Perry may sue Christian Coalition

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Senior Staff Writer

LONGWOOD - Seminole County commission primary candidate Adrienne Perry is threatening to sue the Christian Coalition of Seminole County for what she says is misrepresentation of her position on homosexuality in 80,000 flyers distributed in churches throughout the county.

In a letter faxed to the Coalition co-chairman Ron Haase Jr. yesterday, Perry's attorney Harley Scott Herman of Leesburg demanded a retraction through local print and broadcast media by tommorrow morning. The complaint also demands personal contact with everyone known to have received the Coalition's "Decision '94 Seminole County Voter Guide."

Perry's complaint centers on her responses to two questions contined in a 41/2-page survey mailed to state and local candidates earlier this year. Questions on such topics as gun control. taxes, and education were included in the 63-question document.

Under the section headed "Homosexuality/Special Rights," one question sought a "Support" or "Oppose" response to "Giving homosexual behaviour legal protection as a civil right, or granting them minority status."

Perry responded by crossing out "minority status," circling "a civil right" and placing an 'x" by support.

The impact severed the car; the front and rear parts ended up 300 feet apart. The flery accident late Sunday on a rural road in Central Florida killed the five men and the lone woman in the car. The pickup's driver, the only occupant, also died.

The pickup burst into flames with the impact and the driver. Raymond Willis, 53, of Lakeland, probably died instantly, the Florida Highway Patrol said.

Authorities said the care's occupants were the driver, Scott Barker, 20, and Andrew Wilson, 24, both of Mulberry: Andrew Shores Jr., 19, and Timothy Shores, 17, both of Plant City; and Two of the victims were taken by hencopter to a Talope hospital where they died.

Exhibit dedicated to death

TALLAHASSEE - It might seem morbid, but the Museum of Florida History is opening an exhibit dedicated to death.

The panorama of death will feature a collection of hearnes, coffins, gowns, jewelry, urns, mourning memorabilis and embalming apparatus. The exhibit was to run from today through Sept. 30, marking the 100th anniversary of the Florida Funeral Directors' Association.

The exhibit will chronicle how Floridians have dealt with death over the last 100 years.

"We just love people. We care about them, and we care for them," said Ashley Beggs, whose family has been in the funeral business for longer than a century. "The technology has changed, the modes of transportation have changed, but a funeral is still a funeral.

Founded in 1895 by five men, the association now has more than 800 members.

"What the exhibit aims to show is the entire range of material culture associated with death and mourning in Florida, in years past," said museum curator Erik Robinson.

Included in the exhibit is an old embalming apparatus. complete with a table of steel and glass, the tools and fluids that were used, even a folding, portable embalming table like a big wooden briefcase.

Chiles captures police endorsement GOP hopefuls have three days left on campaign trail

Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - With the primary election three days away, top Republican candidates for governor are stumping around the state this week to meet prospective voters and get in the final bit of campaigning.

The gubernatorial hopefuls took advantage of Labor Day celebrations Monday to find large crowds and shake hands and solicit support. About 35 percent of the state's registered voters are expected to head to the polls Thursday.

"That's what Labor Day is all about," said Terry Holt, campaign manager for Re-publican candidate Ander Crenshaw, a Jacksonville state senator who spent Monday in the Tampa Bay area.

"The fund raising is over. The TV spots are bought," Holt said. "Now it's one handshake at a time until election day."

In Tallahassee, one of the state's largest police groups endorsed Gov. Lawton Chiles for a second term. In Palm Beach County. deputy sheriffs barred GOP hopeful Ken Connor from campaigning in a public park

By The Accodated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE - Russ Rector's mission now is to find good homes for 12 dolphins that lived in a marine park that has shut down. And he's letting a lot of people know he's unhappy that the creatures have been displaced.

After Ocean World announced it was closing down last month. Rector called newspapers and television stations to announce protests. He faxed docum detailing Ocean World's pains. He mailed must videotapes that show d their underwater cages in telephoned the governor.

On a recent phone with Gov. Lawton Chiles' environ-mental policy advicer Estus Whitfield, the deiphin advocate issued an ultimatum. He threatened to call for a statewide tourism boycott if something wasn't done to protect the bottlenose dolphins who performed at the marine park.

"If Florida's not willing to protect its dolphins, Estus, it's not willing to protect its tourists," Rector said. "If Florida is not dolphtn-safe, it's obviously not tourist-safe."

Two days after issuing the ultimatum. Chiles issued a news release saying he was "gravely concerned" about the dolphins.

Now. Rector is threatening to derail Honduras' tourism industry. The dolphins are still scheduled to be taken to a marine park in that country; the fate of the creatures remained

The "Current Events Booklet", a two-week project for the students, worth three test grades, entailed using the local newspapers to search out and summarize 15 articles in three different categories: local news. national news and items of interest to the student such as entertainment or sports.

