

Signposts Given For Wife-Waiting American Husband

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK—(AP)—Are you a wife-waiter?

The average American husband is convinced he spends more time waiting for his wife to get dressed to go out than he does in earning her a living.

And he is more than half right. How can he ever teach his wife to get ready on time? There is no perfect solution to this problem—or any other problem in life or marriage. But there are some signposts along the way. Here are some wife-waiters I have known:

1. The delicious newlywed—This damp-eyed boy chortles to his bride. "Take your time, sweetie. My mother won't mind if we're late to her dinner party. She's a very understanding mother."
2. Two hours later he is grinning. He is aware he'll have to enquire between his understanding mother and his procrastinating bride.
3. The rug-fretter—He is the old-fashioned type who stomps back and forth wearing out the carpet as he bellows, "Oh for God's sake, Mable, please!"
4. The cunning husband—if he has tickets for a Wednesday night show, he tells his wife they're for Tuesday. That way, they only miss the first act.
5. The either-or-else giver—this ultimatum-maker shouts, "either you're ready in five minutes or else we don't go." An hour later they leave, barking at each other like angry dogs.
6. The Boy Scout or fetch-and-carry type—he trots around grabbing up his wife's shoes and stockings and trying to button up the back of her dress. His reward from the frau is this: "If you don't get out of my way, I'll never be ready."
7. The strong silent type—he buys his wife a television set and refuses to take her out at all except to go to the funerals of her relatives.
8. The weak or life-is-hopeless type—he goes out into the kitchen, drinks a fifth of gin straight, then breaks out crying.
9. The give-em-a-dose-of-their-own-medicine lad—he simply goes to bed and falls asleep. When his wife storms in demanding to know what he isn't dressed, he leers growlily, "It's your turn to wait, dear."
10. The patience-on-a-monument fellow—he just sits waiting in a glassy-eyed trance until his wife emerges, takes his paw in hers, and leads him out the door.
11. The self-improvement type—this is a new brand of husband that rather worries thoughtful wives, and may force them to correct the aged feminine penchant for always being late.

Blues In The News

By JIM MEYERS

Farewell to Bill Cochran, D.K.I. NAAS, who's leaving us today. His shipmates in Disbursing Office gave him a party last night. All wish him well at his new station. We also have five men from FASHION leaving temporarily for training at Jet School, Cecil Field, Garrett, J. M., Carlson, R. C., Kirsch, R. J., Martin, E., and third class respectively, Hoff, G. F.

Welcome aboard! Phil Baugh, just reported to NAAS from AD School in Memphis. SAH halls from North Carolina.

The Navy Center in Sanford affords a fine place for recreation for the men on the station. The other night we saw there to name a few, Jerry Phillips, Jerry Lois Stallard, Betty Cagle, J. & Perry, Gloria Studstill, T. J. Tarbutton, Rosemary and Betty Cullum, Raymond Bahlo, Jack Stout, "Ditty" and Margaret Von Herold, Bobbie, Martin, and Tommy Moran. Come on down and meet the gang. There's dancing, group singing, ping-pong, and a writing room in the rear of the building. Many of your friends will be there to greet you.

T. DeMaria, R. Joyner, and W. Anderson, NAAS, and "Jack" Horl, FASHION, received their Civil Aeronautics Administration identifications the other day. Many more of the fellows will be receiving theirs soon. Many of these fellows also have their applications in for pilot's license.

FASHION has scheduled their trip to Nassau this weekend for the winners of the recent squadron insignia contest. "Pete" Van Dusen, "Larry" Serpas, and Allen Negrotto, who won first, second, and third prizes respectively, will fly down for a weekend in Nassau.

waiting—such as charcoal drawings, reading up on gardening, building bookends, or repainting the living room walls.

I heard of one fellow who took a correspondence course in executive management during the last hours his wife dawdled at her dressing table waiting for her fingernail polish to dry.

He passed the course with flying colors, and received several fine promotions at his office. That gave him a salary large enough to finance a divorce, which he promptly did. Then he married a younger and prettier woman.

"I still have to wait just as long for my wife," he tells friends.

"But when that loudir door finally opens, you ought to see who comes out now. She makes the old one look like Nelson's flagship."

As you can see, girls, this new self-improvement type of husband is a dangerous man to fool with. Don't keep him waiting too long—even if you have to go out in a bathing suit to get where he wants to take you on time.

De Bary Doings

By KAY HENNINGER

Have you heard people say that De Bary is a community of elderly, retired people? It started out to be just that but it is rapidly attracting younger families and now has as many as 50 or more children of school age and younger.

Because of this situation, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Guruchari, who have six of their own, offered their home for the use of a nursery school of children of pre-school age. Mrs. Guruchari made contact with as many mothers of young children as she could reach and due to their co-operation and zeal the school was opened on Oct. 5 with a register of 14 boys and girls.

