A Child's Life of Jesus

A Child's Life of Jesus is one of the last books written by the late Fulton Oursler, noted author of such volumes as The Greatest Story Ever Told, The Greatest Book Ever Written, etc. This presentation of the life of Jesus is a special, illustrated, non-paper publication by the well-known artist, Neil O'Keefe.

It is not easy to say "no" to something wrong. We have to be strong and brave to be good. Jesus became a man to show us just how to be strong when we are tempted to do wrong. He went hungry and thirsty for forty nights and days and then refused to do wrong. He knew that even if he was tempted to do wrong sometimes, especially when they are weakest.

The very next day, after a good, hearty meal, Jesus began His work of talking to crowds of people and showing them how to be happy. From then on, He was never alone. In one place after another He met young men who loved Him and came with Him. They stopped their work. They left their homes. They only wanted to be with Him and help Him as He walked from town to town. His friends were called Apostles.

These twelve were all poor workmen. Some, like John and Andrew, were fishermen. They fished on the lake of Galilee. Andrew had another brother who also followed Jesus. His name was Simon, but Jesus liked to call him Peter, which means a rock. Philip came next and he brought along his chum, Bartholomew, also known as Nathaniel. Others came later, including two named James.

With these followers, Jesus took the long walk home to Nazareth so that Mary, His mother, could meet His new friends. And right away a strange thing happened. That night they all went to a house in a town called Cana. The young lady of the house was getting married and there was a happy wedding party. But something went wrong. Mary came to Jesus and told Him the trouble. There was food for all but not enough wine for the people to drink. What could He do to help?

mother and to help the worried family. So He called the servants. They carried in six red jars, each one taller than a boy and filled with water. Jesus prayed over the water and then told the people to taste it. They could not believe their own mouths. It was not just water any more. It was the red juice of the grape, the sweetest they had ever to taste. That was the first miracle of Jesus. A miracle is a wonderful happening that only God can do. From that time on Jesus did many miracles. He touched a blind man's eyes and the poor man could see, just as you and I can see. He laid His hands on men and women who were sick with a disease called leprosy and made them well again. One day He stood in a house beside the body of a little girl. The father and mother were crying, but Jesus touched her forehead and He said: "Arise, my daughter, and all at once the dead little girl was alive again, being hugged and kissed by her father and mother. Then Jesus, who loved the little girls, just as He loved everybody else, told the mother and father they must go to the kitchen right away and bring their hungry daughter something nice to eat. Jesus always told people they must have faith. Faith is believing something you cannot see, but you are very sure of it just the same. You are very sure, just knowing that your father loves you and mother loves you. FAITH IN GOD INVITES MIRACLES.

Tomorrow, Jesus makes friends with boys and girls.

NEW YORK (AP)—How can the Chinese Reds be made to want peace?

The answer holds the key to what will happen next in the Korean War.

President-elect Dwight Eisenhower stated the problem clearly in an off-the-cuff summary of his trip to the embattled peninsula:

"... Just because one side wants peace doesn't make peace. We must go ahead and do things that induce the others to want peace also."

This echoed a belief General Eisenhower phrased this way in a more formal statement:

"We face an enemy whom we cannot hope to impress by words, however eloquent, but only by deeds—executed under circumstances of our own choosing."

These two significant sentences herald a real effort to change the stalemated Korean situation—a period when the present groping yearning for peace will be replaced by some kind of action to your will.

What form will that action take? Naturally Eisenhower must remain silent on this point at this time. But there are two ways to get a donkey to move forward: (a) hold some hay out in front of him, or (b) kick and beat him until he decides it is wiser to obey your will.

And there would seem to be only two general methods of action to make the Chinese Reds want peace:

1. Through diplomatic changes offer some kind of reward that would make them wish to reach a cease fire in Korea, and move out of the orbit of Red Russia toward the orbit of the Western powers. Assuming this could be done, such a program would possibly entail the jettisoning of Chiang Kai Shek, who is powerfully supported in the American Congress.

2. Increase military pressure on Red China to such an extent that crippling losses would lead her to sue for a real peace, even against the wishes of Red Russia, who now supplies her with most of her heavy armaments.

The danger here, of course, is that such a program would fan the long smoldering process of "China into a flaming third world war."

opinion is sharply divided on this question. Some career soldiers say we cannot risk taking steps that might extend the conflict and commit us to full-scale warfare in the Far East. Others say we cannot afford not to take these steps.

A general officer who holds this view recently expressed it to me as follows:

"Time is fighting on the other side, not on ours. The other fellow is building up faster than we are. We have to stop this business in Korea now."

"We are fighting the war the way the Chinese want it, on a fixed line. We don't have the maneuver to win that way. Our cardinal principle in warfare is mobility, and we have to get back to the four P's of the American Army: find 'em, fix 'em, fight 'em, and finish 'em."