Hovell said the purpose of this exercise is obviously to get the students to read the paper and to find out what is going on but also to teach them other necessary skills such as writing and summarization. responsibilty and adherence to due dates for homework projects. The project was mandatory for the advanced classes and optional for the regular classes. They impressed me to no end with the quality of the work they turned in." Bovell said. "I think the kids are enjoying the things I'm throwing out at them."

The booklets were required to be assembled with a title page, a table of contents and section dividers labeling the articles of national, local and interest news. Each article was to be mounted in some manner on a page with the date of the article, with the summarization following While most followed the prescribed format, some of the projects were truly inspired. Cocoa C. Bailey made photo copies of her articles and embellished or illustrated them with colored pencils. Her creations included a prison scene. for an article on Clinton's crime bill, to, sadly, a descriptive picture of a family that drowned.

One student used a style so often seen in mystery dramas, to describe the ever-anonymous ransom letter; he lettered his title page with type cut out of the newpaper.

The use of the local newspapers was fairly evenly divided between the Sanford Herald and the Orlando Sentinel. One entry chose to use stories from a tabloid. Most of the prevelant topics of the past month were represented in the students selections. Several stories on Woodstock, from the wire services, were popular, as were reports on Tropical Storm

Melissa Ensrud said her "favorite" story had to do with the Aug. 14 report in the Sanford Herald, on the Michele Rogers murder trial. Enarud said she chose her stories by scanning the headlines and reading further if something looked interesting.

Other local stories included Sanford Herald reports on the amount of rain the area has been receiving, disaster planning in Lake Mary, the recent McDonald's restaurant robberies, riverboat gambling and a street party benefit put on in one Sanford neighborhood. There where several Sanford Herald editorials and letters to the editor as well.

Bovell said most of the students "didn't enjoy national news" as well as the other two choices. Ensrud said she enjoyed learning more about the city and the community. Her classmates, Mandy McLain and Jessica Swearingen, agreed. McLain said she enjoyed learning about "what's going on" and Swearingen just liked reading the articles.

Another way Bovell utilizes newspapers in the classroom is on Friday mornings, when the classes discuss news events from the front page of the paper. Bovell will usually assign 10 questions, the answers to which can be found on the front page or in the stories. He said he generally begins with the basics, teaching the students what a headline is, a dateline, by-line and other journalistic tools and then asks the students to iden-

The teacher said that, in his four years of teaching this course, he sees the definite influence of the electronic media over the written media. One thing he discovered by starting the current events project was that the parents of a lot of his students do not take any newspaper in their home. Bovell, who lives in Volusia County, takes three local papers and has had to distribute them to his class for use in the class project.

This project is one of four that Bovell will do with the class throughout the year. The students will be building pyramids or writing hieroglyphics, when they study Eygot. When they move into the Middle Ages, the students can construct a shield or some kind of ancient weapon. Bovell said that catapults are popular and some of them even

"We do a lot of brainstorming." Bovell said.

Bovell is the father of a high school sophomore and a fifthgrader, who keeps him informed as to the current mind set of students, from a student's point of view. Bovell quipped that many evenings, his daughter's 'bed time story" is a recap of his day with her comments. "I get ideas from my kids."

Cycle of law and order

Yes, drug money is being recycled. Money obtained in major drug smuggling raids has been divided among the various law enforcement agencies responsible for the downfall of a major South America to North America ring.

Sanford police, the Seminole County Sheriff's department and City/County Investigative Bureau (CCIB) have each gained as the result of the quelching of a drug operation. A total of over $1.5 million in cash was confiscated. In addition to 1.882 pounds

If we could bust several more such amuggling operations, the operational budget of our law enforcement agencies could possibly be lowered.

One good point is that the money is to be used in helping improve law enforcement. through the purchase of equipment or financing projects which will ultimately help reduce drug use in children as well as adults.

Our local law enforcement agencies didn't conduct this crackdown alone. There were a total of 17 agencies in two states involved. Each received a percentage of the money

The law which allows this distribution is to be commended. It took a great deal of work and months of undercover operations to bring about the downfall of this cartel.

While specific details are not known, we can assume that someone ratted on the operation. The tipoff resulted in an investigation, and the subsequent arrests of druglords Manuel Oiraldo-Zulunga and Julio Moralex.

Everyone who took part in this operation ion in doing this they have climinated a large-scale amugating ring, and at the same time, brought money into the local law enforcement collers.

Now if we have a few more people step forth and report drug operations which could have similar results, we will be well on the way toward combatting what is often considered one of the biggest problems in today's society.

Stopping crime

On the morning of Friday, Aug. 19, there was an attempt made to burglarize a home on one of Sanford's busy residential streets. This area is made up of many types of homes; old stucco, old two-story frame and a few new ones.

A neighbor while talking on her portable phone noticed a strange car backing into the driveway of the selected fairly new home. Noticing two males leaving the car she watched as they approached the front door and kicked it in.

She immediately called 911 and reported what was in progress; at least two other neighbors also called 911 upon hearing the alarm sounding. As the burglars entered the front door the alarm was sounding and they left in a great hurry. Within minutes the Sanford Police Department responded and with the good description of the car involved provided by the neighbor, patrol units were alerted to watch for the car after it left.

