Headlights-Off Patrol To Get Police Scrutiny

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford police are planning to review an apparently common but illegal practice of its officers driving patrol cars after dark without their headlights on.

The planned review was prompted by an accident Jan. 6 involving two police cars. They collided at about 6:30 a.m. when an officer, driving an unmarked police car without its headlights on, drove into an intersection without stopping for a stop sign, turned and his vehicle struck an oncoming marked patrol car head-on. Both vehicles were travelling about 20 mph. The incident occurred at 7th St. and Myrtle Ave. near Sanford Grammar School. The officers were patrolling the area because it is the site of several break-ins, according to police.

The officer driving the patrol car with its headlights on, five-year veteran N.J. Raby, 36, was hospitalized overnight with a possible concussion following the collision which police said he could not avoid. The driver of the unmarked car without its headlights on, Lt. Richard Nooney, 44, on the force for 19 years, received minor injuries. He was reportedly looking in the car's rearview mirror and did not see the stop sign. The accident occurred about 100 feet from the intersection, according to police.

The city-owned cars were scheduled to be replaced this year and received about $3,500 damage each.

Sanford Police Chief Ben Butler said he will complete the policy review by next week about

Road Paving Decisions On City Agenda

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

The Sanford City Commission, with three new members on board, will thrash out the knotty problem of setting a priority list of roads to be paved this year and decide whether to stand by a commitment made by the prior commission at Monday's 7 p.m. meeting.

The past commission's commitment was to cooperate with the county in funding the proposed extension of Lake Mary Boulevard east of U.S. Highway 17-92, a major link in proposed beltline around the city of Sanford.

And the city's part of the funding for this extension was to come from the city's share — $378,000 annually — of the proceeds from the county-imposed 4-cent gasoline tax.

It is also from this source that the funding came for the paving and improvements of four city streets in 1984 and from which funding for improving 22 other city streets is also to come.

City commissioners in late 1983 selected for improvements four streets from within the city staff's priority list and work on those was completed.

The streets selected were Sanford Avenue from Seminole Boulevard to 25th Street, ranked third in the priority list; Country Club Road from 20th Street to old Lake Mary Road, ranked 11th; Hardy Avenue from 25th Street to Old Lake Mary Road, ranked 12th; and Mellonville Avenue from Seminole Boulevard to 25th Street, ranked 24th of the 26 streets on the list.

The decision on the amount of money the city will contribute financially to the Lake Mary Boulevard extension work must be made before the new commission can decide what streets will be paved this year.

Estimated cost for improvements of the remaining 22 streets in the staff's recommendations is $775,000, based on today's cost of a one-inch resurface. City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles said the staff's priority list was based on existing pavement condition, volume of traffic, durability of existing pavement and drainage.

He says it will take several years to complete all the projects listed.

The list in order of staff priority includes:

• McCracken Road, from Persimmon Avenue to Airport Boulevard, 2,000 feet, 24 foot wide paving, $14,720.

• Persimmon Avenue, from First Street to McCracken Road, 3,200 feet, 24 foot paving, $23,555.

• 3rd Street, from Sanford Avenue to Persimmon Avenue, 24 feet paving for 7,000 feet and 30 feet wide paving for 600 feet, $57,040.

• 1st Street from U.S. Highway 17-92 to Mellonville Avenue, 52 feet wide for 5,800 feet, $92,500.

• 9th Street, from Sanford Avenue to Poplar Avenue, 24 foot wide paving for 4,000 feet, $29,450.

• 8th Street, from Poplar Avenue to Persimmon Avenue, 22 foot wide paving for 3,600 feet, $24,500.

• 6th Street, from U.S. 17-92 to Pecan Avenue, 24 feet wide paving for 1,500 feet, $11,040.

• Park Drive, from 25th Street to U.S. 17-92, 24 feet wide paving for 2,200 feet, $16,200.

• 20th Street, from Summerlin Avenue to Country Club Drive, 24 feet

Prices Up Scant .1%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prices at the wholesale level edged up a scant 0.1 percent in December, giving all of 1984 an inflation rate for wholesale goods of only 1.8 percent, the Labor Department said today.

The 1.8 percent rate is only half of what the inflation rate for consumer prices is expected to be for 1984.

The price dealers paid for heating oil, gasoline and natural gas fell for the month and moderate increases in the price of pork and beef kept food prices to a 0.5 percent increase in December.

"You can't complain about 1.8 percent," a department economist said. "We're doing better than the Consumer Price Index."

The CPI for December will not be measured for another 12 days but it is expected to show an inflation rate for all of 1984 of 4 percent or less, moderate but still reflecting more price acceleration at retail than for wholesale merchandise.

Therapist Guilty In Molesting Of Disabled Boy

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

An occupational therapist has been found guilty of lewd assault on a severely handicapped 8-year-old boy.

A jury of five men and a woman deliberated about 2 hours Thursday before finding J. Martin Burns, 37, of Winter Haven, guilty of lewd and lascivious assault on a child. The boy, now 10, was at the time of the assault a student at the Rosenwald School for the handicapped.

"It wasn't really my victory," said prosecuting attorney Joe Flood. "It was a victory for the kids of Rosenwald School and their parents."

Flood labelled Burns behavior as "atrocious, disgusting, and appalling." Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. scheduled sentencing for Feb. 15. Burns, who was being held today without bond in the Seminole County jail, could receive up to 15 years for the crime though the recommended sentence is 12 to 30 months, according to Joe Flood.

Burns was arrested April 9 in Winter Haven and charged the same day by Seminole County investigators of committing lewd acts while employed at the Seminole County Rosenwald School for the handicapped. He was accused of committing two lewd acts there in March of 1983. He awaits trial in a second related case.

Burns, who answered questions calmly on the witness stand, maintained his several accusers were mistaken in what they thought they saw or were lying.

He said that he did touch the boy but only to check him during a diaper change for any soiling. He denied fondling the boy and denied that he "tickled" him.

The prosecution argued that the incident was not a misinterpreted isolated act but an example of a continuing lewd behavior involving boys.

Flood successfully introduced into testimony allegations against Burns for lewd conduct while he was employed at the Sunland Training Center in Gainesville in 1981.

Smokey Siege

Armed with crowbars, Sanford firefighters work 25 minutes to open the hood of a 1976 Thunderbird at 6:43 a.m. today at Hidden Lake Boulevard and Laurel Avenue as traffic clogged in both directions. Water was sprayed on the engine through a wheel well. No injuries were reported. The vehicle is owned by Sandra Martin of 305 Plumtree Court, Sanford.

Middle School Name Sought

Seminole County school officials are seeking a name for the $7.5 million middle school under construction in Lake Mary.

The school, designed to accommodate 1,350 students and considered necessary to keep up with present and anticipated growth in the area, is being built on a 25-acre tract near The Crossings and should be ready by July 1986.

At its Wednesday meeting, the school board is expected to consider a recommendation by Benny Arnold, Assistant Superintendent for Facilities and Transportation, that the public be invited to suggest names for the new school.

The board is scheduled to meet at 2 p.m. in the school board office at 1211 Mellonville Ave., Sanford.

In a memo to board members, Arnold said, "In the past I think we have invited interested citizens to submit names for consideration ... and this procedure seems to have worked well."

If the board agrees to continue the practice, a formal discussion of the matter would be scheduled for a board meeting next month, Arnold's memo said, with a name selected by the end of February.

In conjunction with construction of Middle School X, Arnold is requesting that a Clerk-of-the-Works be hired to oversee daily construction matters at the site.

"...Due to the size of this facility and duration of the project I feel the services of a Clerk-of-the-Works is necessary to protect our investment..." Arnold said.

Arnold is recommending an annual payscale of $26,236 to $35,719 for the position, the lifespan of which will coincide with construction of the facility "unless we have another project going on and we may keep him on," Arnold said.

According to a job description for the post, the clerk's overall duties would be to see "that all construction work is in accordance with the Uniform Building Code."

Arnold said the school system already has a building code inspector but because of other school building projects and the size of Middle School X (155,000 square feet) he would not be able to devote the kind of time to the job that is considered necessary.

One of those other projects is the proposed service center to consolidate the school system's transportation, food service, and maintenance departments in a central location.

Creation Ruled Out Of Science Classroom

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Adrian Duplantier struck down Louisiana's creation-science law Thursday, saying the biblical theory of creation is clearly a religious belief with no place in a science classroom.

The law, approved by the Louisiana Legislature in 1981 but never implemented, would have required public schools to teach the Genesis story of creation wherever evolution is taught.

In defiance of the federal judge, lawmakers who sponsored the creation-science law insist they will seek their day in court.

Former state Sen. Bill Keith of Shreveport, who sponsored the bill in 1981, said he was disappointed there was no court hearing. He said he would file an appeal today with the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

"We will ask for an expedited hearing and will certainly ask for an opportunity for oral arguments before that court," he said.

Duplantier said he did not need a trial to decide the teaching of creation-science would be unconstitutional because it is tailored to the principles of a particular religious sect.

"The term 'creation' means the bringing into existence of mankind and of the universe and implies a divine creator," his opinion said.

"Because it promotes the beliefs of some theistic sects to the detriment of others, the statute violates the fundamental First Amendment principle that a state must be neutral in its treatment of religions."

The judge granted a motion for summary judgment filed by the American Civil Liberties Union, relying heavily on a 1982 ruling by federal Judge William Overton of Little Rock, Ark., who struck down a similar law there.

"We decline to put the people of Louisiana to the very considerable needless expense (including fees of attorneys on both sides) of a protracted trial," Duplantier said.

Martha Kegel, director of the Louisiana ACLU, said she hoped the ruling would mean the creationism question was settled.

"This issue has divided Louisiana religiously for three years and we hope it's finally being put to rest," she said. "Based on exhaustive evidence, the judge has concluded that contrary to what creation scientists maintain, creation science is indeed religious and teaching it as science in the public schools would violate the federal Constitution."

Reagan Consolidates Cabinet; Taps Hodel, Bennett For Posts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, trying to complete the shakeup of his administration before his second term starts in 10 days, is tapping Energy Secretary Donald Hodel to succeed outgoing Interior Secretary William Clark and William Bennett as education secretary.

Reagan replaced Hodel with White House personnel chief John Herrington.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes, who announced the Cabinet changes Thursday afternoon, quoted Reagan as saying the move "will make a strong team even stronger" in the second term.

The nominations are subject to Senate approval, although none was expected to face serious difficulty in winning confirmation.

In a brief statement, Hodel said, "God has blessed this nation with great national treasures, many of which are under the stewardship of the secretary of the interior. I look forward to fulfilling the responsibilities of that stewardship."

Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers, said Bennett, who is the former president of the National Endowment for the Humanities, "has the qualifications to be an outstanding secretary." But Mary Hatwood Futrell, president of the National Education Association, said she is concerned about his "less than exemplary record in civil rights."

Ex-Cop Executed For 3 Murders

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — Joseph Carl Shaw, apologizing to the families of his victims and saying he believed God had forgiven him, was put to death in the electric chair today in South Carolina's first execution in nearly 23 years.

