After watching Hitler operate for the past year or so, is it any wonder that there is a lack of interest among the voters in the coming primary election?

Good advice for farmers comes from the Florida Extension Service which says, "If farmers will get back to producing first, all the necessities that they can on their farms, and then produce other (more than one) crops for obtaining cash they need, they will find themselves in more stable financial circumstances."

Canada's Prime Minister Mackenzie King is coming to Warm Springs to confer with the President. Maybe they are going to talk about that little promise Mr. Roosevelt made the Canadians a few years ago that the United States would come to their defense if they were attacked.

It is interesting to note that all that glitter is not gold. A few weeks ago Central Florida was congratulating Deland on his new industries, particularly the Bessack Company which makes airplanes.

Japanese Imperialism

War between the United States and Japan is inevitable unless this country blocks Japanese ambitions in the Orient, insists Rear Admiral Tausig at a Senate committee hearing yesterday. And of course if the United States attempts to block Japanese ambitions in the Orient, war certainly is inevitable. So it looks as if war is inevitable no matter what we do.

However Secretary of State Hull doesn't seem to think that such a war is bound to come and he suggests that the State Department and not the Navy Department is running our foreign affairs. And even Admiral Starke, chief of naval operations, declares that Tausig was simply expressing personal views which were not the views of the Navy Department at all.

But whether or not war with Japan is inevitable, it is certainly a distinct possibility and one which this country should make all possible preparations to meet successfully when and if it comes. Such a war would necessarily be a naval war and the nation which had the largest and most efficient fleet would be likely to win.

The Japs have started their march toward world domination by conquering Manchuria and over-running most of China. The Dutch East Indies are next in line and in the event that Holland should become involved in the European war these enormously wealthy Far Eastern possessions would most certainly fall an easy prey to Japanese imperialism.

Alaska, which once belonged to Russia, is closer to Tokyo than to Washington. There are tremendously valuable natural resources there of gold, timber and fish. Alaska would be difficult for the United States to defend. It might be as hard for this country to send troops through Canada for the defense of Alaska as it was for England to send troops through Norway for the defense of Finland.

What will the reaction in this country be if Japan attempts to take the Dutch East Indies? The volume of sales has held up well, considering that we suffered the most severe freezing weather in 50 years. The Exchange's figures show total sales to date of 45,915 cars of oranges, 13,776 of grapefruit and 5,282 of tangerines, as compared with 52,709 of oranges, 20,861 of grapefruit and 7,684 of tangerines for last season.

"Mr. Johnston is right in giving credit to strict inspection and regulation of shipments. Without rigid inspection and regulation, it is certain that the resulting hit-and-miss and free-for-all methods would have brought chaos to the industry."

Better Than Expected

Despite the severe weather last winter which resulted in lower temperatures than this state has seen in many years, and despite the fact that some growers and farmers did suffer serious losses to their crops, the citrus season as a whole was not nearly as bad as many premature predictions. The supply has been good and the prices better than usual.

"Quite a change has come over the Florida citrus industry since the so-called 'devastating' freeze," says the Tampa Tribune. "Some who thought they knew and made rash predictions that the crop was ruined have been shown up. There was some fruit left—a surprising quantity—and it has commanded steadily higher prices."

3,500 Germans Surrounded By Allied Forces

The Norwegian spokesman, who said his information came from a courier who reached the Swedish border from the Narvik zone, said the Norwegian set fire to the hotel and all other large buildings in Gratangen, leaving the town a ruin.

He said the capture of all the 3,500 Germans isolated at Gratangen was anticipated, because the Norwegian have occupied all the strategic heights and control every avenue of escape.

The Germans saw their predicament and tried to withdraw from the trap but it was too late, he related.

The fighting was raging between Gratangen and Oservatten on the road to Tromso, British and Norwegian troops were said to have pushed through the mountains toward Swedish territory to cut off the retreat of the German troops installed in Narvik.

British troops were landed at Fagernes in the basement section of Narvik harbor, the Norwegian informant said, and climbed up Fagernes mountain which dominates the town.

It was from this dominating peak, he explained, that the actual assault on Narvik beach was launched.

The Norwegian troops, having upon Narvik captured Hitler's army rifles, were said to have been sent to the rear.

Home Demonstration Notes

By REVA D. ANDREWS

Annals are at home anywhere in Florida and they reward even meagerly effort with a bounty of rich floral color over a long season. In view of this, it seems a shame that they are not more commonly grown for massed effect in our counties. Indeed, would it not be a fine idea for folks in each county to decide on one particular flower and grow it in such rich and colorful profusion that their section might be identified with it?

Each county could pick the flower it would emphasize and then grow it in parks, along highways, in yards, and, yes, even in vegetable gardens. Some counties have done this already and the results have been more than pleasing.

Zinnias head the list of favorite flowers for country-wide planting in Florida. Marigolds and petunias rank next. Last year, 4,389 home demonstration club women planted their chosen flower in 32 counties.