Approximately 45 minutes later one of the officers observed a car matching the description and gave chase. Unfortunately at that point a terrible collision occurred at the corner of West 20th St. and Holly Avenue. The police officer was injured as well as a mother and daughter who became innocent victims of the collision.

I can see no reason why a pursuit such as this jeopardizing the safety of innocent persons can be justified! Not knowing who might be at fault, the fact remains that an innocent child was critically injured and will need continuing medical care for quite some time.

Oh yes, the burglars were caught by other police officers. Our police are doing all they can to stop crime but the burden really is for the citizenry to be alert and take whatever action is necessary when these kinds of things occur. Had it happened at my house, you would only have had to call the medical examiner! We all want to do what we can to stop crime in our neighborhoods and neighborhood watch is one way to do it.

For personal reasons, I request that my name not

He was not entirely wrong. The world's population has grown by roughly 2 billion over the past quarter century. Famine has reared itself in such nations as Bangladesh. Ethiopia and, most recently, the Sudan. And chaos and unrest have been observed in virtually every region of the world, from Eastern Europe to Africa and Central America.

But the end of human civilization as we know it, as Ehrlich all but predicted in 1988, simply has not occurred. Famine has been confined to the Third World, mostly among people suffering under the yoke of despotic leadership.

And in the 26 years since Ehrlich direly warned of the consequences of the so-called 'population explosion." the world arguably has become less chaotic, less strife-torn, what with the collapse of communism in Eastern Europe.

Of course, the notion that human fertility poses a threat to planetary resources is not new. Nearly two centuries ago, the British economist Robert Malthus foreast an overpopulated world in which no one would live above subsistence level, where famine and protifence would prevail.

But Malthus proved shortsighted. He failed to anticipate sovemen in both agricultural produc-tion and industrial output -- human progress that allowed additional millions to be fed throughout the world at the same time that standards of living improved.

Modern-day Malthusiana obviously have not learned the lessons of the past. Indeed, in 1980, Ehrlich made a much publicated $1,000 bet with free market economist Julian Simon on the prices of several commodities over a 10-year span. If prices rose, ostensibly proving a constriction of supply, Ehrlich would win the 1,000 that if prices fell, proving that supply expands to meet increased demand. Simon

Thinking some things are sacred

WASHINGTON - Funny, how you can ride a train of thought clear to Ross Parks' Detroit doorstep if you look in a mirror just the right

I did it in my hotel room during a recent trip. Attached to the large bathroom mirror was another mirror-small, round and double sided. on an adjustable metal arm that you could angle to see the back of your head.

I was busy applying mascara when I glanced at my face in the angled mirror. My hand froze. The woman in the mirror-wearing my hair and dress, moving the mascars wand up and down in my own practiced are-was a stranger. For a few seconds, she didn't look like me at all-the face was all wrong.

The explanation was simple: I'd just never seen myself perform that act from that angle. Which meant that despite decades of checking my appearance in bedroom mirrors and compacts. I often haven't a clue as to what I

Maybe nobody does. Eight years ago, my fortysomething friend Linda said, "Lately I've found it so odd, walking past a store window. seeing myself and wondering. Who is that matronly-looking person ?"

I'm in no rush to get around to the ugly thing that happened Tuesday (Aug. 30) to Parks in Detroit. I once lived in the city where the woman who forged history by keeping her seat on a Montgomery, Ala. bus is a resident icon. Parks always seemed to dislike the adulation. avoiding interviews and appearances. But I stumbled upon her shopping in a department store. Noting the prettiness that still clung to her. I marveled at seeing a history-maker purchasing hose.

It was in Detroit that, in the midst of an automotive economic crisis and severe recession. I met the most generous people l've ever encountered. It's the home of the mother of my friend Felecia, who says her morn regularly updates her on which nice young person has been revealed to be on crack.

It's where a male robber kicked in the back door of the home of Rosa Parks, 81, punched her and took $53, leaving her in a heap.

Like most people's, my initial reaction was disbelief. "What kind of a person could do this to the gentle woman whose courage sparked the civil rights movement?" I wondered. "What could he have been thinking?"

But why was I surprised that a self-involved brute did to Rosa Parks what self-involved brutes are doing to men and womenparticularly elderly ones with no one to protect them-across the nation? You know the worst part? According to the police, Parks' alleged attacker knew exactly who she was when he

He probably thought that as nice as all that civil rights stuff was, he was kicking the butt of just another now uncless old lady who was holding $50 that she dared to think of an hers-and not his for the taking. If he is the crack addict that police say he is, he probably wasn't thinking at all.

But we'd like to feel that some people are sacred. Not just icons like Parks, but the dear, everyday souls whom we adore and admire, our grandmothers and uncles and children.

We'd like to think that our love alone renders them safe. That nobody could do to our special ones the awful things that are being done to so many anonymous others.