"I want to say I'm sorry to all three families — the Swanks, Taylors and the Hartnesses," said Shaw, 29, after being strapped in the 73-year-old oak chair. "I hope they will have some peace when all the publicity about me ends."

He thanked his lawyers and urged those fighting the death penalty to keep on fighting.

"Killing was wrong when I did it, and it is wrong when you do it," Shaw said. "I have no bitterness toward anyone. May God bless and forgive you all."

His attorney, Stephen Bright of Atlanta, then kissed Shaw on the cheek and stepped back out of the execution chamber.

Shaw, who said he was a victim of drug abuse, was convicted along with James Terry Roach and Ronald Mahaffey of killing Thomas Taylor, 17, and then raping and killing Taylor's 14-year-old girlfriend, Carlotta Hartness, in 1977. Roach is on death row. Mahaffey is serving life in prison.

Shaw, a Catholic and former altar boy and military policeman, also confessed to the murder of Betty Swank, 21, who was shot 12 days before the Taylor-Hartness killings. All three victims were from Columbia.

Volcker: U.S. Spending Too Much

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Adding some new urgency to a familiar theme, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker Thursday warned the nation's addiction to foreign investment and products could doom the economic expansion.

Americans are basically spending more than they earn, making up the difference by borrowing from foreigners. The process cannot continue indefinitely, he said.

While Volcker said it is possible for the American economy to keep growing without new recessions the odds are heavily against it unless the government gets much closer to a balanced budget.

"You have a certain compound interest working against you both on the budget deficit and on the trade deficit," he said. "We have already, for all practical purposes, exhausted our net investment position overseas. We are becoming large debtors every quarter overseas. That problem will get harder to deal with and not easier as time passes."

Eight Killed In Explosion At London Apartment Complex

LONDON (UPI) — Firemen using thermal image cameras and sniffer dogs dug with shovels and their hands in freezing temperatures today for survivors of a gas blast at a luxury apartment building that killed eight people.

A London Fire Brigade spokesman said Thursday there was only a "very very slim" chance the rescuers who spent the night searching would find anyone alive.

"One person is still unaccounted for, we don't know if they are buried there or are away, unaware of what has happened," the spokesman said.

The firefighters had recovered eight bodies by Thursday evening.

Eight others were injured in the Thursday morning blast believed caused by a gas leak from a ruptured frozen pipe that leveled half of Newman House, a three-story building on a luxury apartment block in Putney, southwest London.

Acid Cloud Blankets City; 20 Hurt

KARLSKOOGA, Sweden (UPI) — A cloud of sulfuric acid hung "like a blanket" over the central Swedish city of Karlskoga today after a leak from a frozen pipe at a chemical plant injured 20 people and forced the evacuation of 300.

Officials sealed off the center of the city after the leak Thursday and residents allowed to stay in their homes were warned to close all doors, windows and ventilation systems.

Environmentalists Groan At Picks Call Reagan's Cabinet Choices 'Another Step Backward'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Environmentalists say the nation's natural resources will suffer once the men chosen by President Reagan to head the Interior and Energy departments take office — especially if they recommend combining their agencies.

But supporters predict increased efficiency when Energy Secretary Donald Hodel moves to his new post of interior secretary and White House aide John Herrington takes over Hodel's old job — perhaps to preside over the Energy Department's demise.

There was little doubt after the White House announced the nominations Thursday that the Senate would confirm both men. But there was some skepticism that Congress would go along with any attempt by Reagan to carry out a 1980 campaign promise to eliminate the Energy Department.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Hodel and Herrington would be asked to study the possibility of merging the departments but. "Asking for the studies does not necessarily constitute a decision to eliminate or reorganize these departments."

The intent, Speakes said, is "to strengthen the management and effectiveness" of the two departments.

Many of the same environmentalists and consumers groups that fought Hodel's nomination as energy secretary in late 1982 groaned Thursday when Reagan approved his transfer back to the Interior Department, where Hodel, 49, a Portland, Ore., native, had served as undersecretary to the controversial James Watt.

William Turnage of the Wilderness Society described Hodel's nomination to succeed retiring Secretary William Clark as "another unfortunate step backward."

"One of the negatives of this appointment is that it increases the likelihood that the administration will try to merge the departments of energy and interior," Turnage said, referring to Hodel's experience at both departments.

"This would be a most unfortunate situation and one that we will vigorously oppose because it will complete the president's efforts to subordinate conservation and the environment to all-out development," he added.

Mike Baly, vice president of the American Gas Association, also saw the two nominations as a sign of an impending merger.

"It appears that they've selected someone who will stay committed to the role that he's been assigned to and that is to get in there and try to merge the two departments," Baly said of Herrington, 45, a Californian with little energy policy expertise.

Joswick Named UW President

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

David C. Joswick, sales service manager for NCR Corp., Lake Mary, has been elected president of the United Way of Seminole County Board of Directors for 1985 and will preside at the first meeting of the new board to be held at noon on Jan. 28 at the Holiday Inn, Altamonte Springs. Awards will be presented at the luncheon to those volunteers active in last year's campaign.

As 1984 campaign chairman, Joswick, lead the Seminole United Way to surpass its all-time high goal of $500,000. He also served as campaign chairman in 1980 and as board president in 1981.

Larry Strickler, president in 1983 and 1984, will serve as chairman of the executive committee this year. Strickler is Southern Bell's area manager for corporate and external affairs.

United Way vice president John C. Knapp will be the 1985 campaign chairman. Knapp headed the major industries division which reported $265,300 at the conclusion of the month-long drive in October. He is director of human resources for United Technologies Lexar, Longwood.

Other newly-appointed board officers include Robert Blumentritt, administrator of South Seminole Community Hospital, Longwood, vice president; Kay Bartholomew, Central Florida Regional Hospital public relations director; Roy Raker, Altamonte Springs CPA, treasurer.

David Joswick

They will serve one-year terms.

New board members include Kenneth C. Cone of Florida Power Corp., Longwood; Newman Brock, Altamonte Springs attorney; Allen W. Davis Jr., Metal Manufacturing Inc., Sanford; Gary Earl, Private Industry Council, Sanford; Pete Eder, Stromberg Carlson Corp., Sanford; Buck Hodges, manager of J.C. Penny, Sanford; Mary Mize, Sanford; Susan Moore, Central Florida Community Clinic, Sanford; Phillip D. Penland, Altamonte Springs; Ron Pruitt, Burdine, Altamonte Mall; and Sanford Mayor Betty Smith. They were elected for three-year terms.

The Board of Directors approved a total of $425,200 from the recently-pledged $500,000 to be spent for 25 United Way of Seminole agencies when it met Dec. 20. The amount is nearly $35,000 or 8.9 percent more than that allocated in 1983.

This year for the first time, allocations were made after the campaign. No new service agencies were added and none received less than the amount allocated in 1984.

The board acted on the recommendation of five separate budget committees, each headed by a member of the United Way Board of Directors, which met in December at the Casselberry City Hall Council Chamber. The committees were made up mainly of interested Seminole County residents, who met with agency representatives to discuss their budget requests. Their recommended dollar amount was forwarded to the board, subject to the amount actually raised as the result of the 1984 campaign.

"We only allocate that amount that can be safely given out in 12 monthly installments," said Executive Director Bob Walko, "but additional money that may come in could be available at mid-year review to meet emergency needs that any of the agencies might have. A small percentage of the funds raised also goes for year-round office expenses."

Connie Deshane has been hired as secretary in the United Way office in Sanford replacing Clara Shannon, who resigned following the campaign because she was moving to South Carolina. Mrs. Deshane recently moved to the Sanford area from Elk Rapids, Mich.

Also working in the office since September is Delila Isern, a native of Puerto Rico.

Woman Pulls Gun, Halts Rape Attempt

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A young mother who grabbed a shotgun to save a 12-year-old girl from being raped in the hallway of an apartment building says she cocked the gun and was ready to use it.

"I would have shot him if I had to," said Monica Jones. "I wasn't scared. I was doing what any person should do. I'd do it again if I had to."

"He kept yelling I was crazy," Jones said. "He was hollering to call the police, more than I was."

Authorities credited Jones, 28, with stopping the attempted rape by holding the girl's assailant at gunpoint until police arrived.

Jones, a sturdy, 5-foot-9; assembly linker, says it wasn't her first run-in with Leon Fowler, 23, who was charged with attempted rape and kidnapping in warrants issued Thursday.

She said he broke into her apartment about a month ago and that she purchased the shotgun afterward. "He was the one who caused me to buy the gun."

Jones was besieged with telephone calls after reports of her heroism. She met with the news media Thursday during her lunch break at the Bemis Co.

Auto Repairman Burned In Gas Tank Fire

A New Port Richey man received first and second degree burns on his chest and neck when gas fumes ignited while he was removing a gasoline tank from a car at a Goldenrod car shop, Seminole County Fire Inspector Ray Pippin said today.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies reported Benny Scarey, 18, an auto body repairman, was injured at about 6 p.m. Thursday, at Affordable Paint and Body, 7803 A, Citrus Ave.

Scarey was using a torch to cut the gas tank off a wrecked, salvaged 1983 Camaro when gas fumes ignited and he was burned. The tank had been filled with water before Scarey began working on it, a sheriff's report said.

Orange County Workers Mark Shooting With Moment Of Silence

ORLANDO (UPI) — A year after a shootout at the Orange County Courthouse, the gunman sits in his Death Row cell, while two injured bailiffs sit at home trying to reconstruct their lives.

The first anniversary of the bizarre courthouse incident was marked Thursday with a moment of silence by county workers.

It was Jan. 10, 1984 when Thomas Provenzano, dressed in military fatigues and a red bandanna, walked into the courthouse in downtown Orlando and whipped out a pistol, shotgun and assault rifle.

He shot and seriously wounded bailiffs Harry Dalton and Mark Parker. Bailiff Arnie Wilkerson was killed in the gunfire.

Dalton, 54, was shot in the head and near death for days after the shooting. He lives at home with his wife and spends 12 hours a day in rehabilitation.

Parker, 20, was wounded in the back and paralyzed from the shoulders down. He lives with his mother and father. He is learning to use a computer and plans to enroll this spring at Valencia Community College.

Sugar Sniffer Sues City

MIAMI (UPI) — A West German tourist has filed a false arrest lawsuit against the city of Miami after being jailed 17 days when a police officer mistook his grape sugar snuff for cocaine.

Frank Wolfgang Mueller, 31, was sniffing the "powdery white substance" from a clear glass bottle at Miami's Bayfront Park five minutes after midnight on New Year's Eve 1983, records show.

Officer Osel Morales arrested him on cocaine possession charges despite Mueller's insistence that he was inhaling snuff made from grape sugar, a common decongestant in Bavaria, the lawsuit said.

His lawsuit, filed Tuesday in Dade County Circuit Court by attorney Alan Hochman, claims the jail term will cause Mueller to "suffer humiliation and mental pain and disgrace for the rest of his natural life."

Wolfinger Uses Day 1 To Shuffle Attorneys

The Seminole County division of the 18th judicial circuit no longer has a resident chief assistant state attorney following first-day reorganization by State Attorney Norman Wolfinger.

