Sanford Staff Face Cut In Medical Care Benefits

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Medical benefits offered Sanford city employees will be reduced because some have abused them.

The Sanford City Commission, hit by a notice that employee and dependent hospitalization premiums are to be increased by more than 40 percent, voted 4-1 to cut coverage from the first dollar of service to 80 percent of the cost of service for the first $5,000. Under city policy, the city pays for the employees' hospitalization coverage, while the employees pay the costs of hospitalization insurance for their dependents.

Only Mayor Lee P. Moore voted against the action.

"I just don't believe in cutting benefits for employees," Moore said. He noted that there are two different philosophies concerning employee benefits. As the head of the Sunland Corp., he said when the cost of things necessary for business goes up, "we bite the bullet and pay."

"It's an expense item and in effect Uncle Sam pays a portion. At city hall, the taxpayers pay it all," he said.

"Even with the cut in coverage, premiums are still expected to go up by 15 to 20 percent," said City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles.

If the city had continued providing the high benefit hospitalization insurance, the increase in premiums would have cost the city $64,000 more in the new fiscal year. The rates per employee coverage would have risen from $48.46 to $67.48 per month and the rates for dependent coverage would have risen from $86.82 per month to $112.87, Knowles said.

Knowles said Sanford was one of the first municipalities in the area to provide group hospitalization for its employees back in 1953. He said rates have gone up because some of the employees have tended to go to the hospital emergency room rather than a private physician because the emergency room fees are covered by the city insurance. He added that some doctors realizing all costs for hospital care were covered for the city employee perhaps put the employee in the hospital for treatment and tests that could have been accomplished outside the hospital.

Commissioner David Farr, a trustee of the Florida League of Cities "Municipal Health Trust," which provides Sanford with hospitalization insurance, said Sanford had a 100 percent loss ratio over the past year.

He explained that for each $1 paid into the trust by the city in premiums, slightly more than $1 was paid out.

Farr recommended that the city stay with the "Municipal Health Trust" rather than go out for bids to find a new insurer. He said the coverage provided by the Florida League of Cities' plan is excellent and Sanford could not replace it for anywhere near the cost. He said most of the several hundred city, county and other governments in the state that use the plan are also getting rate increases this year. And, he said, several cities had a higher loss ratio than Sanford.

Protest Housing Care Irks Tenants

Six women and 13 children picketed the Sanford Housing Authority office in Castle Brewer Court for the third day in a row today, demanding the removal of the authority's executive director and the maintenance supervisor.

The women charge that management at the public housing development is unconcerned with their needs and maintenance of apartments is not being properly provided. Tenants' Council President Barbara Wyche, 31 Castle Brewer Court, led the women and children in picketing the area around the project office at 10th Street and Oleander.

The group carried signs asking for justice for all regardless of race, sex, creed, a new maintenance supervisor and tolerance for those with strong and weak consciences.

Clutching a parade-picketing permit obtained from city hall Monday and carrying the approving signatures of City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles and Police Chief Ben Butler, Mrs. Wyche, as spokesman for the picketers, said complaints from the tenants to Executive Director Elliott Smith and maintenance supervisor John Ashford go unheeded.

Although Smith and Ashford could not be reached for comment, Linda Williams, assistant to Smith, said today the staff has heard rumors about the picketing but has received no complaint from the Tenants' Council.

Mrs. Wyche said their picketing is being done as individuals, not members of the Tenants' Council.

She said units at Castle Brewer are infested with rats, roaches and giant ants and are in dire need of maintenance. Mrs. Wyche said she has personally sprayed her apartment to kill insects, but it is difficult to get rid of them as long as other apartments in the same unit are infested.

The women said while a half dozen apartments stand vacant, poor Sanford families are denied housing. Yet they said in at least one instance recently a woman who had just moved to Sanford from New York was given an apartment.

This was a bone of contention expressed by Mrs. Rosalind Realford, who with her year old daughter, Mary in her stroller, joined the picket line. Mrs. Realford said she had been refused housing for some years by authority staff members who contend there are no vacant apartments available.

Mrs. Wyche said that her group has a permit to picket for another week and they intend to do so every day beginning at 9 a.m. until it rains or the group has to go home at the end of the day.—Donna Estes

Vote Denies Personnel Board Snub

Afraid they had jumped the gun, three Seminole County commissioners voted to send thirty four job reclassifications and salary upgrades to the Seminole County Personnel Board for consideration even though the commission already gave tentative approval to the changes.

The 3-2 vote Tuesday allows normal personnel procedures to be followed before the changes become final.

Commissioners Bill Kirchhoff, Barbara Christensen and Robert G. "Bud" Feather voted to send the job changes to the Personnel Board. The move came at the urging of Kirchhoff, who said they would be setting a "dangerous precedent" in approving the changes without allowing the Personnel Board to review them.

"I don't think we should take action on these," he told commissioners.

Under the county's normal personnel procedure all job changes go before the personnel board before they are submitted to commissioners for consideration.

Since an upgrade in salaries for commissioners' secretaries are included in the package, Kirchhoff said employees in other county departments might feel favoritism is involved.

Commissioners unofficially approved the job changes at a work session last week. Commissioners Sandra Glenn and Robert Sturm voted against sending the changes to the Personnel Board saying the board had already taken a consensus during its work session.

County Administrator T. Duncan Rose said he wants to amend the personnel procedure so that jobs proposed at budget work sessions will not have to go through the Personnel Board.

In addition to upgrades of commissioners' secretaries, the package also includes upgrades for two secretaries in the county administrator's office, a reclassification for a budget aide in the Office of Management and Budget, changes in a contracts coordinator post in the Purchasing Department, an upgrade in the fleet manager's salary and four new positions in that department, changes in five jobs and the addition of a new job in the Department of Public Safety, two changes in the County Extension Office, a new building inspector, reclassification of four jobs and addition of a new post in Library Services, two new jobs in the Environmental Services Department, one new job and an upgrade of a second job in the Public Works Department.

The Personnel Board is scheduled to meet Aug. 23.

Bell Strike Takes Toll On Picketers, Supervisors

By Michael Beha
Herald Staff Writer

The strike by the Communications Workers of America against Bell Telephone System is taking its toll on both the strikers and local Southern Bell managers, left to do the work while union members walk the picket lines.

For union members the toll is financial. For the supervisors, the toll is physical and emotional.

"This strike is costing me a fortune," said Pete Hall, an 11-year Southern Bell employee. "But we're not out here for money. I'll never get back what this will cost me."

Hall was on a picket line today outside the Sanford Phone Center Store at 2200 Southgate Drive, along with about 10 other CWA members. About 130 local union members have been participating in the nationwide strike against the Bell Telephone System since 12:01 a.m. Sunday.

Meanwhile, inside Southern Bell's business office on 9th Street, Southern Bell Sanford manager Larry Strickler was beginning his third successive 16-hour day. Strickler said he works from 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the Sanford office and then drives to Orlando where he works as an operator until about 1 a.m.

"I couldn't last more than a couple of weeks working 16-hour days," he said. But Strickler said he could probably adjust to working 12-to 14-hour days for an indefinite period.

"The most comforting thing in these long hours is that they have been very understanding."

Would replacement workers be hired in the event of a prolonged strike?

Strickler said some former employees or others might be hired on a temporary basis to fill in for overworked supervisors.

He said several incidents of vandalism have been reported in the Sanford area since the strike began at 12:01 a.m. Sunday. The air supply has been cut off from five lines which receive a constant flow of air to keep water from seeping into the lines, he said.

The air flow was restored but service was temporarily cut in several areas, Strickler said. "I'm not saying it was union employees."

Hall said the number of strikers on the picket line has fallen since the strike began because some people have taken other jobs while the strike is going on.

"I've been doing my shift on the line and filling in for other people when they can't make it."

Hall said he prepared for the strike by putting more money into savings and setting up several odd jobs to support his family during the strike.

And though Hall said the strike is a hardship on his family, he won't return to work until the strike is settled.

'I couldn't last more than a couple of weeks working 16-hour days.'

—Larry Strickler

"I'd have to be destitute before I'd cross the picket line."

Striking workers are not eligible for unemployment benefits, according to a spokesman for the state Department of Employment Security.

The workers will receive a paycheck either this week or next week for work performed prior to the strike. After that, they can receive benefits from the union's $23 million strike fund if needed.

An Orlando union spokesman said the benefits are paid as needed, there is no fixed weekly strike benefit.

"But no one's house or car payment is allowed to go unpaid."

Hall and Strickler agreed that neither the local union members or the managers want the strike to continue. "We know all of them. We don't have any problem with them," Hall said. "It's over their heads. It's political."

Strickler said he's eager to get his employees back to work before both sides get frustrated about the strike.

"We have a good relationship with the union. Most of the people don't want to be there (on picket lines) but they feel they have to be there. Their union is fighting for them."

Hall said the prime issue in the dispute is job security. In the court-ordered divestiture of the Bell System, American Telephone and AT&T have each promised to hire half of the employees now working for the Bell System. But the companies have not given the employees any indication of which employees they will hire and where their jobs will be.

Bill Kadimas, also walking the picket line in Sanford, said the company recently transferred four installers from Daytona to Sanford and later brought in linemen to work as installers in Daytona.

Kadimas said the company also wants to institute a five-year probation, which union members feel would eliminate all job security for employees. "They'll work for five years and then the company will fire them to bring someone else in."

IN BRIEF

Mondale Likely Winner Of AFL-CIO Endorsement

BOSTON (UPI) — Backers of Sen. John Glenn's Democratic presidential bid say the AFL-CIO's plan to choose its preferred candidate early doesn't give them much time to try to bump former Vice President Walter Mondale from his spot as labor's favorite.

Mondale was the big winner Tuesday, when the AFL-CIO Executive Council decided to move the 13.7 million-member group's endorsement of a presidential candidate up to October. Originally, the group's unprecedented preliminary endorsement had been scheduled for December.

AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland said he didn't believe the timing of the October endorsement would favor any one candidate over the others.

Once the endorsement is made, "the trade unions will work wholeheartedly after that for that candidate," Kirkland said.

He said an October endorsement would increase "the effectiveness of our efforts" before the presidential primaries.

Kucinich Makes Comeback

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Dennis Kucinich, whose political fortunes as the nation's youngest big-city mayor crashed along with Cleveland's budget in 1978, won a city council seat in a strong comeback and offered to "chart a new course" with his long-time political foes.

The 36-year-old maverick Democrat, who has not held public office since he was defeated after Cleveland became the first city since the Great Depression to default, will serve out the last two years of a late councilman's term.

"You have called the mayor and the City Council president to public accountability," Kucinich said in reference to the opposition of Mayor George Volnovich and Council President George Forbes.

Forbes and Volnovich are the two most powerful men in Cleveland politics and are long-time Kucinich foes.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: The Midwest had a respite of a few degrees from the summer's lingering heat wave but forecasters said temperatures would soon be climbing past the 100-degree mark again as far north as Montana. Other parts of the nation were hit Tuesday with a variety of bad weather and weather side effects. A quick deluge in Houston left cars flooded up to their doors while a severe thunderstorm in Windsor, N.C. downed trees and power lines and damaged a valve on a 30,000-gallon liquid propane tank, forcing evacuation of a three-block area. Four grass and timber fires touched off by a severe overnight lightning storm burned in southern Idaho.

The largest blaze consumed about 1,500 acres. A cluster of intense thunderstorm cells formed over Utah, illuminating the Wasatch Mountains for five hours with 15,000 cloud-to-ground lightning strikes. Ten-foot waves, compounded by a higher-than-normal tide, continued to plague the Southern California coast as residents of ritzy Malibu beach houses checked damage from earlier waves and piled sandbags and plywood to protect their homes. While the searing heat eased slightly in the Great Lakes region and held temperatures under 90, record temperatures baked other parts of the nation. Atlantic City, N.J., suffered its third consecutive record-breaking day with a steamy 98, topping the previous high for the day set in 1949. The heat wave has been blamed in at least 197 deaths since. The county medical examiner said a 74-year-old man who died Sunday in a Kansas City, Mo. veterans' hospital died of heat stroke, becoming the 10th heat-related fatality in the area since July 15. Forecasters said the current hot spell would through at least Thursday.

2 Arrested In Chase, Assault On Deputy

A shot was fired at a Seminole County sheriff's deputy and a tire was thrown into her patrol car during a chase in the Chuluota area Tuesday night. The deputy was not hurt.

Sheriff's reports gave this account of the incident: Shortly after 7 p.m., deputy Lynn Petta responded to a report of a fight in progress at the Handy Way convenience store on State Road 46 at State Road 426 in the Geneva area.

As Ms. Petta's patrol car approached the store she saw a crowd of about 15 persons gathered in front of the store and in front of the Leisure Time bar across the street.

A brown 1969 Ford van screamed out of the store's parking lot and headed south on S.R. 426. Ms. Petta gave chase with her flashing blue light and siren on.

A man leaned out of the passenger side of the van and fired one shot from a rifle at Ms. Petta. The van ran off the road at the intersection of Snowhill Road after sideswiping another vehicle.

The van traveled across a sandy area and then onto Snowhill Road where it turned south, then east onto Lake Mills Road. As the chase continued, one of the men in the van opened the van's rear door and threw a tire onto Ms. Petta's patrol car.

Ms. Petta finally cornered the van on an access road between Third and Fourth streets in Chuluota.

Two persons in the van were arrested: Gerald Luther Edwards Sr., 38, of 361 4th St., Chuluota, and William Gary Pendarvis, 19, of the same address.

Edwards was charged with aggravated assault and discharging a firearm in public. He remained in the Seminole County jail today in lieu of $5,000 bond. Pendarvis was charged with disorderly intoxication and was released after posting $100 bond.

Also arrested was Edwards' son, Gerald Luther Edwards Jr., 22, of the same address. He was arrested by deputies who found him sitting inside a 1972 pickup truck parked off Snowhill Road. Deputies said they also found a plastic bag containing marijuana in his possession.

He was charged with disorderly conduct and possession of a controlled substance. He was in the Seminole County jail today in lieu of $500 bond.

Bank Robbers Usually Caught In C. Florida

By Charles Cobb
Herald Staff Writer

Central Florida law enforcement agencies and businesses including those in Seminole County, have an excellent record in solving area bank robberies, according to newly-released figures from the Orlando FBI office.

Central Florida (including Seminole, Orange and Osceola counties) boasts an 80 percent solution rate for bank robberies committed between January and June of this year, the figures show. Twenty robberies were committed during that period; 16 of those were solved.

These figures compare with a national bank robbery solution rate of only 50 percent, the FBI said. Only one of the Central Florida bank robberies took place in Seminole County: the Freedom Bank at Springs Plaza, 1350 Montgomery Road, Longwood, was held up on May 31.

The robber, who fled before receiving any cash, was identified through the use of a bank surveillance photograph and an extensive investigation by the Seminole County sheriff's department, according to FBI special agent Gary Bray.

A warrant has been issued for the fugitive's arrest, but he has not been taken into custody, Bray said.

Most of the 20 Central Florida bank robberies took place in Orlando, Winter Park and other areas of Orange County.

The Bank Robbery Prevention Task Force of the Orlando Crime Prevention Commission says the high success figures are indicative of the excellent results of a cooperative effort by their members, which include 25 financial institutions and 16 law enforcement agencies in the tri-county area.

Through the task force, members have instituted a uniform robbery response plan and robbery prevention training procedures for their employees.

IN BRIEF

State's Fleeing Felon Law Challenged In Suit

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) — A woman whose 19-year-old son was fatally shot by a policeman last year has filed suit, challenging Florida's so-called fleeing felon law.

Under the law, a police officer may use "any force which he reasonably believes to be necessary ... in arresting felons fleeing from justice."