The seed industry has perfected many new flower varieties during the past few years' offerings hold great promise. Fifteen different types of zinnias alone have been developed.

While the newest varieties are rather expensive and not very practical for mass planting, the cost of putting on a highly varied, interesting, and colorful flower show is not prohibitive if it is

1/2 cup granulated sugar 1 table-spoon grated orange rind
2 table-spoon lemon juice 1/4 cup granulated sugar
1/4 cup salt 2 cups flour
1/2 cup baking powder 1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup butter and the sugar.

Mix in the rest of the ingredients lightly. Drop portions of the dough from the tip of a spoon (which has been frequently dipped into warm water) into deep hot fat. Fry until the balls are well browned. Cool and roll in granulated sugar with a little cinnamon mixed in it.

1 cup flour 1 cup mashed bananas
1/2 cup brown sugar 1 egg
1/2 cup soda 1/2 cup oil
1/2 cup salt 1/2 cup milk
2/3 cup granulated sugar 1/2 cup broken lard
1/2 cup shortening 1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup flour 1/2 cup white sugar
1/2 cup salt 1/2 cup cream cheese
1/2 cup butter 2 eggs
1/2 cup flour 1/2 cup cream
1/2 cup sugar 1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup flour 1/2 cup cream
1/2 cup sugar 1/2 cup butter

Mix the ingredients a full hour at once. Roll out and cut into thin and fat into shallow, 1/2 inch pan. Prick tops and sides and bake 35 minutes in a moderate oven. distributed among members of a group. Here are some suggestions on preparing for and staging a flower show:

To have sufficient choice of flowers, make your plans several months in advance.

Order seed books and bring them to club meetings so members can null over them and select the flowers they want to plant. After seed have been ordered and planted, exchange plants with other members of the club so each home may have many varieties.

If plants are ordered, pool the orders and set all plants at the same time.

Planning for and staging a county flower show is an excellent medium for bringing folks in various communities of the county together for a single purpose. The county flower show results in many people learning common and botanical names for plants and methods of growing them.

I've gone on a painting spree with ONE-COAT MAGIC

EVERYONE likes DUCO because it's so amazingly easy to use. That's how it came to be known as "One Coat Magic." One trial, and you'll be boasting it, too!

This sparkling enamel is really wonderful for giving a rebirth of beauty to old furniture and woodwork. It slips smoothly and easily off your brush. It dries quickly to a hard, flawless, brilliant surface without lap or brush marks. One coat is usually enough, and since a little DUCO goes such a long way, it's mighty economical to use! Try DUCO—in any of 18 modern colors. It's the easiest-to-use enamel for furniture and woodwork!

Scandinavia War Is Clear Test Of Ships Vs. Planes

Only Time Will Tell Which Is Superior As Fighting Weapon

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
WASHINGTON, Apr. 23.—(AP)—The battle for Scandinavia sets the stage for the world's first clear-cut test of sea power against air power.

For whatever reasons lay behind the battle, and whatever the day-to-day confusion may be, these two main facts stick out: 1. The Germans lured British sea power within close range of their big bombing planes, and are trying to get into a position to control the eastern rim of the North Sea. Victory might well be followed by invasion of Holland and Belgium—to control the southern rim of the North Sea. The next step would be air blitzkrieg against the British Isles, and an attempt to sweep the English Channel clear of blockading British forces. That would separate the Franco-British Allies, and clear the way for the food and raw materials the Germans so desperately need. 2. The British, on the other hand, have got the Germans in the open by their threat against Germany's Swedish ore supplies. Now that the Germans are in the open, the British are in a position to establish a new front in the war by the use of their strongest force—their fleet. Victory would mean they had flanked the German west wall, and established a new front on the north. Only the time can tell which of these two strategies will prevail.

I have discussed the North Sea strategy with half a dozen American experts—political and economic experts, as well as military men. Most of these men agreed that the Scandinavian action by the Germans was dictated by Germany's need of Sweden's iron ore, and by Germany's coming food crisis. They believe the Germans themselves do not look upon Norway as the best possible hop-off for an aerial blitzkrieg against the Allies, but chose Norway because they hoped they could kill two birds with one stone. They might (1) beat the British to the draw, and prevent the complete blockading of Swedish iron ore, and (2) begin their air blitzkrieg preparations from Norway, and extend it to bases in Belgium and the Netherlands if and when they were established position in the North.

It all slimmers down to a battle for control of the North Sea. And again the broad strokes of strategy are the same that produced the World War battle of Jutland.

The German strategy at Jutland was to lure the British fleet toward Denmark and then pick off the units of the fleet one by one. The British strategy was to lure the Germans out of the Helgoland Bight in large force,

Corn King Seeks Championship For The Fifth Time

Shelbyville Man Is Only Other Ever To Win Four Titles

By NATHAN OATIS
LAFONTAINE, Ind., Apr. 23.—(AP)—Chester E. Troyer, world's corn king, is going to try to do what no farmer ever has done—win the crown a fifth time.