But each victim is connected to somebody. So is each perpetrator. And when I get past my rage after reading about someone hurting Rosa Parks-or spraying a swimming pool with bullets, or shooting tiny children on their way to school--I wonder how somebody gets to be that disconnected.

l'm in no rush to get around to the ugly thing that happened to Rosa Parks.

Then I look in the mirror. And ask, if I were brutalized enough, could I be such a person? Who can know the answer? I can no more see the person I might have been without love, hope and a sense of my inherent worth than I could see myself in that "stranger" in the hotel

But I know this: The private woman whose refusal to leave her seat made her a symbol for millions weary of being shunted to the back of the bus is again a symbol. This time, she represents thousands of wonderful individuals whose hard lives shouldn't have earned them victimization, often by the very young people for whom they fought and sacrificed.

Parks, who has managed to outlive many of her fellow civil rights activists, could be considered lucky. The media have reported her tragedy; she's already receiving our cards and prayers. As for most other elderly victims, listen to what my friend a police reporter, says:

"It's awful. But nowadays, there are so many that if they don't die, we don't write about

Playing phone tag the modern way

Along about the early 1970s, houses began to become more and more mouse proof. The mounting industry turned its attention to little glue-floored "motels" that trapped rodents inside and made them run in place until their little hearts gave out. Homeowners no longer had to handle them by their talls to throw them out.

The nation's inventors turned their attention to another dilemma, hoping the world would brat a path to their doors building a better phone-call trap.

They came up with call watting, call forwarding, the anwering machine answering services. pagers that beep. nurs, blab and vibrate, and phones one can put in cars. by pools and in boats if we allow ourselves to be bothered, we can be bothered supreme.

If we allow ourselves to be bothered, we can be bothered supreme.

But perhaps the most bothersome dilemma left them scratching their superb heads how to be selectively bothered, to be reachable by those we want desperately to reach us, while remaining remate to those we wish just as desperately not to reach us. Of course, unlisted phone numbers are an especial nutsance to reporters, whose livelihood depends on whom we are able to call. Yet I'll have to say that just about as many potential sources I've wanted to call and couldn't were disappointed at not having had a chance to be interviewed as were relieved I couldn't reach them. And I hate even more having an unlisted phone number myself, because it causes all sorts of people whom I'd love to contact me to give up without so much as calling someone who knows someone who knows me to get my number. People whose livelihood doesn't depend on calling other people are tradi-Honally pretty lazy about digging for phone

I held out as long as I could with a listed number until I become a television consumer reporter, one of those crusaders who help wronged viewers get back at the guys who replaced a transmission they didn't need, or get answers from government bureaucracies who use their tax money to avoid their phone

After the 15th late-night phone call that began, "Miss Over-street, I couldn't get through to your station's help line today, but I'm sure you'll understand why I didn't think my problem could wait until tomorrow...," I unlisted. Four years after I left that job for another in the same city, I'll still get calls at my new job wondering if I'm the lady who helps people because they really have a problem... Still. I detest having an unlisted number. And believe it or not, I had already thought it would be great to have some kind of go-between amid the coaxial and fiber-optic maze that delivers us so much else. But, "No." I thought, "that's why you were an English major, because you don't understand science or technology. Obviously, if they could, they would. Now, shut up and watt helplessly for that cute pharmacist who flirted with you at that party to wade through the gaggle of friends who know him and know you until he gets your number." Fat

But lo, the technoheads were holding out on mel The Nynex Corp. Is starting an experiment with some of their New York state customers whereby callers to an unlisted phone number can leave a short message. A computer will then ring the number. If the unlisted callee wants the call, he or she can hear the message. If not, the callee can just refuse the message and/or all future calls and not be bothered again. Nynex make sure we keep the park clean. We try to prevent kide from leaving so they don't get hurt. The park gate usually opened about 7 a.m.

"They requested we keep the gate locked until 8 a.m. Monday through Friday," Chorvat said. "We were approached because

Will Simpson face the death penalty?

By LINDA DOUTEON AP Special Correspondent

LOS ANGELES - As O.J. Simpson's trial draws near. prosecutors are being pressured to make their most important decision: Will they seek the death penalty for a black sports

Superior Court Judge Lance Ito wants to know the answer as soon as possible and so do Simpson's lawyers. But the district attorney's office, which first promised a decision by the end of August, has now postponed its announcement at least until announcement at least until Sept. 19.

"I don't know what they're waiting for." said Harland Braun, a Los Angeles defense attorney. "I look at the options, and I think, 'Could they conceivably ask for the death penalty in this case?' The idea takes my breath away."

Braun and other least experts

Braun and other legal experts say many factors weighed in other potential death-penalty cases will have less impact than the overriding issues of Simpson's race and celebrity. The likely decision, they say. will be to seek life imprisonment if he is convicted of murdering his ex-wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and her friend Ronald Goldman.

So why is the decision taking so why is the decision taking so long?

