BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY
DO NOT BE HEADSTRONG; resist temptation; against such there is no law.—Gal. 6:23.
TO A CAPTIVE FLAMINGO
(From The Saturday Review of Literature)
"Both-eaten flame, under a sun of lemon tint, have we begun to know each other as absurd and fellow-captive man and bird!"

On linked legs, that ponderous head
Without a voice yet seemed to speak,
Lamenting, "I have lost my glow
Because you will not let me go
Back to the sunset with my wings.
You hem me in with wire things,
As you yourself are hemmed
I once was not. You always were."

To which I said, "Your paltry bluff
Alarms me with its not enough
You were about to be extinct,
Each of us looked and one of us winked."
—WITTER BYNNER.

AMERICAN LOVE SONG
(From the Virginia Quarterly Review)
If the blue witch is thick this year
It is in the sorry morning
When the wind is blowing
If the witch greets me the
Somehow I'll find the hallow
I'll kiss each other, curse of
The low and rainy shallow.
If the wild river drowns the fields
With more than half of heaven,
Or half earth blows itself away,
We'll starve to make it even.
And if the drums of war are
Rolling and whither,
I'll take them that'll breathe
As do.
Not in our native weather.
—FRANCES PROSE

Overcome despair Holland made a splendid talk at the Methodist conference in Sanford. It is refreshing to find a political leader today who believes in religion and the Bible and is not afraid to let people know it.

Public opinion is changing. Last week the trustees of the Church Peace Union, a $2,000,000 Carnegie endowment for promoting peace through the churches, passed a resolution advocating all possible American aid to the Allies short of war.

Labeled reports from the front indicate the French have been remembered in their fight against the Germans by three to one. Such figures prove Hitler has staked everything on the desperate chance of winning or losing the war in the first few weeks of the struggle. If the Germans can hold out all summer, winter is through.

President Roosevelt replies to Senator Borah that we are now all in our power to aid the Allies. We will allow that statement possibly not to be taken as a promise, but it is a statement of our present position.

Whither Britain?

The capitulation of France has left England in the tightest spot it has experienced since William the Conqueror landed at Hastings in 1066. Three weeks, though, times when the Spanish Armada headed for the English Channel in Queen Elizabeth's day. There were tough times when Napoleon completed the conquest of Europe and settled down at Dunkerque to launch an invasion of English shores. But on neither occasion was the British Empire so close to destruction as at present.

If the Germans get control of the French fleet they may defeat the British fleet in a naval action. If not, they may yet defeat it with the help of their overwhelmingly superior air power. They may block off part of the English channel by means of mines and transport an expeditionary force to the south coast in the dead of night. They may accomplish their purpose by means of light-sea-going tanks and parachute troops. They may confine themselves to a naval blockade and starvation campaign, aided by bombing raids on British shipping and seaports.

If England is to be made a battlefield, British women and children should be evacuated. While there is yet time to do it, we do not mean merely to evacuate them from the cities to the countryside; we mean to load them on to ships and bring them to Canada and the United States where they will be safe for the time being, at least. We believe British men will fight harder and longer if they know their women and children are out of danger. It was the civilian populations, the refugee problem, which contributed more than any other one thing to the French defeat.

In the meantime the United States should redouble its efforts to help England. If Britain falls, the United States will be left alone in a world of hostile nations. With the aid of the United States, Britain can yet win. It was never defeated in Napoleon's time though, for ten long years this was the crowning objective of his military career. Airplanes, which the United States should be able to produce in such abundance as to fill the skies like locusts, can do the trick.

Imitating Hitler

With the collapse of the French armies, Americans will be interested to see what happens to the French navy, for if the French navy is added to the German and Italian navies, the Bismarck Axis will have as large a navy as Britain's, an even larger navy than that of the United States. And if the Germans gain control of the French and British shipbuilding yards, they will be able to outbuild the United States in future naval construction.

But of more immediate danger to the United States is the threat of invasion by Hitler's armed forces. All the tendency of people to bow before the conqueror. The world loves a winner and the American people are no exception. There is an old saying in this country, particularly popular with politicians, that goes, "If you can't beat 'em, join 'em." It will be interesting to see how long it takes before some politician raises that cry with respect to Mr. Hitler.