A short, sharp-faced man in blue overalls, in his yellow farm-hose and his old-fashioned farming methods, Troyer near here talked about plans for plowing. That meant the triple-threat combination that won him his latest title at the International Hay-and-Grain show in Chicago in December—corn, land, and old-fashioned farming methods and a twentieth-century product. The land is rich, chocolate-brown river bottom, where Troyer and his father before him have grown corn since 1894 and where the Miami Indiana grew it for centuries before then. The methods are those that in 30 years of farming Troyer has found best for raising prize-winning ears—mainly hand work. The product is one which Troyer planted in developing hybrid seed corn.

'Good Field Ready'
The man who would be corn king must show the best-looking 10 ears of seed corn at the international exhibition. Now 53, Troyer has entered 13 of the 21 shows and won in four—1920, 1927, 1932, and 1939. Only Peter J. Lux of Shelbyville, Ind., also has won four times.

"I've got a good field ready," the corn king went on, "and I've picked out my 'best' seed corn to plant."

The field is 26 acres along the river where Troyer twice has grown the world's best corn. Last year it was in sweet clover. Almost every other Spring, the river spreads on a layer of topsoil from upstream.

Troyer had hardly got home from last December's show before he began choosing seed for his 1940 entry. As he and his hands shelled out three and a half bushels—the crown of the crop. To be sure nothing happens to them, he's keeping the bags in his own bedroom till planting time in May.

He Uses A Tractor
Troyer plows and plants with a two-row rubber-tired tractor, but otherwise farms the way his father did. He never uses commercial

Vote For A Man Big Enough To Hold Down The Job

B. C. DODD FOR SHERIFF

As most of you may know, I am a candidate for Sheriff of Seminole County. In offering myself as a candidate for this high office, I am not unmindful of the fact that the responsibilities in connection with the office of sheriff are serious and important. When any group of citizens elects a man to the office that I seek, they repose in him a definite confidence. They honor him with their ballot, and they expect him to consider his public office as a public trust, a trust that is to be kept inviolate. When a man is elected sheriff of a county, he should realize that in his hands is placed the keys of the Semole tranquility of that county; that he no longer represents particular friends or supporters of his campaign, but instead, he becomes the friend and the protector for all people and at all times, in his particular county. So it is, my friends, that the candidate that merits your vote and your support, must not be possessed only of ability, but he must have the will to do and to perform all the duties of his office, having to the line, tilling the chips fall where they will, without fear or favor.

Now, my fellow-citizens, in offering myself as a candidate for Sheriff of Seminole County, permit me a few personal remarks. I have been for 11 years, and am now engaged in the dairy business. I am 33 years of age, 5 feet 8 inches tall, weigh 235 lbs., and am an all-around farm hand in my spare time. I am able and willing to render a full measure of service. When you elect me your sheriff, I shall run the office in a business-like manner. It will be my purpose to converse, rather than convict, where it is possible. I will preserve law and order at all times, and will employ deputies who are capable, honest, and sober. I am married and have three children of several ages, and know the head of a home. I have the same interest that you have in preserving the peace and tranquility of Seminole County. I will try to look into my qualifications, and if the things that I speak for, and my personal life convince you that I am the man for this office, then may I express the hope that you will remember the inalienable right to go to the polls on May 7th, and there, in the reality of the ballot box, take the ballot, and breathe new life into the breath of a free American citizen. If you have any doubts, you will see the man whom you have elected to be your sheriff in office on Oct. 2nd, for which the Semole Sheriff and his deputies.

RE-ELECT R.W. WARE
AS YOUR COUNTY JUDGE
Faithful and Efficient Service

A WORD TO THE VOTERS OF SEMINOLE COUNTY:

I wish it were possible for me to visit every voter and citizen of Seminole County and personally ask for consideration and support in the May 7th Democratic Primary on the basis of my past record in public office. This, however, is impractical if I am to continue to fulfill the duties of the office to which you elected me four years ago. The duties of the County Judge have greatly increased during the past year because of the Driver's License law, and I sincerely believe that it is my obligation to the people of Seminole County to do this work while I am County Judge rather than to be absent from the office, leaving you that I would still appreciate the opportunity of continuing as your county judge.

A vote to re-elect me to this office will be appreciated as a vote of confidence and approval of an honest, faithful, courteous and businesslike disposition of the affairs handled by your County Judge during his present term, and for a continuation of the same kind of administration in the future.

English Believe Hitler Has Made A Fatal Blunder

Nazi Troops In Norway Are Placed At About 70 Or 80 Thousand

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
 Associated Press Writer

An ominously receptive appearance of a lull, induced by a strict censorship over Franco-British preparations to battle the Nazi invaders of Norway, obscures the scene on the European war's new north front.

It does not conceal, however, the obvious fact that London and Paris are striving for what they hope will develop into the crucial clash of their war with Germany. Despite secrecy as to details of military preparations, it is already clear that Winston Churchill sounded the keynote of Allied purposes last week.

