Protesters, some of them members of the Guardian Angels, assembled outside a federal courthouse in Orlando Thursday to register their objections to continued efforts of convicted murderer Ted Bundy to have his death sentence set aside. The messages on the posters carried by the protesters tell the story.

Bundy Appeal Unsettled Competency Is Issue

From Staff And Wire Reports

Florida's protracted fight to get serial sex killer Ted Bundy into the electric chair will flare again the week before Christmas with further arguments over his competency when convicted of three murders.

In a four-hour hearing Thursday, at which Bundy appeared in court for the first time since 1980, Bundy's lawyer was prepared to call only two witnesses for a hearing ordered in April on an issue raised nearly a year ago.

Both witnesses were from the public defender's office first appointed to defend Bundy for crimes he committed in 1978, and both testified Bundy sabotaged his trials and aborted his only chance to escape the death penalty.

Bundy, 40, was convicted and ordered executed in 1979 first for the bloody bludgeoning-mutilation murders of two Chi Omega sorority sisters at Florida State University and then for the killing of 12-year-old Kimberly Leach of Lake City.

He twice last year was granted stays of execution for the coed killings and his third stay came Nov. 18 from the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta in the Leach case.

A hearing into Bundy's competency was ordered in April by the Atlanta federal court and upheld this month by the U.S. Supreme Court over objections of Florida prosecutors.

The state Attorney General's Office maintains not only was Bundy competent for trial and fit to help handle his own defense but that he should not now be allowed to revive the issue after vehemently refusing insanity defenses nearly a decade ago.

U.S. District Judge G. Kendall Sharp recessed the hearing until Dec. 14 after four hours of testimony.

During Bundy's hearing inside an Orlando courthouse, members of the Guardian Angels protested his stays and said Bundy and his lawyers are making a mockery of the justice system.

The Angels carried posters stating "Ted Should Be Dead" and had a mock victim prostrate on the sidewalk with a poster that read "What About My Rights?"

Inside the courthouse, security was increased and a metal detector was set up on the first floor to screen those going into the sixth-floor courtroom. Further, Sharp had ordered that not cameras or tape recorders be allowed in the courtroom. A Sanford Herald photographer, however, was not stopped by marshals on the first floor and was about to enter the courtroom when marshals told him it was a restricted area. The U.S. marshal in charge of security agreed that the photographer's presence near the courtroom demonstrated their security arrangements were not as good as they could have been.

To illustrate Bundy's incompetence, his current lawyer, Jim Coleman, focused Thursday on Bundy's last-minute rejection on May 31, 1979, of a plea bargain arrangement that would have spared his life but sent him to prison for three consecutive life

Sanford Herald Photographer Eludes Bundy Courthouse Security ... Almost

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

In what was an admitted lapse in security precautions, U.S. marshals in Orlando did not notice a Sanford Herald photographer Thursday until he was just 20 feet from entering a heavily guarded courtroom where serial-killer Ted Bundy was arguing for his life.

"If you want to put it that way," said Deputy U.S. marshal Roger Clark, it was a breach of security and a good thing the photographer was shooting with a camera and not a gun.

Bundy, in his first court appearance in nearly eight years, has received three death sentences for the murder of a 12-year-old Lake City girl and two Florida State sorority sisters.

Security arrangements at the Orlando Federal Courthouse included a first-floor metal detector at the, beefed up security presence, and secret transportation plans for Bundy. No cameras, TV crews or tape recorders were allowed in the courtroom per order of U.S. District Judge G. Kendall Sharp.

Herald photographer Louis Raimondo entered the federal building — apparently through an unguarded door after being let in by someone who unlocked it for office workers and allowed him to go in with them — and rode an elevator to the sixth floor where the hearing was being held.

Raimondo said he was walking toward

Venice Airport Spray Irrigation System Doing Well, Thank You

Maryann L. Cross
Herald Staff Writer

While rumors have surfaced in Sanford that the spray irrigation system at the Venice, Fla., Airport will be closed down, Venice's Utility Director John Lane said today the system is operating efficiently and will remain in use.

The proposed spray irrigation system that the city wants to install at the Sanford Airport has prompted interest in the Venice system. However, Bill Simmons, Sanford's director of engineering and planning, said the two systems are not at all alike. At the Sanford airport, the wastewater would be pumped from the city's wastewater treatment plant on Poplar Avenue to the airport property. Then sprinklers, similar to those used to irrigate farmland, would spray the water on approximately 300 acres of airport land between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Simmons said the amount of water sprayed on the Sanford airport property will match the rate at which the water can evaporate or be absorbed by the plants, thereby producing no run-off. One difference between the two operations, Simmons said, is that there is no surface body of water at the Sanford airport for the water to run into,

as there is at Venice.

The wastewater treatment program at the Venice airport uses an underdrain system. Lane said 410 acres at his city's airport is sprayed with approximately two million gallons of treated wastewater daily. Some of the water is then absorbed by the grass and the soil, but most of it flows into pipes located beneath the land's surface. The pipes then carry the water to the intercoastal waterway.

The Venice system was built in 1984 for approximately $4.5 million. This system sprays only between the hours of midnight and 6 a.m., and then only near closed runways. In addition, Lane said there is a buffer zone of several hundred feet between the runways and the land that is irrigated.

McCullough Environmental Services operates the wastewater treatment plant and the irrigation system located at the Venice airport under a contract with the city. According to McCullough's project manager, Lee Ogle, there is a problem with the grass at the airport because it does not absorb as much nutrients from the wastewater as it should. As a result, the water emptied into the intercoastal waterway doesn't meet the

Seminole Port Authority Wooing New Clients Administrator Looking Into Remodeling Vacant Spaces

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County Port Authority may have some new clients for its tank farm soon, and is in the process of getting a new operating permit for the storage tanks from the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation.

Dennis Dolgner, administrator of the port, also agreed to investigate the possibility of remodeling some vacant space at the industrial park into mini-storage facilities.

Dolgner told the port authority board

Wednesday he recently found out that since the storage tank operation was closed for awhile after the authority went out of the petroleum storage business, a new operating permit is needed from the state DER.

Since the state requires a construction permit before it will grant an operating permit, application for a construction permit has been filed, and is expected to be granted in about 60 days.

Dolgner told the board he has been negotiating with three chemical companies, one from Houston, one from Jacksonville and one from Miami, all of which are interested in leasing several of the storage tanks. One of the companies is interested in relocating its packaging plant to the industrial park, located just west of Sanford, which would not only mean using storage tanks, but also locating another business in the park.

Dolgner said none of the chemicals to be stored in the tanks will be as dangerous or volatile as the gasoline previously stored

POLICE

IN BRIEF

Neighbors Nabbed, Arrested By Agents As Pot Purveyors

Two neighbors on Teressa Court, Casselberry, have been released from jail on bond after having been arrested Tuesday in connection with alleged possession and sale of marijuana.

City/County Investigative Bureau agents reported that the arrests were made after agents for a third time met one of the suspect at his home to buy marijuana at about 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Kevin Joseph Schepp, 20, of 31 Teressa Court, was arrested at his home after he allegedly took money from agents for marijuana and went to 33 Teressa Court to pick up the marijuana and to leave the money with the other suspect.

Schepp has been charged with three counts of sale and delivery of marijuana, and three counts of possession of more than 20 grams of marijuana.

The alleged supplier to Schepp in all three sales, Michael W. Berthold, 24, of 33 Teressa Court, Casselberry, was charged with delivery and possession of over 20 grams of marijuana. He has been released on $2,000 bond to appear in court Nov. 9.

Schepp has been released on $1,000 and has the same court date.

Elderly Man Charged With Tot Sex

A 78-year-old Sanford man has been charged with sexual battery on a child under the age of 12 years and for sex with a child in his care.

The man is accused of assaulting a 3-year-old girl at his home on Oct. 2.

Joseph Fasanello, of 406 W. 19th St., was arrested Wednesday after questioning at the Sanford police station. He was being held without bond.

Shouting, Punching Brings Arrest

A Seminole County sheriff's deputy, who arrived at Krystal's Restaurant, U.S. Highway 17-92, Fern Park, to find a man arguing with a Casselberry policeman and cursing police and customers, arrested the man.

But the suspect was not arrested until after he had been told he could not drive because his license had been suspended. Allegedly, he became more rowdy, banged his own head against the windows of his car and allegedly punched a bystander several times.

The man continued to scream and curse throughout the incident, a sheriff's report said. John R. Bouton, 23, of 1794 Lady Amy Drive, Casselberry, was charged with battery and disorderly conduct at 11:45 p.m. Wednesday. He was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Driving Under Influence Arrests

The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

—Molisen Zahert, 29, of 2430 Roxbury Road, Winter Park, was arrested at 1:30 a.m. Thursday on U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry, after he drove onto State Road 436 in front of a Florida Highway Patrol car and then turned south on U.S. Highway 17-92, with his car weaving on the roadway.

—Robert Joseph Burt, 28, of 1270 Seminole Blvd., Casselberry, at 12:22 a.m. Thursday, on U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry, after police saw his car's tag light was out and the license tag was not visible. His car, which was weaving, was clocked traveling 25 mph in a 45-mph zone.

Burglaries And Thefts Reported

A co-owner of Rite-Way Sanitation, 2351 N. Cameron Ave., Sanford, reported to sheriff's deputies that a heater and tools with a total value of $380 were stolen from a company vehicle between Saturday and Tuesday.

A $220 video recorder was stolen from the home of Mary L. Lovett, 41, of 97 Spring St., Altamonte Springs, Friday, a sheriff's report said.

Lester S. Billford III, PA, reported to sheriff's deputies that a burglar on Oct. 10 or 11 stole a $250 Oriental rug, a $60 stereo, a $60 clock, a $45 camera and a $22 roll of stamps from his office at 499 Ester Lane, Altamonte Springs. Billford reported the loss Tuesday.

Scaffolding valued at $700 was stolen from 625 Executive Park Court, Apopka, Monday or Tuesday. A sheriff's report said the scaffolding belongs to Standard Construction and Renovation of Edmond, Oklahoma.

David E. Lynn, 27, of 313 Snow Hill Road, Chuluota, reported to sheriff's deputies that lawn care gear, a cassette radio and a pack of soft drinks with a total value of about $900 were stolen from his vehicle and a trailer in his yard Wednesday.

Police Find Cycle Before Owner Misses It

Sanford police recovered a motorcycle belonging to a Sanford man Wednesday before the owner even knew it was missing.

According to the police report, a $1,500 1979 Honda motorcycle belonging to Adrian Boyd, 28, 317 W. Third St., was stolen from Boyd's home between 10 p.m. Tuesday and 6 a.m. Wednesday.

Police officers found the motorcycle parked next to St. John & Son Electric, 520 Laurel Ave., before Boyd even was aware of the theft. Police contacted Boyd, and he came to the station to retrieve his cycle.

Other actions investigated by the Sanford Police Department include:

● Burglars reportedly entered the home of Lewis Johnson, 37,

1810-E Landings Drive, Oct. 12 between 6:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. and removed a video cassette recorder worth $369. Johnson told police his daughter left the front door open while she was babysitting. Neighbor Charles Ester, 30, 1810-C Landings Drive, reported he saw two males, possibly juveniles, at Johnson's apartment during that date and time. One was peeing up and down while the other was seen exiting the open door of the apartment.

● Kathleen Davis, 43, 1906 Patrick Place, reported to police someone stole her purse, a jewelry box and a pair of jeans, with a total value of $3,500, from her home between 1:20 and 6:30 a.m. Wednesday.

● A $200 camera was reported stolen from the home of Harold Daniels, 25, 1402 Valencia Court, between 7 a.m. and 5:40 p.m. Wednesday. According to the police report, the burglar gained entry by using a knife to break the rear dining room window.

● Chris Bilbad, 18, 1054 Princess Gate, Winter Park, told police that while his 1970 Oldsmobile Cutlass was parked at 3202 Orlando Drive, someone unlocked and opened the engine compartment between 4 p.m. Oct. 1 and 9 p.m. Oct. 20. Bilbad reported the vehicle's carburetor, air cleaner, radiator and alternator were missing.

Swat Team Removes Man

After two hours of negotiation with a man who refused a Seminole County sheriff's order to leave the home of his ex-wife, a rural Longwood man was taken out of that home by the Seminole County SWAT team.

Eugene Anthony Versage, 35, whose address is listed as 402 Squirrel Trail, the same home he was removed from, has been charged with resisting arrest with violence and trespassing after a warning. Versage was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

A sheriff's report said that under a court order, Versage was to stay away from that address. His ex-wife, Elaine Helen Cohlman, 33, of that same address, reported to sheriff's deputies that he was at the home at about 7 p.m. Thursday. She reportedly said he was armed with a handgun and claimed he is a violent person.

Versage allegedly refused to respond to sheriff's deputies orders to come out of that home and after two hours of negotiation with him the SWAT team went in and took him out. He was arrested at 9:06 p.m.