Wolfinger used his first day in office this week to rearrange the some of the office staff.

Ralph Erickson, chief assistant state attorney under Douglas Cheshire, who lost to Wolfinger in the November election, has been reassigned to evaluating cases submitted by police agencies for trial. The new chief assistant for both Seminole and Brevard counties is John Griesbaum, 39, of Titusville.

In his new position, Erickson will determine what cases in Seminole County should be filed for prosecution and what cases should not be prosecuted. He will be deciding whether there is sufficient evidence in each case to get a conviction.

Griesbaum, though chief assistant of both divisions, will be based in Titusville and will be in Seminole County as he is needed, Wolfinger said.

Appointed to the newly created position of chief trial attorney in Seminole County is Don Marblestone. He will be in charge of the criminal division attorneys in the county.

Marblestone has been prosecuting cases in Seminole County for several years and made an unsuccessful bid in November for a judgeship in the county.

Wolfinger said he will wait a few days to make a decision about the employment status of an assistant state attorney who has been charged with DUI and leaving the scene of an accident.

Joe Flood, of Sanford, who has said he will plead guilty to the charges, is trying a felony case this week and Wolfinger said he would wait until after the trial before taking any action.

Firm Predicts Oil Price Drop

Banker Says OPEC Is Over A Barrel

NEW YORK (UPI) — A top investment firm predicts the world price of oil will drop $2 to $4 by the end of 1985, triggering a global ripple effect of lower inflation, interest rates and gold prices and a stronger U.S. dollar.

The Wall Street investment banking firm of Salomon Brothers Inc. made the prediction this week at a news conference — saying the main culprit was OPEC and its inability to keep poverty stricken members from flooding the world with oil.

The free flow of petroleum is undercutting OPEC's $29 per barrel standard, putting Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in a bad position to initiate — or participate in — a world oil price war with non-OPEC nations.

Paul Mlotok, vice president of Salomon Brothers, said such a price war would worsen the cartel's already perilous $18 billion deficit.

The Salomon study warned that a major test of OPEC's financial strength is approaching and "the weak links in the chain are already close to breaking."

"By the end of 1985 world oil prices will be at a lower level for OPEC and other producers," Mlotok said. He said the price could drop between $2 and $4 per barrel.

Lower oil prices would make it more difficult for OPEC's poor nations to repay debt and would hurt the British pound. It also would imperil the price of gold since OPEC might be forced to sell off its substantial holdings.

But falling oil prices also would mean cheaper energy for industrialized nations, which would reduce inflation, and give industry higher profits that would lessen their need to borrow money — which in turn would lower interest rates.

A drop in interest rates would again spur growth in the industrialized world and benefit the U.S. dollar.

Slack world demand has shrunk OPEC production from over 30 million barrels a day in 1979 to 17.5 million barrels a day in 1984, with poor members now pumping half of the group's output.

"OPEC will continue to exist in some form and continue to look weak," Mlotok said.

Six-Year-Old Held In Drug Deal

MIAMI (UPI) — Police are holding a 6-year-old boy in custody because they said he acted as an interpreter and a lookout for his parents while they were swinging a cocaine deal with an undercover police officer.

The child's father was shot twice and critically wounded when an arrest team moved in Wednesday.

Arthur Nehrbaas, head of Dade County police Organized Crime Bureau, said the child is the "youngest subject in a narcotics investigation" in the county.

The boy's mother was arrested at a bank where she works.

the same time an inter-department report is expected on whether Nooney should be disciplined for the incident. Nooney was not ticketed. Police said no ticket was issued because it's at the discretion of the investigating officer, and further, that generally a review board may punish an offending officer more severely than state laws governing traffic violations.

If Butler decides the police can provide better protection in certain situations by keeping patrol car headlights turned off, he said he may draft some policy to regulate the practice.

"It's quite valuable ... I think we use it very carefully," Butler said, calling the two-police car accident a fluke.

"I guess we have been fairly lucky in the past," he said

"I'm not saying we run all over the city without lights," Butler said, explaining that responding to certain calls with headlights on, such as reports of prowlers, or a burglary in progress, would hinder rather than help police.

"We don't want to scare the burglars away," he said.

While the lights-out patrol car under certain conditions is apparently common in Sanford, a Florida Highway Patrol spokesman said it is not common procedure elsewhere.

Capt. Charles Hall, FHP spokesman in Tallahassee, not only called the practice illegal but emphatically said FHP troopers are told that under no circumstances will they drive after dark without headlights.

"I don't subscribe to the agency's (Sanford Police Department) policy as it really opens the door of liability. It could cost the city some money," Hall said, referring to a possible damage judgment against the city if a police car without its headlights on was the cause of or contributed to a serious accident.

"I don't know how far they can go against the law and not get pinched," he said.

Hall said that while police have a difficult job to do, and may be tempted to use whatever means that are available to make arrests, they have to catch the criminals while "bound by certain requirements placed upon them" by the public, specifically to obey the law and conduct their job in a safe manner.

He said an officer driving without headlights on is not protected by statute as he is when he breaks the speed limit when responding to an emergency.

If an FHP trooper is involved in an accident while driving without his headlights on, not only will the patrol hold him personally responsible but, "It could get them in serious difficulty," Hall said. He indicated that could include a lawsuit, or even dismissal.

Butler, however, was defensive of the practice after being told of Hall's remarks.

Butler said the FHP can take a headlights-on-at-all-times position because its troopers have only the highway to watch, whereas his (Butler's) officers respond to calls in residential areas, check buildings, and respond to silent and audible burglar alarms.

"Is it illegal to pull up to the site of a prowler-call and have your lights out?" Butler asked, adding he did not think it is.

"If it were your house, wouldn't you want that? ... What's so illegal about turning your headlights out when you pull up to a curb to get out?" he asked.

He said he sees nothing wrong with the practice if it is used reasonably. Driving a long distance, a mile, or driving at 100 mph without headlights on is not reasonable, he said.

Butler was unswayed by the suggestion that a Sanford officer driving without headlights on and involved in a serious accident such as the death of a pedestrian would open the city to liability.

"There is always liability ... Every accident opens the driver to responsibility," Butler said.

Gandhi's Mandate

Rajiv Gandhi's resounding election victory gives the new Indian Prime Minister an opportunity to stem his nation's sectarian violence, revive its sluggish economy and improve relations with its neighbors. Preliminary indications are that the 40-year-old leader, thrust into power only a few months ago after the assassination of his mother, intends to seize that opportunity.

On Dec. 31, Mr. Gandhi dissolved the outgoing Parliament three weeks early and immediately named a new cabinet that blends some holdovers with several bright young men who favor economic diversity. He plans to serve as his own foreign minister and has dropped his mother's practice of appointing deputy ministers who lack specific responsibilities.

By so streamlining his cabinet, Mr. Gandhi has demonstrated that he is serious about prompting a "new work ethic" in the Indian government, long notorious for its inefficiency and bureaucratic procedures. Moreover, some of his closest advisers come from the private sector. All of this may help restore the Congress Party's image, tarnished by corruption and lawlessness.

Although Mr. Gandhi pledges that his first priority will be to improve the lot of India's poor, his most immediate domestic challenge will be to end the insurrection by Sikh separatists in the Punjab. He has promised to talk with Sikh leaders; they in turn appear more receptive to his overtures since the government agreed to compensate Sikhs victimized by mob violence following Mrs. Gandhi's assassination.

On the foreign policy front, Mr. Gandhi has an excellent opportunity to make peace with Pakistan. Although the two nations have fought three wars since the subcontinent was partitioned in 1947, the prime minister is not burdened by the anti-Pakistani legacy so common among older Indian leaders. It is encouraging that Pakistani leader Mohammed Zia ul-Haq has called for better relations between the two nations.

The achievement of a non-aggression pact between India and Pakistan would give Mr. Gandhi an opening to improve relations with neighboring Sri Lanka and Bangladesh. This accomplished, he could then channel some of the nation's military spending, which accounts for approximately 20 percent of India's annual budget, toward the economic programs he believes are necessary to restore domestic tranquility. Another diplomatic opening exists in Washington, where Mr. Gandhi might secure additional economic assistance in return for New Delhi's free enterprise initiatives and a non-aligned foreign policy that is not so inclined toward the Soviet Union.

Rajiv Gandhi can accomplish most, if not all, of these objectives if he moves swiftly to capitalize on the magnitude of a political victory unprecedented in India's history.

Too intimate, in fact, for high school coach Robert Foti in Milwaukee recently. When the opposing team entered a girl in the 119-pound class, Foti pulled his male wrestler, forfeiting the match.

Foti said such a match could end up in sexual abuse. He wanted no part of it and neither did his wrestlers.

A Better Class Of Amateur Aviation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Standing before a painting of two F-16 jet fighters in the National Air and Space Museum, Smithsonian Institution officials announced plans for "The Second Great International Paper Airplane Contest."

The event, the first of its kind since 1967, will be May 20-24 at the Museum of Flight in Seattle and more than 20,000 entries are expected.

In a Hollywood-style finish to a news conference, Allen Hammond, editor of the magazine Science 85, also a contest sponsor, gave a paper airplane folding demonstration.

Walter Boyne, the national museum director, said there is an art to launching a paper airplane, which has no motors and depends entirely on "arm power."

The trick involves wrist snap and shoulder tilt and motion, depending on whether the toser is going for distance, duration or fancy flights, he said.

In the first international competition, held in New York City 18 years ago, 5,144 people entered 11,850 paper planes from 28 countries.

The winner in the distance category was a flight of about 58 feet, although a professional entry hit a wall after flying more than 90 feet. The best times for "duration aloft" were around 10 seconds.

However, Howard Lovering, director of the Seattle museum, said paper aviation, as well as the real thing, has changed since 1967. He predicted that participants in the upcoming contest would set new records.

According to the Guinness Book of World Records, the current world class championship marks are 15 seconds for time aloft and more than 155 feet for distance.

Asked why the contest was called "great" when there were "zillions" of paper airplane contests every year, Hammond replied that the Seattle competition had a better class of sponsors.

Lovering noted that the modern trend is toward "composite" aircraft. He said the Seattle contestants would be permitted to "laminiate" their entries with several layers of paper.

The planes must be strong enough to withstand postal shipment, he pointed out.

DON GRAFF

Leader By Default

Desmond Tutu had some surprising news for Ronald Reagan.

The Nobel Peace Prize winner and Anglican bishop of Johannesburg, now back home in South Africa, reports that during his much-publicized chat with the president in Washington last month he revealed that he did not have a South African passport, only a document describing his nationality as "indeterminable."

The president, according to the bishop, was "visibly shaken."

Welcome to the reality of South Africa, Mr. President. Presumably there are some around the White House and State Department who know what's going on but they obviously hadn't bothered to clue you in. That's "quiet diplomacy" for you.

Bishop Tutu cannot get a passport because he is black, as is three-quarters of the South African population. Blacks legally are not citizens of South Africa but of scattered and largely meaningless tribal "homelands." These homelands are a legal fiction invented by the white regime to deny the black majority political legitimacy and freedom of movement.