Sandra Sublette is suing the city of Jacksonville, Sheriff Dale Carson and Patrolman Daniel B. Eaddy, who shot her son, Jeffrey D. Raymer, during a burglary investigation Feb. 23, 1982.

Raymer remained in a hospital until his death last Dec. 21, running up a $750,000 hospital bill in the process, the suit says.

The suit, which does not request a specific amount of damages, claims Raymer "was unarmed, had not posed a threat of physical harm to anyone and represented no danger to defendant Eaddy" while running from a store in south Jacksonville the night of the shooting.

Eaddy used "deadly force that was totally unnecessary" in the shooting, the suit says.

Old Lady Busted For Beer

ORLANDO (UPI) — An 83-year-old woman faces a court appearance on charges she drank from an open container of beer in downtown Orlando — a violation of a city ordinance.

City police confirm the woman broke the law, but admit the arrest of the elderly citizen "didn't look good" for the department.

Minnie Ann Miller was arrested Monday in a downtown alley.

Graham Moves To 'Save Our Everglades'

Gov. Bob Graham

...expects resistance to program from developers

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Florida Audubon Society says Gov. Bob Graham's "Save Our Everglades" program is an historic reversal of the philosophy over the years that the environment had to be sacrificed for growth.

"This is a day to mark in the history books," Audubon president Peter Mott said after Graham's proposals were outlined Tuesday. "This is a day when a Florida governor has decided to reverse the destructive trends that have threatened the Everglades."

Mott said Graham should expect opposition from "powerful interests that would like to see the drainage and development of the Everglades continue for private gain."

The governor's program is intended to protect and restore the Everglades from the Kissimmee River to the Ten Thousand Islands in Florida Bay.

It is patterned after Graham's earlier "Save Our Coasts" and "Save Our Rivers" initiatives and attempts to bring together many continuing Everglades programs, including de-channelization of the Kissimmee.

"We must save our Everglades. We must stop draining and diking them and start protecting and preserving them."

"Our goal is that the Everglades of the year 2000 should look more like the Everglades of the year 1900 than the Everglades of today. We will attempt in the next 17 years to heal the damage inflicted over the past century."

The powers of government will be concentrated on halting further destruction of the Everglades, restoring as much as possible of the already ravaged land, and improving the overall management of the region.

Graham's program includes many on-going efforts, including the $17.5 million purchase of 50,000 East Everglades acres approved by the Cabinet last week; restoration of the Kissimmee, which has been under study for years and has become highly controversial; and restoration of the Holey Land and Rotenberger tracts in the Everglades Agricultural Area in Palm Beach County.

It also includes management of the deer herd in Water Conservation Area 3 in Dade at a lower population so the animals can better survive high water levels; changes in Alligator Alley and the Tamiami Trail as they are upgraded to become part of I-75 to eliminate interference in the Everglades' natural water flow; restoration of Everglades

National Park under a plan proposed by park superintendent John Morehead; and greater efforts to protect the nearly extinct Florida panther.

Graham said he will appoint a committee to work with the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission in trying to protect the panther and other panels to study the Kissimmee River Basin and East Everglades and possibly propose area of critical state concern designations.

He said he wrote President Reagan on Monday asking for the appointment of a special official to coordinate all programs affecting the Everglades and he appealed Tuesday for the full support of local and regional governments.

The program will be one of the most ambitious restoration efforts ever undertaken by Florida government, but most of the expenses will be covered by existing agency budget, Graham said, except for de-channelization of the Kissimmee and the federal government will absorb much of the costs of that.

"There's going to be resistance to this program," he said, because it anticipates that local governments in the Everglades will, in conjunction with the state, prohibit new development or expansion of agricultural operations.

Bell Negotiators Waiting For A Phone Call

United Press International
Negotiators for striking Bell System workers and the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. were depending on the telephone today for informal contacts aimed at ending the 4-day-old walkout of operators and service technicians.

"We're waiting for an offer from the company," Francine Zucker, a spokeswoman for the striking 675,000 Communications Workers of America, said Tuesday night. "We're still miles apart."

Top officials of the CWA and AT&T met in Washington Tuesday for the first time since the strike began Sunday. No progress was reported toward ending the dispute that slowed operator-assisted calls and delayed installations.

No formal negotiating sessions were scheduled, but informal contacts by telephone between the two sides continued today.

Sanford Determining How To Spend Gas Tax Monies

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

How should the city of Sanford spend its share of the revenues from a county-imposed 4-cent gasoline tax, estimated at $316,000 in fiscal 1983-84?

City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles has been sent to the drawing board to prepare a priority list of city streets which need improving, heavy equipment which needs replacing and county roads within the city which might be improved in a cooperative agreement with the county.

The city commissioners made it clear this week that they want a good relationship with their county counterparts and want to end any animosity which might exist between the two governing bodies.

But they also made it clear that "we've got to concern ourselves with what roads in the city need improving first."

Knowles already had a few ideas even before drawing up a formal list of priorities. He reminded commissioners that the city of Sanford has been acquiring property to extend Lake Mary Boulevard easterly, said work needs to be done on the Lake Mary Boulevard corridor. In addition, he said few residents know that Airport Boulevard from the Sanford Airport to U.S. Highway 17-92 is a county road and it needs widening and shoulder work.

Of Lake Mary Boulevard, Knowles said although little of the highway is within the city, it is one of the main entrances into Sanford.

"It's of vital need to the county and the city needs to work on that project with the county," Knowles said.

He also pointed to Country Club Road which needs resurfacing. He said the traffic from the industrial development on Country Club Road is virtually destroying it.

Commissioner David Farr questioned whether earmarking some of the gas tax revenues for equipment was a valid use of the money.

Knowles pointed out that the county plans to use $800,000 of its revenues for that purpose.

The commission is expected to get a priority list and debate the matter further at its Aug. 22 meeting.

In other business Monday, the commission tabled inquiry from Charles Volk, operator of the Sanford Marina, on whether the city might wish to share the cost of dredging the west basin of Lake Monroe at Marina Isle and restoring the beach and parking area. The job is expected to cost about $60,000.

Commissioners indicated they want to see a firm estimate for the work before making any commitment.

Boy, 6, Injured In Wreck 'Improving Beautifully'

The 6-year-old son of a Winter Springs woman, who died Sunday as a result of injuries sustained in an auto accident, is in stable condition today with multiple fractures.

Karyl Anne Swain, 30, of 1349 Via Villa Nova Road, and her son were injured Friday. Mrs. Swain died two days later at Winter Park Memorial Hospital.

The injured boy, Zachary Swain, is "improving beautifully" according to his grandmother, Dolores Drew. He sustained multiple fractures to his right leg and hip, according to a hospital spokesman.

Mrs. Swain, who was a beauty consultant, moved to Winter Springs from Fort Wayne, Ind. in 1981. She was driving to the post office to mail a package when the auto accident occurred, her mother-in-law, Mrs. Drew, said.

The accident occurred as Mrs. Swain was driving north on Tusawilla Road in Winter Springs during a light drizzle at about 3:30 p.m. Friday, according to Winter Springs police investigator Gerald Justice.

Mrs. Swain's 1979 Chevrolet ran off the shoulder of the road, she lost control of the car and the vehicle slid across both lanes of traffic and was struck broadside by a southbound 1978 Ford pickup truck, Justice said.

The truck driver, Anthony Calabria, 50, of 215 Lavendar Court, Orlando, suffered a broken right wrist and a bruised rib. He was treated at Winter Park Memorial Hospital and released.

A passenger in the truck, Steve Elliot, 20, of 10348 Jepson St., Orlando, suffered a broken nose, minor lacerations and a knee injury. He was treated and released at the same hospital.

Another truck passenger, Arthur White, 17, of 6015 Oleander Drive, Orlando, suffered minor lacerations. He was treated at the Minor Emergency Medical Clinic in Orlando and released.

Man, 24, Acquitted Of Rape, Kidnapping, Jailed Again

A 24-year-old former Seminole Community College student was returned to jail Tuesday evening — just after he was acquitted on charges of kidnapping and sexual battery of his ex-girlfriend.

Franklin Levon Carter, of 119 Plymouth St., Altamonte Springs, was taken into custody about 7:30 p.m. on a warrant charging that he had violated his probation.

Carter was arrested on the strength of an affidavit filed by the Parole and Probation office.

He was being held in the Seminole County jail today without bond.

Carter's defense attorney, Abbott Her-ring of the public defender's office, expressed regret at the development and said he hopes the charge of probation violation will be dropped and Carter released from jail soon.

The four-woman, two-man Seminole Circuit Court jury acquitted Carter after deliberating for only an hour.

Carter testified that the alleged victim, identified as the mother of his child, allowed him to enter her home early May 23 and voluntarily accompanied him to a wooded area off County Road 427.

After a conversation in the woods they went to his house and he asked her to have sex, Carter said. The woman asked if she had a choice and he told her she did, Carter said.

The woman then consented voluntarily to having sex, Carter said, adding that afterwards he drove her home.

The woman claimed that Carter used a key to enter her home, carried her out the back door of the house and forced her into his car. Carter took her to the woods and threatened her with a knife and a leather strap, she said. Then he drove her to his house and asked her to have sex.

The woman consented, but only because she was still fearful due to the threat, the prosecution contended.

Well, Then... Give Us Reforms

In retreating from his campaign pledge to abolish the U.S. Department of Education, President Reagan has heeded what is perhaps sound political advice. Elimination of the Cabinet-level agency would undoubtedly be perceived by some as in conflict with Mr. Reagan's popular campaign for an education renaissance in the public schools.

Leaving the Department of Education intact for the moment may be good politics. But it is questionable policy. The department was created by former President Jimmy Carter as a payoff to the National Education Association. The NEA, which supported Carter's unsuccessful re-election campaign, has viewed the department as a symbol of its power to promote liberal social policies and protect the special interests of its members.

What is good for the NEA, however, is not necessarily good for the nation's schools. Federal intrusion into public education has not provided quality classroom instruction. It may have had the opposite effect. Teachers and school administrators have had to devote too much time and energy in following bureaucratic dictates — both from Washington and state capitals. There is evidence that this has robbed our classrooms of creativity and stifled academic achievement.

Although far from enthusiastic about the Department of Education's new lease on life, we were delighted to learn recently that Mr. Reagan has reduced the department's employees by 25 percent. Additional reductions are due. Management experts have found the department's workload does not justify the current staff of 5,540.

It can hardly be argued that the personnel cuts, which ultimately are projected to leave 5,259 employees, have decimated the department. Nevertheless, the NEA and other foes of Mr. Reagan are predictably dismayed. They claim the reductions will hamper quality education.

Much of their furor is focused on the reduction in bureaucrats who administer the department's so-called women's educational equity program. Dr. Leslie R. Wolfe, who directs the program, has complained to The New York Times that the reduction will leave her with "such a skeleton crew...we really could not perform our duties."

What, you may ask, have Dr. Wolfe and her associates done for quality education? A department spokesman provided us with three examples that he described as "typical" of their work.

— They gave $128,000 in public funds to the Labor Education Film Center for production of a multi-media package that describes the "inspiring history of working women of the Americas."

— They gave $156,000 to the national Organization for Women to finance a public information campaign focusing "on equal opportunities in education for girls and boys."

— They gave $204,000 to the Rural Alternatives Institute of South Dakota for a "model program" that will develop awareness of Title Nine regulations that prohibit sex discrimination in education.

These projects may have value but do nothing whatsoever for quality education. The wisdom of such expenditures is highly questionable when school systems have difficulty finding sufficient funds to provide children with adequate classroom supplies and modern textbooks.

The Department of Education obviously needs more reforms than staff reductions. Instead of financing such projects, federal education funds should be allocated to school systems in block grants that simply transfer money with no strings. Local school boards are better judges than Washington of how to best spend money for the education of their students. This would not preclude U.S. oversight of local enforcement of anti-discrimination regulations and other federal rules.

Federal officials ought to consider the example of California, where the state government has returned some of the powers it had stripped from local school boards.

In giving the boards more authority to discipline or dismiss incompetent teachers and in authorizing merit pay provisions for local teacher contracts, California has done more to improve the schools than anything undertaken by the U.S. Department of Education.

If the U.S. Department of Education is not abolished, it should at least be reformed to give local school boards more flexibility. Parents and other voters who elect the local boards have more of a stake in the quality of their schools than Washington bureaucrats who strive to satisfy constituencies in the NEA and other special interest groups.

DICK WEST I'm In The Mood For Valium

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Educators casting about for something to blame for declining academic achievements in this country need look no further than a recent survey conducted by a leading teddy bear manufacturer.

The poll showed that teddy bears can be found in four-fifths of the college dormitories in America. But that was by no means the most instructive finding.

More to the point were some of the reasons given by college students for taking teddy bears off to school with them. I cite a couple of the more pertinent explanations:

— "Teddy bears instantly understand why you'll never need calculus."

— "Teddy bears are not intimidated by the subjunctive tense in any language."

What this survey seems to suggest is that college students of today have an unreasoning fear of calculus and the subjunctive, and use teddy bears as security symbols.

What they are getting, alas, is a false sense of security.

Wagging around a toy animal, or having one back in the dorm, does not really provide any protection against the subjunctive.

Sooner or later, no matter what language you are studying, the subjunctive will reach out and grab you.

The fear can be conquered only by facing up to the subjunctive and trying to deal with it for what it is — not by cowering behind a teddy bear.

This is not to imply that fear of the subjunctive is a new phobia. For as long as I can remember — which in some instances is 30 seconds or less — students have been telling themselves be terrorized by it.

I well remember the day a college language professor introduced my Spanish 210 class to the pluperfect subjunctive. There was near panic in the classroom, I can tell you.

Yet, we somehow managed to survive without clinging fearfully to a teddy bear.

The place to tackle this problem is at the high school level. By the time a student reaches college age, fear of the subjunctive may be so deeply rooted that he or she will automatically clutch the nearest teddy bear whenever confronted by a condition contrary to fact.

High school language departments should make it clear from the outset that although the subjunctive may cause severe brain damage under certain conditions, it is rarely fatal.

Millions of citizens of both sexes who were exposed to the subjunctive during their scholastic careers are today leading normal, healthy lives — without recourse to teddy bears.

The trouble is that language teachers tend to identify the subjunctive as a "mood." Thus, students tend to lump it in with depression, anxiety and other dispiriting states.

If they can be taught to think of the subjunctive simply as a way of expressing wishes, requests, urgency, etc., half the battle will be won.

Calculus, unfortunately, is another matter. Anyone who has ever been frightened by a calculus problem is quite justified in seeking refuge in teddy bears. Often, it's the safest thing to do.

Leak May Have Sunk Philip Habib

WASHINGTON — Did a well-placed leak to the press help sink Philip Habib? The president's recently removed special envoy in the Middle East may think so. Here's the story:

For months, Habib had been trying without success to persuade Israel and Syria to pull their troops out of Lebanon. Neither side would agree to make the first move. Indeed, there was serious doubt that Syrian President Hafez Assad would withdraw his troops under any circumstances.

In June, the administration was toying with a plan that Habib hoped would break the stalemate. Simply put, the idea was to pressure Israel into a unilateral withdrawal, counting on Assad to follow the Israeli example. But before the plan could be initiated, someone in Washington leaked it to the press. The reaction was swift and predictable: Israel and her friends in Congress denounced the idea. The Lebanese didn't think much of it, either.

A July 1 cable, classified "Secret — Alert," from Habib to Secretary of State George Shultz stated bluntly: "The leaks out of Washington have produced an immensely damaging setback to our efforts here." My associate Lucette Lagnado has seen a copy of the cable.

