions of people will never before heard of this section will be apprised of the fact that it is the garden spot of the nation.

The chess games went as slowly (though the champion rarely hesitated more than a minute or two before making a move) that when they were over it was deemed too late to put on the blindfold stunt. Mr. Banks played with his eyes open, going from table to table, followed by a large gallery of interested fans.