"The judge pointed out that this is not a decision you want to rush to judgment on," said Sandi Gibbons, a spokeswoman for District Attorney Gil Garcetti.

"This case is moving forward at the speed of light," she said. "In most special circumstance (potential capital) cases, the time from arraignment to trial is eight to 12 months, and it's not until late in that process that the prosecutors do their memo to the (death penalty) committee." Simpson was arrested June 17 and his trial is set for Sept. 26. Ito told prosecutors he did not want to hurry their decision

She said the fact that Garcetti met with black leaders early on indicates his concerns with a large segment of the city's Afri-can-American community, which feels the death penalty is disproportionately imposed on blacks.

"I don't think he will go for the death penalty because it could engender additional sympathy for O.J. Simpson." Levenson said. She said potential jurors might see Simpson as a martyr and the prosecutors as villains.

"Some might say, 'We don't like a prosecutor who wants to kill O.J. Stmpson," she said.

By AARON GREEN Special to the Herald

BITHLO - Mike Ferraro took home the big money, but Seminole County drivers had a good night of racing at Orlando Speed World Dragway in Bithlo last Saturday night.

Ferraro, from Ft. Lauderdale, drove his dragater past the dragater of Cocoa's Troy Pritchard in the finals to claim the title of the special Performance Cylinder Heads "Quick 32" special event. "Quick 32" points leader Lewis Owens from Apopha reached the semifinals in his dragster, while Winter Park's Kevin Tanner also reached the semi's in his roadster.

But in four of the other five classes run. Seminole County pilots claimed two wins, a runner-up and a third place finish.

Scott Dillman of Altamonte Springs drove his 1976 Chevrolet Vega to the Top Eliminator class victory, beating Cocoa's John Eyer in a 1964 Chevrolet Chevy II in the finals. Orlando's Alian Kremkau in a 1972 AMC Gremlin and Orange City's Scott Jorgensen in a 1988 Chevrolet Chevelle were the semifinalists

The Sportsman class title went to local hot shoe Ryan Strickland, as the Longwood resident piloted his 1971 Chevrolet Chevelle around Plant City's Jimmy Biddle in a 1988 Ford Mustang in the final race. Auburndale's flobby Jester was a semifinalist in his 1991 Chevrolet Beretta.

Diana Pidler of Winter Springs got all the way to finale before falling to Mims' Dawn Stewart in the "Queen Of The Road" ladies championship run. Stewart was at the wheel of a 1989 Ford Mustang, while Fidler was in the sent of a 1966 Ford Pick-up. The semificalists were a pair of Orlando drivers, Shari Hambey in a 1993 Mazda and Vicky Carroll in a 1991 Dodge Pick-up.

Sanford's Harmoni Rosier reached the semifinals of the Junior Dragster class (for youth drivers). In the finals, Jon Joiner Jr. from Cocos topped Tony Sarvis of Tavares.

The dragway will be open for testing this Wednesday night as the drivers and riders get ready for this Saturday's Sears Craftsman Racing

Many of Florida's finest drag racers will be in action during this Sears Craftsman Racing Series matchup, which features races in Super Pro. Pro. Sportamen and Pro Cycle eliminators.

Gales open at 4 p.m. this Saturday (Sept. 10), with time trials starting at 4:30 p.m. and final eliminations scheduled to begin at 8 p.m.

Orlando Speed World Dragway is located 12 miles east of Orlando on Highway 50.

For more information about Wednesday's practice or Saturday's races, call the track at (407) 568-5522 or the office at (407) 658-7939.

Tribe tumbles in football poll

Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD - It is not quite as bad as what happened to the Florida Gators, but it is strange, nonetheless

Despite beating a good Class 6A squad in Lyman, the Seminole High School football team took a plummet in this week's Class 5A voting in the Florida Sports Writers Association state high school football poll.

In the presenson poll, the Tribe garnered 18 votes. good enough for 15th place, if the poll went that high. But after the 14-13 overtime victory last Friday night.

Seminole got just one vote, which is a tie for 21st place. The Tribe is still the only team in Seminole County to receive any recognition from the voters.

CASSELBERRY - Two things became apparent on the opening night of the high school football season last Friday.

Kelvin Chisolm is every bit as good as advertised. And a two-year layoff has not hurt Brion King.

Friday night, the seniors were the class of the county, leading their respective teams to a pair of revenge

Chisolm, a 6-foot, 190-pound running back, showed that he had came to play immediately, taking the opening kickoff and running it back 98 yards for a touchdown to start the Lake Howell Silver Hawks on the way to a 30-20 victory over the visiting Winter Park Wildcats at Richard E. Evans Field.

Chisolm also scored on a 45-yard run from scrimmage and finished the night with 192 yards rushing on

Selig, owner of the Milwaukee Brewers, did not comment on what he said to Reich. He also would not predict whether negotiators for the two aides will meet before the Friday deadline for calling off the scason. "Let's take each day as it comes," Selig said.

Union head Donald Fehr, in his office on Labor Day, said he wasn't concerned about Selig's deadline. Selig has said he would seek the union's input.