It is a fiction the bishop refuses to accept. South Africa, he reiterates in defiance of Pretoria's efforts to decree otherwise, is "my country."

And he has harsh words — "evil, immoral and un-Christian," he says he told the president — for the current American policy of seeking to change that system by quiet persuasion rather than public pressure. The practical effect of this policy, he believes, is to reinforce the status quo in South Africa.

"We have a moral issue here. You have a system that treats human beings as less than human beings. It's a question of whether you support justice or oppose justice," he says.

Defiance and outspokenness have earned Bishop Tutu a reputation among white South Africans as a radical and an advocate of violence.

"When a pile of cups is tottering on the edge of the table and you warn that they will crash to the ground, in South Africa you are blamed when that happens, when your warning was meant to cause people to move the cups to the center of the table, away from disaster," he said.

Eloquence, ecclesiastical status and Nobel celebrity have thrust Bishop Tutu into the leadership of South Africa's blacks. But he is, in his own estimation, "a leader by default, only because nature does not allow a vacuum." The vacuum resulted from imprisonment or exile of so many others who have sought to speak for the black majority.

FBI Admits Mishandling Donovan Probe

WASHINGTON — The FBI has sternly criticized itself after a no-nonsense investigation into complaints that it had either bungled the background investigation of Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan or had deliberately withheld damaging information from the Senate.

In a remarkably blunt confession, an internal FBI analysis states: "This inquiry determined that there can be no question as to the fact that there were administrative shortcomings, certain management deficiencies and inattention to detail."

The FBI report concludes that, while "there is no evidence to indicate intentional wrongdoing by FBI personnel, the investigation disclosed that the SPIN (Special Inquiry) system was ineffective and the results of this matter caused numerous changes in SPIN procedures."

As a prime example of "inattention to detail," the analysis examines the FBI's handling of an allegation that Donovan was an

ROBERT WAGMAN

When A Bank Isn't

WASHINGTON (NEA) — 1984 was a pretty miserable year for U.S. banks. The nation's financial institutions are being challenged by a spate of so-called non-bank banks and federal bank regulators seem to have almost lost control over the nation's banking system.

Last year, Congress wrestled with several of these problems but failed to solve them in the rush for early adjournment.

Almost 80 banks failed last year, the most since the Depression. The biggest potential failure of all, that of Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust, was narrowly avoided in July when the federal government moved in and rescued the Chicago financial institution, the eighth largest in the country.

The banking system is so interconnected that, had Continental been allowed to fail, as Oklahoma City's Penn Square National Bank did two years ago, it could have set off a wave of bank failures.

Part of the problem is that non-banking entities like American Express or Sears have begun offering services that were among retail banks' most profitable.

These days you can walk into a K-Mart in Florida and buy a certificate of deposit which is sent to you by mail from a savings and loan association in Troy, Mich. Since non-banks can do things banks cannot do, such as deal in insurance and real estate and run a travel agency, those that offer banklike services provide consumers with one-stop financial shopping.

These non-bank banks have flourished because of several loopholes in the current major bank regulatory law, the Bank Holding Company Act. Under that law a "bank" is an institution that both accepts deposits and makes commercial loans. If it does one but not the other, then it is not a bank and therefore not subject to the act's regulations.

The Bank Holding Company Act also prohibits interstate banking — a bank cannot open a branch in another state. But if a bank goes to another state and opens a branch that does not both accept deposits and make loans then it is not a "bank."

This development is especially worrisome to smaller banks who see the banking giants getting ready to move into their market areas.

In 1984 Congress tried to amend the law. The House and Senate banking committees agreed the loophole must be closed. But the Senate Banking Committee wanted to allow banks in non-banking areas like real estate and insurance while the House Banking Committee wanted to make sure that banks stick to banking. So the measure failed.

Chairmen of both the Senate and House banking committees have promised legislation in 1985 that would go beyond simply putting a stop to all of this. In fact, the House had been in session for only a few minutes when Rep. Ferdinand St. Germain, D-R.I., House banking chairman, introduced a bill that would not only close the loophole but do it retroactively to July 1, 1983.

But the issue may not be that easy to solve. There are deep divisions within Congress as to how to solve the problem, with one of the biggest splits over whether to make a change retroactive, something Republicans oppose. There will be intense lobbying by very powerful interests on various sides of the argument. This issue could tie the next Congress into knots.

WASHINGTON WORLD

Aides Jumping Ship

By Helen Thomas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan has a plaque on his desk that says, "There's no limit to what you can accomplish if you don't care who gets the credit."

Never were truer words spoken in terms of Reagan and his style of operation. His deference to his aides and his detachment, probably until the big decisions have to be made, boggles the mind.

The announcement that Treasury Secretary Donald Regan and White House chief of staff James Baker were swapping jobs was surprising enough. But even more amazing was the revelation by Regan that he was "the author of the idea."

The president was filled in on the deal several days after his top aides had worked out the switch, making sure that being treasury secretary and chief of staff ensured them the right to sit in on National Security Affairs Council meetings. Both Baker, as a member of the Cabinet, and Regan, who will hold Cabinet rank, also will attend those meetings.

In the past two weeks, Regan, who wants to be an active second term president, has watched a steady exodus of most of his trusted California allies who were with him side by side when he was governor of that state.

He soon will be saying goodbye to Michael Deaver, his right hand man, who is an image maker par excellence, who avidly guarded the gate to the Oval Office. Deaver has decided to take his public relations to the outside world where it will command a six-figure salary.

The loss of Baker will be deeply felt in the West Wing because of his administrative talents. He kept the paper moving and was on top of all domestic problems, particularly dealings with Congress. He kept the ship afloat at times.

Regan is expected to display equal competence although it will take some time to learn the ropes. Above all he must win the confidence of the president who will then give him free rein as he does all his trusted aides.

It is natural for some top appointees to jump ship after four years. For some it is the result of burn out. For others career enhancement, both financially and in terms of opportunity while the White House affiliation is still real, beckons them to the outside world.

Interior Secretary William Clark, who served as Reagan's chief of staff when he was governor, also has thrown in the towel and wants to go home to California.

Education Secretary Terrel Bell was the first of the Cabinet officials to serve notice that four years was enough.

alcoholic and a heavy gambler. Yet the FBI failed to pass this sensitive information on to the full Senate Labor Committee while it was considering his nomination. And though a memo on the subject was sent to the White House, it was badly garbled because of a typist's error.

The memo, delivered to White House counsel Fred Fielding during the nomination process, omitted the gambling allegation. According to FBI documents obtained by my associate Tony Capaccio, Fielding questioned Donovan on his drinking and was assured it was no longer a problem.

But Fielding doesn't remember if he asked about the potentially more damaging accusation — that Donovan gambled heavily. The full Senate Labor Committee didn't learn of either charge until 18 months later, long after Donovan's appointment had been approved by the Senate.

The FBI memo to Fielding, dated Jan. 12, 1981, reported that "one confidential source described Mr.

Donovan as a heavy drinker and alcoholic." The reference, which should have read "heavy gambler and alcoholic," was based on a teletype from the FBI's New York field office. The teletype quoted a confidential source as saying Donovan was "an alcoholic and heavy gambler, often betting $5,000 to $6,000 at a time."

An FBI official at headquarters rewrote this to say: "Additional investigation disclosed allegations of Mr. Donovan's being a heavy gambler and possibly an alcoholic."

The typist, unidentified in the FBI report, who produced the final version of the memo that went to Fielding explained in an affidavit: "I believe I must have transposed the word 'gambler' with the word 'drinker' as I associated an alcoholic with a drinker, not a gambler."

The typist added: "I didn't catch the error when I proofread my typed copy." Neither did the FBI officials — at least two — who reviewed the final memo before it was sent to the White House.

Anthony Adamski, the FBI official in charge of the Donovan background check, told bureau inspectors: "I did tell Fielding of the gambling and drinking problems and in all likelihood mentioned the amounts of money."

As for the drinking accusation, another internal FBI review indicates that Donovan had told Fielding "at one time he had a drinking problem some time ago, but felt he had it under control and in fact served on the board of directors of several alcoholic programs."

Footnote: Fielding told us "we only found out that there was a typographical error well over a year" after the memo was sent. He added: One lesson of the Donovan background checks is "now in certain cases we ask the FBI to check out a corporate entity as well as the individual." If the individual had an active role in the corporation.

A Labor Department spokesman said my questions about Donovan were directed "to the right people" who had "no comment."

Lady Raiders Shake Icicles

Johnson Leads SCC Past CFCC For 1st Conference 'W'

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

Seminole Community College's Lady Raiders were so cold Tuesday night that icicles started forming on their hands. SCC scored just 40 points in that game, a loss to Indian River at Fort Pierce. The Lady Raiders returned home Thursday night and melted away the frost as they built a 42-32 halftime lead en route to a 83-68 victory over Central Florida Community College's Runnin' Patriots in the Mid-Florida Conference opener for both teams at the SCC Health Center. SCC, 8-5 overall, battles nonconference foe Polk tonight at Polk. The Lady Raiders go for their second conference win next Thursday at Florida Junior College. "We made them (Central Florida) play our game tonight," SCC coach Ileana Gallagher said. "We controlled the tempo the entire 40 minutes." Freshman point guard Tammy Johnson was anything but cold Thursday night — although she did have a few "snowbird" layups. The former Lake Howell High star connected on 13 of 19 floor shots and 3 of 4 free throws for a game and season-high 29 points. Johnson also collected six steals and dished out four assists. Johnson's backcourt companion, sophomore Pam Lee, handed out a game-high 10 assists and added 14 points. "The guards (Johnson and Lee) are our two sparkplugs," Gallagher said. "If they're on, the whole team is on." SCC also received outstanding inside play from sophomore forward Juana Coletti and freshman center Kim Lemon. Coletti hit 7 of 12 from the floor and 3 of 4 from the line for 17 points and she also pulled down seven rebounds. Lemon broke out of a shooting slump by hitting 7 of 11 field goals for 14 points and the former Lyman High standout also ripped down 12 rebounds. "Kim (Lemon) is doing a great job on the boards," Gallagher said. "She's getting more faith in her shooting, too. She had an excellent game tonight." The first 10 minutes of the first half were played evenly, but Central Florida rode the strong inside play of Brenda Woolbright to a nine-point lead, 19-12, with 8:30 left in the half. The Lady Raiders responded with six straight points, two by Lee and four by Johnson on assists from Lee, to pull within one, 19-18. Pam Wright's jumper gave the Patriots a 21-18 lead but Coletti came through with a three-point play after grabbing an offensive rebound to tie it at 21-21 with 5:53 left in the half. The two teams traded baskets until it was tied at 27-27. SCC then got its fast break going and ran off 10 straight points to take a 37-27 lead. A jumper by Johnson broke the tie and made it

J.C. Basketball

29-27 and Johnson dropped in a layup after a steal by Coletti to make it 31-27. Johnson then came up with a steal and Lemon hit a layup for a 33-27 lead. Elizabeth Dietrick made it three steals in a row for SCC and she was fouled after making the steal. Dietrick made both free throws for a 35-27 SCC lead and another layup by Johnson after a steal gave the Raiders a 37-27 lead with 1:16 left in the half. Johnson pumped in 18 of her 29 points in the first half and Coletti added eight as the Raiders

Tribe Buries Lions; Rams Top Patriots

In just about all of its games this season, the Seminole High freshman team has put its opponents away after just one quarter. It was the same old story Thursday night as the Tribe frosh ran up a 26-7 lead after the first period en route to a 80-49 victory over Oviedo's Lions at Seminole High.