Habib reported on a meeting he had held that morning with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, Defense Minister Moshe Arens and Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

"Begin, Shamir and Arens made it clear... that there was no point in pursuing our alternative ideas for bringing about total withdrawal of all foreign forces. (They) urged that we limit the heavy damage already caused all of us, by making clear we continue to support the concept of simultaneous... withdrawals."

Habib had this advice for Shultz: "Under present circumstances, we all believe there is no point in your visiting the area at this time." He added that Sam Lewis, the U.S. ambassador to Israel, "strongly concurs."

But Shultz disregarded Habib's advice, went to the Middle East anyway — and failed to get Syria to agree to a troop withdrawal. It was an embarrassing failure for the administration.

Oddly enough, Habib's cable made clear that he thought the plan to force a homeowners to secure repair payments by placing mortgages on their homes. The repairman then sold the notes before any work was completed.

A law enforcement official described this common scam:

A con artist approaches an elderly person — usually an elderly woman ignorant about repairs — and contracts to resurface her roof or driveway. The repairman either does no work or simply paints the old surface black so it appears to have been resurfaced.

Even if the contractor is legitimate, problems can arise if the homeowner has not requested the proper information from the contractor.

Florida homeowners are protected under strict Florida laws against charlatans. A little prudence beforehand, however, could keep you from most serious problems. To avoid pitfalls follow these suggestions:

• All contractors must have a city or county license. Ask to see their license before you contract with them.

• Never allow anyone to work on your home or property without a written contract.

• Florida law requires that all liens on your home to finance home improvements must be detailed in your contract.

• Normally the homeowner does not pay the contractor any money until he or she signs a work completion certificate. This should only be signed when the work is completed and you have thoroughly examined it and find it to your satisfaction. No finance charges can accrue until this form is signed.

How To Figure Fed Pay?

WASHINGTON (NEA) — An organization representing federal white-collar employees has filed suit against Uncle Sam, claiming they are owed a pay raise of about 22 percent this year.

The group, the American Federation of Government Employees, claims that since 1979, government workers have received less in annual raises than they were entitled to under federal pay law.

Federal white-collar workers are supposed to get a raise each October. According to the Federal Pay Comparability Act of 1970, the raise percentage must be enough to keep federal pay at the same level for comparable work performed in the private sector.

In setting this figure, the Bureau of Labor Statistics conducts an annual survey of the private sector to determine the average wage for different types of work. BLS compares these figures to federal wages, then determines a percentage increase that will put federal and private-sector pay on the same level.

The president can grant the BLS increase or any lesser percentage. If he chooses a smaller increase, either the House or the Senate can overrule him by a simple majority vote.

The process worked smoothly from 1971 to 1978. Each year except 1975, when budgets were unusually tight, the president granted about what was recommended by the BLS. Since 1978, however, the increases have been considerably smaller than the recommended levels.

In the last two years of the Carter administration, the raises granted were about 8 percent less than those recommended. The major reason given was that the government could not afford more. However, another issue was raised: the belief that the BLS survey of the private sector was inaccurate because it used data from only the largest companies.

BLS argues that this procedure is valid, since only the largest private firms have workers whose wide ranges of jobs and skills compare with those of federal workers. However, others claim that the BLS percentages are too high, since the agency doesn't use salary data covering small and medium-sized businesses and the 12 million state and local government employees.

In its first two years, the Reagan administration has granted increases far below the BLS recommendation. In 1981, the BLS recommended a 15.1 percent increase, and Reagan gave 4.8 percent. In 1982, the recommended percentage was 18.4 percent, but the actual raise was 4 percent.

The Reagan administration has adopted the inaccurate data claim to justify these reduced increases, but it also has added a new wide-ranging argument: that of total compensation.

The BLS survey is based solely on active-service pay, but the Reaganites say this is unfair. What should be measured, they say, is "total compensation comparability," which includes all fringe benefits given to both federal and private-sector workers.

The administration has gone even further: It believes that federal employment carries certain "non-pecuniary" benefits, including job security, job mobility within the government and portability of benefits — especially of retirement benefits. It claims that these non-pecuniary benefits must be included in the BLS equation on a "discount basis." The 1970 law required that federal workers be paid the equivalent of 100 percent of private-sector pay for similar work, but the Reagan administration contends that due to the advantages of federal employment, that level should be only 94 percent.

The administration is using these arguments to justify both its past reduced increases and its granting of what amounts to a zero pay increase this year, although the BLS has recommended 22 percent.

The administration view is being buffeted on all sides. It is not only the subject of the AFGE lawsuit, but is being disputed by several congressional committees and by studies conducted by several governmental agencies.

unilateral Israeli withdrawal was still valid in the long run. "There is obviously no present possibility of pursuing our approach," he told Shultz. "Nevertheless, we do not necessarily rule out a revival of this approach at a later stage, if we can recover from the damage done by this leak."

The Middle East Policy Survey, an investigative newsletter, reports that the administration revived the plan during a visit by Israeli officials to Washington last month.

Habib informed Shultz that the Israelis would go ahead with a limited, partial withdrawal, and added: "Depending on the ensuing circumstances, including the reaction in Lebanon, we may be able to take our idea from the back burner and try again."

Habib, who reportedly was the author of the controversial plan and was certainly its strongest advocate, is no longer in a position to try again. It remains to be seen whether his successor, Robert C. McFarlane, will risk burning his fingers by taking the plan from the back burner. More likely, it'll wind up in the deep-freezer.

WASHINGTON WORLD Next GOP Senate Leader Is?

By Wesley G. Pippert

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The maneuvering already has begun to see who will succeed Howard Baker as Senate Republican leader.

Sens. Robert J. Dole, 60, of Kansas, Pete V. Domenici, 51, of New Mexico, and James McClure, 58, of Idaho, and Richard G. Lugar, 51, of Indiana, are the likely candidates — and probably are favored in that order, too.

McClure probably starts with the most votes, but the ultimate winner may be Dole, who has shed his acerbic image to become one of the most respected and powerful senators. His tongue has alienated a few over the years, but he commands the respect of all.

Many senators shun the floor. But Dole, who has kept his sharp wit, loves the give-and-take of debate, and standing at his back-row seat he frequently grabs the ball even when his legislation is not involved.

When an agricultural measure was foundering in the last Congress under Senate Agriculture Chairman Jesse Helm's management, Dole took over and pushed it through.

He has vastly changed from the days when as Republican national chairman he tongue-lashed George McGovern in the 1972 presidential race, and when he was President Gerald R. Ford's running mate in 1976.

Dole joined McGovern in pushing food stamp legislation. He heads the powerful Finance Committee and took the lead in writing a $100 billion tax reform bill last year.

Many attribute his softening to his second wife, Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Hanford Dole.

Dole tipped his hand about the leadership role in Kansas, but when asked about it at a Capitol news conference he squirmed and finally acknowledged he had told a questioner back home, "Yes, I'm interested."

Domenici, a former Albuquerque mayor, would be most like Baker in style, at least outwardly. Domenici used gentleness and quiet determination to harness the unwieldy Budget Committee and get fiscal blueprints through against great odds.

Domenici's heavy smoking — he would go through six cigarettes in a half hour — betrayed tension and nervousness. But after a chest operation to remove a lesion that proved benign, he stopped smoking. Even President Reagan pleaded with him to stop.

His staff said that Domenici, too, is interested but for the present is focusing on legislation and his own re-election race in 1984.

Lugar, the dark horse, is one of four Rhodes scholars in the Senate and was President Richard M. Nixon's "favorite mayor" as mayor of Indianapolis. He has been praised as the consummate senator, but his speech and demeanor lack flair.

But Lugar already demonstrated his popularity among colleagues last winter by ousting liberal Sen. Bob Packwood of Oregon as chairman of the National Republican Senatorial Committee.

Whoever succeeds Baker's Tennessee twang and pencil-tapping will follow a tough act.

WATCH ON TAXES: An optimistic President Reagan, cheered by the rebounding economy, is more convinced than ever that new tax increases won't be needed. He believes the bloated federal deficit can be reduced through spending cuts.

— Democratic leaders have no intention of launching a drive for higher taxes on the eve of the 1984 election. If the president doesn't request a tax increase, the Democrats who run the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee certainly won't push one on him. But neither are the Democrats likely to cut the social spending programs.

— The nation's banks orchestrated a massive mailing and telephoning campaign, which persuaded Congress to repeal the 1982 mandatory withholding law. This would have required banks and corporations to withhold taxes on interest and dividends. The repeal will cost the Treasury an estimated $13 billion in evaded taxes, which will now have to be made up by the less-blessed taxpayers who don't have stocks, bonds and savings accounts.

Polluted Aquifer 'A Time Bomb'

By United Press International

A new study shows that thousands of wells sunk into the Floridan Aquifer in 23 of the state's 67 counties could be depositing pollutants in Floridians' drinking water.

Two of the most populous counties — Dade and Orange — lead the state in the number of such wells, according to a study by the U.S. Geological Survey.

Each day the wells carry 50 million gallons of water often laden with pesticides, fertilizer, heavy metals, bacteria and other pollutants into the aquifer.

Officials say there is no proof drinking water is being tainted, but that is because there have been so few studies. One well-driller called the situation "an underground time bomb."

"There's no question that pollution is going on," said David Fisk, director of the department of groundwater management for the Suwannee Water Management District in north Florida. "I think it's just a matter of time (before it's revealed)."

State Department of Environmental Regulation investigators found 1,226 storm-water drainage wells in the state, and another 5,458 wells that carry swimming pool runoff, air conditioning water, laundry wastes, septic tank effluents and industrial wastewater.

USGS engineers found the problem was most severe in Orange County because of agricultural residue and the depth of wells there. But the three-year, $150,000 report "did not show that there is contamination of the groundwater," said Rodney DeHahn of the DER groundwater section.

Local authorities say they're convinced the pollution is there.

"Every time it rains, you're flushing Orlando's toilet right into the aquifer," said Sam Wiggins, president of the Central Florida Well Diggers Association. "Next time it rains, would you go out to Orange Avenue and dip you a big cup of water out of the street and drink it? Well, that's what's going down these wells."

While the well water refills the underground reservoir, it also bypasses filtration it would go through to reach the Aquifer under natural circumstances.

"It's good news that they're putting a large quantity of recharge into the aquifer, good news that they haven't polluted anything to date," said Joel Kimrey of the USGS. "But we have to hold out the warning that there are 400 (deep) pipelines into the Aquifer. There are some real damn hard questions."

Star Show Out Of This World

URBANA, Ill. (UPI) — A moonless night and the possibility of an abundance of meteors should be just the right ingredients to make this year's Perseid meteor shower a spectacular display, a University of Illinois astronomer says.

"There's a good possibility of a really good show this year," said professor James B. Kaler.

The Perseid shower, the best-known annual meteor shower, will be at its peak Thursday night and early Friday, Kaler said. Astronomers say the shower should be visible throughout the United States and other parts of North America.

Since there will be no moon that night, the Perseid display should look brighter. In addition, he said, the number of meteors streaking across the sky may be greater than usual.

If the sky is cloudless, the best time for viewing the shower will be around 3 or 4 a.m. Friday, although good viewing will begin Thursday after dark.

Stargazers should look directly up in the sky and a bit to the east for the best chance of seeing a meteor, he said.

Kaler said most meteor showers occur when the Earth passes through a region of debris left behind by a comet. These solid particles pass into the Earth's atmosphere and burn up, emitting energy in the form of light.

Normally, the Perseid shower averages about one meteor per minute, but in the past few years that rate has increased. A rate of two meteors a minute is possible this year, Kaler said.

The Perseids are so named because they appear to radiate from the constellation Perseus, an umbrella-shaped network of stars between Cassiopeia and the Pleiades.

Soviets Clamping Down On Drinkers, Shirkers

MOSCOW (UPI) — In a toughening of President Yuri Andropov's campaign to improve worker performance, the Soviet government has approved new measures cracking down on idlers and alcoholics in factories and other workplaces.

The strict new regulations, published in the Communist Party newspaper Pravda, not only punish truants and drunks but those whose lazy work habits result in shoddy output by their factory or enterprise.

But in keeping with Andropov's campaign, launched seven months ago to step up industrial production and turn around the lagging economy, the new measures reward the industrious with increased vacation and salary.

"Heaven only knows how it will be at work now. These regulations are so strict it is impossible for some people to observe them," said one Soviet who objected to regulations limiting time away from work.

In a new provision, anyone absent from his workplace more than three hours can be disciplined. It was not spelled out whether that included firing. For every day away from work without cause, however, one day is subtracted from vacation time.

A worker who "systematically violates worker discipline," which includes drinking on the job or appearing at work drunk, can be paid less for up to three months or moved for the same period to a lower-paid job. During this disciplinary period, he cannot quit his job.

The measures, drawn up by the Council of Ministers and the Trade Union Council, were reviewed and approved by the ruling Politburo. They apply to all citizens who can reasonably be expected to be part of the labor force.

If a worker is fired, no matter where he finds a new job he will be docked half his production bonus payments for six months, although a board can decide after three months whether his performance has been so exemplary that full bonuses will be restored.

To try and control "parasitism," which in the Soviet Union is the crime of voluntary unemployment, the measure penalizes a worker who goes more than three weeks without a new job by cancelling all accumulated pension benefits.

Those who because of drunkenness or laziness produce shabby work and thereby hurt the reputation of the enterprise can be docked up to a third of salary, the resolution said.

But good workers are to be rewarded under the new measures with two or three extra vacation days a year for good work. Previously, they could get extra days only every second year.

WORLD IN BRIEF

U.S. Troops, Supplies Pouring Into Honduras

United Press International

Traffic planes poured American troops and supplies into Honduras for major military maneuvers demonstrating the U.S. presence in Central America and Nicaragua announced a sweeping new draft law to bolster its army.

Officials in Honduras Tuesday reported a steady stream of American C-141 transport planes landing at the airport in San Pedro Sula to ferry in supplies and the first U.S. troops for the maneuvers, now in full swing.

The airstrip is located along the country's Caribbean coast near where a U.S. Navy task force headed by the aircraft carrier USS Ranger has been operating.

Although the U.S. embassy and the Honduran military refuse to say how many troops have landed, 4,000 are expected to join 6,000 Honduran troops in war games in the tense southern region between Nicaragua and El Salvador.

In Managua, Minister of Defense Humberto Ortega submitted a draft law Tuesday to the rubber-stamp Nicaraguan legislature that would make conscription mandatory for all men from 17 to 50 years old — and include many women.

Libyans Invade Chad

TRIPOLI, Libya (UPI) — Thousands of Libyan troops invaded Chad and Libyan warplanes backing Chad's rebels rained napalm bombs on government outposts, Western diplomatic sources said.

Some 4,000 to 5,000 Libyan troops and one or two tank battalions entered Chad, where Libyan-backed rebels loyal to ousted President Goukouni Weddeye are fighting to overthrow President Hissene Habre, the sources said Tuesday.

Libyan planes renewed aerial attacks on government positions around Chad's remote northern oases of Faya-Largeau after a three-day lull, they said. Western diplomats in the Libyan capital of Tripoli said the bombing pause may have been called by Moscow.

"The Soviets fear that with the arrival in Chad of more sophisticated American and French equipment, the risk of retaliatory strikes against Libya has been heightened," one source said.

U.S. Marine Wounded

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Forces in the mountains east of Beirut pounded Beirut airport with shell fire today, killing at least one Lebanese civilian and wounding a U.S. Marine, officials said.

Government sources said Druze Moslem militiamen fought with Christian militias in the Shouf and Aley mountains for control of the Israeli-occupied heights. Druze militias also battled Lebanese troops around the Aley mountain villages of Abey and Kfar Mailla southeast of the capital, the sources said.

The shelling of the airport came from the mountains as well and Lebanese and American military sources were not certain if the shells were from artillery rounds or rockets.