He told parliament then that Hitler had committed his "fatal blunder" by exposing himself to Allied attack in Scandinavia. There is little reason to doubt that Franco-British leaders are straining every nerve to make the most of what they regard as a long sought opportunity to take the military offensive as well as redouble the effect of their economic choke-hold on the foe.

Following Gen. U. S. Grant's grim dictum, the Allies are obviously preparing to fight it out on the north front if it takes all summer or several summers. The very rigidity with which London and Paris are making details of landing operations in Norway and the size and composition of their forces is an indication that they are planning in terms of troops by the hundred thousand.

Some estimates place the total of Nazi troops now in Norway at 60,000 to 70,000. In all probability they are light forces, not as yet fully equipped with all the heavy impediments of modern, mechanized warfare.

In illustration of that, Swedish reports tell of perhaps 2,000 Nazi troops a day being ferried by air from Denmark to Norway. At most, only light and medium machine guns could be included in their equipment.

It is numbers, not heavy guns or tanks, for which Germany is striving in the first phase of the battle of Norway. The stage of ponderous guns will come later, except as Britain's heavy ships loom to deter the present phase to landing operations. For the Allies as well as the Germans, the first battle contacts must be those of establishing definite control of landing bases and provide protection from Nazi air attack before they can bring up heavy motorized equipment.

Thus the war in Norway at its inception may be expected to revert to a man-to-man, bayonet-to-bayonet affair. A direct test of the sheer fighting plan of Nazi and British and French troops must be the prelude of major battle. There are no deep structures of concrete and steel, bristling with big and little guns, to keep the rival armies from each others' throats.

It is old-style war, as compared

Allies Grapple Nazi Troops For Hold In Norway

assistant military attache in Sweden, who was sent to Dombas to help remove Americans from Norway.

From Dombas, Allied forces could fan out both north and south. They could move north along the railway to cut off the Germans in Trondheim and hem them in between two Allied forces. The expedition landed at Namos, north of Trondheim, is reported moving south to encircle that city.

It is the Andalus landing force, reputedly a French division, that appears most likely to make the first contact in strength with the Germans. Nazi bombing on Dombas indicates clearly that the Germans are racing northward up the railway from Oslo to prevent an Allied sweep southward. Some-to the German blitzkrieg in Poland, or even the Russian front-line battle on the Karelian isthmus studded with Mannerheim line forts and pill box defenses. Air bombing and machine guns strafing and quick fire weapons in the hands of foot troops give the impending struggle a modernistic touch; but in essence at this stage it is old-style war not greatly differing from many battles fought down the centuries.

Some idea of the job the German army in Norway faces is trying to block Allied landing operations on the coast. The German coast can be gained from striking figures as to the mileage of Norway's coast line compiled by the National Geographic society. As usually measured there are 1500 miles of coast line. That means virtual aerial measurement—skipping from headland to headland across the entrances of Norway's many deep fjords.

A coastal contour measure, following in and out of those fjords and rock-bound bays, shows up 12,000 miles long. It gives a rough idea of the problem of the Nazis if they should undertake to meet Allied landing expeditions at the beach at every possible point.

Munitions Plant Explosion Kills 5

LONDON, Apr. 23.—(AP)—Five men were killed and 15 injured in a munitions factory explosion this morning. The blast shook the entire neighborhood. Plate glass windows were shattered a mile away.

The supply ministry said a "court of inquiry had been set up and steps taken to insure speedy resumption of production." A sixth munition plant explosion in the British Isles since the war started.

IONIA, Mich., Apr. 23.—(AP)—The city of Ionia recently bought its own city dump for non-payment of taxes. The property, included among other parcels offered at a sale of tax delinquent land, was discovered to be owned by two citizens. The latter had paid no taxes for fifteen years, believing the city owned the property. The city thought it owned the property, too, so, to make sure, City Clerk Raymond Connell bid in the dump.

Germany Draws Belt Tight And Uses Reserves

By LOUIS F. LOCHNER
Associated Press Correspondent
BERLIN, Apr. 23. — Germany is making her way in part for her war-time economy on the reserves of the Reichsbank, Denmark and Norway but is pulling her belt tight and drawing rapidly on her reserves, Walther Funk disclosed today.

Funk, minister of economics and president of the reichsbank, gave an insight into the country's economic picture on a day when the nation marked the anniversary of the outbreak of the war.

1. Latest German advice from Scandinavia said German troops pushing up the Glomma river 30 miles inside Norway from the Swedish border drove yesterday to the vicinity of Elverum and that one-time refuge of King Haakon VII and his government was expected to fall at any moment.

2. German bombers last night attacked British transports off the west coast of Norway, an official announcement said, and struck one with a heavy missile. Whether the transport sank was not reported.

3. The German high command, reviewing yesterday's operations, said German planes sank a submarine and hit other vessels in a surprise raid as the British began landing troops in the Far North; three other submarines were reported sunk in the Skagerrak and Kattegat as well as a Norwegian torpedo boat on the west coast of Norway.