City Manager In Hospital After Mild Heart Attack

Lake Mary City Manager Bob Norris was admitted to Florida Hospital — Orlando Thursday afternoon after it was discovered he suffered a mild heart attack during a weekend convention of the Florida League of Cities in Miami. Mayor Dick Fess announced Norris' situation at the city commission meeting Thursday night.

Norris, 41, who was hired by the city last January, told Fess he "felt sick" while at the convention. "I told him he should go back to his room and get some rest," Fess said. Norris returned to work after the convention Monday and didn't discover that a heart attack caused his weekend sickness until he was examined by a doctor Thursday.

Norris said from the hospital today that he's scheduled for a heart catheterization procedure this coming Monday. Doctors use this procedure to examine the heart by injecting a dye into the heart and monitoring its flow on a screen.

"I feel fine," Norris said. "I don't know when I'll go back to work, but I expect it should be Tuesday or Wednesday."

Norris is expected to be in the hospital at least until sometime Tuesday.

Accident Victim's Condition Serious

A Casselberry girl was in serious condition today following surgery after an accident Thursday in front of Lake Howell High School.

Rose Camacho, 17, of 894 N. Jerico, was airlifted to Orlando Regional Medical Center after she was struck by a car around 7:10 a.m. Her left leg was reported broken in several places and doctors suspected she had an internal head injury.

Camacho was in an eastbound vehicle that stopped in front of the school. The girl got out and walked behind that vehicle. A second vehicle, driven by Harvey L. Marshall, 18, of 2571 Derbyshire Circle, Casselberry, stopped behind the car Camacho got out of. Camacho walked between the vehicles and was struck by a westbound car driven by Andrew Scott Kochenbrod, 17, of 681 Kentia Road, Casselberry, according to an FBI report.

The impact threw Camacho into Marshall's vehicle.

No charges have been filed.

The Times They Are A' Changin'

Staff And Wire Reports

That old lazy sun keeps lurking beyond the horizon longer and longer. He must have the same lethargy that you and moi do, wanting to stay oh please just one more minute under that blanket.

But 'twon't be long before Mr. Sun E. Sky begins his work day an hour earlier. Early-early Sunday morning, at 2 a.m., the clock will roll back to 1 a.m. Tie a string on your finger. Get a wake-up call. Do something! Only don't come dragging in late to church.

Think of it. Because humanity had to manipulate clocks and calendars, every rooster in America will have to rise, shine and crow an hour earlier.

So the mercury says it was down to 55 last night, eh? Brrrr. Scientifically speaking, that's cold enough to make your Florida orange juice freeze. But doesn't that chill in the air make your first steaming cup of coffee that much more savory?

Speaking of volcanos, a light snow just dusted a Hawaiian volcano and melted today. And why not? It's got tropical temps and lava working against it. Parts of Minnesota dug out from under a little more serious snow — 16 inches — with more flakes falling, and Southern California tried to dry out from rains that triggered a mudslide and power outages. (Be sympathetic; remember our rainy season of late?)

More showers and thunderstorms were forecast today for California, where heavy rains fell at a rate of 1 to 2 inches an hour Thursday. The storm flooded roads, knocked out power to tens of thousands of homes and businesses, and unleashed a mudslide in San Diego that washed away a building and several cars.

Snow was forecast today in upper Michigan to extreme northern Michigan and across northern Maine, the National Weather Service said. Snow and rain are expected across the rest of northern lower Michigan. Snow will change to rain from northeast New York state through Vermont into southern Maine.

The NWS posted frost and freeze advisories for Thursday night and this morning from southern Maryland and southern Delaware through parts of eastern Virginia, and the Carolinas.

In Macon, Ga., today the temperature dipped to 32, breaking the record of 36 set in 1974, said NWS meteorologist Hugh Crowther, adding that record lows may be set in northern Georgia, the Carolinas and Tennessee.

More rain and stormy weather were forecast for Southern California today, but the storm system that hit Los Angeles County Thursday morning was expected to move northeast by the end of the day. There is a chance more showers will linger into the weekend, forecasters said.

Southern California Edison officials reported as many as 100,000 customers from Santa Barbara to southern Orange County lost power Thursday, but by late in the day only 3,500 were without electricity.

More than 7,000 homes and businesses in the San Fernando Valley and the downtown area lost power Thursday because of lightning and falling tree limbs, officials said.

The California Highway Patrol reported that within the first two hours of the storm, the number of accidents reported on Los Angeles County freeways was "at least twice the normal" rate.

As it rained into the night in the San Fernando Valley, authorities reported cars submerged by floodwaters along the Hollywood Freeway.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Stripper's Brother Says His Sister Loved Her Job

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — The brother of 17-year-old Tina Mancini, who prosecutors say committed suicide because her mother forced her to strip tease, says his sister "loved" the work and did not mind paying room and board to their mother.

Edward "Chipper" Slayton Jr., testified Thursday in defense of his mother, Theresa "Terry" Jackson, 40, who is charged with aggravated child abuse, procuring sexual performances by a child and forging Mancini's birth certificate so she could work in nightclubs.

Slayton, 17, replied "no" when asked by defense lawyer Kenneth Whitman: "Did your mother ever make you work? Did your mother ever make Tina work?"

He said Mancini paid Jackson $200 a week for room, board and chauffeur services, but earned about $2,000 a week.

"That was a small percentage of her salary," Slayton said.

Slayton said Mancini, who stuck the muzzle of a .357-Magnum revolver in her mouth and pulled the trigger March 24, 1986, worked as a stripper because she enjoyed the work and because she made "good" money.

Malpractice Session Sought

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Delaying action on the medical malpractice crisis could lead to more reductions in available medical services, Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter says.

Gunter on Thursday urged Gov. Bob Martinez to call a special legislative session on the malpractice crisis during November. Martinez has said legislators can take up the issue during a services tax special session in December, but only if they have already reached a consensus on what to do.

"Many doctors who have patiently looked to the state for leadership on this issue are becoming increasingly frustrated with each delay," Gunter complained in a letter to the governor.

"A level of disappointment and bitterness appears to be building — one that could find dangerous expression in a cutback of needed medical services to Floridians."

Earlier this year, Martinez said he hoped to hold a session on malpractice as early as September. He postponed that session indefinitely when it became clear lawmakers would have a hard time reaching consensus on a solution.

Court OKs Rules For Lawyers

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Florida Supreme Court has rejected a proposal to require prosecutors to seek a judge's approval before issuing subpoenas to lawyers for a client's documents, records or attorneys' files.

State and federal prosecutors, including the U.S. Department of Justice, opposed the rule, arguing the proposal was unnecessary and would have "a chilling effect on the grand jury system."

The justices accepted the argument and deleted the proposal from a series of amendments to the state's code of conduct for attorneys. The rule changes, published Thursday, take effect Jan. 1.

The justices did accept a proposal requiring lawyers who advertise their services to disclose their qualifications and experience. Legal ads must inform the public of its right to demand information about a lawyer's background.

The justices rejected a recommendation from the board of governors of the Florida Bar that the provision apply only to personal injury lawyers, saying, "all consumers should share in the benefits of this rule."

New Shuttle Flight Schedule Set

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — NASA's new shuttle flight schedule, incomplete because of unresolved military requirements, shows an even mix of high-priority Pentagon and science payloads, at least through October 1990.

The new shuttle manifest, released Thursday, is the result of months of negotiations between the Department of Defense and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which is struggling to rebuild its shuttle program in the wake of the Challenger disaster.

Only 19 shuttle missions have been assigned actual launch dates because of unresolved issues involving military needs. Six of the 19 flights are classified Pentagon missions with another 13 classified shuttle launches requested by military planners through 1993.

NASA's overall launch schedule also shows 15 unclassified military payloads scheduled for launch through 1995, three aboard shuttles and the rest aboard unmanned space agency rockets.

Wants Elimination Of Controversy, Inequities

Services Tax Can Be Fixed — Castor

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Education Commissioner Betty Castor says the Department of Revenue can revise the consumer services tax and even grant exemptions to make the tax less controversial.

Castor, a leader in the drive to retain the levy, asked Revenue Director Randy Miller Wednesday to propose changes to eliminate inequities and special problems. The changes would not need the Legislature's approval.

The Florida Association of Realtors, meanwhile, renewed its call for service tax repeal and rejected reports the levy is easier on the average citizen than the most likely replacement, a penny sales tax increase.

And House Speaker Jon Mills said hearings he and other legislative leaders plan to try to win public acceptance of the levy will begin next week in Orlando and West Palm Beach.

Castor argued that the revenue department, with approval from the Cabinet, can diffuse some of the controversy over the services tax through its emergency rule-making authority.

"The emergency rules authority which the Legislature gave the department will correct some inequities, such as music teachers, private child care and health care services that are currently paying the tax," she said.

Music teachers could be classified as educational entities, which are exempt, she said. And other exemptions could be broadened to cover child care and certain currently taxed healthcare.

She asked Miller to report to her on the possible adjustments at the Cabinet's Nov. 3 meeting.

Myrtle Anderson of Fort Lauderdale, newly-installed president of the 75,000-member real estate association, said the group's board of directors met in Orlando and voted to reaffirm a call for repeal of the tax.

"We don't want repeal without replacement, however," she said. "Our directors have called for adequate replacement revenue."

A good replacement would be an increase in the state sales tax, perhaps a one-cent increase, she said.

Anderson dismissed widespread reports, including one from Gov. Bob Martinez's Office of Planning and Budgeting, showing the average family paying substantially more under a penny sales tax hike than the services tax.

"Our tax consultants tell us that the average Floridian would pay about $75 a year for the services tax compared to $76 annually for a penny increase in the regular sales tax."

Glenn Robertson, Martinez' budget chief, estimates the cost to the average citizen from a penny sales tax increase at $173, compared to $120 under the services tax.

Mills said the dozen or so hearings he and Senate President John Vogt intend to hold will begin next week. The first meetings will be in Orlando and West Palm Beach. The exact days and times have not yet worked out yet.

Martinez: Social Services Deserve Lottery Bucks

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Bob Martinez says education may suffer in the long run if it does not share some of the anticipated proceeds from the state's new lottery with social services.

"Some small percentage ought to go to social services for health care or something," Martinez told the St. Petersburg Times this week. "Otherwise, people will think they gave us a lottery and it will harm our ability to provide additional money" for schools, colleges and universities.

He said social services and other state programs should have an opportunity to compete with education for lottery proceeds, at least after the games have been in operation for two years.

Similar comments by Martinez aides in the past sparked a storm of protest from Education Commissioner Betty Castor and other school officials who pointed out that the constitutional amendment authorizing the lottery was sold to voters last November as a plan to pay for improvements in education.

The lottery is to begin Jan. 15. Legislators are counting on $145 million from it for the current fiscal year, which runs through June 30, and about $300 million the following budget year.

Total spending on education this year will be about $6 billion.

All lottery money was earmarked by legislators for education in the current budget. House Speaker Jon Mills says lottery money will continue to be earmarked for education if he has his way.

"The lottery was sold on the basis of funding education," the speaker says. "The Legislature believes that I don't think that dividing the money with other programs can happen."

"Now and forever the money should go to education," said Castor aide David Voss.

Testing For Peace

The Canadian government of Prime Minister Brian Mulroney has announced that it will permit further testing by the U.S. Air Force of cruise missiles over Canada's far north this winter.

The announcement reverses a long-standing Canadian policy.

Leftists consider the test "provocative." But cruise missiles are the least provocative nuclear delivery system.

And it can be even more provocative to appear militarily weak, as Canada has become in recent years.

The Air Force wants to test cruise missiles by launching them from B-52s over the Beaufort Sea, running them south to the Canadian armed forces station at Cold Lake, Alberta.

The terrain over which the missiles will fly is similar to parts of the Soviet Union.

The objective of the tests is to confirm the reliability of both the guidance system and the weapon when it is flying at ground-hugging levels.

There has been heavy opposition to this testing in Canada, a country that consciously refuses to develop or deploy nuclear weapons.

To satisfy these pressures, the Mulroney government linked testing to negotiations for a total ban on intermediate nuclear missiles.

Despite the announcement in Moscow and Washington of an "agreement in principle" to ban such missiles, the Canadian government says verification of the cruise missile's reliability is too important to the deterrence of nuclear war to be disallowed.

Nuclear arms opponents have attacked the Mulroney government for its turnabout.

The major lesson to be learned from the Reagan Administration's handling of disarmament talks is that strength pays off at the bargaining table.

The Russians walked out at Geneva when the United States deployed intermediate cruise missiles and Pershing 2s in Europe.

They came back when it became apparent that the United States was making rapid progress with its Strategic Defense Initiative.

It was strength, not weakness, that drove the bargaining.

Regular successful tests to confirm the accuracy of the cruise missile give credibility to the American nuclear deterrent and, like SDI, compel the Soviet Union to negotiate.

If negotiations are Canada's objective, the Mulroney government can reasonably argue that this goal is better served with the cruise missile tests than without them.

Meanwhile, the United States can be happy at this latest evidence of Canada's intention to get serious about defense.