Middle East May Be Ready To Explode

WASHINGTON (UPI) — State Department officials say time is running out on efforts to establish peace in the Middle East.

They fear it is only a matter of months before fighting erupts anew between Syria and Israel or before a political assassination or upheaval in Lebanon inflames the region.

The officials, who talked to United Press International on the condition they not be identified, say a new lineup of experts in the State Department's Middle East bureau is working to defuse explosive tensions before another major outbreak of violence.

But the officials also say there may not be enough time to work out a new game plan.

"The new team will be seasoned professionals from the Near East bureau, but unless there is some policy set down by the White House, they won't have much to do," one official says.

The new members of the Middle East team are almost all — with the notable exception of the new Middle East mediator, former White House official Robert McFarlane — seasoned Foreign Service professionals in their early 50s, the kind of men that Secretary of State George Shultz apparently feels most comfortable with.

They include:

—Robert Murphy, 54, a Harvard and Cambridge University graduate who has spent much of his life in the Arab world and speaks fluent Arabic. Designated to be assistant Secretary of State for Near East and South Asia, he is expected to bring in a new team of middle-level experts.

Analysis

—Nicholas Vellotes, 54, designated to be ambassador to Cairo. As assistant secretary, he was the principal author of the Reagan plan that was announced last September and would have led to a confederation between the occupied West Bank and Jordan.

The plan was rejected by Israel and spurned by Jordan and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

One seasoned professional says, "It would be terribly unfair if Vellotes were blamed for the failure. The failure was at the White House, where the President and (National Security Adviser) Bill Clark did not push the plan with King Hussein."

—Reginald Bartholomew, 45, who is expected to be named ambassador to Lebanon, will replace Robert

Dillon, who will be the U.S. representative at the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA).

In recent months, the Reagan administration has concentrated on winning a settlement in Lebanon that would lead to the total withdrawal of all foreign troops. But that effort failed when Syria refused to pull out. And now McFarlane lacks the authority to offer the Syrians anything that might change their minds.

With the peace process stalled in Lebanon, there is no longer any hope for negotiations on Palestinian autonomy that began several years ago at Camp David.

One former official says, "The problem with concentrating on Lebanon is that it has distracted everybody from what is really going on: the acceleration of the Israeli annexation of the occupied West Bank."

Sprouting Cure

PEKING (UPI) — Squeamish about needles — even hair-thin acupuncture pinpricks? Stick a mung bean in your ear.

That is how Dr. Huang Lichuan treats patients and she claims a 90 percent cure rate for a variety of ailments, especially pain.

After she determines the ailment, Dr. Huang places a mung bean on a fingernail-sized adhesive plaster and sticks it on a point in the ear. Mung beans look like tiny green pebbles. When soaked in water, they produce bean sprouts.

Programs To Be Available Statewide

Love Of Computer Games Used To Teach Economics

TAMPA — If all goes according to plan, Florida teachers will be using their students' penchant for computer games to improve their classes' "economic IQ," thanks to a university professor whose work includes directing a national center in Tampa for economic education.

Dick Puglisi, director of the Center for Economic Education at the University of South Florida, implemented a new program this summer with the help of 26 elementary and secondary school teachers from the Tampa Bay Area. The teachers provided the creative input for computer programs that blend lessons on economics into exercises for English, social studies, business, home economics and math classes.

The results of this pilot program will be available this fall to teachers throughout Florida through the center's lending library. They include a program that helps students understand the concept of budgeting while shopping for nutrition, a program that gives students the opportunity to practice math while following an installment purchase exercise, and over a dozen other learn-by-doing opportunities to explain such concepts as supply and demand, inflation and unit pricing.

'Unglamorous'

Puglisi, whose state-funded center is one of 200 similar centers based at U.S. colleges and one of eight in Florida co-funded by the state's Council on Economic Education, said the 10-week summer program is an experiment in using computer technology — and student interest in computers — as a learning tool for what some consider the "unglamorous" subject of economics.

"Many adults have a difficult time understanding how our economic system works," said Puglisi, "and they suffer the consequences of their misconceptions every time they make a purchase and investment decision."

"We want to help students understand where they fit into our economic system, and how to make it work to their benefit to make the most of their resources."

"Kids are very excited about computers and their possibilities," Puglisi added, "and we want to use that enthusiasm by using computers as our message-carriers for economic education."

For teacher Diane McGrath, the summer program offered a chance to put her ideas on economic education into a form that will help her reach more students than she sees in her classroom.

McGrath, a social studies teacher at Southeast High School in Bradenton, believes that schools should put a strong emphasis on teaching consumer economics to give students the "survivor skills" they need to succeed.

"We see students all the time who don't understand basic economic concepts, like the real cost of buying something on credit," she said. "That kind of understanding is critical if these students are going to make it economically."

"Especially for high school students who aren't college-bound, it's crucial that they understand how their money can work for them, or against them, so they can make the most of their buying power."

McGrath's program is written as a two-part exercise, including a "Credit Sucker Survey," designed to help students evaluate their buying habits and develop a more informed approach to money decision-making.

Jeff Fitterman and Gene Estep's program, Buying a Car, focuses on making choices to get the best buy for your money. Fitterman, who teaches learning disabled students at Tampa's Chamberlain High School, and Estep, a contemporary education teacher at nearby Van Buren Junior High, believe that schools should make basic economic "life skills" instruction a priority.

"Unless students can see the relevance in what they're learning, they're not going to really understand, especially those students who already are behind their peers," said Fitterman. "When we can integrate life skills lessons on being smart consumers into related subjects, like math or English, we're going to accomplish more in our limited class time."

"The traditional format was pretty dry — 'today, class, we're going to learn about depreciation.' Who cares? But tell the students they're going to learn how to buy a car and get a good deal, and you're going to get their attention. They can see this is something that they want to know."

"Computers are still a very attractive opportunity to students — they want chances to use computers. That attitude is very conducive to learning, and programs like USF's will help generate the teaching materials needed to take advantage of student enthusiasms."

Interest is the subject of a program for elementary school classes, as written by Cheryl Engersoll. Engersoll, who teaches fifth grade at Bauder Elementary School in Seminole, wrote her program to help students understand how interest can increase the cost of what they buy on credit.

Ten- to twelve-year-old students are really into computers, but not always very savvy about how money and the system really works," said Engersoll. "I wrote a number of review options into the program, and 'rewards' for progress through the lesson in the form of jokes."

User-Friendly

"I think the keys are keeping the programs user-friendly, easy to follow, and on the student's level. In our area, most students' families own their own homes, so I made a home purchase one of the examples for figuring how much interest adds to the cost of a purchase."

Engersoll and other participants believe that tools such as the computer programs will help students gain a better understanding of economics as it relates to everyday living. According to Puglisi, USF's College of Education will be adding a required course this fall for elementary ed majors on basic economic theory to help ensure that teachers approach this subject from a more informed viewpoint.

The persuasive power of advertising is the subject of a program written by Tampa senior high school English teachers Toni Brummond and Mary Gonzalez. Brummond, who teaches at Hillsborough High, and Gonzalez, who teaches at Leto High, define six methods of advertising in their program, written to help students evaluate what they hear and read about consumer products.

"We need to help students learn to evaluate advertising messages," said Brummond. "Most people are too susceptible to persuasive techniques like testimonials and so-called bargain prices. Fifty dollars down and $10 a month sounds like a terrific deal until you get to the fine print — but many people don't go beyond the headline offer."

"Our program teaches terminology while it teaches consumerism, which probably is one of the most important lessons we can cover."

Teachers in USF's Center's summer program were drawn from five school districts in the Tampa Bay area. At USF, they worked with an economist and computer educator, team consultants Sunne Brandmeyer and Fred Prince. Local businesses provided support in the form of honoraria for the volunteer participants. Support for this summer's program was provided by the Florida Electric Power Coordinating Group and Tampa Electric Company.

The new software is available to requesting teachers in a 17-county area serviced by USF, joining an extensive library of films, materials and course outlines on economic subjects. Interested teachers can contact the center by mail or phone, in care of USF, Tampa, 33620, (813) 974-2175, 974-2234.

USF's Center for Economic Education recently was recognized by the Florida Council on Economic Education for its "Decisionomics" program, an economics curriculum for elementary school students. Additionally, schools in USF's Center's service area received over 75 percent of the Council's individual teacher awards, which are made on a statewide basis.

Computer Freaks Are Seeing Pink

BOSTON (UPI) — The pink objects you may see after slaving over the home computer for hours are not the workaholic's version of pink elephants but a curious and harmless phenomenon well known to psychologists.

The illusion of pink fringes around white objects or letters is called the McCollough effect and occurs after staring at intensely colored objects, researchers wrote in a letter in the latest issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Three researchers from Northwestern University in Chicago said they observed the phenomenon in people working at IBM personal computers, but it can occur on any video display terminal that has luminous green characters on a dark background.

After a few hours of work, the researchers said, ordinary white letters and lines on a contrasting background appeared to have a pink color and a broad expanse of white such as a wall or a sheet of paper also appeared pink around the edges.

"Several hours of work at the video screen give rise to a very striking after effect, which may persist for an entire day or longer," they wrote. "Shorter exposures produce a less intense but still obvious effect."

They said the phenomenon was similar to one noted after staring at any intensely colored object, but it appeared to have a different physiologic mechanism than the well-known McCollough effect.

That phenomenon is believed to arise in the cortical neurons, however, the afterimages associated with computer use seemed to originate in the retina, wrote Dr. Mark J. Greenwald.

He said they wrote the letter to alert physicians to the phenomenon "so as not to mistake it for a hysterical symptom or a manifestation of neurologic disease."

"Although it is a harmless physiologic curiosity, lack of familiarity with this after effect could make it a source of concern to persons who experience it, and some will doubtless consult their physicians," they wrote.

Men Outnumber Women 22-1

Update On Nation's Prisons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Men outnumber women 22-to-1 in the nation's prisons, where a record 425,678 criminals are behind bars, the Justice Department reported in a quarterly update on prison populations.

As of March 31, there were 407,179 men being held in state and federal institutions, compared to only 18,499 women, the department's Bureau of Justice Statistics reported.

The totals mean there were 175 inmates in state or federal prisons for every 100,000 Americans, the report said.

Most of the inmates — 394,141 — are serving time in state cellblocks. A total of 31,537 are in federal institutions, the first time since 1977 that number has surpassed the 30,000 mark.

Complicating problems with prison overcrowding, an additional 13,288 inmates were locked up in the first three months of the year, the report said.

The number of inmates in state prisons increased an average of 3 percent in the first quarter of the year and 6.3 percent in federal prison populations, the bureau reported.

The number of prisoners decreased in only six states during the period — Florida, Kentucky, Michigan, Mississippi, West Virginia and Wyoming.

Alaska, with a 12.8 percent jump in prisoners, and Hawaii, with an 11 percent increase, led the pack with the highest percentage increases.

The five largest prison systems are Texas, with 37,370 inmates; California, 36,122; the federal system, 31,537; New York, 28,919, and Florida, 26,604. Together those systems accounted for two of every five people imprisoned as of March 31.

The lowest prison populations — each under 1,000 — were reported in Montana, New Hampshire, North Dakota, South Dakota, Vermont and Wyoming.

Your Letters May Give You Away

By James V. Heallon

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — A stranger with an analytical mind might be able to tell quite a bit about you from your correspondence. In 1984 that stranger might program a computer to do it.

If such a program were developed, clues in your letters would suggest to a business, say, your social class, intelligence level, assertiveness, breeding, as well as your sex and age. The clues would be in the style and structure of your letter, its phrasing, vocabulary and so on.

The business would thus be in a position to know what might please or displease you and tailor its approach accordingly.

If somebody, for example, referred to a car as a "machine" in a complaint to an automobile manufacturer, it would likely be an older person. The use of the word was favored into the 1930s.

Somebody else might threaten to "clean the dealer's clock," if the defect wasn't fixed. The computer would pick up the phrase and might assign it to an aggressive male under 35.

Specialists have been able to determine when expressions enter the language — authors like Stuart Berg Flexner have written books about it — so programming a computer to figure out age based on such information isn't that difficult.

A Norwalk, Conn. market research firm says there is an artificial intelligence program being developed experimentally that can critique the writing style, syntax and construction of any document a company's managers generate. It says it is not that far removed from analyzing correspondence managers may receive from the outside.

The present purpose is to improve business communications by pinpointing errors of style in draft correspondence prepared by managers, according to International Resource Development Inc. of Norwalk. The system is programmed to comment on tired, outdated and stilted language, along with any that was impossibly long and obtuse.

Eventually, incoming material could be scanned and a summary prepared with items of interest to particular managers highlighted and put into storage for retrieval later.

The IRD researchers expect artificial intelligence to be an $8 billion market in 10 years.

In the meantime, the researchers say somebody could arrange such a program so the social origins and general character of the writer could be determined.

"Such a system will be able to detect small nuances of expression and relate them to the social background of the originator. We see the program evolving to the point at which a great deal will be able to be deduced about the writer of even a relatively short memo," says David Ledecy, an IRD researcher.

"The self-teaching ability of the artificial intelligence system will enable the system to learn and recognize which style or pattern of writing originated in the Bronx, which in Harlem, and which in San Diego."

Record-Breaking 37 Boats Compete In Osteen Bridge Bass Tournament

The August edition of the Osteen Bridge Bass Tournament was held under cloudy skies Sunday with a record-breaking 37 boats entering the competition. The 74 avid bass fishermen, representing four Central Florida counties, commenced gathering at the fish camp as early as 5:15 a.m., and continued to check in for over an hour. Each boat was assigned a sequential number as the $25 entry fee was paid.

After reporting in, the fishermen, most of whom were young men and women under 35 years of age, sipped coffee and gossiped sociably about bait, weather, and fishing, waiting for the start of the tournament. Many lounged in their boats, impatient to begin. Parking space for boats was at a premium, but somehow all 37 boats found a space at or near the docks.

Lightning flickered intermittently far to the west and north as the previous night's thunderstorms drifted slowly away, causing those outside to constantly check the light, broken clouds overhead.

Finally, at 6:28 a.m., Dell Abernethy, sponsor of the tournament, mounted the sun-deck overlooking the river and announced safe light and the start of the tournament. His fog horn voice, distinctly heard a half mile distant, probably caused residents of Sanford to mutter uneasily in their sleep. He announced the check-in time and close of the tournament as 2 p.m. sharp, and requested boats to maintain idle speed in the vicinity of the camp.

The reason for Abernethy's loud voice became obvious in the ensuing bedlam as 37 outboards of varying sizes were started and the boats idled into the river. The skill and discipline of the boat operators was impressive as they slowly maneuvered in the congested area. As each contestant's number was called, the boat idled past the dock with all wells open for inspection, after which they were free to commence the contest.

Abernethy explained later that this method of inspecting the boats and starting them one at a time kept a reasonable distance between each boat on the river, and was far safer than shotgun starts, where all boats are released simultaneously.

As the final boat roared away, an astonishing quiet descended upon the area, broken occasionally by the arrival of non-tournament fishermen, and the normal early morning sounds of the neighborhood.

Until afternoon, the tournament fishermen would be scattered many miles up and down the river, each at his own secret "honey hole," where big fish lurked, and success was only a cast away.

By mid-morning a fresh breeze from the southwest created small waves on the open water, and made electric trolling motors work overtime keeping boats positioned for bait casting. The wind, increasing temperatures, and scattered thundershowers in the area caused some of the less successful fishermen to quit the tournament, and by 1 p.m. five boats had checked out.

At 1:45 p.m. a dozen contestants were in sight of the fish camp, the anglers busily making one last cast, hoping that a miracle would let them hook the big fish of the day. Just before 2 p.m., boats were converging on the camp from up and down the river, but all were in by the time the close of the tournament was announced.