"We need to use everything we have now and finish the Korean War as quickly as possible by land attack, naval blockades, and bombing of Chinese seaports and Manchurian supply and armament centers—yes, by atom bombing if necessary."

This officer, however, was against employing Chiang Kai Shek's Formosa garrison troops in Korea not because it would anger Red China to do so, but because he has no faith in the Nationalist soldiers.

"I'm afraid that two months after they were put in the line they'd be bought by the communies, and go over to the other side, carrying their arms with them," he said.

How widespread such views are in the professional ranks I have no way of knowing, but there is a growing impatience to do something positive to wind up a conflict that has caused 120,000 American casualties in 30 months.

Perhaps the most meaningful phrase in General Eisenhower's statement was his reference to future deeds to be "executed under circumstances of our own choosing."

It is hard to interpret that any way except as a clear warning to the Chinese Reds that counter-initiative steps are planned and they no longer will call all the tunes in Korea.

UNTIL YOU READ these words you might not know that these girls are nurses... Navy nurses... and that they have been taking swimming lessons... and that the final lesson consists of jumping fully clothed into the water to learn how to swim under emergency conditions.

A picture, a headline, a brief announcement can whet your appetite for news, but cannot satisfy your hunger for the whole story.

It takes words—sometimes many—to satisfy your curiosity about the who, what, when and where of any picture or headline. Words bring meaning, words bring understanding, words bring news. Newspapers bring news.

Only the newspaper brings you full stories day after day—pictures and sufficient words.

Only the newspaper can bring you the full story as soon as your appetite is aroused. Fast, without delay.

This goes for advertising, too. The brief message that flashes in the air... or the brief headline here or there... may indeed have a momentary interest.

But the newspaper ad carries the broadcast quality, the urgency of the newspaper itself.

Like a news item, the ad can be examined and re-examined. Can be read any time. Anywhere. Can be clipped and carried in a pocket or pocketbook.

Like the news, the ads themselves have the same important word quality. No other medium can match this quality.

Add to all this the fact that the newspapers reach everybody in town, and you know why the newspaper is the nation's most powerful advertising medium.

The newspaper is always "first with the most"

Willing To Listen

The promptness with which General Eisenhower responded to General MacArthur's statement that he had a clear-cut, workable answer to the problem of what to do in Korea was admirable. Eisenhower, after his visit to Korea, admitted that he had no such plan himself. But if MacArthur has found one the President-elect wants to know about it.

When General MacArthur left Korea he was convinced that more relentless prosecution of the war there would bring eventual victory. Many in this country feared that stepping up the fighting would lead to an extension of the war and possibly result in World War III. MacArthur is still convinced that he was right and this may be what he means when he says he has a plan.

General Eisenhower has always been able to use the best advice of men who disagreed with him and with their colleagues. During his period of top military leadership there was never any doubt that Eisenhower held the reins. But he was always willing to listen to the ideas of subordinates and often this advice proved practical and profitable.

General MacArthur is one of the greatest living military figures. He has had wide experience in the Orient and his association with Asiatic peoples has given him an understanding of their attitudes and psychology. His present plan may not be sound, or Eisenhower may have ideas which disagree with MacArthur's beliefs. But when lives are at stake, as they are in Korea, a responsible leader will listen to every point of view. Eisenhower is demonstrating his willingness to do just that.

Vanishing Bird

When the wagons of the pioneers rolled west one of the most common of the game birds they encountered was the prairie chicken. Today the National Wildlife Federation is worried lest the prairie chicken may become extinct in a few years unless steps are taken to save it.

The prairie chicken needs undisturbed grasslands for its existence. The increasing use of western lands for farm purposes has resulted in gradually diminishing covers of prairie chickens. Some biologists suggest that refugees be set aside for the preservation of the birds.

Most states already have laws limiting the hunting of prairie chickens and best yet only four states are permitted to shoot the birds at all. These birds are colorful creatures and it is well for the states and the federal government to do everything possible to assure their survival.

The scientific name for these birds is tympanuchus americanus. One conservation measure which might work would be to meet all sportsmen who desire to hunt them with the scientific name before being granted a license.

Napoleon's Blunder

Probably not a year has passed since his death without some one writing a life of Napoleon. Only Lincoln has had more biographies. One of the very best of Napoleon has just appeared, under the authorship of an English historian, James M. Thompson. He thinks better of the emperor than many former writers, though recognizing his faults.

The one episode in his career which Frenchmen must deprecate was his refusal to make peace in 1815. Then the Allies offered to let France keep Belgium, the left bank of the Rhine, and Savoy and Nice. Essentially a gambler, Napoleon wanted all or nothing. He rejected this compromise, and so lost all those and his throne besides.

History might have been different had Napoleon accepted this offer. France would have had more on a par with the German empire, and a true balance of power in Western Europe might have prevented the German aggression that led to three wars.