As a matter of fact, we have already heard something to that effect from South American countries. Even before the fall of Paris, but when it appeared that the defense of that city was about to collapse, President Vargas issued a statement to the effect that the American country upon whose aid he depended could depend on the aid of Hitler's army, and that after a dangerous period needed room to expand.

We expect to hear that sentiment re-echoed again in the next few months as the success of Hitler's legions becomes more apparent. South American countries, if they are going to do business with anyone, will have to do business with Hitler. Whether they like him or not, they will give him the customary salute and shout, "Heil!" After all, you can't expect a little country like Argentina to stick its neck out with the spectacle of a humbled France so immediately before it.

In this country traitors and cowards will say, "Hitler is not crazy; he is a realist." "Hitler is no fool; look at what he did to France and England." "Hitler is not so bad, look at the wealth he has gained for the German people," and so forth. Every vicious trait of the mass butcher of Berlin will be made to look like a very desirable characteristic. Even the totalitarian type of government, now that it has demonstrated its power to achieve successes, will have certain charms for democratic politicians.

Why should we have a government of demoralized powers? Germany never got anywhere until it placed all authority in the hands of Hitler. Why should we allow our newspapers and public speakers to criticize government policies? A German editor who said anything against Hitler would be shot. Why should we allow labor to organize and bargain collectively? In Germany they are ruled by the government with an iron hand, their wages are low and their hours long and are fixed by government decree. Why should we adhere to this double standard about religious freedom? Hitler never got anywhere until he ran the Jews out of the country.

That is the real danger to America today. Nothing succeeds like success. Hitler's successes in Europe will soon form the basis for imitations in this country. We must prepare for the armed invasion which comes or later will be attempted. But we must also prepare for the psychological revolution which will soon engulf itself among our own people.

What do you say when you have exhausted your resources and are almost bankrupt and ripe for the green bayonet and the guillotine of Hitler? I have read the account of the fall of France and I am convinced that we are in a similar position. We must prepare for the worst.

France Surrenders But Britain Says She'll Fight Alone

The French government, in accordance with the terms of the armistice, has ordered the evacuation of the French army and the French fleet. The British government has announced that it will continue to fight alone.

French capitulation came as the great Maginot Line, the most impregnable of defenses except for a skeleton force and a German armored legion smashed through and around the vast fortification system. Other Nazi columns claimed the capture of Orleans on the river Loire, where Jean of Arc won a great victory.

France's "impregnable" Maginot Line is crumbling under mighty Nazi blows aimed at cutting off the French army from the sea and German armor now, more than 100 miles apart on either side of the Lake Geneva, the Swiss, Nazi spokesmen said last night.

France is falling apart rapidly under the blows of the German blitzkrieg. The Nazis claim that no amount of American aid can save the French army from annihilation.

With the great system of Maginot fortifications virtually cut off and taking a desperate pounding from these drive-ahead French columns, the French army was believed to be on the verge of total collapse, the Nazis said.

News of resignation of the French war government, headed by Paul Reynaud, the premier, was received through the British agency, in a dispatch from Geneva.

The agency distributed the dispatch without comment. Observers were amazed to learn that the French government had resigned.

Frankfort feels mighty sorry about overrunning what it calls "the three greatest Technicolor problems: fire, storm and flesh," (showing that for Dorothy Lauder's "Typhoon," (showing at the Ritz last three nights), a whole island had to be made in the miniature, then burned with stromium and other chemicals for precise film tone in long-shot scenes of the fire. For the close-ups, more than an acre of "jungle" was built and burned. Special neon lights were needed for the critical shadings of a storm sky, said the company. As for the "flesh," it added, "Dorothy wears a masculine, sequined, a lava is volcanic, as any geologist will tell you."

Just in case you might think that Dorothy's glamour or her long, or even lava lava is slipping, she's just signed a seven year contract, at $1850 per week. As Charlie McCarthy would say, "nice going, Dottie."