As numbers were called, fish were brought up from each boat in water filled plastic bags for weighing, after which the live fish were let into a holding tank. There, the aerated and chemically treated water helped the wounded fish to recover prior to being released back into the river.

When the final tabulation was completed, 107 bass over 12 inches long had been checked in, with a total weight of 192 pounds. Only 27 of these fish were dead, for which contestants were fined two ounces per dead fish.

Tony Miller of Sanford won the Big Bass Trophy and $25 prize money for his seven pound five and three-quarter ounce bass, but the high stakes for big bass was in a separate pool which Miller did not enter. This pool of $290 was won by Rick Post of Sanford for his six pound four and three quarter ounce fish.

Overall First Place Winner was the team of Jon Better and Greg Day, which won $303 for their 10 bass weighing 24 pounds seven ounces. Second Place was taken by Bob Stonerater and Mark Smith for their 8 bass with a total weight of 23 pounds seven and one-half ounces, and prize money of $227.25. The Third Place trophy and $151.50 went to the team of Joe Delord and Bob Cumble who weighed in 10 fish with a total weight of 20 pounds five and one-half ounces. Don Gordon and Earl Moore came in Fourth with eight fish weighing 15 pounds 14 ounces, but worth $75.75 in prize money.

Twenty one contestants did not weigh in because they caught no fish, or so few fish that they knew they had no chance of placing in the prize money. This means that 16 boats of the 37 entries caught the 107 fish that were checked in, an average of 6.7 fish per boat. Only nine of the live fish placed in the tank died, which is testimony to the excellent care and handling the fish received since being caught more than eight hours earlier.

This entire tournament was marked by courtesy, safety, discipline, and good sportsmanship — a tribute to all personnel of the Osteen Bridge Fish Camp, and to the 74 fishermen who participated. A hearty "Well Done!" to each of them.

Center fielder Chris Finley singled to right center to score both runs. At the right, Bray has a smile for his teammates after singling to lead off the fifth inning. He eventually scored what proved to be the winning run in West University's 4-3 victory. Charles Gasper is the not-so-happy first baseman.

Texas, Allgood Scratch Out 4-3 Victory Over S. Carolina

EUSTIS — The key to scoring runs is getting a lot of runners on base. Anderson, S.C., found the key here Tuesday but it did not unlock the door.

Anderson had 14 baserunners in its game against West University, Texas, but 11 of them were stranded as West University claimed a narrow 4-3 victory in the opening game of the Little League Junior All-Stars Southern Regional tournament.

West University will play host Eustis tonight at 5:30 while Anderson plays a loser's bracket game at 8 p.m. against the loser of this morning's game at 10 between Altamonte and Lake Charles, La.

"We left too many men on base (11)," Anderson coach Larry Tallent said. "We've got a long road to go now."

"Yeah," agreed Anderson assistant Terry Honeycutt. "We might be going to Disney World on Thursday (if we lose another one)."

West University's Alex Allgood tossed a four-hitter but had control problems, walking 10, in going the distance for the pitching victory. Kenny Adams, who had three of the four hits off Allgood, took the loss for Anderson.

Anderson got on the board first with a run in the top of the first inning. Double Sims led off with a walk and went to second on Preston Jones' groundout. Adams followed with a RBI single to right center to give Anderson a 1-0 lead.

West University threatened in the bottom of the first as Collin Bray walked to lead off and Chris Finley followed with a single up the middle. Bray then stole third and, one out later, Finley stole second. The runners were stranded, though, as Adams struck out Charlie Gasper and got Kevin Jernigan to pop out to end the inning.

Anderson's offensive woes began in the top of the second. With two outs, Allgood walked Kory Roberts, Gordon Patterson and Sims to load the bases. Allgood got out of the inning though as he struck out Jones, leaving the bases loaded.

A three-run, two-out rally in the bottom of the second gave West University a 3-1 lead, and the Texas champs never lost the lead after that. David Cromack beat out an infield single and Justin Mock deposited a single into right field to put runners on first and third. Mock then stole second and Bray followed with a single to left center to chase home Cromack and tie the game at 1-1. Finley followed Bray with a two-run single to right center to break the tie.

After a scoreless third inning, Anderson pulled to within one, 3-2, with a run in the top of the fourth. John Clamp led off by tapping an easy out to Allgood. But Allgood threw wildly to first, allowing Clamp to go all the way to second. Scott Tallent then drew a walk and Roberts dropped down a sacrifice bunt to move the runners to second and third. Patterson followed with an RBI groundout to second to chase home Clamp. With two outs, Sims drew a walk and stole second to put runners on second and third. But, both runners were stranded as Adams grounded out to end the inning. By the end of the fourth, Anderson had left six runners on base.

After Anderson left two more runners on base in the fifth, West University regained a two-run lead with a run in the bottom of the frame. Bray led off with a single to left and Finley drew a walk. Mark Walte then ripped a single up the middle to load the bases and Charlie Gasper followed with a RBI single to right to give West University a 4-2 lead. With one out, and the bases still loaded, Allgood lifted a fly to center field that was deep enough to score a run. However, Finley left third base before the center fielder caught the ball. Anderson then appealed and Finley was called out, erasing a run for West University.

Anderson came back in the top of the sixth with a run to move to within one again, 4-3. Sims, who walked for the fourth straight time, scored on a RBI single off the bat of Adams.

Adams came back to set West University down in order in the bottom of the sixth, giving Anderson one last chance to tie or go ahead. Garrison drew a walk to lead off, but Clamp went down swinging on a nice Allgood curve. Tallent then grounded out to Allgood, but Garrison moved into scoring position with two outs. Roberts couldn't produce though as he grounded back to the mound to end the game.

"We feel like this was the biggest game for us," West University manager Lee Howell said. "If we can get to Thursday unbeaten, we'll be in really good shape."

West University has four pitchers to decide from for the game against Eustis while Anderson will go with Clamp against the Altamonte-Lake Charles, La. winner.

Tournament Tidbits — Altamonte manager Frank Messina said he would go with either Greg Ebbert or Jeff Hagen on the mound against Lake Charles, La. A victory would send Altamonte into a winner's bracket game Thursday night at 8 against the Eustis-West University winner. A loss would send Altamonte into the loser's bracket for a 8 p.m. game tonight against Anderson, S.C.

Burgess Earns All-Star Berth For Zone Meet

Chuck Burgess, a junior at Seminole High School, has been selected to the Florida All-Stars swimming team which will compete in the Southeast Zone Meet this weekend at Fort Pierce.

Burgess, 16, competed in the Florida State Junior Olympics for Winter Park's Blue Dolphins swim team and placed in eight events. He took a fourth in the 200 fly, a fifth in the 1500 freestyle, a fifth in the 200 freestyle and also helped the 200 freestyle relay team to a Junior Olympic record. He was joined by Winter Park's Craig Harris and Joe Auer along with Oviedo's Andy Gill.

The meet will begin Friday morning and continue through Sunday at Indian River Community College at Fort Pierce.

Chuck Burgess works on his backstroke in preparation for this weekend's Southern Zone Meet.

Williams: Move Will Revive Passing

Pro Football

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Quarterback Doug Williams says his move from the Tampa Bay Buccaneers to the newly formed Oklahoma Outlaws of the U.S. Football League will give him a chance to revive his passing game.

Williams was on hand in Tulsa Tuesday when Outlaws owner Bill Tatham Jr. and general manager Sid Gillman announced the Bucs' starting quarterback had signed a five-year contract with the Tulsa-based USFL team.

"I came out of college throwing a football," said Williams, a 28-year-old Grambling University product who joined the Buccaneers in 1978.

He called Tampa a "more conservative" team that would "run first and throw second."

"Here I'll get the opportunity to throw a football," Williams said. "And we'll run every now and then."

Gillman, who said he looks forward to adding Williams to the Outlaws' passing program, said the quarterback is "as good as he looks."

"He's everything you want in a quarterback," Gillman said.

Tatham, who along with his father Bill Tatham Sr. signed

Williams during a dinner meeting Monday night, said the acquisition was another step toward the Outlaws' goal.

"Oklahoma deserves professional football," Tatham said. "We felt the support was out there as long as we put together an organization and a team that deserved the support."

"I think we've acquired the best quarterback in professional football," he said.

Williams, who spent five years at Tampa Bay, said he as "no hard feelings" toward the team, although the Bucs met his request for $875,000 a year with an offer of $400,000.

Terms of his Outlaws contract were not disclosed but Williams said the USFL team owners beat Tampa Bay's offer. He also is said to have received a $250,000 bonus for signing with the Outlaws.

Tampa Bay Coach John McKay said Tuesday he was not surprised Williams went to the USFL.

"Doug has made his decision and based on the conversations we've had with him it does not surprise me," McKay said. "We appreciate the five years of hard work he has given us and wish him health and happiness in the future."

In other training camp news: The prodigal son has returned home, while one of his siblings has gone astray.

Doug Williams is gone and the Bucs will suffer. See Sam Cook's column on 10A.

New England Patriots All-Pro guard John Hannah ended his brief retirement and said he'd be returning to the team this week with a new contract.

Hannah, who had quit football after feuding with coach Ron Meyer, said he'd report to the team's Smithfield, R.I., training site on Thursday. The 6-foot-3, 282-pound former Alabama star though is far from being in shape.

"Anybody who can see my fat gut knows that," he said.

Williams Opts For Greener Tumbleweeds — Bucs Will Suffer

Doug Williams has taken his gunslingers' aim to the USFL's Oklahoma Outlaws — which may be enough reason for the Tampa Bay defense to get out of Dodge.

If you fellas on the Bucs' strongest asset thought you were overworked the past few years, just wait until you see the short rest periods you get with Jerry Golsteyn or Jack Thompson at the controls.

The Tampa Bay offense for the last five years has been Doug Williams. When the Bucs refused to meet Doug's $600,000 per year demand, Williams checked out some greener pastures. Oklahoma's tumbleweeds looked greener and Williams signed a multi-year deal with the Outlaws.

Tampa does not have a quality running back. They are getting by on a guy who can catch (James Wilder) and several speedy (James Owens) and suspect midjets (Michael Morton and Melvin Carver). The receivers are decent. But the best of the group — tight end Jimmie Giles — is not in camp. Kevin House is excellent, but Gordon Jones, Theo Bell and Gerald Carter are just marginal.

So when you don't have a running attack and your only avenue of moving the ball is through the air, why do you not sign your most important offensive weapon?

Money? Maybe, but it's doubtful that Tampa owner Hugh Culverhouse has any shortage of cash. Tampa has been very successful since its inception. Is Williams worth $600,000? Why not? When you take into account the other salaries of quarterbacks in the league, Williams was grossly underpaid ($125,000) and taken advantage of the past five years.

Williams is the player Buc fans come to see. He's exciting. He's also erratic. But he's getting better. He has improved every year. Last year, his touchdowns were down (nine), but his completion percentage was up to .53.4 — a figure many experts felt was unattainable after Doug lingered in the .40s most of his career. And he is only 28-years-old, still four years away from the prime of most quarterbacks.

Doug Williams was exciting. There was nothing to beat the drama of him bringing the Bucs down the field in the closing minutes to win a game. Or, when he used to crank up his powerful arm and hit House going fullspeed down the sideline or scramble free and hit Giles in the end zone.

Williams also did the intangible things. He was a leader and a spokesman. When the Bucs suffered a tough loss and Billy Capece or Larry Swider went into hiding, Williams was always there — sitting in his cubicle and waiting for the barrage of newsmen. A team needs a player like that to take the brunt. LeeRoy Selmon does the same for the defense.

And Williams played hurt — many times. Once, with a broken jaw. Golsteyn, as evidenced with his past teams, does not have the durability of a Williams. Thompson is an unknown commodity, who's biggest claim to fame is his nickname ("The Throwin' Samoan") and the fact he played behind someone good at Cincinnati (Ken Anderson). He's certainly not a Doug Williams.

Doug Williams, of course, is a black quarterback. This never set well with some people. It got to them that he could lead a team and be successful (two division championships in the past three years).

Well, those who didn't like Doug, for whatever reason, are happy now. Williams is gone and Golsteyn is the sentimental favorite to beat out Thompson for the top job. Golsteyn rallied the Bucs to 20 fourth-quarter points and a three-point win over New Orleans last Saturday. Thompson hit a lot of passes but didn't put any points on the board during his half of action.

It's going to be a long year for the Bucs. I don't see how they can win more than five games without Doug Williams. Doug Williams was — and still is the Bucs' offense — even though he'll be the main gunslinger for the Oklahoma Outlaws next summer.

Doug Williams hurries to unload a pass against the Washington Redskins.

Javelin's Best Meet Today

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI) — American world record-holder Tom Petranoff, Olympic champion Dainis Kula and his Soviet compatriot Helo Puuste were to meet today in the qualifying round of the men's javelin throw in the World Track and Field Championships.

Not many Finn fans were expected to watch today's steepchase final very attentively since their love of middle-distance running is matched only by their craze for the javelin, an event in which they have set 24 world records and won 15 Olympic medals including five golds.

As in the middle-distance division, there are no Finns currently in the same class as former Olympic greats Pauli Nevala, Jorma Kinnunen and Hannu Siitonen, who won Finland's last Olympic medal when he secured the silver at Montreal in 1976.

In the absence of top Finn Pentti Siinisaari, who is out injured, the hosts were represented by Arto Harkonen, Jorma Markus, Esa Urtainen and Almo Aho, all capable of world-class throws on their day.

Finland currently owns the women's world javelin record through Tina Lillak earlier this year.

Melbourne Jai-Alai Early

Wilson Takes Out Troubles On Brewers

United Press International

Willie Wilson proved Tuesday night he can outrun the baseball if not the headlines.

Before Wilson got to Royals Stadium, the American League's defending batting champion found himself named in published reports claiming he and other Kansas City players are targets of an ongoing FBI investigation into the alleged sale and usage of cocaine in eastern Kansas.

The Royals' left outfielder refused to comment on the newspaper reports and instead took his frustration out on the Milwaukee Brewers. Wilson knocked in two runs, scored twice and lashed four hits, including his 12th career inside-the-park homer, to help Bud Black to an 8-2 romp.

Pat Sheridan also knocked in two runs and Onix Concepcion scored twice to give Kansas City its sixth victory in its last eight games and boost Black's record to 6-4.

"I don't even want to talk about the balgame," said Wilson, who went into the trainer's room twice after the game to avoid reporters.

"Willie getting on all the time is the catalyst," said Kansas City Manager Dick Howser. "Everytime I looked up, he was on base. The one time I looked up and he wasn't on the bases, he was circling them."

Wilson led off the game with a double, took third on a fly and gave the Royals a 1-0 lead on a groundout by George Brett. Kansas City jumped on Don Sutton, 7-9, for three more runs in the second. Willie Aikens led off with a single, took third on a double by Amos Otis and scored on a groundout by Frank White. Concepcion then singled home Otis, stole second and scored on Wilson's single.

Sheridan's bases-loaded single gave the Royals a 6-1 lead in the fourth and Kansas City scored twice more in the seventh on Wilson's homer, a double by Sheridan and a single by Hal McRae. Wilson blooped a fly that landed in front of left fielder Ben Oglivie and bounced over his head to the corner as Wilson circled the bases and scored standing up. Of Wilson's 15 career homers, 12 didn't leave the park.

"There are always distractions," said Howser of the FBI probe. "Deaths, your kids are sick ... It's always something. But regardless of what happens, you get here and you get it done."