4. On German orders to be out of the country by midnight, Arne Scheel, Norwegian minister to Berlin, and other members of the Norwegian diplomatic staff and their families left by special train in an effort to reach Norway by way of Denmark.

5. Minister of Propaganda Goebbels, in a radio address on the eve of Adolf Hitler's 51st birthday, said the fuhrer "has the complete love and the complete obedience of his people" and British efforts "to now the seeds of disunity among us" were doomed to failure.

6. Determined to the Nazi regime to make good Hitler's new year's promise to force the war to a decision during 1940 that business and industry are being combined systematically for machinery and reserve stocks not needed now.

Funk, addressing the annual meeting of the stockholders of the reichsbank, therefore stressed not only the "rationing of essential goods" but also the restriction of production of consumer goods, progressive reduction of stocks and refraining from investing in replacements.

Economic bin-scraping, in other words, is one of Germany's most effective methods of financing the war.

In business circles it is heard more and more that the economic ministry is about to decree the scrapping of all machinery lying idle against the time when production of consumer goods can be resumed, the machinery to be made available for munitions.

Observers suggested that if this rumor were well founded it would seem that Funk took the occasion diplomatically to prepare the public mind for it.

Funk further left no doubt that all available liquid cash somehow must flow into Germany's war chest.

It is not desirable psychologically to tax increased earnings away, he said, but he warned these liquid assets nevertheless, "must be made available to the credit market."

While the Wilhelmstrasse took the step of ordering the Norwegian minister and his staff out of the country, authorized sources asserted no state of war between

Germany and Norway existed. "King Haakon's statement and pronouncements were of such a nature that it was no longer possible to tolerate the presence of his representative in Berlin," it was explained.

The general picture gained from the high command's communique and other German reports was that Germany's forces systematically are mopping up Norwegian forces and at the same time extending themselves into Norway as rapidly as possible.

As in previous days the high command said the flow of troops to Norway was continuing "on schedule."

Hitler's birthday will be celebrated throughout the nation and on into the German-occupied portions of Scandinavia but in subdued fashion because of the war. "We are not making for parades and fanfare," Goebbels said.

Rudolf Hess, deputy leader of the Nazi party, will speak tomorrow morning and Baldur von Schirach, head of the Hitler youth organization, now a corporal in the army, will broadcast best wishes to the fuhrer from the western front tonight.

The nation's birthday gift to Hitler is a collection of metal which has been growing steadily for weeks.

Secret Service Sponsors Film On "Phoney" Money

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
WASHINGTON, Apr. 23. —(AP) —The U. S. Secret Service has gone into movie production. As part of a campaign to make counterfeiting "the most unprofitable racket in America," the famous governmental agency, which combats bogus money passing, is presenting a picture called "Know Your Money." It will be shown in all sections of the country.

The movie aims to teach Americans, particularly tradespeople, bank employees and other handlers of money, how to tell counterfeit bills and coins from the real stuff. The film also shows how an intended victim can help catch a false money-passer. Leading roles, including those of victims and passers, are taken by secret service personnel.

Losses from counterfeiting, which reached a peak of $1,200,000 in 1937, dropped to $350,000 in 1938. Officials attribute the big decline largely to an educational campaign in 1938 among money-handlers in New York where a high percentage of bogus currency was being circulated. The officials are confident the new nation-wide campaign will bring losses down to a negligible sum.

The most effective way of telling whether a suspect bill is good or bad is to compare it with a genuine one of the same type and denomination.

First, observe carefully the portrait of the famous American on the bill. The genuine is lifelike, stands out from oral background which is a fine screen of regular lines. Notice particularly the eyes.

The portrait on the counterfeit is dull, smudgy or unattractively white; scratchy; background is dark with irregular and broken lines.

Second, study the seal. On genuine bills, serrated points around the rim are identical and sharp. On counterfeit, sawtooth points are usually different, uneven, broken off.

Third, inspect the serial numbers. On genuine, they have distinctive style, are firmly and evenly printed; are of same color as seal. On counterfeit the style is apt to be different, poorly printed, badly spaced, uneven in appearance.

Fourth, inspect the paper. Good bills are printed on distinctive paper containing very small red and blue silk threads. Rubbing a bill will not prove whether it is genuine or counterfeit; ink will rub off either.

Allies Will Have Tough Job Before Nazis Are Routed

British, French Face Grim Military Difficulties In Norway

By EDWARD E. BOMAR Associated Press Writer

When Winston Churchill in his vigorous style spoke of purging Norway's soil of the Nazi invaders he introduced into the uncertainties of the European war a time element that appears significant.

Welcoming home from Narvik survivors of the British destroyer Hardy, Churchill termed them the vanguard of the Allied armies which "during this summer would be fighting to push back the Germans."

Churchill could well have been preparing British public opinion for long and difficult days ahead. The campaign to control Scandinavia is likely to be slow and costly, and cautious as well after the present haste to land troops and establish bases before the Germans dig in.