Ethics Rearns Its Ugly Head Among Candidates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — You might think everything ethically bad that could happen during the 1988 presidential campaign already has taken place, but you could be wrong.

The fact that a couple of Democratic candidates dropped out of the race upon presentation of evidence that they engaged in sexual peccadillos or indulged in plagiarism might be only the beginning.

Wait until the outbreak of morality hits Republican candidates and you will see what I mean.

Suppose, for instance, that George Bush, along with general wimpishness, should be accused of putting bananas in the refrigerator. Then where would we be?

Minus both a candidate and a vice president. I'm thinking.

I mean, was Spiro Agnew accused of half so serious an impropriety when he resigned as vice president?

Not only would that offense offend about half the banana republics at a time when this country is trying to build bridges to Central America, but it could alienate Chiquita as well.

Didn't she used to tell us in the famous commercial jingle that bananas have to ripen in a certain way?

I don't care how much Bush might plead that he was only trying to preserve the fruit. Putting bananas in the refrigerator is, of course, an unpardonable evil.

Or suppose word leaked out that Sen. Robert Dole or Rep. Jack Kemp or one of Bush's other opponents had served red wine with the fish dish at a dinner party.

Maybe a couple of reporters staked out the candidate's town house and wrote a story about his color scheme. It matters little how the matter comes to public attention. Serving red wine with fish still could be grounds for folding a campaign.

Particularly if the candidate wanted to spend more time with his family. And particularly if political reporters kept asking questions about his social life.

Dole or Kemp might contend until they were blue in the face that half the guests already were inebriated by that time and couldn't care less what color wine they drank during the fish course.

But all presidential candidates are expected to follow certain rules of etiquette during dinner parties, serving only white wine with fish.

And the list goes on and on.

It could develop that a certain candidate had in his youth struck a match from a paper pack without first closing the cover.

Or it could be a candidate while in college had ripped a tag off a mattress in clear violation of the instructions.

Either way, I would recommend that presidential candidates of whatever party be prepared to whistlestop along the straight and narrow for the rest of the campaign.

ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Creating Another Koreagate?

WASHINGTON — This is a follow-up on my recent column about the scandal of lobbying for foreign governments and companies by former U.S. officials.

These "hired guns" are earning huge sums in order to influence the Congress and the Executive Branch so as to help foreigners dominate the U.S. Market and take business away from American enterprises.

Recent articles in the press have stated that Asian countries spent more than $100 million in Washington in 1986, which reportedly is four times what they spent in 1983. A prominent U.S. manufacturer wrote to me about this situation. He said that it is his understanding that "the true figure (for foreign lobbying) is nearer four to five times that amount." He added, "Those lobbyists, many of them ex-members of our government, have all day and evening everyday to present their case to the Congress and the rest of us have to run our businesses and try to talk to members of Congress that perhaps we know from our area. We are not getting equal opportunity to tell our story to all of the government."

This businessman makes the point that "there is an incredible untold story of American lobbyists working for foreign interests who have played a disproportionate role in the decisions of the administrative branch of our government and the actions of Congress."

This businessman's statement is substantiated in an article published July 7 in The Journal of Commerce. The editorial page article cited the "revolving door syndrome" in relation to lobbying for Japan, Korea and other Asian countries. It noted that among the high-powered lobbyists on the payroll of Asian firms is a former U.S. trade representative; a one-time director of the Central Intelligence Agency; a former Transportation Secretary; and a former National Security Advisor to the president. It cited large payments to lobbyists; it stated that Daewoo shipping interest in Korea paid $250,000 to former White House adviser Michael Deaver. A related matter involves contributions that foreign interests make to tax deductible foundations that are influential in public policy-making.

One wonders how many ordinary Americans know that former U.S. Government officials have grown rich selling their services to foreign governments and companies that seek influence in Congress and the Executive Branch. They surely would be outraged if they knew what was going on. There have been influence-peddling scandals revealed in the past, such as "Koreagate" in 1975 and 1976, but legislative remedies haven't been applied in an effective way. There should be a strict rule that former U.S. officials not be allowed to represent foreign interests.

JACK ANDERSON

Convicted Aide: Heckler OK'd Acts

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — A former Health and Human Services Department official who pleaded guilty to conflict of interest now claims that then-Secretary Margaret Heckler not only knew about the situation but encouraged the activities that led to the charges against him, according to court documents.

C. McClain Haddow, Heckler's former chief of staff, was sentenced to a year in prison after he acknowledged that he arranged for his wife, Alice, to accept payment through a phony contractor for speeches she had written for Heckler. But Haddow insists he didn't know he was breaking the law, and says that when he realized it almost a year later and discussed the matter with Heckler, she told him not to worry about it.

New Test For Cancer

By Bob Stein, UPI Science Writer

BOSTON (UPI) — A new blood test that could help diagnose and monitor the treatment of prostate cancer appears to be much more sensitive than a commonly used existing method.

"This is infinitely more sensitive and will, in my view, undoubtedly replace the existing test," said Dr. Thomas A. Stamey of the Stanford University School of Medicine.

There are about 96,000 new cases of prostate cancer and 27,000 deaths from the disease each year in the United States, making it the third leading cause of cancer and cancer deaths in men.

If the prostate gland is found to contain cancer, it is usually removed surgically and patients are given radiation treatments to kill any remaining cancer cells in their bodies.

Doctors monitor the success of the treatment and check for any recurrences by measuring the level of an enzyme in the blood known as prostatic acid phosphatase or PAP, which is secreted by prostate cells.

Stamey and his colleagues compared that test to another that measures a different enzyme secreted by the prostate known as prostatic-specific antigen or PSA.

The researchers measured the levels of the two enzymes in blood samples from 699 patients, 378 of whom had prostate cancer.

The PSA level was elevated in 122 of 127 patients with newly diagnosed, untreated prostate cancer, including seven of 12 who were unsuspected early cases and all of 115 with more advanced cases.

The PSA level increased as the disease progressed and was proportional to the size of the tumor.

In contrast, PAP levels were elevated in only 57 of the patients with cancer.

More importantly, in six patients who underwent surgery and then were followed up with tests measuring the enzyme levels in their blood, PSA but not PAP measurements appeared useful for detecting residual and early recurrences of cancer.

"We conclude that PSA is more sensitive than PAP in the detection of prostatic cancer and will probably be more useful in monitoring responses and recurrence after therapy," Stamey and his colleagues said in reporting their results in a recent issue of The New England Journal of Medicine.

Stamey cautioned, however, that the test could not be used for routine screening because it often produces false positive results in patients suffering from a non-cancerous and common inflammation of the prostate.

Based on the findings, the researchers recommended prostate cancer patients have their PSA levels measured three weeks after having their prostate removed and then periodically after that to check for recurrences.

"It will give us a much better marker of the patients' progress," said Stamey in a telephone interview. "We're hoping we can cure more patients with this technique."

In two patients in the study, PSA levels became detectable nine and 12 months after their prostate had been removed. No cancer could be found through standard detection methods, but the PSA dropped back down to zero after the pelvic area was irradiated.

Dr. Ruben F. Gittes of the Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation in La Jolla, Calif., in an editorial accompanying the study, said the findings offer strong evidence of the usefulness of the new test.

"It seems likely to replace the 'veteran' PAP assay in the staging and follow-up of all cases of prostate cancer," he said. Staging is a process in which the progress of the cancer is measured.

WASHINGTON WORLD

Reagan Takes On 'Art Form'

By Ira R. Allen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan has identified a little-known "national scandal." He promises to campaign, and complain as he travels next year on behalf of Republican candidates.

His complaint is about the practice of "gerrymandering," that fascinating art form — enhanced these days by color computers — that dates almost to the founding of the republic.

Gerrymandering, as every high school civics student knows, is the drawing of political boundaries — in this case congressional districts — in such a way as to preserve certain seats in the legislature for one party or another, or to protect a certain candidate or to exclude a certain voting bloc from swing districts.

In a speech to a fund-raising dinner for Republican gubernatorial candidates last week, Reagan defined the problem, as he sees it.

"In 1984, there were 397 congressional races contested by both parties. In the races, Republicans won half a million more votes than the Democrats, but the Democratic Party won 31 more seats."

"In California, one of the worst cases of gerrymandering in the country, Republicans received a majority of votes in congressional races but the Democrats won 60 percent more races. The Democrats have so rigged the electoral process that the will of the people cannot be heard. They vote Republican — but elect Democrats."

Referring to the late Rep. Phil Burton of California, who engineered the redistricting, Reagan said the one-time boss of San Francisco area politics "once described the district lines there as his contribution to modern art."

The story is told that in order to protect his electorally weaker brother, John Burton, Phil Burton divided up San Francisco — not in half but in such a way as to give himself more of the Republican areas of suburban Marin County and give his younger brother the southern half of Democratic San Francisco with a sliver of the district extending across the bay to encompass a heavily Democratic part of the Oakland area.

Burton also bragged of drawing a congressional district boundary halfway up a high-rise condominium, so that residents of the upper floors were part of one district, and the bottom dwellers part of another.

That Burton was able to perform such feats of magic within the strict guidelines set down by various courts and through the use of supposedly impartial computers, was, as Reagan decries, a work of art.

But it's legal, and as old as Elbridge Gerry, the Massachusetts politician for whom the practice of drawing districts in the shape of salamanders, was named.

According to Gettings' letter, when Haddow first realized there was a possible conflict-of-interest problem, in January 1985, he mentioned it to Heckler. Gettings wrote:

"Secretary Heckler ... advised Mr. Haddow at that time that she was the official in the department that was making the decisions regarding Mrs. Haddow's speech-writing efforts, that Mr. Haddow had no role in the matter other than as a conduit for executing her decisions. In the conversation about the (conflict-of-interest) statute, Secretary Heckler stated that Mr. Haddow would never have to worry about this."

Also included in the court records are the results of a polygraph test Haddow took on Sept. 10, 1987, indicating that he was not lying when he made the allegation about Heckler.

NATION IN BRIEF

Reagan's Central Theme: Don't Panic Over Gulf, Stocks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan used his third news conference of the year to caution against "panic" both on Wall Street and in the Persian Gulf.

Sensing public uncertainty about his economic policies and the U.S. military role in the war-torn waterway, the president slid further away Thursday night from his steady resolve against tax increases while warning Iran again that it would be costly "to go on with provocative acts against us or anyone else."

He continued to blame congressional Democrats for the record federal deficit, calling the budget process "a kind of stupid set-up," and he took another shot at those who engineered the apparent defeat of Supreme Court nominee Robert Bork, declaring them less qualified than supporters of the conservative judge.

Reagan appeared well-briefed and in command during the 35-minute nationally broadcast news conference, only his third of this year and the 42nd of his presidency, except when he referred to Secretary of State George Shultz as "the secretary general."

Calling the collapse of stock prices and the subsequent wild swings on world financial markets merely "a long overdue correction," Reagan said, "What factors led to this kind of getting into the panic stage, I don't know."

He assured Americans, however, that economic recession would not be likely unless "enough people, without understanding the situation, panicked and decided to put off buying things that normally they would be buying, postponing purchases and so forth."

President Opens Door To Taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan asserts almost everything is on the table for his new round of deficit talks with Congress, but despite the conciliatory tone he still insists he is "not responsible" for the nation's budgetary woes.

In a prepared statement prior to his nationally broadcast news conference Thursday night, Reagan said he would meet with congressional leaders to work on a plan to begin erasing the budget shortfall and told lawmakers that with the exception of Social Security, everything would be open to discussion.

That appeared to open a door to new taxes, which he steadfastly has opposed.

However, at the news conference in the White House East Room, Reagan refused to say whether he would support new taxes or simply "user fees" and other revenues that he has pushed unsuccessfully in the past.

"I have not changed my opinion about ever accepting a tax that will have a deleterious effect on the economy," he said. "And most tax increases do."

Bork Vote Scheduled Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senators heeded a call from a troubled Robert Bork and agreed to end their bitter debate over his Supreme Court nomination today, finally delivering a judgment on his crumbled confirmation dreams.

Acting on a personal plea from the embattled federal appeals judge, Senate Democratic and Republican leaders decided late Thursday night to vote on the nomination at 2 p.m. EDT. With 55 of the 100 senators having declared their opposition, his rejection was all but certain.

Bork fully expected to be the 28th high court nominee defeated in the Senate confirmation process, though only the sixth in this century.

Though some Republicans pressed for as many as five days of debate on Bork, enabling them to make a last-ditch case and to vilify his critics, the judge was characterized Thursday as troubled about the tone of final arguments.

Assistant Senate Republican leader Alan Simpson of Wyoming, speaking near the end of a second day of late-night floor debate, said Bork had contacted him to say, "He has no desire to take this into next week."

Breast Feeder Sentenced

A former Winter Springs woman whose sentencing on an insurance fraud charge was postponed twice because she was breast-feeding has been sentenced to 45 days in the county jail.

Sherri Feinberg, 30, formerly of 1163 Mapima Court, is expected to appeal the sentence. Feinberg now lives in Texas, according to court records.