Seminole, which improved to 10-0 with the win, built its lead to 45-16 at halftime and 68-28 after three quarters. The Tribe returns to action Monday at Lake Howell.

Andre Whitney led the way for the Seminoles Thursday with 21 points and 12 assists while 6-6 center Craig Walker tossed in 19 points and ripped down 14 rebounds. Jeff Thompson added 13 points for the Tribe while Jeff Blake contributed 10 and Sam Edwards dished out six assists.

John Pettit poured in a game-high 23 points to lead the way for the Lions.

Harmon, Jordan Take Lone Wins

ORLANDO — After Rob Harmon and Jerry Jordan it was all downhill for the Oviedo Lions' wrestling team Thursday night against Jones. And since Harmon wrestles at 108 and Jordan at 115, it was a pretty long tumble.

Harmon posted a superior 20-4 decision over Sky King and Jordan pinned Gordon Coleman at 4:33 for the Lions only points in a 54-11 setback to Jones at Jones High School.

Harmon, who won the Lyman Christmas Tournament, built an early lead with takedowns and reversals en route to his five-point decision. Jordan, another Lyman champion, had an easy time with Coleman before pinning him 33 seconds into the third period.

Oviedo travels to Apopka Saturday. Tonight, Lake Brantley joins Bishop Moore for a tri-meet in DeLand. Winter Park and Oak Ridge go to Lake Howell for another tri-meet.

Saturday, Seminole entertains Leesburg. Lake Mary hosts Merritt Island (2 p.m.) and Miami Sunaet (6:30 p.m.). Several county teams will compete in the junior varsity tournament at Orlando Edgewater.

Tonight's Tip-Offs

Rod Henderson (44) goes high in the air to block a shot by Lyman's Reggie Douglas. Henderson, bothered by a severe ankle sprain, will not suit up tonight when Seminole travels to Daytona Beach to play Mainland. The 6-3 sophomore center injured his ankle in a collision with teammate Jo Jo McCloud during a loss to DeLand last Friday. In other action prep basketball tonight, Lake Brantley travels to Lyman for an inter-county clash, Lake Mary hosts tall and talented Spruce Creek, Lake Howell travels to Apopka and Oviedo journeys to Leesburg. All prep tip-offs are set for 8 p.m. At Lyman and Lake Mary, varsity girls game will precede the boys at 6:15 p.m. Seminole's girls take on Mainland Saturday at 2 p.m.

Hicks Critique: Mouthy Clayton Needs Muzzle

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) — Dwight Hicks has looked at enough film of the Dolphins to consider himself a movie critic — especially of Miami receiver Mark Clayton.

Of course Clayton has a tendency to stand out since he caught more touchdowns passes this season than any other receiver in the history of the NFL.

Hicks and his defensive teammates with the San Francisco 49ers will make up half the key matchup in next week's Super Bowl with Clayton, his fellow Miami receivers, and record-setting quarterback Dan Marino making up the other half.

So it is clear that Hicks has a special interest in Clayton.

But the thing that has caught Hicks' eye has nothing to do with Clayton's ability to catch the football. It has to do with his habit of chatting at the end of a play.

"You can see it on film," said Hicks, the 49ers free safety who found himself also at cornerback late in the year. "He (Clayton) is always talking.

"He's talking to the defensive players and he's talking to the officials wanting pass interference.

"He has too much talent to be doing that. He doesn't need to do that. What we are going to do is to try to shut him up."

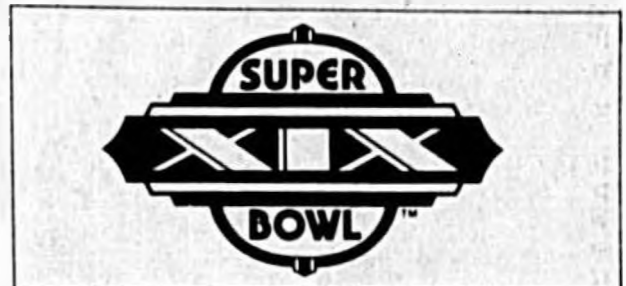

If the 49ers manage to do that it will be quite an achievement since Clayton has not been kept quiet all that much lately. And neither has Mark Duper, the other Miami wide receiver superthreat.

Together they caught 144 passes for 2,695 yards and 28 touchdowns during the regular season and then they kept right on going in the playoffs.

The 49ers give Clayton and Duper as much credit for Miami's offensive successes as they do Marino.

"Marino throws to a spot more than any quarterback I've seen," said Hicks. "What you have to do is throw his timing off. If you do that then he doesn't know where he is throwing it.

"It seems to me that most of the teams they play don't play good techniques on pass defense. But to make those techniques work you do have to have good pressure on Marino. That's the key.

But Marino will throw it into places some quarterbacks won't and expect his receivers to get it."

In addition, however, Hicks insists that a physical brand of play is required to get the attention of the Miami receivers which is where the business of trying to keep Clayton quiet comes in.

"If a receiver winds up running free in the secondary and can stretch out for a ball without anybody hitting him, then he gets confident he can do that all day," Hicks said.

"Their receivers are coming into this game filled with confidence. What we have to do is tap them on the heads a few times. That makes a receiver lose his confidence fast and his head gets on a swivel looking for the other guys."

And the sooner Hicks gets a chance to demonstrate his style of play, the better he will like it.

"I'd rather lose the toss and play defense right at the start," he said. "I'd rather start the game on the field than on the sidelines.

"But most of all you have to be ready to play every down against the Dolphins. You look at the game against Dallas (the Dolphins last regular season game).

"Dallas got behind by 14, but then they caught up and held Miami for a while. But then the Dolphins hit for the big plays. They are home run hitters and they go for the big ones.

"What we have to do is not lose our confidence if we give up a big play. But if we shut them down for a while we can't get overconfident because we know they can strike at any time."

Dave Johnson Still Hits Bullets, But Doesn't Foresee Comeback

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Senior Editor/Sports

NEW YORK (UPI) — There's no Jim Brown in Dave Johnson.

You're not going to catch him challenging some young buck like Tony Gwynn or Ryne Sandberg simply because he hit four bullets, handled second better than he ever did in his prime and was named MVP over a whole flock of Hall of Famers in a ball game a few weeks ago.

This all happened on the island of Maui just before the Christmas holiday.

The reason you didn't hear much or anything at all about it is because the game between a group of overage U.S. All-Stars and some of Japan's best ballplayers had no great significance and because every event taking place in the mid-Pacific isn't always widely reported here.

Possibly the most important aspect of the game was that it enriched the Association of Professional Ball Players of America by $10,000. Thanks largely to the good offices of Cappy Harada.

The APBPA is strictly non-profit. It helps former ballplayers who are down and out and have no other place to turn. Harada, who was with the San Francisco Giants so many years, serving as former owner Horace Stoneham's right-hand man, also helps many people. He saw to it the APBPA benefited through the Japanese television company which sponsored the game and beamed it back to Tokyo.

The other notable side to the contest was the performance of

Baseball

Dave Johnson. He was tremendous. Maybe more than that considering he'll be 42 in three weeks. He hung up his glove six years ago and he isn't one of these guys who jumps in the cage and takes batting practice every chance he can even though he could do that if he wanted now as manager of the New York Mets.

Johnson went 4-for-5 in the game won by the Americans, 15-10.

He had a line drive double and three line drive singles, turning in the defensive play of the game at second base when he dove in the hole to grab a bid for a base hit by Sadaharu Oh, Japan's all-time home run king who manages the Tokyo Giants now.

"The way he hit the ball was one thing," says Mel Stottlemyre, the former Yankee pitcher who now is Johnson's pitching coach with the Mets and who also took part in the game in Maui. "But I couldn't believe that play he made on Oh in the field. It would've been spectacular even for someone in our league right now."

Stottlemyre shakes his head talking about it.

"And every one of his hits was a rocket," Stottlemyre adds. "I guess we'll be hearing about those four hits the whole year now."

Johnson's wife, Mary Nan, and their son, David, 18, and two daughters, Dawn 16, and Andrea, 12, also were on hand, and when they told him how proud they were of him and how good he had looked at bat, he made out it was nothing.

"Once you learn how to drive, you never forget," he laughed.

Get a load of some of the Hall of Famers who were Johnson's teammates in the game. Men like Willie Mays, Hank Aaron, Ernie Banks, Frank Robinson, Lou Brock, Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale.

There were others, too, like Billy Williams, Jim Fregosi, Willie McCovey, Clete Boyer, Ron Fairly, Jim Davenport, Bill Mazeroski, Bill Freehan, Andy Etchebarren, Al Downing, Camilo Pascual and Claude Osteen.

Johnson, who played for the Tokyo Giants in Japan in 1975 and 1976 after he was released by the Atlanta Braves for whom he hit 43 homers in 1973, had as many friends on one side as he did on the other in the Maui game.

Before the contest, he happened to be talking with members of the Japanese TV crew and standing under the Japanese flag draped over their dugout. While he was doing that, the rest of the U.S. players pulled up in the team bus and needed him.

"Hey, who's side you on?" jabbed Robinson, who played in four World Series with Johnson while both were with Baltimore.

"That's right," chimed in Etchebarren, another former teammate of his with the Orioles. "Are you with them or with us?" Johnson took it all good-humoredly.

McEnroe Snaps Racket, Then Jarryd

NEW YORK (UPI) — Trouble for a tennis player is tossing the ball in the air for a serve and watching the head of the racket fly higher than the ball.

Even bigger trouble is dropping the first set and falling behind 3-0 in the second against an opponent playing the match of his life.

Unfortunately for Anders Jarryd, who was enjoying this series of calamities, John McEnroe thrives on trouble and eventually was able to overcome both his poor start and his surly temper.

McEnroe, continuing to endure problems with Swedes, lost eight games in a row against Jarryd Thursday night but still managed to fight back for a 2-6, 6-4, 6-2 victory that carried him into the semifinals of the $400,000 Masters.

McEnroe's next opponent Saturday will be yet another Swede, Mats Wilander, who also was put to a stern test Thursday afternoon before subduing Johan Kriek, 6-4, 3-6, 7-6. After surviving three match points in the 12th game of the final set, Wilander took the tie-break 7-3.

The height of frustration for McEnroe was reached in the second game of the second set when he tossed the ball for a serve, only to have the head of his racket break off from the handle. He was assessed a fault and Jarryd broke him on the next point.

"I didn't even know where it was," McEnroe said of his split racket. "The way things were going, if it landed on my head I would have lost 6-0."