"It's out of my control, as it always has been," Fehr said. "I we are not going to have a World don't expect to hear from Bud. Bud

Thirteen more games were canceled Monday, raising the total to 324. Today marks the midpoint between the start of the strike on Aug. 12 and the season's scheduled end on Oct. 2.

Reich, after meeting with Selig. said he didn't see any movement in the owners' position. He added the two sides "are still very far apart."

Reich, according to a source speaking on the condition he not be identified, offered suggestions that didn't appear viable.

Union officials and player agents, however, were said to be talking directly with owners and club officials, trying to create a framework which could lead to a settlement.

The most-discussed plan appeared to involve a "taxation" concept that was mentioned two weeks ago by Boston Red Sox chief executive officer John Harrington. Under it, large-revenue clubs would have to share a greater amount of money than others

Sanford's own version of royalty

Local boy does well competing on pageant circuit

By SeeAM Williams Hersid Correspondent

SANFORD - England is not the only place with a touch of royalty. The small town of Sanroyalty. The small lown of Sen-ford now has a king crowned many times over. This is not just any king but one that is barely three feet tall and turned three years old on Tuesday, Aug. 30. Ryan Stiffey, son of Tom and Cindy Stiffey and grandson of George and Jeanette Stiffey and a host of other relatives in the Muse family now enjoys his title of "Little King."

The family attends Sanford Church of Christ and both arents were born and raised in anford and have been married for five years. The apple of their eyes, Ryan began his pageant debuts in September of 1993. He participated in the Sunburst Pageant which travels through the United States and Canada. At his first entrance he gained the title of first runner up at the competition at the Altamonte Mall. He then traveled to state competition in May and placed third in western wear, third in composite and conquered the title of "Little King" for the state of Florida. The event then moved to Atlanta, Ga. on Aug. 13, 14 and 15. Stiffey then securd a position in the top ten for the international competi-

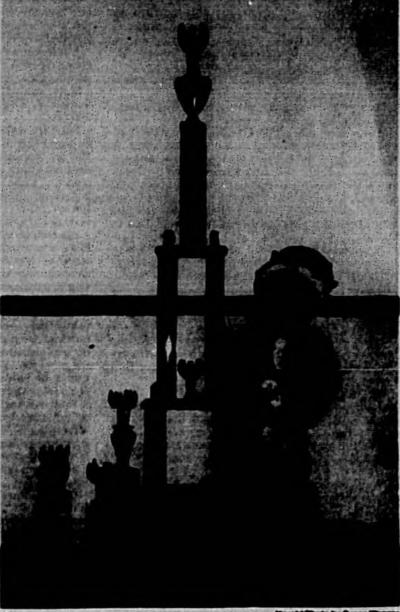

Jeanette Stiffey, Ryan's grandmother, spoke about her grandson and his accomplishments. "I was excited that he was doing so well. Cindy pretty much did this on her own but I was glad she did it. I'm real proud of Ryan." Cindy Stiffey, Ryan's mother, spoke of how she learned about the pageants. "I saw an advertisement at the mall and I thought it would be a good idea to try it."

She also spoke about his winnings and her feelings about future goals. "After he won I was very proud that someone thought my son was as cute as I did. As long as he keeps qualifying for the different competitions I want to let him participate. My goal is to have my other son. Brandon, there also by the next preliminary."

Stiffey commented about whether television or cor cial shots were in the plan of things. "If someone sees them and wants to take a chance on them for TV or whatever, great! I just don't want to pay them for their services." She also spoke regarding her decision to choose the Sunburst circuit versus other pageants. "I found Sun-burst to be a well run and timely organization. They are always on schedule and they've done this longer than others. I checked it out and they seemed the most professional. I'd highly recommend Sunburst to anyone. Their staff is helpful and always willing to talk to you and answer questions."

So, the next time someone talks about Sanford being a nowhere place, be sure to let them know even this small town has some royalty living in it. Ryan Stiffey, the "Little King" may soon have someone dethroning him and it could be his own little brother.

The trophy is bigger than the winner, Ryan Stiffey

DEAR ABBY: I am a clerk in a shoe store. The letter you ublished a while ago from a medical assistant in a foot clinic. complaining about the shoe requirements for flight attendants.

caught my attention.

While I know nothing about the shoe requirements for flight attendants I know that every dress shoe for women that has a 114-inch heel is considered a high heel. (It is a low high heel. but it's considered a high heel in the shoe trade.)

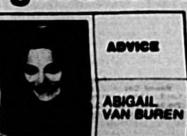

I see women every day with foot problems that could have been avoided had they worn the proper size shoes. Many women don't want to admit that they need a larger or wider size than what they have been accustomed to wearing.

Cramming the foot into a shoe that is too small can cause corns. bunions and hammertoes - not to mention leg and back pains.

that their feet have a tendency to widen over the years and that pregnancy or a significant weight gain can affect their shoe size.