Feinberg was to be sentenced in November 1986, and in March of this year but the sentences were postponed by Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor so Feinberg could breast-feed her baby.

Feinberg was found guilty of insurance fraud after a two-day trial in August 1986. According to court records, she agreed to pay a man $1,000 to take certain items from her home. She gave him a key to the house, and the man using a rented van took the items.

Feinberg then reported a burglary at her home and that $3,200 worth of items had been taken. She was paid $5,397 by her insurance company.

Police, however, traced the rented van. The man said Feinberg asked him to take the items and paid him $700 after the fact. He said she also offered to pay him $700 to buy his silence.

Besides the 45 days, McGregor ordered Feinberg to serve five years probation and to repay the insurance company.

WORLD

IN BRIEF

Gorbachev Says There Will Be A Summit Meeting Soon

MOSCOW (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze expressed optimism for an arms control agreement soon between the two superpowers.

Shultz was to meet Mikhail Gorbachev today in a key meeting that could set the date for the third summit involving the Soviet leader and President Reagan. Gorbachev reportedly has agreed to the summit.

Shultz, who was forced to travel to the Soviet capital by train from Helsinki, Finland, because of the heaviest fog in 107 years closed Moscow's airports, spent his first day Thursday talking mainly to Shevardnadze.

Both sides expressed optimism that there would be an arms control agreement which would clear the way for the third summit later this year between Gorbachev and President Reagan in the United States.

In Washington Thursday night, Reagan said at a news conference that he is eager for the summit to take place as planned, but reiterated he would not negotiate limits on the Strategic Defense Initiative, the program to develop a shield against ballistic missiles in space commonly known as "Star Wars."

Convoy Goes Through Gulf

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — A convoy of re-flagged Kuwaiti tankers and U.S. warships safely passed through the Strait of Hormuz in the first escort since American warships blasted an Iranian oil platform.

President Reagan reaffirmed America's guardian role in the Persian Gulf and Iranian Foreign Minister Akhbar Velayati, in a stopover in Rome, said his government accepts the general lines of the latest U.N. attempt to settle the Iran-Iraq war. Italian officials said.

Prospects for peace on all fronts, however, remained tenuous as U.S. diplomatic missions faced new threats of terrorism by the clandestine Islamic Jihad group.

In a message marking the anniversary of the 1983 suicide bomb attack on the U.S. Marine headquarters in Beirut, the group said it will launch similar strikes at the United States at a "relevant time and place."

The group hinted that American diplomatic missions in moderate Arab and Islamic states would be targeted but did not specify when an attack would occur. Islamic Jihad, or Holy War, claimed responsibility for the Marine barracks bombing, which killed 241 soldiers.

Threats Don't Stop Aquino

DAVAO, Philippines (UPI) — Hundreds of government troops were disarmed by security guards today prior to a visit to two military camps by President Corazon Aquino, who told the soldiers she made the trip to war-torn Mindanao island despite assassination threats.

On her third trip outside the capital since a bloody Aug. 28 coup attempt by mutinous troops, Aquino flew to Davao, 600 miles south of Manila, as part of a program of consultations with the military.

Man Guilty Of Wife's Sledgehammer Death

Jury Decision: A Matter Of Life Or Death

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

A 12-member jury was to return to the Seminole County Courthouse today to decide whether to recommend a Longwood man would get life in prison or the death sentence for the sledgehammer death of his wife.

The jury found Robert Blakley, 44, of 501 Wekiva Cove Road, guilty Wednesday of first-degree murder in connection with the April death of Elaine Blakley, 40. The jury deliberated just over a half an hour.

The state has said it will seek the death penalty. Circuit Judge O.H. Eaton Jr. is expected to make the life or death decision at a later date. Eaton, finishing his first year on the bench, has sentenced one first-degree murderer to life in prison. In that case, he overruled the jury's recommendation of death in the electric chair.

Blakley was accused of bashing his wife to death with a 3-pound sledgehammer. Witnesses testified that Blakley admitted killing his wife because she was strict with his two children but was not as hard on her natural daughter.

An autopsy showed she died of multiple skull fractures and brain damage. She was apparently stuck about eight times with the hammer as she slept. Blakley didn't take the stand. He argued there were three other people in the house at the time and any one of them could have killed the woman.

Assistant State Attorney Tom Hastings argued that Blakley killed the woman because he was fed up with her nagging. Hastings said Blakley had time to think about what he was doing and attacked the woman while she was asleep.

The couple's three girls were home at the time of the woman's death but were not witnesses to the incident, said investigators.

According to records, one of the daughters went to a neighbor's home around 4:30 a.m., about 3 to 3 1/2 hours after the killing. When the neighbor got to the house, Blakley reportedly said, "I couldn't take it any more. I don't know what I did, but Elaine is dead."

Blakley's telephone did not work, so the neighbor, Blakley and the three girls went to the neighbor's home to call police.

According to reports, Blakley woke his 15-year-old daughter at 1:15 a.m. and also told her he had killed her stepmother. The two younger daughters, 14 and 12, reportedly were awakened individually by Blakley and told of the killing.

Investigators found the woman's body nude, lying face up on the couple's bed. A blood-stained hammer was found at the scene.

Dick Fess To Run For County Commission; Lake Mary City Attorney Resigns His Post

By Richard Whittaker
Herald Staff Writer

Lake Mary Mayor Dick Fess announced Thursday night he will not seek re-election next year, in order that he can run for the District 5 County Commission seat presently held by Republican Bill Kirchhoff. Immediately following that announcement, Fess read a letter of resignation to the city commission from City Attorney Frank Kruppenbacher, from the Orlando firm of Swann and Haddock.

Fess, who has been the city's mayor since 1984, made the announcement at the beginning of Thursday's city commission meeting because he wanted to get the matter over with and "get down to business." Also a Republican, Fess said he wants to be the city's representative on the county level when his mayor's term ends in December of next year.

"I feel the cities of Seminole County need more representation on the County Commission," Fess said of his reasons for seeking the seat. He said he loves Lake Mary and doesn't want to move anywhere else. "I'm not leaving here (Lake Mary). I'm just going to help it in a different way."

In the city attorney's resignation letter, Kruppenbacher said his firm originally had agreed to serve Lake Mary at Fess' request. Kruppenbacher said he received a phone call from Commissioner Randall Morris on Monday telling him the commission viewed Kruppenbacher as the "mayor's boy" and that the commission did not support him as city attorney. He also said that Morris suggested during the call that he should resign his position as city attorney.

Kruppenbacher said the resignation, which is effective immediately, was in "the best interest" based on the phone call he received from Morris. "We (Swann and Haddock) will continue to represent Lake Mary until the commission can find legal counsel they feel comfortable with," Kruppenbacher said.

The letter suggested that the announcement of the decision by Fess to run for the County Commission provided a "timely opportunity" for the new commission to seek that new legal counsel. "It was an honor to serve this city," Kruppenbacher said. "The people here are great."

Commissioner George Duryea questioned Morris' telling Kruppenbacher he spoke for the whole commission when he suggested the city attorney should quit. Morris said he "in no way" tried to give the impression he spoke for the entire commission when he called Kruppenbacher.

Originally from Indiana, Fess moved to Lake Mary in 1977. He has served on the city's board of adjustment and as a city commissioner for two years.

The Republican primary for the commission seat Fess will seek is scheduled for September of 1988 with the election to be held the following November. Kirchhoff, who has served on the County Commission for 10 years, has not made a decision on whether he will seek re-election, according to Fess. "I've spoken to Bill (Kirchhoff) and he said he isn't rushing a decision on the issue," Fess said. He added that Kirchhoff was one of his confidants during the period it took him to decide to run for the county seat.

"I've also spoken to a lot of Republican Party members," Fess said of the steps leading to his decision. He added that many of the people he talked with in the party said they would be reluctant to endorse him in a primary issue, especially against a potential incumbent. He also said he had gotten support from the Seminole County Council of Mayors when he told them of his possible intentions of running.

"Firstly, I spoke to my children about it, though," Fess said. In the past, Fess has made comments that his being the Lake Mary mayor was very difficult for and distracting to his two children.

Now that he has let people in Lake Mary know he's not seeking re-election for the mayor's job, Fess said he thinks he can get on with some serious work before his term is over.

"I think getting the new city hall complex, buying additional land and using it to create new parks and establishing inter-local working agreements with Sanford and Seminole County will be things I'd really want to see finished before I move on," Fess said. The inter-local agreements are a deal for the city to supply water for some county residents and an agreement to provide Sanford with treated effluent disposal capacity.

United Way Poster People

Seminole Work Opportunity Program workers, from left, Elizabeth Daniel, John Kennedy, James Moore and Susan Tenney, who are on the United Way of Seminole County poster, proudly wear medals presented to them at the third report luncheon this week at the Quality Inn in Longwood for helping in the campaign. Also awarded a medal was Roxanne Hinton. New reports at the luncheon brought the total contributions to $316,641 or 41 percent of the $667,000 goal. Seminole is part of the tri-county Heart of Florida United Way, which reached 60 percent of its $7.15 million goal this week. The last Seminole report meeting will be Monday at 8 a.m. at the Casselberry Senior Center.

Post Office Celebrates Centennial

By Richard Whittaker
Herald Staff Writer

The U.S. Post Office in Lake Mary will celebrate its 100th birthday on Nov. 7 with an open-house that will feature the history of the organization in the city and its present day functions, as well. The program will begin at 8 a.m. and last until 12 p.m.

The day's activities will include refreshments, historical displays and a description of the growth of the city's post office since it was established on Feb. 26, 1887. The first postmaster of Lake Mary was William N. Webster.

When the present postmaster, Naomi Walker, first took over the Lake Mary office there were four employees; now there are 23.

Beginning work as the city's postmaster in February 1983, Walker, who was voted the State Postmaster of the Year by the National League of Postmasters, said the number of routes her office handles has gone from one to eight and a-half since her arrival. She said there was also one auxiliary route when she first took over.

Walker said members of her office will conduct tours through the post office facilities throughout the day of the event.

The Lake Mary post office now handles about 125 feet of flat mail and letters per day for its city delivery area, according to Walker. "We also send out about 116 parcels per day on our routes and 30 a day in the post office boxes," she said.

When the post office moves to its new building, which Walker expects to be open by Aug. 17, 1988, the city's postal workers will have 19,422 sq. ft. of space to work in. Walker said the floor space in their existing building is only 2,900 sq. ft. "We're so crowded in here, we've already (1:30 p.m.) nine carriers out of here loaded down with mail."

The building now housing the post office was originally built and dedicated in 1967, according to Walker. She said she thinks the new building will take care of Lake Mary's postal needs for many years to come.

On Oct. 1, Lake Mary Mayor Dick Fess signed a proclamation declaring 1987 as the centennial year of the city's post office and directing the city's historical society to join with Walker in sponsoring the celebration event. In the proclamation, Fess said the post office had served the citizens of the area with dedication and courtesy.

Bad-Hop Hit Ignites Cards Past Twins

Seminole-Lions: The Waiting Is The Hardest Part

"The waiting is the hardest part."

Tom Petty used to whine those words when he wasn't punching his fist into a hotel wall.

Petty, who makes a straw look overweight, wasn't much of a football player, but he did capture the feeling between Seminole and Oviedo as they bide their time toward an Oct. 30 District 4A-7 football showdown.

Every football team has one open date during the 11-week regular season. Coincidentally, Seminole and Oviedo are both idle tonight, just a week before the biggest game of the season.

"I'm sure that's what (former coach) Dave Moore had in mind when he scheduled this open date," interim Seminole coach Roger Beathard said. "He figured the district would be decided between Oviedo and us. I'm sure (Oviedo coach) Jack Blanton did it for the same reason."

Blanton, though, said just the opposite is true. "I didn't plan nothing," he said. "If I had planned it, I wouldn't be playing Seminole for the district championship. They have good coaching and the best athletes I've ever seen at one school. They have everything."

Blanton said if he had it to do over, the district showdown would be tonight. "It seems like every time we're off for a week, we forget the stuff we learned," he said. "Blocking, tackling, hitting people, that's football. You just don't get it out of hitting each other for two weeks."

The Dunkel Index rates Oviedo as a three-point favorite. Comparing scores dictates a slim margin, too.

Seminole whipped Leesburg (19-13) last Friday to improve its 4A-7 mark to 2-0. Oviedo also dropped Leesburg (14-7) for a 1-0 mark. Oviedo blanked Orlando Dr. Phillips (14-0) and Seminole lost to Dr. Phillips (7-3). Oviedo beat Brantley (28-21) in overtime and Seminole lost to Brantley (20-14).

If Seminole beats Oviedo next Friday, it wins the district. If Oviedo beats Seminole, the Oviedo-Orlando Edgewater game becomes important. If Oviedo beats Seminole and Edgewater, it wins the district.

Seminole, however, hopes to avoid all that paperwork by winning next Friday. Although the 3-3 season has not enjoyed the success anticipated, when the state playoff spot has been on the line, the 'Noles have won. With their backs to the wall (goal line) against Edgewater and Leesburg, the 'Noles came up with the big plays to stop the drives. The offense then kicked in, going 99 yards in each game to ensure the victories.