Blue Jays 6, Yankees 0

At New York, Dave Stieb fired a three-hitter for his first victory since July 10 and Cliff Johnson keyed a three-run first inning with his 19th homer as Toronto snuffed a six-game losing streak. Stieb, 12-10, had lost six of his previous seven decisions after a 10-4 start, but was nearly flawless against a New York team that had scored 49 runs on 67 hits in its last five games.

Indians 4, Orioles 3

At Baltimore, Ron Hassey capped a two-run sixth inning with a sacrifice fly to lift the Indians to their third straight triumph and hand the Orioles their fourth consecutive setback: Rookie Neal Heaton, 6-4, limited the Orioles to seven hits and struck out six to outduel Scott McGregor, 14-5.

White Sox 6, Tigers 5

At Detroit, Rudy Law walked on four straight pitches with the bases loaded and two out in the top of the eighth inning to cap Chicago's comeback from an early 4-0 deficit. It was the fourth victory in the last five games for the White Sox while Detroit lost for the sixth time in its last nine games.

Red Sox 6, Rangers 4

At Boston, Tony Armas hit his league-leading 24th homer and John Tudor, 10-7, pitched his sixth complete game. With Jim Rice on base and none out in the fifth, Armas hit a 2-1 pitch from loser Rick Honeycutt, 14-7, over the left-field screen to give the Red Sox a 6-0 lead.

Angels 6, Twins 2

At Anaheim, Calif., Brian Downing, Bobby Grich and Bob Boone each slammed two-run homers to spark the Angels. Rookie Rickie Steier received credit for the win in just his second start and Bruce Kison pitched the last three innings for his second save. Rod Carew beat out an infield roller in the fifth inning for the 2,600th hit of his 17-year career.

A's 7, Mariners 6

triumph. Murphy's 11th homer of the year came off Bob Stoddard, 6-11, and followed a walk to Mike Heath. The victory went to Tom Underwood, 8-5, who pitched three innings. Dave Beard held the Mariners scoreless over the last 1-2-3 innings for his eighth save.

United Press International

Ron Cey had an RBI double in a three-run first inning and a single in a two-run second Tuesday to carry the Chicago Cubs to a 5-3 victory over St. Louis for the Cardinals' eighth straight loss.

Chuck Rainey, 12-8, scattered seven hits in snapping the Cubs' three-game losing streak and giving Chicago its sixth straight victory over the Cardinals. He struck out five and walked two before being removed with one out in the ninth following a two-run homer by Willie McGee. Reliever Lee Smith struck out last two batters for his 18th save.

Ryne Sandberg led off the first with a single off Bob Forsch, 7-10, and went to second on Gary Woods' single. One out later, Cey doubled to left to score Sandberg with Woods coming home when left fielder Lonnie Smith mishandled the ball. Keith Moreland drew a two-out walk and Jody Davis singled in Cey.

In the second, Sandberg lined a one-out double and one out later scored on Bill Buckner's double to center. Cey followed with a single to center to bring in Buckner.

The Cardinals scored a run in the sixth when pinch hitter Steve Braun led off with a single to left and advanced to second on a single by Lonnie Smith. Ken Oberkell forced Smith at second with Braun taking third. Rainey threw a wild pitch to score Braun.

The Cardinals, who matched their longest losing streak this season, added two runs in the ninth when George Hendrick led off with a double and one out later McGee homered to left.

At Montreal, Gary Carter and Tim Wallach knocked in two runs apiece and Charlie Lea went the distance for the fifth time this season to lead the Expos and snap the Mets' four-game winning streak. Lea, 9-8, allowed 11 hits, walked two and struck out seven.

At Atlanta, Bob Horner and Bob Watson hit back-to-back homers in the second inning and knuckleballer Phil Niekro, 8-6, allowed only four hits in seven innings to lead the Braves. Darrell Evans hit his 22nd homer of the year for the Giants. The victory increased the Braves lead over the Dodgers to 6 1/2 games.

At Philadelphia, Dave Parker cracked a two-run homer with one out in the eighth inning to lift the Pirates. Al Holland 6-1, lost a game in relief for the first time since Sept. 17, 1981 — a span covering 95 appearances. Kent Tekulve, 6-2, was the winner.

At Cincinnati, Paul Householder singled with one out in the bottom of the ninth to score Dave Concepcion from second base and lift the Reds. With one out, Concepcion doubled off reliever Steve Howe, 4-6, and Householder followed with a sharp single to left to make a winner of Mario Soto, 13-9.

At Houston, Tim Lollar and Sid Monge combined on a six-hitter and Tony Gwynn singled home the winning run to lead the Padres. Lollar, 5-10, pitched 6-2-3 innings, allowing two runs and five hits.

Cooks Of The Week

Youth Deputies Partners In Culinary Arts Venture

By Lou Childers
Herald Correspondent

David Whitacre and David Childers have a lot more in common than first names. They both live in Geneva. Both are seniors at Oviedo High School this year. They are very active in the Seminole County Sheriff's Department Youth Deputy program. And, they both love to cook.

Whitacre and Childers were lab partners in a specialized foods class last year in school. Cinnamon Rolls were the one specialty they made most often at school. At home they had spare time. In the kitchen. Sheepsheadly, both young men admit their teacher finally forbid them to make any more cinnamon rolls toward the end of the year. "I guess she just had enough of seeing us make — and eat — those rolls," says one David.

The rolls begin with a basic yeast dough that rises in about 30 minutes, is punched down and rolled out to 1/4-inch thickness. Childers says, "My contribution would always be making the dough while the other David mixed the cinnamon and sugar and melted the butter for the filling."

David Whitacre's next favorite food is chocolate mousse. The creamy frozen confection calls for one pint of heavy cream, whipped, which Whitacre says, "makes it almost sinfully rich."

The two Davids say Chicken Spaghetti gets the grade of A-plus in the main course category. They're stuck on it. Says David Whitacre, "The other night I consumed three HUGE servings of chicken spaghetti — one after the other!" The chicken version is a pleasant change to the Italian-sauced spaghetti that is most usual.

For David Childers, cooking is nothing new for the men in his family. His grandfather before him loved to cook, and an uncle owned and operated a dairy ice restaurant in Ohio. One recipe from David's heritage, Bread Cakes, goes back to the days of his great, great grandmother. Much like pancakes, the bread cakes are a grand way to use up day-old bread. (David likes these so well he makes them even when he doesn't have day-old bread by using fresh bread instead.)

Whether it is the simplicity of Childers' bread cakes or the extravagance of Whitacre's chocolate mousse, you can be sure between the two of them, they lick the platter clean.

CHOCOLATE MOUSSE

Cook over low heat or in a double boiler stirring frequently: 1 cup milk, 2 oz. unsweetened chocolate, 3/4 cup sugar and 1 teaspoon gelatin. Beat until smooth and well-blended. Chill until thick. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat until light. Fold in 1 pint heavy cream, whipped. Freeze in an ice cube tray with the rack removed; cover with waxed paper. If mousse is frozen harder than you like, remove and let stand a few minutes before serving.

CHICKEN SPAGHETTI

1 large broiler-fryer, whole
3 to 4 quarts water
1 teaspoon salt
1 bay leaf
1 large onion, chopped
1 4-oz. jar chopped pimiento
1 pound spaghetti

2 cans cream of mushroom soup
2 cans evaporated milk
2 sticks margarine
2 cups grated sharp cheese

Cook chicken in 3 to 4 quarts water adding 1 teaspoon salt and the bay leaf and chopped onion. When poultry is tender, remove from water and allow to cool, then bone chicken. Remove bay leaf from stock. Bring stock to boil and cook spaghetti 10 to 12 minutes. Stir in mushroom soup, evaporated milk, margarine and cheese, stirring until smooth. Cook a few minutes over low heat until bubbly. Add chicken chunks and pimiento. May be served immediately, or if you prefer, bake about 30 minutes at 350 degrees.

CINNAMON ROLLS

1 package yeast
1/2 cup warm water
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup shortening
1/2 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup milk, scalded
1 egg
3 to 3 1/2 cups all purpose flour

Scald milk; add sugar, shortening and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Crumble or sprinkle yeast into warm water in large mixing bowl, stirring to dissolve. Add cooled milk mixture and egg to yeast. Add one-third of the flour and beat until smooth. Add remaining flour gradually to make a soft dough that leaves the sides of the bowl. Place dough onto floured board and knead about 5 minutes, or until dough leaves no impression when pressed with fingers. Place dough into greased bowl and grease surface. Cover with plastic wrap and let rise about 30 minutes. Punch down and roll out on a floured surface to 1/4-inch thickness in the shape of large circle. Melt 1 stick margarine and pour over the surface of the dough. Combine 1 cup sugar 1 or 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1/4 cup raisins and 1/4 cup chopped nuts. Sprinkle cinnamon/sugar mixture evenly over margarine. At one edge of circle begin to tightly roll dough. Slice cinnamon rolls 1-inch thick and place on greased cookie sheet. Bake in 400 degree oven 12 to 15 minutes. With spatula remove rolls to wire cooling rack. Allow rolls to cool 15 to 20 minutes and spread with a thin glaze.

Glaze: 3 or 4 drops almond flavoring, 1 cup confectioners sugar, 2 teaspoons milk. Mix sugar, milk and flavoring until smooth. If necessary, add a few drops of milk at a time to get glaze to desired consistency.

BREAD CAKES

8 to 10 pieces day-old bread
1 cup milk, scalded
1 cup all purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons bacon drippings (oil may be substituted)
1 egg
In a large mixing bowl break bread into large pieces. Pour scalding milk over bread and let stand 5 minutes. Add remaining ingredients in order and mix well. Drop by tablespoons onto hot griddle and fry as for pancakes. Serve with butter and hot maple syrup.

AIDS Not 'Caught' Through Casual Contact

DEAR ABBY: I live in Miami, and I'm worried sick about this new AIDS epidemic that is being spread by gays and Haitians. My hairdresser is a homosexual. Could I catch AIDS from him? I'm not saying he has it, but could he be a carrier without knowing it?

My landlady told me that her daughter is a nurse, and she has refused nursing duty with AIDS patients because AIDS is so contagious. Please tell me and the rest of your readers how we can protect ourselves against this terrible disease. I understand there is no cure for it.

MRS. F.N.M.

IN MIAMI, FLA.

DEAR MRS. F.N.M.: All available medical evidence indicates that AIDS is transmitted sexually, or through the exchange of "bodily liquids" — blood or semen. There is no danger of "catching" AIDS through casual contact with homosexuals or Haitians.

There is no evidence that AIDS is caught from "carriers." Cases of AIDS have been reported among heterosexuals, women and infants. However, in almost all cases, the victims either had intimate sexual relations with, or were the offspring of, AIDS patients.

And it is true that to date there is no known cure for AIDS.

The above information has been confirmed by The Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: For years you have used a term in your column that has bothered me.

Re the widow who found a key to a "safety-deposit box." "Safety" is a noun. "Safe" is an adjective. Nouns do not modify nouns. Adjectives do. Therefore, there are no "safety-deposit boxes," only "safe-deposit boxes."

AN OLD RETIRED BANKER IN DALLAS

DEAR BANKER: Far be it from me to argue with an old retired banker in Dallas, but give me a break. Mr. Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary says: "safe-deposit box: a box (as in the vault of a bank) for safe storage of valuables — called also safety-deposit box."

DEAR ABBY: A dear friend of mine committed adultery. Her husband suspected, but said nothing. Then a "Good Samaritan" filled him in on all the facts. Now the husband feels compelled to divorce his wife for the sake of his pride because his whole family knows about it.

If you were counseling them, what would your advice be? They have been happily married for 12 years.

HURTING FOR MY FRIEND

DEAR HURTING: He should forgive and forget. And she should avoid further temptation. In my book, the biggest villain in the piece is the "friend" who filled the husband in.

DEAR ABBY: This concerns the lady who was diagnosed as having herpes, then later learned that she did not have herpes — she was allergic to the colored, scented toilet paper she had been using for years!

I am a 53-year-old male. Twelve years ago my wife brought home a new brand of toilet paper that "smelled pretty." Soon, I began experiencing great irritation in the rectal area. At the same time our young daughter also developed an inflammation in the genital area. Luckily we put two and two together and threw out all the "pretty smelling" toilet paper, and we've had no problems since.

I suspect there are hundreds, maybe thousands, of readers who will benefit from the warning in your column. Thank you.

Fresh Vegetables

Take Advantage Of In-Season Produce To Plan Meals

Roadside produce stands and home gardens are full of fresh vegetables just ripe for the picking.

Take advantage of this in-season, inexpensive produce in your favorite dishes...perhaps one like Ratatouille Casserole. This recipe calls for a combination of much of the best the season has to offer — eggplant, tomatoes, zucchini and complements them with that year-round favorite, wheat germ.

This dish not only aims for a variety of colors and flavors but for good nutrition as well. Kretschmer Wheat Germ is one of the most convenient ways to add vitamins and minerals naturally — for goodness sake. It can be used as a baking ingredient, garnish or add-on to cereal, fruit or yogurt. Vacuum-packed regular wheat germ has the added benefit of being fresh from the jar and has a wonderful nutty flavor because it's toasted.

Wheat Germ Ratatouille Casserole is a perfect opportunity to fall in love with wheat germ for the first time, or for long-time fans to utilize its crunchily appeal in yet another novel way.

The other recipes for vegetables are a potpourri of good things to eat during the summer months.

WHEAT GERM RATATOUILLE CASSEROLE

4 slices bacon, diced
1/2 medium eggplant, cut into 1/2 inch cubes
1 medium onion, cut into wedges
1 medium zucchini, sliced
3/4 cup regular wheat germ
2 cups (8 oz.) Monterey Jack cheese, grated
2 medium tomatoes, sliced
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
1/4 cup water
1/2 to 1 teaspoon crushed oregano leaves
1/2 teaspoon crushed marjoram leaves
1/4 teaspoon crushed rosemary leaves
1/4 teaspoon salt

Fry bacon in large skillet until almost crisp. Add eggplant, onion and zucchini. Sauté until eggplant is tender, about ten minutes. Place half the vegetables in four individual casseroles (one and a half to two-cup size). Spoon wheat germ on vegetables. Sprinkle with half the cheese. Top with tomatoes and remaining vegetables. Combine tomato sauce, water and seasonings. Pour over vegetables. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake uncovered at 375° for 20 minutes until hot. Serves four.

For more recipes, order the new 64-page Kretschmer Wheat Germ recipe book. Send $1.25 (check or money order) to: "Something for Everyone," P.O. Box 302-A, Milwaukee, WI 53201.

MICROWAVED CORN ON THE COB

Remove husks and silk from corn. Butter corn lightly; wrap in heavy-duty plastic wrap or waxed paper. Microwave on HIGH according to the following times: 1 ear, 2 to 3 minutes; 2 ears, 4 to 5 minutes; 3 ears, 6 to 7 minutes; 4 ears, 8 to 9 minutes.

STIR-FRIED SQUASH MEDLEY

3 tablespoons peanut oil
3/4 pound zucchini, sliced
3/4 pound yellow squash, sliced
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 cup diced tomatoes
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons tomato paste
1 1/2 teaspoons salt

Pour oil around top of preheated wok, coating sides; allow to heat at medium high (325 deg.) for 2 minutes. Add squash, onion, and garlic; stir-fry 2 minutes. Add remaining ingredients; simmer 8 to 10 minutes or until vegetables are crisp-tender, stirring occasionally. Yield: about 6 servings.

ASPARAGUS IN LEMON BUTTER

1 pound young asparagus
1/4 cup water
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3/4 teaspoon lemon juice

Wash asparagus; snap off tough ends. Remove scales with knife or vegetable peeler. Arrange whole spears in an 8-inch square dish with largest spears to outside of dish. Add water, and cover with heavy-duty plastic wrap. Microwave at HIGH for 5 to 7 minutes. Let stand, covered, while preparing lemon butter.

