Teen-Age Hangout A Problem For Longwood Officials

But, fun for Moore and his contemporaries is a problem

Longwood city officials. Each evening dozens of teenages gather at the Little Dixie under 18; surprise raids to catch the youths with drugs or alcohol Market at Church Street and state road 427 in Longwood. Known and bringing some of the youths home in police cars as an alert throughout the country by teenagers looking for somewhere to and warning to their parents. spend an evening, the Little Dixie Market is one of the few places.

Carter's Plan Isn't Working

It would be easier for President Carter to defend his anti inflation program if there were some sign that it's working.

The consumer price index jumped nearly a full percentage point in January — the biggest monthly increase since last September.

Would that index be looking any different if the president has not made his appeal for voluntary wage and price restraint last October?

Prices are the end result of so many factors that it is hard to say. Bad weather, affecting crops and livestock, for instance, may have had as much to do with the rise in food prices in January as any conscious decision in the food industry. That wage and price increases can be limited by voluntary efforts is by no means provable in terms of economic theory. Mr. Carter must have known this when he announced his voluntary anti-inflation program last fall and then hedged his bet by ordering that the federal government stop doing business with firms that do not abide by his wage-price guidelines. George Meany of the AFL-CIO is now going into court to raise a question that has been obvious all along to any student of semantics. If the government threatens reprisals against a company for not adhering to its guidelines, can submitting to those guidelines still be considered

Mr. Meany's lawyers will argue that Mr. Carter has in fact invoked compulsory controls when he does not have the authority under federal law to do

The law permits the government to attach conditions to the awarding of contracts only if those conditions further the government's "procurement

It is for Mr. Carter's lawyers to argue that those interests are being served even when his guideline policy would demand that the low bid on a contract be rejected in favor of a higher bid. We would have to believe that the government is usuned in paying the nigher price because the purpose of doing so is to control inflation and thus save money in the long run.

That will be a hard case to make. But the AFL-CIO suit will deal only with a legal issue.

The more important economic issue is whether Mr. Carter's guidelines are likely to have a salutary effect on the inflation rate, whether he ties them to government procurement policies or not. Chances are they won't because they attempt to treat the symptoms of inflation rather than its

Whether wage and price restraints are mandatory or voluntary, they cannot contain forces in the marketplace which sooner or later must assert themselves. Mr. Carter's power to control inflation lies mainly with his influence over the fiscal and monetary policies of the federal government which is where the inflation problem originates. As the author of a new budget carrying a deficit of nearly $30 billion, the president's credibility as an inflation-fighter is not very high.

Then there was the hound dog. This critter darted in between cars and stopped in the middle of my lane and just stared at me. I slammed on the brakes to obviously anger the truck driver immediately to my rear, who sounded his horn so loudly I nearly jumped out of my skin.

'Majority' Rule In Rhodesia

Majority rule is majority rule everywhere in the world except Southern Africa, where it is The distinction is in the definition. Caucasian democracies like the United States have ordinary majority rule. Africans seizing power from white minorities through ballots or bullets invariably exercise rule colored by their race.

Semantics aside, a large portion of the Senate has asked for U.S. approval of a transition from minority to black majority rule in Rhodesia, an electoral sleight of hand that will produce the integration of that country's voting rolls with no concurrent integration of power.

The white population of Rhodesia - a diminishing breed, much like Africa's elephants - held a racially exclusive referendum in January. Terms were set for letting the Africans decide in April to endorse a government in which the Africans have votes and the Europeans

This arrangement will presumably be called minority-majority rule, or turvy-topsy democracy, because the shrinking white BUSINESS WORLD minority, only 4 percent of the population, will control 28 percent of the to-be-elected seats in Parliament and appointed cabinet posts and will be guaranteed control of the judiciary, military Senator George McGovern, D-S.D., new chairman of the Africa subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has suggested a non-legislative observer team be sent instead of the congressional delegation favored by Senator S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif.

If, as Mr. Carter says, we cannot control events within other nations, why were expressions of support and non-support for the Shah of Iran used at various times to help him stay in power or to hint he should leave? And, if we cannot control events within other nations what has the Carter administration been doing in Nicaragua? Certainly cutting off virtually all trade and aid and voting against Nicaragua's ability to draw funds from the International Monetary Fund add up in my book to an effort to control events within that strategically located small nation. Party Pivoting An Interesting Switch To Observe

Norman Floyd, elated from his win of a third term as mayor of Altamonte Springs earlier that day, announced to all who cared to listen that he would be a candidate in 1980 for the seat on the county commission, held by Dick Williams. Some see his recent change of political affiliation from Republican to Democrat as a first step in that campaign. When Floyd was preparing to bid for the Swofford. Raiders Reach End Of Line

Brevard Prevails By 84-76

By JIM HAYNES Herald Sports Editor

Seminole Community College's basketball bubble burst Friday night in the semifinals of the state junior college tournament, leaving it to Brevard and Lake City to battle it out for the right advance on toward a possible national tourney berth. Seminole suffered the consequences of a first half letdown in an 84-76 loss to Brevard. Lake City pulled off an incredible comeback in beating Manatee in overtime, 105-104. "No intensity... no intensity at all," moaned SCC coach Joe Sterling after the contest. Actually, in the second half if then it was intensity's first cousin. But by then, Brevard had built up a big lead which proved insurmountable and had nomentum on its side. Brevard's aggressiveness picked the Raiders apart in the first half. With Sanford's Ruben Cotton, Tyrone Brown and Don Word doing most of the scoring, Brevard grabbed early leads of 5-0, 11-4, 15-6 and 29-13 before It was 45-28 with 1:45 when Seminole lost one of its inside leapers, 6-7 Jimmy Rogers. JERUSALEM (UPI) - The Israeli cabinet today accepted two cabinet had approved the prime minister's suggestion proposals made by Prime Minister Menachem Begin designed to the American recommendations. break the deadlock in the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty talks but failed to approve two American suggestions.

Deputy Prime Minister Yigael Yadin announced the decision of the cabinet following a five and a half hour special session. There was no indication about the nature of Begin's suggestions or how closely they resembled the two American proposals presented to Begin by President Carter Sunday.

"The cabinet has accepted the proposals suggested by Mr Begin," a government communique said. The communique quoted Yadin as saying he "stressed that During a 90-minute session Sunday, Carter gave Begin the revised U.S. proposals that were the outgrowth of the tough daily exchanges that started Thursday between the two leaders. The changes, which were described as relating to some of the "unresolved issues," will be submitted to the Israeli cabinet. However, during , briefing for about 10 congressional leaders later in the afternoon Sunday, it was indicated that Carter felt