Jerry Governali, who ran out the clock while punting in the victory over Leesburg, was impressed with the win. "We're back on track now," the versatile senior said. "We played as a team. We went out there hungry."

Defensive back "Nasty Nick" Castello said the appetite will continue. "The win gives us a big boost going into Oviedo," he said. "Those three losses in a row stunned us. This is a brand-new season. We're not worried about any team except Oviedo."

Another senior, three-year starter Curtis Rudolph, said the slump is over. "We've been down, but this win will do a great deal to pick us up," the rugged fullback said. "We knew a lot of people went against us, but we kept our heads high and kept fighting. We had to prove it to ourselves."

Rudolph said player defections and criticism from fans distracted the team during its losing streak. "We'd been worrying about what other people were saying," he said. "We just took the game into our own hands."

Offensive guard Kevin Straub said the team has put the distractions behind it. "We've got the people here now who want to play football," he said. "This win will pump us up for Oviedo."

"We want Oviedo."

But... the waiting is the hardest part.

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — In 1924, the Washington Senators, ancestors of the Minnesota Twins, won their only World Series with the aid of two bad-hop hits.

Now fate has thrown the Twins a wicked curve. Thursday night a bad-hop single may have cost the Twins the 1987 World Series.

A simple ground ball hit by Vince Coleman that took a funny hop on the artificial surface and handcuffed Twins first baseman Kent Hrbek in the sixth inning led to three runs and enabled the St. Louis Cardinals to escape with a 4-2 victory in the fifth game.

The triumph gives the Cardinals a three games to two lead in the best-of-seven Series with the sixth game scheduled for the Metrodome in Minneapolis Saturday.

John Tudor, winner of Game 3, will pitch for the Cardinals and rookie Les Straker, who pitched six scoreless innings in Game 3, will start for the Twins.

So far in the Series the home team has won every game. Never in baseball history has a Series been decided by a team winning all its home games and losing all its away games.

The Cardinals used the bigger dimensions of Busch Stadium to their advantage in sweeping three games at home. Their pitchers managed to contain the Twins' heavy hitters. By keeping the ball in the park, the Cardinals were better able to take advantage of their speed.

"It may have been tonight but speed don't mean too much up in the Dome," Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog said. "They hit home runs there. We could steal six bases and still lose 5-4. It's like when I was at Kansas City and we played Boston. They would beat us at Fenway but we'd come home and neutralize their power and beat them at Kansas City."

World Series

Yet the Twins are wondering what might have happened had Coleman's grounder not taken a fateful bounce. Bert Blyleven had held the Cardinals scoreless for five innings and got Coleman to hit a routine grounder to Hrbek to start the sixth.

Hrbek bent down to field the ball, but it took a strange hop and the sure-handed first baseman had trouble picking it up. When he finally did get a handle on it, he tossed it to Blyleven covering first but Coleman beat the pitcher to the bag.

"I can't say if it hit the seam or not," Hrbek said. "It either hit soft dirt or right on the edge of the dirt. Whatever it hit, it stayed down."

Ozzie Smith then laid down a bunt that Blyleven tried to barehand but dropped and the Cardinals, who had blown scoring opportunities in the third and fifth innings, had runners at first and second and none out.

After Tom Herr flied out, Blyleven walked Dan Driessen intentionally to load the bases. Blyleven looked to be out of the jam when he struck out Willie McGee, but Curt Ford, another unlikely hero off the Cardinal bench, stroked a single to center to score two runs. Shortstop Greg Gagne then booted Jose Oquendo's easy grounder and Driessen scored the third run of the inning.

"I wanted to be up there," Ford said. "I just said to myself, 'be patient and wait for your pitch.' I thought he would throw his curve because it had been going so good for him. I was shocked when he threw a fastball."

Those three runs were all Danny Cox needed to put the Twins away. Cox blanked the Twins for seven innings before giving way to Ken Dayley with one out in the eighth. Dayley and Todd Worrel set the Twins down the rest of the way.

Lake Mary's John Curry, above left, has made a habit of showing opponents the back of his jersey. Lake Howell's David Erdman got a good look at Curry from the front,

Rams Try To Snap Lake Howell's Hex

Bisceglia Holds 3-1 Edge Over Nelson Entering Tonight's Key 5A-4 Encounter

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Lake Howell coach Mike Bisceglia thought his hex over Lake Mary coach Harry Nelson was four victories in the past five years.

Nelson, however, pointed out that it is only three wins in the past four years, since he is in the midst of his fifth year as Rams' coach.

"What's Bisceglia doing, counting this year already?" Nelson laughed. "That might be a bad omen for him."

No matter who is doing the counting, one thing is for certain: Lake Howell has had Lake Mary's number during that time. A time which has been very successful for Lake Mary. Nelson is currently 36-13 in four and one-half seasons.

During that span, the Rams have won conference, district and region championships. But the one smudge on Nelson's Seminole County record has been Lake Howell. And Nelson said he knows the reason why.

"They have good coaching and a sound program," he said. "They've beaten me twice when I've had the better team."

Which makes tonight's crucial District 5A-4/Seminole Athletic Conference showdown at Lake Howell that much more interesting. Kickoff is 8 p.m.

More interesting? "This is the best Lake Mary team I've seen," Bisceglia, in his seventh Hawk season, said. "They are like a machine. I really mean that."

"Every time the defense turns over the ball, the offense capitalizes."

Although most of the contests have been close, Bisceglia's SAC champions pummeled the Rams, 28-0, last year. Don't expect that to happen again, though. The Rams, on idle last week, are roaring along like a fine-tuned Mercedes. After dropping their opener to powerful Winter Park, they have knocked off Lake Brantley (21-0), Seminole (23-17), Spruce Creek (35-6) and Lyman (27-13).

"This may be our best team," Nelson said. "I don't know if we have our best individuals, but we are a team. That's the difference: togetherness."

The togetherness has molded a first-place 3-0 SAC/district record. A victory tonight would setup a possible SAC/district clincher next week against DeLand (2-0/2-0). With just hapless Daytona Beach Mainland to play in the district, Lake Mary would coast with back-to-back victories this week and next.

The other 11 teams, meanwhile, lost to Apopka (27-20) and DeLand (18-8) to open the season. They slipped past Lyman (14-13) before losing to Winter Park (10-7). Last week, the Hawks came back to whip Lake Brantley (28-19).

"That first ball game," Bisceglia lamented about the setback to Apopka in which Howell had a controversial penalty which cost it a touchdown return. "That was a big letdown. The kids didn't get over it and we lost to DeLand."

"We beat Lyman and then played Winter Park tough. Even though we lost, that was the turning point. We have a renewed objective for this year."

Lake Howell is 2-1 in both the SAC and 5A-4. The Hawks can still win both, but they need some help. They need to beat Lake Mary and have Lake Brantley upset DeLand tonight. That would throw the races into a tighter multi-team logjam.

The onus tonight is on coach Bob Irvin's Lake Howell defense. Lake Mary is averaging 21.6 points. They ripped a supposedly-good Spruce Creek defense for 35 big ones two weeks ago.

Osborne: No Binoculars For 'Huskers

United Press International

Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne built up the possibility of an upset by Kansas State, preventing his No. 2 Cornhuskers from looking forward to their Nov. 21 showdown with top-ranked Oklahoma.

"We're not looking past Kansas State," Osborne said of the team his Cornhuskers have beaten 18 straight times. "I say this over and over again. If we play like Colorado did against Oklahoma State, Kansas State can beat us. It can happen."

Colorado lost to Oklahoma State 42-17 two weeks ago. Last Saturday, the Cornhuskers, 6-0, trounced OSU 35-0.

Nebraska is 2-0 in Big Eight play, while Kansas State is 0-2. The Wildcats have lost 11 straight and a loss Saturday would match the school's fourth longest losing streak.

Kansas State Coach Stan Parrish faces his second straight clash with a national power. His Wildcats were swamped 59-10 by Oklahoma last week. Parrish's goal against Nebraska is for his team come out alive.

"The thing we've got to do is play hard and not get too many players chipped and injured so we can finish the season on a strong note," the Wildcats coach said. "They just overwhelmed Oklahoma State. They were as good on film as anyone I've seen. They're like all the Osborne teams I've seen. They're aggressive and very physical. I'm sure they have a great shot at the national title."

Osborne said while Kansas State "hasn't set the world on fire offensively," he is impressed with 6-foot-3, 220-pound senior tailback Tony Jordan.

"I believe he's as good as we've seen," Osborne said. "Maybe he hasn't had the same opportunities as a Gaston Green (UCLA) or a Thurman Thomas (Oklahoma State), but his abilities are equal. He's a big guy who can run and has some punch."

Defensively, Osborne said Kansas State "plays with a lot of aggressiveness."

"They're an enthusiastic bunch who play hard," he said. "Sixty percent of defense is your emotional pitch and intensity level, so I think they'll come up here and give a good account of themselves."

Elsewhere, Oklahoma hosts Colorado, No. 3 Miami plays at Cincinnati, No. 6 Auburn hosts Mississippi State, No. 7 Clemson hosts North Carolina State, No. 8 UCLA is at California, No. 9 Syracuse is at Colgate and No. 10 Notre Dame takes on Southern California.

No. 12 Indiana faces No. 17 Michigan, No.

13 Georgia meets Kentucky, No. 14 Ohio State plays Minnesota, No. 15 Michigan State meets Illinois, No. 16 Tennessee visits Georgia Tech, No. 19 Oklahoma State plays at Missouri and No. 20 South Carolina plays East Carolina, No. 4 Louisiana State, No. 5 Florida State, No. 11 Florida and No. 18 Alabama are idle.

At Norman, Okla., the undefeated Sooners play in the first night game at Owen Field. Oklahoma, 6-0, hosts the Colorado Buffaloes, 4-2, in a Big Eight Conference game.

"Under the lights everything looks faster, and quicker, and brighter and prettier," Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer said. "It'll be a different experience for us."

LSU TO INVADE TUSCALOOSA

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — University of Alabama will play three Southeastern Conference opponents in its newly enlarged Bryant-Denny Stadium next year, including a rare on-campus match with rival Louisiana State.

The Nov. 5 LSU game will be only the second time in 40 years that the Tide has played the Bengal Tigers in Tuscaloosa.

"The rationale behind moving the LSU game from Birmingham, where it's normally played, was based strictly on the possibility we could be playing for the SEC championship or a major bowl," said Athletic Director Steve Sloan.

UCF Seeks To Reverse Homecoming Woes

By Scott Beader
Herald Sports Writer

If the University of Central Florida football team played every game like its homecoming game, the Knights would be in for a horrendous season.

The Knights come into Saturday's homecoming encounter against Northwest Missouri State with a three-game homecoming losing streak. Kickoff is slated for 2 p.m. at Orlando Stadium. Orlando's WKIS-AM (740) will broadcast the game. The rock group Air Supply will be in concert following the game.

"We haven't had much luck in homecoming games," UCF coach Gene McDowell said. "I think that things will be different this season."

Last year's game will always be remembered as the "Wofford Nightmare." UCF held a 19-6 halftime lead over Wofford, only to lose 31-28.

The Knights, however, are a much different team this season. UCF is ranked No. 13 in the NCAA Division II Poll and will be looking to climb the polls with a victory over the Bears.

Northwest Missouri, which is located in Maryville, Mo., comes in with a 2-5 record. The Cats were 9-9 last season.

UCF is coming off its most impressive offensive display in school history. The Knights shattered 12 offensive school records in their 52-14 schelacking over West Georgia last Saturday. McDowell called the game "the best performance that we've had since I've been here."

McDowell, who is in his third season at UCF, said although his team played near perfect football against the Braves, he doesn't anticipate a letdown. "We want to show everyone what we can do. We had a few bad games this season, losses to Eastern Kentucky and Georgia Southern and I don't see why we can't play well every game."

"We are going to play to mentally block last week's game out," McDowell said. "I sure hope that we don't come out

Oviedo Closes In On Second Crown

By Chris Pister

Oviedo — The team to be seen behind the excellent performance by Oviedo's Lady Lions Thursday night.

Maybe it was the sharp, new uniforms. Perhaps it was the lucky lions' paw each player had stamped on the back of her hand.

Or, it could have been that Oviedo is determined to win its second Seminole Athletic Conference title in a row.

The Lady Lions kept their SAC title drive alive Thursday night with a 15-0, 15-12 victory over Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks before 11 fans at Oviedo High. The victory sets up a winner-take-all match between Oviedo and DeLand this coming Thursday at DeLand.

"Whenever we want something bad enough we can usually get it," Oviedo senior captain Jill Knutson said. "We really wanted this one because it was important for us to win going into next week. We're looking forward to playing DeLand and we know they'll be tough at home."

Oviedo improved to 15-2 overall and 9-2 in the SAC. The Lady Lions have a match Monday at St. Cloud. Then go to Orlando Lutheran on Wednesday before traveling to DeLand for the big match Thursday.