History will be made in more ways than one, in the halls of Congress at Washington, this week. The Senate will take action on the federal Emergency Revenue Bill passed last Tuesday by the House of Representatives by a vote of 396 to 6, to put a ten percent tax on theatre admissions over 50 cents, up. The present non-taxable price is 40 cents. I understand that there is a great possibility of the 10 percent tax being placed on all admissions over a dime. Well, there's no use worrying about it.

At least, let's not all of us worry. Reminds me of the fellow who rang his creditor's doorbell at 10:00 A. M. The window was open and a voice exclaimed: "Who's there and what do you want?" "It's me, Smith, who was to pay you the $50.00 I owe you at 10:00 o'clock this morning. I knew I couldn't do it and so I had to tell you, because I couldn't sleep." "Well, you fool," said the creditor, "why tell me now, this hour? Now I can't sleep either!"

Here's our time schedule for Tuesday's two features:—1:10 "Columbus" Dr. Christian—1:10 3:10—6:10—8:40. "Opened by Mistake" — 2:25—4:55—7:25—9:55.

A great deal of information has been secured direct by the inquirer in his own country, without passing through national headquarters.

"Another activity of this section is the mailing of leaflets urging Americans back from the war zones. This was done with great efficiency and helpfulness during the early days of the war in 1918, when the first American soldiers began to return. All Chapters of eastern seaboard ports have been notified to mobilize volunteers to meet returning soldiers and their families. The national headquarters has provided funds for a temporary shelter available to passengers without sufficient funds."

The present non-taxable price is 40 cents. I understand that there is a great possibility of the 10 percent tax being placed on all admissions over a dime. Well, there's no use worrying about it.

At least, let's not all of us worry. Reminds me of the fellow who rang his creditor's doorbell at 10:00 A. M. The window was open and a voice exclaimed: "Who's there and what do you want?" "It's me, Smith, who was to pay you the $50.00 I owe you at 10:00 o'clock this morning. I knew I couldn't do it and so I had to tell you, because I couldn't sleep." "Well, you fool," said the creditor, "why tell me now, this hour? Now I can't sleep either!"

Here's our time schedule for Tuesday's two features:—1:10 "Columbus" Dr. Christian—1:10 3:10—6:10—8:40. "Opened by Mistake" — 2:25—4:55—7:25—9:55.

MOVIE MUSINGS

CHARLIE MORRISON

Frankfort feels mighty sorry about overrunning what it calls "the three greatest Technicolor problems: fire, storm and flesh," (showing that for Dorothy Lauder's "Typhoon," (showing at the Ritz last three nights), a whole island had to be made in the miniature, then burned with stromium and other chemicals for precise film tone in long-shot scenes of the fire. For the close-ups, more than an acre of "jungle" was built and burned. Special neon lights were needed for the critical shadings of a storm sky, said the company. As for the "flesh," it added, "Dorothy wears a masculine, sequined, a lava is volcanic, as any geologist will tell you."

Just in case you might think that Dorothy's glamour or her long, or even lava lava is slipping, she's just signed a seven year contract, at $1850 per week. As Charlie McCarthy would say, "nice going, Dottie."

History will be made in more ways than one, in the halls of Congress at Washington, this week. The Senate will take action on the federal Emergency Revenue Bill passed last Tuesday by the House of Representatives by a vote of 396 to 6, to put a ten percent tax on theatre admissions over 50 cents, up. The present non-taxable price is 40 cents. I understand that there is a great possibility of the 10 percent tax being placed on all admissions over a dime. Well, there's no use worrying about it.

Douglas Says World Has Virulent Disease

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., June 17.—(AP)—Justice Douglas of the United States Supreme Court, asserting that the world was afflicted by a "virulent disease," expressed confidence last night that "full utilization of the resources, the manpower, the intellect and the spiritual reserves of America would make impossible the decline or subjugation of the democratic faith."

Douglas, in an address at the 108th commencement of Wesleyan university at which he, Ambassador Hu Shih, of China, and Congressman Summers, of Texas, received honorary degrees of doctor laws, quickly warned, however, that "an awakening of the responsibilities of citizen-ship" was essential.

"With that awakening and with a united endeavor on a real partnership basis," he said, "we would have such a regeneration of the democratic faith that foreign ideologies would be relegated to psychiatric wards."

"Without that regeneration, implements of war may be feeble defenses indeed."