Though the seizure of Norway was a matter only of days, to eject the Nazis promises to require months if not years. Indeed they may still be there when the war ends, should a decision be reached elsewhere than on the Allies' left flank.

The reason is at least twofold; the British and French face grim military difficulties that will require time as well as force and iron will to conquer, and they must shun risks because of the effect of a major disaster upon such "non-belligerents" as Italy.

They obviously can afford no such failures as that at the Dardanelles in 1915. A quarter century ago when, as now, it was vital to keep the British fleet intact, Churchill noted that Admiral Sir John Jellicoe was "the only man on either side who could lose the war in an afternoon" by a naval defeat. Just so, at this juncture a single afternoon of land or sea disaster in Norway might settle the present conflict.

From a tactical standpoint, the difficulties of the campaign in Norway appear little short of appalling to military men as long as the Nazis retain their formidable air power.

On land as well as in the air virtually every technical advantage lies with the German occupying forces—established bases, inside lines, defensive positions, control of railway and communication, shorter and protected routes for reinforcements and supplies, aerial superiority, and possibly troop-batter trained and equipped for the type of fighting.

Britain is still mistress of the open sea, but no navy effort was designed for warfare in narrow waters against land batteries and swarms of warplanes and submarines operating from nearby bases.

Assuming the Nazis already have 65,000 or so picked troops in Norway, military men estimate 200,000 or 300,000 will be required to oust them under present circumstances, with the estimate scaled upward as the invaders are reinforced. It is a force the Allies must be loath to commit to a perilous venture, with so many uncertainties existing in the Mediterranean and elsewhere.

Allied troops, arms and supplies must be moved almost due north from Scotland, within ready air bombing range from the southern Norwegian coast, where the Nazis first dug in. From the Firth of Forth at Edinburgh to Trondheim is some 700 miles, and 400 more up to Narvik.

The jagged Scandinavian coast line offers scores of lurking places for the small, short range submarines which the Nazis boast were turned out at the rate of one a day last winter.

Through the long summer days of the northern latitudes, British convoys of transports and supply ships must swing far to the west to keep out of range of aerial attacks, before heading for the Norwegian coast. Operating from coastal air fields, German bombers can be protected by short-range pursuit craft, an advantage denied British bombing planes operating from across the North sea.

By contrast with the geographical difficulties facing the Allies, the Nazi lines of transport appear relatively invulnerable, despite the efforts of Allied submarines to mine the Skagerrak and Kattegat routes. From Kiel, the German naval base, to Oslo is but 400 miles and from northern Denmark to the Norwegian capital 160 miles.

In general, regardless of the hope for ultimate victory, the outlook in the north must be grim, particularly to the British. From Lord Lothian the British ambassador to the United States, as well as from Mr. Churchill and other leaders, come indications the situation is fully recognized and accepted. Said the ambassador in a recent address:

"We have never been under any illusions that the task we have set ourselves will not be a long and formidable one. It may be, as in other wars we have fought, our only really victorious battle will be the last."

Regulation For Citrus Industry Called Necessary

SARASOTA, Apr. 22. — (Special) "I have no patience with those who would abandon all regulation of the citrus industry," Spessard L. Holland, candidate for governor, told a large audience here last night.

"It is unthinkable to expect the problem to solve itself. I don't think that it is intelligent to sit down and let nature take its course. We must face the problem squarely, thrust out flaws from the laws and protect the interest of the small grower against the shippers and carriers who are unfair to them."

Holland came here after speaking to 1,400 shipyard workers in Tarpon yesterday afternoon. He challenged them to find anything wrong with his labor record. After his speech two of the workers approached the sound truck and asked the operator for his card. Lester Fogus, the operator produced a paid-up card in the electricians union.

112 Negroes Die In Dance Hall Flames

Toll May Reach 250 As Many In Hospital Were Critically Burned In Blaze

Hall Had Only Single Exit

Chicago Handleader And 9 Of Orchestra Are Reported Dead

NATCHEZ, Miss., Apr. 24.—(AP)—A total of 112 negro men and women were burned to death late last night when flames, racing through decorations of dry Spanish moss, trapped them in a one-exit dance hall.

Owner R. E. Smith expressed a belief a score or more others in hospital might be suffering the toll to almost 250.

Remains of others were in the hall when the fire broke out and flames roared.

There were no exits, or side doors, and windows had been boarded up to prevent outside view.

Owner said it appeared that the people had died of suffocation. A majority of the victims were 15 and 19 years of age.

They were killed by the fire which broke out in the rear of the building.

The fire started in the kitchen and spread to the main floor.

The fire department arrived within 10 minutes and fought the fire for several hours.

The fire was caused by a gas stove which had been left unattended.

The fire department reported that the fire was completely under control by 11:30 p.m.

Geneva Is Scene Of Sixth Political Rally For Seminole Office Seekers

Declaring that State Road No. 44 is a disgrace to the State Road Department and to the State of Florida, G. F. Housholder, candidate for State senator from the 57th district, embracing Seminole and Broward counties, declared that he would give the department the "go ahead" signal for the improvement of the road.