Place butter in a 1-cup glass measure. Melt at HIGH for 30 to 45 seconds. Stir in lemon juice. Drain excess liquid from asparagus, if desired. Drizzle lemon butter over asparagus. Yield: 4 servings.

BACON-TOPPED GREEN BEANS

1 pound fresh green beans
3 slices bacon, coarsely chopped
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup water
1/2 teaspoon salt

Remove strings from beans; cut beans into 1- to 1 1/2-inch pieces. Set aside.

Sprinkle bacon into a 2-quart casserole; cover with paper toweling. Microwave at HIGH for 2 minutes; stir. Microwave an additional 1 to 2 minutes or until done. Remove bacon and set aside, reserving drippings in casserole.

Add beans, onion, and water to drippings; stir well. Cover with heavy-duty plastic wrap. Microwave at HIGH for 5 minutes; stir well. Cover and microwave at HIGH for 9 to 12 minutes or until beans are the desired tenderness. Stir in salt, and sprinkle with cooked bacon. Yield: about 4 servings.

CARROT-LIMA-SQUASH MEDLEY

1/2 cup sugar
1 tablespoon plus 1 teaspoon cornstarch
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon dillweed
1 1/2 cups orange juice
1 pound carrots, peeled and diagonally sliced (about 3 cups)

2 cups fresh lima beans
1 medium zucchini, sliced
1 medium yellow squash, sliced

Combine sugar, cornstarch, salt, and dillweed in a small saucepan; mix well. Stir in orange juice. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and bubbly. Reduce heat to low to keep sauce warm.

Steam carrots 10 minutes; add lima and squash. Steam 10 to 15 minutes or until tender. Serve sauce over vegetables. Yield: 10 to 12 servings.

OVEN-FRIED GREEN TOMATOES

1/2 cup cornmeal
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 egg

1 tablespoon water
3 medium-size green tomatoes, cut into 1/4-inch slices
Vegetable cooking spray

Combine cornmeal, salt, and pepper; set aside. Combine egg and water; beat well. Dip tomatoes in egg mixture; dredge in cornmeal mixture. Lightly coat a 15-by-10-by-1-inch baking pan with cooking spray. Place tomatoes in a single layer in pan. Bake at 450 deg. for 30 to 40 minutes or until golden brown, turning once. Yield: 6 servings (about 64 calories per serving).

Note: Yellow squash may be substituted for tomatoes.

SOUTHERN-STYLE COLLARDS

About 3/4 pound ham hocks

1 quart water
1 bunch (about 5 pounds) collard greens
1 to 1 1/2 teaspoons salt

Wash ham hocks, and place in a Dutch oven. Add water, and bring to a boil. Reduce heat; simmer, uncovered, 30 to 45 minutes or until meat is tender. Remove ham hocks and discard, or reserve any meat for use in other recipes. Strain the broth, and chill until fat rises to the surface and hardens. Remove the fat and discard.

Check leaves of collards carefully; remove pulpy stems and discolored spots on leaves. Wash leaves thoroughly; drain well and chop. Place collards, broth, and salt in a large Dutch oven; bring to a boil. Reduce heat; cover and simmer about 30 to 45 minutes or until collards are tender. Yield: 10 servings (about 60 calories per 1-cup serving).

Microwave Magic

Cream Soups Fill The Bill, Beat The Heat

Soup and sandwich or soup and salad is another way of "beating the heat" by preparing lunch or supper quickly. The long cooking time usually needed for preparation of a soup can be shortened to 20-30 minutes or much less (5-10) minutes for a cream soup.

The lowest power setting (30%) simmer will microwave the food slowly. This is achieved by the magnetron turning on and off on a 30 second cycle.

If your microwave does not have a 30% power setting, a 50% setting can be used. On older models which have only two settings (High and Low), the low would be the setting to use.

Two cream soups which can be prepared in the microwave are Cream of Mushroom and Cream of Spinach. Either, when accompanied by a sandwich or salad that contains a protein food, will help meet daily nutritional requirements.

CREAM OF MUSHROOM SOUP

- 1 small onion, chopped fine
- 1/4 cup butter
- 1/4 cup flour
- 8 oz. mushrooms, chopped fine
- 1/2 cup cream
- 1 quart chicken broth

Midge Mycoff

Home Economist
Seminole Community College

- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon white pepper
- dash of nutmeg

Microwave butter and onion on 100% power for 2 minutes. Add the flour and microwave at 100% power for 1 minute. Add the mushrooms and chicken stock. Microwave at 100% power for 5 minutes. Add the spices, reduce power to 30% (simmer) and microwave for 5 minutes. Just before serving, add cream and finely chopped parsley.

Other vegetables make an excellent base for cream soups. Cream of Broccoli is found on the menu of many gourmet restaurants. Cream of Spinach Soup is a good way to use left over spinach, fresh or frozen. It is a cool weather green and is expensive if purchased fresh now, but the frozen offers a good product.

CREAM OF SPINACH SOUP

- 1 lb. of fresh spinach, or 1 10 oz. package of frozen spinach
- 1 clove of garlic
- 1 small onion, or 2 green onions
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups milk
- 1 cup heavy cream
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon white pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg

Chop fresh spinach, add 2 tablespoons water, cover, and microwave at 100% power for 3 minutes. Chop onion and garlic. Microwave with butter at 100% power for 1 minute. Stir flour into butter, garlic and onion mixture, add milk and cream. Microwave using 50% power for 10-15 minutes. Stir frequently as the sauce thickens. Add the chopped spinach and spices. Microwave at 100% power for 2 minutes.

A dash of cayenne may be added. Both of these cream soups are bland and cayenne or a similar spice helps to liven the flavor.

Piping hot bread, a delicious accompaniment to any meal, is so easy to prepare.

Ripe Olives Stud Tear-Apart Bread

This bread is so easy to make and so tasty it will soon become a regular item on your menu. Ideal for a quick and delicious accompaniment for spaghetti or pasta, Chunky Cheese 'n Olive Bread is perfect for today's busy cooks.

Use the frozen bread dough of your choice. Dip small pieces in butter and cheese; layer with ripe olives in a pie plate; let rise in a warm place, bake — and there you have it! Serve piping hot for best flavor and aroma.

CHUNKY CHEESE 'N OLIVE BREAD

- 1 1-pound loaf frozen bread dough
  - 1/2 cup melted butter
  - 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
  - 1 1/2 cups pitted ripe olives, cut in halves.
- Thaw frozen bread dough in refrigerator overnight. Pinch off pieces of dough about the size of an olive. Dip first into melted butter, then into grated Parmesan cheese. In an 8-inch pie plate, place alternate layers of dough balls with layers of halved ripe olives. Continue until all ingredients are used. Let rise in warm place until double in bulk. Bake in preheated 375° oven for 35-40 minutes.

Suggestion: Excellent served with spaghetti.

Vitamin C Has Various Sources

By Gaynor Maddox
Special To The Herald

Many benefits are attributed to vitamin C. Today renewed emphasis has been placed on its importance. It is found largely in fruits and vegetables. Generally speaking oranges are considered the prime source, along with other citrus fruits including grapefruit, tangerines, lemons and limes.

There are, however, people who cannot tolerate citrus fruit. For them, there are several other answers. These may approximate but never quite equal the vitamin C a person gets from citrus sources such as oranges.

Consider another source of vitamin C — strawberries. They are now sprouting out all over the country, particularly in California.

I began my love of strawberries at a Protestant church outing in a small town near Lake Erie, under the leafy elms. The ladies' auxiliary gave a strawberry supper.

There, for the first time, I met strawberry shortcake, the real strawberry shortcake, the all-American strawberry shortcake! It consisted of a baking powder biscuit made somewhat short by the addition of a little bit more butter than normal. The warm biscuit was split and gently buttered then mashed fresh strawberries were poured over the bottom half. The biscuit was then closed and more strawberries poured over the top. With this, as the ladies of the auxiliary demonstrated, was served heavy cream from an old-fashioned white pitcher. From that moment on I campaigned vigorously against what many people think is strawberry shortcake — plain cake, often stale, with a layer of strawberries on top and some non-dairy whipped cream.

Green peppers also carry a heavy charge of vitamin C. They, too, are plentiful now and offer many ways of serving.

Parsley is another source of vitamin C. Unfortunately many people think of it as only a decoration. Chopped fine, it can be sprinkled over many dishes. To keep it fresh put in glass jar after washing and shaking dry.

An idea for breakfast: strawberries served with cream, milk or plain along with a parsley omelet, dry toast and coffee.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Swimming, Sit-Ups For Trimming Waist

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know what the proper exercises are to reduce the stomach. I have a very bad knee and am not able to jog or run. Most times I use a cane for walking.

DEAR READER — I hope you are getting attention for your knee and know what the problem is.

Not being able to walk a lot or be active on your feet does make it a lot more difficult to exercise to lose weight. And if you can't control body fat you will accumulate fat inside the abdominal cavity. No matter how much you exercise you will not have a trim waist unless you get rid of the internal fat.

But you may be able to do other exercises besides walking and jogging. Water exercises are great to get your weight off bad knees and still use calories. Swimming is one of the best all-around exercises. Those who can't swim can still do exercises in water.

The exercises you need to do to strengthen your abdominal muscles do not involve walking or jogging. Upright exercises really do not affect your abdomen at all, other than in helping you lose weight by using calories. You need to do exercises that affect your posture and strengthen your abdominal muscles.

Sit-up exercises are very good for the upper abdomen. Do them with your knees bent. You can do some straight forward and in others you can bend and touch one knee with your forehead, then the other knee. Also you can lie on your back and consciously contract and relax your abdominal muscles.

The lower abdomen is helped with modified leg lifts. Don't do leg lifts with your knees straight. Instead bend your knees and bring them up toward your chest. Then straighten your knees while contracting your lower abdominal muscles and return your feet to the starting position. I have discussed in more detail the problem of the too large abdomen and what to do about it in The Health Letter 17-12. Winning the Battle of the Bulge, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — A friend of mine, 50 years old, and in the early stages of the menopause, is taking three Tums a day, one after each meal. She is taking them because of the calcium in them. Evidently she feels that this will prevent her from developing osteoporosis. What are your comments on this?

DEAR READER — Each Tum contains 500 milligrams of calcium carbonate, with a little peppermint oil for flavor. For comparison, one Os-Cal 500 tablet contains 1,250 milligrams of calcium carbonate and provides 500 milligrams of elemental calcium.

Your friend can expect to get 600 milligrams of calcium a day from her three tablets of Tums. While calcium carbonate is insoluble it is converted to soluble salts in the digestive system which facilitates calcium absorption.

She should know that she needs more than 600 milligrams of calcium a day and should be getting the rest of her calcium in her diet.

And she might improve the absorption of the calcium if she would take it with a glass of orange juice 30 minutes to one hour before eating.

from World Championship hands. Here is one from 1955 when England beat the United States. This hand shows one of our good hands. Lew Mathe, one of the greatest players of all time, was on lead against four hearts. He knew from the bidding that his partner would have some high cards. His hand was so bad that if his partner also was very weak, his British opponents would have certainly explored slam possibilities.

He decided to attack, and opened the king of clubs. After that lead the defense got two clubs, a club ruff and East's trump trick to beat the contract.

Would the British West have found the same lead? We'll never know because at the other table the American South elected to pass. North opened one club, East overcalled with a spade, and eventually the American South reached four hearts. With that bidding, West could not find any reason to lead that king of clubs.

P-Nutty Chicken Makes Picnic Packing Pleasing

How do you pack for a picnic? Many families have a trusty basket that's been in the family for years, while others use a cooler or an insulated bag. It's a good idea to keep a checklist inside the picnic basket of all your picnic essentials and store picnic supplies like paper plates, plastic serving utensils and unopened containers of peanuts, pickles, canned beverages and other popular picnic foods in a large cardboard box nearby. Then, when friends call with an invitation to the beach or nearby lake, a picnic basket can be assembled in minutes.

Whatever picnic packing equipment you choose, the food always seems better when eaten in the great outdoors. A favorite picnic food is crisp fried chicken, yet summer is the time when cooks like to be outdoors. The Georgia Peanut Commission suggests adding chopped peanuts to a seasoned coating mix as an easy alternative to frying chicken. The chicken is then oven baked, and a crisp tasty piece of chicken is the end result.

Popular picnic desserts are ones that are portable. Brownies are a favorite since they can be carried to the picnic in their baking pan, cut and then served. The following brownie recipe pairs two favorites together, peanut butter and chocolate, in a quick-to-fix dessert.

CRUNCHY P-NUTTY CHICKEN
1 (3-pound) chicken, cut up
1/4 cup water
1 envelope (2-ounces) seasoned coating mix
3/4 cup ground or very finely chopped peanuts
Moisten chicken with water. In a pie plate stir together coating mix and peanuts. Press chicken in a shallow baking pan. Bake in a 400°F. oven for 50 minutes or until chicken is tender. Serve warm or cold. Makes: 4 servings.

PEANUT BUTTER BROWNIES

1 package (1-pound, 7-ounces) brownie mix
1/4 cup crunchy peanut butter
Prepare brownie mix according to package instructions for chewy brownies. Just before turning into greased 9x9-inch pan, swirl in peanut butter. Bake in 305°F. oven for 45 minutes. (Do not overbake.) Proceed with remaining package instructions. Cool in pan. Cut into 16 pieces. Makes: 16 brownies.

BANANA SURPRISE MUFFINS

1 3/4 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon soda
1 egg, beaten
1/2 cup vegetable oil
1 cup mashed ripe banana

1/4 cup jelly or marmalade
Combine first 5 ingredients in a large bowl; make a well in center of mixture. Add egg, oil, and banana, stirring just until moistened. Spoon into greased muffin pans, filling one-third full. Spoon 1 teaspoon jelly in center of each muffin cup; spoon remaining batter over jelly, filling each cup two-third full. Bake at 400 deg. for 18 to 20 minutes or until done. Yield: 1 dozen.

SUMMER FRUIT COMPOTE

4 cups honeydew melon balls (about 1 large melon)
4 cups pineapple chunks (about 1 large pineapple)
2 pt. strawberries, cut into halves
3/4 cup maple flavored table syrup
3/4 cup white table wine or ginger ale
In 4-qt. bowl, combine fruit. In small bowl, combine syrup and wine; pour over fruit. Cover; refrigerate 2 hours or until chilled. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Tasty, Fluffy Desserts

Big, plump and juicy-ripe strawberries are at their best in flaky — just cooled — home baked shortcake. Served with frozen whipped topping with real cream, the picture pretty dessert tastes as luscious and fresh as it looks. Step-by-step directions from the Kraft Kitchens make shortcake baking easy...and last minute assembling of the dessert is a snap — with convenient frozen whipped topping. Add a creamy dollop of whipped topping to coffee — and swizzle with a cinnamon stick — for a special after dinner treat.

FLUFFY STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKES

2 cups flour
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 egg, beaten
3/4 cup milk
1/2 cup margarine, melted
2 pts. strawberries, halved
1 container (3 cups) whipped topping with real cream, thawed

Combine dry ingredients. Add combined egg, milk and margarine, mixing just until moistened. Drop 1/4 cup batter on to greased cookie sheet. Bake at 450°, 10 to 12 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from cookie sheet immediately; cool. Split.

For each serving cover bottom half of shortcake with strawberries and whipped topping. Top with second half of shortcake, additional strawberries and whipped topping.

DUTCH COFFEE
Hot coffee
Cinnamon sticks
Whipped topping with real cream, thawed

For each serving, place cinnamon stick in cup of coffee. Top with whipped topping.