Although the Gurucharis must be credited with having originated the idea and also with having given a great deal of time and work to it, they asked that the following women be thanked publicly for their help in getting the school started. Mrs. Blodgett, Mrs. Joseph W. Branner, Mrs. Joseph Christberger, Mrs. Gaston Crosby, Mrs. William Feece, Mrs. Perry Ford, Mrs. Charles Gard, Mrs. Charles Lee, Mrs. Nolte, Mrs. Eric Simmons, Mrs. Stone, and Mrs. Watson. P. T. A. has been organized and will meet once a month.

I was amazed to see both the amount and the quality of the equipment that has already been secured. The children have at their disposal an enclosed porch and an outdoor playground with swings, teeters, slides, and sand box. The car-port is available for rainy days. Inside there is a schoolroom with its traditional blackboard and low tables and chairs. Just off this room is the children's bathroom where everything is scaled to the size of the youngsters. A step-drawer can be pulled out so that the shortest may wash his hands in comfort. Just outside of these rooms, a long table has been set up where the mid-morning snack is served.

Mrs. Eric Simmons, who has five young children of her own, and who has had a wide experience in Kindergarten work in New York, is the teacher. Those mothers, who have no infants to care for, have volunteered to give one morning a week to assist Mrs. Simmons. They will care for the younger children while Mrs. Simmons has a special period with the five year olds, preparing them for school.

Let me give you a picture of what I saw this morning and remember that it was only the second morning in the history of this project. I arrived shortly after 9:00 o'clock and there they were on the enclosed porch busy coloring pictures. There ensued a clean-up time when all supplies were put away and then a parade. Out to the lawn where the flag will be raised daily and saluted and PROTECTED FROM THE SPRAY by a waterproof slicker, Princess Elizabeth listens as Mayor Ernest Hawkins of Niagara Falls, Ont., describes the Falls to her. suitable opening exercises will take place.

After this there was free play which was followed by a wholesome washing of hands; first the girls, then the boys, during which time Mrs. Lee read a story to the "clean ones" in an effort to keep them so until eating time. Another parade with the child who had a birthday leading while the others sang "Happy Birthday to You". It had been decided to limit the mid-morning snack to fruit juice and crackers but in honor of the birthday, the crackers were spread with frosting and one of them bore four candles.

When I left, the children were having a wonderful time and already it had become evident what this sort of supervised play and instruction will do for the child who has become accustomed to playing by himself or without much supervision. Much remains to be done and many plans are being considered. I hope I shall be invited to visit again in a few months from now. I feel quite sure there will be many new developments and I shall be happy to give you another picture of this most interesting and worthy project.

British People Angry Over Way
They Are Being Kicked Around

By RELMAN MORIN

LONDON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The Londoner turns toward his radio and says bitterly, "Well, should we get the news and see how many British have been shot tonight?"

A metropolitan newspaper sarcastically warns its readers that British Honduras probably will be the next possession to flame with revolt and demand independence.

People talk of the "vogue for wisting the British lion's tail." They are bitter and angry. This anger can have a profound effect on the national elections next week, helping Winston Churchill and the Conservatives as it adds to criticism of the Labor government and its foreign policy.

Most political observers both in and out of the government believe that will be the result of events in the Middle East.

When Parliament was dissolved and the election date was set, Britain was concerned mainly with expected dollar deficit, and inflation, shortages, the present and then the economic position in general. Foreign affairs were a secondary issue to the average Briton.

As the campaign began to heat Churchill did his powerful best to make foreign affairs a matter of primary concern in the election. He loosed his oratorical thunderbolts at every milestone in the loss of British prestige since 1945.

He accused the Labor government of bungling in Iran, of failure to foresee the direction of events there, and of inability to handle them.

His success, however, was limited. All political diaries and indicators showed that, until the last few days, people were mainly concerned with wages, prices, food, housing, and the like, and that although smarting with humiliation over the Iranian case, their feelings were checked somewhat by the question that Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison flung at the Conservatives:

"Would you have gone to war?"

At the same time, the Labor campaign shot—"Whose hand would you rather have on the trigger, Churchill's or Attlee's?"—undoubtedly had its effect. There was considerable fear that Churchill might pursue a line of policy that would lead the country into another war.

Without events in Egypt that feeling probably would have continued unbalanced dismay over Britain's diminished prestige.

But this latest attempt to twist the lion's tail has changed the complexion of popular sentiment radically. It is an emotional reaction and therefore difficult for labor spokesmen to counter.

The government immediately to act immediately in Egypt with a "strong line" moving in troops and announcing they would meet force with force. People are asking why force did not meet force in Iran.

The government, observers say, now is doing what Churchill said should have been done earlier.

The net result appears to have been to give the Conservative campaign a strong forward push.

It came at a critical point in

Lonely Islanders
Usually End Up By Talking To Selves

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK.—(AP)—People who live all alone on an island usually end up by talking to themselves.