Speaking in the Geneva school house before a large audience at the sixth political rally sponsored by the Seminole County Democratic Executive Committee, Ralph H. Chapman, also a candidate for this office, declared that not only Road No. 44 but other highways in this county are in dire need of improvements and declared that it was his intention to introduce legislation to protect the interests of the county.

Mr. Chapman said that he has no political ambitions in seeking the office and that he would go to Tallahassee not to make a vast number of new laws that only the legal profession can understand but to protect the interests of the district, particularly the growers, who are in a majority.

Mr. Housholder stated in his address that he had entered this race because he wanted Seminole County to have political independence and recognition in the Legislature for once. This, he said, was a good program and he declared that the voters of the two districts largely surrounded him to such an extent that the incumbent decided not to run.

Declaring that there is a broad county group opposing him in his candidacy, Mr. Housholder said that "what we want is freedom of thought and a candidate who is not to be dictated to by a group."

Declaring that citrus legislation which is passing the small growers was "brought about primarily by our senator who is also a grower," Mr. Housholder declared that he is not going to support the citrus growers and the large interests that he would favorably treat the interests of the small growers.

Guffey Holds Primary Lead In Balloting

President Roosevelt Is Given Heavy Test Vote On Preferential Ballot

PHILADELPHIA, Apr. 24.—(AP)—Senator Joseph Guffey, New Dealer, held a steadily widening lead for the Democratic nomination for Senator in Pennsylvania's primary which gave Roosevelt a heavy test vote. The President's name was placed on the preferential ballot by Democratic state committee which endorsed him for a third term. No other names were on the preferential ballot.

Official returns for 7,075 of 8108 precincts gave Guffey 360,481, Jones 271,464. From 4740 districts Roosevelt had 417,241. Garner was next with 62 write-ins.

There were no names on the Republican preferential ballot but Dewey got 4,450 write-ins. The Republican vote exceeded the Democratic.

Roosevelt Talks To Mackenzie King, Canadian Minister

Warm Springs, Ga., Apr. 24.—(AP)—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, conferred in a semi-private cottage last night in a background of the Lake Lanoux-St. Lawrence waterway project.

Roosevelt attended the meeting with the Canadian minister and the American policy is involved.

But the two-day conference of the executives of the two great nations of North America represented each with an opportunity for a leisurely review of continental problems, North American question arising from Canada's statement either from King or himself, Roosevelt, through an aide, informed newspapermen they would not be permitted to interview King because such an interview "would not be good for the American position."

It was the first meeting of Roosevelt and King since Canada went to war last fall to join her mother country, England, against Germany. The meeting of the two executives had significant implications in light of the pledge Roosevelt delivered at Kingston, Ont., in August, 1934, not to stand idly by should Canada ever be invaded from beyond the seas.

To forestall assumptions on the subject of the conference, Roosevelt warned reporters to be cautious. Through Acting White House Secretary Hassett, Roosevelt issued the following extraordinary White House admission:

"The President hoped no unwarranted conclusions, deductions or assumptions would be drawn from Mr. King's visit. He said it literally means nothing.

"Mr. King and the President are very old friends and they have known each other for 30 years. Every Spring when the Canadian parliament is in adjournment, Mr. King takes a trip south just for a rest and he always comes to see the President.

There never had been anything of political significance in these visits and there isn't in this one. It would not be good for the American position for Mr. King to give out any statement or to be interviewed while he is on a purely vacation trip.

"No question of American or Canadian policy is involved in this visit.

The question of Roosevelt's support of a large project of navigation between the Mississippi River and the Atlantic Ocean, known as the Lake Lanoux-St. Lawrence waterway, has been in the news since it was announced that the project would be financed by the United States.

Mr. King said that he had been in the United States for several years and that he had seen the project and that he had been very impressed by it.

Group Attends Canal Hearing Held At Ocala

No Notice Of Meeting Was Received Here, Localties Complain

Because no notices were received in this section on the hearing on the proposed large canal across Florida along the same route as the proposed ship canal, local persons were unable to disprove the charges.

Therefore said nothing in Ocala yesterday, Randall Chase, who with a group of others attended, said today.

Mr. Chase did not indicate whether the farmers in this section would fight the proposed canal as they did the cross-state ship canal but intimated that action might be based on the findings after an investigation and study of the proposed project, which is generally considered the first step toward a ship canal.

Col. Lewis H. Watkins, who conducted the hearing, said that he had been requested to submit a report by May 1 but said that it would require a whole year to thoroughly study the matter, Mr. Chase said.

Attending from Sanford beside Mr. Chase were J. C. Chase, George S. Witmer, H. James Guil, G. B. Herndon and members of the Board of County Commissioners.

Proponents of a large canal across North Florida and of extension of the intra-coastal from the Anclote River to St. Marks along the Gulf shore presented arguments and briefs to army engineers here yesterday.