Lake Howell finished the regular season with a 9-11 overall record and 6-6 in the conference. The Lady Hawks will take next week off (exams week) and prepare for the district tournament.

"We never get a chance to get in the first game," Lake Howell coach Jo Luciano said. "We won some good rallies and had good serving in the second game but we were not consistent enough."

While Lake Howell could not get on track in the first game, Oviedo could do no wrong. After a quick side out, senior Bobbie Kelley served seven points in a row for a 7-0 lead. Two of Kelley's serves weren't returned while Suzanne Hughes' back spike and set for two of the points.

"I served really had the last few games so coach (Anita) Carlson said to go back to the basics and just get it over," Kelley said. "I wanted to serve well because it was such a big game for us. I think we're ready for DeLand now."

With Oviedo still holding a 7-0 lead, senior Judie Switzer came out to serve six points in a row for a commanding 13-0 lead. Switzer had three serves that weren't returned, including one ace, while Knutson had a kill and a tip for points and junior Kerstin Colon also got in a tip for a point.

The teams then traded side outs until Oviedo got it back and Colon served the last two points. Knutson's tip was good for the 14th point and Colon's last serve was not returned.

"The girls played practically error-free the first game," Carlson said.

Anna Hollis served Oviedo to a 2-0 lead in game two with Colon's back accounting for the first point and an ace serve by Hollis the second. Lake Howell tied it on Heather Brann's serve and the Lady Hawks had their best rally of the night when Deb McDonough served six in a row for an 8-2 lead. McDonough had one ace in the rally.

Oviedo later worked its way back within 11-8, then took the lead when Hollis served four in a row, the last three of which were returned. Lake Howell tied it on Carey Mamer's ace, but Hughes' hit gave Oviedo a side out and Switzer served for a 13-12 lead.

Lake Howell had the serve one more time but Knutson got in a nice spike off a bad angle for a side out. Hughes' served, the last two points. Kelley's spike off Knutson's set accounted for the final point.

"The girls know they are capable of playing this well all the time," Carlson said. "They just have to keep working hard and believe in themselves."

In Thursday's junior varsity game the hitting of Rachel Ortiz, Leslie Barton and the setting of Carolyn Dewar and LeeAnn Trimble enabled Lake Howell to claim a 15-5, 15-9 victory.

Robinson: Day-To-Day Status For Disgruntled Dickerson

United Press International

Cleveland spent the early part of the week trying to practice as the Angels' team running back Eric Dickerson. The Browns may have wasted valuable practice time.

Dickerson, who reportedly makes $882,000 per season, is embroiled in a contract dispute. Rams coach John Robinson says Dickerson's availability is a day-to-day basis.

"Eric is in the final year of a five-year contract," said Robinson, whose own hefty contract has irked Dickerson. "I believe we have increased the offer to him, but I won't com-here that at our place and they hit better here," Twins third baseman Gary Gaetti said. "The stadium probably had something to do with it. Hopefully going home will help us."

World Series

The key to the Twins comeback is scoring runs early like they did in Games 1 and 2.

After Willie McGee struck out, Curt Ford broke a scoreless tie with a two-run single and the Cardinals added a run on shortstop Greg Gagne's fielding error.

"Speed is definitely a big difference," Herb's said. "If they didn't have it, they couldn't have where they are right now. We knew coming in that this is the style they played. They slap the ball around, steal a base, and hit a sacrifice fly and have a run. That's what they did tonight. Our style is a heckuva a lot different than theirs. Hopefully when we get back home, we'll get back to our style."

A shift back to the Metrodome, where they were 5-5 during the season and 4-2 in the postseason, won't hurt the Twins and could affect the Cardinals.

"It certainly pitched better

playing under any circumstances. When you play against a back like this, you're sitting on a keg of dynamite and you hope it doesn't go off."

Cleveland is 3-2 and Los Angeles owns a 1-4 record.

At Washington, the Redskins, 4-1 this season, have history on their side in their attempt to win a second Super Bowl.

In 1982, Washington followed the 57-day players' strike by winning the Super Bowl.

"It's making the most out of a

ST. Louis Speed Chases Twins Home

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Speed, the one element Minnesota feared most about St. Louis, has the Twins running home and seeking shelter.

The running game really shakes people up," St. Louis third baseman Terry Pendleton said Thursday night after the Cardinals ran over the Twins 4-2 to gain a 3-2 edge in the World Series.

St. Louis catalyst Vince Coleman and Ozzie Smith, who each stole two bases in Game 5, ran all over the Twins in three games at Busch Stadium and they have sent Minnesota reeling back to the Metrodome.

"I know when teams start running on us it shakes us up a little bit at times," Pendleton said. "It makes the pitchers think and worry. When you get guys on base who can run, it puts pressure on you."

The Twins feel the pressure more in last night than any other in the Series. The Cardinals used their speed every opportunity they could and eventually ran the Twins out of the game in the sixth inning.

In the six previous ties series in which a team has scored at least three runs, that team has gone on to win the World Championship.

Reid Manages Course Record 64

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Sparked by Mike Reid's course-record-tying round, the new Tournament Players Club at StarPass went from being a menace to being manageable.

After two practice days of cards in the 70s, scores at the 7,010-yard, par-72 layout in the foothills west of Tucson dropped considerably during Thursday's opening round of the $600,000 Tucson Open. A total of 91 of the 149 golfers who finished Thursday's round shot par or better.

The StarPass course is in its first year as the permanent home of the Tucson PGA event.

Leading the way was Reid, who took a two-stroke lead by firing an 8-under-par 64 in the course record set earlier this year by club pro Glen Lukart.

Becker Retires; Pernfors Wins

TOKYO (UPI) — Third-seeded Boris Becker of West Germany retired because of a thigh injury while trailing Slobodan Zivonjovic in the deciding set Friday, allowing the Yugoslavian to advance to the semifinals of the $375,000 Seiko Super Grand Prix.

Top seed Ivan Lendl easily disposed of West German Eric Jelen 6-3, 6-0 in a 50-minute match. Second-seeded Stefan Edberg of Sweden came from behind to eliminate seventh-seeded Paul Annerco 3-6, 6-1, 6-2.

Edberg was joined in the semis by sixth-seeded compatriot Mikael Pernfors, who defeated Australian qualifier John Fitzgerald 6-2, 6-1.

Shriver Surges Into Quarterfinal

BRIGHTON, England (UPI) — Pam Shriver surged into the quarterfinals of the $200,000 Volvo Classic Thursday, posting a 6-3, 6-3 victory over Sara Gomer of Britain.

Shriver, leader of the U.S. Wightman Cup team to meet Britain next month in Williamsburg, Va., won the second-round match in 69 minutes, behind in captured all three meetings against Gomer, a 6-foot-2 left-hander.

Shriver was joined in the quarterfinals by 6-6 seed Katerina Melieva of Bulgaria and No. 8 Sandra Cecchini of Italy. Melieva defeated American Lisa Vandekerckhove 6-2, 6-4.

Adams, Miller Lift Capitals, 4-1

United Press International

With Washington off to its best start ever, Capitals Greg Adams and Kelly Miller could afford to laugh even before they had scored their first goals of the season.

After Adams scored twice and Miller once to help Washington take to a 4-1 victory over Philadelphia, Flyers Coach Mike Keenan was not amused.

"It's the only other game, Minnesota defeated Quebec 3-3.

Crew Differs, Same Results For D. Allison

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (UPI) — Davey Allison said Thursday he has changed a lot since he won the pole position at North Carolina Motor Speedway earlier this year. The results, however, remain the same.

Gene from the organization are Joey Knuckles, Allison's crew chief since the season's beginning; crewman Tony Lambert, and race-day team members Clint Stoney and Danny Ballard. All were dismissed Oct. 13.

"It was long on me because I've been good friends with Joey and the Ballards for a long time," Allison said. Thursday after driving his Ford to his fifth pole position this season with a lap of 145.609 mph (But team manager) Robert Yates is the "stunned" by the dismissal had to be made and unfortunately they fell on Joey's shoulders."

Allison, 26, said Yates informed him of his plans Oct. 12.

"I support Robert because he is my boss," Allison said. "I'll start interfering with his job, that would make him feel that I'm not confident in his ability."

"But I thought it would be after Rockingham (Sunday's) Delta 500." It was a shock that it happened we want because someone heard it over the radio before I knew about it. It occurred while I was in Orlando (Fl.)."

Allison noted the firings caused no change in the people responsible for chassis setups: Tony Price and Tom Ebert.

Knuckles said he was "stunned" by the dismissal.

Yates said team members thought Knuckles gathered media attention without significant contribution. Knuckles, meanwhile, believed he was doing a good job.

"And he made salary demands on me," Yates said. "I didn't think I could give him what he wanted and not pay others what they should be earning."

Allison said he continued questioning about Yates' decision, everything else surrounding first round qualifying was normal.

Earl Barnhardt qualified for the other front row starting position in a Chevrolet. He posted a lap of 145.222 mph.

"That is pretty damn good," said Allison. "I can claim check his third career and second straight Winston Cup title by completing a lap Sunday."

Usually, when we come here we run good in practice and screw everything up in qualifying. This time I ran better in qualifying."

The third starting spot went to Bill Elliott in a Ford at 144.774 mph. Rounding out the top five were Sterling Marlin, Oldsmobile, 144-415 and Bobby Allison, Davey's father, in a Buick at 144-340 mph.

"We didn't have things too bad until of what's his name ran," Bobby Allison quipped about his son. "No respect for his elders."

Qualifying was scheduled to conclude today. Those not making the top 20 positions Thursday were seven-time Winston Cup champion Richard Petty, Harry Gant, and the crew chief's 1973 title winner, Benny Parsons.

In time trials for Saturday's Delta 200, Jimmy Hensley earned his first superspeedway pole position with a record of 144.895 mph.

Old Books May Have 'Pond Fever' Entry

DEAR DR. GOTT — Can you or your readers help a student of local history identify "pond fever"? Apparently it cropped up in the 1800s, when new towns were settled and dams built. All this happened before the great cholera epidemic, which followed the construction of the Erie Canal.

DEAR READER — I can find no information about pond fever in my resource books. I suggest that you try the reference books at your local library, especially if the facility has a section of old medical textbooks that might answer your question. You also might check with the librarian at your local hospital. There are specialists who investigate the role of epidemics in history and the effects a particular illness may have had in shaping the course of events.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I was hospitalized 14 months ago and was mistakenly given 120 units of NPH insulin instead of 12. I haven't felt well since. What can you suggest?

DEAR READER — Ask your doctor about the reason for the mistaken dosage and what effect it might have had on you. Ordinarily, NPH insulin acts for 24 to 48 hours and does not produce chronic ill effects. Your blood sugar was probably lowered substantially by the excess insulin, but I doubt that you would be experiencing problems as long as 14 months after the event. As unfortunate and frightening as the overdose may have been at the time, I'm afraid you will have to look elsewhere for an explanation of your current symptoms.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My shoulders rub and grind on rotation. Does bursitis spread? Other joints are beginning to feel the same. I'm only 30, female and wonder what I can expect as I age. My mother had severe arthritis and osteoporosis.

DEAR READER — Grinding and clicking of the shoulders are not usually due to bursitis, an inflammation of the joint covering. A more likely cause for your symptoms is the tiny amount of dislocation (during movement) that can occur in joints weakened by injury, arthritis or inflammation of the joints themselves.

Bursitis produces pain and limitation of motion. It does not spread. If other joints are beginning to rub and grind, see a physician. You need a diagnosis.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
Today's deal has more wrinkles than an unmade bed. In the North-South bidding methods, the opening two clubs showed a long club suit and minimum strength (11-15 high-card points). After South finally settled in four spades, the subsequent play and variations depended upon the opening lead.

When West selected the club eight for his opening lead, declarer made a good choice when he played dummy's queen. He hoped that East would win and return a club. He then planned to ruff that second club with a high trump and then play A-K and another spade. If spades

Stocks Open Lower

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened lower today in heavy trading of New York Stock Exchange issues in a session that will end two hours early on Wall Street can start to catch up on a staggering load of paperwork.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 77.42 points Thursday, was down 17.41 to 1933.02 shortly after the market opened.

Declines led advances 5-to-1 among the 1,467 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 32.7 million shares.

Responding to a week of record-breaking volume, the New York Stock Exchange shortened trading hours for today, Monday and Tuesday to give the financial community time to post its backlogged transactions, a move analysts maintained will not alter the market's direction.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which had bounced 289.11 points in the two days since its 500-point collapse Monday, fell 77.42 to close Thursday at 1950.43.

Leading stock exchanges will shut two hours early today, Monday and Tuesday, following the New York Stock Exchange's lead.

The NYSE said the move would allow "the financial community time to process the unprecedented number of transactions arising from the unusual market activity of recent days."

Dollar Prices Slump

By United Press International

The dollar opened lower on major foreign currency markets today as currency traders said the market was disappointed with President Reagan's lack of commitment to U.S. tax hikes. Gold and silver edged higher.