After dropping the next game as well, the eighth in a row he lost, McEnroe fought back to even the set at 3-3 and a break in the ninth game allowed him to win the set.

McEnroe, who vented his anger at officials, photographers and fans during the contest, then raced to a 5-1 lead in the third set, conceding only four points on four service games in that set.

Referring to the seemingly hopeless situation he faced when trailing 3-0 in the second set, McEnroe said, "At that point my mind was a jumble. I was just hoping for a chance to get back in the match and I was hoping he would choke a little. That's what happened."

"I can't remember a match being down a set and trailing 0-3."

McEnroe had strong doubts he would be able to pull out the match, but he added, "You never give up. A guy can hurt himself at 5-0. You never give up to the last point."

Jarryd, who won the first set from McEnroe 6-1 the last time they met in singles, two months ago in Stockholm, had visions of completing a huge upset.

"I started to think that I was maybe going to win the match," he said. "Then I started to play bad. I don't know why I did."

The semifinal bracket was to be completed today with Ivan Lendl playing Joakim Nystrom in the afternoon and Jimmy Connors facing Elliot Teltscher at night.

MCENROE WINS AWARD

NEW YORK (UPI) — John McEnroe, winner of nine of the 11 Grand Prix tournaments he entered in 1984, Thursday was selected the Volvo Grand Prix Player of the Year.

The 25-year-old New Yorker had an overall match record of 79-3 for 1984 and he won two Grand Slam events.

Parramore's 36 Points Knock Off Lady Silver Hawks, 74-60

APOPKA — Jackie Parramore scored 36 points and the Apopka Lady Blue Darters withstood a furious Lake Howell fourth-quarter rally to knock off the Lady Silver Hawks, 74-60, in prep basketball Thursday at Apopka High.

"The girls played real well in the second half," said Lake Howell coach Dennis Codrey about his 3-11 Lady Hawks. "It was a long way back."

Parramore made it that way. "She scored outside, inside... wherever she wanted to," said Codrey.

Apopka took a 16-13 first quarter lead and lengthened it to 37-19 at halftime. "We had a terrible second quarter and they had a great one," said Codrey about the 21-6 difference.

Lake Howell, which received 51 points from Jolee and Kellee Johnson, Cara Stanley and Patti Rae, pulled back into the game in the second half. The Lady Hawks cut the deficit to eight points in the fourth quarter but couldn't get any closer.

Rae led the Hawks with 15 points while Kellee Johnson tallied 14 and Stanley and Jolee Johnson 11 apiece. Jolee Johnson had four assists. Kellee Johnson and Tamara Lewis had four steals each.

Lake Howell, 1-6 in the Five Star Conference, hosts Seabreeze Monday.

Layden Leaves Before Setback

United Press International
Faced with total exasperation at Inglewood, Calif. Thursday night, Frank Layden did the only sensible thing. He left.

As in walked out of the building. With 2:23 left in the Los Angeles Lakers' 120-112 victory over Utah, Jazz Coach Layden strolled past the official scorer's table to the Lakers' bench, shook the hand of Coach Pat Riley, and headed for a Forum exit.

"I didn't have to leave, I wanted to leave," Layden said on his way out the door.

Asked if his premature departure had to do with the game, he replied, "No. Not really. I just want to get out of here."

As it was, he was on the verge of being ejected by the officials. Both Layden and his son, Scott, an assistant coach, had argued continuously with the referees and earned technical fouls.

After scoring just six points, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar left the game with four fouls. When the Lakers extended their lead to 20 points, Riley brought back Abdul-Jabbar to give him a chance to extend his streak of consecutive double-scoring games to scoring to 573.

Abdul-Jabbar picked up his fifth foul with 7:23 left in the game and in the next 1:12 scored four points — giving him 10 — and promptly left the game.

In other NBA games, Seattle beat Golden State 89-86, and Dallas topped Kansas City 117-110 in overtime.

Barrasso Blanks Bruins, 3-0

United Press International
Early in the 1977 regulation hockey season — when Tom Barrasso was in a Boston-suburb junior high school — the Boston Bruins were shut out by then-Montreal Canadian goaltender Ken Dryden at Boston Garden.

In the time it took for Boston to be blanked in home regulation play — 298 Boston Garden games — Barrasso grew up and became a star goaltender for the Buffalo Sabres.

When Barrasso returned to his home-area Thursday night, in net for the sizzling Sabres, he pulled off the regulation-season shutout that had eluded NHL visitors to the Garden since October 6, 1977.

In backstopping Buffalo to the 3-0 triumph, Barrasso registered just 20 saves.

In other NHL games Thursday night, Edmonton downed Montreal 5-2, Philadelphia hammered Chicago 6-1, the New York Islanders edged New Jersey 3-2, and St. Louis stopped Minnesota 5-3.

Gregg Puts Senior Bowl At Top

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — As far as college all-star games are rated, Green Bay Packers Coach Forrest Gregg insists Saturday's Senior Bowl is at the top of the list.

"A lot of these kids are not all-world or something, but there are a lot of good football players here," said Gregg, who coaches the South. "The biggest difference between the Senior Bowl and the other all-star games is that NFL coaches are preparing the teams."

"This is a pro-style camp and the scouts get a chance to see these players, many of whom will go pretty high in the draft, performing under pro-style conditions."

"All these kids have worked hard," said Gregg. "They came here to make an impression (on the scouts) and that's what they'll be aiming for on Saturday."

"The really fun thing about this game is that you really don't have time to get to know your players," he said. "You haven't seen them under fire so you don't know what they are going to do."

Gregg and North Coach Jim Hanifan of the St. Louis Cardinals agreed that the quality of the squads is not what it was a decade or so ago before the field of top-flight college seniors was drained by other all-star games.

Pills Don't Equal Milk As Source For Calcium

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 67. Since I do not drink milk, I take additional calcium. I bought 100 percent natural oyster-shell calcium. Each tablet has 625 mg., but it contains no vitamin D, which I am now told must be included for the body to assimilate the calcium. I do take a preparation that contains 400 IU of vitamin D, but it contains no calcium.

Am I getting enough vitamin D to assimilate the oyster-shell calcium? Will taking the oyster shell have any adverse effect on my body?

DEAR READER — If you don't use dairy products, you probably do need to take calcium supplements. Authorities studying osteoporosis (dissolving bones) have stated recently that postmenopausal women who do not take estrogen should get 1,500 mg. of calcium a day. Your 625 mg. oyster-shell (calcium carbonate) preparation contains 250 mg. of calcium. The rest of its weight is from the carbon and oxygen atoms included in the chemical compound. To get 1,500 mg. of calcium a day, you would need to take six of these a day.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My 21-year-old son was recently diagnosed as having acromegaly, a disorder of the pituitary gland. After reading that this disease could cause blindness, heart problems, high blood pressure and diabetes, in addition to enlarging his hands and facial features, I was dismayed that the doctor suggested that we do nothing at this time, but take a watch-and-wait attitude. The doctor wants to rerun the same tests again in four months and compare them with the recent tests. He said that an operation could have several undesirable side effects that would require my son to be on medication for the rest of his life. Will this disease burn itself out as the doctor said? If so, how long will it take?

DEAR READER — I cannot vouch for the correctness of the diagnosis. Advanced cases of acromegaly are easy to diagnose because of the enlargement of the nose, face, head, hands and feet. Acromegaly is caused by continued oversecretion of growth hormones after the long bones have matured and don't grow in length anymore.

The disease does not burn itself out or go away. It often progresses slowly and may not be diagnosed for years after it has begun.

Since your son is young, and considering the nature of the disease and its rarity, I must recommend that you seek a consultation at a large medical center.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Bridge teams representing 55 countries competed in the World Team Olympiad held in Seattle last fall. The United States open team did manage to reach the final eight. Although favored against Austria in that quarterfinal match, they lost by a very narrow margin.

Earlier in the week there had been some indications that the U.S. would not have smooth sailing. Here is an interesting deal that the U.S. played against Belgium in the qualifying rounds.

The South player for Belgium was Olivier Neve. The bidding was as shown. When the American East-West players reached a final contract of six clubs, Neve doubled. When expert players freely bid a slam, the double of that contract is seldom based on power, instead, from the days of bridge infancy, that double has called for an unusual lead. That was how Neve meant it, and that was how his partner Philippe Coenraets interpreted it. The opening lead was the two of hearts. Neve ruffed and returned a diamond. North won the king and gave South another heart ruff, scoring 300 for the Belgian pair.

There really wasn't much to the hand. What was surprising was that Neve's U.S. counterpart did not duplicate Neve's double. Had he done so, the team result would have been a tie. As it was, the Belgian East-West pair in the other room was allowed to make the slam, since North made the normal lead of his partner's bid suit.

Gardening

It's Time To Start Planning Your Backyard Spring Garden

The thermometer may not say so, but spring is not too far away. And, it's time to start planning your backyard vegetable garden. This may sound familiar to experienced gardeners, but a brief review shouldn't hurt anyone. Maybe it will help those trying vegetable gardening for the first time.

Nearly all vegetables can be grown in our area, if you plant them in the right seasons. The important thing is to grow vegetables that you and your family enjoy.

The first consideration in planning your garden is where to put it. You want it fairly close to your house, so it's handy to work in. And, you want it near an outside water faucet to make irrigation easier. The thing you really want to be sure about is proper light. If possible, locate the garden so it gets full sunlight all day. Unfortunately, some of us don't enjoy that luxury. Thus, we have to choose between morning sun and afternoon sun. Fruiting crops, such as tomatoes, corn, cucumbers, and melons, will have to be planted where you get the most sun. Leaf and root crops generally can stand a little shade.

You may want to fence off your garden to keep out dogs and children. In some areas of the county, wild animals, such as rabbits, can be a problem, too. A fence also can serve as a trellis for pole beans, tomatoes, and other crops that need support. You may need to protect your crops from nearby trees and shrub roots which will compete with vegetables for available nutrients and water. To give your crops the edge, dig a trench about one-and-one-half to two feet deep all around the garden. Line one side of the trench with roofing paper or heavy plastic film, then refill the trench. This forms a barrier against the roots of nearby plants.

Naturally, good soil is important. Most of us have to do the best we can with the kind of soil we have. However, we can give our gardens a real boost by mixing in plenty of organic material, such as compost, manure, sawdust or anything else you can think of. With such soil amendments, we can grow vegetables even if our own soil is nothing but sand.

Before you ever plant the first seeds, you need to think about the vegetable varieties you'll choose to grow. You could walk into the nearest garden supply store and buy whatever you see. But, remember that vegetable varieties differ in quality, disease resistance, and climatic adaptability, which can be vitally important. Be sure you select varieties that are recommended for our area.

Proper garden design can spell the difference between success and failure. Your garden plan should include several things — the location of each crop — the amount to be planted — the planting date — and, the variety of each vegetable you intend to grow. Try to plan your garden so crops that will be planted on about the same date, and reach maturity about the same time, are close together. By setting up different groups, or blocks, within the garden, you'll be able to keep your garden in production as much as possible.