There is soundness to the old definition of a satisfactory peace, as one which dissatisfies all the signers.

Navy Plans 'New Look' For Latest Carriers | 'Canted' Deck For Jets Among Changes Planned

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—The Navy is planning a series of alterations on modern aircraft carriers to accommodate new high-speed planes and the larger aircraft needed to carry atomic bombs.

Announcement already has been made of a million dollar modification of the USS Antietam to permit the landing of high-speed jets with a greater margin of safety than was available before. The Navy said it changed the vessel's flight deck to a "canted" angle to carry out this purpose.

Another modification is planned on the huge, 60,000-ton Forrestal which will have a flush deck without obstructions to star take-offs or landings by its planes. In addition to the Forrestal, two other super-carriers are scheduled for construction.

The so-called "island" on the ship—containing the bridge, guns, radar and other carrier equipment—will be on an elevator that may be raised or lowered at will.

This will make it possible for the gigantic carrier to give its pilots a flush deck when they need it but still have an island for use in normal travel or times of emergency.

Another contemplated development is the "angled" or "bumpy landing" platform which literally would force planes to land uphill, thus reducing the landing speed of many "hot" jet craft.

THE WORLD TODAY

WASHINGTON—The government's top Loyalty Review Board has decided there is reasonable doubt about the loyalty of John Carter Vincent, for 27 years a career diplomat in the State Department.

The 33-year-old Vincent was suspended at once by the State Department and ordered home from his post as American minister in Tangier, President Truman will go over his case with Secretary of State Acheson.

Vincent's trouble goes back into the 1940s when he was one of the State Department's main advisers on dealing with China, both Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government and the Chinese Communists.

The review board did not say Vincent was disloyal. It simply said there was reasonable doubt about his loyalty.

The board, whose hearings and investigations are not made public, will probably not explain how, and on what evidence, it reached its decision about Vincent.

But, unless it reveals more than it has so far, his case will remain as confusing as it has for the past three years.

In 1950 he was accused of being a Communist by ex-Communist Louis Budenz and of being pro-Communist by Sen. McCarthy. A Senate committee investigated McCarthy's charges and cleared Vincent and others. This was a subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee headed by the then Sen. Tydings of Maryland.

This year the Senate's internal security subcommittee, headed by Sen. McCarran, Nevada Democrat, began to examine Vincent's case. He appeared before the committee and denied that he was a Communist or pro-Communist.

That was last Jan. 30. On Feb. 19 the State Department's own Loyalty Review Board, which in-investigated Vincent on its own, "completely cleared" him.

But on July 2 the McCarran committee issued a report blasting Vincent. It didn't say he was a Communist but it did indicate he had been a big help to international communism in influencing public opinion.

Although cleared by his own State Department loyalty board, this was not the end for Vincent. The top Loyalty Review Board has the right to go over any case passed upon by a department loyalty board and either agree with its findings or reach an opposite conclusion.

Casselberry Sues Newsmen For Libel

SANFORD (Special)—Hibbard Casselberry, president of the Winter Park Fern Corp., struck back at Harmon C. Rice Sr., publisher of the weekly Floridian, late Saturday, by signing two affidavits charging the writer-printer with libel.

Specifically, the charges are that Rice violated Sec. 830.03 of Florida statutes by printing anonymous letters in his edition of Dec. 1, County Judge Douglas Stenstrom issued the warrants, but Sheriff R. A. Mero did not serve them until yesterday in order to allow Rice a chance to raise bond.

Affidavits claimed Rice "did permit an anonymous communication signed otherwise than in the name of the true writer, to wit: 'Contributed,' (in the case of the other affidavit, 'A Citizen') to appear in the columns of his publication in which communication affiant, Hibbard Casselberry, was attacked in his good name and in which communication it was attempted to bring disgrace or ridicule upon the said Hibbard Casselberry."

Friday, Rice successfully defended himself in a distress for rent suit, brought by the Winter Park Fern Corp., when his attorney proved the corporation had been dissolved by the governor's proclamation in 1948.

Rice also has a $6,822.81 damages suit against Casselberry pending in circuit court.

New York Detective Reveals He Was Offered $10,000 Sum To Help Racketeers

Jersey City detective John Waldron said the bribe was offered him in November, 1951, by a man named Johnnie Ali. The bribe—starting with $10,000 for three Jersey City detectives—was intended to put 10 policemen on the waterfront firm's payroll, Waldron testified.

Waldron took the witness stand as the crime commission's probe of racketeering in the city. He laid out part of his spotlight focused on Jersey City for the second day.

There are three types of atomic bomb explosions he explained. The first and most widely known is the air burst; the second, the surface burst; and the third, the subsurface burst. And there are three principal destructive effects. The first type, the blast force, and thermal, and nuclear radiation.