There was no outright opposition to the proposals at the public hearing conducted by Col. Lewis H. Watkins, District Engineer from Jacksonville, but groups from across the State opposed the canal project.

Mr. Chase said they would like more opportunity to study the large canal's effect on water supplies.

Walter F. Coachman, Jr., chairman of the Florida Waterways Congress, said that since studies were made in 1933 and 1935 the present and potential traffic available for the large canal showed an increase of 84.1 percent. He said this meant the economic savings would be far in excess of those required to justify the project.

The cross-state large canal would save 408 miles between Boston and Corpus Christi, Coachman said, and would make possible a saving of 81 hours for cargo.

Col. C. S. C. Holland, president of the Intra-coastal Canal Association of Louisiana and Texas, declared the completion of the link between the Gulf and Atlantic inland waterway systems would provide the nation with "the greatest inland waterway system the world has ever known."

He said the tonnage on the canal from the Mississippi River to Corpus Christi had increased four times over the original estimate of General George Goethals, who was in charge of the project.

Frank Kelly Is Injured As Auto Leaves Highway

Frank Kelly sustained a severe fracture of leg when the auto in which he was riding with Ralph Stewart crashed into an oak tree on the Country Club Road early this morning.

Dupuy Sheriff Jack Hickson who investigated the mishap for the Sheriff's Office, said that Mr. Stewart told him he lost control of his convertible coupe and it crashed into the tree as it left the highway. Mr. Hickson said the auto was practically demolished by the force of the impact.

Frank Kelly, who is a clerk in the City Drug Company, was immediately removed to the hospital for treatment but Ralph Stewart, a pro at the Sanford Country Club and son of Alan Stewart, manager, was permitted to return to his home after first aid treatment.

The Sheriff's Office expressed appreciation for the co-operation of Capt. and Mrs. Constantine L. DeWolke who were first on the scene after the mishap.

River Improvement Urged By Engineers

WASHINGTON, Apr. 24.—(AP)—Major General Schley, chief of army engineers, recommended to Congress yesterday improvement of a waterway between Punta Rassa, Fla., to Stuart and Fort Pierce, estimated to cost $208,000.

General Schley recommended modification of existing plans for the Caloosahatchee and Lake Okechobee drainage areas to provide the following improvements:

Channel eight feet deep from Fort Myers to the intracoastal waterway near Stuart with widths of 90 feet from Fort Myers to Moore Haven, 80 feet in the existing channel along the southern shore of the lake to the hurricane gate structure at Clewiston, 100 feet thence along a relocated channel to deeper water on the south side of the lake, 100 feet from deep water to the east side of the lake to St. Lucie lock No. 2, and thence 80 feet to the intracoastal waterway.

General Schley also directed a detailed review of existing plans for the waterway between St. Marks River, Fla., and New Orleans, to determine whether modifications should be made at this time.

Work Progresses On Rumanian Front Lines

BUCHAREST, Apr. 24.—(AP)—The government yesterday ordered all engineers, architects and technicians and their assistants to report to military authorities by May 3 to aid in the strengthening of Rumania's frontier fortifications.

For several months the work of strengthening the defense works has been under way and many engineers and construction crews have been enrolled for the military work regardless of their age.

Construction materials also have been assembled by the government in such vast quantities that a crisis threatens the building industry.

Recruits also are being called on by the military authorities for the work of fortifying the frontiers.

Politics Is Satirized In Kiwanis Meet

Mythical Platforms Of Two Candidates For Governor Given

The Kiwanis Club broke a precedent of long standing at its weekly luncheon in the Valdés Hotel today to permit Kent Rossetter, Jr., and Edward Higgins, Jr., to speak in behalf of their respective candidates for governor, namely Howard Long and John G. Leonardy, both members of the local club.

Speaking in behalf of the candidacy of Mr. Long, campaign manager Rossetter declared that "Howard Long stands for two bathtubs in every home, (which he will install cheaply) thereby eliminating the Saturday night rush."

Declaring that "the extravagance that prevails today has brought us down to grits and gravy," Mr. Rossetter asserted that "the worst of it is, we voters and taxpayers get the grits and the politicians get the gravy."

Mr. Higgins told the audience that his candidate is seeking the governor's chair on the campaign slogan, "From a Florida swamp to the Governor's dump."

J. W. Hall was chairman of the Program Committee for today's meeting over which Vice President Julius Dingfelder presided.

"I come before you today on behalf of the candidacy of one who, because of his long record, is fully qualified to go to the Chair—I mean the Governor's chair—of this great State of Florida. Over and over again he has proved himself the friend of man—no need indeed for me to say who that man is. His affection for the poor working man is known to all of you. He has refused to accept a job because by so doing he would deprive some poor working man of his means of livelihood. He is a truly religious man. St. Paul tells us that this is true religion, to visit widows and orphans. My candidate has done his, not once but many times. He is verily a man of many parts," Mr. Higgins said.

"Gentlemen if you elect my candidate to the Governor's Office," (Continued on Page Six)