This is particularly true of Manhattan Island, one of the most crowded and lonely islands in the world. More people talk to themselves here than anywhere.

The human trait of self-address is a fascinating thing. It has always interested me. Evertime I see people talking to themselves, I mutter under my breath, "Why is he talking to himself?" And then my brain asks me, "Why are you? You're doing the same thing yourself right now, you dope."

It is often appealing to watch a very young and the very old talking out loud only for their own ears. They do it for different reasons, however. The old folks do it because they have passed beyond the focus of the present, children do it because they haven't yet entered that focus.

What do they say to themselves? My observation has been that most oldtimers are quarrelsome with themselves in their monologues. I used to know a nice old lady back in Missouri who would march about her small chores saying crossly, "Now you know better than that. Why did you have to go and do a silly thing like that?" I never could find out what she thought she had done wrong. But she sure did give herself hell all day long.

With children, the whole thing is a game, a feat of the imagination to create an ideal world more understandable than the dismal grownup world that surrounds them. But when they talk to a doorknob and call it by a nickname the doorknob is a very real person to them. Did you ever watch a small girl walk along and get a row of flowers individually? They no longer are just flowers to her; they are pretty playmates. And she isn't just talking to herself. She hears what the flower-folk say back to her.

What startles me about New York, however, is the number of middle-aged people who talk to themselves. You see their lips moving on the subways, on buses, in the streets. What are they saying? Sometimes they are lately retreating withering remarks they should have made to the taxidriver who almost ran them down on the way to work. Or they are talking back to their wives—saying, also, they are talking out their worries to themselves, usually money worries.

The most boring type, however, is found at cocktail parties. These people talk out loud to themselves because of a secret conviction that is the only way suggest for the walls of fratricidal congressmen like himself?

He certainly had: "Even a poor fish wouldn't get in trouble if he could keep his mouth shut."

Democrat's Sly
Signs Approved
By Republican

By ED CREAGH

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—A Republican congressman reported with some wonderment today that he's found something to approve of in the Truman Administration.

"In the midst of all the confusion that is official Washington," said Rep. Oakley Hunter of California, "it is refreshing to note that a number of signs have appeared on the desks of minor bureaucrats, by which they slyly poke fun at themselves."

For instance, a sign at the National Production Authority: "It takes a real bureaucrat to develop chaos out of confusion."

And another at the Veterans Administration: "Why be difficult when with a little effort you can be impossible?"

Hunter, a six-foot-four ex-FBI agent, reported this development in a news letter to the folks back home, and enlarged on it for a reporter.

Personally, he said, he thinks a little slyness is a fine thing: "Every room in the Pentagon ought to have Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's warning in large letters on the wall: 'The problem in defense is how far you can go without destroying from within what you are trying to defend without.'"

And, speaking as a staunch Republican, Hunter said he's like the Democrats to keep their eyes focused on a sign bearing the words of their own Woodrow Wilson:

"The history of liberty is the history of limitation of governmental power, not the increase of it."

Had Hunter any special sign to he election battle. The nation's next Thursday, and while Conservatives appeared to be holding the advantage, election experts agreed the heat of the campaign would not come until the last few days and that the final decisive blows probably would not be struck before then.

Hence, the reaction evident here to the flap in Egypt could be a doorknob and call it by a nickname the doorknob is a very real person to them. Did you ever watch a small girl walk along and get a row of flowers individually? They no longer are just flowers to her; they are pretty playmates. And she isn't just talking to herself. She hears what the flower-folk say back to her.

What startles me about New York, however, is the number of middle-aged people who talk to themselves. You see their lips moving on the subways, on buses, in the streets. What are they saying? to be sure of an intelligent audience. If you reply, they don't even hear you. Your role is to bounce back the echoes from their vocal chords into their own snug ears.

The most frightening self-conversationists are those who are mentally disturbed—drunken bums, senile refugees from reality, younger people whose minds have erupted in chaos.

You see them walking alone in the crowds here, gibbering and gesturing to themselves. And no one bothers them here in the big city where nobody wants to get too involved in anybody else. Even the police pay no attention to them unless they become violent. What does happen to them? I remember once seeing a trouble-haunted man mumbling to himself as he pushed through a throng near Rockefeller Center. Suddenly he wheeled, lifted his arms as if to sweep everyone in sight into the gutter and shouted: "Get ready, sheep, get ready. You won't be here long."

Everyone who heard him turned eyes to the ground and walked on faster, feeling perhaps that the man who talked to himself had said something true of them all.

Garden Gate By NELL M. WILLIAMS

America is a land of euclys of many kinds. Some of them, especially the curious religious cults, abound most in California, but others are widely though thinly spread. One of these is the cult of organic gardening, whose devotees are fanatic in their belief that only by the use of organic wastes can gardening be successful. Like many other fads, this one has a little truth to it.