LIME PARFAITS

1/2 cup sugar
1 cup milk
1/2 cup light corn syrup
2 egg yolks, beaten
1 cup half-and-half
1/2 cup lime juice
1 teaspoon grated lime rind
2 egg whites
1 pint fresh strawberries
1 cup whipping cream, whipped

Combine sugar, milk, corn syrup, and egg yolks in top of a double boiler; cook, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened (8 to 10 minutes). Remove from heat; cool. Stir half-and-half, lime juice, and lime rind into the custard mixture.

Beat egg whites (at room temperature) until stiff peaks form; gently fold into lime mixture. Spoon into an 8- or 9- inch square pan. Freeze until firm.

Thaw lime mixture slightly; break into large chunks. Place chunks in a chilled large bowl; beat at medium speed of an electric mixer until fluffy. Return to pan; freeze until firm.

Rinse and hull strawberries. Set aside 6 to 8 whole strawberries; slice the remaining berries.

Thaw lime mixture slightly. Spoon alternate layers of lime mixture, sliced strawberries, and whipped cream into chilled parfait glasses. Top with whipped cream; garnish with whole berries. Serve immediately. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Appetizing Low-Sodium Recipes In A Nutshell

If you're among the millions of Americans limiting sodium intake, there is an array of low-sodium seafood recipes that will satisfy even the most discriminating diner.

Certain fresh fruits and vegetables that are low in sodium, such as pineapple and green pepper, will enhance the flavor of a favorite fish variety. Unsalted nuts, add a unique taste and provide necessary fiber, vitamins and nutrients, while keeping down the sodium content of the dish.

Unsalted cashews, combined with cracker crumbs, Parmesan cheese, margarine and sherry make a crunchy nut stuffing for shrimp, topped with lemon sauce.

A cashew sauce made with unsalted cashews, pineapple and tomato paste enhances that fresh from the sea flavor of scrod.

A growing number of health-conscious Americans, particularly those on low-sodium diets, are finding it isn't necessary to sacrifice taste for low-sodium meals.

Chicken, for example, can be the basis for many delicious low-sodium entrees, when seasoned with spices and prepared with fresh vegetables. Unsalted nuts are also ideal flavor enhancers. They are high in protein, vitamins and minerals, and impart a special taste and texture to a variety of chicken dishes.

Nutty Baked Chicken, made with unsalted peanuts, oregano and garlic is quick and easy to prepare for casual family dinners or summer weekend picnics.

Special dinner guests will enjoy Nutty Stuffed Chicken breasts, made with unsalted mixed nuts, carrots, onions and low-fat mozzarella cheese, that fresh-from-the-sea flavor of scrod.

FILLET IN CASHEW SAUCE

3 tablespoons peanut oil
¼ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup chopped onion
1 (8-ounce) can pineapple tidbits in juice
2 tablespoons tomato paste
1 teaspoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons white vinegar
¼ cup dry white wine
1 pound scrod fillets
¾ cup dry roasted unsalted cashews

Heat 2 tablespoons peanut oil in saucepan over medium heat. Add pepper and onion; saute until tender. Stir in undrained pineapple and tomato paste. Mix cornstarch and vinegar until smooth; add to saucepan. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil. Reduce heat to low. Stir in white wine. Keep sauce warm.

Place scrod fillets in a greased baking dish; brush with remaining peanut oil. Bake at 425° for 10 to 12 minutes, or until easily flaked. Mix cashews into prepared sauce and serve with fillets. 4 servings.

paper. Cook on high (100% power) 2½ to 3½ minutes, stirring twice during cooking time, until mixture boils. Stir in wine; leave sauce covered and set aside.

Arrange scrod in a shallow microwave-proof baking dish; brush with remaining oil. Cover with wax paper and cook on high (100% power) 5 to 7 minutes, giving dish ¼ turn halfway through cooking time, or until fish flakes easily. Mix cashews into prepared sauce and serve with fillets.

Court Ruling May Mean Savings, Refunds For Natural Gas Customers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumers may save hundreds of millions of dollars on their natural gas bills and receive close to $1 billion in refunds under a court ruling throwing out a price-setting mechanism in use since 1978.

The 3-0 ruling Tuesday by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington could save natural gas users up to $300 million a year, said Frederick Moring, a lawyer for a group of gas distribution companies.

In addition, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission said another $900 million may have to be refunded to those who have been paying about 2 percent higher rates since the new pricing rule was imposed 4½ years ago.

The court threw out a new measurement approach by FERC that in December 1978 began changing the way gas volumes are measured at the wellhead for price-setting purposes.

The agency's new measurement system gives a more accurate — and generally higher — reading of the fuel's energy content as it flows through the pipeline, as measured in British thermal units, or Btu's. But because gas prices are now based on Btu's, the new system also tended to inflate rates an average of 2 percent over rates under the old measurement system.

In rejecting the energy agency's new measurement approach, the appeals court found FERC changed gas pricing in a substantially different way than Congress had intended in a 1978 law.

"Although one of the purposes of the act was to increase the financial incentives for producing various types of new gas," Judge Abner Mikva wrote for the court, "Congress did not intend for the commission to raise the effective wellhead price of gas as much as possible."

"However more appealing the (new) dry rule may be to the commission's sense of scientific aesthetics and accuracy, it is not for the commission to 'improve' the statutory design chosen by Congress," Mikva said.

FERC has not yet decided whether it will appeal, said public affairs director Rachel Patterson. The agency had no further comment.

FERC's 1978 rule took the place of a long-used and widely accepted method for measuring heat-producing potential of gas. Under the old measurement, called the "wet rule," a standard amount of water vapor was allowed in all test batches of gas, thus reducing the energy content of the fuel and its price.

The new rule, adopted by the energy agency after Congress passed the 1978 gas act, shifted to a more precise measurement of the energy content of gas by sampling it as it is actually delivered for sale. Under the new method, known as the "dry rule," gas generally showed a lower water vapor content and earned a higher energy content rating and a higher price.

The dry rule was challenged by natural gas pipeline and distribution companies. FERC, plus 23 energy-producing companies that stood to collect higher prices under the dry rule, argued in defense of the measure.

Moring, who represents the Associated Gas Distributors, said not all gas producers have been collecting the higher rates since 1978 because of contracts that continued to call for the old method of measuring energy content and setting prices.

Demos To Choose 16 Delegates To State Convention

The Seminole County Democratic Executive Committee is scheduled Thursday to elect 16 persons to attend the state Democratic convention to be held this fall in Hollywood, Fla.

Party chairman, Marvin Melizer, said 12 of the 16 must be members of the executive committee and four will be non-executive committee members.

Seminole County will have a delegation of 25 at the convention where a straw vote will be taken to name Florida's favorite Democratic presidential candidate.

In addition to the 16 persons to be elected, Melizer said he as chairman is automatically a delegate as are the committee vice-chairman Lois Jackson and state committee members Charles Glascock and Cay Westerfield.

Among the candidates for the delegate posts are slates committed to former Gov. Reubin Askew and to former vice president Walter Mondale.

The state party convention will be held Oct. 21, 22 and 23 at the Diplomat Hotel in Hollywood.

Thursday's meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. at Casselberry City Hall, Lake Triplet Drive.

Need Help? Talk To Aide

A representative from the Winter Park office of U.S. Rep. Bill McCollum, R-Altamonte Springs, will be available from 9:30 to 11 a.m. Aug. 17 at the Seminole County courthouse in the county commission chambers to speak with persons who need congressional assistance or have questions relating to the federal government.

No appointment is necessary.

Talk About Meals On Wheels

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Mike Riley's $53,000 sports car was stolen, then found days later with its engine and interior missing. Rather than have his dream car scrapped, Riley decided it would make a spiffy dining room table.

Automotive artist Harold Cleworth was commissioned by Riley for an estimated $5,000 to turn the gutted 1983 Porsche Turbo into an objet d'art.

Limousines pulled into the Jet Scrap Co.'s yard in the San Fernando Valley Tuesday for an elaborate black-tie affair, complete with champagne served from buccups, to watch as the Porsche was crushed into a 2-by-3-foot block.

"There will be a plate glass top put on top of it."

Omelets

The Perfect Solution For Light And Nutritious Meals

Planning light yet nutritious meals for your active family reduces the time spent on kitchen duty and allows you to take advantage of the newly arrived longer, balmy days. Versatile omelets are a perfect answer, especially when filled with a combination of healthful fresh fruits and vegetables.

According to the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association, the plentiful supplies expected of asparagus, avocados, tomatoes and strawberries mean that these offerings are also economical choices for quick and easy egg dishes. Eggs, too, are a nutritional bargain providing high-quality protein, all the needed vitamins (except C) plus iron and other minerals.

With not much more than a flip of the wrist, you can create a Fresh Strawberry-Banana Omelet. You'll be surprised at the delicious way naturally sweet fruit complements the taste of eggs. The lively no-cook filling calls for ripe bananas and sliced strawberries steeped in freshly squeezed lemon juice for 15 minutes before using.

There's nothing mysterious about making omelets if you keep a few pointers in mind. Chop filling ingredients beforehand so you can quickly fill and serve the omelets as you turn them out of the pan. When cooking an omelet, use a slope-sided pan and tilt to keep the egg mixture moving so it cooks evenly.

A variation on basic omelet technique is the Puffy Vegetable Omelet, which begins setting in the skillet, then is transferred to the oven. The airy baked-in texture, created by beating egg whites and yolks separately, contrasts beautifully with the crisp-tender fresh vegetable topping. Six minutes is all it takes to saute the topping of green peppers, mushrooms, onions and parsley.

Fresh vegetables can also be combined with the egg mixture in a Spring Vegetable Frittata, which is actually an open-face omelet. Once the omelet-vegetable mixture has barely set in the skillet, thinly-sliced potatoes and sauteed asparagus stalks are arranged in a radial design on top. After popping it in the oven a few minutes longer, the frittata is inverted onto a plate, then again onto the serving platter, displaying the fresh vegetable design on top. This family-filling main dish is then easily served in wedges.

Omelets are excellent low-calorie offerings, too. (An egg has only 80 calories) as you slim down for the beach and patio months ahead. Try South-of-the-Border inspired Rio Grande Omelets, filled with onion, green pepper, tomato and avocado slices, sparked with spicy seasonings to heighten the interest and nutritional value of the weight-loss regimen.

Whatever your taste preferences, fresh fruit and vegetable omelets, in all their variations, make for quick and easy eating without sacrificing the nutritional needs of your active family.

FRESH STRAWBERRY-BANANA OMELETS

Filling:
1/2 pint fresh strawberries, washed, hulled, sliced (1 cup sliced)
1 banana, sliced
1 1/2 tablespoons sugar
1/4 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon freshly squeezed lemon juice
In medium bowl, combine strawberries, banana, sugar, lemon rind and juice; cover, let stand 15 minutes at room temperature. Meanwhile prepare omelets.

Omelets:

4 eggs
1/4 cup water
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter, divided
In small bowl, mix eggs, water and salt with a fork. Heat one tablespoon butter in 8-inch omelet pan or fry pan over medium-high heat until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in half the egg mixture (about 1/2 cup). Mixture should set at edge at once. With back of pancake turner, carefully push cooked portions at edges toward center so that uncooked portions flow to bottom. Tilt pan to hasten flow of uncooked eggs. Slide pan rapidly back and forth over heat to keep mixture in motion and sliding freely. While top is still moist and creamy-looking, spread 1/2 cup fruit filling over half the omelet. With pancake turner fold in half or roll, turning out onto heated platter with a quick flip of the wrist. Keep warm. Repeat with remaining butter and egg mixture. Garnish with remaining fruit filling.
Makes: 2 servings.

PUFFY VEGETABLE OMELET

4 tablespoons butter, divided
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 large red or green pepper, seeded and thinly sliced
1/2 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced (2 cups sliced)
2 tablespoons fresh chopped parsley
1/4 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
4 eggs, separated
1/4 cup water
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
In medium fry pan, melt 2 tablespoons butter; saute onion and pepper 3 minutes. Add mushrooms, parsley and hot pepper sauce; saute 3 minutes longer or until vegetables are crisp-tender. Meanwhile, prepare omelet. In large bowl of electric mixer, beat egg whites with water, salt and cream of tartar at high speed until stiff but not dry, or just until whites no longer slip when bowl is tilted. In small bowl of electric mixer, beat yolks at high speed until thick and lemon-colored, about 5 minutes. Gently fold yolks and Parmesan cheese into whites. Heat remaining 2 tablespoons butter in 10-inch omelet pan or fry pan with ovenproof handle over medium-high heat until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in omelet mixture and gently smooth surface. Reduce heat to medium, cook slowly until puffy and lightly browned on bottom, about 5 minutes. Lift omelet at edge to judge color. Bake in preheated 350° oven 10 to 12 minutes, or until knife inserted halfway between center and outside edge comes out clean. To serve, loosen omelet edges with spatula. With a sharp knife cut upper surface down center of omelet but DO NOT cut through to bottom of omelet. Tip skillet. With pancake turner, fold in half and turn out onto plate with a quick flip of the wrist. Spoon vegetable mixture over omelet. Serve immediately.
Makes: 2 servings.

VEGETABLE FRITTATA

3/4 pound fresh asparagus spears
3 tablespoons butter
3/4 cup scallions cut in 3/4-inch pieces
2 large potatoes, cooked, pared, thinly sliced
1/4 pound ham, cooked, chopped
8 eggs
1/2 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon dried dill weed
1/4 teaspoon salt
Break asparagus spears as far down as they snap easily. Discard ends. Cut asparagus into spears 4-inches long; cut trimmings into 1-inch pieces. In 10-inch fry pan with ovenproof handle, melt butter; cook asparagus spears and pieces and scallions until asparagus is crisp-tender, about 4 minutes. Add potatoes and ham; toss lightly to coat with butter. Remove 6 asparagus spears and 6 potato slices to use as garnish. In medium bowl, beat eggs, milk, dill weed and salt. Pour over vegetables in pan. Cook over low heat until eggs are almost set, about 6 minutes. Arrange reserved asparagus spears on top of eggs like spokes of a wheel. Place potato slices between the spears. Bake, uncovered, in preheated 350° oven 8 to 10 minutes until eggs are set. Loosen from pan; place plate over frittata and turn out. Place serving plate over and turn again so frittata is right-side-up. Cut in wedges to serve. Makes: 4 servings.

RIO GRANDE OMELETS

Filling:
2 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup sliced onion (1 medium)
1/4 cup diced fresh green pepper
1 small clove garlic, minced
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/4 teaspoon dried leaf oregano, crushed
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 medium tomato, cut in wedges
1 avocado, peeled and sliced
In medium skillet, melt butter; saute onion, green pepper and garlic until soft. Stir in Worcestershire sauce, oregano and salt. Add tomato wedges and all but 6 slices of avocado; mix gently over low heat until heated through.

Omelets:

4 eggs
1/4 cup water
1/4 teaspoon salt
Dash hot pepper sauce
2 tablespoons butter, divided
1/4 cup shredded Monterey Jack cheese (optional)
In medium bowl, mix eggs, water, salt and hot pepper sauce with a fork. Heat 1 tablespoon butter in 8-inch omelet pan or fry pan over medium-high heat until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in half the egg mixture (about 1/2 cup). Mixture should set at edges at once. With back of pancake turner, carefully push cooked portions at edges toward center so that uncooked portions flow to bottom. Tilt pan to hasten flow of uncooked eggs. Slide pan rapidly back and forth over heat to keep mixture in motion and sliding freely. While top is still moist and creamy-looking, spread 1/2 cup vegetable filling over half the omelet. With pancake turner fold in half or roll turning out onto heated platter with a quick flip of the wrist. Garnish with 3 slices of avocado. Sprinkle with grated cheese, if desired. Keep warm. Repeat with remaining butter and egg mixture. Makes 2 servings.