Alfred Bessesen
Urban Horticulturist

Within each block, arrange crops by size. Starting from east to west, plant low-growing types, such as radishes, turnips, and lettuce, along one side. Plant those of medium height, such as peppers and squash, in the middle of the block. Sweet corn, pole beans, and stake tomatoes can be planted along the other side. This avoids having the low-growing vegetables stuck in the shade of taller plants. Run your rows north and south, so each row will receive the same amount of sun.

You can plant two or more crops in a single row, too, as long as they require about the same spacing. You can even mix crops of different sizes in the same row. For example, you could interplant a fast growing crop, like radishes, with a slow-growing crop. The radishes would be picked before the slower maturing plants need the space.

Don't plant too much of one crop at a time, especially those vegetables that must be eaten shortly after they're harvested. To have fresh produce over a longer period, plant smaller amounts of the same crop at 10- to 14 day intervals. Beans, sweet corn, and peas fall into this category. Be sure you plant sweet corn in blocks rather than in single rows. You'll get better pollination and help produce more corn.

It's best to design your garden so you can rotate crops from year to year. If you avoid growing the same crops, or the same type of crop, in the same spot more than once every three or four years, you may reduce the build-up of soil borne diseases which can reduce yields or even wipe out your crop. Now's the time to get a head start on your garden — on paper. It's too early to be planting most crops, and setting up a good design — all beamed to increase your chances of producing a successful spring vegetable garden.

Happy gardening!

tion were the Padgetts, Henry Basinger, Jay Welty and Kerwin Perry.

King and Wilma were married on Jan. 5, 1925, in Arab, Ala. They have three sons and three daughters, 17 grandchildren, and 28 great-grandchildren. Couple Has One Too Many Faiths To Fit Inside Church

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Please print this for people who want to marry outside their religion, because that is our situation and we don't know which way to turn.

We are both 21 and in college. I was raised a Roman Catholic and the girl I want to marry was raised a Jew. We love each other and never once have argued about religion. However, her parents aren't too happy about her marrying a Catholic, and my parents aren't exactly thrilled with my marrying a Jew.

I have no desire to turn Jewish, and my fiancée doesn't want to turn Catholic. We want to be married in either a church or a synagogue, but no priest will marry us, and neither will a rabbi. Who will, then?

If we have children, we plan to expose them to both religions and let them decide what they want to be.

Any ideas?

IN LOVE IN BOSTON

DEAR IN LOVE: If there's a rabbi or a Roman Catholic priest who will perform a mixed marriage in a synagogue or a church, I don't know where he (or she) is.

You may have to settle for a civil ceremony, but if you want a religious ceremony, try the Unitarian Church.

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Bernie Saber in Scottsdale": When we were traveling in Israel (in 1970), our tour guide pointed out a cattle farm and said, "These cows are called 'Goldsteins' instead of 'Holsteins' — they say 'Noo' instead of 'Moo.'"

ESTHER IN MANHATTAN BEACH

DEAR ESTHER: I think we've milked this item dry — and that's no bull.

DEAR ABBY: As a

horticulturist, may I add my opinion on whether a tomato is a fruit or a vegetable?

Botanically speaking, a fruit is considered to be a mature ovary of a flower, which is what a tomato is. It contains seeds just as all fruits do (except parthenocarpic fruits, which are bred to be seedless). There are many types of fruit. For example, an apple is a pome fruit and a peach is a drupe fruit. A tomato is actually a berry!

However, commonly speaking, a tomato is treated as a vegetable because people do not eat them like other fruits. Many other vegetables that are botanically classified as fruits are actually vegetables.

Cucumber, squash, pumpkin, pepper and eggplant are also fruits, but are treated as vegetables. On the other hand, there are some vegetables that are not considered fruits. For example: Brussels sprouts are buds, lettuce and cabbage are leaves, and broccoli and cauliflower are flowers! It matters little what you call them as long as you're happy when you eat them.

F. PARIVAR, DEPARTMENT OF HORTICULTURE, UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS

DEAR F. PARIVAR: I give up. Pass the crow.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding "Dog-Tired in Pennsylvania": I also had the problem of dogs coming up on my property to do their dirty business. Then I heard about a solution that really works.

Sprinkle mothballs (or crystals) around the shrubbery and bushes the dogs frequent. Do this every three or four weeks and you'll have no problem. Dogs hate this odor. It will also discourage rabbits and chipmunks.

DOG-TIRED IN MICHIGAN

DEAR ABBY: I am sending you an article I clipped from an American Legion magazine. If you print it, our trade balance might improve, which would be a great service for our country. Thank you.

ROY B. IN HUNTSVILLE, ALA.

ONLY IN AMERICA

"He drove his German car made of Swedish steel and interior of Argentine leather to a gasoline station, where he filled up with Arab oil shipped in a Liberian tanker and bought two French tires, composed of rubber from Sri Lanka.

"At home, he dropped his Moroccan briefcase, hung up his Scottish tweed wool coat, removed his Italian shoes and Egyptian cotton shirt, then donned a Hong Kong robe and matching slippers from Taiwan.

"More comfortable now, he poured a cup of hot Brazilian coffee into an English coffee mug, set a Mexican placemat on an Irish linen tablecloth atop a Danish table varnished with linseed oil from India. Then he filled his Austrian pipe with Turkish tobacco, lit it, and picked up a Japanese ballpoint pen with which he wrote a letter to his congressman demanding to know why the United States has an unfavorable balance of trade."

Hexum's Replacement Will Fill His Own Shoes

By Vernon Scott
UPI Hollywood Reporter
 HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Anthony Hamilton, who replaced Jon-Erik Hexum in the "Under Cover" TV series, has not seen and will not see the eight episodes Hexum made before his death last fall.

Hamilton knew Hexum in New York when they were struggling actors and models. They were acquaintances, not friends, who met in acting classes.

Hamilton was shocked and dismayed at news that Hexum had killed himself accidentally on the set when he fired the wadding from a blank cartridge into his brain while fooling around with a prop pistol last October.

"It was such a senseless death, it made people angry," Hamilton said.

"I get nervous when I talk about his death. It had a profound effect on me. There were days, and there still are, when I think about it and can't believe it. Jon-Erik's death was completely futile.

"It never occurred to me for a moment to think about taking over in the series. It was never a consideration, not even when 20th Century Fox sought me out to play another, similar character.

"In fact, I declined when they asked me the first time. Then I thought it over and concluded if anyone were going to join the show, it would be better if the actor were someone Jon-Erik knew.

"For me it was a very sensitive, tricky situation. I met with Glen Larson, the producer, and discussed the type of person who would take over. It seemed the right thing for me to do.

"In life destiny sometimes hands you something and if it's right, you do it. I really had no desire to be in a TV series. I believe if Jon-Erik is watching, he would be pleased I'm doing it.

"We vied for a lot of roles at one point. He was a colleague of mine with the same acting coach in New York and we saw each other quite a bit. We knew and respected each other."

Larson talked to dozens of actors, testing some, before flagging down Hamilton. After their meeting, Hamilton rehearsed a scene with co-star Jennifer O'Neill, and within 18 hours of his arrival in Hollywood from New York, Hamilton signed aboard.

Before accepting his part in the weekly spy thriller, Hamilton had never seen "Under Cover." He hasn't watched any of the first eight episodes in which Hexum co-starred with Jennifer.

"I don't want to see them for personal and professional reasons," Hamilton explained. "I'm playing a different guy, an outsider who is much more his own man, from what I understand, than the role Jon-Erik played."

Hamilton, a native of England who was reared in Australia, is a 6-foot-2, muscular ex-ballet dancer who made his living modeling before he turned to acting last year.

He dropped out of school to become a ballet dancer at age 12 and quit dancing professionally when he was 20. For the past decade he has traveled all over the world modeling.

"Dancing was too confining and regimented for me," he said. "It was like living life with one hand tied behind your back.

"I became a model not because I was interested in fashion or styles, but because I knew it was a good way to see the world. And I was right. I worked in New York, London, Moscow, Hong Kong, Tokyo and all over Europe and Africa.

"It gave me independence. I could work when I wanted, where I wanted and as often as I liked. The money was good too. I even worked in Hollywood as a model and hoped to get started as an actor. But I didn't like the parts that came my way. So I refused them."

One part he did accept was the title role in the TV movie "Samson," which led to another TV film, "Mirrors." For three weeks Hamilton worked in "Mirrors" at the same time he was appearing in the first episode of "Under Cover."

Jamille Haddad digs up an ancient Egyptian art form - fused glass.

Fused Glass

Artist Revives Medium That Time Glossed Over

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

Adventuristic, artistic types are experimenting with a revived art form that fascinated the Egyptians thousands of years ago, but for unknown reasons fell from favor about a century after its development in 1000 A.D.

The medium is fused glass and it's an alternative for the glass artist bored with more traditional creative outlets.

That's how Sanford's Jamille Haddad described the craft that has been his passion and profession for the past three years. Haddad, 35, said his stylized, multi-color melted glass masks, wall hangings, tiles and plates draw interest at shows, but the public isn't familiar with the art form and often thinks his works are made of clay or acrylic.

The fused glass revival began in the U.S. about three years ago and getting in on the groundfloor of the movement is part of the fun, Haddad said. "Thousands of years ago I don't know how the Egyptians did it. It's beyond me, but it's fun and something different. I was getting tired of the lead line in stained glass. I just wanted to explore. It's not as easy as stained glass, because there's a lot of experimenting to do. There's a lot that really isn't known about the art and that's really exciting in a way. You can come up with different things that haven't been known before. Fused glass pieces can be incorporated into leaded stained glass pieces.

"Fusing was forgotten about until this century. Then an Oregon glass company started the movement to promote their glass," Haddad said. "It's just starting to take off, but in a few years it will be recognized as the 'new glass medium.'"

Haddad said the process is similar to stained glass, except not as precise.

"Fused glass is basically taking glass sheets used in stained glass work, testing them to make sure the compatible — by compatible I mean they all have to cool off at the same rate to keep the finished piece from cracking as it cools. You can buy glass that has already been tested.

"You cut the glass to fit into the design you want. The cuts don't have to be as precise as in leaded stained glass work, because the pieces are going to be melted together. I usually put down two layers of glass and then stack the design on top of that. That's to control the shape, so it doesn't spread out too much as it is fired in the kiln," Haddad said.

To form plates or masks, Haddad places the glass into a clay mold.

Each piece of glass must be free of fingerprints or else they will show up in the finished work, he said. And the surface has to be treated with an over-glaze that keeps a discoloring scum from forming on the surface of the glass as it is heated up to about 1,500 degrees.

The heat process starts slowly until the kiln reaches 1,000 degrees and then, Haddad said, he cranks up the heat for a quick cooking at 1,500 to 1,600 degrees.

"When the glass gets to the texture I want I shut off the kiln, vent it and let it come down quickly to about Jamille Haddad shows off fused glass masks created in his Sanford studio. Before he became involved in the revival of this ancient Egyptian art form, Haddad made more traditional stained glass works, like those shown in the background. But he has since been drawn to create the more exotic melted glass pieces.