Also, it is not uncommon for one foot to be larger than the other - in which case, the larger foot is the one that should be unless they fit properly. DEAR ABBY: When I read the Most women do not realize letter from Arlene E. Differding of Summerville, S.C., I saw myself! She wrote about people who RSVP'd in the affirmative but failed to show up at the wedding.

I was married three months ago and the same thing happened to me. Even though 85 people had sent their acceptances two to three weeks before

Well, 45 people showed up! It was very appetting. The bill for my reception could have been cut in half, but the caterers allowed only a 3 percent reduc-tion for no-shows.

When I asked the no-shows why they didn't attend, their excuses were: "I forgot." couldn't get off from work," "! lost my invitation and didn't now how to get there," or "I wasn't sure what time it was being held."

MRS. BROWN IN VIRGINIA BEACH, VA. DEAR MRS. BROWN: I never cease to be amazed at some of the letters I receive dealing with invitations, acceptances and no-shows. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: What do you do when you invite a couple to a wedding and reception and you address it to the couple, and on the RSVP card where it asks how many are attending, they include three or four children? How do you handle this?

We Unitarians accept the goodness of people's intentions, yes, even those who do not attend church faithfully, but seek us out when they are in need of a priest to baptise a baby, give a sermon for a funeral, or have a big church

If the daughter would like a church that will accept her and her flance just as they are, the Unitarian Universalist church may be the church she is looking

Abby, you can teach your children your own beliefs, but eventually they will make up their own minds. My parents are very religious: but when I was in high school. I told them I didn't want to go to any church. They were disappointed but said it

My flance and I are both 27. We started living together five years ago and are buying a home together. We are of different races and plan to marry next year. Our biggest problem is deciding with which set of parents we will choose to spend Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Savvy panhandler has yuppies hooked: They like his style

Associated Press Writer

BOSTON - Michael Henry is no ordinary seeker of spare change. Not for him the hangdog look of many panhandlers. Not for him the jingling of coins in a can or the desperate.

Instead, Michael is a cheerful celebrity, known by name to the white-collar crowd that walks to work through Boston Common. He glad-hands like a politician. He works regular hours. He wears tidy clothes.

And he says his charm carns him about $15,000 a year.

Michael gives homelessness a name and a face. This is his shtick, and it works.

Witness the morning of his 39th birthday: Two young women lit candles on a chocolate eclair. A man dropped off a cake. Another man brought used suits. Eight different women gave birthday cards. At least 40 people gave him money, and some gave him 85 and $10 bills.

Elizabeth Miller handed Michael 83 for his birthday and a post card from her recent trip to Canada.

"Thanks, doll," he said, stuffing the dollars in his back pocket and rubbing his chin, shaved of his usual goatee. "Haven't seem you for a while. Still have those cats?"

Miller, a postdoctoral fellow in cancer research at the Harvard School for Public Health, sometimes walks her cats on the Common.

"This is his job," she said. "This is how he makes his money. He talks to you, he remembers things about you. Most of my neighbors give him money, too.

For at least two years, Michael has been begging on the same corner of one of America's oldest public parks. He understands that location is all: Business people walking from the chic residential areas of the Back Bay and Beacon Hill pass through the Common on their way to the city's financial district. Every morning between 7:30 and 9:30, he greets passers-by in his high voice, shaking their hands and making sure they know his name. His wide smile and throaty lough are infectious. His clothes are neat, if slightly solled. He calls the women "Morns" or "Doll," the men "Pops" or "This."

And the people who stopped to chat with Michael on his birthday breezed past a 28-yearold candidate for state representative, who was struggling nearby to hand out his flyers.

On a typical day, Michael said, he makes about 860. That adds up to about $15,000 a year slightly less than the starting salary of a receptionist at a theater or a waiter at a

"He's got people trained," said Margie Rizzuto. 36, a consultant in financial record-keeping who has known Michael for two years. "People walk by and they've got their money ready. It's amazing.

Some friends of Michael actually recruit other contributors. Linda Pulliam, a graphic designer for the Boston Financial Group, said she started giving money to Michael when office colleagues encouraged her.

For his birthday, she gives him a dollar, a card and a lottery ticket.

"You can't give to everybody all the time, and he's easy to pick as a favorite," Pulliam said. "He's somehow carved out this little niche in a way that's easy to approve of."

A few people have become ambivalent about giving to Michael. They worry he might be spending his money on drugs or alcohol.

Some wonder if addiction is the reason he is homeless. Others speculate that Michael is But why someone as winning as Michael can't or won't get a job remains a mystery — and Michael himself provides few clues. He says he does not drink or take drugs, and he says he can read "a little." He's a longtime guest at the homeless shelter on Long Island in Boston Harbor, but he refuses to give the shelter permission to discuss his case. His own story: He was born in Greenville, S.C.

His own story: He was born in Greenville, S.C. His uncle brought him and his mother to Boston when he was 5 to escape his father, an abusive alcoholic. He went to grade school in the South End and learned house-painting at a trade school. He had a stint as a dishwasher in the theater district 10 years ago.