Tokyo dealers said the dollar succumbed to selling pressure when Reagan's Thursday news conference failed to produce specific plans to cut the U.S. deficit.

Some nervous traders also sold dollars in anticipation that third-quarter figures for the U.S. Gross National Product would not be positive, they said.

The Commerce Department reported today the nation's economy grew at a stronger-than-expected annual rate of 3.8 percent during the third quarter.

The increase in the preliminary estimate of the real gross national product was supported by large jumps in consumer spending and business investment.

Price Index Up A Little

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumer prices, held down by lower energy costs, stayed relatively low in September, despite fears of renewed inflation and higher interest rates that have caused turmoil on Wall Street.

The Labor Department reported that the consumer price index rose just 0.2 percent during the month, a rate that if continued for a year would produce an annual rate of just 2.4 percent.

September's rate compared with a hefty 0.5 percent jump in August and a 0.2 percent rate in July.

GNP Bobs Up Citrus Shipments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The economy grew at a stronger than expected annual rate of 3.8 percent during the third quarter, the Commerce Department said.

The increase in the preliminary estimate of the real gross national product was supported by large jumps in consumer spending and business investment.

However, exports decreased from July through September, further clouding the nation's trade deficit picture.

The 3.8 percent jump in the GNP, or $35.9 billion, compared to a 2.5 percent or $23.1 billion increase in the second quarter.

WINTER HAVEN (UPI) — Today's citrus shipments reported by the Division of Fruit and Vegetable Inspection Shipping total in 4-5th bushel cartons and cannery totals in 1-3 1/2th bushel boxes.

Rail — 3,571 grapefruit.
Export — 9,0084 grapefruit.
Truck — 57,672 grapefruit.
7,159 early mid. 5,480 navel.
1,581 Nova tangelos 1,581.
9,870 Kearly. 5,928 Robinson tangerines.
Cannery — 11,502 grapefruit.
500 early-mid. 1,300 navel.
2,716 tangelos. 3,724 Kearly.
819 tangerines.
Shipping total — 181,355.
Cannery total — 20,561.

Father Time Loses 1 Hour On Sunday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When days get an hour shorter, can winter be far behind?

Millions of Americans will gain an hour of sleep with the return of standard time early Sunday at the price of losing some lingering sunlight in the evening until next spring.

Clocks and watches should be set back one hour at 2 a.m. local time Oct. 25. They will be pushed forward an hour April 3 when daylight-saving time returns.

Because of a law passed by Congress last year, daylight-saving time now begins on the first Sunday in April instead of the last. No change was made in the date for ending daylight-saving time on the last Sunday in October.

Remember the adage "spring forward, fall back" when resetting the clock.

Hawaii, Arizona, the Eastern Time Zone part of Indiana,

Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and American Samoa do not have to make the change.

Historically, the idea of juggling the hour hand can be traced to Benjamin Franklin, who wrote a paper while serving as U.S.

envoy to France recommending that shops be opened and closed earlier in the summer to cut lighting costs.

The United States adopted the concept late in World War I to save energy.

Soviet Generals Die In Air Crash

MOSCOW (UPI) — Col. Gen. Vladimir Shutoy, deputy head of the army's central headquarters, and four other Soviet generals died in the crash of a military helicopter on Oct. 19, the army newspaper Red Star reported today.

The helicopter's two-man crew also was killed, according to the newspaper, which made the death announcement through obituaries and a message of condolences from the armed forces.

There were no details on where or how the crash occurred. It was known the aircraft involved was a helicopter only because the pilots were identified as a helicopter crew.

The dead included Shutoy, 63, who had held his present position since 1975; Lt. Gen. Yuri Ryabinin, 53, described only as the holder of a "responsible post" in the general headquarters; Lt. Gen. Kirill Trolimov, 66, deputy head of communications for the armed forces; Maj. Gen. Vladimir Bardashevsky, 49, also described as the holder of a "responsible post" at headquarters; and Maj. Gen. Yelren Porfiriev, 51.

the state would secure convictions ... and it was very likely Mr. Bundy would receive several death sentences," Michael Minerva, Bundy's former public defender, told the court.

But after signing the plea agreements moments before entering court to submit them under the condition he make no statement that could jeopardize their legal validity, Bundy instead stood up and filed a motion to fire Minerva for incompetence.

Edward Harvey, who assisted in the defense, told of a particularly damning blow in the Chi Omega trial in which the prosecution called as a witness the first officer to arrive at the murder scene but failed to elicit any damaging testimony. But Bundy insisted on cross examining the witness.

"The result was the officer had the chance to go into every gory, bloody detail," Harvey said. "It was horrible. And after the verdict one of the jurors we considered most sympathetic to us said Mr. Bundy looked like a beady-eyed killer during the testimony."

the courtroom when four or five marshals asked him what he was doing and told him he was in a restricted area. His press card was taken and Raimondo, though not in custody, was escorted by a marshal to the first floor, briefly detained until he contacted his office, and later released.

Clark said Raimondo's press card was taken because it was the only identification he had on him at the time, but that it would be mailed to the Sanford Herald offices.

Raimondo said he was not worried about going to jail after learning he was in a restricted area, but was concerned that pictures he had taken of protesters outside the courthouse would be confiscated.

The marshals did not take the film.

Clark said the entrance Raimondo and a few other people used is a little-used construction entrance.

Environmental Protection Agency's discharge standards.

Lane said the city has received violation notices from the EPA, but added that the offenses are so minor that the city has never been fined over them.

"The wastewater is actually very close to compliance with EPA standards," Lane said. "We have requested a hearing (with EPA officials) to plead our case and request less stringent standards."

Eugene Bostwick, Venice's airport maintenance supervisor, said it is not the system itself that causes problems at the airport, but rather the people who run it. The grass that grows as a result of the irrigation is mowed by McCulloch employees. Bostwick said these employees are often inexperienced and unfamiliar with airport regulations and procedures and sometimes move close to active runways.

In addition, Bostwick said the retention ponds that are supposed to hold water for no more than seven days often are full for longer periods. When this happens, the ponds attract insects and fish, which serve as a food source for birds.

"If the system was run the way it's supposed to be, I'd have no problems with it," Bostwick said.

The proposed spray irrigation system at the Sanford airport would cost between $1.8 and $2 million. But Simmons said he doesn't know if the system will be built or not. The state Department of Environmental Regulation sent a letter to city officials on Oct. 16 stating that the provisions of the "Wastewater Irrigation Agreement" between the city and the airport may render the proposed irrigation system ineligible for state funding.

Richard Smith, acting chief of the DER's Bureau of Wastewater Management and Grants, told the city he rejected the agreement because it allows the Sanford Airport Authority to suspend operation of the irrigation system immediately if it (or the Federal Aviation Authority) finds this use of the airport land "unacceptable."

In addition, Smith said he objects to the fact that the city could be forced by the airport to remove the entire irrigation system (at its own expense), leaving no viable option. Smith also said he is opposed to provisions of the agreement which allow the airport authority to demand immediate and indeterminate disruption of irrigation at the airport, and provide only a five-year, renewable lease.

City Manager Frank Faison said city officials will meet with airport personnel to discuss amendments to the agreement, but no meeting date has been set.

in them. The tank farm, when completely leased out, is expected to be one of the chief money makers of the authority.

Bob Clifton, who built one of the first buildings in the industrial park, which now is half vacant, asked the board what more could be done to find a client to lease the space, and asked about remodeling part of the vacant space into mini-warehouses.

Clifton said he has owned mini-storage facilities in Casselberry, Panama City, Titusville and Cocoa and found them to produce a good cash flow. As one of the early developers in the park, his building is owned by him rather than the authority, and the rent payments are split between him and the authority.

Dolner said the market for leased industrial space is very soft in central Florida now. "About the only places getting new clients are those who are offering lower prices, or a few months' free rent to steal them away from someone else," he said.

The board authorized advertising the space through direct mail to all real estate agents in Seminole and north Orange County. Dolner also said he would investigate the possibility of remodeling some of the space into mini-storage and whether it would pay to do so.

The board, on the advice of its attorney, voted to reject a change order for $4,600 submitted by the contractor on the Formtex building, which is being built by the authority and will be leased by the kitchen cabinet manufacturer, which is now housed in smaller quarters at the park.

Dolner told the board that when the contract with the builder was signed last July, the contractor was told the architectural and consultant fees for the building wouldn't be subject to the state sales tax on services. However, recent opinions from both the contractor's and the authority's accountants say those services are subject to the tax.

However, the board was told that the authority, as a semi-public agency, is prohibited by law from paying taxes, so could not approve the change order. Board members said the taxes should have been built into the contractor's bid price. They said they sympathized with the contractor, who will now have to pay the taxes, but said they could not legally pay them.

A example of antique bentwood furniture

Back To Nature Comfort

Made Like 'Good Ole Days'

Story And Photos
By Susan Lodes
Harold Staff Writer

Rustic furniture made of sticks and twigs is riding the crest of a fad that reflects a return of country taste among city dwellers.

Chis Peroneus, 35, said he's been making furniture from bark-encased willow twigs for 12 years, and he doesn't see the craze for his craft as a passing fancy. He sees enduring interest in his creations, which with proper use and care can survive over the years.

Early immigrants brought the idea of making this bentwood furniture with them from Europe. Just before the American Civil War, the craft was in full flower with guides and caretakers of summer tourist camps in the Adirondack region of New York state, passing the long winter hours by making this type of furniture which was used at the camps.

With nails, handaws, knives, hammers, drawknives, chisels, braces and augers, and branches harvested from woods at the camp site these early craftsmen created from twigs tables, chairs, bureaus and cupboards.

Some tourists took pieces of this camp furniture home, usually for limited use outdoors. In that more formal era, rustic furniture in the form of shelters and benches was also part of the scene in New York City's Central Park before the turn of the century.

However, today, Peroneus cautions that rustic furniture, if the owner wants it to have a long life, should be used only indoors where it is protected from the elements. In the South twig furniture used outside should also be fumigated to protect it from the ravages of insects, he said, as he insisted that it shouldn't be used outside in any case.

In the early days such pieces were seen primarily as functional, although some craftsmen who usually nailed their works together, added quarter columns, inlay, parquetry and resoles to the pieces. Today twig furniture is seen as a combination of function, sculpture, folk art and country camp.

A find of one of these original twig pieces is rare. A small twig rocker, showing obvious signs of age, with wear marks on the sawed slat seat, was found for $100 in Tennessee this summer. Peroneus said that such a price for such a piece was more than fair and that the chair actually has a value of at least twice that.

That chair, made in the Adirondack style, Personeus said, was made of dried wood bent with assistance from steam, which resulted in a finished piece that is more brittle than those made from twigs bent while green. To add moisture to pieces made by the steam bending method, he suggests adding a light coating of tongue oil.

Personeus said that the addition of a white lace seat cushion would be the perfect touch to add to an antique chair like that one.

And that he said is the type of rustic, country look that city dwellers, who live in high rises of glass, concrete and steel want to add to their home in a contemporary "return to nature."

Some, he said, want a single piece as an attention getting accent, while others go all out in decorating with twig furniture. Personeus said he makes many custom piece to order.

Some of those are designed by his wife D.J., who also works along with him on most all of his twig creations.

In addition to the traditional designs, the Personeuses also make twig baskets and twig framed mirrors.

He became a furniture maker after he got the measurements for a twig chair and made four just to see if he could. Those sold quickly at a "little country show." Personeus made more and took them to a big crafts show, where his creations were a sell out and he had a new career. His home base is in Citra and he shows his creations at Florida arts shows, including the recent Maitland Arts Festival.

Original antique twig pieces are hard to find and that's where the Personeuses and other contemporary craftsmen step in to create pieces that retain that rustic look of bent twigs.

They follow five traditional styles: Bentwood, Gypsy, Gothic, Adirondack, and Western. The Western-style twig pieces have leather and animal horns added, showing that Western craftsmen carried on the twig furniture tradition by incorporating available materials into their designs, Personeus said.

Personeus personally selects his willow twigs in Florida forests and bends them while they are green. He hacks the willow out of forests using a machete and then hand trims and sizes the twigs with a bowsaw. He hand shaves the ends of each twig with a knife, so the bark won't peel away, and then hand nails each piece together.

"I follow traditional building techniques," he said, and then finishes some pieces with a white-wash type stain. Other retain the natural look of the wood. All are treated with a mildewcide and get a coat of varnish sealer, he said.

"I think I like to make chairs best," Personeus said. "You get done and can sit in them and try them."

His rockers are priced at $230 and a settee sells for $330. A large chair is $165 and a small chair is $125, he said.

Lament Passing Of Greats? Bette Davis Remembers

By Vernon Scott
UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bette Davis, one of the few living movie legends, laments the passing of the film greats and with them the definition of the word "star."

Surely, Davis is one of the brightest movie stars who ever lived.

"The word 'star' has lost its meaning," Davis says unhappily. "They have such things as 'TV star,' 'guest star,' and 'special star.' Everyone wants to be called a star and I suppose just about everyone is called that."