'King' Gives 4,434th Performance

By William C. Trott
United Press International

Yul Brynner began his final run in "The King and I" Monday night on Broadway, giving his 4,434th performance as King Mongkut. After the show, Brynner, who has been performing the role for 33 years, said, "When I first played the role I was too young. I originally painted age lines on the King's face. Time has taken care of that." Brynner, who once smoked five packs of cigarettes a day and recently recovered from lung cancer, was honored with letters from Gov. Mario Cuomo, Mayor Ed Koch and President Reagan. "Your longtime success in 'The King and I' is no puzzlement to your audiences," Reagan said in a letter that producer Mitch Leigh read after the curtain calls. The opening night audience included Carol Channing, Whoopi Goldberg and Alexander Godunov.

three times," he said. Asked how he felt about the problems of a celebrity, Heaton said, "I've been a public figure for most of my life. It has its advantages and disadvantages and believe me the advantages outweigh the disadvantages."

Actor Charlton Heston exulted Tuesday not so much at being on the stage as at being on a London stage. "If you haven't acted on the stage in London you haven't acted on the stage," he said in announcing his London theater debut in "The Caine Mutiny Court-Martial." Beside Heston was Ben Cross of "Chariots of Fire" fame, who will be his co-star when the play opens Feb. 28. Heston charmed the mob of reporters at the news conference as he talked about his career, which has seen him in 50 movies and as many stage roles. "I feel I have another 'Macbeth' in me — I've done five — and I've played the president of the United States

Telly Savalas will be returning to television as Kojak in a television movie, "Kojak: The Belarus File," to air on CBS Feb. 16 but he says he never really left the role. "Telly Savalas is Kojak and Kojak is Telly Savalas," he said. "If people know Kojak, they know me. If they love Kojak, they love me. And if I get tired of Kojak, I get tired of me." Savalas is Kojak all over the world. "I have to be a bit amazed," he said, "when I go to the Soviet Union and people are calling out 'Kojak' and mobbing me. In Leningrad, the people watch bootleg 'Kojak' broadcasts from across the Finnish border. It's impossible to bury Kojak, so I might as well bring him back."

Princess Margaret, recovering from an operation in which part of her left lung was removed, has been told to ditch her long trademark cigarette holder and give up smoking. British newspapers reported. Margaret, Queen Elizabeth II's younger sister, sometimes smokes as many as two to three packs a day and her father, King George VI, died of lung cancer but doctors say the portion of the lung they removed was not cancerous. A spokeswoman for the princess refused to confirm media reports that doctors had ordered Margaret to give up smoking. Her two children, Viscount Linley, 23, and Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones, 20, flew back to London from Venice, where they had been on an educational tour.

"Dynasty" star Joan Collins, in London to film a television special, returned to her alma mater, the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, and visited with Principal Oliver Neville. She recalled that her first report card from the school said, "Joan has a good personality and lots of stage presence. But she must watch her voice projection or she will wind up in films and TV and that would be a pity"

Martin Sheen will star in "Zigo's Choice," a CBS television movie that begins filming next month. He will play a New York detective tracking down the "Son of Sam" killer...

'Hot Pursuit' Was Cold With Viewers

DEAR DICK — I am very concerned. I would like to know why "Hot Pursuit" was taken off the air. C.P., Richburg, S.C.

Don't be concerned, because it furrows the brow. "Hot Pursuit" was very unpopular with the viewing public. According to the Nielsen ratings, it wound up in 68th place out of 70 shows — only "Paper Dolls" and "Glitter" were lower.

DEAR DICK — I enjoy watching "Charlie's Angels" on re-runs, and so does my sister and brother. But we don't know who played Charlie. H.L., Houston, Texas.

DEAR DICK — Can you tell me if William Daniels, who plays Dr. Craig on "St. Elsewhere," is the voice of Kitt on "The Knight Rider" show? K.H., Springfield, Mo.

I guess these two questions are among the most frequently asked, and I like to answer them from time to time, for new readers. John Forsythe, now the head of the "Dynasty" dynasty, supplied the Charlie voice. And, yes, that is the voice of William Daniels issuing from the car computer on "Knight Rider."

DEAR DICK — A friend of mine says Vicki Lawrence, who was on "Mama's Family" and Carol Burnett's show, is Carol's niece. I say she is no relation. Who is right? M.B.Z., Simi Valley, Calif.

Here is another frequent question, although usually the rumor is that Vicki and Carol are sisters. But, no, you are correct, they are totally unrelated.

DEAR DICK — In the Charlie Chan mystery movies, who starred as the original Chan? And who were the subsequent stars who portrayed Charlie Chan? There were three, I believe. One is Sidney Toler. R.C.R., Houston.

Actually, there were many more than three — but only three main ones. There was, first, a serial in 1928, starring somebody named George Kuwa. Then two other forgotten actors, Kamiyama Sojin and E.L. Park, played Chan. Warner Oland, however, is the man most of us think of as the first Chan; he starred in 16 films. Toler came next, in 22 films, and Roland Winters did six. Later, on TV, J. Carroll Naish played him; and, in '71, the late Ross Martin played him. Finally, Peter Ustinov played Chan in a sorry film, "Charlie Chan and the Curse Of the Dragon Queen."

DEAR DICK — A few weeks ago, the TV movie

"Fatal Vision" was shown. Colette McDonald was one of the characters. I would like to know who played that part, and could you tell me what other shows she has been on. H.B., Kalamazoo, Mich.

Wendy Schaal was Colette McDonald. She is the daughter of Richard Schaal, another fine actor. She has been in many things — the movie "Where the Boys Are," for instance, and she had a running part on "AfterMASH" as Bonnie.

DEAR DICK — We have one question. Did Michael Beck play the evangelist in the TV miniseries "Celebrity"? My daughter says no but I insist he did. Who is right? M.B., Douglasville, Pa.

You are. It was Michael Beck playing T.J. Luther.

Can you tell me if Chris Robinson, who plays Dr. Rick Webber on "General Hospital," was also on the old series, "12 O'Clock High"? Who did he play? Who played his C.O.? B.A., New Albany, Ind.

Yes, it was the same Chris Robinson. On "12 O'Clock High," he played Sgt. Sandy Komansky. During Robinson's stay on the show — he wasn't on for the entire run — the C.O. was Paul Burke.

... Glass

950 degrees and then I close the kiln until the piece stabilized to the annealing temperature I need. By annealing I mean taking the stress out of the glass. The glass has to be held between 900 to 1,000 degrees for about 45 minutes to ensure the pieces that have fused won't crack apart."

The piece then cools gradually. "Every time I lift that lid after it's all cooked, I get really excited," Haddad said, "because it's either going to be something I like or something that's different that someone else might like."

And if Haddad judges the finished piece to be something no one would like, all is not lost. The glass can be salvaged. "You can always re-fuse," he said.

Haddad's wife, Helen, has also gotten into the glass fusing act. She and her husband took a stained glass course in 1978, before he went on to study fusing in an Oregon workshop.

As Haddad began to experiment with stained glass and glass fusing, Mrs. Haddad began playing around with the scraps and bits of glass left over from his efforts. She started making fused glass jewelry.

"I started with scraps and now we're buying hundreds of dollars worth of glass for my jewelry," she said. "It's glass, glass, glass. We eat, drink and sleep glass."

"It's always different. Each piece of glass has its own characteristics and personality. For most of my jewelry we experiment when we do the design work, but once we have that down we can produce the same style over and over again," she said.

Haddad, who is of Egyptian descent, said that his heritage influences his designs. "Some of it's intentional, but not all of it, even though I am Egyptian. I have always liked their style and some of that comes out in my work."

If you'd like to try to develop your own style in fused glass you'll pretty much have to figure things out on your own. Haddad said he knows of no courses being taught in the area, but books and supplies are available through leaded stained glass workshops and outlets.

He and his wife are two of only about six Florida artists who have discovered this revived medium, he said.

'Three's Company' Decade's Dumbest

By David Handler

I'd have to call "Three's Company" the definitive awful American TV sitcom of the past 10 years.

Sexual immaturity? You got it, smutty double entendres, dumb blondes in itty-bitty nighties, smirks, and, in the end, no actual consummation. Just cheap thrills.

The Me Decade? You got it in all its Southern California hot-tub glory. Imagine, two loopy-goopy lovelies and a healthy young buck, all trying to find themselves — and doing their looking in the same apartment! Yeah, boy!

Mercifully, its era has passed. Folks seem mostly interested in babies and interest rates these days. And they seem to want warm parenting sitcoms like "The Cosby Show" and "Family Ties."

ABC has tried to adjust. After eight seasons, "Three's Company" has been revamped. Gone are Chrissy and Janet and Cindy and Terri. Our old buddy Jack (John Ritter) is still around, but he now has a sweet, pretty live-in love named Vicky Bradford (Mary Cadorette).

Jack now owns his own restaurant. Sort of. It seems Vicky's overbearing oaf of a father (Robert Mandan) is Jack's landlord, and has a 10 percent share. Mr. Bradford hates Jack, partly because the kids aren't married (Jack wanted to, Vicky didn't) and partly because he hates everybody.

Jack's tongue isn't hanging out anymore. His life is now built around keeping his relationship and his business afloat. And he's doing OK. Yes, that's right — Jack Tripper is a Yuppie.

Of course, he's still Jack.

There's no coffee table he won't trip over. And there's no gesture or delivery that Ritter hasn't lifted from Dick Van Dyke.

But he's supposed to be the responsible one now. So they've been given a wacko chef, E.Z. (Alan Campbell), who needs to be kept in line. E.Z. is a surfer who has a goony laugh and likes to ride his skateboard through the restaurant.

Yes, ABC has tried to adjust. But it really hasn't. The tootsies are gone, the nighties aren't. This is still the same coy, stupid show. If anything, it's even more embarrassing because it now strains for warm, honest moments.

Take the week Mr. Bradford falls for a sexy young artist. He doesn't tell the kids. He just sort of suggests they hang some pictures in the restaurant by this exciting new artist.

Jack agrees to take a look at the artist's work. When he gets to her apartment, she and Mr. B have just gotten back from the beach and changed out of their trunks. Mr. B. is wearing a bathrobe. She's wearing almost nothing.

Jack is shocked. Mr. B. panics and tries to assure him that things aren't as they appear.

Anyway, Mr. B gets heavily involved. He buys a loud blazer. He begins to cry out expressions like "Boogie-boogie-boogie!" It turns out this was just a fling for her. He's devastated when she dumps him.

Us? We're supposed to feel bad for him. We're supposed to care. It's impossible. You can't reach an emotional moment after 30 minutes of smirks. You can't expect us to care about any of these people.

No way.

Auditions will be held in the Tupperware Convention Center on U.S. Highway 441/17-92 (South Orange Blossom Trail). Call times are 10 a.m. for women and 2 p.m. for men.

Talent is being sought for a variety of entertainment troupes and shows in the Magic Kingdom, Epcot Center and throughout the popular Central Florida vacation resort. All positions require dance/movement ability.

Most are full, one-year positions, although the college band dancers (both male and Audition participants must be 18 years old by June 1. They should bring a current resume, photograph and dance attire. All participants will be taught at least one dance/movement combination.