And there, Michael's story stops. He will not say how long he has been homeless. He said only that he begs because he likes the people he meets and the mostory he said. He says he spends most of the

Relieving symptoms of an irritable bowel

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I read your recent column on irritable bowel. I had the same problem until my doctor recommen Metamiueil. After the first package, my bowel problems subsided. Maybe this suggestion will help your readers.
DEAR READER: Metamucil

certainly does help regulate bowel movements in some people with irritable bowel syndrome, by adding more bulk to the stool. This serves both to aid evacuation and to absorb the excess fluid that may cause diarrhea. Thank you for writing.

To give you more information. I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Irritable Bowel Syndrome." Other readers who would like a copy should send 82 plus a long. self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. He sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is it possible to get intoxicated by consumir large quantities of water and. so, is it the same kind of intoxication as with alcohol?

DEAR READER: There is a medical disorder known as "water intextication," but it does not resemble alcohol intextica-

When the body falls to excrete proper amounts of water -- either because the kidneys cannot adapt to the excessive fluid load in people who drink huge quantitles of water or because of a hormonal imbalance .. the amounts of sodium and potaesium in the body become diluted.

This results in lethargy, confusion and stupor that can. unless treated, progress to coma and death. The diagnosis is made by blood tests; the treatment includes restriction of water intake and the intravenous administration of sodium and potassium.

Although water intoxication can occur by itself (psychogenic polydipale), it is over all and with other diseases, such as lung cancer, renal failure and serious

In contrast, alcohol intoxica-tion, with its familiar signs, is caused by an excessive alcohol chiefly the brain. Thus, the effects of alcohol intoxication are due entirely to the consequences of the drug itself, whereas water loxication causes symptoms at are secondary to mineral

Some bridge personalities don't receive as much credit as they deserve, because they don't win countless major champtonships. Yet the game wouldn't survive without the people who work behind the scenes, as it were.

One such underrated personalwas George S. Coffin. of Belmont. Mass., who died last March at the age of 90.

Coffin wrote several excellent books on bridge, other card games and - as if you couldn't guess — wild mushrooms.

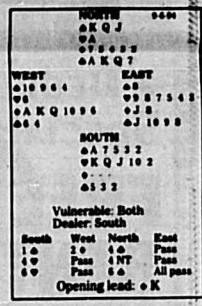

He was a stickler for terminological accuracy. Many years ago he wrote to me, explaining that it is a "low" card, not a "small" card, the physical size of the card being irrelevant. I replied that vocabulary changes and that almost every bridge player uses the word "small." However, since then, as you may have noticed, I have always employed "low' rather than "small."

Today's deal features the Cof-n Coup, which he discovered. North's four no-trump was Culbertson, which predated Blackwood, it showed either three aces or two aces and the king of a bid suit

When the dummy appeared, Coffin wished he was in seven. But after ruffing West's diamond lead and cashing two of dummy's top trumps, he saw that six was quite high enough.

It was time to merifice a trump trick. Coffin cashed dummy's heart ace, overtook dummy's remaining trump honor with his ace and played on hearts. West could ruff whenever he liked, but the contract was under control. Coffin's 12 tricks were five spades, four hearts and three clubs.

By Bernice Bede Osel YOUR BERTHDAY Sept. 7, 1984

The possibilities for adding to your resources look strong for the year ahead. However, you must be careful not to become extravagant once you've acquired a surplus.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There are numerous enjoyable things for you to do today: unfortunately, the ones that appeal to you are apt to be the most expensive. Virgo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In order to advance your ambition and self-interests today, you might come on a bit too strong to suit your associates. Be amicable, not aggressive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Being your own person and operating independently could be of considerable importance to you today. However, an equally strong-willed personality might become ensuared in your routine.

BAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Do not become involved in a joint venture at this time with anyone who can't match what you have to offer. If the arrangement lacks parity, it won't function smoothly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Not all of your contemporaries will be happy to see you succeed in your efforts today. In fact, a poor loser might try to place obstacles in your path. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

Do not take on any tasks today that are beyond your talents and expertise. Additionally, don't approach persons for help who know as little about the matter as you do.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Subdue inclinations to take personal financial risks in your commercial affairs today. The temptation might look promising, but the results could be disastrous.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your mate or other members of your family might be rather temperamental and difficult to get along with today. Emulating their behavior will only make things worse.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be extra mindful of safety today if working with unfamiliar tools or materials. A lack of concentration could cause carelessness and danger. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In the management of your resources you often run the gamut from prudence to extravagance. Unfortunately, today you might be emphasizing the latter. CANCER (June 21-July 22)

Conditions may not be very placid on the home front today and if one were to investigate. they might discover that you're the one who is stirring the

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Sometimes it's very hard to accept the blame for our mistakes, which can lead us to look for a scapegoat. Avoid this tactic today -- it could boomerang. Copyright1994 NEWSPAPER EN-TERPRISE ASSN.