"It took us 10 years of learning our profession in the theater or in small roles in movies — sometimes both — to earn that title. A lot of us began before the talkies."

Davis still emits that electric magic, an incandescence that shakes the visitor with the unmistakable aura of stardom.

It was that way with Ingrid Bergman, Katharine Hepburn and perhaps even Elizabeth Taylor. The white light of superstardom.

That's how it was with the towering male stars whose surnames remain sufficient identity long after their deaths — Gable, Tracy, Cooper and Bogart.

However, it is not the same thing with Meryl Streep, Sally Field or Kathleen Turner, who are among today's dominant "stars." Nor would anyone compare the star wattage of Dustin Hoffman, Robert De Niro or William Hurt to Errol Flynn, Tyrone Power and Marlon Brando.

The diminishing currency of "star" was best explained by the character Norma Desmond played by Gloria Swanson in the classic story of Hollywood, "Sunset Boulevard."

She said, "We had FACES then."

It may be argued that today's performers are better actors, but there are few genuine movie stars. Some contemporary actresses and actors have no interest in reaching stellar status.

More's the pity, says Bette.

She was dressed exquisitely in a black print dress, her slender legs encased in black, textured designer hose. She wore black shoes and a simple strand of metal jewelry. Her head was crowned by a short cloud of ginger-colored hair.

Davis at 79 has overcome the ravages of a stroke. She sat on a divan in the beautifully appointed living room of her apartment, just off the Sunset Strip, smoking a cigarette with the flair that is her exclusive trademark. She is as bright and perhaps a bit more feisty than she was 40 years ago.

Neither her humor nor her high energy level has deserted Davis as she approaches her 80th birthday.

Old trouper that she is, Davis was beating the publicity drums for her latest movie, "The Whales of August," in which she stars with Lillian Gish.

"We play sisters vacationing in Maine," she said in her unmistakable voice. "I play a blind woman, which was a considerable challenge. I'd played blind once before and that was only for five minutes in 'Dark Victory.'"

"Portraying a sightless person is a handicap for an actress like me. My eyes have always been a great part of my performance. They have as much to do with acting as dialogue and body language. Working with them closed most of the time was a hurdle, not having them as a back-up for things I do in my character."

"I've seen the picture and I believe I am blind, which is what I was supposed to accomplish."

"It was delightful to be working in a movie again after 10 years of doing television."

"I wasn't pleased with working on locations on an island outside of Portland (Maine). It was in late September and October last year in very cold weather. But I could look across at where I lived when I was younger and remember other times and people."

Since completing the film, Davis appeared at the Deauville Film Festival to plug "Whales of August" and she visited London to promote her new book.

She boasted that she was interviewed by the media four or five times a day in the French resort and more often than that during the week she spent in England.

"Thank God people are still interested in me," she said, exhaling a cloud of smoke. "Actors beef about being approached by fans. But when that attention is gone you might as well fold up your tent."

"They required two policemen in London to protect Prince Andrew when he made an appearance. But a very large number of bobbies were called in to handle the crowds for me. And they were needed."

Davis, her eyes flashing, said she welcomes public affection and attention, which today's stars claim to abhor.

"It's possible that they become stars too soon today and become a little complacent about everything. I don't think they'll have the big careers that we all had."

"I have no idea what 'star quality' is. Maybe it is something that Mother, Daddy and God, and maybe all my Yankee ancestors, gave me — great stamina, great health and perhaps a level head."

"I never believed my own publicity or got a big head. It kept me wanting to progress in my work. And I still feel that way."

"We had wonderful, organized places to become stars: the studios. We were trained and groomed and taught to become stars. Studios were our homes. We all knew each other and worked together. We knew every face and name on every crew. The stars associated with each other away from work and the studios."

"Now it's all travel, new faces and locations every time you make a picture. No fast friendships are established. And unfortunately few if any stars are produced."

Davis harrumphed in dismissing the names of some of today's leading ladies who are called stars.

But a light shone in her eyes when she said, "I'll tell you two marvelous young performers who are real stars and beautiful actresses — Molly Ringwald and Sissy Spacek. And Debra Winger is another. But they are the only ones I can think of."

"The biggest star I suppose is Steven Spielberg. Directors and cameramen are real stars today because of special effects and stunts."

What's Cooking On TV?

VIDEOT

Gay MacMillan

I still have no publisher for my revolutionary VCR cookbook. Nobody appreciates how unusual it is.

The idea is to give today's busy homemakers a recipe to go along with a good film they can rent. There's "Prizzi's Honor Paupettes" and "American Flyers Fish," stuff like that. The trick is that you prepare the dish while watching the movie, never missing anything important.

For an example, here's my delicious new "Trip to Bountiful Stew." Serves three.

- 6 tablespoons olive oil
 - 4 onions
 - 2 pounds boneless lamb
 - 1/2 cup flour
 - 1 1/2 cups red wine
 - 2 cups bouillon
 - 1 clove garlic
 - 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
 - 1 pound mushrooms
 - 4 carrots
- Heat 2 tablespoons oil in a casserole on high. Put in the lamb, cubed, and brown quickly. Reduce heat to low. Start film.
- Peel and chop onions while watching the credits. When Mama starts singing "Mockingbird," remove meat from casserole, add 2 tablespoons oil and onions. All you missed was Jessie Mae asking Mama for the recipe she had loaned her.
- When Jessie Mae begins to get mad at Mama, stir the onions again. They should be transparent by now. But take your time; Jessie Mae and Ludie spend quite a while humiliating Mama.
- When Mama apologizes to Jessie Mae, shake the meat in a plastic bag with 1/2 cup flour. Then put it in a casserole with the onions and toss at medium heat to brown the flour. Add 1 1/2 cups red wine and just enough bouillon to cover the meat. Scrape up the encrusted meat juices from bottom of pan and stir. Cover. Reduce heat to simmer.
- While you were gone, Mama said she wanted to go to Bountiful, Texas, but Ludie said they had to stay in Houston where he works. Now mash up the garlic. When done, add it and the Worcestershire sauce to the stew.

When Jessie Mae says, "I am not going to spend the rest of my life running after your mother," check to see if the stew is bubbling slightly. If it isn't, raise the heat a bit.

Chop the mushrooms and peel and thinly slice the carrots while you watch Mama leave on her trip. Then, when Mama and the woman in green start chatting after they're on the bus, saute the carrots and mushrooms in the rest of the oil and set aside. This is a dull part - at first Mama tells the woman a lot of stuff we already know - so you also have time to stir up the stew and maybe scrape the bottom again. Don't take too long, though, because Mama talks about her life, and that's interesting.

When Mama notices that her pocketbook is missing, add the mushrooms and the carrots to the stew. Stir again.

When the sheriff offers to drive Mama out to Bountiful, pierce the meat with a fork to see if it's tender. If the sauce is not thick enough to stick to the meat, add 1 tablespoon flour mixed with 1 tablespoon water and stir.

Hurry, though, or you'll miss seeing what Bountiful looks like.

When Mama tells Ludie he resembles her father, remove from heat. Serve with rice. If you forgot to make rice, toast is OK. You should finish eating just as they leave town. Be careful not to get gravy in the VCR.

This should be an emotionally satisfying, stick-to-the-ribs experience.

Tofu
 "The Complete Book of Food," by Carol Ann Rinzler, reports that bean curd, or tofu, supplies complete proteins that are 90 percent digestible, a figure approaching that of milk. The iron of tofu is three times more available than the iron in whole soybeans.

Ring Of Fire
 More than 75 percent of the world's 850 active volcanoes lie within the Ring of Fire, a zone running along the west coast of the Americas and the east coast of Asia. The Ring of Fire marks the boundary between the plates underlying the Pacific Ocean and those underlying the surrounding continents.

"I remember the first special effects I worked with was in a Disney movie when a teacup came floating through the air toward me. Now special effects have taken over.

"Many people in the industry these days feel actors are not very important, and of course I can't agree with that."

Asked why so few lasting superstar careers are being built today, the absence of a studio system notwithstanding - nor forgetting Sylvester Stallone and Eddie Murphy - Davis had a ready answer.

"To begin with, we all passionately loved acting," she said. "It wasn't for money or recognition. And it took us a while to get accustomed to movies after we'd been on stage.

"(Spencer) Tracy was trained on the stage before coming to movies. After he became a star in films he returned to Broadway. He later said, 'The theater is for children and idiots.' It is a hideous medium and I couldn't agree with him more. Movies are the most honest of all and absolutely the most credible.

"Today we watch acting but nobody is involving the audience."

What's The Best Way To Meet Stars?

Dear Dick: I would like to know if there is any way possible to meet or see actors or actresses in person. — M.K., Baginaw, Mich.

Dear M.K.: No guaranteed way. The best way is to wait until one of them comes to your area to perform in person, or do some kind of promotion. If you go to New York or Los Angeles, there are more stars, but it's still tough to find them. You might try hanging around the popular restaurants, or going on a studio tour in Hollywood, or waiting outside stage doors on Broadway. Also, stars occasionally make speeches in public, or give lectures.

Dear Dick: Can you please tell me the name of the robot on the "Lost in Space" series, and if it is true that all these episodes were lost in a fire. — L.D., Sevierville, Tenn.

Dear L.D.: June Lockhart, a veteran of that series, tells me the robot had no name, and that it is not true that the episodes were all lost.

Dear Dick: I have been looking for a certain movie for a long time, but they don't seem to have it. It is "Picnic" with Kim Novak and William Holden. Could somebody tape it for me? — Y.B., Upper Aboujagane, N.B., Canada.

Dear Y.B.: Somebody already did. "Picnic" is available on cassette. If your local video store doesn't have it, ask them to order it for you.

Dear Dick: Please settle a battle for me. Please tell my husband that Meredith Baxter

Ask Dick Kleiner

Birney and Meredith MacRae are not one and the same. He says they are but I say no way. — D.H., Houston.

Dear D.H.: Just because they have the same first name doesn't mean they are the same person. Look at Ronald Reagan and Ronald McDonald — two different guys. And the Merediths are two different women, too.

Dear Dick: Could you tell me when the movie, "Tobacco Road," was made and who played in it? And is it available on cassette? — H.E., Knoxville, Tenn.

Dear H.E.: That 1941 masterpiece starred Charley Grapewin, Marjorie Rambeau, Gene Tierney and Dana Andrews. It is available on cassette.

Dear Dick: For a while, there were pictures after pictures of Cybill Shepherd in every magazine. Now all of a sudden there aren't any.

UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actor Mark Rolston got more drama than he bargained for in an Illinois prison earlier this year when inmates confided in him that a prison break was in process.

Rolston, Nick Nolte and other members of the cast and crew of "Weeds," the new drama from Dino DeLaurentiis Group, spent almost three weeks in the gray, forbidding prison last March.

Rolston had made friends with a couple of the inmates at Joliet, and on the last day of production one told him, "There's a break going on right now."

"I'll never forget it," Rolston said. "It was 1 o'clock in the afternoon and the guy asked me if I was 'clear.' That meant could I be trusted. I said yes. Then he told me a pal was escaping at that minute."

"I was fascinated until I realized that what I'd been told was in total confidence. It was four-and-a-half hours before the escape came to the attention of prison authorities."

Rolston, who is tall, blond and well-built, found himself in a touchy spot as several inmates in the prison yard kept an eye on him throughout the afternoon.

"If I'd opened my mouth they would have taken care of me," Rolston said. "It was kind of a game to them. The guards couldn't or wouldn't protect me. All of us in the movie company signed waivers when we entered the prison."

"The state refused to guarantee us protection or to keep us out of trouble. The authorities were free of responsibility in the event of our deaths or if we were taken hostage. Only Nick (Nolte) had a bodyguard. The movie company took out a $4 million insurance policy on our lives."

Rolston said the prisoner who escaped had approached him the day before.

"He was wearing a full black beard, dark glasses and a hat pulled over most of his face," he said. "He was dressed in standard prison garb. He was friendly and got me to tell him the whole plot of the picture."

"He was serving 15 years for armed robbery ... The morning of the escape he came into my portable dressing room. He'd shaved his beard and was wearing regular steel-rimmed glasses. He'd cut his hair and was carrying a clipboard. He looked like a member of the film crew ... I didn't recognize him."

"A couple of guards stopped by and they didn't recognize him. They saw him talking to me and figured he was one of the crew."

"At 1 o'clock he got into an electrician's van and rode right through the gates. Our driver was only 10 and thought the convict was a new guy in our company. All the prisoners knew what was going on."

When the escape was discovered, Rolston said the prison was shut down and the film company was forced to stay inside.

"They kept the actors and the crew inside the gates until 11 o'clock that night," Rolston said. "They spent six hours checking out each and every one of us, including our drivers' licenses. They compared our faces to pictures of the escaped con."

"Until I saw the photograph I didn't realize it was the guy who had come to see me with the clipboard. His disguise was terrific. He'd probably been making plans since the inmates first heard about the picture coming to Joliet."

"Joliet is a maximum security prison with about 8,000 convicts. 80 percent of them in for murder."
